STRIKE ON GREAT LAKES IS ORDERED; THOUSANDS WILL BE RENDERED IDLE

Union Cooks and Seamen Get Command to Quit.

Carriers' Association Conditions Declared Intolerable.

Strike, is the word that has gone out from the offices of the Lake Seamen's union in Chicago. The Head of the Lakes local, comprising the seamen of Duluth and Superior, has heard the call and a formal declaration of war and orders for a strike have been issued, to become effective tomorrow morning.

About seventy seamen will be affected by the order at this port. Secretary Edwards states that the order meets with the approval of the men. The action to be taken in Duluth is general at all lake ports and comes as the result of the orders received from Walsh, general secretary of the union.

The message states that Resolution No. 1 which voiced the main issue at stake, was adopted. This resolution is as follows:

"Resolved, That we indorse the letter of April 1 sent by the lake district grievance committee to the Lake Carriers' association.

"Resolved, That we cannot accept the intolerable conditions now sought to be enforced upon us by the Lake Carriers' association, but that we are ready to enter the employ of any ship owners who will agree to fair treatment to our members and which we can ship as free and union men."

This means that all vessels at this and other ports on the Great Lakes which are controlled by the Lake Carriers' association, will be deserted by union men.

Secretary Edwards says that everything will be carried on in a peaceful manner. The laws of the union forbid any attempt being made to induce non-union men already employed, from deserting, and it is said this rule will be strictly enforced.

The unions hope by compact organization and a decided stand, to make it impossible for the Lake Carriers' asso-

INDIANAPOLIS NEWS PUBLISHER RESISTS

DELAVAN SMITH.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 1.—Delavan Smith and Charles R. Williams, proprietors of the Indianapolis News indicted by the grand jury of the District of Columbia, with the proprietors of the New York World, on charge of having committed criminal libel in publishing certain statements bearing on the purchase of the Panama canal by the United States government appeared before Judge Anderson in United States district court today and were served with warrants for their arrest. They gave a bond for their appearance in the court at a later day, probably the first week of June, for a hearing as to their removal to the District of Columbia for trial. Smith and Williams will resist removal.

BREWERS, PAINTERS AND BRICKLAYERS ON STRIKE.

Butte, Mont., May 1.—Brewers all over the state, carpenters and painters in Great Falls, and bricklayers in Butte are out, or about to go out on strike. The brewers, who number about 200 in the state, were ordered to quit work at midnight. Two points are at issue, in regard to hours and wages, and the other as to the jurisdiction of the Brewery Workers' union over the engineers employed in the breweries.

WOMAN IS ACQUITTED

Missouri Jury Says Miss Davidson Did Not Murder.

Aunt of the Dead Man Screams in Court for Conviction.

Neshoe, Mo., May 1.—Miss "Johnny" Davidson, the young heiress who was on trial here, charged with the murder of Roy Ramsour, her sister's suitor, was acquitted this morning.

The jury was out seventeen hours, having been given the case at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, after a sensational trial. Miss Davidson is wealthy in her own right and her family is prominent. The Ramsour family also is well-to-do, and because of the prominence of the principles the case has caused intense feeling.

Yesterday Miss Davidson showed the strain of the trial for the first time. She broke down and cried, as did many other women in the courtroom, when her attorney concluded his plea for her life. She also gave way to her feelings when the prosecutor denounced her as a "cold-blooded murderess."

During the closing arguments Mrs. Samuel Reynolds, aunt of the dead man, became wildly hysterical. She screamed aloud a demand that the defendant be convicted and then collapsed.

TO REGULATE PRODUCTION

New York, May 1.—Copper men to the number of a score and a half or more, representing some of the most prominent production and consuming interests in the country, recently partook of a dinner, at the end of which they received an impressive lecture.

The host was an officer of the United States Steel corporation, and the keynote of the "idea" seemed to be that there should be an amalgamation of copper properties on the lines of the United States Steel corporation.

In the general discussion that has followed, it has developed that the most serious obstacle to be overcome, apart from any of a legal or political nature, would be the unwillingness of certain of the Boston copper properties.

A man in touch with the general subject says:

"The whole object would be to regulate production. Anyone who is doing so is responsible for the present condition of the copper industry."

It seems that all that has been so far done has been to obtain a consensus of the leading producers, with the understanding that, if a sufficient number of them would agree to "come in" means would not be wanting to finance the consolidation.

OFFER PRESIDENCY TO EX-DULUTHIAN

CHARLEMAGNE TOWER

Boston, Mass., May 1.—It is learned from tourists who returned from Berlin, that the University of Michigan trustees have offered the presidency of that institution to Charlemagne Tower. Some weeks ago their representative, Mr. Osborne, went to Berlin to place the offer before Mr. Tower and secure his acceptance, if possible. The offer has been made, but whether Mr. Tower will accept is not yet known. He will leave Berlin June 1.

Charlemagne Tower formerly lived in Duluth.

WOMAN ARRESTED FOR MURDER ENDS LIFE.

Wichita, Kan., May 1.—Mrs. Helen Yarbourg of Springfield, Mo., wanted on charge of murdering John Dullette, a wealthy Indian in Claremore, Okla., April 15, committed suicide by taking strychnine after she had been arrested.

JUDGE OPPOSED BY NELSON RESIGNS

MILTON D. PURDY.

St. Paul, Minn., May 1.—Judge Milton D. Purdy of the United States circuit court has tendered his resignation to President Taft. Purdy was temporarily appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge Lochren, and the permanent appointment of Judge Purdy has been opposed by Senator Nelson. Speaking of the matter yesterday, Judge Purdy said:

"I made up my mind some time ago to end the matter by fixing a specific time. As matters stood, I did not know at what time a change might be made, and I preferred to know just where I was."

STEAMERS AURANIA AND RUSSIA AND THE BARGE NESTER LOST IN THE LAKES

Commanding Officer of Aurania Tells a Thrilling Tale.

The barge Nester has gone down on a reef off Huron islands with all on board. The crew numbered seven.

The package freight and passenger steamer Russia, plying between Duluth and Port Huron, has sunk in Lake Huron, twelve miles from Detour; all the crew being saved.

The steamer that sank in Whitefish bay, near Parisian island Thursday was the Aurania of the Corrigan line, confirmation of this being received by The Herald today. All on board escaped death.

Marquette, Mich., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fears that yesterday's furious gale on Lake Superior would be productive of disaster came to a tragic realization when the barge George Nester struck a reef off the Huron islands, northwest of here, and was lost, with all hands. There were seven men on board. Their names are not known here.

In tow of the Schoolcraft, the vessel was bound for Baraga to load lumber. She broke away from the steamer in the terrific storm, and shortly after noon yesterday was driven on to the rocks. The lighthouse tender Marigold was directly behind her. Small boats could not live in the heavy seas, and the Marigold attempted to rescue the Nester's crew by means of life-lines. This attempt was unsuccessful. The Nester went to pieces fast, and in a short time she was a total loss, and all on board had perished.

The Marigold arrived here this morning with news of the disaster. She brought an injured man, a member of her own crew, who, in aiding in the attempted rescue, had been hit by a piece of floating wreckage and had suffered a broken shoulder.

The schooner George Nester was built in 1887 and is named for her owner, a resident of Detroit. She was 206 feet long, 35 feet beam and had a registered net tonnage of 751.

Capt. Last To Leave.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Russia of the Port Huron & Duluth Steamship company sank last night in sixty fathoms, twelve miles due south of Detour. All the members of the crew were saved in small boats. The sinking of the vessel was due to the shifting of the cargo in heavy seas in yesterday's storm.

The Disaster occurred at 11 o'clock last night and Capt. John C. McLean and his crew of twenty-one men, with one passenger reached Detour in two yawl boats early this morning.

According to a statement made by the captain, the cargo was shifted about an hour before the vessel sank. A portion of the deckload of cement was jettisoned and the boat righted. A little later another shift took her to starboard and the balance of the deckload was thrown overboard by the crew. This proved unavailing and the list steadily increased until the rail was awash, when the captain ordered

AWAIT AID IN A YAWL

Ten Men From Wrecked Schooner Carnegie Row Seaward.

Lifeline Is Shot Nine Times, But Falls Short.

New York, May 1.—The five-masted schooner William C. Carnegie, of Portland, Me., went ashore near the Moriches life saving station on the south coast of Long Island in a northeast gale and thick weather, early this morning. The vessel now lies broadside to the beach, about half a mile off shore, with waves dashing over her. Capt. Reed and his crew of nine men, unable to reach the shore, boarded their yawl boat and, rowing seaward, anchored to await help. Although the life saving crews of the Moriches, Forgerister and Potunk stations were near the wreck they could render no assistance and an appeal for a revenue cutter was sent to this city.

The Carnegie was bound from Norfolk to Portland and was sighted on the beach, fifteen miles west of Shinnecock lighthouse at 3:45 a. m., the captain evidently having lost his course in the mist which is among the ocean. Capt. Nelson T. Gordon of the Moriches station, and Capt Isaac Gildersleeve of Potunk formed a crew of eight and attempted to launch a self-bailing life boat through a tremendous surf. The boat was overturned and two of the life savers were caught underneath it and nearly drowned before their comrades could rescue them.

Attempts to get through the surf were then abandoned and the life savers brought up their line gun and attempted to shoot a line across the rigging of the vessel. The Carnegie was lying a quarter of a mile from the beach and nine times the shot fell short.

The captain and crew of the Carnegie then managed to get their yawl into the water and abandoned the vessel.

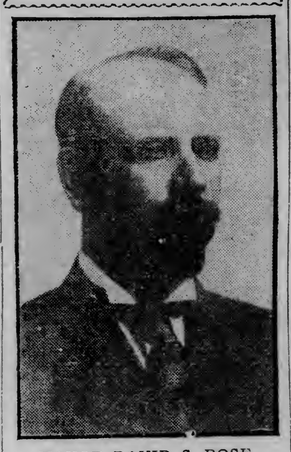
DUTCH BABY PRINCESS IS GIVEN FIVE NAMES.

The Hague, May 1.—The condition of Queen Wilhelmina, who yesterday gave birth to a daughter and the infant princess today is thoroughly satisfactory. The princess has been named Juliana Louise Emma Marie Wilhelmina.

ARTHUR BROWN CHOSEN BY NATIONAL BOILERMAKERS.

Louisville, Ky., May 1.—Arthur Brown of Louisville, general foreman of the boiler department of the Louisville & Nashville shops, was elected president of the International Boilermakers' association, which adjourned last night. Cincinnati won over Niagara Falls for the next meeting place. A. N. Lucas of Milwaukee is vice president, Harry Vought is secretary and Frank Gray is treasurer.

HOLDS PROHIBITION TO BE DESTRUCTIVE



MAYOR DAVID S. ROSE.

Chicago, May 1.—Before an audience which applauded each speaker, the second debate between Mayor David S. Rose of Milwaukee and President Samuel Dickie of Albion college, Michigan, on the prohibition question was held in the Auditorium theater last night. Mayor Rose said:

"Thinking men recognize prohibition as an extreme remedy wholly insufficient and destructive in actual practice, while on the other hand they realize that the joint saloon and the dive menaces security. Now they are seeking some rational middle ground."

Dickie took up the physical effect that the drinking of liquors has upon its patrons. He argued that it shortens life and increases liability to disease.

WILL OPEN THE ALASKA CENTRAL

Seattle, Wash., May 1.—Contractor A. L. Slow of Spokane and eighty five men sailed for Alaska today on the steamer Northwest to open the Alaska Central railroad from Seward to Placer valley. The road, of which fifty-eight miles is completed, has been out of commission and in the hands of a receiver since November, 1907. The finished portion of the road will be put in running order at once, and twenty miles of new road across Placer valley into Turuggain will be constructed. Five hundred men will be employed.

A dispatch from Cordova, Alaska, announces the completion of the huge spans of the Copper River & Northwestern railroad bridge across the Copper river at Flag Point. The span stretches 560 feet. The railroad will be opened clear through Ambercrombie canyon early in May. Work has been begun on the railroad's gigantic steel bridge across the Copper river at Miles Glacier.

KITCHENER COMING.

Winnipeg, Man., May 1.—Lord Kitchener, commander-in-chief of the British forces in India, will visit Canada this fall and inspect the military forces of the dominion at the order of the British government. His term in India expires in July and he will spend August traveling in China and Japan, after which he will tour Canada.

COLDNESS WORKS HAVOC AMONG CANADIAN STOCK.

Winnipeg, Man., May 1.—The snow storms and cold weather of the past week have worked havoc among the cattle on the ranches of Southern Alberta. The older cattle came through in fairly good condition, but hundreds of young heifers in calf succumbed. Gordon & Ironside, Winnipeg exporters of cattle, report heavy losses.

YOUNG MAN KILLED WHILE OUT HUNTING.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 1.—While hunting near his home at Strum, Nysander Gullickesrud, aged 22, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of the gun he was carrying. The weapon was loaded with buckshot, and, judging from the position in which he lay when found, it was evident that the gun was discharged as he was crawling through a fence. The charge struck him under the ear.

ANOTHER STORK AWAITED.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth Lease Cottage at Beverley, Mass.

Beverly, Mass., May 1.—It is believed here an event is scheduled which will throw Queen Wilhelmina's performance in the shade so far as American interest is concerned.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth have leased a cottage near President Taft's, for occupancy this summer, and considerable palms have been taken to make it clear that that particular cottage will not be a social rendezvous during the season.

Hence the belief in the imminence of the stork.

The cottage is at Mingo Beach and is owned by Mr. Longworth's mother. As soon as repairs can be concluded at the cottage it is thought likely that Mr. and Mrs. Longworth will come here. Mrs. Roosevelt probably will visit her daughter early in the summer.

The Longworth cottage is only a short distance from Woodbury Point, where President Taft's family is expected to arrive about June 5.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter of Chicago, who has leased the adjacent Hickman cottage, will also be a newcomer at the Beverly summer colony.

Accurate Reports Await Repairs of Telegraph Facilities.

Louisville, Ky., May 1.—From information received today it is believed 200 persons were killed in the storm which swept Kentucky and neighboring southern states Thursday night. An accurate count of the fatalities must await the repairing of telegraph and telephone wires. Today there was a message from Gallatin, Ky., and three persons had been killed there and that three had met death in Todd county. As fast rest as Mount Sterling, Ky., buildings were demolished, tobacco beds washed away and roads turned into rivers.

Eighteen Corpses Found.

Memphis, Tenn., May 1.—While scouting in the pathway of the storm are still to be heard from and, in all probability, to add their quota to the list of casualties and of property loss, dispatches so far received from Arkansas, Western Tennessee and Northern Mississippi bringing the total number

WOMAN SHOOTS; KILLING PRINTER

Fires From Her Door When She Hears Sounds.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 1.—L. D. Plowman, 40 years old, a printer of Canton, Ohio., was shot and killed today by Mrs. Elizabeth Forsyth, wife of William Forsyth, a newspaper correspondent, living at 11½ West Ninth street.

The woman was arrested, but was allowed liberty on her own recognizance.

Mrs. Forsyth heard sounds at her window on the ground floor of the house. Her husband was not at home. She secured a revolver and when she opened a side door a man ran by. She fired and the man fell with two bullets in his body.

BRIDGE FALLS JUST AFTER FARMER DRIVES ACROSS.

Peoria, Ill., May 1.—Three arches of the new concrete-steel wagon bridge over the Illinois river, recently opened for traffic, fell into the river this morning. No one was injured. At 5:30 a farmer crossed the bridge, driving toward the city, and twenty minutes later the arches fell. The contract price of the structure was about $200,000.

JAPANESE WARSHIPS AT FRISCO RETURN VISIT OF AMERICANS

San Francisco, Cal., May 1.—Almost the entire Japanese population of this city, numbering about 5,000 and great crowds of Americans, gathered on the hills overlooking the bay and the Golden Gate this morning to witness the arrival from Los Angeles of the Japanese cruisers Aso and Soya.

The waters of the harbor were crowded with steamers, launches and sail boats, many of them containing enthusiastic parties of Nipponese. The revenue cutter McCulloch put to sea early in the morning to meet the warships outside the heads and escort them through the Golden Gate and on their course up the bay to anchor. The program committee has devoted the whole day to the official reception and exchange of courtesies.

Admiral Swinburne, representing the navy; Gen. Weston, representing the army; Mayor Taylor and the citizens' committee, met on board the cruiser West Virginia, flagship of the American squadron, to await the signal for putting off in naval launches for the Japanese admiral's visit, while Collector of the Port Stratton, President Taft's official representative, Lieutenant Governor Porter and the Japanese consul, Matsuzo Nagai, were taken down the bay on the revenue cutter Golden Gate.

Read Admiral Ijichi announced that he had decided to remain two days longer than planned at first, and will not weigh anchor for the North until May 10. He intended to visit several inland points while his ships are at this port, including Sacramento, San Jose, Stanford university and the Lick observatory.

DELIVERY DAY FOR WHEAT; MAY OPTION BECOMES A CASH AFFAIR

Chicago, May 1.—This was delivery day on the board of trade, and the May option, which was the medium of the recent bull campaign, led by James A. Patten, became cash wheat. On May contracts today 2,100,000 bushels of wheat were delivered, practically all of it to Bartlett, Patten & Co.

Brokers hazard a guess that Mr. Patten paid an average of $1.08 for his May wheat. Assuming this figure to be approximately correct Mr. Patten might have sold the wheat delivered him this morning at $1.12 for delivery in July, which would show a profit of 4 cents per bushel. May wheat, however, today opened at $1.24½ to $1.24¾, and a good demand for actual wheat would enable the bull leader to sell at a much greater profit.

While May 1 is commonly known as delivery day, sellers have until the end of the month to turn over the wheat which they have sold. Formerly only No. 2 red winter wheat could be delivered on future contracts, but under a new rule of the board made two years ago, No. 2 spring wheat was made standard. A large quantity of this latter, it is expected, will find its way down from the Head of the Lakes when navigation opens, thus swelling the amount in the Patten elevators.

No. 2 red wheat is selling at $1.41¾ to $1.44¾ and No. 2 spring at $1.26.

BEAUTIFUL SCENIC DRIVEWAY NOW EXTENDS TO WEST DULUTH

THE BOULEVARD EXTENSION.

The West Duluth extension of the boulevard, upon which the finishing touches are being made this spring, is conceded to be one of the beauty spots at the Head of the Lakes. Following the crest of the Duluth hills from Thirty-ninth to Sixty-fourth avenues west, the drive abounds in rugged and picturesque beauty that cannot be equalled in Northern Minnesota.

Work on the extension was begun about two years ago and late last fall was nearing completion. The idea of the boulevard extension was first urged by the West Duluth Commercial club, nourished faithfully by the members of the club who were at all times interested in good roads, and finally came to fruition when the park board took the matter in hand.

When work was stopped on the scenic driveway last fall, the boulevard was in very good shape. This spring there are some spots which require attention, and the work will be taken up by the park board at an early date. This summer it is expected that the road will be used a great deal for auto drives, as it is in excellent condition.

The members of the West Duluth Commercial club, the park board, representatives of the downtown Commercial club and other interested parties inspected the road late last fall. West Duluthians are especially proud of their end of the boulevard drive, and the Commercial club is now favoring an extension out from Sixty-fourth avenue to Bayview Heights and Fond du Lac.

SNOW PLOWS IN WEST DULUTH

The Snow Is Piled Up High in the Streets.

Snow plows were hauled out this morning by the street railway company, and were used extensively along the main thoroughfare at West Duluth.

After the walks had been shoveled this morning along Central avenue, snow banks were piled up as high as four feet in some places.

Street Commissioner Joseph Beck and his crew of men had their hands full this morning clearing snow from the street. A large number of sleighs were in use today at West Duluth.

DETACHABLE TWIN RUBBER HEELS

SO MUCH TALKED ABOUT

MY DEAR HEIMBACH:

About two months ago I had a cobbler in the city fit a pair of my shoes with your Detachable Twin Rubber Heels. This was done with a feeling of skepticism on my part, as to the merits of the heel, but after wearing them daily for two months, am not only unable to find fault, but must admit that the heels are perfect and give absolute satisfaction.

While the Detachable feature is very unique and prevents the heels from running over on any side more than another, I find that the best feature of the heel is in the fact that snow and dirt will not cling to them and track the floors indoors, owing to the fact that there are no nails nor nail holes in the bottom of the heels.

WE GUARANTEE

Every pair of the Detachable Twin Rubber Heels from our shops. Give us a call. Our shop is fitted out with the latest improved machinery and equipment for first class work. We make a specialty of "REPAIRING WHILE YOU WAIT."

WANT PROVISION FOR PEDESTRIANS

Commercial Club Discusses Proposed Grassy Point Bridge.

Means for more forcibly bringing pressure to bear upon the war department to reject the submitted plans of the Grassy Point railroad bridge unless the specifications are amended to call for a passage way for team and foot traffic, were discussed at the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club, last evening. There was a fair attendance.

Some of the members thought it advisable to hire an attorney to look into the case and see if legal steps could not be taken to prevent the Northern Pacific from building the bridge without complying with the expressed wish of the people on both ends of it. Nothing was done, however, as there were not enough present. The Superior Commercial club is working along the same lines in regard to the reconstruction of the bridge.

FAREWELL PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. John Olsen entertained at a farewell party last evening at their home, 618 North Fifty-sixth avenue west in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Hjalmar J. Jern, who are leaving the city. The evening was spent in music and games. Refreshments were served. Those who were present were: Dr. and Mrs. Jern, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Erickson, Misses, Edith Stakey, Edith Gilman, Ellen Gilman, Martha Lundholm, Hilda Hanson, Signa Osterson, Selma August, and Messrs. Henry Peterson, Dr. Judson, Goodwin Olsen, Simon Gilman, Melvin Olsen, Carl Stakey, Carl Swanstrom and John Lind.

GAME POSTPONED.

Ball Diamond at Iron River Is Covered With Snow.

Manager Jack Gram of the Oak Halls received word last evening that the game which had been arranged between the Oak Halls and the Iron River aggregation would have to be called off on account of the heavy snowfall at Iron River. It will be played in two weeks, May 16.

Arrangements are now complete for a game with the fast Cloquet team at Cloquet, Sunday, May 9. This will be the opening game of the season for both teams, and it is expected that many surprises are in store for the fans. Manager Gram is rounding up all of his men and will rush practice work next week if the weather permits.

On Honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Carmen G. Brown, recently married at Minneapolis, are spending their honeymoon with West Duluth friends. They are stopping at the home of James Anderson, Fifty-ninth avenue west. They will return in a few days to East Grand Forks, where they will reside in the future.

Escaped the Storm.

That Virginia, Eveleth, and a number of the range towns escaped the heavy snow storm and blizzard that was visited upon Duluth and immediate vicinity yesterday and Thursday, is the statement that C. M. Hendrickson makes. He returned this morning from the range country.

According to his story, good weather has generally prevailed at Eveleth and the other towns while the storms were raging in Duluth. "On Thursday, however," says Mr. Hendrickson, "there was a breezy wind at Eveleth, but it was not accompanied by rain or snow."

Republican Meeting.

Matters Republican will be talked over this evening at a gathering of the West Duluth Republican club at the club rooms. It is understood that Mayor R. D. Haven and other local leaders of the party will be present.

Reports are to be heard from the committee on changes in the club's by-laws, the committee on second papers for prospective citizens, and from those who are arranging for the annual banquet to be given some time in August. The political situation will also be discussed.

West Duluth Churches.

Services at the Merritt Memorial M. E. church, corner Forty-sixth avenue west and Ramsey street for tomorrow, are as follows: Sunday school at 10 a. m.; preaching at 11 o'clock, and class meeting at noon.

In the afternoon the Odd Fellow anniversary service will be held at the church at 3 o'clock, the sermon to be preached by Rev. E. T. Stidd. The evening service will commence at 7:45 p. m. Epworth League will meet at 7:15.

SAW DEATH OF ROGERS

Only American Witness of Adana Murders Tells Story.

Missionary Trowbridge Also Describes Killing of Henry Maurier.

Constantinople, May 1.—S. R. Trowbridge, a missionary of the American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions, was the only American to witness the killing in Adana of D. M. Rogers and Henry Maurer, American missionaries. He has supplied the following account of the occurrence to representatives of the grand vizier and has also written it out for the mission board at home.

"Firing and fighting began April 14, between Moslems and Armenians, which resulted in a number of casualties on both sides. By nightfall it was clear that incendiaries were at work, for several districts of the city were covered by clouds of smoke which rolled out far into the country, where vineyards and country also were burning. All night long the reports of fire alarms rang out from all sides. The roofs and parapets of houses, minarets, windows with shutters and other ambuscades were used. The most persistent and dangerous fusillades came from one of the minarets on the border of the Armenian quarter.

Girls' School Menaced.

"The next morning the conflagrations had spread to such an extent that we were obliged to watch closely the environs of the girls' school and the house of William N. Chambers. Fresh outbursts of smoke near the girls' school, showed that we were threatened by fire. The wind fanned the flames and drove them from house to house in our direction.

"Mr. Rogers was guarding the home of Miss Wallace and the dispensary across the street from the school. It was clear that the large school, a building of brick and wood, was in danger. We spent the morning in ripping off projecting woodwork and porch posts. It soon became evident that direct efforts to put out the flames must be undertaken. Up to that time no one had dared to go into the streets. Moslem pillagers, armed and in a desperate mood, were looting the houses opposite the buildings on fire.

"Mr. Maurer and I took one crowbar and ax and crossed the street to destroy the wooden porches, shutters and stairways of the houses between the fires and the girls' school. We carried pails of water, which we threw wherever we saw flames breaking out.

"All this time there had been no effort on the part of the government authorities to stop the rioting, pillaging and burning.

Lowered Their Rifles.

"When I first climbed to the roofs near the flames, armed Moslems appeared on three sides within close range. When they understood that I was not firing, but had come to work against the flames, they lowered their rifles and assured me with many pledges that I might go on unmolested. Then three Turks appeared at the windows of a house just across the street and after assuring me of my safety they dropped back again to their work of plunder. Back of that house in a well protected position was a turbaned Moslem covering these looters with his rifle and firing frequently to protect them.

"In the meanwhile, Mr. Maurier came up to me and made use of a crowbar in throwing down a wall, one side of which was burning fiercely. We begged some Armenian young men who were lurking around the street corners to put away their arms and come and save the school building.

"The real danger that pressed upon our minds was not the possibility of the building, but the perilous situation in which our American friends, the hundreds of Christian refugees, and eighty school girls would find themselves in case the building burned.

"In every direction there was rioting and shooting. There was no refuge except possibly in the Protestant church some distance away, and even this was threatened from three sides by the fires. We came back to the school and asked for volunteers, Mr. Rogers came at once. We had worked a considerable time without being harmed by the Moslems when the Armenians at the other end of the street commenced firing on the house where the looters were at work. Suddenly two shots rang out, not more than eight yards from where we were working. Mr. Rogers, who was in the street bringing water, was mortally wounded. He called to me by name and then fell in the middle of the street. The other bullet hit Mr. Maurer in the left lung near the heart. He climbed down the ladder and collapsed at the side of Rogers.

Bullets Whizzed Past.

"Several bullets whizzed past me. I dropped almost flat on the roof and made my way to the edge. My first thought was to help my two comrades home. Without concealing my intention, I stepped to the lower roof and climbed down the same ladder Mr. Maurier had used. It was clear that both men would have to be carried. I went to the school to tell Dr. Thomas D. Christie and Frederick Macallum.

"Just then the British vice consulate at Mersina, Maj. Daughty-Wylie, arrived with twenty-five Turkish soldiers, but by this time the murderers had disappeared.

"Mr. Maurer died a few minutes later in the school building and Mr. Rogers lived only a few minutes longer."

MARQUETTE CELEBRATES MID-WINTER MAY DAY.

Marquette, Mich., May 1.—Marquette and most of the Upper Michigan towns are today celebrating May day amid midwinter scenes. More than a foot of snow has fallen at some points, and the use of sleighs is general. No warm weather has been experienced yet this season, and business in all spring lines is dead.

There are many reasons why you ask for advertised articles, but absolutely none why you should let a substituting dealer palm off something which he claims to be "just as good" or "better" or "the same thing" as the article you requested.

Chronic Diseases Permanently Cured

Progressive Medical Experts Dissolve Diseased Organisms

Fever in the Colon and Pelvic Region produce such diseases as Piles, Fistula, Fissue Pruritis (Itching Piles). These latter diseases are more painful than bowel trouble, and also destructive to the general health, increasing the poisonous effects, causing a general nervous breakdown and finally a collapse. They terminate many times in Tuberculosis or Cancer. Attention to these diseases in their early stages is time-saving and money-saving, preventing much acute suffering and probably a premature invalidism or death. These diseases are dangerous for they become incurable if cancer develops.

Rectal Diseases require the attention of a skilled specialist, one who has devoted a lifetime to the study and treatment of these diseases. The family physician, who only gives casual attention to these diseases, is rarely able to cure them permanently. The knife is severe and seldom effects a permanent cure, as it does not remove the cause of the disease.

The efficacy of the method we employ for curing rupture can best be attested by the number of men whom we have cured without the use of the knife or other severe painful operation. We can refer you, by permission, to many prominent men of this vicinity who will tell you what our treatment has done for them. There is no delay or interference with your usual occupation in taking this treatment. By supplying the demands of nature in the form of tissue builders, a speedy and permanent cure will be effected. REMEMBER—NO KNIFE, NO BLOOD, NO EXPERIMENTS—but permanent cures.

WE GUARANTEE our cures and have never failed yet in a single case to get permanent and lasting cures. There are many thousands we have cured of all kinds of chronic diseases.

They do cure you of Blood Poison, Locomotor Ataxia, Bright's and Kidney Diseases, Paralysis, and all complicating diseases. Cancer, Tumors, Brain Diseases, Impure Blood, Eczema and all skin diseases. Rectal Troubles, Piles, Fistula, Neuralgia, Rheumatism and all chronic affections of men, skin diseases and all maladies which men are afflicted with.

You will be charged no fee for consultations and you can see the doctors from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m., and Sunday from 10 to 1. The specialists' offices are No. 1 West Superior street, Duluth, Minn.

GUARDS ARE EMPLOYED

Special Officer Detailed to Every Non-Union Vessel.

Lake Carriers Will Prevent Men Being Intimidated.

Special police officers will be detailed to guard life and property along the water front and on board the vessels in port during the strike of the Lake Seamen's union.

About twenty were sworn in at the city hall this morning, and more will be added to the force as needed. An officer will be placed on every boat as it enters the harbor, and will remain with it until it departs.

This move was made at the request of the Lake Carriers' association, members of which fear that the strike will embarrass their property. The association has agreed to pay the salaries of the men while they are on special service.

It is the intention of union men, as stated by Secretary Edwards of the Lake Seamen's union this morning, to avoid an act of violence to property or any attempt to intimidate crews already employed on association vessels. It has been a not uncommon experience for pickets for strikers to attempt to cripple the employers by practically compelling the crews to quit work, and the lake carriers do not propose to take any risk.

The special officers will make every effort to prevent union agents from getting into communication with the crews. They are given all the authorities in making officers in making arrests and maintaining the peace.

A big fleet of ore carriers, belonging to the Pittsburg Steamship company, is due to arrive here in a day or two, and an officer will be detailed to each boat.

The Lake Carriers' association is maintaining a force of special officers at Cleveland, Buffalo, Chicago and other lake ports, where it is feared their property may be put in danger by the strike.

THE CREW MISSING

Table All Set for Dinner —Crew Probably Lost.

Detroit, Mich., May 1.—A Journal special from Traverse City, Mich., says: Ann Arbor car ferry No. 1 last night picked up the steel barge Batavia floating nineteen miles south of Fox Island without a crew. The table was all set for dinner. The barge was towed to Northport. No one knows what has become of the crew. It is feared they are lost.

The steamer Batavia was built in 1904 for the Lehigh Valley Transportation company of Buffalo. Her gross tonnage was 202, length ninety-eight feet and twenty-eight feet beam. She was a lighter.

The Loss of the Nester.
Baraga, Mich., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The barge Nester, in tow of the steamer Schoolcraft, got out of the ice jam Thursday night and started up the lake. When they reached the Huron islands, and the steamer turned to go between the islands for shelter, the tow line then parted and in ten minutes the Nester was dashed to pieces on the rocks, the crew of seven men were lost in the heavy gale of wind on the lakes and the blinding snow storm. The steamer Schoolcraft reached Baraga at 8 o'clock this morning, the tug Heard is out now looking for the bodies, Capt. George Dufneau of Algonac was in command of the Nester and Capt. Borcassa is in command of the Schoolcraft.

WOMEN KILLED; MAN ARRESTED

Held at Wadena, Minn. —Victims' Homes Were Fired.

Wadena, Minn., May 1.—Peter Tursslvainen, a Finn, was arrested near the town of Menahga, this county, today, for causing the deaths of Mrs. Ben Mursu and Mrs. Paul Kura, also Finns, and setting fire to their houses last night.

The bodies of the women with the skulls crushed were taken from the blazing homes.

The husband of the Mursu woman is a money lender in Canada. Robbery is supposed to have been the motive of the crime. The alleged slayer was traced through the snow to the home of his brother-in-law.

CITY CARES FOR FAMILY OF MICE

Among those depending upon the city for support during the winter and spring is a family of mice, which has taken up its abode in the assistant city attorney's office in the city hall.

The stenographer attends to feeding and watering them, and they have become as tame and domesticated as a home-loving cat. Food and water are constantly kept in a corner of the room for them, and almost any time of the day one or more of the little animals may be seen there gratifying the desires of tiny stomachs.

The mice are very brave, and have absolutely no fear of the people who are constantly coming and going. They pay no attention to the movements of human beings, in fact. The saucer of water is large enough to allow the dependents a chance to take a bath. They are not afraid of wetting their skins, and as fast as the family is added to, the little ones are brushed into the saucer and forced to learn to swim.

GREAT NORTHERN OFFICIALS HERE

Louis Hill, president of the Great Northern railway; G. H. Gilman, assistant to the president, and W. R. Begg, general solicitor of the road, are in Duluth this afternoon. The Great Northern officials came to inspect the terminals of the road at the Head of the Lakes.

There are 200 newspapers in China, while ten years ago there was but one recognized as such.

HIGHEST MASON RESIGNS POST

Milwaukee, Wis., May 1.—Henry L. Palmer, sovereign grand commander of the supreme council, Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rites of the northern jurisdiction of the United States, has resigned, owing to ill health. This is the highest Masonic office in the United States and has been held by Mr. Palmer since 1875, a most remarkable record.

Until his successor has been elected Lieutenant Sovereign Commander Samuel C. Lawrence of Boston will occupy the high office.

To Plant Strawberries.
With the hope of interesting the boys and girls of the nearby farms in cultivating the soil and producing garden products of marketable value, A. B. Hostetter of the Commercial club yesterday spoke to the children at the Lincoln school at Adolph. The children of the school will this year plant 7,000 strawberry plants in their home gardens. Authorities on strawberry culture state that any boy or girl can, with 100 plants, make $20 or $25 a year on the sale of the berries.

This is but the first step in securing the interest of the children in farming and cultivating St. Louis county farm lands.

THE YOUNG AUTHOR.

New York Sun: "This," said the struggling young author, "is only a little thing, a matter of detail, but don't you know it is often little things that worry us most?

"All the publishers to whom I send stuff as regularly return it, and of that I have no complaint. I have no doubt that sooner or later I shall get them all, and their sending it back now doesn't disturb me in the least; but there is one publisher whose thoroughly methodical manner of returning rejected manuscripts does, I admit, get on my nerves.

"Different publishers have different ways. I send to one, for instance, and he keeps the manuscript about a month—a month to me of delightful uncertainty. He knows, perhaps, what he is going to do with my manuscript the minute he gets it, but he doesn't hurl it back at me that moment with a promptness that implies a vigorous rejection. No. He keeps it about a month.

"Of course I know that he may not even look at it for a month. When my manuscript comes in he may tuck it under a pile of other proffered contributions, to be looked at when he comes to it; and when in time he does come to it, he may reject it with amazing suddenness; but you see I don't know that. For all I know, he may be mulling over it all that time trying to make up his mind whether he had better use it or not; and then finally he returns it; but, I repeat, that month of waiting is to me a month of delightful uncertainty.

"And then there are publishers to whom I send who send back in three weeks or in ten days or a week, though not in any case with exactness, as at the end of a fixed period; but there is one publisher who sends back with utterly methodical regularity at the end of five days, a routine from which he never departs, and this really does ruffle me a little.

"Let me send him something on the third day of the month and I get it back on the eighth; if I send something on the eleventh I get it back on the sixteenth; if I send on the twenty-seventh; it never fails; and this utterly methodical systematical, unfailing regularity does, I will confess, grate a little on my nerves.

"And I know that this is all well intended, too. I have an idea that in this businesslike establishment manuscripts are looked at on the day they arrive. But the gentle hearted publisher when he has read a manuscript that he finds to be no good doesn't want to hurt the feelings of the writer by sending it back in a minute. No, he says to himself, we'll hold this a few days and then send it back; and now that unfailing regularity in the manner of return comes in I figure out in my mind something like this:

"On his desk this publisher has a series of gigantic pigeonholes, numbered 1 to 31, for the days of the month. Then when in pursuance of his kindly plan he has read something that he doesn't want he puts it in the pigeonhole whose number is five days ahead, and the office boy comes along and cleans out the box bearing the number of that date and dumps the mail he finds in it in the postoffice.

"That's the way I figure it, and it's all done with the best intentions in the world; but the intense regularity of it all, the remorseless sureness with which those things come does, I will admit, worry me a little.

"Still we mustn't let simple little things like that disturb us, and I have no doubt that I shall get this man yet, and when I do get him I have no doubt I shall find him as methodical in paying as he is in sending back."

A DOMESTICATED PRINCESS.

Ladys' Pictorial: The Kaiser's daughter-in-law, who is a sister of the Duchess of Saxe-Coburg and a niece of the kaiserin, is a very domesticated girl. She is not specially good looking nor is she very smart, but she is exceedingly amiable and capable. She has all her imperial aunt's love of home and has been carefully trained by her in all her views.

Like her sister, the Grand Duchess of Saxe-Coburg, the Princess August is typically German and prefers German fashions, German literature, music and food. As a matter of fact, she has never been out of her native land and cannot speak any English. It is the kaiser's wish that all his sons should choose German wives, and so far they have done so.

J. M. GIDDING & CO.

the EVENING STORY

An Unintentional Surrender

By Bob White.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

"They say that marriage is a lottery," quoth I to my dearest friend Celeste, six months a bride. "If that is true, I must say that you were lucky enough to draw a prize in the lottery."

We were seated before a large, quaint fireplace, in which blazed a jolly wood fire, in Celeste's lovely new home, which was not one bit stiff and obtrusive in its newness.

Celeste was working, as usual, on some sort of dainty fancy work. I was resting!

The clock chimed 11.

"Your thoughts must surely be worth sharing if they are worth all those smiles," I suggested.

"I was thinking of your remarks on the subject of matrimony," she said, her smiles breaking out into a little ripple of laughter. "You little guessed how peculiarly apt your quotation was."

"You might enlighten me and let me share your evident appreciation," I coaxed.

She shook her head. "It would hardly be fair to Vernon," she objected, but I knew from the way she made this statement that it was not as final as it appeared.

"He wouldn't care," I hazarded.

"He'll never know anything about it!" she responded, promptly and positively.

"I think you ought to tell me," I argued, basely falsifying to gain my point, "for when my turn comes it might help me to decide."

"The joke of it all was on poor me, so it really wouldn't be so very bad of me to tell." Celeste remarked, fencing with her convictions.

"Of course not," I assured her, from selfish motives, having an unreasonable desire to hear the story.

"I don't know what ever made me so foolish and blind," she began, "but there was a time when I was quite fond in a way, of that young artist you remember meeting at May's about two years ago." She glanced at me and burst into another merry peal of laughter at my astonished face.

"You certainly selected a curious method of displaying your affection," I remarked sarcastically, remembering quite distinctly her icy manner toward the person in question.

"Oh, that was just my abominable contrariness!" she exclaimed, calmly. "I kept that up for some time, and then all of a sudden I was so ashamed of the way I had treated him that I tried to atone for it. He was so absolutely courteous and he had a thousand pretty ways at the tip of his tongue, for changing a chance remark into a subtle compliment. It was enough to turn the head of almost any young girl and play havoc with her common sense. I half doubted his sincerity at times, but he had a wonderful amount of magnetism and could always restore my confidence in a few minutes, but I don't think I was ever really happy those days. Perhaps he really did care as much as he seemed to, but it was all a mistake on my part."

"You never wrote me one thing about it," I interrupted, reproachfully.

"I never breathed a word of it to anyone. I couldn't bear to have anyone guess that I cared the least bit," she replied, earnestly.

"Then there was really nothing serious about it," I commented, with a relieved sigh.

"Yes, but there was," she admitted, reluctantly. "That is—well—I—I—let him kiss me—twice!" Quite abashed, she blushed a vivid scarlet as she made this confession.

"Why, Celeste!" I cried in dismay. Possibly a kiss is not a penitentiary offense, but the way in which she told it made it seem shockingly naughty.

"Oh, Vernon knows all about that part of it," she said, quickly, just the least tiny bit offended at the way I took the announcement.

"What did he say?" I asked, with considerable interest.

"Said he honed it did him a whole lot of good," she answered her eyes full of mischief.

"Then what happened?' I asked impatiently.

"To Vernon?"

"No, no! To the artist?"

"Oh, I got frightened and wouldn't see him when he called. He wrote notes, and I returned them unopened."

"It was rather hard on the artist," I murmured, sympathetically.

"Yes, it really was," she admitted, seriously. "I saw it at last, and that is just what got me into a scrape. I hadn't been out anywhere for a week or two, and the folks had begun to worry about it, so I finally promised to go to the next dance. I didn't suppose he would be there, but he was. That scared me. I was afraid he would try to talk, but I might have trusted him. He acted precisely as though nothing unusual had occurred, only he didn't ask to dance with me. I saw then what an idiot I had been, and I was thoroughly disgusted with myself. I wanted to make some kind of an apology, yet dreaded to open the subject again. At last he came and sat down beside me. I had been dancing with Vernon, who had just left me. I suppose Vernon intended to come back, but the artist didn't know that. There were people all around us talking and laughing. I thought I could say a word or two, then change the subject and have it over with, but every time I tried to speak, the words stuck in my throat.

"He was telling me some experience of his in Paris, when all of a sudden every light in the house went out! Naturally the music stopped, everybody began talking at once, and half the people ran into each other trying to get out of the way.

"I sat as still as a mouse for a minute or two. Then I thought I would get that miserable apology over with while it was dark, so I put out my hand to see if he was still sitting beside me, and sure enough he was, for he had that hand of mine tight in his before I could wink. I had never known before how strong and warm and comforting a man's hand could be. I hurried to get off my little speech, but all I could get out was:

"'I'm sorry I was so mean to you.'

"He never said a word in reply to this most foolish little speech, but his other arm went around me, and I felt his lips against my cheek, and—you know the artist had a mustache? Well, this man didn't have any!

"'Oh!' I cried in horror, but speaking under my breath, 'I didn't—you mustn't—'

"'But I must tell you, dear,' he said, and then I knew it was Vernon.

"I was so wrought up over it and so glad to find it wasn't anyone else that I just laid my head right on his shoulder, where it had almost rested so often, as we danced, since I was a little girl, and I cried and cried, for nearly a minute, I guess! Anyway, there I was, crying like a baby when—Flash! Out came the lights! Just think of all those people seeing me like that! What do you suppose that blessed man did? He held me just a little tighter in my arms, as he sprang to his feet and spoke low in my ear.

"I shut my eyes tight I can tell you and scarcely breathed at all as he strode out onto the broad piazza with me. A lot of folks followed us to see what was the matter. He answered them all with the greatest ease and exactness. I had danced a little too long. The room was getting pretty close. Yes certainly, all I needed was quiet and the fresh air. He nearly spoiled it all by calling me dear when he asked me if I felt better. In the excitement they didn't notice, and assured them I was much better. It was the truth, if ever the truth was spoken. I knew then that the trouble was I had never begun to love the artist, for you see I had found out what it feels to really love a man.

"They all left us at last and we stayed out in the fresh air the rest of the evening. Vernon was sure it would not be safe for me to go in again. I did not want to so very much.

"Hark! Don't you hear a horse and buggy coming? Yes, that's his whistle?"

Celeste sprang up, her cheeks glowing, her eyes brilliant with love to meet him, but stopped to fling her arms impulsively about my neck.

"Oh, I hope, Dearie,' she cried, "that when you marry, you will wed a man you can love with all your soul."

I certainly intend to but I didn't tell her so just then. You see, we want to keep it a secret a little longer, the artist and I.

THE SORT OF SOUP IT WAS.

New York Sun: The man at the saloon lunch counter watched the approach of the three men with defiance gleaming from his eye. He looked aggressive and apparently was just waiting for some one to say something as a starter.

Each of the men carried a glass of beer and the object of the trip to the counter was to get some free lunch. The smallest of the three, with a twinkle in his eye, read the sign in back of the lunch man and then asked sweetly: "What kind of soup is that?"

Then he paused and smiled upon his friends as one who is about to spring a rarely merry jest.

The lunch man, surveying the small man with anger mingled with contempt, said: "You know right well from the sign what sort of soup that is. All you are waiting for is to have me say 'It's bean soup.' Then you will spring that terrible chestnut, 'I don't want to know what kind of soup it's been. I want to know what sort of soup it is.'

"Can you guess how many people have tried to spring that on me today? Well, I'll let you know that I've reached the limit and the next joker will get something that isn't on the sign. See?"

MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE IN CHARGE OF THE NORWEGIAN INDEPENDENCE DAY CELEBRATION.

Norwegians of Duluth are planning a fitting celebration of the 17th of May, which is the Norwegian day of independence.

There will be a monster meeting in the Lincoln park pavilion on Sunday afternoon, May 16, and a grand ball on the evening of May 17. Arrangements are in the hands of the Normanna male chorus, which has taken charge of the celebration this year.

At the mass meeting in the pavilion on the Sunday preceding the anniversary of the birth of Norwegian freedom, there will be a number of addresses by speakers of note upon subjects admirably suited to the occasion, as well as a splendid program of music. With the chorus in charge, the excellence of the program seems assured.

Prof. Wilhelm Peterson of the Augsburg seminary, Minneapolis, will be one of the principal speakers, and the chances are that A. J. Rockne, speaker of the house of representatives during the last session of the state legislature, will also be present to deliver an address, although the committee in charge has received no definite reply from him as yet. Mr. Rockne's home is in Zumbrota.

The musical numbers will include a violin solo by Oliver Colbentson, a soprano solo by Miss Alice Sjosellus and numbers by the Normanna male chorus.

C. J. Halling is president of this well-known organization, and other members of the executive committee are Olaf Halten, Gunner C. Mobraaten, Haakon Haugen, Birger Sande, Andrew Mobraaten, Alfred Christopherson and Arthur Larsen.

The ball on the night of May 17 will complete the celebration.

That Tired Feeling and Those Little Soldiers

There is probably no better indication that those "Little Soldiers" in your blood—the white corpuscles—are deficient in health and strength and may fail to defend your body against disease-germs, than "that tired feeling."

It is not an "honest tired feeling," which is produced by work and relieved by rest.

It is a tired feeling that has absolutely nothing to do with mental or physical exertion, and makes a constant burden of itself.

It is common in the spring or on the return of warm weather, and is a warning which only the hazardous fail to heed.

It is due to an impure, impoverished or devitalized condition of the blood.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the specific remedy for it, because this great medicine purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood.

Thousands know by experience annually that Hood's Sarsaparilla completely and permanently removes that tired feeling, gives new life, new courage, strength and animation.

Begin taking Hood's at once. It is no trouble to take it—only three doses a day.

"I had that tired feeling and when I got up in the morning it appeared as though I had had no sleep. My system was all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended for these symptoms and I began taking it. Since taking two bottles I am entirely well. I can now do in a few hours the work that formerly required all day. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's." Martin Kemp, Union Stock Yard Hotel, Cleveland, Ohio.

☞Hood's Sarsaparilla effects its wonderful cures, not simply because it contains sarsaparilla, but because it combines the utmost remedial values of more than 20 different ingredients, each greatly strengthened and enriched by this peculiar combination. These ingredients are the very remedies that successful physicians prescribe for the same diseases and ailments. There is no real substitute for Hood's Sarsaparilla. If urged to buy any preparation said to be "just as good," you may be sure it is inferior, costs less to make, and yields the dealer a larger profit.

SCOTS' CONCERT A BIG SUCCESS

Imperial Concert Company Makes Good at First M. E. Church.

A large audience of Scotch and Irish, and some of their friends of other nationalities, forgot the weather last night in listening to the concert of the Imperial Scots Concert company at the First M. E. church, given under the auspices of Clan Stewart, No. 50, O. S. C.

The national music of Scotland and Ireland was rendered in a manner to arouse the enthusiasm of any descendant of those countries who happened to hear it, and every number was encored. The entertainment was to have been given at the Lyceum theater the preceding evening, but a train wreck delayed the company, and its members did not arrive in the city until yesterday.

The fact that "The House of Bondage" was booked for the Lyceum last night made it necessary to hold the postponed concert somewhere else, and the First M. E. church was selected as a suitable place. The program last night was a mixture of Scotch and Irish songs and instrumental music. Fred Barclay gave some good specialties, including some humorous impersonations.

The concert began with a stirring medley of bagpipe selections by Robert Mombray, Miss Annie McKay, Miss Ruth Seath Grant and J. M. Hamilton. Fred Barclay followed with a varied program of solo numbers and specialties, alternating Scotch and Irish airs

NOTES OF THE BOYS' DEPARTMENT

The Sunday Club.

The Sunday club, the meeting for the older boys at the boys' department, Y. M. C. A., Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, will be addressed by E. M. Morgan, assistant city attorney. His topic will be "Friendship." Lunch will be served at 5:30. There will be a piano solo by Mr. Pray and a musical selection by Horace Gorman and Cecil Gilleland.

• • •

The Knights of Sir Galahad will meet at the boys' department, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dr. J. S. Kirtley will give the talk, and there will be a program with the phonograph.

• • •

Monday evening the Bible study committee will begin a spring term. Dinner will be served at 6:15 and at the close Mr. Bevis will lead in the discussion, on the following topics: "A Boy and His Money," "A Boy and His Amusements," "A Boy and His Body," and "A Boy and His Life Work." The club is open to any of the older fellows.

THE VALUE OF PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE

Personal knowledge is the winning factor in the culminating contests of this competitive age and when of ample character it places its fortunate possessor in the front ranks of

The Well Informed of the World.

A vast fund of personal knowledge is really essential to the achievement of the highest excellence in any field of human effort.

A Knowledge of Forms, Knowledge of Functions and Knowledge of Products are all of the utmost value and in questions of life and health when a true and wholesome remedy is desired it should be remembered that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., is an ethical product which has met with the approval of the most eminent physicians and gives universal satisfaction, because it is a remedy of Known Quality, Known Excellence and Known Component Parts and has won the valuable patronage of millions of the Well Informed of the world, who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual use that it is the first and best of family laxatives, for which no extravagant or unreasonable claims are made.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent family laxative. As its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well Informed of the world to be the best we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of—Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects, always note, when purchasing the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package, whether you call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

Spring Is the Great Tonic Season

"Spring fever is in the air. We all have touches of it. All feel the need of a general "toning up." For this purpose nothing is better than the "orange habit." Eat "Sunkist" Oranges at breakfast time. Eat them during the day, and at bed-time. "Sunkist" Oranges are the finest grown. Doctors all agree that orange eating at this time is one of the grandest of health boons. Great trainloads of "Sunkist" Oranges are now being distributed throughout this entire section. You'll find them on special sale at your dealer's all during Good Health Week.

Physicians Recommend the "Orange Habit"

In the old days physicians assumed a sphinx-like attitude on all matters pertaining to health and disease unless specially "called in." Now we find them seemingly as deeply interested in simple, every-day preventive measures, long walks, deep breathing, golf, and making dietary recommendations of a nature to tempt the average man or woman to try them out.

The wonderful health value of oranges is a matter on which the representatives of all schools of medicine are agreed. They assert that orange juices are highly efficacious as an aid to digestion, and this opinion is confirmed by the reports of the California Orange Growers, which show an increasing demand for the rich, juicy, full-flavored oranges of that state.—The American Optimist.

Oranges for the Complexion

Two years ago a club of twenty-five women was formed to make a test of the health-giving value of oranges. The best quality of oranges were invariably eaten and the results were uniformly beneficial. This was quite apparent in their improved complexions. Some of them said that in addition to eating oranges they had made it a practice to squeeze the juice of a lemon into a tumbler of water and drink it the first thing in the morning. These women are uniformly enthusiastic over their experiment and are firmly convinced that by freely eating oranges and drinking lemon juice from time to time, the liver is kept in perfect condition—and of course a perfect-functioning liver is the secret of a good complexion.

Oranges for Grippe

If people only half realized what an exceedingly valuable medicinal food they have in the orange, the crop of California, vast as it is, would all be consumed on the Pacific Coast, leaving none for shipment east of the Rocky Mountains. Any one who makes a practice of partaking freely of citric acid, eating at least three oranges a day—morning, noon and at night—taking a little lemon juice in water between times, need fear no epidemic of grippe or other disease.

Poles to Celebrate the Last Sunny Day of Their Country

Memory of May 3, 1791, Always Alive in the Hearts of the Polish People Throughout the World.

By THOMAS SIEMIRADZKI,
Editor Zgoda, Officiis Organ of Polish National Alliance.

May 3 is a great day for every Pole, whether he lives under the rule of czar or kaiser or under the shadow of the Stars and Stripes. On this day the Poles throughout the world celebrate the memory of their famous and successful effort to save the honor, if not the independence, of their country by adopting a new, progressive constitution. There were in 1791 only four nations which knew the meaning of the word Constitution and enjoyed the blessings of a popular form of government. England was followed in this line by the young republic of the United States. Revolutionary France came after them as the third member of the family. And besides them, and above all, there was the venerable old Switzerland, which can be styled rightly as the mother of all popular governments in modern history.

Poland was laboring at that time under a peculiar kind of despotism. Here was not a despotic rule of one man, as was the case with most of the nations. It was the despotism of a whole class, the despotism of the nobility, which was ruining Poland and threatening to deliver her, body and soul, into the hands of her enemies. The power of the king was only nominal; the peasants were in a condition bordering on servitude; the inhabitants of the cities, the merchants, artisans, laborers, did not possess any political rights at all. There was no army to speak of, the finances of the republic were in a poor condition, and the rich were exempt from taxation. A diet composed entirely of members of the nobility was the only power in the country, ruling the whole in the interests of one class.

Sweeping Change by Diet.

After the first partition in 1772, everybody in Poland saw that some radical reforms must be adopted to save what was left of the once powerful republic. Almost everybody knew what these reforms had to be. The only difficulty which presented itself to the patriots was that of was a council of nobles which had to be induced to put an end to the privileged position of the nobility, to break the power of its own class, to endow with political rights the other classes, to increase the powers of the crown, to impose taxes on the clergy and the large landowners, in a word, to modernize thoroughly the antiquated political structure of the country. The diet alone had to do all that, as there was no other way to produce a sweeping change, short of a bloody revolution, as was the case with France in 1789.

And the Polish diet did it all. Its action stands unique in the history of mankind—that an all-powerful class voluntarily renounced most of its privileges under no other pressure than that of the feeling of pure patriotism and under the command of sound statesmanship.

On May 3, 1791, the Polish parliament in Warsaw passed, after a short discussion, almost unanimously (the few members of the opposition remaining silent), an act which is known in history under the name of the Constitution of May 3. There were only eleven articles in it, but they removed almost all the iniquities of the old system and gave Poland a regular, modern constitutional government. The election of the kings by the nobility was abolished and the throne became hereditary. The legislative power was to be vested in the diet, with the right of the senate to postpone bills to which it did not agree to the next session of the parliament. The so-called "liberum veto," which gave every member of the diet the right to stop any measure adopted by the majority, was annulled.

A Responsible Cabinet.

The king became the only executive and was given a cabinet of six ministers, who were to be responsible to the people. The so-called "third state," that is, merchants, artisans and laborers in the cities, obtained the right to elect their own representatives. The peasants were put under the protection of the laws of the country, instead of being dependent on the good will of the landlords.

A section of article 4 reads: "We do proclaim complete freedom to all. Whoever shall cross the borders of Poland will become free ipso facto the moment he puts his foot on Polish soil."

The clergy and the nobility were taxed to the amount of 10 per cent of their net revenue from their lands. The standing army was raised to the strength of 100,000 men. Every twenty-five years the constitution was to be thoroughly the antiquated political structure of the country. The diet alone had to do all that, as there was no other way to produce a sweeping change, short of a bloody revolution, as was the case with France in 1789.

The clergy and the nobility were taxed to the amount of 10 per cent of their net revenue from their lands. The standing army was raised to the strength of 100,000 men. Every twenty-five years the constitution was to be revised by a regular session of parliament in order to introduce such changes as might be required by the course of life.

This statute put Poland almost on equal footing with the other four countries, which, as we have said above, enjoyed at that time a popular system of government. It raised Poland enormously above her nearest neighbors, such as Russia, Austria and various German states of Central Europe, where the despotism of emperors, kings and princes continued to flourish to the detriment of the people. Not a drop of blood was shed in this radical reversal of the state of things in a country of about 12,000,000 population. The people received the news of the reform with wild shouts of enthusiasm; all the best spirits in Europa hastened to congratulate the king and the parliament on account of their achievement. Poland, rejuvenated, started joyously on her way of reorganization from a medieval aristocratic republic into a modern constitutional monarchy.

But the enemy remained watchful all the time. Already in the beginning of the movement, which was to end in the adoption of this Constitution, Russia had notified the king of Poland that she would consider any attempt at changing the old system on Poland's part as casus belli. Empress Katherine II saw clearly that the vicinity of Constitutional Poland, with a comparatively equality of classes before the law and a strongly pronounced tendency toward a complete emancipation of the peasants, would constitute a continuous source of disquietude among her own subjects. With free and modern Poland at her side, Russia would have to modernize herself, too, or suffer under a series of revolutionary troubles.

Invaded By Russia.

The other way out of the difficulty was to destroy Poland, and this way was quickly resorted to by Russia. On May 18, 1792, scarcely one year after the adoption of the reform, the Russian ambassador in Warsaw handed the king a note informing him that his sovereign ordered her troops to invade Poland and to proceed to the capital, unless the Constitution be repealed immediately and the old system restored. Sixty-five thousand Russian regulars entered Poland under the command of the famous Kutuzow. The king was able to muster against them only 45,000, most of whom were raw recruits. Some Polish nobles, who never became reconciled to the reform, joined the enemy. The campaign was short and disastrous to the friends of liberty, and that new Constitution was drowned in the blood of the best sons of Poland.

Then came the second partition. Russia and Prussia occupied and annexed a considerable part of the territory of the republic, and the rest was allowed to drag an inglorious existence under the protectorate of Russia, which restored forcibly all the iniquitous and antiquated laws of the past. And then the eyes of the whole Polish nation turned to Kosciuszko, who came in the spring of 1794 back from exile to assume the title of chief of the nation and to lend his sword to the almost impossible task of saving his country from the clutches of three great military powers.

Poland lived only one year under her new Constitution, but so much was done in that short space of time that one easily can imagine how splendid would have been the further development of the people and of that country if they were left alone to shape their destinies according to their own ideas. The brutal and morally inexcusable intervention of Russia was the only cause of all the subsequent misfortunes of Poland.

The memory of the beautiful day of May 3, 1791, is always alive in the hearts of the Polish people; they cherish it not only as the last sunny day of their unfortunate country, but what is more, as a sign that Poland proved on the very eve of her fall to be thoroughly capable of self-government, and fell not through her own fault, but through perversity of her powerful and unscrupulous neighbor.

GRASS DEMANDS IMMEDIATE CARE

Lawns Need Rejuvenation by Top-Dressing, Raking and Rolling.

Usually the most visible effect of the winter stress upon the lawn is the presence of patches of earth from which the grass has died out. Repair all such by slightly scratching the surface, scattering over it a light covering of finely sifted garden soil—a soil that has been thrown out from greenhouse benches would be ideal for the purpose. Then lightly scatter on the surface a pinch or two of seed of any first-class lawn mixture. The surface should then be lightly rolled so as to insure perfect contact between the seeds and the soil and at this time of year germination is both quick and sure. Where the grass appears unduly thin, as often occurs on insufficiently prepared land, the best temporary relief is obtained by scratching the entire surface with a sharp-toothed iron rake, broadcasting over the whole surface a light dressing of the same sort of soil that might be used for filling in hollows, and sowing seed on the top of this, using about one-quarter of the quantity of seed that would be used in making new lawns. That is to say, give a pint of seed to 600 square feet. On very poor soils, or where the stand of grass has been unusually bad, double this quantity can be used.

Depressions and hollows in the surface which results from the irregular sinking and settling of the soil below are far better repaired in the spring than at any other time of the year, although the careful lawnmaker will be at all times on the lookout and ready to fill up, or to even up, the irregularities of the surface that appear. The perfection of a lawn is its absolutely even surface.

Fill the Depressions.

Where there is a good growth of grass, slight depressions may be filled up by putting soil on top of the grass, but in no case should more than one-half inch be applied in this way. Any greater depression must be remedied by making a clean cut in the sod, with a spade, and then with a sharp spading fork, working under the sod, gradually raise up a portion, leaving a space that can be filled in with new soil sufficient to hold the turf at the desired level. Withdrawing the spade after distributing the soil, the piece of loosened turf should be firmly beaten into contact with the new soil, so that the growth may be removed immediately.

A heavy roller, let it be as heavy as you can possibly work, can be used on grass to very great advantage after the growth has once thoroughly started.

The cause of all the trouble with most lawns is that the ground has not been sufficiently prepared; that it has not been fertilized, and that it has not been trenched to sufficient depth to give the roots of the grass all the chances they need to grow. Under these conditions, feeding by top dressing becomes imperative. Where the preliminary preparation has been properly attended to subsequent surface feeding becomes a matter of very small moment for a great many years.

For surface feeding, chemical fertilizers are generally to be preferred to the natural manures. Unless the manures are fairly well rotted or otherwise specially treated, there is always the danger of carrying in weed seeds. Dried pulverized sheep manure is the best of the natural manures, because there is no danger of importing weeds as a result of its use. Top dressings of soluble chemical fertilizers have the special advantage that they are quickly washed down to the roots and become immediately valuable to the growing plants. For this reason, nitrate of soda, applied early in the year at the rate of 200 pounds to the acre, will give remarkable results. Indeed, you can almost "see the grass grow," if applied just at the time when active growth is beginning, and it will give an added intensity of color that is most refreshing to the eye. This should be scattered on the surface of the lawn just in advance of a rain storm.

Food for Lawn.

The most commonly used spring dressing for lawns is a mixture of finely ground bone meal and sifted wood ashes in equal parts by weight, which is broadcasted at the rate of fifty pounds to the acre. There is no need to be exact in these quantities, as the eye can be relied upon as an efficient guide in the use of this mixture. Scatter it over the surface of the grass as evenly as possible and in sufficient quantity to give the surface a perceptible, but slightly grayish, tinge.

There is not the same danger of burning from the use of these materials as there is from the nitrate of soda, and it can be scattered on the lawn much more heavily than most people would imagine before having tried it. As the wood ashes and the bone meal are not so quickly available to the plants, being less soluble than nitrate of soda, a full dressing can be given with advantage at one time, whereas with the soda the greatest efficiency will be had by distributing the full quantity in two or three dressings at different times. The results from nitrate of soda will be more apparent on light soils than on heavy ones.

At any time during the season when growth seems to become unduly slack, or where bare spots have appeared on the surface, top dressings of nitrate of soda will often do wonders in starting a fresh growth, and usually will give better results than reseeding late in the season.

LYCEUM—"The House of Bondage."

"THE HOUSE OF BONDAGE"

Florence Roberts and Good Company in Strong Play.

With a situation in which a skilled surgeon has the life of the husband of the woman he loves, in his hands, and with society looking upon the outcome of the difficult operation with idle curiosity and making wagers that Sir Vincent Meredyth will never survive the operation, some idea of the dramatic intensity of "The House of Bondage," presented at the Lyceum last night by Florence Roberts and a well balanced company, may be gained.

The play differs from plays that in the past have dealt with similar sex questions, in that there are four figures drawn into the entanglement. There are the great surgeon the wife of the member of parliament, the duchess of Banff, and the politician, forming the entanglement.

"The House of Bondage," has for its theme the peculiarity of the old English laws upon the question of divorce. Under the English laws a man may be unfaithful to his wife, yet unless he add cruelty to his sins of commission, there is no way out for the wife.

Sir Vincent Meredyth, an English politician has formed an attachment for the duchess of Banff, a clever woman with an eye to the observance of the conventions of society, only.

Goaded to desperation by the indifference, the taunts, and the wrongs of her husband, Lady Joan Meredyth drifts further from his side. It is then that the love between her and Paul Betrand, the London surgeon, develops.

Upon the first confession of this love appears Sir Vincent, coming to the house of the surgeon to seek treatment for a dangerous brain ailment. He hears the confession of love from the lips of the surgeon and his wife, yet in his heart he knows that the affair has gone no further.

With the knowledge that the surgeon loves his wife, and with a realization of what his death would mean to them both, Sir Vincent practically forces the surgeon to accept his difficult case.

He survives the operation and is joined in the old life by the duchess of Banff. During his illness the duchess has secured Sir Vincent a position in the cabinet. With his new position will come added power and influence. There can be no more sham and pretense in the lives of Sir Vincent and Lady Meredyth; his utter disregard for respect has driven her from his home. It is then, when a sudden realization comes over Sir Vincent of the true worth of his wife, that he promises to make what late reparation he may, by securing a change in the divorce law of England. The final curtain shows Lady Meredyth leaving the home of her husband. Yet, with the promise of the new secretary to amend the divorce laws, so that it will not be unjust toward the woman, the audience knows that the play is intended to have that happy ending that most plays present.

A criticism of the Obermer play, is that it is talky and drags unnecessarily in parts. There is not enough action mixed with the three acts that are filled with rather too long speeches. The cast is all that could be asked and the mounting of the play is adequate.

Miss Roberts in the role of Lady Joan Meredyth is all that could be desired. Miss Roberts achieves her effects by quiet methods. She belongs to the school of repression and naturalism, and not once in the dramatic climaxes of the play does the actress appear to have drawn upon a reserve power.

Thurlow Bergen, as the famous surgeon, does an excellent piece of work. Mr. Bergen is an actor of detail and artistic finish.

Charles Lane as Sir Vincent Meredyth was all the part required, though one can hardly permit oneself to believe that a man capable of holding a cabinet position, should possess so many superficial qualities as he is endowed with by the author.

Ann Warrington, the former Duluth girl, as the duchess of Banff, was given a warm reception on her appearance. She proved herself fully equal to the trying requirements of the role. Miss Warrington looked the part of a real duchess and her two big scenes were excellently handled. Mary Bertrand was all that the small part of the countess of Carlington required. Hallet Bosworth and Richard Blake were adequate in small parts.

"The House of Bondage" will be repeated this afternoon and this evening.

ON THE IRON RANGES

BIG SEASON LOOKED FOR

Season Promises to Be Lively One Among Virginia Mines.

Expect Steel Corporation and Independents to Ship Much Ore.

Virginia, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ore shipments from the Virginia district began this week and small quantities are now moving to the docks from nearly all of the mines that will ship this season. The shipments are light for the present, but it is estimated that the total movement from the Virginia district this season will be the heaviest in history.

Last year the Virginia mines shipped about 1,800,000 tons. This year the Norman pit alone will send to the Missabe docks at Duluth, fully that amount, if not more. The Independent mines are all preparing to make heavy shipments and the season's shipments from all mines will be considerably in excess of the 2,800,000 tons moved in 1907.

The Republic Iron & Steel company's mines were the first in this district to begin shipping, ore moving from them over the Duluth & Iron Range about two weeks ago to the Two Harbors docks. The Norman and Rouchleau of the Oliver Iron Mining company, the Commodore of the Commodore Iron company and the Lincoln of the Interstate Iron company began to ship this week.

The old tracks in the Norman pit have been removed and standard tracks of the Missabe road have been laid, so that the engines of the road may run directly into the pit. The shipments from the Norman this season are estimated by some at 2,000,000 tons. Last year about 800,000 tons were moved.

Higgins Also Shipping.

Shipments from the Higgins, an underground mine of the Oliver Iron Mining company, were also begun Tuesday. About forty cars, or 2,000 tons, a day are being loaded, and that standard is expected to be maintained for some time. The Higgins did not ship last year, but in 1907 173,139 tons of ore were sent out.

Three shovels are at work at the Commodore, but most of the work is in the nature of cleaning up around the pit after the winter. More extensive stripping operations will be carried on later in the season. The Commodore began to ship over the Great Northern to the Allouez docks last week, and small shipments will continue for a time, an increase in the movement to be made later. Last year the Commodore shipped 116,038 tons, and in 1907 the movement was 477,202 tons.

For the past two years the Republic Iron & Steel company has shipped about 150,000 tons a year from the Virginia district. An increase is expected this season. The Lincoln mine of the Interstate Iron company, which also began to ship this week sent out 279 tons in 1908 and 279 879 in 1907. The Silver is a factor to be reckoned with this season. The Missabe spur from Rainy Junction to the mine is progressing rapidly and is now within less than a mile of the property. Within the next few weeks trains will be running over the new track and shipments will probably begin. The Silver is expected to ship about 300,000 tons this year. Eight thousand tons were taken out last year, shipments being made over the Rainy Lake to Rainy Lake Junction, and from there to Duluth over the Missabe docks.

STOP MINING ON ACCOUNT OF SNOW

Hibbing, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Business here has been at a standstill for the past two days, owing to the severe snow storms and high wind. Mining operations have been suspended until the storm abates.

Judge Brady returned yesterday from Virginia, where he went to attend the funeral of E. C. Rudd.

E. C. Freeman, special agent for the the Agricultural Insurance company, spent the past few days in Hibbing.

Mrs. L. J. Beck, who has been suddenly taken ill with typhoid fever, will be removed to the Duluth hospital tomorrow.

Mrs. C. Hassett of Lincoln street is entertaining Mrs. William Webb of Mountain Iron.

Miss Lee Morrison has returned to Hibbing from a visit with her parents in Duluth.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Burnham entertained very pleasantly last evening at cards.

A most enjoyable dancing party was given by the Oliver Hockey club last evening at Closis' hall. Helme's orchestra furnished the music.

Mrs. W. J. Ryder has returned from a trip to Columbia, Wis.

Supt. William Wearne has returned home from accompanying the body of Mrs. P. J. Ryan to Moorhead, for burial.

E. H. Purcell, who has been in Hibbing the past few days, has returned to Chicago.

TWO BROTHERS WHO MADE GOOD

D. T. MURPHY.

M. A. MURPHY.

Virginia, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The announcement in The Duluth Herald of the promotions that have come to M. A. Murphy and D. T. Murphy, brothers, who have made their homes here for five or six years, was read with much interest as it demonstrated that both have made good in the railroad world.

M. A. Murphy has left for Port Arthur to assume the position of general superintendent of the division of the Canadian Northern railroad between Port Arthur and Virginia, taking in the lines between Port Arthur and Winnipeg and Winnipeg and Virginia.

D. T. Murphy, who has been trainmaster of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad here, has been promoted to assistant superintendent of the same division, his headquarters continuing in Virginia.

COLERAINE WILL VOTE ON MAY 10

First Election in Newly Organized Village—Sleighing May 1.

Coleraine, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village election will be held Monday, May 10, to select the first set of officers for the newly incorporated village of Coleraine. At a mass meeting of the citizens John C. Greenway was asked to nominate a complete ticket, which he did to their satisfaction. A clerk, who recently accepted a position with the Oliver Iron Mining company, is seeking the office of village recorder. This is the only opposition to the ticket nominated.

One of the worst snow storms of the season swept this section yesterday. The snow is several inches deep and still falling. Many sleighs are on the streets—an unusual sight for May 1.

Dr. and Mrs. N. P. Kean have returned from Chicago, where the doctor has been taking a special course in one of the great hospitals of that city. Dr. Cosgrove and Dr. Strathern have had charge of the Coleraine hospital during the absence of Dr. Kean.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church are preparing for an entertainment in the high school auditorium Friday, May 7. They have interested a large number of people, who will assist them in presenting "The Old District School," a farce in three acts. A great deal of interest is being taken in the preparation of this entertainment.

WAITING ON MAYOR.

Virginia Executive Has Till Saturday Night to Sign Park Resolution.

Virginia, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor Andrew Hawkinson has not yet signed the council resolution confirming the award of the commissioners in the condemnation proceedings brought to acquire for the city Lots 4 to 29 inclusive in Block 43 for park purposes.

The commissioners awarded the property owners $20,415 and at the meeting last week the council confirmed the award and declared it the basis of settlement between all parties. The mayor has until tonight to approve the resolution. The tract of land which the council proposes to acquire is on Central avenue just opposite the Roosevelt high school. It comprises all of the block except six lots on Cleveland avenue, and it would make a nice breathing spot in the center of the city.

BANQUET HEARDING.

Business Men of Eveleth to Honor Retiring Official.

Eveleth, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—To show their appreciation of John H. Hearding, formerly superintendent of the Adams Spruce mines, who leaves soon for Duluth to become assistant general manager of the Oliver Iron Mining company, a banquet will be tendered at the Globe hotel by the business men.

P. E. Dowling and George A. Whitman proposed the matter yesterday, and soon all the business men were interested and about 150 will attend.

The engineers, craners, steam shovel men and other heads of the working departments around the Adams Spruce mines will present Supt. Hearding with a solid gold watch, chain and charm with the Masonic emblem some time today.

SELECTS UNUSUAL TOPIC.

Eveleth Minister Chooses "Man Who Eloped With King's Wife."

Eveleth, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—At Sunday morning's services in the Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. R. C. Johnson will speak on the unusual topic, "The Man Who Eloped With the Wife of a King." The attendance at the Methodist Episcopal church has been increasing steadily with each succeeding Sunday.

At the Swedish Mission church next week the well-known Norwegian Lutheran evangelist, A. Svorkmo, will hold services, under the direction of the Norwegian Lutheran congregation.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Norwegian Lutheran church meets next Thursday with Mrs. Bertin Johnson of the Fayal location.

PROPOSED MARBLE SCHOOL.

Building to Cost $35,000 Considered for New Range Town.

Coleraine, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of education of this school district has just inspected plans for a school building at Marble presented by Architect J. J. Wanderquet of Duluth. It is proposed to ask the voters of the district to authorize the erection of a $35,000 building at Marble, the new mining town near the noted J. A. Hill mining property. Already there is a school population of about sixty pupils in that part of the district, requiring two teachers. Several schoolrooms will be needed by the opening of the school year in September.

AFTER HIBBING JOB.

Hibbing, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The position of Superintendent of the water and light plant will most likely be filled by the council at its next regular meeting.

Already ten applications have been received and many others favorably mentioned. The following have already applied for the position: J. D. Roberts of Gladstone, Mich.; D. McCauley, E. M. Krost and Charles J. Rihm or Hibbing; John Rammua, Duluth, George W. Herreyer of Ill.; R. E. Patterson of Duluth, J. E. McElligot of Red Wing, C. Vandall of Eveleth, and Joseph Morreset of Superior.

The village council will undoubtedly take some action at its next meeting toward placing the municipal court on a salary basis. This change will require a four-fifths vote of the council and the consent of Judge Brady. The municipal judges of Chisholm and Virginia receive $2,400 a year. There is under the present system about $6,000 yearly paid into the county through the municipal court here. This money above would allow for a judge's salary of $3,000 and clerk's salary of $1,000, and still leave the village away to the good, under the general law.

Shoe Display.

Mr. E. J. Cavanaugh will be at the Hotel Hibbing May 3 and 4, with a full line of the Boyden shoes for men, and the Garside shoes for women, also the Tramp-Eze shoe for boys and girls. These lines are represented by the W. & L. Shoe company, Duluth, Minn. You are cordially invited to inspect the display.

TO OPEN GILBERT YARDS.

Dower Lumber Company Will Establish Another Concern on Range.

Wadena, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Dower, president of the Dower Lumber company, is on the iron range establishing one, and possibly more, lumber yards in that region. When he returns home, some definite announcement of the company's plans will doubtless be forthcoming.

The Dower interests have practically decided to open a yard at the town of Gilbert. The company already has a yard at Chisholm and will open additional yards at other points to get their surplus capital invested.

VIRGINIA COURT GRIND.

Session in Range City Will Continue Another Week.

Virginia, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The district court mill here is grinding on small appeal cases, with little of importance thus far. It looks as though court will be in session here all of next week, and possibly longer.

Two verdicts have thus far been returned in appeal cases. Allippio Montecchiani and Cipproletthe Severino were given a verdict for $30.60 against Frank Kilnk. Kilnk appealed from the municipal court of Virginia, where a jury returned a verdict for $296.50 against him. The plaintiffs sued for $568.50 for services performed in remodeling a house, and Kilnk put in a counterclaim for $500, claiming the work had been improperly done and the house had been damaged.

Frank Cedar was given a verdict against Jacob Zalar for $65. The case was appealed from the municipal court of Eveleth, a horse, owned by Cedar, was killed in the woods, near Eveleth in December, 1906, a log falling on it. Cedar claimed Zalar was negligent and sued for $245. A jury in the municipal court of Eveleth returned a verdict for $100 in his favor, and Zalar appealed.

MAYOR OLSEN IS AT HOME WELL

False and Malicious Reports About His Being Drugged West.

Aurora, Minn., May 1—(Special to The Herald.)—Sensational reports printed about Mayor Charles Olson of this place being overcome by drugs or something akin, while traveling on a Northern Pacific train in Montana and being taken to Helena and cared for by Odd Fellows, were baseless and without a particle of foundation.

The mayor was slightly indisposed, as stated in The Herald, but he returned home yesterday, much improved in health and indignant at the reports that have been printed.

AURORA FEELS EFFECTS.

Defeat of Tonnage Tax Bill Augurs Prosperity Here.

Aurora, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Now that the tonnage tax scare is over, Aurora is experiencing a small building boom.

Steve China is erecting a commodious dwelling on Third avenue west. The second story is to be fitted for renting purposes and it is Mr. China's intention to have the school teachers occupy the rooms next school year. It has always been hard work for the teachers to get suitable quarters here and they are very much pleased with Mr. China's move.

In the section of the village between the Miller and Meadow mines several new residences are being built by the mine employes. They are good structures and, surrounded as they are by shacks, look quite conspicuous. In the Second addition a number of lots have been sold recently by parties who intend to build residences, one of which has been built already by a man from Sparta. It is expected that work will be commenced soon on Lenont's $10,000 hospital. The plans of the proposed $20,000 village and town hall have been accepted by the village and town committees, and the council will, at their next meeting, pass on same. It is expected that the contract will be let early next month.

CANNOT LOCATE RELATIVES.

Inquiry About Disposition of John Ruck's Body Unanswered.

Aurora, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.) — Undertakers Christianson and Nelson have been trying to locate the parents of John Ruck, who was killed by being run over by a train of dump cars at the Perkins mine Wednesday, but so far have been unable to do so. His home was at Dayton, Ohio, but the street number found in the dead man's clothes proved to be wrong. The Dayton lodge of Knights of Pythias, of which the man was a member, has telegraphed the local lodge that $50 has been sent to defray expenses. If nothing can be learned the body will be buried here, under the direction of the local lodge.

BODY OF MISSING MAN FOUND MONTHS AFTER.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Albert Campagne, who disappeared last November, was discovered yesterday by A. G. Nordstrom, near Scott Junction, on the Alger-Smith line.

It is supposed he became lost in the woods and perished from exposure.

EVELETH SCHOOLS FOUND IN SATISFACTORY SHAPE.

Eveleth, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The contract for installing a clock system in the new high school building has been awarded to Albert Rohrer, a local jeweler.

The list of teachers for the coming term has been passed upon and salaries discussed. The school board, composed of W. J. Smith, J. H. Hearding and George Dormer, accompanied by Superintendent of Schools B. O. Greening, yesterday made a thorough inspection of the schools and found everything moving along in fine order. Though they found some little inconveniences because of the crowded condition of the school, due to the lack of a regular high school building, everything was in first-class shape.

ERICKSON'S BODY IS SHIPPED TO COKATO.

Eveleth, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Oscar Erickson, about 25 years old, who died early in the week at the More hospital of general peritonitis, was shipped yesterday to Cokato, Minn., where the young man's father lives. A brother of the deceased, Martin Erickson, is remembered as having left town suddenly about two years ago, leaving behind his wife and children. Nothing has ever been heard from him.

Two Harbors Recital.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Before a large audience at the Presbyterian church last night, Theodore Fossum and Ruth Markell gave a musical recital that was very enjoyable. It was under the auspices of the ladies' guild of the church.

The Two Harbors band gave a successful dance at the opera house last night, the proceeds to be used in buying new uniforms for the organization.

"Cap" Social Succeeds.

Eveleth, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The "cap" social given last night at Monitor hall by the Gustavus Adolphus Lodge of Good Templars was very well attended, considering the very inclement weather. Many caps brought good prices.

Negro's Sudden Death.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Harry Edwards, colored, who has lived here several years, died suddenly yesterday afternoon of heart disease. The body is being held at an undertaker's pending receipt of instructions from a brother of the deceased living in Portland, Or.

New Iron Range Engines.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two of the new iron Range ore locomotives arrived yesterday from Philadelphia, and as soon as overhauled at the shops they will be put into service. They are equipped with the Waelschert valve gear.

May Not Be Suicide.

Dr. E. L. Cheney conducted a post mortem examination over the remains of Amy Lee, alleged suicide, last night, and declares there is no evidence that she drank acid. The woman, who is also known by the name of Frances Tenny, was found dead in the Tuohy lodging house, 2 East Michigan street, Thursday night. Unless an analysis of the contents of the stomach reveals the presence of corrosive sublimate, the suicide theory will be abandoned. Acute alcoholism may have been the cause of death.

BRIEF EVENTS FROM PROCTOR

Entre Nous Card Club Entertains—Kensington Club Party.

Proctor, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Entre Nous Card club was entertained yesterday afternoon by Mrs. H. G. Gilderman and Mrs. Gus Bethune at the home of the former. Four prizes were given at this meeting, Mrs. R. K. Welch and Mrs. Fred Davidson winning high and Mrs. W. C. Sporritz and Mrs Bethune getting the poor prizes. A dainty luncheon was served after the games.

The Kensington club was entertained by Mrs. George Carlton yesterday afternoon. On Thursday Mrs. Carlton entertained the Ladies' Aid of the M. E. church, and despite the storm there was a fair attendance.

HE TACKLED THE WRONG PERSON

John MacDonald Gets Mixed Up With Prize Fighter.

John MacDonald, while under the influence of liquor, started a fight with "Barrel" Smith, a negro pugilist of reputation, last night at the corner of Lake avenue and Superior street. The bout ended very quickly, with MacDonald down and out, with a bloody nose, which later flooded the police station, making the use of a mop necessary.

MacDonald took offense at Smith's color, and said so frankly. Smith told him to go about his business, and the white man began to swear. Smith did a little cussing on his own account, and in a mixup that followed MacDonald received the jolt on the nose. Officer Warvick arrested both men. Smith was released on bail.

Both men pleaded not guilty to charges of disorderly conduct in municipal court this morning, and the hearing was set for late this afternoon.

WATCH GIVEN BY STANTON AND $1,390 ARE STOLEN.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 1.—Lewis A. Marton of Oacoma, S. D., a union scout, who claims to have captured Jefferson Davis, and who bears the scars of twelve Confederate bullets, while on his way home from Washington, was robbed of his watch presented to him at the close of the war by Secretary Stanton, and his purse, containing $1,300. He telegraphed from here to Chief of Police Shippy of Chicago, expressing his belief that the robbery occurred soon after the train pulled out of Chicago.

MANY BARBERS WILL TAKE THE EXAMINATION.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—On next Monday and Tuesday, May 3 and 4, the barber's state board of examiners, will be here, and will camp out at H. H. Hanson's tonsorial parlors, 223 North Barstow street, three strong, for the purpose of examining apprentices of the art in this section of the state. Rumor has it that there will be a 100 young men on hand, who for the past two years, have been wielding the razor and shears.

STRIKE ON GREAT LAKES IS ORDERED

cation to find competent crews for their boats, and to force them to the necessity of making some concessions. The Lake Carriers' association controls about 400 boats.

Cooks Also Strike.

There will be about 12,000 men affected by the strike. The marine cooks and stewards have voted for a strike, according to information received from Buffalo. They have contended for the same principle that the lake seamen have, and their decision to hold off will add materially to the number of unemployed men along the lakes.

The unions all believe that owners will not be able to secure one-fourth the number of men necessary to man their vessels.

The Engineer's Stand.

Secretary Adams of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial association Duluth local voiced the sentiment of the engineers in general this morning.

"We are in no way connected with the other unions," he said, "and their quarrels are not ours. We have taken no aggressive attitude, but are standing pat on the proposition that we cannot as union men, afford to sign contracts containing the open policy clause. We are not striking, but waiting."

None of the Duluth members of the Lake Carriers' association cared to make any statement this morning for publication or to predict the outcome of the seamen's move.

Thousands Idle.

Thousands are idle today in Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo and other centers, but as a matter of fact the situation differs little from that which has existed since the opening of navigation, when the marine engineers refused to sign contracts in which the open shop clause was inserted. The tie-up today is merely made complete.

The next move of the leaders will be to request the general officers of the International Seamen's union to come to the lake district and indorse the strike. General Secretary of the International W. P. Frazier, is at East Boston, but will immediately get in touch with the situation. He will probably join George Hansen, agent of the lake seamen at Buffalo, and President Andrew Furuseth of San Francisco will come to Chicago.

About 400 boats are controlled by the Lake Carriers' association, but it is impossible to say just how many employes will be affected, as many of the vessels are not yet in commission.

Both sides are firm and there is no talk of compromise.

Livingstone Stands Pat.

Detroit, Mich., May 1.—"It will make no difference in the attitude of the Lake Carriers' association," said President William Livingstone, after reading a dispatch stating that the marine strike would begin. "I have nothing further to say. I have already made my attitude perfectly plain a number of times."

Many Affected in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 1.—About 200 firemen, 300 seamen and 80 cooks and stewards, members of different unions in Milwaukee, are affected by the marine strike which went into effect today.

Fred Huehns, agent of the Lake Seamen's union, today received instructions to act in accordance with the decision of the majority of the members and not to ship any men on boats owned and operated by the Lake Carriers' association.

"During the last few days our members have been waiting for the result, but now that it is known we will begin the fight in earnest," said Mr. Huehns. "All the members of the union that are on boats will finish the trip and then step off."

There has been little or nothing doing in the navigation line in Milwaukee so far this season.

General Over Lake Region.

Both Grand Secretary Secord of the Marine Cooks' and Stewards' union, and George Hansen, local agent of the Lake Seamens' union, said today that the strike of their members was now general throughout the Great Lakes region.

Of the unionized seamen there are said to be about 15,000 and of the cooks and stewards about 3,00 0on the lakes.

President Stack of the Marine Firemen, Oilers and Water Tenders' association, says his men will not need a specific order to strike. It is expected that a number of vessels in commission and now in the upper lake ports with crews signed for the round trip, will be deserted when the vessels return to this port.

No Activity Expected.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 1.—While the formal strike order of the Lake Seamen's union, the Marine Firemen's association and the Marine Cooks and Stewards against the "open shop" policy of the Lake Carriers' association went into effect today, there was nothing to distinguish the situation along the docks from that of the past few weeks. No real activity is expected until some of the boats now tied up attempt to move with non-union crews. Then, it is believed, there may be some trouble. No boats have left here in the past twenty-four hours. The union crews on boats now doubtless will leave their employment when the boats arrive. A union crew is reported to have abandoned the steamer B. F. Berrick when it arrived at Lorain today, loaded with coal. The steamer Cornell is said to be unable to leave here for lack of a crew.

There are upwards of 2,000 union men employed on the boats of the Great Lakes. This number does not include the large number employed on the docks and tugs, and who are controlled by the International Longshoremen's association. The longshoremen have taken no action in the present strike situation. Neither have the marine engineers who are members of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial union. They are merely keeping away from the boats which belong to the Lake Carriers' association.

of killed by the tornado of Thursday night to 100, the injured, some of whom are believed to be fatally hurt, to twice that number and while an accurate estimate of the monetary loss, is not yet possible, each discribes the storm as the most destructive that has ever swept over this portion of the country.

The greatest number of dead and injured is reported from Horn Lake, Miss. Here eighteen bodies have been found among the ruins of the farm dwellings. Of this number seven are those of white people. The property loss is roughly estimated at $100,000 in this vicinity. Caddo Gap, Ark., reports a like number of dead and many wounded.

At Fayetteville, Tenn., the death list is placed at fifteen and the injured a like number to that at Horn Lake.

Other towns from which reports have been received here are: In Arkansas, Marianna, four dead, twenty injured; near Hot Springs, four injured; Palestine, fifteen injured; Bee Branch, two dead, three injured; Heber, two dead, eleven injured; Wilburn, one dead; Wheatley, one dead, three injured; Crawfordsville, one injured; Marion, five dead, eight injured; Zebuton, one dead, one injured.

In Tennessee: Somerville, five dead, four injured; Bolivar, one dead, thirteen injured; Dechard, four dead, twelve injured; Montezuma, twelve injured; Humboldt, four dead; Medina, three dead, eight injured; Whiteville, two injured; Bells, six dead, twenty three injured; Quilto, three dead, twelve injured; Luluth, four dead; Dellach, two dead; Hanley, two dead, ten injured; Clarksville, one dead, six injured.

Blizzard On The Lakes.

Chicago, May 1.—The storm which began Thursday causing a death list of 200 in Illinois, Tennessee, Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, Missouri and Pennsylvania, took the form of a mild blizzard in the upper lake region, today, including Chicago, where a moderate wind was accompanied by snow. The weather bureau's summary of conditions today said:

"The storm this morning is centered over the Lake Superior region, while a secondary disturbance covers the Atlantic coast states. The weather in the rear of the storm is slow in clearing, snow still falling in the western lake region and the upper Mississippi valley. The weather, however, beyond the Mississippi valley is now fair. Abnormally cold weather has advanced from the Rocky mountain district over the central valley, freezing temperatures being reported as far south as Southern Missouri and frosts as far south as Texas and Arkansas.

BRAINERD HAULS SNOW FIRST TIME IN MAY.

Brainerd, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—For the first time in the history of the Northern Pacific railway, it is necessary in May to load the snow in the yards on the flat cars and haul it on to the bridge and dump it into the Mississippi river.

The snow continued to fall during the night, and all that fell drifted badly. There are signs of a clearup at noon, but it is still snowing and blowing.

The like of the storm is unheard of yet at this season of the year, it having snowed continually about seventy-two hours. Nearly three feet of snow has fallen.

Blizzard Around Crookston.

Crookston, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Since Thursday evening the snow has been falling steadily, and since Friday noon it has been blowing a gale from the northwest, the storm developing to a blizzard of no mean proportions during Friday night, when the thermometer dropped down to a point where the surface of the ground was frozen so that the snow would blow the same as in the middle of the winter. It is one of the heaviest storms that has been experienced in many years at this season.

OLD SOAKERS

Get Saturated With Caffeine.

When a person has used coffee for a number of years and gradually declined in health, it is time the coffee should be left off in order to see whether or not that has been the cause of the trouble.

A lady in Huntsville, Ala., says she used coffee for about 40 years, and for the past 20 years was troubled with stomach trouble.

"I have been treated by many physicians, but all in vain. Everything failed to perfect a cure. I was prostrated for some time, and came near dying. When I recovered sufficiently to partake of food and drink I tried coffee again and it soured on my stomach.

"I finally concluded coffee was the cause of my troubles and stopped using it. I tried tea and then milk in its place, but neither agreed with me, then I commenced using Postum. I had it properly made and it was very pleasing to taste.

"I have now used it four months and my health is so greatly improved that I can eat almost anything I want and can sleep well, whereas, before, I suffered for years with insomnia.

"I have found the cause of my troubles and a way to get rid of them. You can depend upon it I appreciate Postum."

Have not coughed once all day?

Yet you may cough tomorrow! Better be prepared for it when it comes. Ask your doctor about keeping Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. Then when the hard cold or cough first appears you have a doctor's medicine at hand. Your doctor's approval of its use will certainly set all doubt at rest. Do as he says. J. C. NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

WILL BOND NEW COUNTY

The Koochiching Commissioners Award Contract for Courthouse.

International Falls, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a meeting of the board of county commissioners yesterday it was decided to bond the county for $42,000 for the purpose of building a courthouse. The contract for the building was awarded Weld & Jonnson of Brookings, S. D. for $41,500. The building will be built according to plans furnished by Architect C. H. Bell of Minneapolis.

This was practically the same action as taken by the old board last August, but on account of proceedings taken by Big Falls citizens questioning the right of the commissioners to bond the county without submitting the proposition to a vote of the people. The supreme court has recently rendered a decision upholding the action of the old board and it now looks as though there could be no further legal entanglement to delay the proceedings.

The building will be located on block 32 which was given by the Koochiching Townsite company for the purpose. The contractors will be ready to begin work at an early date and are prepared to proceed rapidly.

MOOSE LAKE TO BE BENEFITED

Propose Joining Two Districts and Erection of High School.

Moose Lake, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Plans are now under way to have a big meeting in Moose Lake Monday and Tuesday, May 3 and 4, to consider the advisability of consolidating Districts Nos. 3 and 12 and erect a new high school building here. Prof. G. M. Cesander of the department of public institution and Prof. D. D. Mayne of the agricultural school will be here to deliver addresses at a meeting to be held in District No. 12 on Tuesday and Monday in the pavilion in town.

The subject of consolidation has been under discussion for several weeks, and the citizens believe that by holding a meeting and having the matter thoroughly discussed much good will come of it and that the sentiment of the people can be had in this way. A petition will be circulated for signatures calling an election in the near future to vote on the question, and from present indications there is no question but that it will carry.

C. E. Clark of the Du Pont Powder company was here Tuesday and made arrangements with the merchants to give a stump blowing demonstration on May 15. These demonstrations are very instructive to the farmers and will undoubtedly be well attended.

At a meeting of the council held the other night it was decided to buy and erect a new steel tower and tank for a water system. The present tower has outlived its usefulness and a new one is badly needed. As soon as the weather will permit, the street commissioner has instructions to begin grading and opening up of streets, and the improvement activities in Moose Lake this summer will be very much in evidence.

MANY DELEGATES WILL BE PRESENT

State Sunday School Convention in Grand Forks to Be Large.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Over 500 delegates will attend the state Sunday school convention to be held here May 18 to 20, it is predicted.

Every county in the state will be represented. There will be three national specialists: R. B. Griffith is chairman of the committee on entertainment, Prof. M. A. Brannon of the reception committee and Prof. Stout of the music committee.

State Secretary Orchard, in announcing the plans for the convention, says:

"Besides the pastors, superintendents and other lay delegates, each county has appointed an official to represent the county association of his own district.

"Distinguished specialists from Chicago will be present in Dr. Franklin McElfresh and Mrs. Lamoreaux, with such state workers as the Hon. E. L. Garden of Scores, chairman of the temperance committee in the recent legislature, the Hon. G. A. Herolz, who fought so tenaciously against the Streeter gang from the house, besides Prof. A. J. Ladd and Prof. W. M. Bryant of the state university."

TO ASSIST INDIANS.

Red Lake Man Will Help Them Make Selections of Land.

Walker, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The agency office here has received word that J. N. Head of Red Lake has been appointed overseer to assist the Indians in making new selections of lands, after relinquishing their old allotments within the boundaries of the National forest reserve.

Mr. Holt disciplinarian of the Indian school at Pipestone was at the agency this week to get some children who had ran away from the Pipestone Indian school and came back to the teepee.

All bids for the construction of the Walker schoolhouse have been rejected and the schoolboard has submitted new plans to the contractors. There were over thirty bidders on the former plans but all were too high.

A mad dog ran amuck in the town of Mildred one day this week but the animal was killed before it had done any damage.

Arrangements have been made to hold Memorial day exercises at the Leech Lake agency. Daniel DeLury and Dewit C. Hayes being the orators of the day. The Indian children will also take part in the exercises.

An Iowa colony have made arrangements to locate in the northern part of this county, all having purchased land.

CLOQUET ORDERED TO REMOVE DEBRIS

Premises Must Be Cleaned By June 1, Says Health Commissioner.

Cloquet, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Health Commissioner Dr. James Fleming has issued notice to all property holders in the city that the annual cleaning up time has come and that on June 1 inspection of all property will be made and any owners who have been negligent in cleaning up will have to stand the expense of the work when the city does it.

E. C. Clarke, representing the Dupont Powder company of Chicago, has made arrangements to conduct a series of exhibitions in blowing up stumps with dynamite for the benefit of the farmers of this neighborhood. The Johnson-Wentworth estate north of the city has been chosen as the place for the instruction. The date will be some time during the coming month, about the 17th.

The park pavilion has been leased by W. K. Hanson of Duluth to be used during the summer for a roller rink. The floor will be put in first-class condition and additional room for a cafe room will be provided. The new proprietor expects to have the opening night on May 14.

FIFTY-TWO-MILE DITCH PLANNED

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The final hearing on the great ditch that is being laid out in Marshall county, northeast of this city, will be held at Warren, the county seat, on May 16. The contracts will be let for the digging immediately after this meeting and work will commence as soon as the machinery can be gotten on the ground.

As the ditch is fifty-two miles long the task of completing cannot be performed this season, but next year will see the work finished. A highway the full length of this ditch will be constructed from the dirt that will be excavated.

AGED PRINCETON MAN.

Princeton, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Approaching his 93rd year, William Newbert, one of the oldest citizens of this section, died Monday of old age, and was buried Wednesday from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Newbert, Rev. J. W. Herd of the M. E. church officiating.

Mr. Newbert was born in London, Eng., Sept. 18, 1816, came to America in 1853, accompanied by his wife, formerly Miss Jane Ridge, to whom he was married in 1844, living for three years at Aurora, Ill., and coming to Bethel, Minn., in 1858, and to Princeton in 1882.

William Newbert is survived by a wife, 88 years of age; a son, Henry, of the Park house, Princeton; two grandchildren, George H. Newbert, Mora, and Mrs. M. S. Rutherford, Princeton; four great grandchildren, Miss Mildred Rutherford, Princeton; William, Henry and Madeline Newbert, Mora; Mary Newbert, Minneapolis.

SCHOOL FOR CUYUNA.

Brainerd, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new iron range town of Cuyuna has started a petition for a new school district and has the promise of the auditor of state of a loan for a building. The announcement is made that there will be need for a two-room building next fall.

The Rogers-Brown Ore company, the owners of the mine at Cuyuna, have set a crew of men at work remodeling a sleeping camp for a school house for use this summer that the twenty-five children now at the mine and at the new town of Cuyuna may have schooling this summer.

WILL DEVELOP ORE LANDS.

Parks Concern Is Formed to Operate in Hubbard County.

Park Rapids, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Banker William Tabor, Dr. Cutler and Hugh Alexander of Park Rapids, have been instrumental in forming this week a land company, to be known as the Park Rapids Land & Development company. The concern will deal in Hubbard county lands with particular reference to timber and iron ore. A large number of business men and farmers will be given stock and the main object of the company is to acquire and hold lands which give evidence of containing ore bodies.

MINER ELECTROCUTED.

Thomas Vransek Instantly Killed in Mine at Ironwood.

Ironwood, Mich., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thomas Vransek, a Polish miner, employed at the Aurora mine, was electrocuted while at work Tuesday night.

Vransek had come down a sub to investigate why the dirt was stopped in the chutes, and taking a metal bar poked it through to make it run. A motor car was standing in the vicinity and the man shoved the bar against an exposed wire, forming a short circuit, and killing him instantly.

Thomas Vransek was a married man and had been working for the Oliver Iron Mining company for some time. He leaves a wife and family in the old country.

NORTH DAKOTA LANDS BRINGING GOOD PRICES.

Fessden, N. D., May 1.—The sale of school and state land in Wells county took place at Fessenden this week. A large crowd of buyers was present. Out of 179 pieces offered, all but eleven were sold, and the average price was $22.50 an acre. Many pieces brought $30, and some went above $40. Wells county holds the record of $45.25 an acre, the highest price paid for state land in North Dakota. The sale aggregated $495,590.

CALUMET WOMAN WOULD MURDER HER MOTHER.

Calumet, Mich., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—On the charge of threatening to kill her mother, Augusta Sipola has been placed under arrest. Mrs. Sipola asks that she be bound to keep the peace for a term of months. Mrs. Sipola alleges in her complaint that in consequence of the threats of her daughter she has been afraid to go back to her home since the threats were made and further that she is living in constant fear of her. The defendant has already served a sentence on a disorderly charge. She entered a plea of not guilty on the threat to kill charge.

PROPOSE HOWARD ELLIOTT FOR HARVARD OVERSEER.

St. Paul, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—President Howard Elliott of the Northern Pacific may become an overseer at Harvard university. His name has been put forward by a number of friends who are pushing his candidacy vigorously.

The functions of an overseer of Harvard university are somewhat similar to those of a regent of the University of Minnesota, but the overseer is chosen by the alumni of the institution instead of being appointed by the state.

NORTHERN PACIFIC HAS HEAVY WESTERN TRAFFIC.

Fargo, N. D., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—It has been necessary to run passenger train No. 3 on the Northern Pacific in two sections for several days now on account of the tremendous rush of traffic to the West and this train will be run in two sections for some time.

So great has been the rush west that the local office received word several days ago that no more berth reservations could be made on this train for the balance of this month at this point.

WHISKY SUIT NOVEL ONE IN THE FEDERAL COURT.

St. Paul, Minn., May 1.—"The United States vs. three barrels of whisky and two barrels of gin," is the unpatriotic juxtaposition into which Uncle Sam is forced through proceedings begun in the district court by C. C. Houpt, attorney for this federal district.

The five barrels of "fire water" were recently discovered upon the White Earth Indian reservation.

IRON RIVER CREAMERY IS PROSPEROUS CONCERN.

Iron River, Wis., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Iron River creamery, under the management of Gustaf Mollenhoff, has operated all winter on a small scale, owing to the scarcity of cream, but now the grass season is at hand, and cream is coming into the creamery in greater quantities than ever before at this time of the year.

The Iron River creamery paid over $6,000 to its customers last season, and from the present outlook this figure will be more than doubled during the present year.

BIG FALLS BRIEFS.

Street Car Hits Automobile; Rail Spark Fires Gasoline

A big $4,000 automobile and half a Selby-Lake street car went up in smoke today before a volunteer bucket brigade succeeded in quenching the blaze. It started when the street car tried to pass the new automobile owned by H. V. Winchell, 925 Sixth street S.E., St. Paul. The automobile was standing on the same track.

Mr. Winchell, who is chief geologist of the Great Northern railway, was bound for St. Paul, and stopped his auto at Forty-sixth avenue So., on Lake street, to let off two small boys whom he had been giving a ride. The street car, also bound for St. Paul, didn't stop until it hit the automobile, a big Packard, recently purchased by Mr. Winchell.

When the car did stop it was found that it had gotten tangled up with the interior arrangements of the automobile. Also it had dislocated the gasoline tank, which sprung aleak. Unable to separate the two, strategy was tried, and the street car crew endeavored to back the car away from the machine.

Right there the fire started. A spark from the street car wheel ignited the gasoline, and in an instant the automobile was a mass of flames. The passengers on the street car fled for the door. Hardly had Mr. Winchell remarked on his delight over the fact that he had sent in a check for insurance on his automobile just three days before, when the fire spread to the street car. A bucket brigade was hastily organized by the passengers on the car and the crowd which flocked to the scene, and at last succeeded in getting the fire out. The automobile was destroyed and the street car half burned. Traffic was delayed half an hour until the wrecked car could be removed.

THE CAR WAS INSURED AGAINST FIRE IN MY COMPANY AND A TOTAL LOSS WAS PAID.

BUSY SEASON FOR SPORTS

Many Activities Promised During the Coming Summer.

Real Baseball Team—Better Program of Water Sports.

Within two or three weeks Duluth's season of summer sports will have begun and from the outlook at the present time it will be one of the most successful in the history of the city.

What gives promise of being a real baseball team will soon open its season, in what promises to be a live league. It is so long since Duluth enjoyed the distinction of being the possessor of a competent bunch of ball tossers, that the home coming of the Sox will be an event. ne of the Twin City papers has already dubbed the Wisconsin-Minnsota idea, the "Hazel Nut" league, but it promises to be a live league.

The golfers are already busy and out at the Country club each afternoon a number of the enthusiasts are taking their exercise in the open. Among these who are seen on the links each afternoon are former members of the business men's class at the Y. M. C. A. Indoor exercise is all very well to their minds when there is none of the outdoor variety to be had and there has been a decided falling off in attendance at gym. classes during the last week.

Automobiling is becoming more and more popular, and many new machines are noticed on the streets every day. There are to be a number of races pulled off by local enthusiasts during the summer, and several hill climbing contests are being arranged by the local dealers. The need of a good track is the one thing that is bothering the devotees of this sport, but without doubt some place will be discovered where the chug-wagons can speed it up.

There are in this city this year two amateur baseball leagues. The plan now is to bring the winners of the two leagues together and play a series for the championship of the city.

Motor boats are in great favor, and several are known to have been ordered from time to time during the past winter. Dick Schell has a new one coming that he claims will be a world beater. There will be several exciting brushes under the auspices of the boat club and from the way the owners talk at this stage of the game there will not be the old-time difficulty in getting them together.

Now that the boat club and the yacht club have combined there will be races of all kinds pulled off under the direction of the club. Each Saturday afternoon there will be the usual sailing races and the Saturday afternoon entertainments that proved so popular last summer will this year be enlarged and made more interesting than ever.

Already the tennis fiends are talking of their favorite game. There are grounds at the golf club, at the boat club and a private club controls grounds in the East end. There seems to be a great deal of interest in the "love-30" game this year and there is some talk of pulling off an early spring tournament.

All in all, the 1909 season gives great promise.

With the first two weeks of the National league season passed, the proud claims made for the New York Giants before the opening of the race for the flag have failed to materialize. They are already beginning to knock the team down in the metropolis. You have to have a winner in little old New York. The populace won't stand for anything that isn't fighting for the flag all the time.

Stung by the taunts of the press, and the terrific walloping sleepy old Boston administered to the New York pets, it is rumored that McGraw and President Brush are making desperate efforts to bring ex-Captain Mike Donlin back into the fold. It is stated through unofficial channels that the directors of the club, knowing that the Giants stand in great need of batting strength and are ready to agree to the original terms of the vaudeville artist(?).

It is safe to say that McGraw misses the work of that sterling player, Bresnahan. Roger is not only one of the greatest catchers the game has ever produced, but he is a great general and was the keystone around which the infield of the Giants worked. So far this season, his absence has been felt more by the Giants than has the absence of that other great pad artist, Johnny Kling of the Cubs.

William Kelly, one of the original Chicago rooters, and a man who has followed baseball for the past fifteen years, was in Duluth last night upon a business trip. Mr. Kelly, in the course of a conversation upon baseball, was asked what the chances of the Cubs were in the present race.

"Chicago will win the present race for the pennant and I will tell you the reason," said Kelly. "Pat Moran is catching just as great a game as Kling ever caught. This fellow only needed the chance to prove that he is a great catcher. He has the chance at the present time and he is making the most of it. Evers will be back, and then in addition, Chance has some great young players upon his team. There is Stanley, the recruit from the American Association; Kroh, the pitcher, who only needs a chance to prove that he is a great twirler and some other players that the leader of the Cubs has in reserve.

New York is weakened by the loss of Donlin and Roger Bresnahan, and many of the Chicago fans do not believe that they will prove the contenders they were last season. Chicago people will back the Cubs, and you may be sure that they will be in the race all the way.

By the by, this same "Bill" Kelly claims credit for the fresh start the Cubs took along toward the close of the pennant chase last year. He attributes the brace taken by the Cubs to the fact that they changed the style of their stockings along toward the close of the season.

The members of the Chicago team were wearing zebra-striped sox. These stockings, Mr. Kelly claims, were so utterly inartistic that no team upon earth could play artistic ball while garbed in them. He wrote to President Charles W. Murphy of the Cubs, suggesting that the stockings be changed for some more artistic design. They were. The Cubs forthwith appeared in modest black stockings, and at the time of the change began to win ball games.

While elated over the part he had in bringing the third consecutive pennant to Chicago, Mr. Kelly is grievously disappointed that the president of the Cubs did not present him with an annual pass. But then service and just reward have not always kept close sence of that other great pad artist, Johnny Kling of the Cubs.

But aside from Mr. Kelly's prediction, he being a partisan Chicago fan, and though the season is young, the Cubs are getting away fine, and this fact is bringing delight to the hearts of the loyal Western fans, who would delight to see the Cubs annex the fourth pennant.

Peter Maher, "the Irish champion," was sent to Queensland at Philadelphia the other night by some undeard-of middleweight. This is the 597th time that the man who once nearly beat Bob Fitzsimmons has soundly slept through the loud shouting of the referee. Peter lives in Philadelphia. His vocation is fighting, and occupation driving a milk cart. But in Philly the pretty maids never rise at an early hour, as they do in other cities, and Peter has found taking the fatal count more exhilarating than delivering milk when there isn't a chance to tarry a bit upon the back stoop.

Juet Meekin, once the side partner of Amos Rusie on the famous old New York Nationals, is working for $1.50 a day in a little Indiana town. Amos Rusie, once the greatest pitcher in the world, is digging ditches in the same state for about the same salary. Both players received large salaries for a number of years. Both refused to barricade the door against the coming of the wolf. There is much wisdom to be gleaned from this fate by haughty holdouts.

• • •

Batting averages of the American association show our old townsman Newt Randall, to be hitting at the very low percentage of .166. However, when it is taken into consideration that such sluggers as Seybold, Toledo; Armbruster, St. Paul; and Davis, St. Paul, are hitting at about the same low figure of the ex-Duluth player, it doesn't look so bad for Randall.

There is no truth that carpenters were busily engaged in placing runners under the sheils of the Duluth Boat club.

Shelbyville, Ky., April 27.—(Special.)—The opening game of the season in the Blue Grass league, between Frankfort and Shelbyville was postponed on account of rain. The game will be played off June 3.

They must play at least three league games a season in this league.

YOUNG CORBETT IS SURE THAT HE HAS "COME BACK"

New York, May 1.—There's one man in New York who thinks Young Corbett has "come back." That man is Young Corbett himself. The little exchampion seems to be more confident of himself right now than ever before.

"It's the championship that I want," he declared. "I've got that bee in my bonnet, and it's there to stick. I'm strong as an ox and I know that I'm hitting harder right now than ever before in my life. I've beaten eight men right off the reel. That's stepping along some, isn't it? Look at the men I've beaten. Did anybody ever drop Marto before? Isn't Bob Wilson considered the hardest hitting lightweight around here, with the possible exception of Leach Cross? I got him. I beat Harry Ferns with body blows, as I did Keyes. No one ever backed Keyes into a corner and had him as badly off as I did in that sixth round, did they? Does that show that I shouldn't be champion?

"People can't understand why I've come back. I haven't; I've simply picked up where I left off—just as Jeff is to do. The only reason that I ever stopped was because they broke my heart when they took my title and handed it to Jimmy Britt. After that nothing mattered.

"I lost fights to Nelson, Hanlon and Hyland that I would have won if they had still been calling me the champion. But I have arrived again and the fellows boxing now are easy for me. With Nelson and Gans aside and out of it, who have I to beat? The trouble with all these fellows is that they don't know the first thing about the game. They don't know when they hurt a man and when to hit. When I punch a fellow I know when he's wincing. I know the power of my punch, and I generally act instead of stepping back and wondering if it hurt the man in front of me.

"They all talk about my fat middle—my round body—such a mark to hit, they say. Let me tell you that nobody ever hurt me with a body punch. It was always that way. I never was muscular, and a muscle never showed on me in my life. The best hitters in the world have tried it, and I met some terrors, too."

Philadelphia, May 1.—After getting the lead in the first inning on Murray's home run and holding it until the ninth inning New York was beaten by Philadelphia 2 to 1.

The home team made only two hits, each a double, off Marquard, until the tenth, when Grant led off with a two bagger. Shean sacrificed and Grant scored on Schaefer's fumble of Titus' grounder. Magee singled, Wiltze took Marquard's place, Magee was forced out by Bransfield, who stole second. Osborne then won the game by a terrific drive to deep center, scoring Titus. Herzog injured his ankle in tripping over second base bag in the eighth inning, and Schaefer took his place. Knabe was put out of the game by Umpire Truby for disputing a decision. Score: R. H. E.

Columbus, Ohio, May 1.—Columbus defeated Toledo yesterday in the thirteenth inning, 4 to 3, as a result of Congalton's double, a force-out and two errors. All of Toledo's runs, made early, were secured after James and Larue had missed easy chances to retire the side. Larue drove in the first two runs for Columbus, and James tied the score with a homer in the sixth. Score: R. H. E.

Louisville, 4; Indianapolis, 2.

Louisville, Ky., May 1.—Louisville won the opening game of the series yesterday from Indianapolis by bunching hits off Schreiber in the first inning. Hogg pitched strong ball, allowing the visitors only three hits. The weather was cold, but a good-sized crowd attended. Olson's fielding was the feature. Score: R. H. E.

HEADQUARTERS FOR SPORTSMEN

Seattle Will Offer Them Many Attractions During Fair.

Seattle, Wash., May 1.—Not only will the Amateur Athletic union championships be contested for in the stadium of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, which opens in Seattle on June 1, but the fair will be a magnet for sportsmen of every sort—land, water and aerial.

Plans for the balloon contests are not completed, but there is a certainty of many notable air battles, both between heavier-than-air machines and dirigible. These contests will include short and distance flights.

Negotiations are on to bring the Harvard, Yale, Cornell and other rowing crews to Seattle during the exposition. It is planned to hold at least one regatta each month on Lake Washington during the fair.

For the long distance power boat race from Vancouver, B. C., to Seattle, starting on June 29, a $500 cup is offered. This race will be held under the auspices and rules of the Pacific International Power Boat association and will be the first of a series of important events for motor boat men who visit Seattle during the exposition. An additional prize will be given for the winner in each of the four classes. The measurement and restrictions are based on those of the Marblehead-New Rochelle race, with a modifying clause on the ratio of beam to waterline length.

KETCHEL'S MANAGER UNCONSCIOUS FROM DRUG.

New York, May 1.—Willus Britt, manager for Stanley Ketchel, middleweight pugilist, who was taken to St. Vincent's hospital yesterday, suffering from what is believed to have been poison, will in all probability recover. While his condition was serious at first, he has improved so much that it was said at the hospital that he would soon be discharged. Britt was found unconscious in a doorway in East Fourteenth street. A bottle of poison tablets was found in his effects.

JAP SPORT IN DULUTH

Novel Contest Will Be Held in This City.

Capt. Leopold McLaglan was yesterday matched with T. Yamagata for the world's title of jiu jitsu champion. The match will be held at the Temple roller rink Thursday evening, May 13.

This will be one of the most novel contests ever staged at the Head of the Lakes, inasmuch as the contest will be held under the Japanese rules of the Japanese national style of self defense. The jiu jitsu rules bar only biting, gouging and striking with the fists. The contestants struggle in their bare feet.

Capt. McLaglan has fought under the jiu jitsu rules in all parts of the civilized world. He has won the championship of Japan and has the credentials to prove his superiority over the Japanese. He fought at Vancouver before an audience of 15,000 people. There were so many Japanese there at that time, and so bitter became the race hatred of the whites and the yellow men that the match had to be postponed after the first fall had been secured by the Englishman.

Yamagata has recently come from Japan. He is one of the greatest exponents of the leverage and nerve-numbing game that the Flowery Kingdom has ever sent to the United States. He has beaten the best experts of his own country and wants to beat the man who claims the world's championship.

In jul jitsu a man is not defeated until he signifies that he is unable to continue the match. He signifies that he is beaten by tapping three times upon the floor with his hand or foot. Until that time the man who has the advantage can apply any hold permitted under the jul jitsu rules.

The Duluth match, under the articles of agreement, will be two falls to a finish. There will be no handicap or limited time.

WILL MEET IN OCTOBER

Jack Johnson Won't Back Out of the Ketchel Match.

Chicago, May 1.—"No matches I have made and signed up for will be called off unless there is good and sufficient reason for it. I'll fight Jack O'Brien on May 19 and Stanley Ketchel on Oct. 12, but in the latter case there is one proviso. If Jeffries will fight me next fall, then I'll call off the Ketchel match, but not unless."

In these words Jack Johnson has disposed of the stories that he is making matches merely because he is fond of doing it and likes the advertising that comes out of it. The black champion arrived here Monday morning from Pittsburg and opened a week's engagement at the Haymarket theater that afternoon.

"Lots of stories have been printed about my passing up that $5,000 forfeit for the Ketchel bout because I did not care to fight him. They are not true. What I did say, and I say it now, is that if Jeffries will agree to box me within what every fair-minded man must consider a reasonable time, Ketchel can have that forfeit, and I will spend all of my time preparing for the Jeffries battle.

"I am not making matches for advertising or anything of that sort. When a promoter can show me the money and get the opponent, I will box, that's all there is to it. I am getting $5,000 for boxing six rounds with Jack O'Brien. I will make a lot more than that by proving to Ketchel that it is foolish for him to go out of his class.

"There has been a lot of criticism about the Ketchel match and people do not seem to think much of it on the Ketchel end. Mr. Coffroth, however, thinks it is a great match, and as he is doing the gambling on it I cannot see why I should not go along. But if I pulled out of it now, you know what people would say. That's why I say that unless I get on with Jeffries—an actual match, I mean, and not merely Jeffries' say-so that he intends to fight me some time—I'll be in the Colma arena on Oct. 12, prepared to fight Ketchel. Forfeits of $5,000 are not posted merely for the purpose of being handed over to a man I can whip to a certainty. Money is not exactly as easy as that with me.

"It is my intention to start road work tomorrow, so as to be in good shape for the O'Brien bout. I am away up in weight and scale close to 225 right now. I'll get down to 208 at least before May 1, I must be in shape, for in a six-round battle O'Brien is one of the best in the business. But I do not admit that even this wonderfully speedy fellow has anything at all on me in cleverness or speed or anything else.

"Nothing is going to interfere with my trip to Europe. We will sail May 25. Here is my contract for a limited time over there, I will go to Ireland and then to Paris, but I will not fight over there. To that I have made up my mind. I'll be gone ten weeks. By the time I get back it will be almost fall, and then I can start work for Ketchel or whatever other matters are in sight.

"Believe me, Jeffries does not intend to fight me. That is perfectly clear to my mind now, unless, as I have said many times lately, he sees fit to cover my $5,000, which is now up in New York. I will pay no further heed to him. Why should I? He is no better than any other challenger for the title, and certainly I would pay no attention to any man who didn't put up the money."

These pictures hardly convey a correct idea of the strenuousness of the early season rowing game in this part of the country. The pictures were taken when the thermometer was playing tag with the lower regions of the tube and when most pedestrians were shivering uncomfortably in ulsters and heavy winter clothes.

The juniors have been out every night but two of the present week. The senior eight has been on the water for two weeks. One night the weather was so cold that ice coated the oars of the seniors when they pulled up at the float.

Most of the men are attired in heavy sweaters, but with nothing but the rowing trunks to protect their limbs. The strenuous exercise keeps the men fairly warm, but when some of the cold water of the bay splashes a man feels as if he was being initiated into some new form of torture.

Some of the more strenuous devotees of the life that Theodore Roosevelt has prescribed for the men of this American nation have dived into the frigid waters of the bay every evening after coming in from their row. Even those who do not take the winter swim step under the cold shower, ice cold for that matter, and take a freezing bath. The water comes direct from the lake and is as cold as chilly wintery winds can make it. This rowing is really very strenuous.

At the present time there are two eights upon the water and a bantam four, and the promise that this squad will be greatly added to when the weather becomes milder. The juniors are under the charge of Dr. Frank Lynam, while Murray Peyton, assisted by his brother, John, who was a member of the Yale crew last year, are instructing the members of the senior and bantam crews into the mystery of getting your back and legs into the stroke.

The seniors are out for blood this year. They are eagerly looking forward to the first clash with the juniors. It may also be stated that the juniors are just as eager for the test of supremacy. When the rowing gets well under way, there will be impromptu races every Saturday. It is also probable that the eights will be pitted against each other in the daily training. The spirit of competition will thus be stimulated, a spirit that was sadly lacking last year.

Conditions are promising, if only that little understood person, the weather man, would set himself right.

None of the crew has been definitely decided upon as yet. The senior squad is composed almost entirely of men who have been in winning crews in former regattas. The seniors are not saying much, but they are working very hard. They do not plan to go to the regatta at St. Paul unless they are satisfied that they can make time that will insure them of being in at the finish. They will be up against some very fast crews and do not propose to enter unless they have a fair chance of winning. Much therefore depends on their work during the next two or three weeks. They are already rowing in splendid form and are in good condition.

The bantam crew will have three old men in it, Walker, Horak and Mapp, and one new man will be selected to fill the other position.

The juniors are made up almost entirely of new men.

"I am almost afraid to tell how much a tenant gets for his money at one of the garden cities in England," writes Dr. Wilhelm Miller in the World's Work. "The cheapest houses at Bournville rent for only $7.80 a month, which includes taxes and water rates. Such a house contains five rooms and a wonderful folding bath, which stands up like a cabinet when not in use. Clerks and artisans, however, generally pay about $12.30 a month for seven rooms and an eighth of an acre."

KNOWLEDGE THAT HE IS WHIPPED, GREATER TORTURE TO PUGILIST THAN ANY PHYSICAL PUNISHMENT

Did any one ever jab you real hard on the jaw or soak you in the solar plexus? If any one has ever accomplished this very rude feat on you, you have learned, in some measure, in a measure only, the pain and the absolute agony that is endured by every fighter at some stages, and often in many stages, of a big fight.

It is not often that the ringside spectators gain an idea of the pain that a fighter suffers. There are many reasons for this. For one reason, a fighter seldom tips his condition to an opponent. In the second place, since he first climbed into the ring for his initial fight, he has trained and steeled himself to the task of taking punishment like a healthy infant does Jersey milk. In the third place, it is the mental suffering that is the most poignant.

It is the fighter who succeds in taking this punishment and coming back for more who is generally found in the championship class.

There was the Corbett-Sullivan fight. That fight made history. It was the passing of the old school. It was the passing of the old swinging fighter, of which school Sullivan was the last great survivor, and it ushered into modern pugilism the clever boxer, the straight hitter, and the man with the clever footwork.

Up to the seventh, eight or ninth rounds, John Lawrence Sullivan never believed the man lived who could defeat him. This belief was born of confidence and continual success. Then Corbett, young and agile as a deer, began jabbing the old grizzled warrior in the nose. If there was any one place the great John L. dreaded a blow, it was upon his nose. The blows began to hurt hurt and daze him. Suddenly a sickening realization was borne in upon him: "Was it possible that he was being beaten?"

That was the great moment—the crucial moment in that great fight. Through the autocratic self-confidence of the champion there flashed a message, bearing a presentiment of defeat. At that same moment the young and cautious Corbett knew that he was going to win. The great moment of the battle had come. What came after that was simply hastening the end. The great John L. was beaten, and he knew it long before the battle was terminated.

All the jabs that bore their physical sting, were as nothing to the mental agony that told Sullivan that he was being beaten. His brain grew sick, and lost its power of directing coolly and carefully. Every blow brought its sting to the big fellow; but the one thing that was beating him down, that saps his fighting spirit, was the knowledge that he was beaten man.

Take the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight. Before the gong brought the men to the center of the ring for the fatal fourteenth round James J. Corbett knew he was a beaten man. Again the message had shot its way to the brain of the desperately struggling gladiator, crushing his hope of victory.

In the sixth and seventh rounds Corbett gave Fitzsimmons an awful beating. Men at the ringside who had wagered small fortunes upon the chances of "Gentleman Jim," waved their hats in a frenzy of excitement. They believed the battle was all but over. It was expected that Fitz would last but a round or two.

That was not the great moment of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons battle. The great moment came along in the twelfth round. Suddenly the confident smile left the face of the champion, as it had left the face of another champion five years previous. The message had done its work. Corbett was a beaten man. He took the blows that Fitzsimmons landed with never a show of physical suffering, but the agony that was crushing his spirit and sending him down to defeat, was the agony borne by the message that flashed the defeat signal to his brain.

In the fourteenth round Fitzsimmons hit Corbett a terrific blow in the solar plexus. The suffering of the man will always be one of the most dramatic moments of the American prize ring. It was not the terrible agony of that blow alone that brought misery and suffering to the face of Corbett. It was the knowledge that he was beaten, that his will and strength were gone, that brought a look of misery to the face of the champion.

Out of the West came a young Lochinvar to battle with freckled Bob Fitzsimmons. This young giant was not taken seriously in the East. He was placed in the same class of Ed Dunkhurst, "The Human Freight Car." He was not given a chance with Fitzsimmons. This young giant from the state of the Golden West, was James J. Jeffries.

Fitzsimmons walked back to his corner at the end of the second round with the knowledge that if not beaten then, he had the greatest fight of his career upon his hands. The brain message—it has never been proven that Fitz had any brains—was incomplete; yet the champion knew that the odds of battle were in favor of the Hercules who was beating him to pieces. To the last he hoped to land the right that had never failed him, but the passing of the second round, when Jeffries stretched Fitz upon the canvas, was the great moment of the fight.

Fitz discovered that his blows were not hurting the wonderful mass of bones and muscle in front of him, and the message began to bear its agonizing augury of defeat to the ruby fighter.

The great moment had come and with its message, the tide of battle turned. Fitzsimmons was no longer the self confident champion of the world. He was a desperate man, with the frenzy of a nameless fear crowding in upon him.

In the Goldfield fight of Gans, he broke his hand. The twinging pain made the black man wince, despite his stoical training. Quick as a flash he began to limp, making the battling Dane believe that he had sprained his foot. Nelson never knew that Gans had disabled his hand, although it gave the negro excruciating pain to hit with it. The physical pain never kept Gans from coming all the time, a brain message giving a presentiment of defeat would have sickened and crushed the black man down to defeat. Champions, game as they must necessarily be, are not beaten by physical pain unless it come beyond human endurance; it is that physical message that takes championships away.

When Gans fought Nelson the first time after the Goldfield fight, it was presumed that Gans would beat the Dane all the way. It was believed that the Baltimore black had the goat of the Dane.

The message came to Gans early in the fight. He knew he was beaten. For five or six rounds he fought like the old champion. Then came the fear that sometimes makes cowards of heroes. Gans knew that he had made a mistake that he was battling against a better man. And though Gans never wilted under the blows the Dane dealt him, never flinched from the physical pain, there was a pain in his brain and heart, that slowly was crushing him to the resigned carpet of the ring.

In all great fights there has been the great moment. It comes and it sustains a champion or makes a new champion. That message brings numbness and fear to the brain, it brings the pallor of defeat to the battling fighter. It is not the sting of the terrific blow; it is not the physical pain, it is a psychological message that signals the coming of the end. It is this message that sears the faces of men, be they fighters of physical battles or the battles of life.

FAST MATCH ARRANGED

Langford and Stanley Ketchel to Meet in Los Angeles.

The Result Will Mean Great Things for Both Fighters.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 1.—Stanley Ketchel has accepted the terms offered by the Pacific Athletic club for a ten-round fight here in July with Sam Langford, and it is not too much to say that it is the best card that could be arranged by any club this year, barring, of course, a meeting between Jeffries and Jack Johnson, if they ever come together.

Manager McCarey has been after this Langford-Ketchel match for some days, and while he had Langford's consent some time ago, he did not get Ketchel's until recently, but, in all probability, he will not consider the match as absolutely clinched until the men arrive here and begin their training. Prize fighters with a reputation are flighty things, like foreign opera singers, and you can seldom tell what they intend to do until they do it.

The weight at which the men will meet has not yet been agreed upon, but in all probability Ketchel will want catchweights, as he will surely figure he will have a better chance with Langford if he can go into the ring strong and heavy, for he knows that Langford is one of the stars of the ring, and the man that beats him must be a top-notcher. Langford never asks the weight of the men he fights, for he would just as soon fight a heavyweight as a welter, and the larger they are the better he likes them.

The date of the fight is also an uncertainty, but it will be during Elks' week, which begins July 11.

Langford Doped to Win.

There is no use guessing how a Ketchel-Langford battle will end, for all fights are uncertain things, but the dope shows that Langford should win. He has won from Sandy Ferguson and Joe Jeanette, both heavyweights; drew with Joe Wolcott when the latter was at his best, and while he lost to Jack Johnson, he came within a very small fraction of thrashing that big champion. He will fight all kinds and sizes and bars no one.

On the other hand, while Ketchel has knocked out almost every man he met and has been defeated but once, and that time by Papke, he has never fought such men as Langford, and he never fought any pug that Langford could not have beaten in five rounds. Just imagine what Langford would do to Papke, Joe Thomas, Twin Sullivan and that kind! In all its history Los Angeles has seen but few real fighters in Jeffries, Johnson, Langford, Attell, Welsh, Coulon, Nelson and McFarland, and of all these champions Langford bars none but Jeffries, and he might think again if pressed.

According to report, Ketchel is to receive $16,000 for his end of the receipts, while Langford is to get about $2,500. Ketchel is not worth his end to any club, and could not make the house draw that much unless he was to go against such men as Langford, Johnson or Burns. The match, however, should be a slashing good one, as to tryout for Ketchel if he has any aspirations for the championship, for at present he has no chance to beat Johnson unless he goes into the ring with a pistol in one hand and a sword in the other, and he should shoot first before he cuts, at that.

Great Match.

There is no question about the match being a great card, and as a matter of fact it is the greatest one ever staked here, and much better than Burns and O'Brien, and Ketchel and Papke, or Welsh and Attell.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Next week the entire school will be given the opportunity of witnessing a program presented by the junior-senior division of the Philomathian society. The feature of the program will be a Japanese play, all of the actors of which will be members of this club. During the year this club has been presenting little plays, but none but members have been permitted to see them. This, however, being the last meeting of the year, they have put forth every effort to give something exceptionally good, so that it could be presented before the whole school which could then see what they have accomplished during the year. "The Japanese Wedding," is the title of the drama, which will be presented in the assembly hall at 1:40 on Monday afternoon. The play is a pretentious one for a club play, but the club has some fine talent and together with the beautiful scenery and the pretty costumes which they have procured, it will certainly be a very creditable production.

Asano Tomita, a nobleman of Tokio.....
.....Constance Mitchell
Fuji, his wife.....Goldine Krojanker
Miltsa, their daughter..Beulah Hubbard
Taro, her brother.....Callie Merritt
Kawata Jaino Amato...Marjorie Davis
Tasaku, her son.....Helen Hawkes
Senkal, a Buddhist priest..Loretta Tims
Yukl, Japanese girl.....Louise Prosser
Haru, Japanese girl...Elizabeth Olcott
Helen Morton, American college girl
.....Margaret Cant
Lucy Brown, American college girl.....
.....Janet Haley
Brother of Tasaku.....Dorothy Gordon

Chorus—Myrna Pressnal, Lena Ward, Frances Dickerson, Myrtle Pierce, Winnifred Warner and Marion Merritt.

Miss Wells and Dan Shibuyo are directing the production. Last night the whole cast accompanied by Miss Arlin Peachey, Miss Wells, Miss Shields and Mr. and Mrs. Olcott journeyed to Cloquet, where the senior class of the high school there produced the play last evening.

The senior farewell, which was to have been held on May 14, has been postponed to the following Friday, May 21. A spread will be served in the first part of the evening for the seniors only, at which various members of the faculty and the class will give toasts. Afterwards the other classes will join with the seniors in an informal dance. The seniors and under classmen are looking forward with much pleasure to this hop, for it will be the first one given since Christmas time.

The matter of a junior-senior is still up in the air. It would certainly injure the reputation of the class of 1910 if they should be the first class to refuse to pay their parting respects to the graduating class with this ball. However, the class itself seems anxious to give the junior-enior and so expressed itself in the last class meeting, but the committee in charge has as yet taken no steps in preparing for it. Last year the juniors broke away from the old-time balls given in the Spalding, and this important function, a very popular one by giving it in a smaller hall and making it as simple as possible. This removed the objections of the faculty and the school board, and made a precedent for the future classes to follow. The class of 1910 can do the same as was done last year and make the junior-senior just as permanent an institution as it formerly was.

The Public Speaking club held a regular meeting last Monday afternoon, at which there was a large attendance. Remarks about the Pine City debate were made and it was thoroughly discussed by all the members. Resolutions thanking Mr. Baker and Mrs. Custance for their efforts in making the affair such a successful and pleasant one were passed. Stanley Lamb, the all-around genius of the club, gave a recitation which was very good, and as an encore sang a funny dialect song which caused a great deal of laughter among the members. Erling Mostue, another shining star, sang a couple of songs which were likewise greatly enjoyed by the club. A talk on parliamentary rules of order and procedure was given by Mr. Baker, which proved so interesting that the club decided that after this a portion of each meeting will be devoted to this topic. The finances of the club are in excellent condition, after the debate, and plans are already being made for the annual spring banquet which will be given at the end of school.

The name of the play to be given on class night by the seniors has been announced and the cast has been selected to present it. Next week work will be begun and from that on those participating will be kept very busy for there is not very much time left. In the meantime they are all busy learning their parts. Mr. Custance will again have charge of the production and will work hard to make it the success that his others have been. The play is a farce in three acts, entitled "All Tangled Up," and is a light, breezy, humorous piece which is bound to make a big hit. The cast is as follows:

Kneeling Plantum, proprietor of an undertaking and tombstone business.....Robert Ely
Lieut. George Rapley, wealthy young Westerner.....Lawrence Jacques
O'Toole, a family treasure.....
.....Leonard McHugh
Mrs. Halliday, inclined to jealousy.....
.....Dorothy Olcott
Clara, her daughter, inclined to Rapley.....Cleo Fenton
Vernie, the undertaker's daughter, inclined to Lester..Marjorie Shipherd

• • •

The choir of the high school will take part in a program which is to be given in the Masonic Temple Monday night. They will repeat the program given at their musical, with a few added selections.

Next week the report cards will be out. These will be awaited with much anxiety for there is only another month left and all the students are beginning to get uneasy. The senior essays have all been handed in and looked over, and it is expected that the announcements will be made soon as to who have been selected to read theirs on commencement night.

The work of the track team was given a serious setback last week by the cold weather. A few of the brave ones breasted the icy blasts Wednesday in their abbreviated clothes, but that was enough for them. Not very much work can be accomplished until the weather warms up and the ground gets dry. The Marathon run by the team was a great success. All but one poor unfortunate finished, and no one showed any after effects.

HANCOCK ELKS TO SHOW PATRIOTISM

Iron River, Wis., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Whether there was a life mystery about Joseph Yerden, formerly assessor of the town of Iron River and for years an honored resident and respected citizen of this community, who died Wednesday evening in an Ashland hospital, may be only conjecture, but it is said he never talked about his relatives. Although he is thought to have had a sister and brother living in Michigan, he declined to reveal their whereabouts.

Mr. Yerden was about 50, unmarried, and of late years had devoted himself to farming. He was an honored member of Brownstone lodge, I. O. O. F., which will have charge of his funeral to be held here Sunday afternoon, at 2, from the residence of Albert Johnson.

More than a year ago, Mr. Yerden was siezed with an attack of kidney trouble and while he seemingly got much better last summer, yet his health has never been good during all the intervening months. Last fall his condition grew worse and all during the winter months he was a constant sufferer.

About two weeks ago he went to St. Joseph's hospital in Ashland, and as a last resort an operation was performed in the hope of saving his life or at least postponing the inevitable call to the life beyond. The operation revealed that there was not the slightest chance of his recovery and his friends in this city were informed that they need not entertain any hope. His old friends and neighbors here did everything they could to make his last days as comfortable as possible and not a day passed but that some of them visited him at the hospital.

RISKS LIFE FOR WIFE.

Wounded North Dakotan Traveling to See Dying Helpmate.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Traveling from Devils Lake to Paynesville, Mich., with a knife wound in his lung inflicted Tuesday night, when he was stabbed in the back by a fellow employe at the railroad shops at Devils Lake, William Gill, a former football star of the North Dakota university, is taking awful chances.

Doctors told him he would have to remain in his room until the danger period passed. Upon hearing his wife was dying, Gill insisted on leaving on the first train, and all protests of the physicians and friends were unavailing. Upon his arrival here last night he was met by physicians, who dressed his wounds as he lay in the sleeper.

Rev. I. W. Williamson's Letter.

Rev. I. W. Williamson, Huntington, W. Va., writes: "This is to certify that I used Foley's Kidney Remedy for nervous exhaustion and kidney trouble and am free to say that it will do all that you claim for it." Foley's Kidney Remedy has restored health and strength to thousands of weak, run down people. Contains no harmful drugs and is pleasant to take. Sold by all druggists.

KNEW LITTLE OF HIS RELATIVES

Former Iron River Assessor Dies Without Unsealing His Lips.

Hancock, Mich., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local lodge of Elks is planning for an observance of Flag day, June 14, on a scale never before attempted in this section. The committee in charge of the observance of the day is working every day. The merchants of Houghton and Hancock will be asked to close their stores on Flag day and the school authorities will be asked to dismiss the children for the afternoon. Those who will take part in the program at the Amphidrome hall have not been decided upon but an interesting and appropriate program will be rendered.

The exercises of the day will be held in the Amphidrome hall at Houghton. A monster parade from Hancock to Houghton will precede these exercises. The parade will be headed by the Quincy band, which will also furnish music at the hall. The band has already been engaged.

An important and pretty feature of the day will be the school children's division of the parade. As many children as can be secured will be in the parade and each will carry a flag. In fact, every one in the parade will carry one. Hundreds of children will make the march. Efforts will be made to have the Houghton Light Infantry, the Naval Reserve, the Spanish war veterans and the G. A. R. to march with the others. As many members of the lodge as possible will also be in the parade. This will make one of the prettiest and longest parades ever seen in either of the Portage lake cities.

THE MERRY WIDOW WALTZ
PICTURES OF MISS GLOSZ AND CHARLES MEAKINS IN POSES OF THE MERRY WIDOW WALTZ
ROSEMARY GLOSZ "THE MERRY WIDOW"

MAY DAY WEEK IN THE THEATERS.

At the Lyceum—Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Wednesday matinee, Henry W. Savage's big production of "The Merry Widow;" Friday and Saturday with Saturday matinee, "Girls." At the Bijou—High class vaudeville bill all week.

"The Merry Widow."

One of the big events of the season is at hand with the world-famed "Merry Widow," booked at the Lyceum for five performances beginning Monday night, May 3, with a matinee on Wednesday.

It is perhaps unfortunate, in view of the advance sale, that the engagement is for four nights only, but that being the case, it remains for playgoers to do the best they can under the circumstances. Mr. Savage, to whom the United States is indebted for this operatic sensation of the world, sends a company of 100 people. This number includes the "Madam Butterfly" orchestra, the quality of which is recalled as a delightful memory; a Hungarian orchestra, which is carried to appear in one act only; the large "Merry Widow" chorus, and a list of principals, whose names guarantee a splendid impersonation, from all points, of the roles intrusted to their care.

The role of "The Merry Widow" will be sung by Miss Rosemary Glosz, a Hungarian by birth, who graduated from the conservatories of Vienna, and is said to be the embodiment of the spirit of "The Merry Widow" of the composer's mind. Miss Glosz holds the record of times the role has been sung by one person in this country, because Mr. Savage, realizing her peculiar adaptability for the character, placed her in the cast of his New York and Chicago productions as often as possible. The equally important role of the prince is in care of Charles Meakins, who has appeared in the role over 300 times. He is a young, romantic tenor, who was the vogue in the long metropolitan runs of the opera. Mr. Meakins and Miss Glosz are the principals in the celebrated "Merry Widow" waltz. Another newcomer of the week will be seen in the person of Paul Bleyden, a tenor from Mr. Savage's grand opera forces, to whom is assigned one of the principal roles. There is a large field of comedy in "The Merry Widow," Messrs. Thomas Leary, Oscar Figman, William Strunz and Henry Holt being cast in that department of the play. "The Merry Widow" chorus is a body of sufficient prestige to warrant a word in advance on its behalf. The young ladies are called upon to wear Parisian gowns, which represent the latest doings of the modistes of Paris, and perhaps more important than all, and in ample proportions that peculiar vintage of headwear known as "The Merry Widow" hat.

"The Merry Widow" is an operetta with a good, clean, consecutive story—music that is melodious and requires interpreting by trained, experienced voices, dialogue that is bright without suggestiveness, types true to life, not wild exaggeration, fun and frolic that never descends to buffoonery, and dancing that is absolutely inspiring.

"Girls."

The attraction at the Lyceum next Friday and Saturday, May 7 and 8, will be the Messrs. Shuberts' production of "Girls," Clyde Fitch's latest comedy which broke all New York records at Daly's theater in the metropolis.

The story concerns three young women who live in a New York studio apartment, and who affect to despise the masculine sex, confident in their belief that that men are superfluous creatures in the scheme of life. One of the maids is a law firm's secretary; the second is a stenographer, and the third is a young person who aspires to twinkle behind the footlights. Each night before retiring—and the retiring scene, by the way is one of the most delightful situations that Mr. Fitch has ever invented—they cross hatpins and swear a mighty oath of eternal hostility to man in general.

Pamela is the leader of the man-hating trio, and her first encounter with the common enemy occurs at the end of the first act, when an unknown man, young and handsome, seeks refuge in the girls' apartment. After he has been soundly lectured on the unworthiness of his sex in general, he is hustled out of a third-story window and compelled to walk a plank which leads to a neighbor's apartment across the air shaft. Though he has gone, he has left an impression on the heart strings of the leader of the man-haters' club, and after all three girls have crawled into their beds, Pam is heard, as if talking in her sleep, to softly mutter the word "Edgar," which was the name the intruder gave while trying to make himself known.

The second act takes place in the law office where Pam is working. She is kept busy resisting the over-gallant attentions of the senior partner, and things come to a crisis when he asks her to go to dinner with him at Shanley's. She promptly resigns and is on the point of leaving the office, when her old enemy, the young man of the night adventure in the apartment, enters the office. It transpires that he is the junior partner of the law firm, who has been on his vacation, and has not been in the office since Pam's advent.

Pam indignantly explains the cause of her resignation. "Yes, I am leaving," she says, "because that gay old partner of yours invited me to dinner at Shanley's." "Did you want to go to the Plaza?" the young man asks, solicitously.

Then ensues a period of banter in which Pam is worsted at her own argument. She finally decides to remain in the office, piqued at the attention of the young man to another of the man-hating trio who is assisting Pam at her work.

The third act shows the bachelor maids disconsolate to their studio. Their oath against men shows signs of disintegration. An unconditional surrender is made to the enemy and Pam is carried off by the young man whom she professed to hate most of all.

The little fads and foibles of girls are sketched in a most entertaining fashion. Mr. Fitch has drawn his characters lightly, obviously with a view to entertain, but their fidelity to human nature is readily apparent.

The cast supplied by the Messrs. Shubert is one of metropolitan excellence, while the production is exceedingly elaborate and correct. Prominent among the players are H. S. Northrup, Bessie Toner, Caroline Locke, Ethel Terry, Suzette Jackson, Mercelta Esmonde, Charles Brandt, Hevlyo Benson, Karl Knapp, Pierre Young, Fred Stanton and E. A. Locke.

There will be a Saturday matinee.

Seats go on sale Monday, May 3.

At the Bijou.

Commencing the week of May 1 Manager Maitland offers the Bijou patrons several novelties, among them being the famous Dunitrescu-Vermette troupe of European sensational bar performers. These thrilling and sensational aerialists in a hair-raising act, the like of which has not been seen here for some time, are sure to prove a feature.

Hal Davis and company will present an intensely dramatic playlet, entitled "The Unexpected." It is filled with action and is one of the best staged and best acted short sketches of the year.

Mlle. Rialto and company will appear in a picturesque singing and posing oddity, called "The Artist's Dream." Mlle. Rialto poses to represent some of the most famous paintings, and while posing her assistant sings in a charming tenor voice.

The Ramsey Sisters will offer a comedy musical act, called "The Messenger Girl." They are clever singers and instrumentalists, and are bound to please.

Monday will be the first appearance at the Bijou of F. Sketcher, who is the possessor of a sweet tenor voice, which will be heard to good advantage in the latest illustrated song, "When You Kiss Your Sweetheart the Last Goodbye." The moving pictures will include some of Edison's latest subjects. Matinees are given daily at 2:45 o'clock and night performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved by either telephones. A school children's matinee will be given Saturday at 2:30.

"Mary's Lamb."

Richard Carle brings "Mary's Lamb" to the Lyceum on May 15. "Mary's Lamb" is a musical comedy, of French origin, but of American rejuvenation, the tall comedian has again scored a tremendous success. "Mary's Lamb" ran for three months in New York and for long engagements in Boston and Chicago. Mr. Carle brings a splendid cast of principals, including Cecilia Rhoda, Julia Ralph, Rita Stanwood, Winifred Gilraine, Mina Davis, Harry Montgomery, Sylvian Langiois, George Bogues and Abbott Adams. The chorus is one of the largest, eshowiest, nimblest and dressiest in musical comedy.

"The Right of Way."

The creation of a great character on the stage is largely a matter of deduction, according to Theodore Roberts, America's most noted character actor, who is now playing for the second season the part of Joe Portugais, the French-Canadian "habitant" in the dramatic version of Sir Gilbert Parker's great novel, "The Right of Way." Strange as it may seem to those who witness Mr. Roberts' splendid acting in "The Right of Way," the actor says that he did not go to the Canadian woods to study the 'habitant,' but learned the peculiar local hits of characterization through reading and through listening to the talk of friends who had been in the Canadian woods.

For two years Mr. Roberts has been doing his difficult work in this play. During all that time he has done it so well that people who know the characters of the district in which the action of the play is laid, have been convinced that he must have spent years among the river men of Canada to become so thoroughly inoculated with their mannerisms of speech and action. But such was not the case.

"I really never went to the woods of Canada, or even to the cities of Canada to study for the part," says Mr. Roberts. "As a matter of fact I had arranged to do something like this when I first engaged to play the part, but a change of plans made it impossible. I learned the dialect through diligently reading dialect writings, particularly the Drummond stories and verse, and a series of stories that appeared in a prominent magazine some four years ago. Then I had many friends who knew the speech well, and they gave me many interesting lessons, as it were.

"Dialect has always been rather easy for me. I have managed Indian dialect very successfully, for I consider all such speech a matter of deduction, and unconsciously it comes to me. For instance, I had many river men and real 'Canucks' come to me when we played 'The Right of Way' in the Canadian cities and try to talk the language with me. Of course, I did not understand their French, but it was hard at times to convince them that I was not putting on airs in not answering them.

"There is one important point to learn about French, and that is that the language is always spoken without stress. Once one learns this, it is not difficult. The Indian language is also expressionless and comes to one easily when this fact is thoroughly understood. In learning the 'Canuck' dialect, however, I studied hard for two years, although not in that country. I read all good dialect stories aloud, thus getting the proper twist to my tongue. Since then I have had natives correct me in the matter of localisms, and have thus finally reached a stage where I manage the part with some satisfaction."

Klaw & Erlanger's fine presentation of "The Right of Way," with Guy Standing and Mr. Roberts as co-stars, supported by the original New York company, is among the early theatrical bookings in this city.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

NEW YORK, May 1.—Harrison Grey Fiske produced "The Gay Life" at the old Daly theater last week and the critics did anything but enthuse over this latest expose of the strenuous Bohemian life of Upper Broadway. The piece is from the pen of Roy McCardle, who must have come to the conclusion, after reading the reviews of his comedy, that it is a trifle more simple to write humorous sketches of this alleged Bohemian life for the world than for the stage. He has embodied the leading types of his sketches in three acts of comedy, starting with a party of stranded actresses in an Altoona hostelry, and ending with a table d'hote supper among the gay set of 'fair Bohemia,' in which the attempt is made to caricature the familiar actors' boarding house and its habitues. Everybody in New York takes a shine at the table d'hote, perhaps a latent sense of justice in the human breast arose in resentful antagonism against the abuses of such an indispensable institution as the table d'hote. At all events, the piece is not accounted one of the season's hits. In the cast are Katherine de Barry, Violet Kimball, Helen Hancock and Thomas Thorne.

While this was the only Broadway opening last week, several changes are in immediate prospect. "The Blue Mouse" is to be transferred to the Maxine Elliott theater on May 3. "The Bachelor" will play a week at the West End theater, after which Charles Cherry, who plays the bachelor, will sail for England. The place of "The Blue Mouse" at the Lyric will be taken by "The Great John Ganton," in which George Fawcett is said to have created an interesting character out in Chicago.

I told you about the highly favorable impression created by the little play of Edward Locke, "The Climax," which was put on at Weber's theater for a series of afternoon performances. My own opinion has been confirmed so far that the piece is to be regularly presented for a season of night performances. "The Newlyweds and Their Baby" came to the end of its engagement on Saturday night, and on Monday "The Climax" took its place at the Majestic theater. This is not the most desirable playhouse for a little play like Locke's; it is a good way out of the current of theatrical traffic, and the house, though beautiful, is rather large. "The Climax," it may be recalled, has a personnel of only four people, and is apt to sacrifice some of its charm if it is not presented in a place where the actors and the audience can get on intimate terms. "Beverly of Graustark" was announced to come to this theater on Monday, but later the present arrangement was effected.

William Morris, the independent vaudeville manager, and Charles E. Blaney, the lessee of the Lincoln Square theater, who have been working in harness together all season, suddenly parted company last week, and before anything of the rupture became known the energetic Morris announced that he had secured a lease of the new German theater at Fifty-ninth street and Madison avenue, and would transfer his entire list of attractions from the Lincoln Square to the Plaza Music hall. True to his word, the Lincoln Square was dark, and the Plaza burst forth in a blaze of glory at the appointed hour. The Shuberts tried to get the house and announced their tenancy, but at the last moment Herr Blitz, the manager, was unable to deliver it, and the Shuberts gave it up. It took Morris just a few hours to close a deal by which he comes into possession of one of the prettiest and one of the best located theaters in town.

In the meantime, prominent Germans, full of sorrow over the failure of the new German theater, are making strenuous efforts to save the Irving Place theater, the original home of German drama, downtown. They are negotiating with Emanuel Reicher, the great German Ibsen actor, whose two children, Hedwig and Frank, have made their home in this country, to come over next season and take over the management of the Irving Place. He is now getting $10,000 a year salary, but is said to be willing to come over on a fair assurance that the salary of his company will be guaranteed. Germans are now at work raising a guarantee fund of $25,000, and Luechow, the restaurateur, has offered to donate the Irving Place theater free of charge. Last year he gave $42,000 cash for the support of the playhouse.

The Shuberts announced last week that Harrison Grey Fiske had withdrawn from the management of Bertha Kalich and that they would have the management of the actress next season. They will present her in an emotional play, the name of which is not yet announced. She is to appear at the Maxine Elliott theater along with Marietta Olly and Nazimova, making three noted foreign stars which the Shuberts will control. Bertha Kalich was playing in Yiddish on the East side when Mrs. Fiske saw her and induced her husband to present her in an English play and make a star of her. Of late it has been impossible to obtain a suitable play for her.

Lew Fields has been announced as the new manager of the Broadway theater which passes out of the hands of Litt & Dingwall into that of Felix Isman, the Philadelphia real estate speculator and multi-millionaire. The opening attraction under the new regime will be William Faversham in "The World and His Wife," which he played earlier in the season at Daly's. Thereby hangs a tale. Isman has been Faversham's financial backer, but when he tried to book a route, Erlanger happened to remember that Isman had opposed him and his associates in enforcing certain syndicate interests, and as a result there were no bookings to be had for Faversham. The Shuberts came to his rescue and he has been playing through the Eastern states and parts of Canada. Isman was said to have withdrawn from all connection with the actor, but Faversham's selection to open the Broadway under the Isman regime raises some questions as to the accuracy of the report.

A mild sensation was created here the past week by the announcement that the Western Managers' association had sent representatives to New York to publish the fact to the world that all houses under its control had broken away from the syndicate and would adopt the open door and book any attraction of merit that desired time. The impression created by the announcement would have been far more effective but for the conservative feeling that has stolen over the minds of most observers that the trust has been so often assailed and then has laughed at its assailants, that until something important develops the news will be received with some grain of suspicion. And yet it seems to be straight enough, as Charles T. Kindt, of Davenport, Iowa, president of the association, represents. President Kindt said: "We desire the best plays when available. By 'available' we mean that when the play is ready for the public we don't intend to be compelled to wait until it has been worn to a frazzle in Eastern and other circuits. All productions of a good quality will be used, whether from the trust or other sources.

The association extends to Denver and Salt Lake City from the Middle West, and the theaters pledged to the open door number four in Arkansas, nine in Indiana, twenty-three in Missouri, twenty in Iowa, thirty-six in Illinois, nine in Minnesota, five in Oklahoma, twenty-four in Kansas, six in Nebraska, three in Utah, one in Wyoming and eleven in Colorado.

The New theater is to have opposition in a theater now building within half a block of it, and which will follow a similar policy as that governing the larger temple of art. It will be devoted to stock productions of plays by American authors presented by a first-class company which is headed by Mary Shaw. Miss Shaw acknowledges that she has been engaged, and is enthusiastic over the project, which is entirely of a private nature. The playhouse is building and is already fairly advanced and is expected to be ready for the first performance early in the autumn. The projector is Butler Davenport, a prominent real estate broker, who is said to have plenty of money to back his unique undertaking.

The playhouse is not designed to antagonize the promoters of the New theater, which, as you know, is an endowed institution intended to uplift the American stage by good examples of art whether they are box office successes or not, but rather to supplement its policy and co-operate with it. The purpose is to limit the capacity to 800 seats and to present a regular change of bill; but the plays to be offered will be new plays and preferably by native playwrights. No play will be allowed to run until it has exhausted its popularity, but after one or two weeks a money-maker will be taken off and another play substituted. All of which sounds good, and those weary of the present policy of attractions solely calculated for the delectation of the pleasure-seekers, the joy-riders of a large city, will welcome every attempt to lend a little consistency to the theatrical policy of the day. The fact of the matter, however, is that the traffic in plays and productions, as well as actors, is today on a more elaborate scale of commercialism than ever, and the producing managers are offering plays with no more attempt to exercise judgment than a drover would display in buying a herd of cattle. It has become an axiom that one out of a certain number of plays is a hit, and this proportion is produced with on expectation that more than the one money-making play will come out of this happy-go-lucky way of dealing in dramatic literature. One long run will pay for a dozen failures. But to put this into practice you have to have a good deal of money to pay scene painters. The poor author and the actor who rehearses three weeks for nothing and gets two weeks salary are hardly considered in the expense account.

Frank Keenan, who has been appearing under the Belasco banner for some seasons and who was to have been starred under their direction next season, has left the fold. The end came rather suddenly and unexpectedly, though the severance of their relationship was said to have been mutual and very amicable. One of the chief reasons assigned was that it did not permit him to assume any outside engagements when not acting in one of the Belasco companies.

"Peter Pan," J. M. Barrie's delightful fantasy, is to find its way into the stock houses, and is to be given its first production under these auspices at Milwaukee next month. Ever since Mr. Frohman has signified his willingness to part with the rights the stock managers have been anxious to secure the play. But the royalty for a single week is almost prohibitive, and the scenic production and light effects also unusually expensive. The newly formed stock managers' association, it is reported, will secure the Frohman setting, and then send it around the various companies within its fold. In this way the expense of the production could be prorated and the outlay considerably reduced.

After the immense success achieved during the past two seasons by "Paid In Full," that play is to be given a brief rest. It not only made Eugene Walter, the author, famous, but it also established some interesting records. Five companies have been playing it, a couple of them for two years and the other three since last summer. Seventy-eight consecutive weeks is the record of the original New York company. Sixty-one weeks have gone to the credit of the company which started in Chicago, and the three other organizations have played over forty weeks apiece. Including holidays, the total number of performances is 2,122, and, at a modest estimate, 2,500,000 people have seen the play. In New York and Chicago it enjoys the distinction of having been played longer than any drama in the whole history of the American stage. Beginning early in July, the five "Paid In Full" companies will start out again and cover the country from coast to coast and from Canada to the Gulf.

Grace Van Studdiford has met with such marked success in "The Golden Butterfly," the operetta she has been giving this season, that she will continue in it until June 15, and will also use it next season.

Upon ending her short tour of four weeks inaugurated in Philadelphia Monday night, Blanche Bates forsook her "Fighting Hope" company and will seek a much needed rest of two months in Europe. David Belasco will present Miss Bates in "The Fighting Hope" again next season, beginning her tour early in August.

When Hattie Williams makes her debut next season as a comedienne without music, she will have the assistance of such elegant players as Frederick Perry, W. J. The Shuberts announce that one of their final spring dramatic productions will be "The Revellers," a new comedy of modern city life, by Charles Richman. The piece will open out of town, and will then go to New York for a metropolitan engagement.

Charles Frohman, now in Paris, has informed his New York offices that he has followed up his hold upon the American rights of Henry Bataille's new play, "Le Scandale"—greeted enthusiastically by Parisian critics—by obtaining the English rights as well to the piece. "Le Scandale" is said to be not only the best piece of work that has thus far come from the author of "La Femme Nue," but it is hailed as one of the most interesting plays the French stage has seen in years.

"The Fortune Hunter," in which Thomas W. Ross has been starring during the past fortnight, under the direction of Cohan & Harris, is to be put aside for the time being. The reason ascribed is that it is too good and promising a play to try out very extensively at the end of the season. It is therefore to be preserved until the opening of the new season—or later.

Phobe Davis, who is known to almost every theater-goer as the real and only Anna Moore in "Way Down East," has been ill for the past fortnight. She is improving steadily, but the illness probably put a permanent end to her appearance in that role, which she has been playing for so many years. She is to be starred next season in a play by William J. Hurlbut.

From time to time comes word as to the progress of the new Puccini grand opera based on David Belasco's great dramatic triumph, "The Girl of the Golden West," in which Blanche Bates appeared for three consecutive seasons. The latest reports say that the second act of the opera is nearly finished and that only the third remains to be written in full. In the last act, to fittingly express the vastness of our Western land so convincingly indicated by Belasco's final picture in "The Girl of the Golden West," Puccini will demand corresponding scenic effects. The composer says that he must have a chorus of at least 100 persons. They are to be cowboys, miners and other citizens of the Western country.

Accused by his followers of lack of effort since "Madame Butterfly," (an opera based on Belasco's great play of that title), the Italian composer said:

"The fault lies simply in the lack of appropriate texts. Not one of the works that I have received from librettists in Italy, in all the other countries of Europe or even from the United States possessed the story of burning passion that I need for my musical inspiration. The text of 'The Girl of the Golden West' won my affection, however, at the first sight of the play. So fascinated have I been with the work that I shall never know any peace until I have written 'Finis' at the end of the score. When that will be I can not exactly tell. I can only write when my imagination is excited when the melodies come streaming to me, and not when I am compelled to go seeking for them."

Cleveland Moffett's "The Battle," with Wilton Lackaye as star, an attraction that has contributed more than its share to the theatrical history of the season, ended an eventful and prosperous run at the Savoy theater, New York, on the night of April 24. It will be a long time before New York theater-goers will forget the onslaught on this play by the Socialists and their rout at a grand mass meeting, where no two of them could come to an agreement on a solitary point. The play, too, has added to the fame of John D. Rockefeller, who is responsible for some of its lines. All next season it will be seen in the principal cities of the road, and its New York success should insure its welcome wherever it appears.

Actors, as is well known, are the most superstitious class of persons in the world, with the exception of baseball players, bankers and brokers, sailors and soldiers, doctors, lawyers, merchants and policemen—and of all the actors now appearing in New York, the members of "The Battle" company at the Savoy theater, supporting Wilton Lackaye, are easily the most superstitious.

For example, Mr. Lackaye himself considers it bad luck to be caught in a topless motor car in the middle of a rain storm.

Nothing can shake Henry B. Warner's belief that if the horse he has put $100 on comes in last, it is an ill omen.

If a stage hand at rehearsal drops a heavy scene on Gerald Griffin's foot, Mr. Griffin is convinced he is going to suffer an unpleasant half hour. This goes for the stage hand, too.

Charles Abbe believes that if he holds a king-full against a set of fours, it is a sign of something calamitous.

E. M. Holland thinks it bad luck to be knocked down by a red automobile—and cherishes the same odd superstition concerning a taxicab.

Henry B. Warner, the young English actor, who is appearing in "The Battle" at the Savoy theater, recently arranged with the proprietor of one of New York's best-known hostelries for the most unusual supper party which has yet been given at a house famous for unusual things. And back of it is an interesting story.

Several weeks ago, at the time when Miss Ada Dwyer was holding a reception to commemorate her tenth year of association with the theatrical firm of Liebler & Co., Mr. Warner happened to speak of his plans for the summer, and remarked rather joyously that it would not be long before he was again in the land of his fathers. Miss Eleanor Robson congratulated her former leading man on the prospect, and said rather longingly that she envied him his approaching return to the country of their birth. The little star of "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" remarked, among other things, that she had a rather material yearning for a real old-fashioned English dinner, but that this desire was not to be gratified because of the extended run of her play at the Lyceum, which will give her only a few weeks' holiday—not long enough to permit her to cross and return to America with any degree of comfort.

"Indeed I should," said Miss Robson, and then promptly forgot the conversation.

But not so with Mr. Warner. He sent a mysterious message to London, and the answer came in on the New York from Southampton.

It was in the shape of a consignment of foodstuffs of the sort seldom enjoyed by American diners, generous quantities of Southdown mutton in storage, real old English beef, which has never seen Kansas City; mock turtle soup in "tins," if you please, instead of "cans;" fresh watercress, pork pies, finnan haddie, Yarmouth bloaters, vegetable marrow, Yorkshire puddings, plum puddings, English walnuts and all the rest of the "trimmings" that go to make a distinctive English menu, including the brandy and soda and the arf and arf.

On news of the arrival, Mr. Warner wrote Miss Robson a little note inviting her to sit down to the sort of meal she has not enjoyed since she was last in London. Nothing that does not come from England was allowed on the table.

Miss Robson gave an enthusiastic acceptance, and Mr. Warner proceeded with arrangements to give the supper after the performance on the night of May 1.

Among Mr. Warner's guests will be, besides Miss Robson, Fuller Mellish, Aubrey Boucicault, Arthur Barry, Claude Brooke, Miss Carrie Merrilees, Alan Pollock and Henry Stanford, of "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" company; Henry Jewett, Echlin P. Gayer and Hassard Short, from "The Man From Home" company at the Astor; Miss Blanche Chapman, of "Mrs. Wiggs," Maggie Holloway Fisher, of "The Head of the House" company, and others who boast allegiance to the crown. Covers will be laid for forty.

"Owing to the extraordinary nature of this play, it would be unfair to all concerned to risk its failure by neglecting to secure a sufficiently able interpretive cast. For this reason, the author takes this opportunity to warn the prospective manager that he will not permit "The Over Soul" to be produced excepting with the following cast, or its equivalent: Mary, Eleanor Robson; Harold, James K. Hackett; Borinski, Wilton Lackaye (provided he can still do the stunts he used to do as Svengali), and Hiram, William T. Hodge. The other parts may be played by lesser people if it is so desired."

Imagine the sundry emotional spasms flitting through a manager's being, as he turns from the title page of "The Over Soul," a "drama for the pure in mind and heart," to the second page, whereupon he finds the paragraph excited above. Not only that, but at intervals throughout the text such paragraphs as this:

"At the commencement of this scene it is imperative that silence reign through the audience. Such gentlemen who have chosen the intermission as a fitting time in which to go out and have failed to return in proper time, must be refused admission to the theater. The ushers must be instructed to suppress all disturbances, for the slightest interruption would wreck the poetic structure of this scene."

Among the lines that go to make up said poetic structure, are the following old friends:

"That name ne'er did sound half so sweet.

Till I heard it from thy lips."

"Three words are all I wish to hear."

"Till doomsday, darling, I'll be true

Which all illustrates the quality of the verse in which about one-third of "The Over Soul" is written.

"The Over Soul" was submitted to George C. Tyler, of Liebler & Co., a day or so before he sailed for Europe. The author was a young man of great persuasive power and had quite convinced Mr. Tyler that he would be committing a frightful blunder by not reading his play. Mr. Tyler was unfortunately unable to inform the young author to what extent he had enjoyed the play, which he read from cover to cover, for fear of missing a laugh, but his thanks are to be extended by proxy, when the young man calls for his manuscript.

Wallace Eddinger, who plays Howard Jeffries in "The Third Degree," Charles Klein's latest play, at the Hudson theater, was invited to a poker party at a friend's home the other evening. The first hand that was dealt revealed to Mr. Eddinger that he was holding four kings. Throwing the cards on the table, he asked that he be excused from playing any further, as it was a cardinal principle with him to never let any one be more generous than he; and, as he felt sure it was not in his power to return the favor, he desired to be permitted to withdraw. The incident disclosed that a professional card shark was in the game, and the next time a poker party is made up a close scrutiny will be made of those invited.

Unquestionably occupying first place in the season's dramatic offerings stand Frances Starr and "The Easiest Way," Belasco star and Walter play now on view at the superb Belasco Stuyvesant theater. No artist on the New York stage has, within recent years, achieved an individual success to parallel that of Frances Starr's unqualified triumph in her present role, and no play has, this season, scored so tremendously in public approval as has "The Easiest Way." More than 100 performances have already been played, yet every seat in the theater continues to be filled at every performance and hundreds of patrons are daily turned away from the Stuyvesant box office.

Klaw & Erlinger's revival of "The Mascot" at the New Amsterdam theater in New York is a big success, both artistically and financially. No doubt other managers will follow in the wake of the firm and make other revivals. "The Mascot," however, is the best of the old operas. Only one other, "The Little Duke," would attract as much attention, but it is almost impossible to get a competent singer and actress for the leading role.

"The Mascot" was written by Edmond Audran. It was first produced at the Paris Bouffes, Dec. 29, 1880. Eben Jordan, of the firm of Jordan & Marsh, the builder of the Boston opera house, was in Paris at the time and acquired the rights for the American production. He returned to Boston in the spring and submitted the book and score to Helen Grayson, of the Grayson-Horcross Opera company, then playing Audran's "Olivette" at the Gaiety theater, Boston. Mr. Jordan played the music in his rooms. The opera was accepted at once for production. A translation of the book and an adaptation of the score were made by L. W. Norcross. An orchestration was made by John E. Brahm. The original music director was John Snyder.

The opera was first produced by the Boston company in April, 1881. The claim has been made frequently that the first English production was in London. That city, however, did not hear the music till Oct. 15, at the Comedy theater, after the opera had been sung at Brighton on Sept. 19.

Abraham Lincoln Erlanger, of the firm of Klaw & Erlanger, is back at his desk after a month's tour of Europe. While abroad he visited about twenty theaters. He observed that without a single exception every popular song in the plays he saw was written by an American. The plays themselves were taken without credit, financial or otherwise, from American authors. The performances Mr. Erlanger witnessed proved profitable in showing him what to avoid when he begins to rehearse the productions for next season. The only features of the foreign stage which excel those of America is the painting of scenery, which is magnificent, and the superiority of the European orchestras. The arrangements for the production of "Little Nemo" in London were left in the hands of his partner, Charles Frohman. His visit, he announces, gave him the ambition to present in London, Berlin, Paris and Vienna a company of ladies and gentlemen in a real American production. In order that the venture may have the advantage of reputation and not be a setback instead of an advance, the attraction that he has in mind for this purpose (which in Europe they call an American invasion) is Mlle. Genee in her new play by Harry B. Smith, with an American company, costumes, scenery and music.

Eugene Presbrey has completed the new play which Klaw & Erlanger have obtained for Maclyn Arbuckle for next season, entitled "The Circus Man." Mr. Presbrey read the play to Mr. Arbuckle last week and he is delighted with it. Meantime, while he is playing the fat sheriff in "The Round Up," he is looking for an elephant, not for a pet, but to use as a "prop" in "The Circus Man." There are thirty-five speaking parts in the play, which will be on the same big order as Klaw & Erlanger's "The Round Up" and "Ben Hur."

Fannie Ward has closed her American tour in "The New Lady Bantock." She will sail at once for London to begin rehearsals of "The Higher Law," by Lee Arthur and Forrest Halsey, in which she will appear in her London season. For curtain raisers, this accomplished player has Channing Pollock's one-act playlet, "With Her Back to the Wall," and Eugene Walter's "The Flag Station." Miss Ward's American tour has been a successful one.

• • •

Klaw & Erlanger have acquired for production early next season a play entitled "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," by Kate Douglas Wiggin and Charlotte Thompson. The play is founded upon two books, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" and "The Chronicles of Rebecca," written by Miss Wiggin. A clever young actress will be engaged for the title role. The character appeals through its quaintness, and the story is one of healthy simplicity.

Lillian Russell's receipts for Holy week, the dullest of the year in theatricals, in Los Angeles, was $14,000. Her success on the Pacific coast has been remarkable. When her season closes in June Miss Russell will make a short visit abroad, returning in August to begin her rehearsals of her new play, "The Widow's Might," by Edmund Day.

• • •

"The Right of Way" has had a good season on the Pacific coast. Guy Standing and Theodore Roberts, the co-stars of the attraction, will appear together next season in a play which Klaw & Erlanger will have ready for them before the summer rehearsal time begins.

• • •

"Little Nemo," Klaw & Erlanger's big musical comedy, will go to London next year if a theater can be obtained. Meantime, it is making a prosperous stay in Chicago. Joe Cawthorn, Billy Van and Harry Kelly remain with Klaw & Erlanger for another season.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.

Default has been made in the payment of the sum of Seven Hundred Forty-four and 71-100 Dollars ($744.71), and claimed to be due at the date of this notice for principal and interest upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Minie Foucault, a widow, mortgagor, to Margaret D. Edwards, mortgagee, and bearing date the 9th day of September, 1907, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 10th day of September, 1907, at 4:45 o'clock P. M. of said day in book 106 of Mortgages at page 148. Mortgagor has also made default in the payment of Seventeen and 51-100 Dollars ($17.51) for insurance premium to insure the buildings upon the mortgaged premises, which sum was paid by the mortgagee on January 3rd, 1908, and September 9th, 1908, and for which mortgagee claims a lien upon the mortgaged premises. It added to the principal and interest makes, as full amount due at the date of this notice, a total of Seven Hundred Sixty-two and 22-100 Dollars ($762.22).

No proceeding has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN: That said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, which are situated in St. Louis County, Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit: Lot Number Four (4), Block Number Seventy-one (71), West Duluth, Sixth Division, according to the recorded plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said County at the front door of the County Court House in the City of Duluth, in said County and State, on the 17th day of May, 1909, at 10 o'clock A. M. at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Seven Hundred Sixty-two and 22-100 Dollars ($762.22), and Fifty Dollars ($50) attorney's fees stipulated in said mortgage and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale.

AT WARREN DISTRICT MINES

Bisbee, Ariz., May 1.—Worthy of mention this week in connection with the Calumet & Arizona and Superior & Pittsburg holdings in this district is the continuation of the ore cut in the east drift on the 1,200-foot level of the Junction. The drift has been in this ore now for forty feet. This is oxide ore, the values being in the form of native copper. Assays show values of 4 to 5 per cent. Also west of the Junction shaft in the 1,100-foot level good ore of the same character. On the Gibraltar claim of the Calumet & Arizona at the 1,500-foot level considerable oxide ore is being encountered.

The ore output of the Calumet & Arizona and Superior & Pittsburg continues about the same that it has been since the first of the year and the April production of copper by these companies will not vary much from that of March, when it was 4,500,000 pounds.

Nothing definite has been given out as to the plans of the Calumet & Arizona for acquiring further depth, but it is understood that if sinking is decided upon in the near future it will be done at the Oliver rather than at the Irish Mag shaft. At the latter a winze is being sunk from the 1,200-foot level.

About 100 tons of rich carbonates have been taken out of raise No. 23 at the Shattuck, where the sensational strike was made recently, and work on the raise has been delayed while the ore is being removed. The ore apparently keeps up in grade, according to recent assays, all of which are around the forty mark. Practically all workings of the Shattuck are in ore. In crosscut No. 13 ore of low grade was encountered but it is not believed that the real ore body will be met until about thirty or fifty feet more work is done. In the intermediate drift between the fifth and sixth levels, which was started from raise No. 21, very rich ore is being penetrated. This body, as determined by the raise, is sixty feet thick, and as far as explored it will average between 15 and 20 per cent, although whole faces have been found to yield as high as 40 per cent copper.

The Denn-Arizona shaft is now bottomed at 1,250 feet in lime. Some manganese has been encountered, and there are other indications of the proximity of ore. More water has been encountered, the flow in the shaft having increased 300 gallons per minute, but it is not enough to cause any delay in the work. The Denn is preparing to burn oil in two boilers. If water does not interfere with sinking until the 1,300 level is reached, lateral work will be started on that level, and there is every promise that ore will be encountered at that depth in time.

The Wolverine & Arizona company has started shipping ore to the Copper Queen smelter at Douglas. There are about 500 tons of good ore on the dump, taken out in the course of development, and this is being freighted down from the mine to the Southwestern.

Globe, Ariz., May 1.—Nineteen per cent copper is an assay return from a sample of ore taken recently from the Black Hawk winze of the Arizona Commercial Copper company, at a depth of 130 feet below the 450-foot level. The ore was not assayed for silver, but probably runs ten or twelve ounces in the white metal as does the ore in the adjoining Great Eastern mine at the same depth. The Black Hawk winze has only about twenty feet to go to reach the 600-foot level, at which depth a drift will be run 300 feet east to the Great Eastern line and also west to connect with the drift from the Eureka shaft, the winze and shaft being about 600 feet apart. The Black Hawk vein on the intermediate level at the winze is forty-five feet wide, and at the Eureka shaft is believed to be sixty or seventy feet wide, judging from the fact that the Eureka shaft was in the vein for a length of ninety-five feet below the 600-foot level. All the structural steel and the machinery for the 400-ton smelting plant was ordered some time ago, and the contract calls for delivery June 1. It is expected that Aug 15 will see the smelter completed and ready to blow in.

In the tunnel being driven by the Live Oak Development company good concentrating ore has been opened up for a distance of over 100 feet, which will average slightly over 2 per cent copper, being of a similar grade to that of the Miami.

Very rich ore has been encountered in the winze sunk from the 450-foot level of the Great Eastern mine of the Superior & Boston company. A depth of 120 feet has been attained in the winze and assays from this level held as high as 18 per cent copper and fifteen ounces silver. The McGraw shaft of this company has reached a depth of 200 feet.

IN OPHIR MINING DISTRICT

Several Companies Still Prospecting for Ore While Others Are Working in It---Cliff Company Has Good Ore Showing.

Salt Lake, Utah, May 1.—There are many quietly conducted investigations being made by the agents of capital into the records of some of the noted old ore producers of Ophir mining district, stimulated, no doubt, by the proved value and steady output of the great Ophir Hill property, owned by Senator W. A. Clark of Montana, and which is keeping up its record of production. The Cliff Mining company, the Lion Hill Consolidated and several others are coming to the front with the old-time ore showings. The showing has caused the operators to wonder why such mines as the Monoquery of the Hills, Hidden Treasure, Brooklyn, Deseret, Utah Queen, Kearsarge and other record producers of high-grade silver and lead ore are now lying idle.

There is no reason, other than the lack of enterprising capital to take hold and sink vertical shafts from the surface to the faces of the old workings, which are now lost in the intricate maze of crooks, turns and windings of the early day system of mining, without leaving a well established working base. When the old ore veins are again picked up they will be found to extend to an indefinite depth and more profitable to work than ever before.

Ophir was born with a horn silver spoon in its mouth, says the Salt Lake Herald, and in the early '70s was known as a "poor man's camp," because of the close to surface showings of horn silver, thin leaves of which were frequently found plastered on the top of an outcropping lime roof. It was those occurreaces that gave many of the original locators their chance to make a big stake.

While silver, lead and copper predominated in the district, there are also fair gold values, associated with tellurium, found in several of the Dry Canyon mines. The old Mono mine produced ore that assayed up to $800 per ton in gold, and the Kearsarge shipped some ore that went above $1,600 in gold, and to those gold values were added several thousand ounces of silver per ton.

There were tons of such ore shipped from the mines of Ophir, particularly from the Dry Canyon side, and when modern, up-to-date methods are adopted to open up the old mines, so that ore can be taken out rapidly and economically, the hum of steam and electric hoists will be heard in all Dry Canyon and Jacobs City, or Gisborn, as it is now known, will again be the scene of mining and business activity.

TO SHIP FROM LAWSON VEIN

Property Which Has Been in Litigation for Some Time Passes Over to La Rose---Likely to Increase Dividends.

New York, May 1.—The Mining Age says that immediate steps are to be taken to begin shipping ore from the famous Lawson vein of the Lawson property at Cobalt, the control of which passed over to the La Rose Consolidated Mines company during last week. Already miners are on the ground opening up the vein. This vein which has been referred to as one of the show veins of the camp represents one of the richest surface deposits ever uncovered at the camp. It was customary in the early days of Cobalt to bring every visitor to see this vein no matter what business brought him to the silver fields and today at least 60 per cent of the people that have ever been to Cobalt, have had a chance to scrap their shoes over the vein which was exposed on the surface of the ground.

The vein and the property from which it took its name was discovered in 1905 and has since been in a constant source of litigation. The deal closed last week gives the property to the La Rose company.

The vein has been traced for a distance of 400 feet and it varies in width from four to twelve inches. Figured roughly it is estimated that if the ore only goes down six inches, it will yield about $2,000,000 from this one vein alone, as the ore will sample at from 5,000 to 8,000 ounces per ton.

At a special meeting of the directors of La Rose Consolidated Mines company, held in this city last week, the La Rose company took over all the outstanding shares of the Lawson mine, ltd., paying for the same by issue shares of La Rose which have been held unissued for that purpose.

The Lawson mine is probably the most famous in the Cobalt district. The property lies in the heart of the district, adjoining the Kerr Lake and Crown Reserve mines. The Lawson is conceded to be one of the richest pieces of ground in the entire district, having the famous "silver sidewalk," the show silver outcrop of Cobalt. While the surrounding properties have been busy opening up their mines the dissension among the Lawson owners has compelled this property to lie idle; these differences have finally been settled by the La Rose Consolidated acquiring all the interests.

Watson & Watson, who made the report on the properties of the La Rose Consolidated Mines company in June, 1908, and at that time examined the Lawson mine, state in their report that the main vein of the Lawson, "is easily traced 400 feet and probably extends further."

The La Rose company will start immediately to develop the mine and prospect the surface of the Lawson. It is believed when ore shipments commence that the earnings of the La Rose will be largely increased.

NORTH BUTTE IN GOOD SHAPE

Good Ore Being Mined From Lower Levels and Property is Better Than Ever Before in Its History — East Butte's Plans — John D. Ryan is Quite Optimistic.

Butte, Mont., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The recent heavy selling of North Butte desn't seem to have been justified by any change of conditions in the property. Officers of the company insist that the developments on the 2,000 and 2,200 levels are entirely satisfactory. A lot of good ore is being mined from both levels, and while the vein has been found faulted and displaced for a distance of about 150 feet west of the crosscut, the drift on the 2,200 has passed through the fault and is again in the solid amid permanent vein, showing every indication of approach to the ore body from which the rich mining has been done between the 1,600 and 1,800 feet levels. The fault, which has broken the vein badly, threw it twenty-eight or thirty feet to the north on the 2,000 level, and for a distance of 150 feet west of the crosscut this condition prevails. The same condition prevails on the 2,200, but the drifts have been getting into better ore for several weeks. Both drifts have been extended about 500 feet west. The crosscut to the Jessie vein, on the 2,200, has just been started. The North Butte is in several respects a better property now than it was when the stock was selling around $120 per share. Some new claims have been acquired, and the old Speculator vein, south of the shaft on the 2,000 and 2,200, has been opened, disclosing fine ore. This vein has not been mined for some years, and was cut on the new levels in order to make connections with the high ore mine of the Anaconda company. The vein has been found so good that it is being opened by a drift on the 2,200. There is also an immense amount of low grade ore in the upper portions of the Speculator vein, which was mined only for its first-class ore before the North Butte became owner of the property. Thomas F. Cole came to Butte last week to make a personal inspection of the North Butte and satisfy himself as to the truth of the stories that have been circulated. He spent an entire day underground, and then said he found everything "entirely satisfactory." He declined to be interviewed or to go into details, but he intimated that anybody that sold stock on the wild rumors that were out did a very foolish thing. According to the annual report of the company for 1908, received by stockholders during the past week, the company had a surplus of $2,016,486.90 on the first of the present year, and total assets valued at $8,153,577.44.

East Butte.

The announcement of the plans of the directors of the East Butte Copper Mining company to take over control of the Pittsburg & Montana Copper company has been well received in Butte. The proposition will be submitted to the stockholders at a special meeting to be held May 11 at Phoenix. The Pittsburg company has outstanding $2,500,000 in bonds, and the East Butte will take up these bonds and take over 83 per cent of the stock. To do this the East Butte will increase its stock from 300,000 shares of the par value of $10 per share to 600,000 shares of the par value of $10. It will also increase the membership of the board of directors from five to nine. The Pittsburg company has a well-developed property, opened to a depth of 1,500 feet, with two large shafts 1,200 feet deep. It is producing 150 tons of first-class and 200 tons of second-class ore daily. It is able to increase this output 100 per cent any time. Considering the fact that the Pittsburg owns 267 acres of developed mineral ground in the Butte district and more than 1,000 acres of undeveloped ground in other parts of the state, and the East Butte company has more than 100 acres on the side of the big copper hill of Butte, the consolidation will make of the East Butte one of the most important producing companies in the Butte district, with a capitalization that is considered very low when compared with other Butte companies.

Corbin.

The Corbin Copper company has cut the vein in the Dewey tunnel, and drifting is being done on it. The vein is 25 feet wide and assays about 5 per cent copper. The Kathleen tunnel has also cut a nice lead. The Dewey tunnel is in 229 feet and the Kathleen 200 feet. Seven tunnels, or adits, are opening the Corbin Copper ground, four of them being driven for the main lead. The Razolle and Anna tunnels are in more than 500 feet each. Manager Richards says the company could begin regular shipments of ore if it wished to do so.

Ryan Is Optimistic.

John D. Ryan, president of the International Smelting & Refining company and managing director of the Amalgamated Copper company, is in Butte engaged in making a general inspection of the properties of the latter company in Montana. Mr. Ryan says the Amalgamated has no intention to curtail its output. "Our business is better than it has been in many months," said Mr. Ryan. "The price of copper is still low, but the demand is increasing. The production is very large, but the accumulation of the metal is not such as to delay prosperity for the copper industry as soon as the general business of the country improves. I expect that the latter half of this year will show a better price for copper and that we will have no difficulty in selling all that we are

ONTONAGON COUNTY MINES

Houghton, Mich., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The successes attending the exploratory campaigns inaugurated last summer by the several Ontonagon county copper mining companies are attracting no little attention to that end of the Lake Superior district, and the coming summer promises to be one of unusual activity in this long neglected field.

Foremost among the Ontonagon county mines with a future practically assured is the Lake mine opened on the so-called Lake lode which in point of riches exceeds anything yet opened in that district since the early days of the old Minnesota conglomerate mine. Mining operations in the Lake lode began less than eighteen months ago, in which time the company has succeeded in sinking a shaft to a depth of about 500 feet, with lateral openings at three levels aggregating an additional 1,500 feet. All these openings are in copper ground above average grade. The best showing in the mine at the present time is probably that obtaining in the west bed of the Lake formation recently opened by crosscut at the third level. The drift at this point is driving through copper ground of extraordinary mineralization. It has attained a length of forty feet. Developments in the east bed, the original discovery, continue unchanged from the past good showing. This bed has been opened horizontally for a distance of 700 feet on the first level, 625 feet on the second level and about thirty feet on the third level, and reveals few barren spots. In the shaft exceptional values are noted from top to bottom, the mineral being rich in the shape of masses and barrel work showing remarkable continuity. Four machine drills are in service engaged in shaft sinking and drifting. About thirty men are employed.

North Lake.

North Lake has, after considerable difficulties and delay, succeeded in obtaining a core of copper rock from what is probably is the upper or so-called No. 1 Adventure lode. It is not believed that this lode is identical with the so-called Lake lode. The core was taken from the diamond drill hole designated as No. 3 hole, which is sinking at right angles to the dip of the formation. The lode where intersected shows a width of thirty feet, of which fifteen feet is said to show a very fair degree of mineralization. The drill outfit has the capacity for reaching to considerably greater depth and will continue in operation at this point in the hope of intersecting all of the three so-called Adventure lodes, one of which may prove to be identical with the lode opened in the Lake mine less than 6,000 feet to the southward. A second diamond drill outfit engaged in sinking a vertical hole in the same general horizon has fairly started drilling in rock and is expected to reach the first of the known copper-bearing lodes at comparatively shallow depth.

Michigan Mine.

Exploratory operations in the old Bee workings of the Michigan mine continue highly satisfactory, and reveal a degree of mineralization in the recently reopened lode, which if persistent to any great depth will put the Michigan well up among the high grade producers of this district. The new lode in which this really remarkable showing is being made is tapped by an adit opening into the bluffs to the east of the Michigan mine proper and is so situated that a considerable portion of it can be mined through the older workings of the Calico and Branch vein of that mine by short crosscuts, thus obviating the necessity of new shafts. The lode is twelve feet wide and where opened by the adit carries exceptional quantities of shot copper from foot to hanging wall. It has been opened horizontally for a distance of approximately 180 feet at the adit level, and will be tapped at greater depth by a crosscut from the lower workings of the old Rockland mine recently unwatered for that purpose. The newer openings in the Calico and Branch veins show slight changes from the past general average of the mine. The company is mining around 800 tons of rock daily and making a discard of quite 20 per cent before shipment to the stamp mill.

Victoria.

The situaton at the Victoria mine remains unchanged from the past indifferent showing obtained in the bottom of the mine, the lower levels generally showing much leaner rock than was had in the upper levels. The company is actively engaged in exploratory work and has succeeded in developing good copper measures on the fifteenth and twenty-second levels though of limited extent. Conditions on the whole are not encouraging and the necessity of locating and developing an entirely new mine is becoming more apparent as time passes. The property is being intelligently prospected for possible new copper bearing lodes.

Mass.

At the Mass mine, operations in the newly discovered lode continue to disclose exceptional mineralization without any apparent diminution in values as the drifts reach out. The outcrop of this lode was recently discovered about 100 feet south of the "A" shaft, where surface trenching discloses the same epidotic character of the lode noted at the seventeenth level with evidences of considerable leaching having taken place. Surface trenching will determine the stike of the lode through the company's property and in a large

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Ore Going Forward From all Five Ranges—Season Starting More Favorably Than Last Year—Fleet Already in Commission Ample for All Requirements for Several Weeks.

While because of the ice blockade at the Western entrance to the St. Mary's river, few cargoes have yet been loaded at ports on Lake Superior, a fleet of more than 100 upbound boats having been tied up at the Sault, ore is going forward from all five of the producing ranges of the iron region. The first cargo shipped was taken from Escanaba, Lake Michigan, by the steamer Martin Mullen. The season is starting more favorably than was the case last year, when for the first few months the ore movement was abnormally slow, still with many of the bulk carriers detained at lower lake ports on account of the marine labor troubles resulting from the vessel owners' decision to stand steadfast for the principle of the open shop, the fleet already in commission is ample for all requirements for weeks to come. It is in fact not expected that there will be any exceptional activity at any time this year, for since upwards of 42,000,000 gross tons were shipped two seasons ago and the facilities now are considerably greater and the mines are better developed and greater in number, it will be no trick at all to send out the 30,000,000 tons it is believed will measure the approximate outgo this season.

On the Mesaba range, the village of Sparta is on the move, has been, in fact, for some time past. Such buildings as it is possible to take intact from the site are being transferred bodily to the new location at Gilbert, and it will not be long before the area occupied by the once prosperous town will be cleared and ready to be stripped by the Steel corporation, preparatory to the mining of the ore it has been found underlies the surface. A similar, though smaller transfer, will soon be under way at Pickands, Mather & Co.'s Utica mine, an underground property to the west of Hibbing. The surface rights at the Utica location are a possession of the Mahoning Ore company, and as the tract is needed for use as a dumping ground for the overburden removed from the big Mahoning property, adjoining, the score of buildings occupying the area will be shifted to a nearby site embraced within the Pickands-Mather holdings. Most of the structures to be removed are dwelling houses.

Machinery is being installed at the old Wills mine of the Republic Iron & Steel company at McKinley, and preparations are making for a busy season there. A force of 100 or more men will be taken on as soon as that number can be employed to advantage. The property has been idle for much of the time since ore was found there years ago. Shipments have been made during only two seasons, in fact, and ore only to the amount of 17,000 tons has yet been produced. With the coming of more seasonable weather, stripping operations at the International Harvester company's Hawkins mine at Nashwauk are now in progress both day and night. A start has been made with the steam shovel work at the Jones & Laughlin Steel company's Grant mine at Buhl. It was at this property that the grab and overhead carrier system was tried in an effort to remove the overburden, and with meager success, the experiment being abandoned after a very considerable expenditure of money and the loss of several years' time. Steam shovels are now employed, and the stripping will be rushed, there being some 5,000,000 cubic yards of material to remove.

Ore Under Lake Beds.

No little interest has been aroused in mining circles throughout the Lake Superior region in the action of the Minnesota legislature in enacting a law asserting the right of the state to all minerals contained in the ground underlying lake basins. The legislation overturns an order of things established for many years, and there is no question that the courts will be called upon to determine the legal status of the act. It is the contention of the Minnesota mining interests that the ore contained in a lake bed belongs to the owners of the lands which enclose the body of water. This is the law in Michigan, where the most notable application of the principle was the drainage of Lake Angeline, at Ishpeming, some years ago, and where the huge deposit of ore uncovered was apportioned between the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, Lake Superior Iron company and Pittsburg & Lake Angeline company, all three of which are still conducting mining operations in the former lake basin. It is known that ore underlies a number of lakes on the Mesaba range, among them Longyear lake and Lake Embarrass, and as a result of operations already in progress an early test case is probable. The Euclid Mining company, which is developing a property in the Chisholm district, is draining a portion of Longyear lake, in order to mine a body of ore in the basin, and with the state asserting ownership to mineral of this nature, an interesting and important legal struggle is in prospect. The Longyear lake ore is

PLANS OF CORDOVA COMPANY

Globe, Ariz., May 1.—With the completion of the railroad extension from Globe to the Miami, work upon which is now being rushed, there will be a vast impetus given operations in that vicinity. Two big companies, the Cordova Copper and the Inspiration Copper companies, will start developing their excellent properties, and there is but little doubt of the results. The Inspiration already is a mine, and the Eureka group of the Cordova is practically proven by Miami developments. The Eureka was a mine, so far as profits and surface workings go, long before the Miami was thought of, as siliceous ores that averaged about 9 per cent were shipped for several years to almost all of the Southwestern smelters, where the ore was in great demand because of its desirability for converter lining. It was always believed that sulphides similar to those discovered in the Inspiration under the old management would be found with depth in the Eureka, and this theory was proven when the Miami developed its remarkable body of sulphide ore within a stone's throw from the Eureka workings.

The Cordova company was organized to take over the Eureka group, which consists of 400 acres, the entire surface of which will in the near future be placed on the market as the Cordova townsite by a separate company, and the stock and incidentally the property of the Globe Consolidated company, something like 1,000 acres in the eastern part of the Globe district, which is being developed from two shafts, the Gem and the Globe-Boston.

Upon completion of the Miami railroad a three-compartment shaft will be sunk on the Eureka group to a depth of at least 800 feet, and it is expected to cut Miami ores at a depth of 400 to 500 feet. Grading for the shaft is now in progress. It is also the intention of the Cordova company to sink the Gen shaft (Globe Consolidated) to a depth of 1,600 feet, which will make it the deepest shaft in the Globe district. The Gem shaft is now bottomed at 1,200 feet, on which level much development work has been done. The Future Copper vein has been opened for a distance of 900 feet, and the width of the vein has varied from thirty to forty feet. While some commercial ore has been shipped from this vein, the ore is low grade, running well into iron and sulphur. There is a large area of leached material, and this, with the na-

LAKE SUPERIOR & ARIZONA

Important Strike of Ore Reported by General Superintendent Hoar on 900-Foot Level---Helvetia Property Has a Bright Future.

Bisbee, Ariz., May 1.—General Superintendent F. W. Hoar of the Lake Superior & Arizona Mining company, confirms the report of an important strike of ore in the company's mine. He states that the ore was encountered in a drift on the 900-foot level and had been penetrated about fifteen feet when he left Superior. It is high grade siliceous ore, and assays from two samples taken along the drift, one for a length of four feet and the other for five feet, gave returns of 2 per cent and 18 per cent, respectively.

No crosscutting has been done, but Hoar stated that the whole drift was in ore and he believed that the vein would be found to be quite wide.

The development of the Lake Superior & Arizona mine has been greatly impeded by the heavy flow of water into the shaft, which has entailed a large expense of pumping. The solution of the difficulty Hoar believes has been found.

Much of the water flowing into the mine evidently came from a nearby wash finding its way through the crevices in the rock underneath the channel, a condition somewhat similar to that with which the Old Dominion is contending, and similar means were adopted to overcome it.

A bedrock dam was constructed across the channel and below the dam the bed of the creek was cemented to a point some distance beyond the mine. The experiment was entirely successful, the flow of water into the mine workings below materially lessened.

"The Helvetia properties never looked better than they do at present, and I look forward to a bright future for the Helvetia district, not alone in the properties our company control, but in other properties in the district," remarked C. C. Prindle, president of the Helvetia Copper Mining company, a few days ago.

President Prindle said the company now has 100 men on the pay roll and is shipping 5 per cent ore fifty tons daily to Globe. The haul is made by wagon to Vail, $3 per ton being paid by the mining company for this haul. More teams are needed to transfer the ore to Vail. Mr. Prindle hoped to see a railroad built from Helvetia to Vail, eighteen miles, but at present he is not prepared to dwell upon that question.

Mr. Prindle added that the pumps which were recently installed, have a capacity of 800 gallons a minute but are only lifting 400 gallons, all that is necessary to clear the mines of water at this time.

The Copper World, he said is being opened and 400 feet of tunnel has been run into the Leader mine, from which 6 per cent sulphide ore is being extracted. The company will not install a smelter, being satisfied with returns on ore shipped to Globe.

WET CONCENTRATING PLANT

Butte, Mont., May 1.—The only wet concentrating plant in Montana for the treatment of zinc ores has just been completed at the Butte Reduction works and marks another important addition of that plant, one of the largest and best known in the West. The new zinc plant is complete in every detail, having been constructed with the greatest possible care along the most approved and modern methods. In fact, such care was devoted to its planning that what is believed to be an entirely new system has been evolved and one which it is certain will make the plant of special interest to smelter operators as well as scientists all over the world.

The plant has a capacity of 300 tons daily, its purpose being to concentrate the zinc ores, making them sufficiently rich for shipment to Oklahoma for further treatment.

While designed primarily for the treatment of the ore from the Elm Orlu property, arrangements also have been made for treating the ore from the Butte & Superior property, from forty to fifty tons per day being hoisted there. The Elm Orlu and Butte & Superior properties are adjacent and develop the same vein.

The competion of the zinc plant is of great interest to mining men in Montana, as it marks a memorable forward step in the smelter industry of the state. Plants have been started herctofore in Montana for the purpose of treating zinc ores, but they used a different system, known as the dry method.

The fact of there being little iron in the ores to be treated at the plant makes it possible to produce a high grade concentrate.

Ore bins have been constructed at the Elm Orlu, so that the plant will be ready to take ore from there without delay. The arrangement with the Butte & Superior company means that the ores from the Black Rock and Poser mines will be treated. The zinc plant involved an expenditure of about $40,000. Its erection was begun on the first of the year.

NEW STRIKE AT LAS CHISPAS

Remarkably Rich Ore Encountered in Sonora Mine--- El Tigre Meeting--- Excellent Work at Big Property of Candelaria Company.

Douglas, Ariz., May 1.—Word has reached here from the Las Chispas mine in Sonora that a new strike of remarkably rich ore has been made, though as yet the extent has not been learned. The company is working a force of about 400 men at present.

At the Babicanora mine, which is in the same locality a strike of $50 ore, sixty ounces silver and one ounce gold, was made recently and large tonnage is said to be blocked out.

Friday of last week was the adjourned date for the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Lucky Tiger Combination company at Douglas. W. H. Brophy and other local stockholders were present in Douglas for the meeting, but owing to the non-arrival of the principal stockholders, who reside in Kansas City, the annual meeting was again adjourned until May 7, when it will be held. The El Tigre mine is rated as one of the richest gold properties in the republic of Mexico and for a year there have been frequent rumors of pending negotiations for its purchase. English capitalists had an option on the property for a stated price of $6,500,000 last year, but when the time came for payments they threw up the option. Had the sale been consummated the stockholders would have received about $100 per share for their holdings. Since this option was voided, other rumors have been current of probable sale of the property. The mine has never been worked to anything like the magnitude which its ore bodies would warrant, but it has, however, been continually yielding handsome profits to the owners and at the present time is said to be paying dividends at the rate of $30,000 per month.

The Candelaria Mining company, with vast properties about 150 miles below El Paso, in Chihuahua, has again been placed on a productive basis through the efforts of George A. Laird of the Bisbee engineering firm of Smith & Laird, who took the management of the company last fall. The company owns thousands of acres of mineral ground which has been explored through numerous shafts and tunnels, but the workings were in bad shape when Mr. Laird took charge because of the poor methods of leasers who were working the mines on royalties. Gold, copper, silver and zinc are mined on the property, but none of the latter ore will be shipped until favorable revision of the tariff makes it profitable, if it ever does.

Through the efforts of Mr. Laird, the shafts have been straightened and cleaned out and work is now progressing satisfactorily. Shipments were begun on April 1 and about 100 cars of ore will be the output for the current month, all ore being shipped to the El Paso smelter. Shipments have averaged from $6 to $50 per ton. There are good transportation facilities as the Sierra Madre railroad passes over the property. The company is a close corporation, New York capitalists being the stockholders.

WEST END

METHODISTS WILL MEET

District Conference Will Be Held in Grace Church.

Dr. Clemans Will Call Gathering to Order Monday Evening.

About sixty-five Methodist Episcopal churches in the Duluth district of the Northern Minnesota conference will be represented at the annual district conference to be held at the Grace M. E. church, Twenty-second avenue west an Third street, on May 17 and 18.

The conference will include the Methodist Episcopal churches in Duluth, Carlton, Cloquet, Aitken, and a number of the range towns and will be presided over by Dr. E. C. Clemans, who is the district superintendent of the Duluth district. There are five districts in Northern Minnesota, of which the Duluth district is the largest.

On the evening of May 17, Dr. Clemans will call the convention to order and Mayor R. D. Haven will welcome the visitors to Duluth. From each church, the authorized delegates are the pastor, the Sunday school superintendent and the president of the Epworth league.

CLEARER UNDERSTANDING.

West End Commercial Club Takes Up Matter of Garfield Paving.

A clearer understanding of the Garfield avenue paving proposition was reached last evening at the meeting of the West End Commercial club, in George M. Jensen's office on West First street. There was a fair attendance and more would have come out had the weather been more agreeable.

A mass meeting of property owners on Garfield avenue will be called in the near future and some definite plans made.

A committee, comprising J. Sundeen and Charles Mork, appointed two weeks ago, interviewed a number of Garfield avenue owners on the proposition. The mass meeting, it is hoped, will interest many who now look upon the matter with indifference.

A proposition which is meeting with considerable favor is to let the special bond issue authorized by the legislature some time ago, cover one-half of the expense; to raise 25 per cent by subscriptions among the business interests on the street, and to assess the property owners for the remaining 25 per cent, which will be about $55 per lot.

The club will meet again May 14.

FRANKLIN DEBATERS WIN.

Adams Alumni Team Defeated in Arguments on Jap Issue.

A debating team from the Franklin Alumni association bested three representatives of the Adams "grads" in a debate on the Japanese question last evening. The question was, "Resolved, That congress should pass a law excluding the Japanese from the United States."

The Adams aggregation argued for the affirmative, while the Franklin coterie presented the other side of the case. By a vote of 2 to 1 the judges, consisting of Andrew Nelson, A. D. MacDonald and J. F. Walsh, gave the decision to the Franklins.

The debate was held at the Adams school and there was a fair-sized audience. The debaters were as follows: Franklin—Charles Evans, Ray Phillips and Roy Levinne; Adams—Oscar Helam, Miss Myrtle Cox and Neil Beaton.

Champagne Funeral.

The funeral of Albert Champagne, the West end man who was found dead near Two Harbors Thursday was held this morning at 9 o'clock from the St. Jean Baptiste church, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street. Interment took place at Calvary cemetery.

Raising Money for Boy.

Clyde McLeod aged 15 years, whose eye was injured in an accident during the tonnage tax celebration, is reported as doing well. Some benefit money is being raised for him.

West End Shortrails.

Frank Bender, who has been the guest of his brother Joseph Bender of 1801 West First Street for the past week has gone to Everett, Wash. Mr. Bender lives at Stevens Point, Wis.

H. D. Hiss of Twentieth avenue west and Michigan street, is reported ill at his home.

Victor Fraser has returned to Montana from, after a short stay with West end friends and relatives.

Boyd Vergane expects to leave Monday for Detroit, Mich., where he will make a short visit.

J. A. Anderson, the druggist on Twenty-ninth avenue west, has moved from the U. S. block and will make his home at 2817 West Second street.

Swan Hanson of 1823 West Superior street, returned last evening from La Crosse, where he went to attend the funeral of his mother.

William Gelsch of St. Paul was a West end business caller yesterday.

C. C. Miller of St. Paul is registered at the Esmond.

F. Strasser has returned to Staples, Minn., after a brief business stay at the West end.

Mr and Mrs. Albert Swanson and two children of Thirteenth avenue west and First street, have gone to Seattle to live.

Enger & Olson, furniture dealers at 2010 West Superior street, are moving into the quarters formerly occupied by R. H. Forward & Co., 1828 West Superior street.

The Emerson alumni are planning to meet at the school Tuesday night. The gathering will be for social purposes and the evening will be spent in music. The association will hold a big banquet and dance in May.

The Epworth League of the First Swedish M. E. church will meet Monday evening at the church.

There will be a special meeting this evening of the choir of St Luke's church, at the church. Prof Reyner will be in charge.

Mrs. A. S. Hopkins presented her class of piano pupils last evening in a recital at the Grace M. E. church. In spite of the inclement weather the church was well filled.

SLEIGHS AND SNOW SHOVELS AGAIN CALLED OUT BY FREAK MAY DAY BLIZZARD IN DULUTH. STORM WILL LAST OVER SUNDAY

MAY DAY SCENES IN DULUTH.

Greatest velocity of the wind, 60 miles an hour on Thursday afternoon.
Snow not likely to thaw very much until Sunday night or Monday.

The sleighing is good.

With seven inches of snow on Duluth's streets many citizens got their sleighs out of the places they had them stored for the summer, and the jingle-bells could be heard in all parts of the city today.

Seven inches of snow is the total precipitation of the whiteness during the several days of the storm, as computed by the government weather bureau.

This snowfall, with the severe winds which prevailed during the worst of the storm, made it beyond a shadow of a doubt one of the worst that has ever visited Duluth so late in the season. Snow sometimes falls here in May, but storms of the midwinter severity which characterized this one are rather uncommon during the last days of April or the first days of May. On the 6th of May, 1902, six inches of snow fell in Duluth. This was accounted some storm, but it could not hold a candle to the present one. The May, 1902, snow was not accompanied by such brisk winds, and the snow had all melted by the next day.

Weather Observer Richardson does not think a thaw will begin in earnest here until late tomorrow or Monday. Of course, the snow is melting a little today, but the temperature is not warm enough to cause it to shrink at a very alarming rate. There will be plenty of it left for tomorrow. This morning it was so deep in most streets as to make teaming with wagons difficult, and sleighs the approved method.

Today the storm is centering over Lake Superior, so the end of the cold weather is not yet. Yesterday the storm centered over Lake Michigan, but during the night, says the weather man, it went north and now Lake Superior is in the middle of it.

Storm Signals Out.

The northwest winds are to become brisker this afternoon and tonight. The northwest storm signals are flying. The brisk winds and the cold weather of tonight will probably be accompanied by snow flurries, which may also continue tomorrow.

It has been snowing fitfully all today.

Duluth may shiver and then go out and get wet feet, but this city is no worse off than the rest of the country. Almost every section has been in the grasp of the storm god during the last three days, and really, this city did not get it as hard as some other sections, despite the chill blasts and the deep drifts.

"I would rather have a snow storm than a cyclone," said one cheerful Duluthian, as he scraped off his sidewalk with last year's snow shovel, and the majority of folks agree with him.

Speaking of snow-shoveling, it is doubtful whether any storm all winter made more work than this one. The wind was strong and caused big drifts on the sides of the streets, against terraces and steps, and the dampness of the downfall made it heavy, inclined to pack, and hard to clear away.

People who left the hoe in the garden when they finished plowing the tomato ditch the night before, found it hurled the next day. Spring gardening will have to be postponed until next week.

Freezing temperatures will last until tomorrow anyway. They prevail today as far south as New Mexico. The extreme Northwest, above Montana into Canada, is about the warmest part of the country today; the rest is shivering.

The May Queen.

Did she wake and call you early, call you early Mary dear,
On the morning of the chilliest day of all the wintry year;
Of all the glad New Year, Mary, the wildest woolliest day,
Did she wake and call you early, and are you Queen of the May?

I wouldn't care to see that eye, so black and fierce and wild,
I wouldn't care to cross the track of Mamma's darling child,
As she wades through the drifts on the sidewalk or waits for the car today.
If you're the Queen of the May Mary
If you're the Queen of the May.

Put on a suit of mackinaws and your moose hide moccasins;
Of course you look the part Mary for the show has come to stay,
And you'll surely have to be going some, if you're to be Queen of the May.

—ALFRED LORD T.

Apologies accepted.

AUTO NEWS OF THE WEEK

Business Is Booming in East, Says A. M. Russell.

Duluth Will See an Entirely New Model This Spring.

A. M. Russell, of the Russell Motor company has just returned from a week's visit among the automobile factories of Detroit and Chicago, with the special visits to the big plant of the Buick company at Flint, Mich.

"Things are booming in the East," he said, "and every factory I visited is away behind on orders. The business this season will be unprecedented. The Buick factory is the largest in the world and new buildings, 1,000 feet in length, are being constructed. Enlargement of factory space is the rule everywhere."

The weather of the past week has not had a stimulating effect in the automobile trade. Orders were placed for new machines, but not to the extent of last week or the week previous. One feature that is new to dealers, is the demand from the ranges and especially from those mining men whose business compels them to travel considerably between different properties. The roads in that country are as a rule excellent and the automobile is becoming the favorite means of travel.

• • •

Duluth is to see a new model machine this year. It has been ordered by a resident of East Duluth, who is not particular as to cost. The shape is that of an old English coach, but the points of comfort that it will include were never dreamed of by the traveler in the old country vehicle. It is being built to order, and will be here this summer.

DEFENDANTS GET NEW TRAIL

Cook County Land Case Will Be Tried Over Again.

Judge Dibell this morning granted a new trial to Ida Carlson and Tom Bardon, defendants in the case of Swan Johnson against them, for the title to valuable lands in Cook county.

The case hinges on whether or not Johnson signed a certain deed which gave to Ida Carlson, his daughter, the land. He says that his signature was forged. He won out in the first trial in the face of strong evidence against him.

Other signatures were brought in, which proved to be identical with the one on the deed, and an expert on handwriting testified that he thought the same man wrote each one.

When the jury retired to the jury room they took the handwriting exhibits with them, and decided that they were not the same.

Judge Dibell said that the verdict was entirely against the weight of authority, and that he thought justice demanded that the defendants be granted a new trial.

SAYS MEETING WAS A LEGAL ONE

Secretary De Groat Files His Answer in Telephone Dispute.

In his answer to the petition of the Lake Shore Telephone company, which asked that it be granted a writ of mandamus to compel the Zenith Telephone company to call another meeting of the stockholders for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year, Secretary F. H. De Groat of the Zenith company admits that the meeting was not held at the proper time, but denies that it was illegal.

He says that according to custom since 1905, the company has been in the habit of holding the meeting on the first Monday in February. No reason is given for this, except that it was the custom of the directors to hold it on this date. The meeting should have been held on the first Monday in January.

He declares that the meeting was a legal one and asks that the whole proceedings be dismissed.

FIRST MEETING OF NEW BOARD

Commercial Club Directors Have Important Matters to Consider.

At the first meeting of the new board of directors of the Commercial club, it is expected that W. I. Prince, the recently elected president of the club, will announce the new committees for the ensuing year. The appointments by President Prince will include all of the important committees, the most important of which is the committee upon public affairs.

The meeting of the board of directors is scheduled for the coming week, when it is expected that the new committee appointments will be announced. There are a number of important matters pending. The matter of the St. Louis county exhibit at the state fair will come up before the committee of agriculture. There are also some important matters pending before the committee upon wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing, and the committee upon municipal affairs. One of the important matters that will soon come up for consideration before the latter committee is the municipal commission plan of government for Duluth. This is made possible under the law passed at the last session of the state legislature.

The committee on waterways, harbors and docks will have before it the consideration of the improvement of the Duluth harbor and the dredging of the St. Louis river.

MAY CONCERT POSTPONED!

SVEA GLEE CLUB

Concert that was to be held Sunday at Lincoln Park Roller Rink, has been postponed for one week.

BASEBALL GAME IS POSTPONED

The weather decided.

The Spaldings will not play at Cloquet Sunday.

It seems that the Lumber Town got a small end of the present snow storm and the yard where they play ball is under the weather.

The Cloquet manager showed how game he was, however, for he wired the Spaldings to come right along and they would pull off a ski contest instead. The Spaldings never cared much about ski riding and they turned down the generous offer.

Next Sunday, weather permitting, the team will play at Moose Lake and on May 16 they will endeavor to show the Cloquet fans what they know about the game. On the Sunday following they go back to Iron River for another try at the crack little nine that held them to a 3 to 3 score last Sunday.

JUDGE PROHIBITED FROM CONTINUING ROAD CASES.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 1.—The supreme court of Missouri today issued a restraining order against Judge Williams of the St. Louis circuit court, prohibiting him from proceeding with the railroad rate cases filed in his tribunal by Circuit Attorney Jones of St. Louis.

The writ is made returnable May 15 and was issued at the instance of the Missouri Pacific, Iron Mountain, Missouri, Kansas & Texas and St. Louis & Southwestern railroads.

SUGAR TRUST WILL NOW BE CRIMINALLY PROSECUTED.

New York, May 1.—Criminal prosecutions by the federal government will be begun as a result of the disclosures in the recent suit of the government against the American Sugar Refining company. This announcement was made today by Henry L. Stimson, who is acting as special attorney for the government.

Bad Sleep?

You Are Sick

and need a tonic when you can't sleep. Your nerves are weak. Your system is out of order. There is a cog loose somewhere.

Are you a woman?

Take Cardui, the woman's tonic.

Cardui not only builds up women's flagging nerve forces, but has been found, by thousands who use it, to relieve womanly pains and act as a health restorer to women suffering from women's ills.

You will find its action is building, strengthening, restorative, vitalizing. Cardui makes you feel good and helps you to do your daily work, whatever it may be.

"I never had anything do me as much good as Cardui," writes Mrs. Jennie McCall, of Watauga, Va. "I am still using Cardui and am so much better and improving every day. I had been troubled with female complaints for over (10) years. I could not walk or stand on my feet and was almost confined to the house for a long time.

"Now I can walk anywhere, for Cardui has done me more good than all the doctors. I am thankful that Cardui is in reach of all suffering women, for it is worth its weight in gold."

A VERY PROPER LAW.

Word comes from St. Paul that the railroads propose to fight the Bicknell bill, enacted into law by the legislature at its late session, requiring over-charges in freight rates to be refunded to shippers when disputed rates are decided in the courts.

They would better think it over before taking into the courts a law so reasonable and so just. It is the policy of bitter opposition to all regulation, no matter how wise and beneficient, that has done more than anything else to put the railroads in bad odor with the public in recent years.

Nothing more reasonable than the Bicknell law could be imagined. It provides that where a railroad refuses to put into effect a freight rate established by law or by the order of the railroad and warehouse commission, it shall keep track of receipts under the disputed rate until the courts finally decide it. Then, if the rate established by the state is upheld, the railroad must pay over to the railroad and warehouse commission the difference between the prevailing rates and the established rates on all shipments carried during the contest. Shippers have a year in which to claim their refunds, and then all unclaimed amounts are to go into the general revenue fund.

There is nothing unreasonable or unfair about this. If the state, through its legislature or its railroad and warehouse commission, declares an existing rate to be exorbitant, and fixes a lower rate, the railroad has the right, of course, to take the matter into court for review. If the court holds with the state, and declares the old rate to be unfair and the new rate to be fair, the latter rate goes into effect immediately. But in the meantime, in the light of this decision, shippers have been paying the railroads more than they are entitled to, and it seems clear enough that the shippers should recover the overcharge. They now have a right to go into court and recover it by a lawsuit, but that is seldom done, and never where the overcharge is only a few cents or a few dollars. Under the new law, railroads will be required to refund all overcharges of this character, and if the shippers do not claim them, the state gets the money.

This is not only fair for this state, but it ought to be a law in all states and in the nation. A shipper who has been overcharged, whether it be only a few cents or many dollars, has a right to a refund. The railroad has taken money to which it is not entitled any more than it would have been had it sent out an agent to take it out of the shipper's till. The Bicknell bill is in the interests of fair play, and it is the only piece of important railroad legislation growing out of the recent session of the legislature, which managed to smother all other popular measures, such as the increase of railroad gross earnings taxes and the bill regulating stock and bond issues, and would have smothered this one as well had it not been put through the committees rather unexpectedly to the railroad lobbyists.

MUCKRAKING THE WEATHER BUREAU.

In the current issue of Everybody's Magazine Emerson Hough attacks the government weather bureau in an effort to convince the people that it does not make good, and that the country does not get its money's worth out of it.

A careful analysis of the article makes it quite clear that it proves one thing, and no more: it proves that the weather man makes mistakes sometimes.

Of course we all knew that before. The weather bureau does not claim that weather forecasts are as mathematically correct as a careful addition of two and two which shows that the sum is four. Quite often—though not nearly so often as many imagine—the weather bureau's forecasts turn out to be wrong; but in the great majority of cases they turn out to be nearly enough correct to answer all public purposes.

The basis for the article appears to be that the weather bureau said it was going to be fair in Washington for the presidential inauguration March 4, when as a matter of fact the worst storm in years spoiled the exercises. This was one of the weather bureau's mistakes, and it happened to occur when all eyes were focussed on an important event with which weather conditions had much to do. But it is surely unfair to say that because the Washington forecast for March 4 was wrong the weather bureau is a failure, when a forecast for April 16, for instance, might have gone wrong without comment.

It is popular to make jokes about the weather man, and he serves his people in that respect about as frequently as the much-maligned mother-in-law. But Emerson Hough has taken the joke too seriously. In Duluth, where the weather bureau renders invaluable service, many business interests rely daily upon the weather forecasts, and anybody that does that is in a position to say—and will say it, if asked—that the weather bureau does splendid work.

The weather bureau's misses amount to about two in ten. It is possible to make quite an article out of a description of the 20 per cent of misses, and by saying nothing about the 80 per cent of hits it can be made to look pretty black for the weather bureau. That is what Mr. Hough has done, but it isn't fair pleading.

What would happen to the industries of the country if they were suddenly deprived of that 80 per cent of hits? The railroads, the vesselmen, the commission merchants, the cranberry growers of Wisconsin, the raisin growers of California, the fruit raisers, the florists, the truck gardeners, the up-to-date farmers, the stockmen, those who live near navigable waterways—all these would suffer, and any of them could tell a prettier story than Mr. Hough has told.

If the average business man were correct in 80 per cent of his judgments he would win in 80 per cent of his ventures. How many accomplish so much?

The weather bureau isn't perfect, by a long shot, and its forecasts go wrong often enough; but its batting average is high enough to do the country a lot of good, and it isn't fair to write it up on its misses and to suppress its hits.

BOSSES WANT A FIGHT; WILL GET IT.

The stage is being set in New York state for a very pretty battle. On one side are the party bosses, drawn up in solid phalanx, refusing to treat or to yield an inch; on the other is Governor Hughes, appealing to the people.

The party bosses in the New York state legislature have rejected Governor Hughes' reform plans in toto. His proposal for a primary election bill was decisively rejected, while his plans for the control of telegraph and telephone companies and for a new charter for Greater New York have been effectively put to one side. In order to spike one of the governor's most effective guns, the legislature has created several commissions which will investigate all these subjects and report at the next session. These commissions of investigation, the bosses think, will prevent the governor from calling an extra session.

The battle is already joined. Before the legislature was half way through its program of defeating his plans and tying his hands, Governor Hughes was at the city of Rochester addressing a vast gathering of the people of that city upon the primary election problem. Several other addresses of the same kind had at that time already been planned for. There is every reason to believe that the governor will now devote himself directly to the task of explaining to the people just what was the program of reform which the legislature rejected. If he does that the bosses have need to look well to their arms and their defenses. They have need to strengthen their line of battle at every point. They will find that they have enlisted for a war and not for a single battle; that every success they gain will be at a heavy loss in men, and that victory will rest upon their colors only after the most desperate fighting, if at all.

How Governor Hughes can fight, the West knows. His speeches were the most convincing delivered in the presidential campaign last fall. His addresses were very few in number, but they won votes right and left. The bosses fight on the defensive against an enemy who is thrice armed, for his cause is just.

KILLING THE GOLDEN GOOSE.

A committee from the recent trade conference at Detroit, held to consider improved trade relations with Canada, has reached Washington to present the resolutions adopted at that conference. Those in power in the game of tariff revision have thus far been so impervious to outside suggestions looking to the general good of the nation and its people that a spirit of pessimism about the outcome prevails, yet it is to be hoped that congress will listen to the very reasonable and logical suggestions made by the Detroit conference. These suggestions are contained in the following resolution, which follows a preamble setting forth the need of developing foreign markets for our products and pointing out the fertile field which Canada offers for such enterprise:

> Resolved by this conference of delegates, representatives of manufacturing and commercial organizations and associations in the United States, that we urge and demand that in the enactment of the pending tariff bill there be a maximum and minimum provision, reciprocal in character, with power and discretion vested in the executive to apply the maximum or the minimum or any rate intermediate between these limits in the negotiation of reciprocal trade agreements with Canada and other foreign countries.

The country has yet to hear from Pooh Bah Aldrich on his plan for reciprocity, but if it is in keeping with his plan for tariff revision, there is great need that this proposal from the business men of the country be backed with the strongest possible support from all possible sources. The tariff has been the tool of special privilege too long, and it is time it was made an implement for the benefit of all parts of the nation and of all its people.

In this connection, the example of France should be well considered. That nation has just concluded a commercial convention with Canada, which only awaits the approval of the Canadian parliament to become effective. Some idea of where the adoption of this treaty will leave the United States, as compared with France, may be gained from the fact that the following reductions of duty are made in favor of Canadian products imported into France which are not enjoyed by our imports into that country: Cattle, 33 1-3 per cent; meats, other than canned and pork meats, on which the United States gets the same concession, 30 to 40 per cent; potatoes, 86 2-3 per cent; other vegetables, 20 to 60 per cent; butter, 33 per cent; cheese, 57 to 66 per cent, according to kind; agricultural implements, 40 per cent; sewing machines, 20 to 30 per cent; dynamo electrical machinery, 26 to 56 per cent; tools of all kinds, 14 to 33 per cent; wire nails, 31 to 46 per cent, etc. Canadian exports have that much advantage in French markets over American exports.

On the other hand, Canada gives special reductions of duty to many French manufacturers likely to compete with similar products from this country, some of which are as follows: Canned meats and extracts, 9 per cent; cheese, 7 per cent; canned tomatoes and corn, 16 2-3 per cent; other canned vegetables, 33 1-3 per cent; pickles, sauces and catsups, 7 per cent; dried plums, raisins and currants, 33 1-3 per cent; canned fruits, 11 per cent; canned fish, 11 to 20 per cent; candy, 7 per cent; printing ink, 12½ per cent; writing ink, 10 per cent; window glass, 16 2-3 per cent; manufactures of iron and steel, 8 per cent; locomotives and motor cars for railways and street railways, 14 per cent; manufactures of wood, 10 per cent, etc. French imports have that much advantage over American imports.

Speaking of the effect of this treaty upon the United States, Consul General Mason of Paris says: "The new treaty, unless counterbalanced by future negotiations between the United States and France, will bear especially hard upon the important item of agricultural machinery, hitherto one of the most important classes of American manufactured exports to France. The difference between maximum and minimum French duties on such machinery amounts to $3.86 on a mower, $4.82 on a reaper, $8.20 on a binder, and $1.93 on a horse hayrake. This disparity in duties, added to the high cost of wood, labor, etc., in the United States, will form a serious handicap to American manufactures, and if prolonged will inevitably result in transferring a large part of the American industry of agricultural machinery to Canada or to European countries. Already two such factories are being established, one at Lille, in France, and one in Germany."

By failing to provide a reasonable reciprocity system, this country will jockey itself out of a large share of its present export business, which comes as near killing the goose that lays the golden egg as could be imagined.

MAKING "SPOTLESS TOWNS."

No finer evidence of the recent new birth of public spirit in this country has been furnished than the fever for municipal housecleaning that has possessed a great many communities.

A public-spirited people will not consent to live in foul, unwholesome and insanitary surroundings, and when public spirit in large things casts its reflection upon the smaller things and thus pervades a community throughout, dirty backyards and alleys, unsightly and noisome piles of rubbish and filth, littered pavements, unkempt lawns and other evidences of public shiftlessness have to go.

It is worth noting that in every community to which has come this new ideal of the city beautiful—which means the city healthful—it is the women who have been the leading spirits of the crusade, and in many instances they have done the work alone.

The city of Washington, for instance, in spite of its umbrageous avenues, its sightly parks and its magnificent general plan of adornment, blinked at untidy lawns, weedy vacant lots and unkempt streets until its clubwomen woke up one day and found that there was work at hand to be done. So they set themselves at it, interested other women and the men of the community, and presently there was a mighty uproar of cleaning and beautifying, until today Washington hardly knows itself.

It is the women of Duluth who have led all recent campaigns for a cleaner and more beautiful city. They have made crusades against unsightly signs and posters on scenic rocks, they have fought untidiness not only in the homes but in public places, and they have bestirred the male element in the community, usually too neglectful of such matters, until conditions are vastly improved, though still susceptible to much further improvement.

The aspiration for a clean city has been fostered very largely by the recent public awakening to the close relationship between uncleanliness and disease. If there could be such a thing as a real Spotless town, the vital statistics of that community would be worth studying. Disease germs luxuriate in filth, and die in cleanliness. A Spotless town would be the greatest health resort in the world, for the places that breed disease would be wiped out, and the broom and the rake and the garbage wagon combined would build up an invisible but insurmountable wall against the invasions of disease.

All of which puts one in mind of the fact that the spring cleaning season is at hand in Duluth, and that presently Mayor Haven is going to fix upon a time when everybody will be supposed to become busy cleaning up.

This year's clean-up should be the most thorough Duluth ever had. When the house is cleaned from cellar to garret the work is but half done. The yard and the street and the alley should be tidied up as rigorously as the home. If you take care of your place, your example will compel your neighbors to do the same, and if they don't there are ways of making them do it.

Energetic work, with the public authorities combining with public spirited citizens, can bring Duluth into the glad summer time cleaner and handsomer and sweeter—and therefore healthier and better to live in and be happy in—than it ever was before.

FATAL LONELINESS.

One more unfortunate
Weary of breath,
Rashly importunate,
Gone to her death.
—THOMAS HOOD.

The news columns of The Herald last night told a story crowded with pathos and tragedy. A young woman, almost friendless and quite alone, gave up the struggle against poverty and loneliness and committed suicide, cutting the Gordian knot of life's stern problem with the sword of self-destruction.

People rarely get so desperately lonesome as to commit suicide anywhere except in a crowded city. The loneliness of the deserted plain, the many-tongued forest, or the limitless ocean wastes is cheerful beside the loneliness of a friendless person in a large city. This unfortunate young woman had experienced this dreadful thing of being lonely in a crowd, had fought a losing fight against poverty, and in the midst of a population thousands of whom would have been glad to come to her aid had they but known, took the last desperate remedy. It is pitiful, indeed, and the heartbeats of sympathy that will go out to her now that she has gone beyond human help, but that were denied her while she lived, add a touch of grim satire to the deplorably tragic story. If some of those who sympathize now had known, and had extended their sympathy in time, there would have been no tragedy.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Speaking of how a really famous man got his start upon the first rung of the ladder of fame and fortune, Fred Barclay of the Imperial Scotch Singers, who was at the St. Louis yesterday, related an incident of Harry Lauder, th Scotch singer, who is perhaps the most famous man in vaudeville in America or Europe at the present time.

"Harry Lauder owes much of his first success to a most infectious laugh that he discovered by accident, and which, in the early days of his first appearances brought him much of his success," says Mr. Barclay, who has appeared upon the same stage with Lauder, and who is a comedian of no mean ability.

"People have gone to the theater, determined not to laugh at Lauder. These were people in Glasgow, who knew the comedian before he went upon the stage. You know there are many people in this world, and I might add, especially Scotch people who are, you are probably aware, hard-headed, who when they have known a person before that person has gained some name, are determined that that person under no circumstances can be great.

"Well, I know that there were many of such kind of people who went to the theater and the concerts where Harry Lauder appeared before he really became famous, with the stern determination not to so much as grin through the performance. That peculiar laugh that Lauder discovered by accident, was what really got to the risibilities of these people.

"Harry Lauder has a really fine baritone voice, and he has a laugh that seems to go down into the very depths of his throat. One time when he was appearing at Glasgow before a distinctly unfriendly audience, unfriendly in the sense that they did not think Harry Lauder that many of them had known for a long time, was or could possibly be the least bit humorous. Suddenly an infant out in the audience set up the funniest cry I have ever heard. Lauder just stopped and gave that humorous laugh. It brought down the house, and ever since that time Lauder, who is not slow to see the point of anything, has used that humorous, cavernous laugh of his with good effect.

"Since the days of his early concert appearances Lauder has really developed into a fine actor. His art has grown and expended with expedience. He is one of the funniest men upon the stage today, possessing the true sense of Scotch humor. He is a credit to the Scotch people, for he is a thorough gentleman and wherever he has appeared he has been the recipient of many honors.

A. J. Shea of Eveleth, was at the St. Louis yesterday. Mr. Shea says open pit mining operations upon the range have been suspended by the heavy storm of the past few days, and that it will in all probability be several days at the best, before operations can be resumed in the open pit mines. The snow has drifted and piled into the excavations, drifting to a great depth in many of the pits. It is probable that it will be some few days before the heavy water resulting from the snow will be drained out of the pits.

Miss Florence Roberts, who was a guest of the Spalding yesterday, is the widow of the late Louis Morrison, who won fame and fortune in Goethe's immortal Faust. Before coming East Miss Roberts was known upon the Pacific slope as one of the greatest emotional actresses ever produced by the Golden West. Then, when she had won fame that spread beyond the Rockies, she made her debut in New York as a star and achieved instant success, something that is very hard to do in New York when you are from what New York believe is the wild and untamed West.

Before achieving the success she enjoys at the present time, Miss Roberts was associated with many of the splendid stock productions of the Pacific coast cities, especially some of the notable productions of the San Francisco companies. It was in this same school of training that many of the famous stars of the old stock companies appeared. McCullough, Forest and some of the famous stars of some years ago, have appeared upon the coast in the old days of stock, and it was this system that gave the coast cities their first conception of the highest standard of dramatic art.

Charles Peabody of Marlan Springs, Tex., who was at the Lenox yesterday, says that at the present rate of immigration to the Lone Star state, Texas will increase its population over 2,000,000 in the next five years. Whether the present rate of immigration to Texas will continue, Mr. Peabody is not prepared to state, but he says that it is estimated that over 500,000 people will come to Texas the present season, with the natural increase that is bound to come through the birth rate in the state.

And Mr. Peabody says that citizens of Texas are thoroughly imbued with the ideas of the ex-president upon the subject of race suicide. They believe that large families have plenty of space in which to raise these families, and so the increase in the already large population of the state is going on apace.

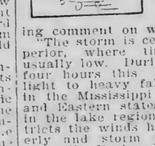
THE WEATHER.



It's still snowing. A year ago today it was cool and fair.

The sun rose this morning at 4:52, and will set this afternoon at 7:13, making fourteen hours and twenty-six minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The storm is central over Lake Superior, where the barometer is unusually low. During the past twenty-four hours this disturbance caused light to heavy falls of rain or snow in the Mississippi valley, lake region and Eastern states, and strong winds in the lake region. In the latter districts the winds have shifted to westerly and storm northwest warnings are still displayed. Somewhat colder weather attends an increase in pressure in the southern lake region, the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and Southern states. Freezing weather prevails southward to Utah, New Mexico and Kansas. Temperatures are rising in the extreme Northwest."

Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth, May 1.—Forecast for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Sunday: Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermillion iron ranges—Partly cloudy tonight and Sunday, with probably snow flurries; freezing temperature; brisk to high northwesterly winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, May 1.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Sunday:

Upper Michigan and Wisconsin—Snow flurries tonight and Sunday; continued cold, with temperature near freezing; high westerly winds.

North Dakota—Generally fair tonight and Sunday, with slowly rising temperature; freezing temperature tonight.

MEANT TO BE FUNNY.

Chicago News: Lecturer—Mr. Committeeman, I want a glass of water placed on a small table on the stage tonight.

Committeeman—To drink?

Lecturer—No, I make a high dive in the second paragraph.

Philadelphia Ledger: "Every proposal of marriage is the basis of a divorce suit nowadays," said the pessimist.

The Suffragette—No, sir; I will not! You are entitled to it until such time as we women have something to say about the framing of laws governing public conveyances.

Washington Star: "Some people can make even the most commonplace subject interesting," said the loquacious youth.

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne. "Do tell me something of yourself."

Lippincott's: "I kept my husband on a string for five years before I consented to marry him."

"Why so long?"

"Well, you see, I waited until I could see his way clear financially."

Boston Transcript: He (rhapsodically)—I adore everything that is grand, exquisite, superinfinent. I love the peerless, the serene, the perfect in life.

She (blushing coyly)—Oh, George, how can I refuse you when you put it so beautifully?

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

A Target or Two.

"He is all right now, but I am wondering what sort of a man he will be ten years from now," was the comment of a friend the other day concerning the very estimable young man to whom his oldest daughter has recently become engaged. He went on to say that he felt that the prospective bridegroom was spending his income about as fast as he made it, and that he doubted whether he was working toward any definite goal to reach which might require the sacrifice, as he goes along of the good to the better. This father wants a son-in-law, who will not be living from hand to mouth either financially or spiritually, but who has some respect for a savings bank in which to invest not only his spare funds, but his mental and moral resources.

All eyes have been drawn toward Boston lately by the launching of a plan to make it by 1915 the finest city in the world. That is the motto of a large body of determined business an professional men who have banded together to better the outward aspects of the city, to provide more parks and playgrounds and social centers and to infuse into the people the idea that the city belongs to them, and that they can make it clean and beautiful.

No good hunter fires all over the field, but he sights his game on some stump or limb, pulls the trigger and the shot goes home. He who is pursuing the zestful game called life must also have before him certain definite goals. Most of us are so busy with details we hurry as fast from one task or diversion to another that we seldow stop long enough to consider what we are driving at, and what it all amounts to anyway. We overlook the injunction in the Scripture about entering into our closets and shutting the door. What a difference it would make in our fretful, feverish lives if we had acquired the "quiet hour" habit, or the quiet half-hour habit, or the quiet fifteen minute habit! Even if we did not then imitate the old saints who sought, when by themselves, to practice the presence of God, we could at least collect ourselves, take the measure of our desires and intentions, decide what is worth while. If fifteen minutes are impossible, just try five minutes. Possibly in that short time our horizons would broaden. We should see things in their true proportion and get what artists call a "perspective."

Pick out then two or three things that one will try to do, if not before 1915, at least before 1920. I know a family where the wife, husband and five children are aiming with all their might to clear up the mortgage on the house, and they have been bold enough to set a certain date not many years ahead when they will be rid of this long-standing encumbrance. This brave effort has promoted unity among the members of that large and put new enthusiasm in the common work. Other institutions besides the family need the spur of a definite objective. The school that goes along in a humdrum way from day to day without thought of what all the recitations and exercises are to lead up to eventually gets into a rut. The church that never stops to consider what it wants to accomplish in the course of the passing years becomes inert.

Here are some things worth aiming at: First, the mastery of little faults and weaknesses that mar the symmetry of our characters and impair our influence. A has unconsciously dropped into a cynical habit. B has indulged his penchant for talking about other people until he is little short of being a gossip. C is growing fonder of coarse stories. Wake up, A., B. and C., and resolve to kill before a definite number of weeks have passed those little foxes that spoil the vines.

But constructive effort is equally important. Is there not something each of us can do for the kingdom of God, or, if you please, the kingdom of man, that we are not doing? And can we not do it, say before 1915, and even perhaps before 1910? Is there not some orphan child that we can befriend, someone to whom we can be a big brother or sister, some service in the church which we are capable of rendering? Can we not do something more for our own family circle? Propose, then, certain objectives—not too many—but noble and commanding enough to enlist all your energies, then keep your eye on the goal, no matter what obstacles impede the journey thither. DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE TONNAGE TAX VETO

Didn't Shrink Responsibility.

Litchfield, Meeker county, Independent: Governor Johnson vetoed the tonnage tax bill, passed by the Minnesota legislature. This bill imposed a tax on iron ore, payable as the ore was taken out and shipped, the money all to go into the state treasury. The iron region and many other sections of Northern Minnesota were violently opposed to the law, which they claimed would paralyze the iron interests of the state and be a great detriment to general business at Duluth and Northeastern Minnesota. Governor Johnson took this view of the case and vetoed the bill. We are not sufficiently posted on the merits of the bill, but no doubt considerable fault will be found with the governor by those who favored the measure. The governor showed he had nerve, in vetoing the bill, as he might have let it become a law without his approval, and the blame, if it proved unpopular, would have been on the legislature. As it was, he took the responsibility. There was no attempt made to pass the bill over his veto.

People Didn't Demand It.

Albert Lea Standard: The Standard has believed that the iron mines of the state did not pay an equal and fair share of the general taxes and we have therefore favored an additional royalty or tonnage tax, and this view is undoubtedly our own, but until recently we have not been familiar with the details of the now notable bill passed by the legislature and thus were not competent to judge as to its merits. It was of doubtful constitutionality and thus if passed would inevitably have caused protracted litigation, obstructing the collection of all taxes, anything in the region involved, and overwhelming it and its people in disaster, and this and for other reasons stated in the masterly message it is fortunate that Governor Johnson vetoed the bill.

That the bill was especially and urgently demanded by Southern Minnesota it should be said, is not true. We have found no fewer than seven papers in the southern part of the state, Governor Johnson's veto of the tonnage tax met with approval by the Minnesota press. Up in the northern part of the state the people will never forget the governor's act while the people in the southern districts will forget their enmity when Mr. Johnson is out after votes.

Another Emphatic Veto.

Grand Rapids Herald-Review: Anything which may have been said heretofore by the development interests of Northern Minnesota, it arouses sectional hatred which may disrupt the best development of the state, and lastly, there is no particular necessity for the statute at this time. The governor is receiving praise as well as criticism for the veto. Those in the southern part of the state think it unjust, while in the northern part the veto is regarded with great pleasure. Nevertheless, it is a fact that the question is not well understood, and it may be as well that it did not become a law until the people had a chance to be more thoroughly advised.

One Thing He Wants.

Sauk Rapids Sentinel-Free Press: John A. Johnson of St. Peter could probably be elected coroner of St. Louis county by a safe margin.

Sees Only the Steel Trust.

Sauk Rapids, Benton county, Sentinel-Free Press: This paper has advocated the tonnage tax consistently, consciensously, continuously. We will continue to do so. And yet we believe Governor Johnson did what seemed to him to right when he vetoed the Borge bill. The claims of the press of Southern Minnesota to the contrary, notwithstanding, the people do not understand this tonnage tax proposition thoroughly. It has not been discussed as widely as it should have been. Outside a limited number of weeklies the matter received very little editorial consideration in those sections of the state where sentiment in its favor was supposed to be strongest during the time it was before the legislature and the governor. In Northeastern Minnesota, where opposition to the measure was unanimous, it was the one topic of interest. Hence, when the crisis came, when the governor held the fate of the measure in his hands, Northeastern Minnesota was ready to speak and did speak as one man against the measure. From the other side there came not a word—except from the weak-kneed legislators who voted for the bill and then urged the governor to accept the responsibility of killing it. The tonnage tax issue is not dead. Its advocates will begin the agitation with renewed vigor. They will point out to the farmers and merchants and mechanics how the burden of taxation is being borne by them and how the mighty steel trust is waxing fat on the states' resources without paying anywhere near a just return to the state. Then when another tonnage tax is laid before the governor—whether it be John A. Johnson or somebody else—he will receive a few thousand telegrams from the school children and the widows and orphans of Southern Minnesota as well as from Northeastern Minnesota. Better still, a campaign of education will convince fair-minded men of even the range country that the tonnage tax proposition is not "a conspiracy to rob them" but a just and equitable and the only possible method of taxing an industry that is annually taking away untinted amounts of the state's wealth without leaving anything in the form in which that can be utilized. The steel trust cannot hold the gad over this state always and we believe even the people of its own stamping ground will resent its domination before many moons.

North Branch, Chisago county, Review: With the exception of a few papers in the southern part of the state, Governor Johnson's veto of the tonnage tax met with approval by the Minnesota press. Up in the northern part of the state the people will never forget the governor's act while the people in the southern districts will forget their enmity when Mr. Johnson is out after votes.

PATIENCE AND SHUFFLE THE CARDS

BY SAVOYARD

There is no longer pretense that the "foreigner pays the tariff," recent revelations are to the conclusion that our tariff is for the advantage of the foreigner, as is argued by the following taken from the American Magazine:

"Frank manufacturers like Mr. Schwab have said, of course we sell cheaper to foreigners. We must—not only that, but we sell materials to our fellow manufacturer cheaper when they are to be turned into goods for foreigners than we do when they are to be turned into goods for our own people! Two years ago Byron W. Holt made up from catalogues of American manufacturers a table of prices for home and foreign markets. It is a beautiful study of gratitude! Mr. Holt names over 250 different articles on which at that date discounts of from 10 per cent to 66 per cent lower were quoted to foreign than to home buyers! An American dealer paid $5.50 for potatoe hoes which a foreigner could buy for $4.75. All farm tools issued were sold abroad far lower than at home, thanks to the farm tools trust. He paid $18 a dozen for wooden wheelbarrows for which the foreigner paid $14.50. He paid $20 for the incubator which to the dealer over the border was quoted at $15. He paid $30.24 a gross for soap which the foreign dealer bought for $29.48, and so one might go on with scores of articles of daily use in farming in housekeeping, in all sorts of trades."

Of the half billion of "manufactured products" we export annually, 90 per cent were sold on a general average to foreigners 20 per cent cheaper than the American citizen could buy them.

Take the article of spool cotton thread. We imported it for the fiscal year 1908 to the value of a beggarly $39,404, on which duties to the amount of $17,511 were collected, or 44.33 per cent. That discloses that the men manufacturing spool cotton thread in the United States, protected as they are by a duty of 6 cents for each dozen spools of 100 yards each, and 12 cents a dozen on 200-yard spools, have, practically speaking, an absolute monopoly of the trade. Not one American is manufacturing spool cotton in the United States. The Coats company of Paisley, Scotland, own every such manufactory in this country and reap the rich harvest our tariff gives them in our markets and carry the pillage across the water to enjoy it in the Land o' Cakes.

Don't you remember what a row was made when the monopoly advanced the price of spool cotton after the passage of the Dingley tariff, the cotton schedule of which is practically unchanged in the Payne bill?

With fingers weary and worn,
With eyelids heavy and red
A woman sat in unwomanly rags,
Plying her needle and thread—
Stitch! stitch! stitch!
In poverty, hunger and dire,
And still, with a voice of dolorous pitch,
She sang the "Song of the Shirt!"

• • •

How many of their miserable mites these poor slaves of monopoly have paid in tribute to the Scotch trust will never be known; but thanks to the American tariff the American sewing woman is more outrageously oppressed than her miserable sister in England of whom Tom Hood wrote the foregoing.

A Mr. Miles, a manufacturer of farm machinery, deposed before the ways and means committee that the steel trust was the result of high tariff on that product, and Andrew Carnegie testified that the steel trust no longer needed a tariff, that it was making $15 a ton on its product—all velvet. Mr. Miles, Republican, closed with this declaration:

"Give me raw material as cheaply as raw material produced in America is sold abroad, and you may remove the tariff on my product, and I'll make more agricultural implements than ever before, sell them at a materially reduced price to the consumer, employ more men and pay better wages; and in the course of time the American agricultural implement manufacturers will supply the world."

Now that is what a highly protected manufacturer demanded of Dalzell, Cannon & Co., and they refused it. Against his will he must continue to sell abroad cheaper than he does at home because of the tribute he has to pay other favored industries. He is thus bound to gouge the American farmer, who has to buy of him or go without.

There is the biggest lobby in this town in its history. It represents not only millions, but billions. It is not openly so clamorous as it was when the Dingley law was enacted, but it is at work insidiously and it will work effectively.

This tariff law is going to be made by four men—Nelson W. Aldrich, Julius C. Burrows, Sereno E. Payne and John Dalzell—every one a standpatter. They will be the members of the conference committee from the Republican party, and they will "revise" the thing.

But, thank God, the tariff is again paramount, and if our old party will but cling to it, the ultimate verdict will be a repetition of that of 1892. Patience and shuffle the cards.

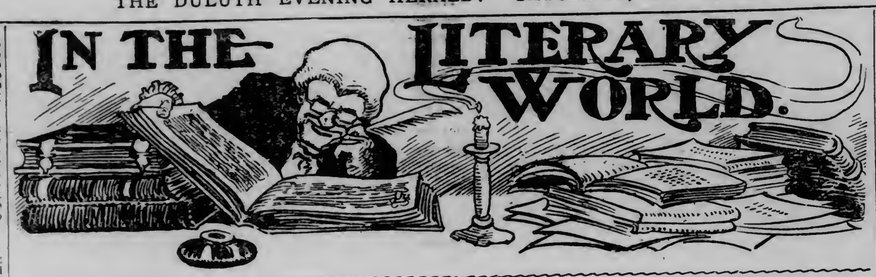
IN THE LITERARY WORLD.



THE STORY OF THYRZA By Alice Brown. Boston: Houghton Mifflin Company. $1.35 net.

The year's output of fiction will hardly bring a volume of greater power and charm than this strong novel by the author of "Rose MacLeod." It draws deeply upon the springs of human passion and human character, and it is all done with a fine literary craftsmanship that is characteristic of its author. Next to the certainty of the human touch shown in the making of this book, it is notable for its brilliancy of character-making and the felicity of its phrasing. Somewhere we have read a criticism of this book in which a stodgy reviewer professed to be shocked because Thyrza, after becoming the mother of an illegitimate child, found happiness. No exaggerated puritanism ever breathed narrower doctrine than that. If happiness is to be denied those who sin and suffer for it, then happiness may well be banished from the face of the earth for all time to come. The story takes Thyrza from her childhood into beautiful maturity, and not the least delightful feature of the novel is its picture of child life, wherein the serious play of the children is a forecast of the real life yet to come, and there is a subtle hint, in the childhood wiles and jealousies that are described in the earlier chapters, of the grown-up wiles and jealousies that come in later life. Thyrza, with her childish innocence and her romantic imagination which make her an easy victim for the lure of fleshly manhood who bestows upon her the greatest tragedy that can come to woman, will touch the heart of every reader. The story of Thyrza, tried by sorrow and fashioned in the harsh forge of bitter experience, growing from a strangely fascinating childhood into a noble and splendid womanhood, makes an absorbing and powerful drama of human life.

The authors of this valuable and entertaining volume have drawn lavishly upon the wealth of romance and adventure that centers about the memories of the great inland waterway made up by the Great Lakes. The story is told most interestingly and the volume is valuable in that it is not overburdened because of the accuracy and completeness of its historical side. The tale of how the Great Lakes country has been transformed from a wilderness into the magnificent empire makes a thrilling narrative. Of local interest will be the sections that tell of the development of the immense wealth of Minnesota and Michigan. The central theme, of course, is the development of the lake shipping, from the days of La Salle's Griffon, built in 1679, to the mammoth steel freighters. All this is graphically described.

With a remarkable splendor of imagination, and with his characteristic bold, bald vigor of expression, Rudyard Kipling tells the story of a voyage in an airship liner from London to Quebec, taken in the year 2,000. It is hard to realize, in reading this book, that it is a work purely of the imagination, for the details of airship construction and operation are described with such painstaking attention to minutiae, and such impressive technicality, that it seems certain that these details must have been drawn from a careful study of an actual airship, instead of being the product of a wonderful imagination. Hardly less interesting than the story itself is the appendix, which is made up of articles and advertisements from the magazines of the period. For instance, there are bulletins from the Aerial Board of Control regarding changes in lights for the guidance of aerial navigators, lists of missing airships, "how to avoid the 'brake' for leaving their proper levels," notes of aerial weather conditions, etc. There is a magazine correspondence column in which questions touching upon aerial affairs are answered. Some of the questions and answers are extremely technical, others are very humorous and funny. There is an advertising section, with "seductive" Paine-like modern ones, except that they deal with airships instead of autos or carriages. The advertisements indicate the use of airships for all purposes, including family outings.

An adventurous school teacher, traveling abroad upon her slender savings, encounters about as many adventures and perils as could have been contained in a book. All farmed perfectly between the two covers of a book.

The vessel on which she travels is wrecked, and nobody is left aboard the derelict except herself and a young Englishman, fortunately given to drink. They drift into the Sargasso sea, the haven of derelicts, and encounter perils innumerable. Incidentally, a romance is born, and has its tender being in the midst of alarms. While some few incidents are hardly convincing, and while in one or two spots the incidents are somewhat morbidly overwrought, there is a satisfying tale of seafaring nature, with an abundance of incident, and it is told very well indeed.

This profusely illustrated book, as entertaining as it is informing, has the twofold advantage of being written by a man who knows the Great Lakes and their shores as well as what has been written about them. The general reader will enjoy the romance attaching to the past history of the lakes, and not less the romance of the present—the story of the great commercial fleets that plough on inland seas, created to transport the fruits of the earth and the metals that are dug from the bowels of the earth. To the business man who has interests in or about the lakes, or to the prospective investor in enterprises in this section, the book will be found suggestive. Comparatively little has been written of these fresh-water seas, and many of Mr. Curwood's readers will be amazed at the wonderful story which this volume tells.

The book is divided into two parts, the first dealing with the ships, their owners, their sailors and their cargoes, and the second telling the origin and history of the lakes. Part of the contents of this volume was published in a Buffalo paper a year or so ago, and at that time The Herald published copious extracts from his references to "Buffalo and Duluth, the Alpha and Omega of the Lakes," in which he expressed the opinion, which steel men over the world believe, that the time is fast coming when Duluth will be a second and perhaps greater Pittsburg.

Most of the intensely dramatic incidents of this absorbing novel take place in the wireless station on a coast steamer, which is carrying not only a cargo of guns and ammunition for a South American revolution, but a number of those who are virtually interested in the outbreak on one side or the other, including a delightful young woman and an interesting young man who is full of courage and expedients, as a hero should be. It makes a drama of strongly sustained interest, one of the books that you may forget in the mass of others rather like it, but that you will read without stopping when you start it—sometimes without even stopping for breath. The chief characters are the wireless operator of the Laminian, the sister of a cabinet officer of a South American republic and a soldier of fortune who makes his living fostering and fattening upon revolutions. If you wish a book merely to be interested and completely absorbed, here it is.

The cream of many volumes has been skimmed by the editor of these two handsome little volumes of quotations, whose titles and sub-titles are sufficiently descriptive. The quotations are well selected, and the volumes themselves are beautifully printed, making them desirable yet inexpensive gift books. The binding is novel, there being a double cover, tied with English tape.

There are many things besides bears in this interesting and lively little book. It tells of the country around Denver, Utah and the Yellowstone Park, and though the story has been told many times before, it is told differently here. The style is entertaining and breezy.

Among the Magazines.

A great many misconceptions in America will be cleared up by the article on "The Great Public Schools of England," by Everett T. Tomlinson, which leads the May number of Scribner's Magazine. They are not "public schools" at all in our sense, and they are not free for the fixed charges are high. They are, however, a great institution in the sense that an English boy of the governing classes there receives his deepest impress. This article describes the school life and traditions with wonderful vividness and with interesting illustrations. "Gen. Sherman's Letters Home" cover some of the greatest events of the war, from October, '63, to January, '65. Major William J. Graham—setting forth the importance to every community and every individual of the man who shows us our need of life insurance. "Men Who Are Doing Things": Thomas Fortune Ryan, Edwin W. Sims, Thomas L. Lewis, Bernard M. Shiveley, W. R. Stubbs.

Jack London is represented in the May issue of the Smart Set by one of his most charming stories he has ever written. "Aloha Oe" is a tale of Hawaii, full of the romance and perfume of that sun-bathed island empire. In the development of the story is shown the basic idea of race-difference that introduces an interesting problem apropos of this country and its island dependencies. "His Child's Godmother," complete novel, is from the pen of Frances Pusey Gooch. It is a tale of the reconstructed South, a romance of the ward of a governor and the unwelcomed family, and presents a beautiful picture of the winning of a wife's love after marriage. John Kendrick Bangs' humorous literary struggles, "First Aid to the Literary," is one of the cleverest pieces of work Mr. Bangs has done in recent years. Under the guise of good humor he raps smartly some of the main weaknesses of the latter-day novels.

Readers of "The Lonesome Trail," by B. M. Bower, will be now having a successful run as a "best seller," will be glad to learn that this author of inimitable Western stories is a regular contributor to the Popular Magazine. In the May number of the Popular there is a story entitled "Fool's Gold," which will be deemed by many to be better than any one of the stories in "The Lonesome Trail." It concerns the members of the "Happy Family" in general, and one of them in particular. He, like many another good man, weighed the pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow—and found it wantink.

The May St. Nicholas brings the first chapters of an important new serial story for the older girls and boys, in Charles H. Caffin's "The Story of Dutch Painting." The author explains that the tale of how the Dutchmen of the seventeenth century developed a the seventeenth century developed a the school of painting is a part of the lives and fortunes of the Dutch people, and so the story begins with a brief description of the struggle by which the separate provinces became united into a single nation, and of how during the struggle by which the separate provinces became united the people also found time to advance themselves in the arts of peace, including that of painting. Later chapters will tell what the principal artists accomplished in portraiture, in landscape, and in the representation of the indoor and outdoor life of the people, and the aim to make the narrative of Dutch painting illustrate some principles that may be of use in the study of painting generally. Reproductions of famous paintings by representative artists add to the value and interest of "the story."

A quaint old German town, Rothenburg, little known to tourists, is the subject of Robert Shackleton's article, opening the May number of Harper's Magazine. It is beautifully illustrated with picturesque drawings by Norman Irving Black. The frontispiece of this number is from a painting by Howard Pyle, made to illustrate probably the strongest story Justus Miles Forman has written, "The Garden of Eden." There is a charming article by two naturalists, C. William and Mary Blair Beebe, "In the Venezuelan Wilderness," and an essay on New York's possibilities for relaxation, entitled "When the City Amuses Itself," written by that delightful essayist, E. S. Martin, and illustrated by John Edwin Jackson's striking drawings. "Three English Capitals of Industry," a graphic article describing Manchester, Sheffield and Liverpool is contributed by Mr. Howells.

In the May number of The Delineator Mabel Potter Daggett tells "How the President Saved the Orphans." The article describes the dramatic incidents in the recent conference on the care of dependent children. This conference, which marked the progress of The Delineator's child-rescue campaign to a point where it commanded national help, has produced remarkable results. Glimpses of "The Funny Side of Indian Home Life" are given by F. B. Moorhead in an article that reveals an intimate knowledge of the habits of the red men of the Northwest. Roy Knabenshue gives a thrilling account of "The Most Dramatic Event in My Life," his first airship ascension, which took place at the St. Louis world's fair and was the beginning of many successful trips through cloudland.

It is said that the name "Virginia Middleton," which is signed as that of the author of the complete novel in the current number of Smith's Magazine, "The Larger Life," which is attracting such widespread attention at present, is only a mask to cover the identity of a woman well known all over the country and especially prominent in connection with women's clubs. Whether this is so or not, the story is certainly the work of a trained writer, a keen and wise observer of life, and one who has known intimately from personal experiences many of the scenes and people described in the story.

Current Literature for May will come as a guiding light to many who have been bewildered by the complexities of recent tariff discussion. It detaches the salient points of the new Payne bill, and explains the "maximum" and "minimum" schedules of rates. The same issue of Current Literature gives the latest news of the woman's suffrage struggle in England, and the real facts in regard to Germany's navy and Britain's "panic." The "simplicity" of Mr. Rockefeller is discussed in an article based on the Standard Oil magnate's newly published "Reminiscences." Rockefeller also figures in an imaginary disputation with Tolstoy, reported by Maximilian Harden, the versatile German editor, and presented in Current Literature under the title, "Tolstoy versus Rockefeller—A Problem in Ethics." This is a fascinating bit of mental gymnastics, and Rockefeller triumphs.

The May Century has fiction a plenty—the last chapters of Alice Hegan Rice's novel, "Mr. Opp," and stories in which humor is a dominant note by Mary Heaton Vorse, Adeline Knapp and W. Albert Hickman—but leading place is given to Thomas Nelson Page's story, "The Old Planters," a tale of a quaint old hostelry in Virginia, and of the quaint old aristocrats who played host, and of the guests who came and went. A wide range of matters much in the public mind is covered in the number: William M. Ivins, chairman of the New York charter commission, in a paper on "Public Service Commissions," comments on Frederic W. Whitridge's paper on "Public Morality and Street Railways" in the March Century; Christian Brinton gives critical estimate of the two great Spanish painters whose work is being shown in this country, Sorolla and Zuloaga; "The New Basis of Work for the Blind" is discussed by Samuel H. Bishop; Daniel Gregory Mason has recorded a conversation on music with Ossip Gabrilowitsch, and Cardinal Gibbons and Prof. Edward Ailsworth Ross have much of interest to say on America's increasing divorce rate and its significance.

The keynote of the National Magazine for May is sounded on the back of the frontispiece in the eloquent tribute by the editor to Mother's Day, which is celebrated on May 9, the second Sunday in the month, when it is suggested that every human being wear a white flower in honor of "the best mother who ever lived—your own." Notable contributions to this issue occur in the series of articles, "The Story of a Great Nation," in which is included the story of the weather bureau, by Willis E. Moore, director of the bureau, who gives a remarkable sketch of the work that is of especial interest in view of the "flare-back" incident of the inauguration of 1909. The "Story of the Paper Mail Bag" is told by A. L. Lasshe, third assistant postmaster general. "The Nation's Great Library" is most captivatingly described by Herbert Putnam, librarian of congress. "The American Consul's" far-off foreign fields are contributing fascinating illustrated articles on their work.

In the current issue of Harper's Weekly occurs an interesting article entitled "The New Science of the Air," by Waldemar Kaempffert. It describes the experiments which are carried on at the Blue Hill meteorological observatory, from which kites and sounding balloons are sent up with recording instruments to explore the upper strata of the air. This issue contains an appreciation of the late Algernon Charles Swinburne, by C. H. Gaines, who dissects and analyzes the poet's writings, refuting the charges of eroticism that have been levelled against him. Continuing his series of articles descriptive of his tramp round the world as a laborer, Harry A. Franck tells in an amusing narration how he crossed the Lebanon into Damascus, in spite of the opposition of a local sheikh, who attempted to raise a collection for his railroad ticket.

TOO MUCH EDUCATION

Architect F. W. Fitzpatrick of Washington, D. C., has stirred up a very lively discussion in foreign circles by a paper from his pen in the recent number of the International Review of Education, published in Paris, the leading sensational journal of the world. His paper is entitled "Too Much Education," and deals almost exclusively with conditions in this country. It is passing strange that the paper has not been translated and more widely commented upon by the American educational press. The London, Viennese, Russian and German educational periodicals have given that paper most serious attention, and seems to be about equally divided pro and con on that writer's views.

He deplores the theory we seemed to have worked upon here for the last generation in insisting upon the maximum of Instruction for every one. Mr. Fitzpatrick states that in the past he was one of the most enthusiastic in favor of obligatory instruction and the greatest amount of schooling possible for every one, but the consequences of such wide spread education have been so different from what was expected that he has changed his mind.

"The people, the proletariat," says he, "all are loaded down with education and scholastic training, and today we find ourselves with nothing but embryo presidents, senators and captains of industry upon our hands, a race of managers, of directors, of superintendents. All must do brain work, and you insult the man if you ask him to work with his hands. All are above work with his hands. All are above that, they are educated, why should they work as does the laborer and the tiller of the soil? Our farms are abandoned; the young people are crowding to the cities, and every farmer's son must be a doctor or a lawyer, or at least a school teacher or a stenographer!"

He gives exhaustive figures and statistics to show that in our solicitude for the education of the lower classes we have made huge additions to the criminal class and contributed to the general unrest and woe of the urban classes. He suggests as a partial remedy that only the most elementary instruction of a bookish nature be made obligatory, and that industrial and agricultural schools be established everywhere. That the lower grades of the common schools be less diversified in the information imparted and more thorough along the elementary lines. The present light touch upon so many subjects but encourages frivolity in the young and lack of application and the sense of satisfaction in the possession of a mere glossary information upon many things, where a thorough grounding in one or two would be infinitely more beneficial.

He says that the state should exercise still more paternal care of the schools, and, by the keenest physical and intelligent examinations, the children who have passed through the elementary stage be divided at the earliest possible moment, and only those who show exceptional mental ability be carried on up through the higher grades into the high schools and thus prepared for the scholastic and educated lines of life's work, while the others should be carried along in the trade or agricultural schools.

"Since the state supplies the education," says he, "it is certainly the state's privilege and duty to instruct the children along the lines for which they are best fitted, and so that the state may have citizens capable of carrying on all the branches necessary to the complete and perfect economy of the whole. As it is now, it would seem that the state were bent upon developing clerks and professional men only. The agricultural and industrial schools are for the exceptions and few in number, while they should be in the majority."

The subject is a most serious one and certainly deserves the profound attention of our educators and public men, and a perusal of Mr. Fitzpatrick's article would assuredly give abundant matter for deep thought and revolutionary change.

W. A. ABBETT,

THE TONNAGE TAX VETO

Didn't Shrink Responsibility.

Litchfield, Meeker county, Independent: Governor Johnson vetoed the tonnage tax bill, passed by the Minnesota legislature. This bill imposed a tax on iron ore, payable as the ore was taken out and shipped, the money all to go into the state treasury. The iron region and many other sections of Northern Minnesota were violently opposed to the law, which they claimed would paralyze the iron interests of the state and be a great detriment to general business at Duluth and Northeastern Minnesota. Governor Johnson took this view of the case and vetoed the bill. We are not sufficiently posted on the merits of the bill, but no doubt considerable fault will be found with the governor by those who favored the measure. The governor showed he had nerve in vetoing the bill, as he might have let it become a law without his approval, and the blame, if it proved unpopular, would have been on the legislature. As it was, he took the responsibility. There was no attempt made to pass the bill over his veto

Albert Lea Standard: The Standard has believed that the iron mines of the state did not pay an equal and fair share of the general taxes and we have therefore favored an additional royalty or tonnage tax and this view is unchanged, but until recently we have not been familiar with the details of the now notable bill passed by the legislature and thus were not competent to judge as to its merits. It was of doubtful constitutionality and thus if passed would inevitably have caused protracted litigation, obstructing the collection of all taxes, mayhap, in the region involved, and overwhelming it and its people in disaster, and this and for other reasons stated in is masterly message it is fortunate that Governor Johnson vetoed the bill.

That the bill was especially and urgently demanded by Southern Minnesota, it cannot be said, is not true. We have found but few that expressed any interest whatever in the bill or the question involved and hence the people of this region generally seem to be well satisfied with Governor Johnson's act in vetoing it and to admire his wisdom and courage in doing it, but they also enjoy with lively interest the evident thankfulness and jubilation of their Duluth and other Northern Minnesota fellow-citizens in the fortunate finale of the ill-conceived proposition.

Oh, But That's Different!

Grand Rapids Herald-Review: The Rock County Herald, published at Luverne, in the southwestern corner of the state, by ex-State Senator H. C. Miller, is very much disgruntled and disgruntled over the veto of the tonnage tax bill. The Herald thinks the iron owners do not pay taxes enough, in the same breath in which the editorial protest against the veto appears is a news item telling of one farmer in Rock county who had sold his farm of 95 acres for $30,000. He will wager all the money we can borrow on long time and easy terms that the $10,000-farmer never paid taxes on a $5,000 assessment in Rock county. And well wagered some one will say, for that matter, that the $30,000 will not pay taxes on more than about one-sixth the value of the property he has just acquired.

Question Not Well Understood.

Preston, Otter Tail county, Bulletin: The Borge tonnage tax bill which passed the house and senate was last week vetoed by Governor Johnson, who gave four reasons for doing so, viz.: It is violating uniformity in taxing the same class of subjects, its effects would be to retard the development of the iron of Northern Minnesota, it arouses sectional hatred, which may disrupt the best development of the state, and lastly, there is no particular necessity for the statute at this time. The governor is receiving praise as well as criticism for the veto. Those in the southern part of the state think it unjust, while in the northern part the veto is regarded with great pleasure. Nevertheless, it is a fact that the question is not well understood, and it may be as well that it did not become a law until the people had a chance to be more thoroughly advised.

One Thing He Wants.

Sees Only the Steel Trust.

Sauk Rapids, Benton county, Sentinel-Free Press: This paper has advocated the tonnage tax consistently, conscientiously, continuously. We will continue to do so. And yet we believe Governor Johnson did what seemed to him to right when he vetoed the Borge bill. The claims of the press of Southern Minnesota to the contrary, notwithstanding, the people do not understand this tonnage tax proposition thoroughly. It has not been discussed as widely as it should have been. Outside a limited number of weeklies the matter received very little editorial consideration in those sections of the state where sentiment in its favor was supposed to be strongest during the time it was before the legislature and the governor. In Northeastern Minnesota, where opposition to the measure was unanimous, it was the one topic of interest. Hence, when the crisis came, when the governor held the fate of the measure in his hands, Northeastern Minnesota was ready to speak and did speak as one man against the measure. From the other side there came not a word—except from the weak-kneed legislators who voted for the bill and then urged the governor to accept the responsibility of killing it. The tonnage tax issue is not dead. Its advocates will begin the agitation with renewed vigor. They will point out to the farmers and merchants and mechanics how the burden of taxation is being borne by them and how the mighty steel trust is waxing fat on the states resources without paying anywhere near a just return to the state. Then when another tonnage tax is laid before the governor—whether it be John A. Johnson or some one else—he will receive a few thousand telegrams from the school children and the widows and orphans of Southern Minnesota as well as from Northeastern Minnesota. Better still, a campaign of education will convince fair-minded men of even the range country that the tonnage tax proposition is not "a conspiracy to rob them" but a just and equitable and practicable method of taxing an industry that is annually taking away unlimited amounts of the state's wealth without leaving anything in the state but the "unearned increment." The steel trust cannot hold the gad over this state always and we believe even the people of its own stamping ground will resent its domination before many moons.

North Branch, Chisago county, Review: With the exception of a few papers in the southern part of the state, Governor Johnson's veto of the tonnage tax met with approval by the Minnesota press. Up in the northern part of the state the people will never forget the governor's act while the people in the southern districts will forget their enmity when Mr. Johnson is out after votes

Grand Rapids Herald-Review: Anything the Herald-Review may have said in reference to the development of the resources of Northern Minnesota, it arouses sectional hatred, which may disrupt the best development of the state, and lastly, there is no particular necessity for the tonnage tax proposition at this time, is hereby vetoed and consigned without our approval to oblivion.

PATIENCE AND SHUFFLE THE CARDS

There is no longer pretense that the "foreigner pays the tariff," recent revelations are to the conclusion that our tariff is for the advantage of the foreigner, as is argued by the following taken from the American Magazine.

Frank manufacturers like Mr. Schwab have said, of course we sell cheaper to foreigners. We must—not only that, but we sell materials to our fellow manufacturer cheaper when they are to be turned into goods for foreigners than we do when they are to be turned into goods for our own people! Two years ago Byron W. Holt made up from catalogues of American manufacturers a table of prices for home and foreign markets. It is a beautiful study of gratitude! Mr. Holt names over 250 different articles on which at that date discounts of from 10 per cent to 66 per cent lower were quoted to foreign than to home buyers! An American dealer paid $5.50 for potatoe hoes which a foreigner could buy for $4.75. All farm tools indeed were sold abroad far lower than at home, thanks to the farm tools trust. He paid $18 a dozen for wooden shoebarrows for which the foreigner paid $14.50. He paid $20 for the incubator which to the dealer over the border was quoted at $15. He paid $30.24 a gross for soap which the foreign dealer bought for $20.48, and so one might go on with scores of articles of daily use in farming in housekeeping, in all sorts of trades."

Of the half billion of "manufactured products" we export annually, 90 per cent were sold on a general average to foreigners 20 per cent cheaper than the American citizen could buy them.

Take the article of spool cotton thread. We imported it for the fiscal year 1908 to the value of a beggarly $99,194, on which duties to the amount of $17,511 were collected, or 44.33 per cent. That discloses that the men manufacturing spool cotton thread in the United States, protected as they are by a duty of 6 cents for each dozen spools of 100 yards each, and 12 cents a dozen on 200-yard spools, have, practically speaking, an absolute monopoly of the trade. Not one American is manufacturing spool cotton in the United States. The Coats company of Paisley, Scotland, own every such manufactory in this country and reap the rich harvest our tariff gives them in our markets and carry the pillage across the water to enjoy it in the Land o' Oakes.

Don't you remember what a row was made when the monopoly advanced the price of spool cotton after the passage of the Dingley tariff, the cotton schedule of which is practically unchanged in the Payne bill?

With eyelids heavy and red
A woman sat in unwomanly rags,
Plying her needle and thread—
Stitch! stitch! stitch!
In poverty, hunger and dire,
And still, with a voice of dolorous pitch,

• • •

How many of their miserable mites these poor slaves of monopoly have paid in tribute to the Scotch trust will never be known; but thanks to the American tariff the American sewing woman is more outrageously oppressed than her miserable sister in England of whom Tom Hood wrote the foregoing.

A Mr. Miles, a manufacturer of farm machinery, deposed before the ways and means committee that the steel trust was the result of high tariff on that product, and Andrew Carnegie testified that the steel trust no longer needed a tariff, that it was making $15 a ton on its product—all velvet. Mr. Miles, Republican, closed with this declaration:

"Give me raw material as cheaply as raw material produced in America is sold abroad, and you may remove the tariff on my product, and I'll make more agricultural implements than ever before, sell them at a materially reduced price to the consumer, employ more men and pay better wages, and in the course of time the American agricultural implement manufacturers will supply the world."

Now that is what a highly protected manufacturer demanded of Dalzell, Cannon & Co., and they refused it. Against his will he must continue to sell abroad cheaper than he does at home because of the tribute he has to pay other favored industries. He is thus bound to gauge the American farmer, who has to buy of him or go without.

There is the biggest lobby in this town in its history. It represents not only millions, but billions. It is not openly so clamorous as it was when the Dingley law was enacted, but it is at work insidiously and it will work effectively.

This tariff law is going to be made by four men—Nelson W. Aldrich, Julius C. Burrows, Sereno E. Payne and John Dalzell—every one a standpatter. They will be the members of the conference committee from the Republican party, and they will "revise" the thing.

But, thank God, the tariff is again paramount, and if our old party will but cling to it, the ultimate verdict will be a repetition of that of 1892. Patience and shuffle the cards.

IN THE LITERARY WORLD.

The year's output of fiction will hardly bring a volume of greater power and charm than this strong novel by the author of "Rose MacLeod." It draws deeply upon the springs of human passion and human character, and it is all done with a fine literary craftsmanship that is characteristic of its author. Next to the certainty of the human touch shown in the making of this book, it is notable for its brilliancy of character-making and the felicity of its phrasing. Somewhere we have read a criticism of this book in which a stodgy reviewer professed to be shocked because Thyrza, after becoming the mother of an illegitimate child, found happiness. No exaggerated puritanism ever breathed narrower doctrine than that. If happiness is to be denied those who sin and suffer for it, then happiness may well be banished from the face of the earth for all time to come. The story takes Thyrza from her childhood into beautiful maturity, and not the least delightful feature of the novel is its picture of child life, wherein the serious play of the children is a forecast of the real life yet to come, and there is a subtle hint, in the childhood wiles and jealousies that are described in the earlier chapters, of the grown-up wiles and jealousies that come in later life. Thyrza, with her childish innocence and her romantic imagination which made her an easy victim for the bulk of fleshly manhood who bestows upon her the greatest tragedy that can come to woman, will touch the heart of every reader. The story of how she is tried by sorrow and fashioned in the harsh forge of bitter experience, growing from a strangely fascinating childhood into a noble and splendid womanhood, makes an absorbing and powerful drama of human life.

The authors of this valuable and entertaining volume have drawn lavishly upon the wealth of romance and adventure that clusters about the prominent of the great inland waterway made up by the Great Lakes. The story is told most interestingly and the volume is valuable not only for the historical side, but for the accuracy and completeness of its historical side. The tale of how the Great Lakes country has been transformed from a wilderness to a rich and populous empire makes a thrilling narrative. Of local interest will be the sections that tell of the development of the mineral wealth of Minnesota and Michigan. The central theme, of course, is the development of the lake shipping, from the days of La Salle's Griffon, built in 1679 to the mammoth modern freighters. All this is graphically described.

With the remarkable splendor of imagination, and with his characteristic bold bold vigor of expression, Rudyard Kipling tells the story of the voyage in an airship thrice from London to Quebec, taken in the year 2,000. It is hard to realize, in reading this book, that it is a work purely of the imagination, for the details of airship construction and operation are described with such painstaking attention to minutiae, and such impressive technicality, that it seems certain that these data must have been drawn from a careful study of an actual airship, instead of being the product of a wonderful imagination. Hardly less interesting than the story itself is the appendix, which is made up of articles and advertisements from the magazines of the period. For instance, there are bulletins from the Board of Control, regarding changes in lights for the guidance of aerial navigators, lists of missing airships, a list of racers "broke" for leaving the course, notes of aerial weather conditions, etc. There is a magazine correspondence column in which questions touching upon aerial affairs are answered. Some of the questions and answers are exceedingly technical, others are very human and funny. There is an advertising section, with "ads" very like modern ones, except that they deal with airships instead of autos or carriages. The advertisements indicate the use of airships for all purposes, including family outings.

THE LANDLUBBERS. By Gertrude King. New York: Doubleday, Page & Co. $1.50.

An adventurous school teacher, traveling abroad upon her slender savings, encounters about as many adventures and perils as could have been comfortably crowded between the two covers of a book. The vessel on which she travels is wrecked, and nobody is left aboard the derelict except herself and a young Englishman, unfortunately given to drink. They drift into the Sargasso sea, the haven of derelicts, and encounter perils innumerable. Incidentally, a romance is born, and has its tender being in the midst of alarms. While some few incidents are hardly convincing, and while in one or two spots the incidents are somewhat morbidly overwrought, it is a satisfying tale of sea adventure, with an abundance of incident, and it is told very well indeed.

This profusely illustrated book, as entertaining as it is informing, has the twofold advantage of being written by a man who knows the Great Lakes and their shores as well as what has been written about them. The general reader will enjoy the romance attaching to the past history of the lakes, and not lose the romance of the present—the story of the great commercial fleets that plough on inland seas, created to transport the fruits of the earth and the metals that are dug from the bowels of the earth. To the business man who has interests in or about the lakes, or to the prospective investor in enterprises in this section, the book will be found suggestive. Comparatively little has been written of these fresh-water seas, and many of Mr. Curwood's readers will be amazed at the wonderful story which this volume tells.

The book is divided into two parts, the first dealing with the ships, their owners, their sailors and their cargoes, and the second telling the origin and history of the lakes. Part of the contents of this volume was published in a Buffalo paper a year or so ago, and at that time The Herald published copious extracts from his references to "Buffalo and Duluth, the Alpha and Omega of the Lakes," in which he expressed the opinion, which steel men over the world believe, that the time is fast coming when Duluth will be a second and perhaps greater Pittsburg.

Most of the intensely dramatic incidents of this absorbing novel take place in the wireless station on a coast steamer, which is carrying not only a cargo of guns and ammunition for a South American revolution, but a number of those who are virtually interested in the outbreak on one side or the other, including a delightful young woman and an interesting young man who is full of courage and expedients, as a hero ought to be. It makes a drama of strongly sustained interest, one of the books that you may forget in the mass of others rather like it, but that you will read without stopping when you start it—sometimes without even stopping for breath. The chief characters are the wireless operator of the Laminian, the sister of a cabinet officer of a South American republic, and a soldier of fortune who makes his living fostering and fattening upon revolutions. If you wish a book merely to be interested and completely absorbed, here it is.

The cream of many volumes has been skimmed by the editor of these two handsome little volumes of quotations, whose titles and sub-titles are sufficiently descriptive. The quotations are well selected, and the volumes themselves are beautifully printed, making them desirable yet inexpensive gift books. The binding is novel, there being a double cover, tied with English tape.

There are many things besides bears in this interesting and lively little book. It tells of the country around Denver, Utah and the Yellowstone Park, and though the story has been told many times before, it is told differently here. The style is entertaining and breezy.

Among the Magazines.

A great many misconceptions in America will be cleared up by the article on "The Great Public Schools of England," by Everett T. Tomlinson, which leads the May number of Scribner's Magazine. They are not "public schools" at all in our sense, and they are not free for the fixed charges are high. They are, however, a great institution in the sense that any Englishboy of the governing classes there receives his deepest impress. This article describes the school life and customs with wonderful vividness and with interesting illustrations. "Gen. Sherman's Letters Home" cover some of the greatest events of the war, from October, '63, to January, '65. Many of the letters were written during the famous march through Georgia; they throw a very personal light on that great military achievement. Prof. Laughlin's sane and illuminating article on the great questions that are today before the American public reach in this number a discussion of "Socialism a Philosophy of Failure." He demonstrates the deadening influence of the practical application of socialism, and shows how it would be a degradation instead of an uplifting of the national life

Among the leading articles in Hampton's Magazine for May are: "Lincoln and the Boy Regiment," by Margarita Spalding Gerry; "The Heart of the Railroad Problem," part 2, by Charles Edward Russell; "On the Trail of the Ghost," part 2, by Vance Thompson; "Man in the Room," a story by Sewell Ford; "Man and William B. Maclarg; "Sea Elephant Hunting in the Wilds of the Antarctic," by Capt. Benjamin D. Cleveland; "Our Undermanned Navy—and Congress," by Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans; "Oklahoma and the One Indian," by Emerson Hough; "Marooned," a story by Charles Belmont Davis.

The burden of our changing social order falls upon our daughters, claims the Woman's Home Companion for May, and this magazine shows by striking examples and figures how spaying is our way of training girls. In this same issue is a charming article by Margaret Sangster showing that the millionaire mother is by no means as black as she painted Mary Heaton Vorse, in her own inimitable style proves that if we are fat it is our own fault In more serious mood is a trip through the Metropolitan Museum of Art with Sir Caspar Purdon Clarke as guide. This valuable article is illustrated by exquisite reproductions of famous paintings. Other articles of interest are "The Art of Economy," by Mrs. John Van Vorst, and "The Commuters of New York," by Albert Bigelow Paine. "An Imperial Wraith," by Clara Morris, contains charming reminiscences of the Empress Eugenie.

An indictment of the richest church in America—but an indictment which does not disturb one's faith in religion —is Ray Stannard Baker's theme in his article, "The Case Against Trinity," which is the leading feature of the May American Magazine. It is a scathing arraignment before the bar of public opinion, "The Indecent Stage" by Samuel Hopkins is a comment on the present tendency of the theater. The number of loud and immoral theatrical offerings today before the public is appalling. True stories which illustrate how sharp eyes, quick thinking and ingenious signals win baseball games, are told by Hugh S. Fullerton, the great baseball expert, under the title of "The Fine Points of the Game." The article is full of pictures of the most prominent players. This particular issue also contains some exceptional fiction.

One of the most distinctive short stories printed during the past few months is "The Sultan's Obligation," by Arnold M. Anderson, in the May issue of 10 Story Book. It is witty, interesting and exceedingly clever and original. This May issue of 10 Story Book, by the way, is an interrupting number. It contains a list of most unusual stories. The cover probably is the most attractive ever issued by a Western publisher. The illustrations are varied and suggestive. As to the stories, they are all most alluring to those who like good, lively, heart-gripping tales.

President Taft, in an article in McClure's Magazine for May, answers the critics of the Panama canal. The most prominent features of the May issue of Van Norden—the World Mirror—consist of an article by Congressman J. M. Griggs, one of the insurgent Democrats, on the reorganization of house procedure under the head of "The Man and the Machine;" an article, "Steel and Its Master," by Thomas Hanly, a keen, clead personality story of Judge Gary and his real position in the steel world; and an article by Lincoln Marshall on "Art and the Tariff," illustrated by five of the gems of Mr. Morgan's $30,000,000 art collection, and which may come to the United States under the "free art" tariff provision.

Alnslee's for May shows how constantly its publishers consult and provide for the wants of their readers. The table of contents embraces stories by Joseph C. Lincoln, Harold MacGrath, Leonard Merrick, Marie Van Vorst, a Western tale by Steel Williams, a mystery story by Henry Gallup Paine, and other short stories by Quentin M. Drake, Owen Oliver, Caroline Duer and Jane W. Guthie, all real stories in the true sense of the word.

Shudderlingly frankly brutal, yet striking a note so passionately human, that it will grip and sway even the unwilling reader in the thrill of the passion it relates of, is "The Higher Law," by Forrest Halsey, in Young's Magazine for May. Estale, alluring, helpless, lovely victim of life, is a figure of weakness, but whether inspiring sympathy or shrinking, unfallingly fascinating, in her hapless, tragic existence. Mr. Halsey has written a tale more tremendously daring, more powerful in plot and intimate in its flashlight on the follies of the smart set than any of his earlier novelettes has essayed.

In the May Lippincott's, the complete novel—"The Pomegranate Seed," by Katharine Metcalf Roof—is one of the most delightful love stories which have appeared in a decade. It it quite probable that the marriage of a popular light opera star to a well-known novelist, not long ago, gave to the author the idea for her plot. Her hero, it happens, is an artist, her heroine a dainty young singer in comic opera. Miss Roof's characters are admirably drawn, even the minor ones being clear cut and vivid. Griselda, the singer, is wholly charming, and one doesn't in the least blame Stephen for falling in love with her. The plot is ably handled, and the theatrical atmosphere distinctly good. The tale holds the readers interest till the end, despite the fact that "battle, murder, and sudden death," are conspicuous by their absence. The short stories are of a high order of excellence.

Jack London is represented in the May issue of the Smart Set by one of the most charming stories he has ever written, "Aloha Oe" is a tale of Hawaii, full of the romance and perfume of that sun-bathed island empire. In the development of the story is shown the basic idea of race-differences that introduces an interesting problem apropos of this country and its island dependencies. "His Child's Godmother," a complete novel is from the pen of Frances Pusey Gooch. It is a tale of the reconstructed South, a romance of the ward of a governor and the long-exiled son of an old war time governor, and presents a beautiful picture of the winning of a wife's love after marriage. John Kendrick Bangs' satire on literary stargazers, "First Aid to the Literary," is one of the cleverest pieces of work Mr. Bangs has done in recent years. Under the guise of gentle humor he raps smartly some of the main weaknesses of the latter-day novels.

Readers of "The Lonesome Trail," by B. M. Bower, which is now having a successful run as a best seller, will be glad to learn that this author of unlimitable Western stories is a regular contributor to the Popular Magazine. In the May number of The Popular there is a story entitled "Fool's Gold," which will be deemed by many to be better than any one of the stories in "The Lonesome Trail," it concerns the romance of the "Happy Family," in general, and one of them in particular. The May St. Nicholas brings the first chapters of an important new serial feature for the older girls and boys, in Charles H. Caffin's "The Story of Dutch Painting." The author explains that the tale of how the Dutchmen of the seventeenth century developed a new school of painting is a part of the lives and fortunes of the Dutch peoples, and so the story begins with a brief description of the struggle by which the separate provinces became united into a single nation, and of how during the struggle by which the separate provinces became united the people also found time to advance themselves in the arts of peace, including that of painting. Later chapters will tell what the individual artists accomplished in portraiture, in landscape, and in the representation of the indoor and outdoor life of the people, and will aim to make the narrative of Dutch painting illustrate some principles that may be of use in the study of painting generally. Reproductions of famous paintings by representative artists add to the value and interest of "the story."

A quaint old German town, Rothenburg, little known to tourists, is the subject of Robert Shackleton's article, opening the May number of Harper's Magazine. It is beautifully illustrated with picturesque drawings by Norman Irving Black. The frontispiece of this number is from a painting by Howard Pyle, made to illustrate probably the strongest story Justus Miles Forman has written, "The Garden of Eden." There is a charming article by two naturalists, C. William and Mary Hilton Beebe, "In the Venezuelan Wilderness," and an essay on New York's possibilities for relaxation, entitled "When the City Amuses Itself," written by that delightful essayist, E. S. Martin, and illustrated by John Edwin Jackson's striking drawings. "Three English Capitals of Industry," a graphic article describing Manchester, Sheffield and Liverpool is contributed by Mr. Howells.

Glimpses of "The Funny Side of Indian Home Life" are given by F. B. Moorehead in an article that reveals an intimate knowledge of the habits of the red men of the Northwest. Roy Knabenshue gives a thrilling account of "The Most Dramatic Event in My Life," his first airship ascension, which took place at the St. Louis world's fair and was the beginning of many successful trips through cloudland.

It is said that the name "Virginia Middleton," which is signed as that of the author of the complete novel in the current number of Smith's Magazine, "The Larger Life," which is attracting such widespread attention at present, is only a mask to cover the identity of a woman well known all over the country and especially prominent in connection with women's clubs. Whether this is so or not, the story is certainly the work of a trained writer, a keen and wise observer of life, and one who has known intimately from personal experiences many of the scenes and people described in the story.

A little knoll crowned by great gray boulders, from which a picture of unusual diversity can be enjoyed, is the site chosen for the unostentatious home of Charles P. Austin. Looking across the slope, a comprehensive view of the old Spanish Mission church rises in the foreground; beyond this the town of Santa Barbara stretches out, while still further on the pale waters of the Pacific ocean glisten in the setting sun, while from its bosom rise the rugged mountain peaks of the several channel islands, all tinged with the brilliant hues of a perfect sunset. Current Literature for May will come as a guiding light to many who have been bewildered by the complexities of recent tariff discussion. It detaches the salient points of the new Payne bill, and explains the "maximum" and "minimum" schedules of rates. The same issue of Current Literature gives the latest news of the woman's suffrage struggle in England, and the real facts in regard to Germany's navy and Britain's "panic. The "simplicity" of Mr. Rockefeller is discussed in an article based on the Standard Oil magnate's newly published "Reminiscences." Rockefeller also figures in an imaginary disputation with Tolstoy, reported by Maximilian Harden, the versatile German editor, and presented in Current Literature under the title, "Tolstoy versus Rockefeller—A Problem in Ethics." This is a fascinating bit of mental gymnastics, and Rockefeller triumphs.

The People's Magazine for May contains the final installment of Dr. William Bayard Hale's exciting tale of adventure, "The Enterprise of Empire." The May Century has fiction a plenty —the last chapters of Alice Hegan Rice's novel, "Mr. Opp," and stories in which humor is a dominant note by Mary Heaton Vorse, Adeline Knapp and W. Albert Hickman—but leading place is given to Thomas Nelson Page's story, "The Old Planters," a tale of a quaint old hostelry in Virginia, and of the quaint old aristocrats who played host, and of the guests who came and went. A wide range of matters much in the public mind is covered in the number: William M. Ivins, chairman of the New York charter commission, in a paper on "Public Service Commissions," comments on Frederic W. Whitridge's paper on "Public Morality and Street Railways" in the March Century; Christian Brinton gives critical estimate of the two great Spanish painters whose work is being shown in this country, Sorolla and Zuloaga; "The New Basis of Work for the Blind" is discussed by Samuel H. Bishop; Daniel Gregory Mason has recorded a conversation on music with Ossip Gabrilowitsch, and Cardinal Gibbons and Prof. Edward Aiswworth Ross have much of interest to say on America's increasing divorce rate and its significance.

Other stories in this number are "The Unwritten Code," by May Ellis Nichols, and two storiettes by Owen Kildare. Ellis Parker Butler, the author of "Pigs Is Pigs," contributes an amazing proposition for "The New Spelling and Punctuation." "Spirit Mediums and Certain Seances" is the title of an article by W. P. The May number of Putnam's is to a certain extent a travel and description number, appealing strongly to the interests of cosmopolitan readers. It covers incidentally such widely divergent topics as ex-President Roosevelt's trip to Africa, "The Alaska-Yukon Exposition at Seattle," "Camping Above the Yosemite Valley," "The Fascination of London," by a Londoner, and the lack of fascination of Paris for a certain fictitious sojourner, by an American humorist; "Jane Austen at Lyme Regis," England, "The Jumping Off Place" (the Ile de Brehat, off the north coast of France), and a poem of the Roman Campagna by the novelist Eden Philpotts.

The keynote of the National Magazine for May is sounded on the back of the frontispiece in the eloquent tribute by the editor to Mother's Day, which is celebrated on May 9, the second Sunday in the month, when it is suggested that every human being wear a white flower in honor of "the best mother who ever lived—your own." Notable contributions to this issue occur in the series of articles, "The Story of a Great Nation," in which is included the story of the weather bureau, by Willis E. Moore, director of the bureau, who gives a remarkable sketch of the work and its especial interest in view of the "flare-back" incident of the inauguration of 1909. The "Story of the Paper Mail Bag" is told by A. L. Lawshe, third assistant postmaster general. "The Nation's Great Library" is most captivatingly described by Herbert Putnam, librarian of congress. "The American Consul's" far-off foreign fields are contributing fascinating illustrated articles on their work.

In the current issue of Harper's Weekly occurs an interesting article entitled "The New Science of the Air," by Waldemar Kaempffert. It describes the experiments which are carried on at the Blue Hill meteorological observatory, from which kites and sounding balloons are sent up with recording instruments to explore the upper strata of the air. This issue contains an appreciation of the late Algernon Charles Swinburne, by C. H. Haines, who discusses and analyzes the poet's writings, refuting the charges of eroticism that have been levelled against him. Continuing his series of articles descriptive of his tramp round the world as a laborer, Harry A. Franck tells in an amusing narration how he crossed the Lebanon into Damascus, in spite of the opposition of a local sheikh, who attempted to raise a collection for his railroad ticket.

Architect F. W. Fitzpatrick of Washington, D. C., has stirred up a very lively discussion in foreign circles by a paper from his pen in the recent number of the International Review of Education, published in Paris, the leading sensational journal of the world. His paper is entitled "Too Much Education," and deals almost exclusively with conditions in this country. It is passing strange that the paper has not been translated and more widely commented upon by the American educational press. The London, Vienese, Russian and German educational periodicals have given that paper most serious attention, and seems to be about equally divided pro and con on that writer's views.

He deplores the theory we seemed to have worked upon here for the last generation in insisting upon the maximum of instruction for every one. Mr. Fitzpatrick states that in the past he was one of the most enthusiastic in the favor of obligatory instruction and the greatest amount of schooling possible for every one, but the consequences of such wide spread education have been so different from what was expected that he has changed his mind.

"The people, the proletariat," says he, "all are loaded down with education and scholastic training, and today we find ourselves with nothing but embryo presidents, senators and captains of industry upon our hands, a race of managers, of directors, of superintendents. All must do brain work, and you insult the man if you ask him to work with his hands. All are above that, they are educated, why should they work as does the laborer and the tiller of the soil? Our farms are abandoned; the young people are crowding to the cities, and every farmer's son must be a doctor or a lawyer, or at least a school teacher or a stenographer!"

He gives exhaustive figures and statistics to show that in our solicitude for the education of the lower classes we have made huge additions to the criminal class and contributed to the general unrest and woe of the urban classes. He suggests as a partial remedy that only the most elementary instruction of a bookish nature be made obligatory, and that industrial and agricultural schools be established everywhere. That the lower grades of the common schools be less diversified in the information imparted and more thorough along the elementary lines. The present light touch upon so many subjects but encourages frivolity in the young and lack of application and the sense of satisfaction in the possession of a mere glossary information upon many things, where a thorough grounding in one or two would be infinitely more beneficial.

He says that the state should exercise still more paternal care of the sch

SOCIETY

HOUSECLEANING, spring sewing, an endless discussion of the weather, anticipating "The Merry Widow," preparing for the rummage sale for the Children's home, again speaking of the weather, sleighrides, a discussion of whether it were best to again get out the snow shoes or not, maybe a little bridge, and then a rearranging of the necessary four for more bridge, and that's Duluth socially.

The coming week promises no more stirring activities. The weather has prolonged housecleaning, people are getting accustomed to thinking of their friends in new and different domiciles, for seemingly there never was so much moving, and those are the excitements over which folks are endeavoring to keep the blood circulating rapidly, and a keen and intense interest in life.

Many Duluthians will be interested in the wedding of Mrs. Carrie Orr Partridge formerly of this city, and H. F. Jordan of Cleveland, Ohio, which took place Thursday evening at Oak Park, Ill., where Mrs. Partridge has lived for several years with her family since moving from Duluth. Mr. and Mrs. Jordan will be at home at Cleveland Ohio.

One of the interesting announcements of the week was the engagement of Miss Irene Anna Whiting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Northrop Whiting, to Drusus Holbrook Nichols of Chicago. Mrs. Whiting entertained informally Wednesday afternoon in honor of her daughter. Bridge was played at three tables, and the favors were won by Mrs. E. F. Burg and Miss Heimbach. Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Whiting entertained again at bridge at five tables in honor of their daughter and Mr. Nichols, who was a guest in the city during the week. The favors were won by Miss Ross and Harry Fisher.

The members of the Ionic Social club entertained last evening at the first of the post Lenten parties at the ballroom of the Masonic temple. The spring colors were used most effectively in the decorations. The side walls were hung in streamers of yellow and white bunting and violet and white was used to partly conceal the ceiling. Asparagus ferns were the flowers used in decoration. La Brosse's orchestra played the program of dancing music and a large number of guests enjoyed the affair.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Dr. Jenks Describes the Building to Be Erected By Minnesota Union.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. Jenks, in his talk at the first annual gathering of the Minnesota union, described in detail to the university men, the building which they are to erect next year. The complete plans were thrown upon the stereopticon screen at the same time. The building is to be a massive gray and white stone structure. On the first floor will be the mammoth dining room with a capacity for serving 1,040. Opening from this, are two private dining rooms, one for the women guests of the union, mothers and sisters, the other for banquet purposes. Provision is also made for a cigar and news stand in the main hall.

On the second floor is located the grand dance hall, opening from which are two out-door balcony promenades. The hall runs two stories, surmounted at the height of the first floor by a balcony.

Opening off from the hall and extending to the rear, lies the theater, which is to be the finest for its size in the Northwest. On this floor also are found the gaming rooms; pool and billiard rooms, with twelve tables, smoking room and the great living room, which reaches the full height of the two stories and is overlooked from above by a visitors' gallery.

The third floor offers opportunity for expansion; plans only requiring the finishing of suites and baths for the guests of the union.

James A. Peterson, formerly district attorney of Hennepin county, and member of the legislature, spoke to the men of the university Tuesday afternoon, and a permanent organization of a non-partizan political association was affected. Mr. Peterson has been called the "Lone Fighter of Minneapolis," by Senator La Follette's weekly. He spoke on the political developments in Wisconsin and their relation to the situation in Minnesota. The formation of the student club for cleaner politics was the result of his visit to the campus.

In the competitive drill last Saturday Company A, under Capt. Louis Diamond, won first place. Company D took second, B third and C fourth. All of the companies were so nearly on a par that Maj. Mears, the judging officer, was put to it to decide what company had the best average. Capt. Robert Foulke of Company C was the only commander who committed no errors during the drill.

Next Saturday Company A, Company E and Company I, the one from the Farm college, will compete for the possession of the flag for the coming year. Capt. Sedgwick Rice of the Third United States cavalry, commandant of St. Thomas' college, will be the judge. After the drill regimental review and inspection will be held. Capt. Rice will be the reviewing officer.

Since the May fete cannot occur May day, it has been decided to hold the election of May queen on that date. The results of the election will be in the hands of the chairman of the May Queen committee and this committee and the three candidates for the position will be the only ones to know who is the successful candidate until the day of the fete. At 3 p. m. of the festal day, May 20, the queen will be crowned with due ceremony. She will be accompanied by sixteen of the prettiest girls in college, four from each class, who will celebrate her coronation by means of a May Pole dance. It is hoped to make this escort a permanent feature of similar occasions for the future.

Tuesday, elections were held for the officers of the Woman's league and for the Self Government association. About 500 votes were cast in the latter organization.

Charles Cheney, the political editor of the Minneapolis Journal, spoke on "Political News" at the final lecture of the series on Journalism, Thursday afternoon. These lectures have been given every Thursday afternoon for the past ten weeks, under the auspices of the Press club, and have proved a great success.

Saturday, a new law fraternity, Alpha Kappa Phi, made its appearance on the university campus. A committee, consisting of A. F. Marshall, K. J. Nordhold, alumni of Northwestern university, and William A. Sheehan of the Illinois law school, representing the national organization, installed Zeta chapter at Minnesota, Saturday evening. The fraternity is national, the first five chapters having been formed at Northwestern, Illinois law school, John Marshall law school and University of Chicago.

Thursday was "fan day" at college. Hundreds of artistic little Japanese fans were imported by the Woman's league for this purpose. The little fans sold for 2 cents each, and all the co-eds had them coquettishly arranged in their hair, while the men wore them in button holes. The date and place of the presentation of "The Mikado" was on the back, the league taking this method to advertise the Japanese opera which is to be put on the middle of May.

* * *

Announcement was made Thursday morning in chapel of the ten seniors who were elected to Lamba Alpha Psi, the honorary language fraternity. This society, formed to promote literary culture and to encourage the study of language, was established by the leading members of the language faculty of Minnesota a year ago, and has just held its first election. The rigid requirements for election to membership permits only a few to receive the honor. The society occupies a position in language and literature similar to that of Sigma Xi in science.

* * *

Tam O'Shanter is to have another spread May 5th. Ethel Stratton presiding at the toasts. These have been selected with a view to representing college as it is. The subjects are: "One Being Broke," "On Cutting Class," "On Being Educated," and "On College Fashions."

Chamberlain's Liniment.

This is a new preparation and a good one. It is especially valuable as a cure for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and for the relief from pain which it affords in acute inflammatory rheumatism. Those who have used it have invariably spoken of it in the highest terms. A prompt, lame back, lame shoulder and stiff neck are due to rheumatism of the muscles, usually brought on by exposure to cold or damp, and are quickly cured by applying this liniment freely and massaging the affected parts. Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is allayed by this liniment. For sale by all druggists.

NORMAL SCHOOL NOTES

At the chapel exercises on Friday the students in the kindergarten training department gave a very pleasing musical program of children's songs. * * *

The class in school management began its work this week. This class offering a lecturing course, conducted by President Bohannon, continues for a month through the last term of the school year.

* * *

The Thalian Literary society gave a very interesting program at an open door meeting held yesterday at 2:15 in the assembly hall. The following was the program offered: Piano solo, Miss Ruby Krause; reading, Miss Myrtle King; paper, "Shakespeare's Types of Women," Miss Edith Hopkins; vocal solo, Miss Zada Doran; reading, Miss Eugenia Stapleton; piano solo, Miss Elsie Overman.

* * *

The senior play cast has been working very faithfully the last few weeks, holding two and three rehearsals a week, to get the play ready for its presentation. Miss Long and Miss Van Stone are supervising the rehearsals.

* * *

The regular meeting of the Greysolon Literary society, which was to have been held yesterday afternoon, was postponed on account of the open door meeting of the Thalian society. The Greysolon society issued an invitation to the members of the Thalian society to attend a meeting to be held next Friday.

* * *

The student teachers of the advanced graduate course beginning next Monday, will teach for the remaining six weeks in grades, other than they have been teaching in. The students of the elementary courses, who have been observing the teaching in the model department, will begin their work there as student teachers next week.

* * *

The athletic association has again taken up its work, meeting one week with Miss Long and the next week with Miss Van Stone. The class with Miss Long is taking work in physical culture and that under Miss Van Stone is learning fancy steps and dancing.

* * *

Mr. Bohannon attended the meeting of the state normal school board, which was held in St. Paul on Tuesday.

* * *

The summer school term this year will begin the week following the closing of the spring term and continue for seven weeks.

* * *

Several of the seniors have been elected to fill positions as teachers for next year.

A Card.

This is to certify that all druggists are authorized to refund your money if Foley's Honey and Tar fails to cure your cough or cold. It stops the cough, heals the lungs and prevents pneumonia and consumption. Contains no opiates. The genuine is in a yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

ODD FELLOWS' CELEBRATION

Anniversary of the Founding of the Order is Observed.

In commemoration of the nineteenth anniversary of the founding of the Odd Fellows' order, Duluth and Superior members of the order held a celebration in the I. O. O. F. building, under the auspices of Duluth lodge, No. 28. A program of addresses and music was followed by refreshments and dancing.

T. W. Hugo made the principal address of the evening. He briefly reviewed the history of the human race, from the time of its origin to the present. He told of the period when men began to recognize each other as brothers. He told of the principles of Odd Fellowship, emphasizing the fact that the order is not a charitable organization, and that beneficiaries are only receiving that which they have previously paid for.

Thomas H. Pressnell, who was the first noble grand of the Duluth lodge, and who has been a member since it was established, Aug. 2, 1870, reviewed the history of the lodge. His talk was an interesting one. Thomas J. St. Germain, past noble grand, presided at the meeting last night. Dr. W. H. Konkler, the present noble grand; L. A. Barnes and Chief Troyer were also among the speakers. The Zenith Juvenile orchestra of the Franklin school, under the leadership of Miss E. T. Abbott, furnished several numbers on the musical program, which were well received.

World's Labor Day Will Be Observed at Lincoln Park.

The world's labor day will be celebrated by the Socialists of the city at Lincoln park this evening. They will gather in the auditorium at the park, and there will be speeches by John A. Keyes, Morris Kaplan, David M. Robertson, Ed Blackwood, P. G. Phillips and Henry Johnson, the latter a professor at the Finnish college.

The red flag of Socialism will wave beside the Stars and Stripes at the head of a procession this evening. The line of march will be from the headquarters, 104 West Second street, down First avenue west to First street, then east to First avenue east, thence to Superior street, and west to the park.

DOG FIGHT IN CLERK'S OFFICE

A dog fight enlivened the monotony of existence in the city clerk's office yesterday. About fifty canines, in the custody of their owners, visited the office for license tags, bringing the total number issued up to the present time to over 100.

A large bull dog of particularly ugly appearance, and a small, clean-cut, active Boston bull terrier eyed each other sullenly from behind their owners. The big bull dog belonged to a chauffeur and the Boston bull to a woman.

Before anyone realized what was happening, the two dogs were together, fighting for dear life in the center of the room. The employes scrambled for safety on to desks and tables. Yelps and howls of pain filled the air. When things quieted down a bit the terrier was discovered with a vise-like grip underneath the jaw of his adversary, and it almost needed a crowbar to pry him loose. Neither dog was much the worse for wear. The lady and the chauffeur took their respective dogs and hurried away.

GIMBEL BROS. WILL PAY $70,000,000 IN RENT.

New York, May 1.—What is said to be one of the most important realty deals in recent years was completed late yesterday, when Gimbel Bros. of Philadelphia signed a lease for a property on Broadway between Thirty-second and Thirty-third streets, on which they will at once begin the erection of a building for a department store.

For the first twenty-one years of the lease the total rentals will amount to more than $12,000,000 net. This and four subsequent twenty-one year terms, making the lease extend over a period of 105 years, will obligate the lessees to make total payment of $50,000,000 or $70,000,000 in rentals alone, exclusive of taxes and other charges. The property covers 80,000 square feet, or thirty-two city lots.

The Battle in the Cream Jug.

BY MAUD WALKER.

BREAKFAST was over and Bridget had left the table as it was for a little while, for she wanted to lean over the back yard fence to gossip with Mary Brady, next door, being a great friend of Mary's and loving to hear the latest news from the neighbor's house.

And on the table—and open, too—was the cream jug. Had it been covered, or had the sugar bowl been open, this story would never have been told. As it was the cream jug was the only dish on the table that held something to eat—or to drink, as the case might be—and was at the same time open for inspection. And in the window near by sat a hungry fly, waiting for his sense of smell to lead him to a bit of breakfast. And, sure enough, the cream jug afforded the fragrant odor which caught the nostrils of Mr. Hungry Fly, and his wings acted in obedience to his stomach's wants and his mind's dictation, the latter being led by the nose.

But hardly had Mr. Hungry Fly perched himself in the perilous edge of the white china cream jug when his well trained ears heard a sound familiar, the buz, buz, buz of another fly. And Mr Another Fly also scented the cream and was coming in the direction of the jug which held it. "Buz, buz, buz!" went Mr. Another Fly, arriving also on the edge of the cream jug and peeping within. "Smells like food," he said to himself, winking and blinking and rubbing his fuzzy hind feet together as he stood balanced on his fuzzy front feet. And then his eye caught sight of Mr. Hungry Fly, who also was standing on his front feet rubbing his hind feet together. "Oh, ho, comrade!" cried out Mr Another Fly. "Are you here to feast at the lake of sweet white juice also?"

"I was here before you came," declared Mr Hungry Fly, his tone unfriendly. "And as I own this little white lake, own it because I discovered it, I shall ask you to kindly withdraw. This place is mine."

"And how came it to be yours?" asked Mr. Another Fly, laughing in spite of himself. It was too absurd, he thought, to hear a fly say he owned any special thing which he could not eat and carry about with him.

"I told you it is mine by right of discovery," declared Mr. Hungry Fly. "So, please be off."

"But I am hungry," said Mr. Another Fly, still rubbing his hind legs together, "and I mean to sip from this lake of white sweet juice. It cannot all belong to you for there is more than you can eat, and only that which you can eat belongs to you. So I shall dip into the lake and all myself. Then I shall go to the flowers in the window, and under the deep shade of a geranium leaf, will take my morning nap. And if you can proceed to devour all that is in this lake, you have my consent to do so. But let me warn you, there is danger of your bursting."

Then, with a gay laugh, Mr. Another Fly dipped down into the cream jug to refresh himself from the lake of cream. But hardly had he done so when Mr. Hungry Fly flew fiercely at him and planted his sharp nippers into his neck. Then a battle ensued in which it was hard to tell which combatant would come out victorious, for first one and then the other would be in the cream, struggling to keep from drowning, while the other one would be biting and scratching with all his might.

It is hard to say how long this terrific battle in the cream jug might have lasted had not something happened to put a sudden stop to it. In came little Johnny, the seven-year-old son of the house, his appetite sharpening as he saw the breakfast table still standing. Although he had finished a hearty morning meal twenty minutes before, like all growing boys, he still had room for more, and reaching for the cream jug he peeped into it to see if there was anything worth swallowing. "Gee, two flies!" he exclaimed. "Shew!" And he tried to frighten the fighters out of the jug. Mr. Another Fly heeded the warning and lifted himself from the lake, but Mr. Hungry Fly, still quivering with anger, buzzed about in the jug, determined to hold the fort against any intruder.

"What, you won't get out?" And Johnny caught the quarrelsome Mr. Hungry Fly between his fingers and thumb and threw him out of doors, saying: "One less fly to get into things that don't belong to him."

And there's a moral to this story if you'll try to find it. And the lesson is that selfishness and greed often bring us to grief, for we reap as we sow.

"What, you won't get out?"

Little Dog Fido and His Picnic.

BY HELENA DAVIS.

"I REALLY think, Fido, dear, that you ought to have a picnic on your birthday," declared Helen, speaking to her little pet doggie. "You'll be six months old Saturday and we ought to celebrate the day, just as my birthday is celebrated every year. Of course, you're not old enough to have a real, sure-enough birthday, for that comes only after you have lived a whole year, and then it occurs every year afterward. But you'll have half a birthday when you are six months old, and should at least have half a birthday party. Now, what do you think about it, Fido?"

Helen and Fido were sitting on the doorstep in the bright, warm sunshine of a May morning, and Fido had just finished a good breakfast, Helen having fed him just as mother feeds her beloved child. And Helen really cared for Fido as tenderly as though he had been a baby brother instead of a baby dog, for Fido had no mother and Helen had no baby brother.

Fido looked up at Helen and wagged his tail, which meant: "Yes, my dear, I should love to have a picnic in honor of my half birthday. Shall we have a fine luncheon and lots of play?"

And knowing that Fido was asking for information regarding the picnic Helen went into detail about her plan. "We'll go to the park where the picnic tables are fixed, and there is a pretty lake, and we can get in a boat and be rowed across and back. Oh, it will be whole lots of fun, Fido."

And again Fido wagged his tail and so round and fluffy. Helen's mamma had arranged Fido's toilet before the rest of the household was astir, for she wanted him to be perfectly dry from his bath before time to start to the park. About Fido's neck was a lovely pink ribbon, tied in a butterfly bow at the back. Oh, he did look really lovely, so thought Helen.

"Well, Doggie, you're all ready to go to your half birthday party," cried Helen, springing from her bed. "And I must hurry a bit, and be all dressed before mamma knows I am awake." So she rushed about, Fido at her heels, and pretty soon she and he went downstairs, both looking perfectly splendid. Helen wore a pink lawn frock trimmed with white lace, the colors matching exactly with Fido's coat and neck ribbon.

"Well, my little girl is up and dressed," exclaimed mamma. "And I was about to run upstairs to call you. Have you seen Fido?"

"Why, he came in and woke me up," laughed Helen. "Here he is, the lovely dear, right behind me, wagging his tail till it threatens to come off. Oh, Mamma, you have fixed him so beautifully."

"Yes, he does look very nice, and so does my little girlie," smiled mamma. "But we must get through breakfast, and then off to the park. You know Harry, Gertrude, Gracie, Flora, Paul, Pink, Tommy and Pearl are to meet us there precisely at 10 o'clock. It is now half-past eight."

At precisely 10 o'clock, Helen and Fido, in care of Helen's dear mamma, entered the picnic-grounds of the big park. Helen and her mamma carried baskets, for Fido must have a real luncheon at his party. Within a few minutes all the guests had assembled, and Pink Adams brought with her a dear little dog, somewhat older than Fido. But Fido was very cordial to this strange puppy, for it was his party, and he could afford to treat even an animal pleasantly. Together Fido and the other doggie—Coward, by name, (he was mortally afraid of cats and very big dogs, therefore the unusual name)—ran races up and down the green lawn, barking in their glee. Then, Coward, growing bold, went down over the abrupt bank leading to the lake, and Fido, young and thoughtless—and so very much excited—ran after him, looking back to see if his mistress, Helen, were laughing at him. And of a sudden he went plump into the lake which was very deep at that point.

Of course there was a terrible scene. Fido barked as soon as he could get his nose above water, and instantly his mouth got filled with water. Coward, on the bank, frisked about like one mad, barking furiously. And Helen and all her guests were jumping around like so many spinning tops, all declaring that Fido would be drowned unless some one got a policeman to rescue him. And mamma was trying with all her might to explain to Helen—and all the other little ones—that Fido would soon swim ashore. "A dog can swim in water as well as he can walk on dry ground," she said. "Now, just watch him! See, he is making his way toward the shore. There, Tommy, stoop down and give a lift to Fido."

And then all the excitement was over, for Tommy had helped Fido to dry land once more, and the poor, frightened little fellow was shaking his body, throwing off water in every direction, causing every one save Helen to get a safe distance from him, otherwise he would soil their very best clothes.

After Helen saw that Fido was none the worse for his dip in the lake she became merry again, and soon the entire little picnic party was engaged in games which they played till luncheon was spread on the ground, for Helen's mamma thought the children would prefer the old-fashioned picnic dinner served in that way rather than have it on the rough tables.

Hardly had the children—and Coward and Fido, too, of course—got seated about the picnic cloth when Fido beheld a fly perched on the edge of the lemonade pitcher, and, making a quick leap for it, upset the pitcher, spilling its contents all over the luncheon cloth. Of course, Helen's mamma cleared away the muss by getting a fresh cloth from the basket and spreading it near to the old one and lifting the luncheon from the stained and dripping cloth to the fresh one, and all the time Fido was frisking about as though he had not got into any mischief at all.

"We'll not scold him on his half-birthday, will we Mamma?" asked Helen. "He didn't mean to jump into the lake, nor to upset the lemonade, either."

"No, it is I who should be scolded—if a scolding is due any one," explained Helen's mamma, "for doggies are not supposed to know much about table manners, and if brought to table with company must be excused for any little blunders they may make. So we'll not blame poor Fido, who is only a baby, after all, for he's just six months old today."

"Yes, and what would we know at six months of age?" asked Helen. "Not half as much as Fido knows, would we? So, go right on, Doggie, for this is your party. But please don't get into the lake again, nor into the lemonade pitcher." But at this moment Fido began putting his nose into a plate of cold ham, and Helen had to take him and hold him in her lap during the rest of the meal.

And that evening as they went home from the picnic Helen asked Fido if he had enjoyed the day. And Fido said yes with his tail.

OH, THESE KIDS.

Teacher—I'm glad to see that you respect your father and mother.

Tommie—I've got to. Why, either of 'em could lick me with one hand.

A Wise Little Mouse.

A LITTLE mouse did from a hole
Slyly peep, then gently stole
Forth to find a bite to eat;
A bit of cheese would be a treat.

But hardly had she found a shelf
Whereon she might feed herself,
When suddenly she said, "What's that?
It sounded like a great Tom cat."

And sure enough, 'tis sad to say
An old Tom cat had come that way,
But mousie very quickly hid
Behind a big black kettle lid.

And 'neath that cover she did stay
Till Thomas Cat had gone away;
Then, after eating, back she stole
Well filled and happy to the hole.

The Reward of Billy's Day at Home.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

WHICH of you boys will work in my garden today?" The question was asked by Grandmamma Smith of her three grandsons.

They were all seated at the breakfast table and the subject of fishing had come up. "I'm going fishing as soon as my morning chores are done," Jackson had declared, and Bert had cried out his intention of joining him. "And I'm going hunting for wonders," said Billy, the youngest of the three. "I bet these prairies are full of wonders—Indian graves, treasures of one sort and another. You boys may get all the fish you want, but I'll find wonders—treasures, maybe."

And then it was that Grandmamma asked which of them would stay at home and work in her garden. The spring rains, followed by very warm sunshine, had brought out not only the vegetables from the ground, but the weeds as well. And as the farm hands were all as busy as they could be with the larger interests of the big 300-acre farm Grandmamma's garden seemed in a way to suffer, unless one of the visiting grandsons, from the town a few miles distant, should offer his strong arms to wield the hoe and slay the weeds.

Grandmamma's question was not answered at once. Three boys dropped their faces over their plates and three boys waited, each for the other to speak first. The silence was broken by Grandpapa saying "Don't all offer at once. One gardener will be all that is needed today. Only the peas and beans want attention. I've got the other vegetable beds pretty clean."

"I just can't stay here and work in the garden," said Jackson to himself. Then aloud: "Say, Grandpapa, can't the peas and beans wait till after 4 o'clock this afternoon? I'll be done fishing then."

"Yes, let them wait till 4 o'clock," seconded Bert. "And I'll help Jack then."

Grandmamma and Grandpapa looked about on the three faces. Grandmamma spoke: "No, children, if you do not want to work in my garden—why, we'll not insist. Go right on with your fishing plans."

Billy glanced at dear old Grandmamma's face. It was so sweet, and there was an expression of "Don't worry yourselves about me or mine, my dear boys," in it. And Billy recalled the many, many happy summers he had spent on this dear old farm, and the countless things Grandmamma and Grandpapa had done to give him pleasure—him and his brothers. And now that a boy's hands were needed to do something for these unselfish old folks not one of the three was ready to offer. Billy felt a blush of shame coloring his face, and raising his eyes to Grandmamma's he said warmly: "I'll stay at home today and work the garden, Grandmamma. I'd rather help you than to go searching for wonders and treasures. I'll handle the hoe today, and when evening comes I hope there'll not be a weed left."

"And Billy'll get his wonders later on in the shape of melons and other good things that come from a well-kept garden," said Grandpapa.

Then the breakfast was over and Jackson and Bert got out their fishing tackle while Billy ran to the implement house for the hoe, and pretty soon he was heard whistling merrily while he chopped off the heads of weeds.

After dinner, which on the farm was served at noon, Billy rested a bit before returning to his work. Then, with renewed vigor, he resumed "killing the enemy," as he said of cutting out weeds. While digging about the roots of a dying peach tree, one which Grandpapa intended to uproot from his garden, Billy decided to save Grandpapa the work of getting rid of it, and set about to pull from the ground the bits of root which he could get at with his hoe. But they seemed so firmly grown into the soil that Billy had to get the spade from the tool house, for the hoe was useless in trying to get old and heavy roots from the ground.

"I'll bet Grandmamma and Grandpapa will be mighty pleased when they see that I have loosened all the roots of this useless little tree. It's not a very hard job, anyway, for it isn't more than two years old. It has begun to die before it began to bear—more's the pity, for it might have made a fine tree had it lived. Well, here's a good long root!—runs clean out under the bean bed. I'm going to follow it, for it's in the way of future plowing. I'll just go after this fellow—Ho, I've struck a stone, and it'll hurt the blade of the spade. Gee, it's not a stone, either, it's something—something——"

Hereupon Billy stooped and drew the soft soil from the object which had resisted the blade of his spade. "Why, it's an old iron pot!" And Billy became excited. Then, hearing his Grandmother's voice speaking to him from the kitchen porch, Billy called to her to come to the garden at once. "Here's an old iron pot, Grandmamma, and I'm sure there's some mystery connected with its being buried here. Come and look at it."

"Yes, my little excavator of wonders," laughed Grandmamma. "And if there is any treasure contained in the pot it is yours—all yours. Jackson and Bert wouldn't remain and help you with the work so as to get it done quickly, and give you an opportunity to play some today as well as themselves, and they shall have no part of the unearthed treasure. But, listen, Billy, something has just come to my memory, something I heard long, long ago, but which had slipped entirely from my mind. I'll tell you while you rest a bit, for you're pretty tired."

Billy leaned on the handle of his spade while Grandmamma told him a bit of history he had never heard before.

"You see," began Grandmamma, "in the days of 'Forty-nine' one of the old wagon routes leading to and from the Rocky Mountains—and the California gold fields beyond—ran right across this very farm we now own. At that time this part of the country was called the Great Plains, and many and many a fierce Indian and Paleface conflict has occurred hereabouts. You see, that river down there afforded the travelers water, and after leaving this very spot on the plains no water was to be had for over a hundred miles. So water was carried from that river—where Jackson and Bert are now fishing—by the hundreds and thousands of weary travelers who were braving privation—death itself—to gain that land where gold was to be had for the digging. Well, there is a story that three men who had gone to California in forty-nine, and who had found gold there, and who had supplied themselves with several thousand dollars' worth of nuggets became homesick for the East, and leaving their miner comrades in the far West started on their homeward journey alone. The story has it that they reached this river—some place about that big bend where you boys fish—when the hostile Indians, then roving about in bands, killed them, taking their scalps as trophies of war, though how the wild savages could call it war, when only three men were pitted against a band of hundreds, I have never been able to understand. Well, the three men never reached their eastern home, nor were they ever seen by white man after they reached this river. There they were met by a wagon train going West and it was from these travelers that the story I am now telling you came. They described those three men, and the description fitted the three miners who had quitted the California camp to make their way alone across the mountains and plains which separated them from the East.

"Well, it was well known that those men carried with them enough gold to make them quite rich, and it was the custom of those times to bury money or treasure each night while in camp. The travelers did this so that in case of their being killed during the night by Indians their money and valuables might be found by white men passing that way. And when it became known years later that the three travelers had never reached their home, and had never been heard of after having been seen at this point, there were many who declared the gold nuggets they carried with them were buried hereabouts; and that whole river bottom for half a mile above and below the old camping place has been dug into by hundreds of men who thought they would unearth a mine of gold without crossing the Rocky Mountains to do so.

"But never was there so much as an old tin can found. The travelers usually buried their money and valuables in old tin cans from which they drank their coffee and water during the day. Well, never so much as a penny in value was found about that old camp near the river. And that's why I forgot the story years before you were born."

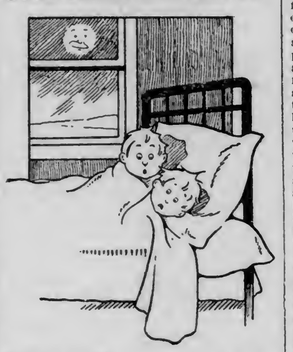
"Well, Grandmamma, I do believe I've found something that was buried at the time you tell about." And Billy's eyes sparkled with anticipation.

Billy, after much prying at the rusted lid with the strong blade of the spade, got it removed. And inside the strange treasure-box there lay a rotting mass of rag, which, upon being touched by Billy's nervous hand, dropped to ashes, leaving to view several dull yellow pieces of metal. Billy's eyes almost started from his head; Grandmamma stood transfixed to the spot, saying in a low voice: "As sure as we live, Billy, this is the hidden gold of some of these old forty-niners, and by the merest chance you have found it. Just to think that we have lived here for 25 years, and before our coming here others occupied this ranch, and yet none of us ever went deep enough into the ground to find this wealth. Why, sonny, it's a fortune, for I know something about gold in nugget form. Come, take it out and let's call Grandpapa to look at it."

"And whose is it?" asked Billy, excited, holding the store of gold in his hat. "It's yours, my dear child," declared Grandmamma, "for you it was who stayed at home to work, and working, found your fortune."

"But listen, Billy, something has just come to my memory, something I heard long, long ago."

Good Children Never Fear



WHEN the night of darkness, deep,
Comes to bring us rest and sleep
Into bed we snuggle tight,
For there won't be any light.

And if good we've been all day
We'll not be afraid to stay
All alone, for angels keep Watch where dear good children sleep.

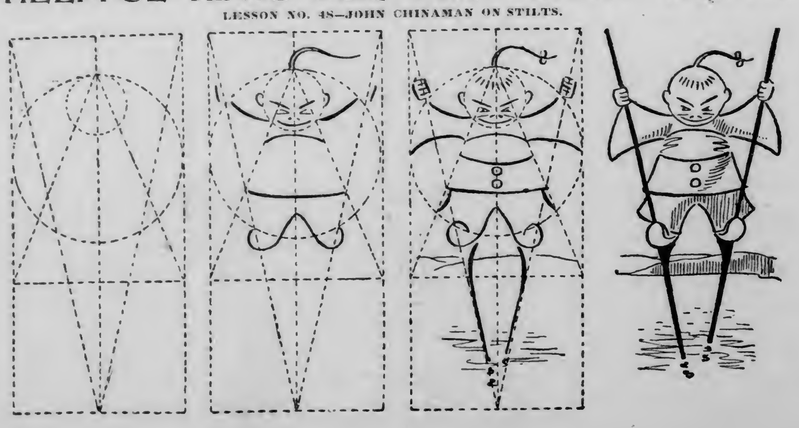
Only naughty children fear
Every little noise they hear,
But if good they know that there
Is no danger anywhere.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR OUR YOUNG ARTISTS.

LESSON NO. 48—JOHN CHINAMAN ON STILTS.



Our Puzzle Corner

ZIGZAG PUZZLE.

The words contain four letters each. If the words are rightly guessed, and written one below another, their zigzag letters, beginning with the upper left-hand letter and ending with the lower left-hand letter, will spell the name of an American general. The cross-words are: 1. To render vocal music. 2. A two-wheeled cart. 3. A small insect. 4. That which equestrians often wear on a boot. 5. A toilet article. 6. A small wild animal. 7. A feature of the human face.

WHERE?

"Farmer Boy, where is your father?"
Boy—There.
Can you find him?

BEHEADINGS.

1. Behead a wind musical instrument and leave a stringed musical instrument. 2. Doubly behead pleasure and leave the weight of a feather. 3. Behead a polished stone used for watch fobs and seal rings and leave the entrance to a fenced yard.

CURTAILINGS.

1. Triply curtail the bearing of an inferior towards his superior and leave the song of the bees. 2. Curtail the name of one of Shakespeare's most famous characters and leave a very fine city in Europe. 3. Doubly curtail a piece of American money and leave two pints of anything.

LETTER ENIGMA.

My first is in pie, but not in cake;
My second is in river, but not in lake;
My third is in cart, but not in dray;
My fourth is in wander, but not in stay;
My fifth is the same as my second, you see;
My sixth is also the same as my three;
My whole spells that
Which all children love,
And they'll know what it is
If they solve the above.

DOUBLE ACROSTIC.

All the words of the acrostic contain the same number of letters. When the words are correctly guessed and written one below another their initial letters will spell the name of an American writer and their last letters will spell the style of literature he wrote. The cross-words are: 1. To get a sudden thump on the head. 2. The name of a county in Kansas. 3. Another name for Christmas tide. 4. A female relative. 5. To be close by. 6. To be neat.

ANSWERS TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLES.

Letter Enigma: Magician.

Zigzag Puzzle: British. The cross-words are, 1, Brow; 2, Bran; 3, Hair; 4, Wait; 5, Bait; 6, Isle; 7, Hymn.

Job-Lot Letter Puzzle: Proverb, "We never miss the water till the well runs dry."

Assessments were taken this morning by City Assessor William Tideman and his corps of assistants. The personal property is first being checked up and the real estate valuations will be made later.

RAILROAD NEWS

TO SHIP ORE NEXT WEEK

First Boats Will Be Loaded Early Monday Morning.

The Missabe Docks Have Enough on Hand to Begin Shipping.

Ore loading from the docks of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, will begin bright and early Monday morning, according to the predictions of the officials of that road. There is a quantity of ore upon the docks at the present time, so that with the arrival of the first ore boat, the officials are ready to start shipping.

Officials of the Missabe railroad do not believe that the present heavy fall of snow will interfere with the shipping of ore from the ranges. They have sufficient ore upon the docks at the present time to start the early season boats, and even should the open pit mining be delayed for several days through the flooding of the pits, there will be no delay in the shipping from the Missabe docks.

Missabe officials today received word from the Soo that a large fleet of the Pittsburg Steamship company's boats was on its way to Duluth. These boats are due here tomorrow, when ore loading will be started at Duluth and Two Harbors.

RAILROADS FEEL COMPETITION

With the inauguration of the lake shipping season, Duluth railroads begin to feel the competition of the lake carriers. For the past two weeks eastbound freight has been awaiting the opening of the navigation season. The water rates are naturally cheaper than the all-rail rates to Eastern points, and with the starting of the package freighters and the grain boats, the railroads will find their freight revenue reduced.

Several Duluth agents this morning stated that their lines were beginning to feel the reduction in freight traffic caused by the shipments on the lake carriers.

With any decrease in the volume of freight that the opening of the season of navigation may cause however, comes a great increase in the passenger travel from Duluth to all Western points. The Northern Pacific and Great Northern railway officials report a heavy travel out of Duluth, especially a heavy travel to coast points. All of the other Duluth railway agents report an increase in passenger travel from this city.

TRAINS ARE ON SCHEDULE

No More Delays Have Resulted From the Storm.

Duluth railway officials report that the worst of the storm is over, according to reports from various sections of the railroads entering Duluth. Duluth roads were not delayed today because of the storm, and reports received at the Duluth office of the Northwestern railway indicate that the storm has abated throughout the Iowa and Wisconsin territory of that road.

Railroad wires are working in good order today, for the first time since the beginning of the blizzard. Coast trains are running upon schedule time, and all freight trains have been restored to their normal running time.

Trainload of Troops.

A special train in charge of James Maney, assistant general passenger agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway, arrived from the Soo yesterday, carrying a detachment of troops from Fort Brady. The troops were transferred at Superior to the Great Northern railway, which road will take them to the coast. At San Francisco the troops will embark for the Philippines.

THOUSANDS OF MINERS ARE IDLE

Lead Men Quit Labor and Missouri Mills Stop.

Bonnetterre, Mo., May 1.—The strike of miners in Leadwood spread to this place early today when the underground employes of the St. Joseph Lead company quit work.

The big mills of the company here were forced to close down and 1,700 men are now idle.

About 3,000 other workmen are threatening to join the strikers, who are asking a partial re-establishment of the wage scale prevailing before the financial panic in 1907.

Hines Agents Here.

M. L. Hudson, Martin McDermott and Robert Shields, representatives of the Edward Hines Lumber company in Wisconsin, are at the Spalding today. All of the men say that the lumber business is very quiet at the present time, due in some measure to the tariff agitation. The market is close with little speculative buying. Sales are made for immediate orders and little buying is being done for a future market.

WILL HOLD BARBECUE

Railroad Men Will Assemble in Duluth in August.

Old Fashioned Feast Will Be Held at Fond du Lac.

At a meeting today attended by President Mart Adson of the G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. club and the general agents of Duluth at the Spalding hotel, plans for an old-fashioned barbecue, which will be held at Fond du Lac, in connection with the gathering here on Aug. 21 and 22 of traveling representatives of the different railroads, were considered.

It is planned to make the two days' celebration the biggest in the history of the Get-As-Much-Business-As-You-Can club. It is planned to charter a boat and take the visiting railroad men up the river, where merry festivities will be held. One of the days will be devoted to Duluth, in all probability, and it is proposed, with the co-operation of the local merchants, to give the visitors the best time they have had at the Head of the Lakes.

New features will be originated this year. It is expected that the greatest delegation of railroad men ever assembled in Duluth will be present in August. Invitations will be sent out in the near future, and every effort will be made to have the full membership of the club present at the two days of celebration.

STEAMER WELLS PASSES SOO

Report That She Was in Danger is Untrue.

According to a report received in Duluth this morning, there was fear expressed that the steamer Wells, of the Wolvin line, might be fast in the ice at Whitefish and short of coal.

The Wells has at no time been in danger. She passed down the Soo this morning. Anxious inquiries have been frequent at the Wolvin offices from friends and relatives of men on the Wells. Both the Wells and Peavey passed down St. Mary's river today.

HIT HIM WITH CUSTARD PIE

Charged with splashing a juicy piece of custard pie over the surprised countenance of R. H. Rathbun in the Miller restaurant last night, Herbert Hall was arrested today and will be arraigned in municipal court for disorderly conduct.

Hall entered the restaurant last night, and it is claimed that he had imbibed too many highballs. He was formerly employed in the place, and seemed to consider himself a privileged character. The man picked a quarrel with Mr. Rathbun and, to emphasize his remarks, picked up the pie and cast it, with unerring aim, across the table at Rathbun, who stopped it with his face, it is said. He didn't think that was the right way for one man to treat another and this morning complaint was lodged by the police. A warrant was immediately issued for Hall's arrest.

Object to Strong Medicines.

Many people object to taking the strong medicines usually prescribed by physicians for rheumatism. There is no need of internal treatment in any case of muscular or chronic rheumatism, and more than one out of every ten cases of this disease are of one or other of these varieties. When there is no fever and little (if any) swelling, you may know that it is only necessary to apply Chamberlain's Liniment freely to get quick relief. Try it. For sale by all druggists.

Seattle Ready for Visitors.

O. E. King of Seattle, at the McKay, says every preparation to care for the visitors to the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition is being made by the citizens of Seattle. Mr. King says that ample means will be provided to handle the crowds, and that it is the ambition of Seattle to not only care for all the visitors, but also to provide for them at a price that will be reasonable. The citizens' committee is taking every precaution to prevent the charging of exorbitant prices for hotel accommodations and rooms at the many rooming and boarding houses.

Forecast of Council.

The main question to be considered at the council meeting next Monday evening, so far as is at present known, is the paving of Garfield avenue.

The question will be brought up and discussed in all its lights by the aldermen. The proposition at present is to have the city pay one-half the cost of improvement, the owners of abutting property one-fourth, and the commercial interests benefitted the other fourth.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

CONSENT OF THE BOARD

Telephone Company Can Erect Poles on Certain Streets.

Board Has No Jurisdiction in the Majority of Cases.

The continued hearing before the board of public works yesterday, on the application of the Duluth Telephone company for permission to establish pole lines in different parts of the city, the districts in question extending from the West end to Woodland, brought out the fact that, when the prospective locations of all the poles were learned, the board had nothing to say except in the minority of cases.

Several hundred poles, which it was proposed to set out, would come on private property, and permission for thus setting them out could not, of course, be granted by the board. As soon as the location of these prospective lines was learned, the board could no longer consider them. It was up to the company to get permission of the property owners.

The different lines of conduits proposed brought forth no objections from property owners. The board will grant permission for the laying of conduits along First street from Twelfth to Twenty-first avenues east; First alley from Fifth avenue west to Mesaba street to courthouse; Fifteenth avenue east from Second alley to Superior street; Seventeenth avenue east from First street to First alley; Nineteenth avenue east from First street to Burgwall street; Twenty-first avenue east from First street to Third alley.

Several other districts called for lines over the same routes that the Duluth-Edison Electric company already has poles, and it was learned that permission could be obtained from the electric company for the use of these poles. In additional locations, Inspector Cummings, acting for the city, said the present poles could be used. The application further covered certain streets upon which poles are prohibited by a city ordinance.

What was left of the territory covered by the application, after the above-mentioned districts were cut out, was passed upon favorably by the board, which granted the right to erect poles in the following locations: One pole in the following locations: One pole, corner Winnipeg avenue and West Third street; Fourth alley between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-ninth avenues west; two poles between Third and Fourth streets, in Twentieth avenue west; three poles in Eighth avenue west, between First and Second streets; Seventh avenue west, between First and Fourth streets; Fifth avenue west, between Fourth and Sixth streets; Fifth street, between Second and Fifth avenue west; Sixth alley, from Seventh to Tenth avenue east; Ninth avenue east, between Sixth and Seventh streets; Twelfth avenue east, between Sixth and Seventh streets—two poles; Thirteenth avenue east, between London road and Jefferson street, with guy pole above Jefferson street; Lewis street, from Columbus avenue to Dunedin street; one pole in Twenty-first avenue east, between London road and South street; two poles in Nineteenth avenue east, between London road and South street; three poles in Twenty-first avenue east, from Fifth street to Seventh alley.

BAD TANGLE IN THE BIDS

A Misunderstanding Regarding Fourth Street Paving Contract.

Contest Is On Between P. McDonnell and A. G. Osman.

The board of public works yesterday afternoon opened bids on the contract for paving Fourth street from Fifth avenue west to Sixth avenue east, but owing to a misunderstanding on the part of the bidders in regard to certain specifications covering the job, all the bids did not cover the same points, and there is a difference of opinion as to who should be awarded the contract.

The contest lies between P. McDonnell and A. G. Osman. Each misunderstood the specifications differently, and it will take considerable figuring to learn which really bid lowest for the whole work. The problem is too intricate for members of the board of public works to solve, without the assistance of the engineer who drew up the plans and specifications, and consequently it was decided to refer the whole subject to City Engineer McGilvray. He will carefully go over the bids, and make a recommendation as to who should get the contract.

After the original plans and specifications were prepared, and after they had been considered by the prospective bidders, additional specifications were added to the original lot, and the contractors were asked to include them in their calculations. The principal addition to sandstone blocks, to be used along the street car tracks. The contractors each interpreted the specifications differently, hence the misunderstanding. The other bidders did not consider the additions at all.

Mr. Osman's bid on plain tar macadam was $53,944.75, and Mr. O'Donnell's bid for the same material was $51,636.36, but when the tangle relative to the specifications is unraveled, it is said there is a chance that Mr. Osman's bid will come under that of his rival for the work, after certain deductions have been made. The bids for tar macadam with concrete foundation, which will probably be decided upon as the best material, run about $60,000. The exact figure on this material will not be known until the city engineer has announced his decision.

The Fourth street paving is the biggest paving job of the year, with the possible exception of Garfield avenue, which probably will be paved this summer.

READ LAW BY MOONLIGHT.

How well I remember when Lincoln lived in Petersburg, Ill., carrying the chain for a surveyor's party and working for 75 cents a day, says a writer in the National Magazine. The surveyor's wife told me that she often saw him studying at night, seated on the cellar door, reading Blackstone often until midnight by the light of the moon.

Lincoln always took note of the light and dark moons, as is shown by an incident which occurred during his early practice of law. A murder was committed in the neighborhood of the village and the son of the surveyor's wife was arrested on suspicion from the testimony of an "eye witness." In the meantime Lincoln had swung out his shingle as a lawyer at Springfield, and on this occasion nobly did he prove that the kindness of the surveyor was not forgotten by the student who read Blackstone by moonlight.

He went to the jail and questioned the young prisoner, who asserted his innocence and Lincoln took up the case.

At the trial the witness swore that he saw the murder committed.

"Might you not be mistaken?" asked Lincoln. "A dim light is deceptive and it was a dark night."

The witness hastened to reiterate that it was bright moonlight, whereupon Lincoln promptly pulled from among his books an almanac and said calmly:

"It is not necessary for me to make a plea, for no jury can place any reliance on a witness who will swear that it was a moonlight night when the almanac proves that it was the dark of the moon."

AMERICAN LUMBER.

New York Sun: Exports of American wood and its manufactures during the eleven months ended November, 1908, were:

Timber	$13,570,531
Lumber	28,041,590
Staves	5,612,696
Furniture	4,232,988
Heading	4,487,494
Shooks	2,465,411
All other wood manufactures	7,122,141
Total exports, 1908, eleven months	$65,832,851

This was a decrease of $14,066,000 from the value of exports for the same months of 1907.

The yellow pine cut for November, 1908, was 374,665,811 feet, with total shipments of 332,432,697 feet, in each case an improvement over November, 1907. Carloads numbered 18,534. Exports were 21,460,633 feet. Illinois was the largest home purchaser, 2,176 cars; then Texas, 1,916; Missouri, 1,410; Oklahoma, 1,229, and Kansas, 1,219.

In a few years California will have immense forests of eucalyptus timber ready for market. The demand for seedlings to be planted is already greater than the supply. One nursery, near Los Angeles, has 2,250,000 new trees ready for planting. There are twenty-five nurseries in the state. The Santa Fe railway has planted 700 acres, and expects to plant 7,000 more. In ten years an acre of eucalyptus trees will produce 100,000 feet of lumber, especially valuable for cooperage and furniture.

California redwood exports in 1908 amounted to 60,000,000 feet, with Australia taking 25,000,000 feet, which is greatly in excess of any prior year. Heavy shipments of redwood ties were made to South America. Great Britain took 4,599,125 feet of the redwood exports.

KING EDWARD LIKES CROQUET.

The beautiful new croquet ground at Biarritz, but since the king took to going there annually a lawn has been set apart for him adjoining the golf ground and no one else uses it during certain hours of the day.

The king plays remarkably well and adopts the complicated modern croquet, so unlike the game which was looked upon as only suitable for curates and old maids. He is said to be especially skillful at long shots.

THE BICYCLE POLICEMAN'S CLUB.

Since bicycle policemen carried long sticks, it has been a problem with them where the stick shall be disposed when they are on their bicycles, says the New York Sun. They can't very comfortably be disposed in their hip pockets. Carrying them dangling in the frame of the bicycle is a nuisance.

One man hit on a scheme which is likely to be followed by many others. He had two clamps put on the right fork of the bicycle and put the stick in these clamps. It is right where it can be got at easily and he can put all his attention on riding without being disturbed by the club.

ITALY'S GIFT TO THE UNITED STATES

The Evils of Mythical Black Hands and Camorras Overbalanced by the Thousands of Industrious Farmers Coming Yearly to America—Successful Plans to Get Them on the Land.

By ALICE BENNETT.

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau.)

In an interesting paper read recently by W. D. Howells before the Society for Italian Immigrants he stated that there were living at present more than 500,000 Italians in Greater New York and drew a picture of the potential genius which might be lying dormant in that army of tenement dwellers—suggesting a revival here of those arts and crafts which have flourished to a high perfection for centuries in Italy. We cordially applaud Mr. Howell's conclusion that they should be distributed through country districts where they are bound to become an important factor in our national progress.

Here we will deal only with the farmer's outlook. The first to cross on the list will be the gentry of Black Hand notoriety, who is as far removed from genuine Italianism as the wolf is from the earth. Here the Italian government does by deporting every scoundrel leaving that country with a stain bearing that exports also as a permanent blot on their character. The finest Italian traditions this Republic has most valuable possession. It would forcibly read by all those contemplating business relations with them, and those Italians coming here per assisted same plan should be followed which would deflect them to the land.

Another reason why previous attempts to colonize them have failed is that men who had been trained to till the soil were sent to the country while those who had been living on it were allowed all their thrift to go to waste in a town. Neither have precautions been taken against mixing men from different provinces. The Italian is nothing if not clannish. The Romans particularly are strong in their attachments. We must remember that United Italy is a matter of too recent date to have taken deep root with the peasant class. And while they are patriotic in their attitude towards the world in general, for an Italian belonging to another province they cannot be induced to emigrate, amounting almost to aversion. Time and doubtless break these barriers down but until it does, this antagonism must be recognized in any plan to colonize them, and by following the simple rule of not mixing the provinces the promoter secures a spirit of loyalty and good team work.

Along fifteen years ago Christenza Setzgeno, Sicilian, arrived in Fort Edward, Washington county N. Y., as a dazed, frightened boy. He applied at the day laborer. He applied at the cotton factory for work for himself and his family from Sicily. They were a friend from Italy. They were a prosperous lot owing to favorable conditions in the cotton industries which they prevailed against. But when they were unable to secure a home within two miles of the factory, disheartened, they moved in search of work. At the end of a year had made and the end of a year had made themselves so well liked that the numerous Sicilian families which followed found no difficulty in securing necessary housing. The story attached them only as a means to an end. What really drew them was the outlying land suited to grape culture. All that they could save from their daily wage they set to work to plant and put into vineyards. There are now 1,200 Italians in Fredonia, many of them own large vineyards. Nearly all of them have cottages with gardens attached. Their places are well kept, and they have raised the standard of farming in that community. Americans have come here to keep up with them. Land which sold ten years ago for $50 and $75 per acre cannot now be bought for less than $250 per acre. Twenty-five Italian children from the grammar schools are in the normal college and two have received diplomas in Buffalo, one is a lawyer, the other a physician. They have built a fine Catholic church valued at $25,000. The foundation was dug and mason work done by labor contributed from men of the colony. Fifteen years ago the only industry in Fredonia was the canning factory. Now there are two such factories six times as big. The canning factory for wine cellars and a manufactory for macaroni.

The most prosperous member of the colony is Pietro Elardo. He owns 127 acres of vineyard, a large wine cellar and several houses. In a normal year his output is 15,000 gallons of wine, besides about ninety tons of grapes which he markets. His six children are all attending school the eldest a lad of 16, will soon graduate from the normal college and become his father's assistant. The class of Italians under consideration, the country-bred, are so far removed from mendacity that they will go without the commonest necessities in order to provide for a rainy day. A settlement worker told me of a man of this class, who died from pneumonia without calling in a physician, because he had not money enough to pay for his visits. Last year when so many were out of work a valuable lesson in temporary utilization of vacant lots was demonstrated by Italians. Little vegetable gardens sprang into existence all around the outskirts of New York city. Often a cabin was built from odds and ends gathered from rubbish heaps. I saw one such cottage which contained a kitchen, two bed rooms, a store room and a stall for the horse. Where the boards would not join, pieces of tin and oil cloth had been utilized to make it weather-proof. The interior was plastered and painted red. Plants grew under the window. While there are exceptions, as a rule Italian farmhouses are clean. This little cottage was not one of the exceptions. A group of seven men under the leadership of Dominico Conder the leadership of Dominico Conder the land, conducted such a garden at Sheepshead Bay. The space covered was about two acres. They fenced it round with wire netting, dug a well, bought garden utensils, seeds and a horse and wagon, finally they built a stall from which to dispose of their product. At the end of seven months after deducting all outlay, including living expenses, they were about $65 to the good. Residents at Sheepshead Bay became interested in watching their plucky effort to tide themselves over a period of unemployment and offers of work were forthcoming sufficient to carry them through the winter, while more vacant lots were placed at their disposal for the coming season, if required. Anyone interested and yet not convinced of the feasibility nor of the desirability of such a movement would do well to visit one or two of these farm colonies, using a guide or Baedeker chapter seven, of "The Italian in America," published by B. F. Buck & Co. New York city.

Many farm colonies have been started through the accident of some one or two-day laborers observing the value of the land in the vicinity of their work and realizing what they could save from their daily wage in a few years from their daily wage in a few years. Others of their old associates have joined them. Through mutual benefit associations, such as were instituted by Mazzini, they manage to collect enough together, and by each other going until everyone can keep each other going until everyone is on his feet. It is very unusual for such a settlement to ask for outside aid. Italians are most ambitious to give their children the advantage of good schools and will sacrifice a good deal to help along any such enterprise. With some outside assistance the movement could be greatly augmented. The experiment at Vineland, N. J., became self-supporting in three years time. The method for any company to follow undertaking such an enterprise would be to sell the immigrants alternate parcels of five acres, the company reserving the rest for appreciation in value. The immigrant could be given employment on the company's land until he had saved enough to start for himself. It would be well for the company to give a bonus of $100 per acre. The company also has a body of silver-lead ore, which is further explored by an incline winze, which is now eighty feet deep, and a vertical winze which is now forty feet deep. The tunnel has reached a distance of 1,025 feet, at which point driving has been suspended temporarily.

Agriculture in Italy is chiefly arboreal—grapes, olives fruit and vegetables. Nearly all the work is done by hand so that the contadino knows almost nothing of the use of livestock, especially horses and cows. It has been thought advisable by an Italian agriculture expert who has studied the conditions in the United States for years that there should be a training school where Italians could be taught the use of machinery and care of live stock. There should be associated with such schools a bureau of information, which would be in cooperation with the various offices on Ellis Island. The office of this bureau to be (1) selection of immigrants adapted to agriculture, (2) to gather information of desirable locations available for the immigrant, (3) clearing house and distributing station. Two classes should be received for training. Those of inferior intelligence could take a two months' course to fit them as farm hands, more capable men a six months' course to prepare them to take charge of large farms, estates and colonization schemes. This school should be self-supporting. At the end of three years there should be a night school where the immigrant would be taught rudiments of English, civics and reparation should be an important feature. This bureau should also supply information to employers advising how to handle the Italian in a manner to gain the best results. The Italian farm hand is handy, he became popular with the farmer's wife as he relieves her of all the drudgery she has been used to associate with the hired man, for he prefers to cook his own food in his own way, an arrangement pleasing to all concerned. His diet is largely spaghetti, fruit and vegetables. Harking back once more to Mr. Howells' happy suggestion, why could there not be one corner reserved in such a training school sacred to some one of the old arts and crafts, say those gorgeous brocades worn by the Florentine beauties at Lorenzo de Medici's court, or the Sicilian embroidery now being taught by Miss Amori in New York, or Venetian glass with its lovely Byzantine forms, etc. Surely such an experiment would be well worth while in this new crude world of ours.

SOCIALISM AND INTERNATIONALISM

In the early periods of American history our statesmen, Calhoun and Webster, waxed eloquent in their debates on the question of protective tariff. These debates eventually led to the Civil war. John C. Calhoun protested against the tariff, while Daniel Webster was the champion of protective tariff. The former was born in the South and was the mouthpiece of the Southern planters. The latter was born in the North and was the mouthpiece of the Northern manufacturers.

The planters in the South produced cotton, but did not manufacture it. They either had it manufactured in the North or sent it off to England. The Northern manufacturers did not produce any raw material to speak of and at the same time could not compete with the cheap labor of which the English manufacturers availed themselves. Protective tariff was necessary to protect our new industries.

Today our institutions have become international in scope. Our mail system, Standard Oil company, steel trust and the International Harvester company are not national, but international institutions. Thus capitalism has become international. An international institution does not require nation protection. Therefore, the question of protective tariff may well be laid aside.

It is evident that a movement which proposes to change this social system to a better one must also be international—hence Socialism.

Medicine, surgery and reason are all international and above all the socialism is an international organ. One cannot speak of an American, English, German or French stomach. They are all identical in that they call for hash.

The Socialist banner is red. It is a symbol of universal brotherhood. The downtrodden and forlorn of all ages have rallied around this red symbol. Our Savior was garbed in it. The battle of Bunker Hill was fought under this banner, so dear to the toilers of the world.

International exploitation gave rise to an ever-growing solidarity among the workers of the world. They celebrate May 1 as a protest against the fleecing of the greater part of the product of their labor.

HENRY JOHNSTON.

UNCLE SAM IS ONE OF THE NATION'S BIGGEST ADVERTISERS

Few people, outside of those interested realize that the United States government is one of the most extensive advertisers in the world. It probably pays out more money annually for publicity purposes than any corporation in the United States.

A glance at the advertisements that adorn the walls of the Duluth postoffice, or at billboards on the public streets where the navy posters appear, or in the want columns of the daily newspapers will convince any one that federal advertising is done on a gigantic scale.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the boundary to the gulf, every town, city and village is plastered with flaring posters in which the government calls for young and able-bodied men to join the army and navy.

Every newspaper in the United States has at some time or other run a government want advertisement, and many of the city dailies carry standing advertisements, and it is safe to say that every young man who can read, knows first-hand that the United States is looking for soldiers and sailors.

It is safe to say that the government considers that advertising pays, for it goes in for it heavier every year.

Newspaper advertising is perhaps the most common form. Whenever the army needs supplies, an advertisement for bids is placed in several papers. Whenever there are public utility contracts to let, the knowledge of it is given to the public through the medium of the press.

The army and navy are not the only government advertisers. In the Duluth federal building can be seen every day the advertisements of almost every department. If the customs department has broken packages or unclaimed imports to sell, the fact is advertised. When the site for a postoffice is to be located the attention of property owners is directed to the fact by a series of newspaper advertisements. In the Duluth postoffice recently an advertisement was posted stating that one of the government boats wanted to contract for the purchase of 100 chickens a month, so it can be seen that the range of advertising is great.

The United States has no publicity bureau with an annual allowance from the federal treasury. Each department pays for its own advertising and a special contingent fund is always placed in the annual department budgets. It is from this fund that the advertising bills of the nation are paid.

There are many that are financially aware that the government advertises. No favoritism in awarding contracts is ever shown, and quality of work and cost are the only items taken into consideration in placing orders for work. The field is open to any and all, and nearly every lithographing and engraving plant in the United States with sufficient equipment to handle the work, puts in a bid. The government has a good reputation for paying its bills and its contracts never go begging.

WILL WORK TRIANGLE MINE

Michigan Men Organize Company to Develop Promising Property in Wallace District, Near Clinton, Mont.---Prospects Are Considered Good.

Missoula, Mont., May 1.—Articles of incorporation of the Montana Clinton Copper company have been filed for record with County Clerk Kuphal here. The incorporators are Patrick H. O'Brien, Thomas Bastain, Michael E. O'Brien and William J. Webb, all of the village of Laurium, Houghton county, Mich.

The company is formed to do a general mining business; will have its principal offices in Missoula; is to continue in existence for twenty years, and the capitalization is placed at $1,500,000, divided into 300,000 shares of the value of $5 each. The articles provide for seven directors to manage the affairs of the company and names the following to serve the first three months: Wesley Clark, Thomas Bant of Michigan, Michael E. O'Brien, Alexander Levtin, Charles Kendall, Michael J. Harrington and H. Y. Gephart.

The number of shares of stock actually subscribed is 805. Each director holds 100 shares, with the exception of Mr. Gephart, who only holds five.

The Montana Clinton Copper company has been formed to take up the development of the Triangle property in the Wallace mining district, near Clinton. This property has made a good showing and some ore has already been shipped and a great quantity is blocked out, to extract as soon as conditions are bettered as to shipping facilities.

It is understood the new concern is ready to spend $100,000 on the property at once, and will immediately install a sawmill and build a concentrator. It is learned that the new company has gone into the work fully determined to prospect the Clinton district, within the heart of which the Triangle is situated. If $100,000 is not sufficient to thoroughly explore the work, it is stated that the Michigan men are pledged to assess themselves up to $500,000 for this purpose. The extent of the work planned means much to the Clinton district and to Missoula, to which it is tributary, being only eighteen miles east of this city, and the progress of the work will be watched with deep interest.

orn tracks. This is the first shipment ore by the Wolverine & Arizona, and it is probable that by the time the copper metal market has become normal, the company will be a regular shipper. The Wolverine & Arizona is developing a large body of oxides at the old diamond drill holes and its dimensions at present are reported to be 100 by 100 feet. The company also has a body of silver-lead ore, which is further explored by an incline winze, which is now eighty feet deep, and a vertical winze which is now forty feet deep. The tunnel has reached a distance of 1,025 feet, at which point driving has been suspended temporarily.

ture of the formation, indicates richer ore at depth. With the shaft 400 feet deeper, the mine will be geologically the same depth as the low levels of the old Dominion mine where high grade sulphides are now being mined.

The Gem vein has also been developed to a considerable extent, and good ore has recently been struck in the crosscut from the west drift, samples running from 4 to 12 per cent copper, and running high in iron and sulphur, which makes it an ideal smelting ore.

Adventure.

Adventure has temporarily ceased all diamond drill exploratory work and has transferred its activity to shaft sinking. The territory in which the new shaft will sink was thoroughly explored by diamond drilling, and although much of the data secured from these operations was conflicting in regard to several copper bearing veins that none of the drill holes disclosed the presence of the mineral in commercial quantities at all points tested, the results on the whole were rather satisfactory and certainly warrant the more satisfactory investigation that will be possible through the sinking of a shaft. The new shaft is so located that the No. 3 shaft compressor and miller plants can be utilized without necessitating removal from their present foundations.

The Cleveland Cliffs iron company, which entered the Menominee range field less than a year ago, is steadily enlarging its holdings in that district. Among other tracts recently acquired is one of 440 acres in the vicinity of the Spread Eagle chain of lakes, on the Wisconsin side of the Menominee river. The property will be drilled and test-pitted. Oglebay, Norton & Co. of Cleveland have been exploring in that district for two or three years and have found ore much resembling that mined at the Steel corporation's big Chapin property, a few miles to the east. The veins so far disclosed are of narrow width, but as a depth greater than 100 feet has not yet been attained the merits of the territory are still far from being determined. The field will be systematically and thoroughly tested. It has long been the opinion that important ore deposits existed in the district, yet the territory has lain neglected and not a mine has yet been opened in the long stretch extending from Iron Mountain at the east to Commonwealth at the west.

In the Iron River district, at the western end of the Menominee, the Cleveland Cliffs company has a prospective mine on the Selden lands. A shaft is being put down in proximity to the Steel corporation's Riverton property, and considerable ore has already been hoisted from it. The company's holdings in this portion of the range have been enlarged by the acquisition of options covering two tracts in Sections 30 and 32, 43-34, midway between the Baker mine and the Michaels and Blair properties. Exploratory operations will soon be commenced there. Section 19, 43-34, is being tested by W. J. Blain and Ira Odgers.

At the new Fogarty mine of Pickands, Mather & Co., an ore crusher is being installed, the plant being the one that has been in use the past five years at the Baltic property, where no more crushing will be done for some time. The Steel corporation is exploring the old South Mastodon property in Section 13, 43-32, in the Crystal Falls district. A diamond drill is being used.

Strike at the Yale Mine.

The strike of ore made at the Yale mine, on the Gogebic range, some two months or more ago, is proving more important than was surmised at the time. It will make of the property one of the biggest producers of the district. The ore was encountered on a dyke some 2,000 feet beneath the surface. The deposit is understood to run about 150 feet in width and to extend the whole length of the eighty-acre tract. The thickness of the ore struts has not been fully determined, but it is very considerable, there being assurance that the deposit will yield large annual tonnages for years to come. The Yale is a property of the Lake Superior Iron & Chemical company, a Detroit, (Mich.) corporation, with blast furnaces at Ashland, Wis., and at various points in Michigan and which produces more charcoal iron than any other concern on the continent. Following the recent fire, which destroyed the shafthouse, dry house and boarding house at the Anvil mine, which fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin, operations at the property have been suspended for an indefinite period, only a small crew of the 200 men being retained to keep the pumps in commission. Many of the miners lost their clothing and tools. The Anvil is a Gogebic range property of Ferdinand Schlesinger.

The Buffalo & Susquehanna company, which is operating the Ohio mine, west of Michigamme, Marquette range, has taken a lease on the Portland, in the same district, owned by George Maas of Negaunee. Hoose & Person of Iron Mountain have been given a contract to strip the overburden from the ore body. The Portland deposit is thought to be extensive. In many places it out-crops at the surface, while the average depth of the overburden in the area thus far explored is less than eight feet. The ore is of about the same grade as that produced at the nearby Imperial mine of the Cleveland Cliffs company. It is quite high in phosphorus, but with careful handling can be made to average slightly above 50 per cent. It is reported that the Buffalo & Susquehanna people expect to produce some 200,000 tons from the Portland this season. An area of 300 feet in length by 200 in width will be stripped at the start and as soon as the overburden is removed, mining will be started with steam shovels. The ore is a hard hematite and will require drilling and blasting. The Imperial and Ohio mines were operated with small forces throughout the winter, less than 140 men being employed at the two properties. Both have fairly large piles of ore, the shipment of which will be started soon.

producing. As far as our companies here are concerned—and I think the same is true of other companies—we have less unsold copper on hand today than we had at the close of 1908. All that we have sold has not gone into consumption, but the fact that we have been able to sell shows a pretty healthy condition of trade. The general business of the country is improving. Of course, it isn't excellent yet, but it is better than it was, and better than it has been in many months. There is a better feeling throughout the country, but it has not yet resulted in a decided increase in the volume of business. However, the country is slowly and surely recovering. Matters now seem to be hanging on a settlement of the tariff question, and I think there will be a rapid advance in business conditions in the country as soon as the tariff matter is settled and out of the way. We are bound to see a decided improvement in the country's prosperity before the end of the year. Many of the manufacturing industries in the East and Middle West are still running only partially, and many men are yet out of employment, but things are getting better right along." Mr. Ryan disposed of the repeated stories that he was about to retire from the position of managing director of the Amalgamated Copper company in order to devote his time to the Cole-Ryan affairs and business of the new smelting trust. "Although I have been chosen president of this new smelting company," he said, "my duties in that position will not interfere in any way with continuing my work in Montana with the properties of the Amalgamated company."

The Washoe Smelter.

Several experts, representing the government at Washington, have been engaged in conducting an investigation at the Washoe smelter for a week in an endeavor to ascertain if it is feasible to establish a plant for the manufacture of sulphuric acid and fertilizer on a commercial basis, the chief object being to rid the smelter smoke of its poisonous substances. The experts are N. P. Pratt of Atlanta, Ga., a sulphuric acid manufacturer, and W. P. Heath, a chemist, formerly connected with the Tennessee Copper company, a head chemist at the Ducktown smelter. The experts are equipped with various testing apparatus. Former experts have determined that the Washoe would be able to manufacture 2,400 tons of sulphuric acid daily, more than sufficient to supply the demand of the whole world, and the problem to be solved is as to what will be done with the product when made. It is evident that if the acid were turned into the streams it would do more damage than if allowed to pass away in the atmosphere. If used for the manufacture of fertilizer it would be necessary to haul phosphates hundreds of miles to the plant, the nearest phosphate beds being in Wyoming. It is anticipated that the manufactured fertilizer would also congest the market, as there is little demand for it in the West.

The American smelters are not alone in having trouble with farmers over smoke questions. K. Nakata and L. Tanaka, officers of the Samitomo Copper company of Japan have been at the Washoe for some days investigating smoke conditions there. The Samitomo company is having trouble with farmers near its smelter and the officers are trying to find a method of neutralizing the poisonous fumes. They have visited various smelting plants in Europe and America and say they found no method that is better than the one employed at the Washoe.

Butte-Ballaklava.

The Butte-Ballaklava Mining company has shipped its first car of ore to the Washoe smelter and got returns on it of 13.5 per cent copper, 17 ounces in silver and 50 cents in gold to the ton. Other shipments are ready. The shaft which the company is sinking has reached a depth of 1,360 feet and is going down at the rate of 3½ feet per day. The company expects to be able to make regular shipments of ore to the smelter soon. It has opened good ore in several veins on two or three levels.

Tuolumne.

The Tuolumne Mining company is engaged in opening a sum below the 1,400-foot point of the shaft and when completed stations will be cut at the 1,400 and 1,200 levels, preparatory to running crosscuts from those points to the two veins south of the shaft. The shaft is now about 1,420 feet deep and will be made twenty feet deeper. After the stations are cut sinking will be resumed. On the 1,000-foot level the first vein south is within forty feet of the shaft and will be found within 100 feet of the shaft on the 1,400. The vein contains some good ore on the 1,000-foot level, and Supt. Sheehan expects to open a big body of commercial and shipping ore on the new levels. The first vein south of the shaft is the middle of three veins that apex in the Tuolumne claim, and of which there are about 1,000 lateral feet in Tuolumne ground, or 3,000 feet on the three veins. The middle vein is believed to be the extension of the Edith May of the North Butte company. The Tuolumne claim lies east of the Edith May and south of the Jessie, a portion of the Granite Mountain lying between the Tuolumne and the Edith May. The Tuolumne company has just installed its new hoisting engine, a Nordberg first motion engine capable of working to a depth of 3,000 feet. A new 20-drill compressor, said to be one of the most powerful in the district, has also been put in commission.

Butte-Alex Scott.

The Butte-Alex Scott Copper company, which was organized by Duluth and Pittsburg men to succeed the Butte-Montana Mining company in the ownership of the Alex Scott and Annie mines, has filed for record a statement of its affairs showing a capitalization of $1,250,000, divided into 125,000 shares of the par value of $10 per share. Its assets consist of the Alex Scott and Annie claims, valued at $515,000, and 50,000 shares of assessable stock on which $2 per share has been paid, valued at 400,000, and 25,000 shares of stock in the treasury. The only liabilities are $10,000. T. G. Bennett of Pittsburg is president of the company, and the other directors are Clarence A. Williams, Walter P. Rainbow and Orville G. Flister, all of Pittsburg. Charles J. Stone is superintendent for the company in Butte and is conducting development work. The new company, judging by its statement, has paid the first installment of $100,000 into the treasury, paid in by the promoters, who have agreed to provide $500,000 for a working capital as called for.

SPOONER AND BAUDETTE

Spooner and Baudette, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mr. and Mrs. S. B. McNamara have returned from their extensive trip to the Western states.

The Catholic congregation has purchased the old schoolhouse in old Baudette. It will be moved on a lot adjoining the Congregational church and will be remodeled.

John McCaffrey returned from Michigan, where he has spent the winter months.

The International Birthday club celebrated Mrs. E. A. Noble's birthday at her home on Saturday afternoon. The afternoon was pleasantly spent in guessing contests, also biographical sketches of the different members, which had to be told whom they described. Miss Lucy Plunkett was awarded the best sketch. Refreshments were served at 5 o'clock, covers being laid for ten. Those who were present were, Mesdames Mathieu and Gerlaun Misses Parke and Lucy Plunkett of Rainy River, Mesdames Berg, Eagen, Ericson, and Miss Ericson of Spooner.

Guy Aubel, United States revenue inspector, of Crookston, was here on Monday on business matters pertaining to his office.

The Shevlin-Mathieu Lumber company has closed the sawmill proper until the ice goes out of the Rainy river. It will be some time yet, if this cold weather does not end.

How to Be Free From Pain

It's a wrong to yourself and to those dear to you to suffer the tortures of Rheumatism—it's not brave or courageous to endure in silence when there is sure relief. Too much is at stake for you to put it off. In a month or year from now, agony may have twisted fingers or limbs into such aching knots that you will be unable to help yourself or work for others. Then you will be a burden, an expense and a trial to those you love.

Hill's Rheumatic Pills will gently but quickly drive away every twinge or ache—loosen up the stiffened joints—give new flexibility to strained and tortured muscles.

These pills are made from healing roots and herbs which dissolve the poisons of Rheumatism, and then strengthen and gently stimulate Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, so that these poisons are passed from the body—and your aches and pains along with them.

Hill's Rheumatic Pills

have been in use for 72 years without a single change in the formula. They are the only remedy we know which really cures Rheumatism without leaving trouble just as bad in its place. Hill's Rheumatic Pills are purely vegetable. They contain no harmful minerals, such as lead, iodide and salicylates, to upset the digestion or weaken the heart. They rely upon nature to throw off the poisons which cause Rheumatism. It only takes a short time, and you are free from every ache and pain and feel years younger as the deadly uric acid poison is dissolved and passed off as nature intended.

We have letters from over 18,000 grateful people who have been freed from pain and made well by this wonderful discovery.

Determine to know today what the harmless but wonderful healing herbs and roots used in Hill's Rheumatic Pills will do for you.

TEST THEM FREE

We realize that there are hundreds of worthless nostrums on the market—that you may have been deceived into trying them and derived no benefit. If so, you have a right to be suspicious. To all such we will give a liberal sized package of Hill's Rheumatic Pills for a letter or postal describing their case. Address the letter to Dr. Hill & Co., the makers, Dept. 108, Minneapolis, Minn. The package will come prepaid. Pay nothing then or at any time. When you find the aches and pains going and see yourself becoming better and stronger each day—then you will KNOW and BELIEVE, and will be as anxious to continue the remedy and be cured as we are to relieve your suffering.

What Is Cost Robert T. Lincoln to be Minister to the Court of St. James' — The Hitherto Untold Story of a Diplomatic Mission That Chester A. Arthur Declined, and Its Startling Consequences—Other Interesting Diplomatic Chat.

By E. J. EDWARDS

(Copyright, 1909, by the Associated Literary Press.)

Does American diplomacy offer opportunities to the young men of the United States for a career? That question often is asked, and there are many young men who, after their college days are ended, or when they begin to look about them with intent to decide upon their career, are tempted to make application to become consuls for the United States, or otherwise to enter the diplomatic service. There are many reasons why our diplomatic service offers few, if any, opportunities for a career or for promotion to young American men. In the first place, the service is not permanent, as is the case with that of Great Britain, France or Germany. The consulships are bestowed chiefly in recognition of party service, and the higher prizes of diplomacy go to men who have earned distinction in literature or at the bar, or else have held high political office, or who have social aspirations and great wealth with which to gratify it.

When President Taft was inaugurated it was reported that he had little patience with the sentiment, so often expressed, that American ambassadors or ministers should be qualified by great wealth for high service in European courts, because the social life of Great Britain and of the Continent of Europe exacts luxurious entertainment, and the successful ambassador or minister is he who is able to entertain with a lavish hand.

In 1907 it was expected by the Republican leaders of New York state that Chauncey M. Depew would be nominated as ambassador to the court of St. James. That honor was one for which Mr. Depew had been ambitioning for some years. His acquaintance with the statesmen and the aristocracy, both of intellect and of wealth, in Great Britain was very large. He was of the opinion that, in order to obtain the best services for the home government it was essential that an ambassador should be able to entertain in a luxurious appointed house, with servants in livery and with stands that were of the choicest, the social aristocracy of Great Britain and of Europe.

Mr. Depew made a suggestion, one of the best to him during years' service as ambassador to the court of St. James'. It would require, first that he relinquish his various salaries and perquisites, somewhat in excess of $50,000 a year. That represented a cost of $200,000 for four years. Furthermore, he estimated that to entertain upon a scale which he thought necessary would cost at least $50,000 a year in excess of that. So that his estimate was that if he were named ambassador to the court of St. James' the honor would cost him $400,000 for the four years' service. The nomination was not received by Mr. Depew, although he could have had the ambassadorship to France, but he would have been glad to have expended as much as $100,000 for the honor of serving the United States as ambassador at the court of St. James.

John Hay's Experience in London.

Instead of Depew, President McKinley named John Hay ambassador to Great Britain. Mr. Hay though possessing much wealth, nevertheless did not believe it to be essential for success as an ambassador that there should be lavish entertainment or luxurious social display. But it so happened that during his service as ambassador there occurred one of the rare opportunities which in these days are offered to an American ambassador or minister.

The war with Spain began and was continued while Mr. Hay was ambassador to Great Britain. The diplomacy consequent upon the war was conducted directly from the state department at Washington. That illustrates the great change that has taken place in diplomacy since the ocean cable made instantaneous communication possible. But Mr. Hay was able to be of the highest service in another way than through any official conduct.

At one period of the war President McKinley was much disturbed, having received intimations that France was to undertake the bringing about of an agreement with the nations of Europe and with Great Britain whereby there should be an offer of mediation between the United States and Spain, with intent to bring the war to an end.

One evening Mr. Hay was a guest at the house of a distinguished Englishman, and after the dinner sat in the smoking room chatting informally with his host and with some of the guests. The leading diplomatists of Europe were there. Two or three members of the British cabinet were sharing the hospitality. Mr. Hay was discussing Spanish literature with a friend, when an Englishman of high authority said to him—speaking half confidentially but wholly informally—that one of the diplomatists of France had that day intimated that France would be rejoiced if England would join the French nation in a concert of the powers of Europe with intent to intimate to the United States that it was to the interest of Europe that the war with Spain should be ended.

Then this English statesman went on in a chatty and informal way to say that the French diplomat had been advised to sound Russia, and if it were found that Russia were ready to join, then there might be further communication with the British cabinet, and of an official character.

That was all that was said. The conversation was not formal. It took place between Mr. Hay and the English statesman as men sat in a smoking room, telling anecdotes or speaking of current events. But Mr. Hay did not mistake the meaning of the intimation. He was able before midnight of that day to inform President McKinley by cipher dispatch that France was undertaking a concert of the powers to intervene and that England and Russia would decline to participate in that undertaking. Furthermore, the French diplomat well understood, when he was told informally that after Russia had been sounded, then England might be approached, that neither England nor Russia would have part in such a concert, and if they would not, of course, the attempt would be a failure. There was high service for an American diplomat to perform, and to perform it did not require any lavish entertainment or any imitation of the high social functions, so called, with which the aristocracy of England occupies itself.

Why Whitelaw Reid Refused the German Mission.

As already intimated, the post of ambassador or minister is given usually in recognition of personal influence, sometimes of literary distinction, sometimes of handsome contributions to campaign funds, and sometimes to reflect a political situation of embarrassment. For this reason—probably more than any other—American diplomacy offers but little chance for a young man. If he has ambition some day to serve as ambassador or minister he should undertake to achieve distinction in politics, in letters at the bar or in business.

Whitelaw Reid has served once as ambassador, now holding that office at the court of St. James, and once as minister to France. But it is not commonly known that, had he been willing, he could have had the less distinguished honors that of service as minister to Germany. When President Garfield had been in office less than a month he summoned a member of his cabinet, who was a warm personal friend of Whitelaw Reid, and said he had it in mind to nominate Mr. Reid as minister to Germany, and would send that nomination to the senate as soon as he learned that Mr. Reid would accept the appointment. The friend was asked to communicate with Mr. Reid, who was at that time editor-in-chief of the New York Tribune not quite ten years.

Having met Mr. Reid and told him informally what President Garfield's purpose was, he observed that Mr. Reid was somewhat embarrassed, although feeling highly complimented. Mr. Reid's embarrassment was explained when he said he was to be married in the course of the spring and that he was sure it would not be agreeable to his bride to begin her married life so far away from home, especially as acceptance of the appointment of minister to Germany would involve a four years' residence abroad. Eight years later Mr. Reid was nominated minister to France, and curiously enough had an experience similar to that which befell Levi P. Morton, and yet, in one unfortunate aspect, unlike that of Mr. Morton's experience.

Mr. Morton was nominated to France by President Garfield in order to relieve a very embarrassing political situation, for Mr. Morton's friends were anxious that he should be named secretary of the navy in Garfield's cabinet. After four years' service as minister to France and four years in private life, Mr. Morton was nominated and elected vice president of the United States. So, too, after four years' service as minister to France, Mr. Reid was nominated for vice president, but did not have the success which attended the nomination of Mr. Morton, for the presidential ticket of Harrison and Reid in 1892 was defeated.

The Political Aspect of Our Diplomacy.

Mr. Reid's nomination as ambassador to the court of St. James illustrates one feature of American diplomacy which should discourage young men from contemplating a career of this kind.

When President McKinley named the Paris peace commission, which drafted the treaty of peace with Spain, he selected three United States senators, the secretary of state, Judge Day, and Whitelaw Reid as members of that commission. So brilliantly successful was that commission that the various rewards bestowed were not regarded as excessive. Some members of the commission received money remuneration, two were appointed members of the United States courts, but there seemed to be nothing for Mr. Reid. He was rich, of high personal authority, and, of course, could not accept an appointment as a federal judge, as he was not a lawyer. But the members of the commission were persuaded that in recognition of his service upon the peace commission he should be named as ambassador to the court of St. James, and made that recommendation.

But there were political considerations, not personal to Mr. Reid, which made this nomination impossible. John Hay was to return to England to serve as secretary of state, so that the appointment of an ambassador awaited McKinley's determination. Certain policies compelled the selection of Joseph H. Choate. But at the expiration of Mr. Choate's service other politics made the appointment of Mr. Reid expedient. Mr. Reed might have begun as a young man a career in diplomacy, and yet, no matter how skillful, industrious or faithful he was that service he could not have hoped for promotion to the office of highest distinction in American diplomacy.

When President Taft offered to President Eliot of Harvard university, the post of ambassador to the court of St. James, it instantly was inferred that Mr. Eliot might be compelled to decline this distinguished honor, chiefly on the ground, that, having no private fortune, he would be unable to maintain himself and the embassy at a certain style that is expected of an ambassador. But those who knew Mr. Eliot well were convinced that he would not hesitate for that reason, but if he declined, as he did, it would be because of his wish for complete retirement to private life. When Robert T. Lincoln served as minister to Great Britain, in President Harrison's administration, he discovered that, even entertaining modestly, the expense was considerably in excess of the salary of the post. Although he tried to be reasonably economical, his entertainments entailed a yearly expenditure of about $35,000.

So if a young man desires to round out a career by serving as ambassador at the court of St. James he must consider that the salary paid by the United States for that service is not sufficient to maintain an ambassador in a style suited to that service, although he may live modestly. A young man can aspire to the post of ambassador at the French court or that of Germany or Russia without feeling that it is necessary that he gain great wealth before appointment to such a post. But he must gain either political influence or distinction in letters or business or high triumphs in the army if he is to have reasonable expectations of some day becoming a minister or ambassador.

Charles Francis Adams and the Gold.

President Lincoln named Charles Francis Adams, who was the son of one president of the United States, and the grandson of another, and was himself a candidate for vice president in 1848, as minister to Great Britain. Mr. Adams found it possible to live upon the salary received for his service as minister. And yet it is probable that no representative of the United States ever was called upon to give more important or delicate service than Mr. Adams. One anecdote will illustrate this point and serve also to show how greatly the ocean cable has changed the relations maintained between the state department at Washington and the ambassadors and ministers of the United States.

Agents of the Southern Confederacy had contracted for the construction of several fast cruisers, whose purpose was suspected to be the attacking of the commerce of the United States under the authority of letters of marque issued by the Confederate government. Mr. Adams protested with the British cabinet against the construction of these steamers or the permitting of the steamers already constructed to sail from an English port. He offered what he thought was good proof that these vessels were intended for the destruction of the United States commerce bearers. Thereupon, he was informed that the British government would heed his plea, but would exact from him a bond of $5,000,000 in gold to be paid in the next day, pretending that as much money as that was needed to protect the British government against possible suit entered by the alleged owners of the vessels.

Had there been an ocean cable, Mr. Adams could have communicated instantly with Washington. How was he to secure $5,000,000 in gold on the instant? He was sure this demand was a mere subterfuge, and yet technically the British cabinet had a right to make it.

In the afternoon of the day when the demand was made there called upon Mr Adams a gentleman who said: "I understand that $5,000,000 in gold is demanded of you, to be paid in tomorrow, to secure the British government against any possible damage suit brought by the alleged owners of the vessels. I will send you that gold this afternoon."

To this day the identity of this benefactor is unknown. President Lincoln knew it, as did Secretary Seward, and one other besides Mr. Adams. For it was the only condition made by the benefactor that his identity should remain a secret. The presumption always has been that he was either George Peabody or one of the Baring brothers. No other bankers in London known to be friendly to the United States could have obtained upon a moment's notice as much gold as that.

Mr. Adams accepted the offer, and amazed as well as confounded the British cabinet by notifying them that he would send the gold to any place they might designate. But it required two weeks to communicate with President Lincoln and two weeks more to receive from the United States $5,000,000 in government bonds, which Mr. Adams insisted upon placing in the possession of the benefactor to secure that loan.

But for this secret transaction two cruisers would have put to sea in the course of a few days, and would have made as much havoc with the commerce of the United States as the cruiser Alabama did.

Harvard in Great Britain.

When President Taft offered to Mr. Eliot the post of ambassador to the court of St. James the Harvard president must have reflected that he was the third distinguished son of Harvard to receive in the last forty years an honor of that kind. Motley, the historian, was minister to Great Britain after Charles Francis Adams' service ended, and James Russell Lowell, twenty years later, also served in that capacity.

How delicate and how involved the relation of a minister to the state department is, and what the consequence of mistake may be, is illustrated vividly in the case of J. Lothrop Motley.

President Grant and his secretary of state, Hamilton Fish, were attempting to negotiate a treaty, the first great treaty of arbitration, whereby the dispute between the United States and Great Britain arising out of the destruction of United States commerce bearers by the Confederate cruiser, Alabama might be adjusted. Secretary Fish communicated with Mr. Motley, requesting him to take certain diplomatic action. For some reason possibly because of a misunderstanding, Mr. Motley did not heed the request of his superior officer. At last it seemed expedient to President Grant and Secretary Fish that Mr. Motley be recalled. That recall precipitated the factional disturbance in the Republican party which was one of the chief causes for the organization of the so-called Liberal Republican party in 1872. Mr. Fish always was of the opinion that had Mr. Motley remained minister at the court of St. James it would have been impossible to negotiate the arbitration treaty by which the Geneva court was established and Great Britain was adjudged so responsible as to justify an award of $15,000,000 to be paid to the United States; while the politicians of that day were sure that had Motley been retained as minister there would have been no Liberal Republican party.

Chester A. Arthur's Temptation.

Had Chester A. Arthur yielded to a temptation put before him to accept the post of minister to one of the continental nations of Europe he would not have been nominated for vice president, and, of course, would not have succeeded to the presidency after the death of President Garfield.

President Hayes, for reasons that seemed good to him, determined to remove Gen. Arthur from the post he had held for eight years as collector of the port of New York. That action was fraught with mighty consequences to the Republican party. To it, indirectly, is traceable the split in New York state, which made the election of Grover Cleveland to the presidency possible in 1884.

After Gen. Arthur was removed from the collectorship of the port of New York, he opened a law office, intending to resume the practice of law. One day an intimate friend called, and in the course of the conversation Gen. Arthur said that he might have been spared the humiliation of removal had he been willing to accept an offer, made in the name of President Hayes, of a mission to one of the European nations.

Having said this, he opened his desk and took from one of the drawers a letter, permitting his friend to read it. The letter was written by one high in authority in Washington, and contained an intimation that if Gen. Arthur were willing to accept the post as minister either to The Hague or to Belgium the nomination would be made. There was also intimation that, if the offer were declined, Gen. Arthur might be removed from the collectorship. He did decline the offer informally, and a few weeks afterward was removed from the office of collector. Three years later he was nominated for vice president on the ticket with Gen. Garfield.

In a way somewhat similar to this the post of ambassador or minister frequently has been utilized to compose a political quarrel or to satisfy a political faction. President Lincoln, when he found it necessary to name a successor to Simon Cameron as secretary of war, having Edwin M. Stanton in mind, did not ask for Gen. Cameron's resignation, but offered him the post of minister to St. Petersburg. In that post Gen. Cameron gave highly valuable service to the United States, for Russia was the consistent friend of the North during all the years of the Civil war.

The Missions That Pay.

There are two or three missions in Uncle Sam's gift which are profitable, public opinion to the contrary notwithstanding. Mexico is regarded as desirable because the duties are light, the expenses of living are very slight, and it is possible to save a considerable part of the salary. One minister, who served four years in Mexico, and was very popular brought back $40,000, which he had saved from his salary. But there is no money in the majority of the missions. The valuable places in our diplomatic service are several of the consul generalships.

President Cleveland nominated Thomas M. Waller, governor of Connecticut, as consul general for the United States at London. Governor Waller then was 45 years of age. He began life as an orphan newsboy in New York city. In the four years of his service he was able to save something like $80,000, not from official fees, but from incidental business which comes in large volume to the United States consul general at London. So also Hawthorne, the author, gained his first little capital by his service as consul general at Liverpool in the administration of President Pierce. Bret Harte was very anxious to be named minister to China, but he was compelled to be content with a consulship, first in a small town on the continent of Europe, and afterward with the post consul to Glasgow. But he discovered that as an author he could rely upon a larger income than he could as consul and resigned that post.

Some of the consulships furnish good opportunity to master certain trade methods. But not until the whole consular system has been established firmly upon the civil service basis is it possible for a young American to contemplate a satisfactory career in our diplomatic service.

Whooping Cough.

This is a more dangerous disease than is generally presumed. It will be a surprise to many to learn that more deaths result from it than from scarlet fever. Pneumonia often results from it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, and always with the best results. Delbert McKelg of Harlan, Iowa, says of it: "My boy took whooping cough when nine months old. He had it in the winter. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which proved good. I cannot recommend it too highly." For sale by all druggists.

DULUTH WOMAN MATRON OF HONOR AT WEDDING.

Houghton, Mich., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—A dispatch from Chicago gives the following account of the wedding there Wednesday night of a well known Houghton couple:

"The marriage of Miss Ellen Vivian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Vivian of Houghton, took place at 6 o'clock last night at Trinity Episcopal church, Rev. Z. T. Barney Phillips officiating. A dinner followed at the Stratford hotel.

"Mrs. Vivian and Miss Vivian came to Chicago early in the week to prepare for the wedding. Mr. Vivian was not present, having been detained in Houghton because of illness in the family. In his absence, Mrs. Vivian gave her daughter in marriage. Mrs. Phillip Thomas of Duluth served as matron of honor."

STEEL AND IRON IMPROVEMENT

Dun Says Reduced Prices Have Stimulated the Demand.

New York, May 1.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade today says: Developments of the week are of special significance. One is the district improvement in the iron and steel trade, on which the whole commercial situation depends. Reduced prices have stimulated an active demand, which in turn brought about this week a lifting of prices on a number of products. The demand is especially notable for construction and agricultural interests. The other development is the foreign commerce statements which reveals extraordinary importations of crude materials for manufacturers' purposes, a clear proof of reviving industry. The cold weather of the week, has however, been unfavorable and retarded business in mercantile lines. Conditions in iron and steel are more satisfactory than at any previous time this year. Sentiment has visibly improved with the heavier volume of business in certain divisions, and the higher prices are named on some products with further advances expected.

While jobbers of cotton goods are doing a moderate business locally, the trade in a number of Western centers is quite satisfactory and the aggregate of transactions is fully up to normal. Export trade continues quiet, although there is some inquiry from the Red sea. Demand for heavy brown goods for the home trade is light, but prices continue firm; owing to the fact that much machinery in this line has been diverted to filling export contracts. The print cloth situation continues to be strong and cutters, especially shirt manufacturers are buying freely of the higher counter and operating well into the future. In the woolen goods division there have been some cancellations on current heavy weight goods, especially fancy wool overcoatings. Fancy worsteds are, as a rule, well conditioned, most manufacturers being still able to accept additional business, although at the same time sold some distance ahead. Woolen and worsted yarns continue to be strong, with an advancing tendency, while linings and jute yarns are moving moderately at unchanged prices.

Some increases in orders are reported by shoe manufacturers in New England, but trading continues more or less restricted.

The hide market is stronger and more active in every department and prices have taken another sharp upward turn. The leather market continues to improve in tone and business is steadily increasing. Sole leather is especially firm, but upper leather is less active owing to uncertainty regarding styles in footwear.

585 SALOONS AND TEN BREWERIES, IN MICHIGAN, CLOSE

Detroit, Mich., May 1.—At nildnight 585 saloons and 10 breweries in nineteen counties of Michigan which voted dry at the last election closed. Thirty of the eighty-three counties in the state are now dry. Following are the nineteen counties in which liquor dealers closed:

Alleghany, Eaton, Livingstone, Calhoun, Jackson, Branch, Pittsdale, Ionia, Genessee, Sanilac, Tuscola, Isabella, Newaygo, Cuhre, Alcena, Kalkaska, Benzie, Charlestolx and Emmet.

FIND MONEY UNDER BARN.

May Be Part of Large Sum Left By Man Who Was Killed.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—A rather peculiar find was made yesterday by John Elkhoff, employed in tearing down a barn at the rear of the J. Arthur Williams home at 616 Chestnut street. Underneath the barn four silver dollars were found. On two of the dollars the dates 1874 and 1883 were visible. It is believed that there is more money stored away beneath the barn, which was formerly occupied by Marion Noveskoski, who resided in the building about fifteen years ago.

Marion Noveskoski was held up and beaten until he was insensible. He never regained his reason and soon died from the effects of the beating at his home at 615 Chestnut street. At the time of his death, Mr. Noveskoski it was believed, had money, but none could be found.

The find today partially solves the mystery and while only four dollars was discovered, it is believed that more money was hid away by Mr. Noveskoski beneath the old barn. The workmen, who are employed in tearing down the old building are all interested and are continuing their search for more wealth believed to be in store there.

It is no great wisdom or intelligence to see and appreciate that building material of nearly every description is cheaper this spring than it may be for several years.

In the good residential sections we have seen the value of lots double in the last three years. With the developments about to take place in Duluth, they will, in all probability, double in the next two years.

NOW is the time for the wise and thoughtful man to secure a home.

DELAY IS DANGEROUS; in a year from today your home might cost you 50 per cent more.

SNOW STORM PUTS DAMPER ON REAL ESTATE MARKET

The optimism noticeable among the real estate dealers of the city a week ago, after the veto of the tonnage tax, was still in vogue during the past week.

It is true that business has not been rushing, but the snow, coming as it did in the very midst of a busy week, suddenly put a stop to much business that would otherwise have been closed up, and the sales reported today.

Every real estate dealer is up to his ears in work, and the inquiries have been coming in of late, as though there was but very little propertly left. The actual sales have been light, but the interest being taken, gives great promise.

There were several rumors on the street during the week of large deals being made in Superior street property, but those concerned deny that there is any truth in them.

All the offices admit they have been doing more business during the past two weeks than at any time in six months, and attribute the increased business to the vetoing of the tonnage tax by Governor Johnson. While they admit that they have made a number of sales, the dealers are still backward about giving out the transfers.

The snow put a crimp in the summer home business, which had been the best in some years. Fond du Lac property was on the move. A number of sales had been made and others were being negotiated. Park Point rental property was in demand, and one agent said that for a few days, while the weather was fine, it seemed as though every family in Duluth had suddenly been caught with the desire to reside during the summer months on this charming strip of land between the lake and the bay.

Not only in and around Duluth are Duluthians buying summer residence property. There is a movement after Deerwood property, and much inquiry after residence property at Solon Springs.

The steady demand for suburban property is as heavy as ever. Lakeside, Woodland and West Duluth property all look good.

East end residence property is in demand, and although several deals are known to have been made, very few of the offices are ready yet to give out the transfers. Through the offices of Stryker, Manley & Buck, the residence of R. F. Gibson on First street, between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth avenues east, was sold to E. H. Smith for $5,000. The lot is 80 by 140 feet and is considered one of the most desirable of East end lots.

• • •

The architects announce that there is nothing new in the building line. They say they are busy and that there is much talk in building circles of residences, flats, and duplex houses in addition to the great number now under construction in the different parts of the city.

The building this summer they claim will be heavy, but will be mostly the improvement of residence property.

• • •

The announcement during the week from the offices of the Northern Pacific to the effect that a gasoline car would be put on the run between Duluth and Fond du Lac pleased the residents of that part of town immensely. It has already increased the demand for summer home property in this pretty suburb.

• • •

On Wednesday George H. Crosby J. M. Smith, and William Getty returned from a trip on the Cuyuna iron range, where they went to inspect the townsite of Crosby, which they will put on the market in a very short time. The location is at the outlet of Serpent lake and is said to be one of the most beautiful locations for a town in this part of the state. Many of the larger mines of this comparatively new range are located close at hand.

Serpent lake is one of the prettiest of the Northern Minnesota lakes. It is three and one-half miles long and one and one-half miles wide. It is fed entirely by springs and for many years past the little inland lake has been considered one of the best for fish.

The Getty-Smith company is putting on the townsite. They plan on installing a water system, will grade the streets and improve the place in many other ways.

• • •

N. J. Miller has sold to Stack Bros. his residence on the corner of Second street and Second avenue east. This residence when built was among the finest homes in the city, and no expense was spared for its construction. Stack Bros. will thoroughly repair and remodel it, turning it into a double house.

• • •

Through the offices of Stryker, Manley & Buck there was this week sold to Fred Husby a fifty-foot lot on the upper side of Fifth street, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second avenue east. The consideration was $1,200.

• • •

The residence property of Louis Liberman, located on the northwest corner of Third avenue west and Fifth street, has been sold to H. E. Schwerdt for a consideration of $4,100. The deal was made through the offices of the Harris Realty company.

• • •

The house and lot at 517 East Fourth street has been sold by the owner, Elizabeth Leyes, to A. W. Anderson. The consideration was $3,150, and the deal was made through the offices of N. J. Upham & Co.

• • •

The building permits for the week of over $1,000 follow:

To the Standard Investment company, permits for the construction of three frame dwellings, to be located on the west side of Eleventh avenue east, between Sixth and Seventh streets. Each house will cost $1,000.

To N. J. Bunker for two frame dwellings to be located between Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth avenues west on Sixth street. Each will cost $2,500.

To Peter Grams for a frame dwelling to be located on East Eighth street, between Second and Third avenues, to cost $2,500.

To Gust Torgerson for a frame dwelling to be located on Ninth avenue east, between Eighth and Ninth streets, to cost $1,500.

THERE ARE EIGHT SALOONS IN THIS BLOCK.

The above cut shows the buildings on the north side of West First street, between First and Second avenues. It is one of the banner saloon blocks in the city, there being five of them. On the south side of the street are two more. While the block has never attained the popularity and patronage of the old Bowery, it has been, and is, a favorite hangout for saloon habitues. A redeeming feature is the freedom of the place from street rowdyism and ladies in passing are free from the insulting remarks so often passed in districts where saloons abound. Two substantial business concerns now occupy the corners of the block and with the growth of the city the tendency will be to put up better buildings in this square and eliminate the saloon from the section.

HE CALLS HAINS "IRRATIONAL"

Flushing, N. Y., May 1.—The cross-examination of Thornton J. Hains was continued when court opened today at the trial of his brother, Capt. Peter C. Hains, U. S. A., for killing William E. Annis. District Attorney De Witt asked the witness about his brother's appearance and actions at Fort Hamilton on June 1, when he saw him at the captain's quarters.

"His glasses seemed glassy and staring," said the witness, "and his face was white and drawn."

"Would you say that he was rational or irrational at that time?"

"Irrational."

MARINE NEWS

BIG FLEET IS UPBOUND

Pittsburg Boats Clear for Head of the Lakes.

Package Freighters Arrive in Port After Stormy Voyage.

The Pittsburg Steamship company's big fleet of nearly forty vessels commenced moving upbound from the Soo today. A number of them are expected in Duluth tomorrow night. The arrival of these vessels will formally inaugurate the ore-carrying season of 1909.

It is expected that several freighters will be loaded and ready for the down trip Monday. The Pittsburg company has been in no hurry to get its boats through, preferring to hold them in safety at the Soo to risking damage in the ice.

The interlake passage is now open and no farther trouble or tieup is likely. With the departure of the ore fleet St. Mary's river is practically cleared.

The Western Transit boat Superior lost her wheel in the ice in Whitefish bay yesterday afternoon. She was towed back to the Soo by the Rochester, and both are held there pending orders.

The Mutual Transit vessels, Northern King and Northern Light, arrived in Duluth during the early hours this morning. They are the first of the Mutual fleet of five vessels which left Whitefish Thursday, to reach this port.

The crew of the King report a very rough trip with a heavy snowfall and high winds. Owing to the storm the two boats made no attempt to keep close together. No damage was done, although the men suffered much from the intense cold.

COMMITTEE.

INTERVIEW MAKES TALK

Not Believed Capt. Boyce Would Pass Distressed Vessel.

The interview at the Soo with Capt. Pringle of the Aurania, in which he states that the George W. Peavey paid no attention in passing to his signals of distress, has occasioned considerable comment among shipping men in Duluth.

Capt. Pringle intimates that the Peavey could have come to his assistance if she had desired, and that if it had not been for the Bartow, he and his crew would have been without food or shelter.

Capt. Boyce, of the Peavey, is not believed to be the kind of a man who would pass a distressed vessel if there were any means of affording assistance. The general belief here is that the Peavey was at such a distance from the Auraula that it would have been impossible to force a passage to her through the ice.

WILL RETURN TO DULUTH

J. H. McFadzean Appointed Local Agent of Transportation Co.

James H. McFadzean, a former resident of Duluth, but for some time past located at Houghton, Mich., as agent at that place of the Chicago & Duluth Transportation company, has been appointed Duluth agent of the same company.

During his residence in this city Mr. McFadzean was for some time passenger and ticket agent for the Northern Pacific, and was also for a time contracting freight agent of the Graham & Morton Transportation company.

THE CANAL IS FILLED WITH ICE

Vessels Have Difficulty Forcing Entrance to the Harbor.

Since the wind abated yesterday the harbor entry has been almost impassable, due to ice accumulations caused by the high northeast gale which raged Thursday. The canal was clogged as far as the aerial bridge, and arriving and departing vessels had difficulty in getting through.

Among the arrivals today was the Montreal steamer J. S. Keefe. She battled her way through the ice for two hours, but got through without assistance. The canal is now open

MOORE NOT YET IN PORT

Believed Vessel Sought Shelter at Grand Marais.

Was Expected Last Night, But No Anxiety Felt.

The steamer C. W. Moore of the Booth line, which left Port Arthur at 5:30 Thursday evening had not arrived in Duluth at a late hour this afternoon. She called at Isle Royale and it is believed that after leaving there the Moore ran into rough weather, and was compelled to seek shelter in Grand Marais harbor.

The Moore is a small vessel of 383 gross tonnage and not capable of withstanding very rough weather. The vessel was expected in Duluth last night. The local agents express no uneasiness over her delayed arrival as yet.

The steamer Easton of the United States and Dominion line has been taken from dry dock and to the Booth dock. She will sail for Port Arthur on her first trip of the season tonight.

STRIKE STARTS OFF IN CHICAGO

No Time Lost by the Mariners in Beginning.

Chicago, May 1.—No time was lost today in beginning the strike of the Lake Seamens' union. At noon Victor Orlander, secretary of the union, stated that 150 men employed on twelve boats in the Chicago river had left their berths. As fast as the boats reach Chicago from other ports, the men will be called off.

This action was taken in advance of the sanction of the International Seamen's union to the strike. The approval, it is said, will without a doubt be forthcoming.

Vessel owners here professed to believe the strike will not seriously interfere with lake traffic.

Manager George Williams of the Western Transit company, stated that the ships of that company were moving as usual. He said he had a little trouble in securing men even after it had become known a week ago that the strike would be called.

Port of Duluth.

Arrived—Codorus, Schuylkill, Northern King, merchandise.
L. C. Hanna, light for ore.
Sultana, coal.
Departed—Troy, merchandise, Buffalo.

Marine Notes.

The Canadian tug Superior, which has been undergoing repairs, started for Port Arthur yesterday afternoon. She was unable to get through the ice at the mouth of the harbor and put back. She will leave today if possible.

The new steamer Benjamin Noble has been launched at the Detroit yards. She will go into commission this month.

The United States engineer's office has received word that its steamer Vidette arrived at Ontonagon, Mich., on time and did not encounter the recent storm.

The steamer Troy left last night with a load of 5,000 tons of flour for Buffalo. The Troy was in Duluth harbor exactly sixty hours. In this time she unloaded 2,000 tons of miscellaneous freight, shifted several times, and took on her return cargo.

STEAMERS AURANIA AND RUSSIA AND THE BARGE NESTER LOST IN LAKES

the ship abandoned, escape being made in the yawl boats just before the final plunge of the Russia, which carried her to the bottom.

The captain was the last to leave the ship and was the only man injured, the fingers of one hand being crushed.

McLean and the crew are still at Detour.

The Russia plied between Port Huron and Duluth and was on her first trip of the season. She was an iron vessel and was built in 1872. She was of 1,501 tons, with a length of 232 feet and a beam of 36 feet.

It Was the Aurania.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Confirmation of the report that the steamer which sank in Whitefish bay, near Parisian island Thursday, is the Aurania, of the Corrigan line, was brought here today with the arrival of Capt. Robert C. Pringle and the entire crew of the Aurania.

The captain and the crew made their escape from the sinking vessel over several miles of ice to the steamer Bartow.

A thrilling story is told by Capt. Pringle of the crew's escape from the sinking vessel. In an interview this morning he censured the crews of two Peavey and Canadian line boats, which he says, saw his boat lying on beam end with signals of distress flying.

They paid no attention to him, he claims, going down the river, and had it not been for the Bartow, the crew would now be starving on Parisian island. The Aurania bucked ice for a time after leaving the Soo Sunday and finally lay under Point Aux Pines.

Said Capt. Pringle this morning: "We had no trouble until heavy ice crowded us into the bank. We got to Iroquois point when a heavy wind from the northwest set in off Gros Cap. Ice packed in both sides until later an east wind opened a crack, so we worked out to Parisian island. This was on Wednesday night.

"A southeast wind set us in closer to Parisian Island and there we met the heaviest ice. Finally we succeeded in working west, but got into another big floe. The mate examined the fore peak and found it all right. This was about 7 a. m. Thursday. We kept backing, but were filling fast. We were working loose when she suddenly turned on her beam's end.

"Knowing something was wrong, the engineer shoved her back full speed on to the ice floe. This sustained her and gave us time to get the boats clear. When on the ice we started westward. Finding it impossible to drag all the small boats along, we forsook all except the little yawl Peggy. This was used to ferry across four gaps of open water. The Bartow, two Peavey boats, and a Canadian steamer were to the west, and all except the Bartow in light ice.

"The Peavey and Canadian boats paid no attention to my signals of distress and proceeded on down the river.

"The Bartow was stuck fast and worked hard to release herself and get to us. I kept everything in readiness to put off in case anything went wrong with us. Had the Bartow been like the rest of the boats, we would now be eating pigeons on Parisian island.

"The distance to the Bartow traveled was about three and a half miles. The Peavey boats were about half a mile farther. In several places the ice was badly honeycombed and dangerous."

The Bartow arrived at the Canadian locks this morning at 5 o'clock. The shipwrecked crew was transferred to a tug and brought to the American side. The Aurania was loaded with coal from Buffalo to Superior. The crew were: Capt. R. C. Pringle; E. N. Cleveland, engineer; B. C. McLaren, mate; O. Elliott, second engineer; L. W. Nordemann, second mate; A. B. Graham, cook; G. Burdeley, second cook; Albert L. Holt, oiler; Harry Bird, oiler; William Hocking, wheelman; W. Jensen, wheelman; Barton Pringle, watchman; Olaf Szvertsen, watchman; T. R. Freeman, watchman; M. Welsen, watchman; J. S. Herman, watchman, and Edwin Jackson, Frank Young, James Pass, Irvin Hodges, deck hands.

WHEAT HAS AN ADVANCE

Flax Is Easier at the End of the Session Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 1.—Cold weather and storms throughout both the spring wheat and winter wheat districts caused a stronger market today, the near-by months displaying the greatest advances at the close of the short session.

Cold weather was reported from the Southwest and it was feared that the growing winter wheat crop had been damaged. The snows in the North further delayed seeding and contributed some of the bullish influence. Some was also lent by firmer cables.

Broomhall estimates the world's shipments of wheat, exclusive of North America, at 6,800,000 bu, of which quantity Europe is expected to take about 6,000,000 bu.

Liverpool closed ¼d higher, Berlin 1c higher, Antwerp ⅝c higher and Paris unchanged.

The May option closed 1⅛c higher in Duluth, 1⅞@2c higher in Chicago, 1⅛c higher in Minneapolis, ½c higher in New York and 1⅛c higher in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ⅝c higher in Chicago and oats ⅛@⅜c higher.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"The late decline in American markets yesterday, together with the break in Winnipeg, caused larger offerings here at the opening and values were half lower. Following the opening and during the remainder of the morning, the market was firmly supported and values showed an advance of ¾@⅞d with offerings light and support active. Strength was the result of the small American shipments as indicated by Bradstreet's, fewer first hand Indian offerings, continued good inquiry from the continent, an advance in Berlin and a report by Lord Strathcona, that Manitoba seeding was backward. At the close, the market was very firm and 1¾@⅞d higher than yesterday.

"There was but fewer decline opening in sympathy with American cables yesterday, and easier La Platta offerings. Later, this decline was recovered with the undertone firm in sympathy with the advance in wheat."

Wheat was fairly active in the Duluth market. May wheat opened ⅝c higher at $1.22⅞, advanced to $1.23⅛, declin to $1.22⅞, rallied to $1.23 and closed there, a gain of 1⅛c over yesterday. July wheat opened ⅝c higher at $1.23, advanced to $1.23⅜, declined to $1.23⅛, rallied to $1.23⅝, declined to $1.23 and closed at $1.23¼, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday. September wheat opened ⅝c higher at $1.05½, advanced to $1.05, declined $1.04⅞ and closed at $1.05⅛, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ⅝c higher and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2⅛c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quiet and easier. May flax opened unchanged at $1.64, declined to $1.63⅝ and closed at $1.63¾, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday. July flax opened a shade higher at $1.64@1.64⅛, advanced to $1.64½ and closed at $1.64¼, a gain of ¼c over yesterday. September flax was inactive and closed at $1.44, unchanged from yesterday. October flax sold at $1.39 and closed there, unchanged from yesterday.

Oats closed ½c higher and rye 1c higher.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Chicago, May 1.—Notwithstanding the fact that more than 2,000,000 bushels of wheat were delivered today on May contracts, the market was strong early in the day, owing to brisk demand by commission houses. Nearly all of the cash grain was taken by the leader of the bulls, which accounted for the halting of the market to respond to the enormous deliveries. Cables were strong, and weather in the Northwest was still unfavorable for seeding.

There was considerable selling of the distant deliveries late in the session, which caused a heavy tone, July declining to $1.13⅜. May, however, held firm. A little firmer tone prevailed at the close, final quotations showing gains of ⅝c to 1⅞@2c. May being at $1.25¾ and July at $1.12.

At the opening prices were ⅝c to 1⅛c above yesterday's closing figures. May being at $1.24½@1.24⅝ and July at $1.11⅝@1.12⅜. Owing to light offerings the May option was soon forced up to $1.25¾, while July advanced to $1.12⅞.

Corn was strong on unfavorable weather conditions, and on the total absence of any actual deliveries on May contracts. Prices at the start were ¼@⅝c to 1c higher, with May at 71⅞-72⅛c and July at 68⅜@68⅝c. Later May sold at 71⅝c and July at 68⅝c.

Much of the early gain was lost late in the session, when May declined to 71c. The close was about steady, with May 8⅛c at 71⅛c.

Although deliveries of oats on May contracts were larger than generally expected, at 650,000, the market was firm, owing to active demand by country houses. Delay to seeding due to wet weather was the influence. May opened ¼@⅜c higher at 56@56⅛c, and July at 49⅜c. Early in the day May touched 56⅝c, while July sold up to 49⅞c.

Country packers and shorts were fair bidders for provisions, which resulted in moderate firmness. Offerings were in light. Prices at the opening were 5@10c higher.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Demand for Millstuffs Is in Excess of the Supply.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 1.—The opening today was strong on firm cables and unfavorable weather throughout the Northwest. Local stocks decreased 823,240 bushels for the week and for the first day of the new week there was a decrease of 200,000 bushels. The market was a little easier as the session progressed on account of some profit taking. July wheat closed ⅛c lower than the opening. Minneapolis today received 156 cars against 144; Duluth 8 against 47; Winnipeg 101 against 76. May opened, $1.25; high, $1.25¼; low, $1.24; close, $1.24⅞. July opened, $1.21¼; high, $1.25@⅛; low, $1.23½@1.25⅝; close, $1.24. Cash wheat was again stimulated by light receipts. Premiums that advanced yesterday held steady today. Millers were eager buyers. No. 1 northern sold for 3@3½c over the July option and No. 2 northern 2@1½c over. No. 1 northern spot, $1.27⅛@1.27⅝; to arrive, $1.27⅛@1.27⅝; No. 2 northern spot, $1.25⅛@1.25⅝; to arrive, $1.25⅛@1.25⅝; No. 3 wheat, $1.22½@1.23⅝. No. 3 yellow corn, 69¾@69¾c; No. 3 white oats, 55½@55⅞c; No. 2 rye, 85¾@89¾c.

Millstuffs shipments, 1,629 tons. Demand continued fair and far in excess of the supply. The market was very active. Prices advanced on all grades 50c. Shipments were steady. Bran in bulk $23.50@24.00. Flour was in fair demand reported by both country and local millers. Eastern orders were merely for split cars, and foreign inquiry was light. Shipments showed an increase and prices held firm. Shipments, 48,602 barrels. First patents, $6.10@6.20; second patents, $5.95@6.10; first clears, $4.75@4.95; second clears, $3.45@3.55.

Flax receipts, 2 cars, against 20; shipments, 3. Lack of offerings made the market purely nominal. Demand was strong, and prices were quoted 1c over the Duluth May option. Close, $1.63½.

Barley receipts, 36 cars, against 8; shipments, 17. Heavier receipts made the usual easy market for Saturday. Malting grades had the strongest inquiry, but demand for all grades was not as strong. Prices were ½c off. Close, 62@64c.

REMARKS.

Snow or rain fell over all districts.
H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

T. indicates inappreciable rainfall. *For yesterday. †For twenty-four hours ending 8 a. m., 75th meridian time. ‡Minimum temperature for twelve hours ending 8 a. m., 75th meridian time.

NOTE—The average maximum and minimum temperatures and the average rainfall are made up at each center from the actual number of reports received. The "state of weather" is that prevailing at time of observation.

Weekly Bank Statement.

New York, May 1.—The statement of the clearing house banks for the week shows that the banks hold $11,207,200 more than the requirements of the 25 per cent reserve rule. This is an increase of $1,000,825 in the proportionate cash reserve as compared with last week.

The statement follows: Loans, $1,337,357,500; decrease, $2,228,000. Deposits, $1,386,958,800; decrease, $2,429,900. Circulation, $45,216,300; decrease, $44,200. Legal tenders, $17,489,200; increase, $524,400. Specie, $280,507,700; decrease, $35,800. Reserves, $297,946,900; increase, $489,600. Reserve required, $346,739,700; decrease, $606,225. Surplus, $11,207,200; increase, $1,000,825. Ex-United States deposits, $11,745,400; increase, $1,095,100. The percentage of actual reserve of clearing house banks today was 25.6.

The statement of banks and trust companies of Greater New York not reporting to the clearing houses shows that these institutions have aggregate deposits of $1,251,933,600; total cash on hand $146,030,300, and loans amounting to $1,115,593,600.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Early Rise Was Followed By Decline Under Profit-Taking.

New York, May 1.—Very few stocks showed any marked change today in the opening dealings from yesterday's last prices. Small fractional gains and losses were mingled and the dealings were not active. Colorado & Southern second preferred advanced 1¾ and Canadian Pacific and Western Union 1.

A rise was not followed up with any persistence and the traders accordingly took profits, driving the important stocks below yesterday's closing. Reading and American Smelting were the worst sufferers, reacting a point. Colorado & Southern first preferred advanced 1 and General Chemical 6, while Cleveland, C. C. & St. Louis preferred declined 3 points. The market closed irregular. The Canadian group was strong, Canadian Pacific rising 2, the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic stocks 1½ and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie and Western Union gained 3. Pressed Steel Car preferred 2, Hocking Valley Coal 1¼ and Pennsylvania, Erie first preferred and Republic Steel preferred 1. The heavy undertone in the general list persisted.

ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR PROBATE OF FOREIGN WILL.
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. In Probate Court.
Certain instruments purporting to be authenticated copies of the last will and testament of William H. Turner and of the probate thereof in the Probate Court in and for the County of Lake, State of Ohio, having been presented to this court, and the petition of Maynard W. Turner being filed herein, representing, among other things, that said deceased, then being a resident of the County of Lake, State of Ohio, died testate in the County of Lake, State of Ohio, on the 17th day of October, 1907, leaving estate in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, and that said instrument has been allowed and admitted to probate as his will in the Court above named, and praying that said will be allowed and admitted to probate in this state, and that letters testamentary be issued thereon to Maynard W. Turner.
IT IS ORDERED That said petition be heard before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in Duluth, in said County, on Monday, on the 24th day of May, 1909, at ten o'clock a. m., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.
ORDERED FURTHER, That this order be served by publication in The Duluth Evening Herald according to law, and that a copy of this order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not later than ten days prior to said day of hearing.
Dated at Duluth, Minn., April 30, 1909.
By the Court,
J. B MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.
(Seal, Probate Court, St. Louis County, Minn.)

MASSACRES REBEL PLAN

They Were Committed as Part of the Revolution.

Thirteen Turks Hanged on Scene of Their Crimes.

Constantinople, May 3.—Documentary evidence has been discovered among the records of the telegraph office here of the knowledge of the Constantinople authorities that massacres had been planned for the Adana district, and that they were to coincide with the political events here.

Other papers have been found indicating also that the conspirators at the palace acted in the sultan's name in preparing the military mutiny of April 13. Lists of houses, with notes on the kind of loot to be found therein, were discovered on some of the prisoners now in custody. The arrangements were for a general massacre of foreigners, including the diplomatic representatives, April 24.

Thirteen soldiers, sentenced by the military courts to death for murder, were hanged in different parts of Constantinople at 4 o'clock today.

Maj. Youssef, his son and three other men who killed the Syrian deputy, Emir Mohammed Arslan, in front of the parliament building, were executed on the spot where they committed the crime. Five officers were hanged at the entrance to the ministry of war, and three men at Stamboul end of the Galata bridge. Among these three is said to be Mourad, editor of the newspaper Sabah.

On the breast of each criminal had been pinned a large placard in Turkish setting forth the sentence of the court. Around the foot of the gibbets on the bridge the early morning buying of fruits, cheese and vegetables proceeded as usual, while the bodies were in full sight of the great crowds that made their way over the bridge between Stamboul and Galata.

Guard For Missionary.

Adana, Asiatic Turkey, May 3.—The governor general of the vilayet has given Rev. William N. Chambers, a missionary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, a guard to accompany him to Hadjin.

BOWL OF SUGAR USED AS WEAPON

New York, May 3.—Two men are in Gouverneur hospital and ten are under arrest today as a result of disorders arising out of the strike among the bakers on the East side.

Seniem Ruberstine entered Michael Novak's restaurant and while cellar early today and when he found a loaf of bread without the union label attacked the attacked the proprietor.

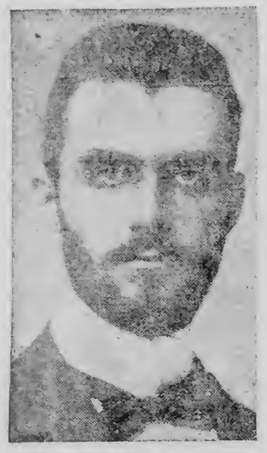
Novak's wife threw a bowl of sugar at Ruberstine, fracturing his skull.

An attack by nine men was made on a bakery kept by Nathan Fryer and Samuel Bricklower. Both were badly injured, Bricklower being taken to the hospital. Their assailants were locked up.

KILLS SELF WITH DYNAMITE BOMB.

Mount Vernon, Ill., May 3.—A dynamite bomb was the means employed by Carsen Martin, a farmer 15 years old, living in Belle Riker, south of this city, to commit suicide. Martin took the explosive into an out-building. The structure was blown to bits and his body was scattered over the premises. He left a letter declaring it was his intention to take his life.

DEFAULT SENTENCE IS MONTH IN JAIL



JAMES HAZEN HYDE.

Paris, May 3.—James Hazen Hyde of New York, former vice president of the Equitable Life Assurance society, and his chauffeur, Ladwlee, were yesterday condemned by default, Mr. Hyde to one month's imprisonment and a fine of $100 and Ladwlee to a month's imprisonment and a fine of $30. They were charged with running into a public taxicab last October and injuring a passenger. Hyde is on an auto trip in the Riviera.

PEACE DAWN IS SALUTED

Chicago, May 3.—The second national peace congress was opened formally here today. Orchestra hall was well filled with delegates. Robert Treat Paine of Boston, president of the American Peace society, was in the chair.

Addresses of welcome were made by Governor Charles Deneen and Mayor Fred A. Busse of Chicago. Rev. A. Eugene Bartlett, chairman of the reception committee, welcomed the delegates to the work of the congress and told them of the arrangements that had been made for their comfort and convenience.

A letter from President Taft was read by Secretary of the Interior Richard A. Ballinger, who had been delegated to represent the administration. Miss Anna B. Eckstein of Boston announced "a world petition to third Hague conference." Dr. Benjamin F. Trueblood, secretary of the American Peace society, told of the present position of the peace movement, and Dean W. P. Rogers of the Cincinnati Law school, spoke of "The Dawn of Universal Peace." In his address of welcome, Dr. Bartlett said:

"We welcome you to the serious work of the congress. Large have been the expenditures, but we expect you to do your work so faithfully that the achievements of this gathering will be immeasurably greater than its expenditures. This congress must be more than a spasmodic expression of protest against war, and a resolution that disarmament would be desirable. It should inaugurate a still more effective campaign of education of the people in the interests of permanent, world-wide peace. The burdens of war are borne by the common people and in the end the verdict of war or peace must rest with the rank and file of the people."

Exercises of many kinds were held in the city yesterday as a preliminary to this session. Special peace services were held in all of the churches in the morning. In the afternoon there was a labor demonstration and the Socialists held several meetings. In the evening a big mass meeting was held under the auspices of the Sunday Evening club. The congress will last for three days.

PEACE PROGRESS NOTED BY TAFT

President Regrets He Cannot Attend the Chicago Congress.

Chicago, May 3.—The following is the text of a letter written by President Taft to Secretary Royal L. Melendy of the national peace congress and read at the opening of that body today:

"My Dear Sir: I greatly regret that I am unable to attend the coming national peace congress in Chicago and there to express my earnest sympathy with the object of the assembling of so many distinguished men in the interest of world peace.

"That progress has been made in the matter of peace everywhere by international action and by the moral pressure of the peoples of the earth, anyone who has examined the record must admit. It is time that armaments go on increasing in cost, but it is also time that the burdens presented by this competition in armament are growing heavier and heavier, and the problems for solution consistent with their increase become more and more difficult. The possibilities of war now arising come chiefly from irresponsibilities of government, and in those countries where stability of internal control is lacking. The United States has contributed much to the cause of peace by assisting countries weak in respect to their internal government so as to strengthen in them the cause of law and order. This relationship of guardian and ward as between nations and countries, in my judgment, helps along the cause of international peace and indicates progress in civilization. The policy of the United States in avoiding war under all circumstances except those plainly inconsistent with honor or its highest welfare has been made so clear to the world as hardly to need statement at my hands. I can only say that so far as my legitimate influence extends while at the head of this government, it will always be exerted in the full in favor of peace, not only as between this country and other countries, but as between our sister nations."

LAST FEUD CASE COMES TO CLOSE

This clears all dockets of the Breathitt feud cases in which Judge James Hargis, Ed Callahan, B. Fulton French, and several others were accused, and which resulted in the death of Dr. D. B. Cox, James Cockrill and James B. Mareum.

Refugees Return to Kessab.

Latakia, May 3.—A number of refugees who sought shelter here, yesterday returned to Kessab, accompanied by Rev. J. M. Ralph, a missionary of the Reformed Presbyterian church in the United States. The government is distributing food to the refugees.

ROOSEVELT GETS ANOTHER LION

His Party Expected to Arrive in Nairobi May 15.

Nairobi, British East Africa, May 3.—Theodore Roosevelt bagged one more lion yesterday at Wami, near Kapiti. This gives him a total of three lions and one lioness on the present expedition. Kermit Roosevelt succeeded in bringing down a cheetah. The hunting was exciting, and both marksmen did excellent work.

It is rumored in native sources, but the report lacks confirmation, that the Roosevelt party will arrive at Nairobi May 15 before proceeding to Solik.

The lion killed by Mr. Roosevelt Sesterday was brought down at close range. His quick work with the rifle saved the lives of some of his mounted escort who had narrow escapes from the infuriated beast. The accuracy of Mr. Roosevelt's marksmanship is a matter of astonishment.

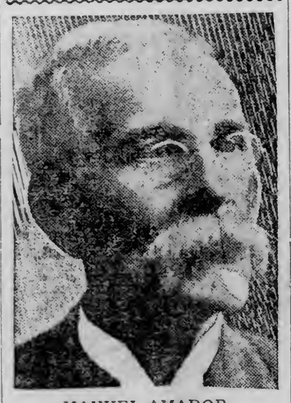
STATUE OF SHEPHERD IS UNVEILED IN WASHINGTON.

Washington, May 3.—Citizens of all classes today united in tribute when a statue of the late Governor Alexander R. Shepherd, former head of the government of the District of Columbia, was unveiled on the plaza of the municipal building on Pennsylvania avenue. Theodore W. Noyes, chairman of the Shepherd memorial committee, delivered the principal address in presenting the statue to the district government.

Uncle Sam is Invited.

Washington, May 3 — Ambassador Nabuco of Brazil has sent to Secretary of State Knox an invitation from the Brazilian government to the United States to participate in the fourth Latin-American medical congress, to be held in Rio de Janeiro Aug. 1 to 8, and also to the international exposition of hygiene in the same city Sept. 1 to 30, in conjunction with the medical congress.

FIRST PRESIDENT OF PANAMA PASSES AWAY



MANUEL AMADOR.

Panama, May 3.—Dr. Manuel Amador, first president of the republic of Panama, died yesterday afternoon, after a lingering illness. He was 75 years old and was one of the prime movers in the revolution in 1903 against Colombia, which led to the independence of Panama. He was born in Cartagena, and early in life engaged in commercial business. Later he began the practice of medicine.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A special to the Washington Post, from Richmond, Va., says: "Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota, accompanied by Mrs. Johnson, and a party of ten, spent yesterday here. Governor Johnson is making the trip to secure rest and recreation.

"The party went to Old Point Comfort this morning. Governor Johnson will probably remain in Old Dominion several days. Historical places in and about the city were visited yesterday afternoon.

"Governor Johnson, when seen at the hotel last night, refused to discuss politics. He says he is out of politics, at least temporarily. He expressed himself as immensely pleased with the South. At his own request there was no demonstration made in his honor in Richmond, where he has many friends and admirers."

COMMODITIES CLAUSE HELD CONSTITUTIONAL BY SUPREME JURISTS

Highest Court Reverses Decision of Philadelphia Tribunal.

Gives No Directions as to Decrees to Be Entered.

New York, May 3.—The decision on the commodities clause, which was reversed by the United States supreme court today, was rendered by the United States circuit court at Philadelphia on Sept. 10 and upheld the contention of the coal roads. The circuit court decided the clause unconstitutional.

Washington, May 3.—The supreme court today reversed and remanded the decision of the United States circuit court in the commodities clause cases, but did not give directions as to the character of decrees which shall be entered. The only directions were to enforce and apply the statute as it is now construed. The court held that the clause is a regulation of commerce which congress has the right to enact.

The decision was unanimous, except for Justice Harlan's dissenting on the stock feature.

Following is a summary of the opinion:

"One—The claim of the government that the revision contained in the

BALLOONS UP IN SNOW

Ascend in Rain Which Turns White Higher Up.

Airships Descend to the Earth Covered With Frost.

Berlin, May 3.—A balloon competition that started here Saturday afternoon resulted in failure, owing to heavy snow in the upper atmosphere. Six balloons ascended in a rain which, in the colder strata, several thousand feet high, turned into snow. The airships became weighted with snow and the pilots were obliged to throw out their ballast rapidly to prevent a premature landing.

Not one of the ships was able to cover more than twenty-two miles and they came down encrusted with snow to the depth of one foot.

Interest in Aero Show.

Washington, May 3.—The International Aerial exposition, which will open in Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, in July, is constantly gaining in public interest, according to a report of the state department from Consul General Richard Guenther.

Many cash prizes have been donated and others are expected. Two prizes of $5,000 each, one by the Frankfort council, have been offered. The new Frankfort festhalle, which will be used for the exposition, is 430 feet in length, with a medium dome width of 215 feet, giving ample room for floating numerous large inflated balloons. For the last dirigible balloons four immense halls are being constructed, to which another for the Zeppelin balloon probably will be added.

The new Parseval balloon, which recently had a brilliant trial trip, will carry passengers to the vicinity of Frankfort during the exhibition.

HAINS' GLASSES ARE DISCUSSED

Prosecution Seeks to Account for the Captain's Stare.

Flushing, N. Y., May 3.—With Maj. John P. Hains, the defendant's brother on the witness stand, the third week of the trial of Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., for the killing of William E. Annis, opened today. The defense will call Mrs. Virginia Hains, mother of the defendant, as last witness.

District Attorney De Witt began his cross-examination of Maj. Hains by asking him about his first interview with the defendant after the latter's return from the Philippine Islands. The district attorney went into this conversation again with the view of showing that each act of the defendant at that time was not necessarily irrational.

"Did your brother wear eyeglasses when you met him after his return from the Philippines?" asked Mr. De Witt.

"He wore them off and on," replied the witness.

"Do you know when he stopped wearing glasses?"

"I don't know that he has stopped wearing them," the major replied.

It is contended by the prosecution that Capt. Hains stopped wearing the glasses since the shooting, and because of his near-sightedness, this would account in a manner for the peculiar stare in the defendant's eyes, which has been referred to repeatedly by the witnesses for the defense.

ASK INJUNCTION IN CORPSE CASE

Woman Seeks to Prevent Removal of Bodies From Grave.

Washington, Pa., May 3.—Following the arrest of Riley Anderson at Allentown Saturday, charged with removing a monument from a burial lot belonging to Julia A. Vandergrift, a preliminary injunction was applied for today by Mrs. Vandergrift, to prevent Anderson and others from removing the bodies of her husband and his mother.

Mrs. Vandergrift alleges that Riley Anderson, Henry Anderson, L. R. Boyd and H. P. Dawson have removed a monument from her lot to another, and are proceeding to have the old inscriptions cut off and new ones put on it. She also alleges that the defendants are about to enter her lot and remove from it the bodies of her husband and mother-in-law.

Riley Anderson was held in $500 bail on the charge of malicious mischief for the alleged removal of the monument, and the court has set May 4 as the date for hearing the injunction case.

IS HEARTY AT 95.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Smith Robertson, formerly of Minneapolis, was 95 years old Saturday. He has not been as well the past few months as he had been for many years previously, but at last report was enjoying a fair degree of health and bade to live to be 100.

EVERY JAP WILL GET A PRESENT

Seattle Plans Lavish Entertainment for Visiting Navy Men.

Seattle, Wash., May 3.—The Japanese association of Washington will spend more than $5,000 in entertaining the officers and men of the Japanese cruisers Aso and Soya, which will be here May 27 to June 12.

One hundred committeemen are arranging the entertainment program, the principal event of which will be a large picnic. Each officer and sailor will receive a present.

DRIVEN INSANE BY MEMORIAL CARDS, WOMAN MURDERS.

Stafford Springs, Conn., May 3.—Driven insane, apparently by the sight of a memorial card which she had ordered for her daughter, Elsie, who died about a month ago, Mrs. Bernard Rister this morning beat Charles E. Emery of Boston, who had called to deliver the cards, over the head with an axe, inflicting very serious wounds, shot and killed her 2-year-old son, Bernard, and then took her own life by sending a bullet through her heart.

PROTEST AGAINST LABOR SENTENCES

WILLIAM D. HAYWOOD.

Portland, Or., May 3.—Preceded by a parade, in which 1,000 laboring men from the various unions participated, a mass meeting was held yesterday, attended by 5,000 people, to protest against the sentencing to jail of Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor at Washington, by Judge Wright. William D. Haywood, former secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, was the principal speaker.

WEATHER—Partly cloudy and warmer weather tonight and Tuesday; moderate variable winds, probably shifting to easterly.

MAN KILLED BY A TRAIN

Died at St. Mary's Hospital an Hour Afterwards.

O. F. Frigstadt, 25 years of age, who is believed to be a resident of Minneapolis, was killed this morning at Thirty-ninth avenue west by being struck by a Northern Pacific passenger train.

Frigstadt, of whom very little is known, was walking along the tracks near the Missabe ore docks. He stepped off one track to avoid an approaching train, and found himself directly in front of the passenger train which leaves the union depot at 9 o'clock in the morning for the Twin Cities.

Before the engineer could stop, and before the man could realize his danger and get out of the way, the locomotive struck him, throwing him a distance of several yards. Several bones were broken, and he was seriously injured internally.

Frigstadt was alive when picked up, and was hurried to St. Mary's hospital, where he died within half an hour after his arrival. The remains were taken to Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms, where they will be held until an effort to locate his relatives has been made.

Papers in the man's pockets indicated his name as O. F. Frigstadt, and from their nature it appeared that he was a resident of Minneapolis. It is not known yet whether he has any friends or relatives in Duluth.

STOLE LEATHER FOR SHOE SOLES

Because he stole from his employers, the carbolite company, early Sunday morning, a quantity of heavy leather belting with which he intended to make a number of shoe soles, Anton Talarico, aged 22, was today given the option in police court of drawing thirty days in jail or handing over $25.

Talarico was arrested about 1 o'clock Sunday morning by Officer Noren in the vicinity of the carbolite plant, Fifty-fifth avenue west and Raleigh street, and taken to the West Duluth police station. With him he had a large piece of belting, which he later admitted stealing from the plant, at which he is employed.

Talarico earns $3 a day at his work at the plant and was employed until 10:30 p. m. Saturday. About an hour before he quit work he cut off a large piece of belting and when no one was watching, threw it out of a window. Early in the morning he came back for it, but was arrested before he made his getaway.

At the police station when questioned by Sergeant Peterson, he admitted stealing the leather and the fact developed that he wanted it to make some half soles for his shoes. The belting was about twelve feet long and was of extra quality. He was taken this morning to the police court, and found guilty of larceny.

ANNIVERSARY IS OBSERVED

In celebration of the nineteenth anniversary of the founding of the local lodge, order of Odd Fellows, the members of the West Duluth lodge, No. 168, I. O. O. F., met yesterday at the Merritt Memorial M. E. church at Oneota and participated in an appropriate program. There was a good attendance.

The program was opened by an organ prelude by Mrs. L. C. Merritt followed by invocation by Rev. Arthur J. Hoag. Rev. J. A. Roberts gave a short address on the history of the order. J. M. Flack rendered a vocal solo, as did also Miss Gladys Stoller. Both were excellent. Another pleasing number was given by the male quartet, comprising I. M. Flack, Rev. A. J. Hoag, Gordon Brookes and Arnold Johnson. Members were present from the Duluth and Proctor lodges.

QUIET MONTH FOR POLICE

Only fifteen arrests were made last month at the West Duluth police station in comparison with twenty-one made during the month of April in 1908. April this year, say the West Duluth police, was a light month. In March there were twenty arrests.

Two-thirds of the total number arrested were drunks, one was pulled in for being drunk and disorderly, one for larceny, two were taken into custody for assault, and one marked down on the blotter for slander.

The postponed game between Iron River and the Oak Halls, which was called of yesterday on account of the storm of last week, will be pulled off Sunday, May 16, at Iron River. The Oak Halls will open their season Sunday, May 8, at Cloquet.

Republicans Meet.

Arrangements for the annual banquet of the West Duluth Republican club were made Saturday evening at a meeting of the club held at the Commercial clubroom. The affair will be held some time in August.

The committee on arrangements follows: L. A. Sulcov, G. T. Miller, T. Gallarnip, O. Gafvert, M. T. Carlson, J. O. Winton, Joseph Becks, John Olson, William Jeffrey, S. M. Sherman, J. W. Mann, Andrew Myles, Thomas Olafson, C. E. Johnson, J. G. Wollan, E. J. Kenny and George J. Mallory.

E. J. Kenny, assistant city attorney, spoke on the tariff question, and Dr. David Graham addressed the members on the work of the state legislature. The club, in a resolution, thanked Mayor Haven for his action in vetoing the Meier saloon license. Several committees were heard from.

Mayor Is Thanked.

Mayor Haven and the aldermen who voted against the granting of the Meier saloon license were extended a vote of thanks yesterday at a mass meeting of citizens at Oneota. The gathering was held at the Hazelwood Presbyterian church.

Copies of the resolution were mailed to the mayor and the aldermen. Those assembled also expressed their gratitude to the citizens in the eastern end of the ward for opposing the extension of the saloon limit from Twenty-third to Twenty-fourth avenue west.

KEEWATIN NEAR TO DESTRUCTION

Ontario Town Barely Misses Being Wiped Out By Fire.

Keewatin, Ont., May 3.—This town, the center of large flour and lumber manufacturing industries, narrowly escaped destruction by fire, which raged furiously all this morning in the residence district.

Sparks flew in all directions, carried by a strong breeze. The fire fighting apparatus became disabled and help was summoned from nearby towns.

The fire was finally gotten under control after several tenement buildings were destroyed. The loss has not been estimated.

NEW CAR IS GIVEN TEST

Device Invented By Duluth Men May Be Adopted.

Car of Ore Is Dumped in Twenty-Three Seconds.

A new ore car that, it is believed, will make a great difference in the work at the docks, is at the present time being experimented with by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway. The car has been patented by G. A. Rakowsky and his brother, Victor, and under a practical test yesterday unloaded a load of fifty tons of ore in twenty-three seconds. Under the old style car it would require forty-seven minutes to unload the same amount, using six men.

It requires but one man to operate the car.

The new car was also tested at the plant of the Zenith Furnace company, and in one of the tests at that plant unloaded a load of ore in fifteen seconds. The name of the company constructing the cars is the Automatic Unloading Car company. The Rakowsky brothers are at the head of the company.

MUST PURCHASE NEW CABOOSES

New State Law Will Hit the Range Roads.

Under the law passed at the last session of the state legislature all of the range railroads will be compelled to secure new cabooses. The law does not go into effect until Jan. 1, 1911, so no steps have been taken as yet by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern or the Duluth & Iron Range railroads to secure new equipment.

The terms of the bill provide that all cabooses shall be twenty-four feet in length, exclusive of the platforms. The cars must also have two trucks with four wheels to each truck.

The officials of the range railroads hold that they should not come under the terms of this law, as they make short trips and their employes are never forced to sleep in the cabooses. They maintain that their cabooses are simply for carrying tools and some of the clothing of the brakemen. Yet under the terms of the law the range railroads will be forced to secure larger sized cabooses.

Officials of the Missabe had little to say regarding what action would be eventually taken by that road, but admitted that they would probably be forced to secure new coaches for all of their freight trains.

CHANGES ARE ANNOUNCED

Rainy Lake Road Will Be Operated From Winnipeg.

Office of Commercial at Chicago Is Established.

Changes in the officials of the Canadian Northern railway which effect the management of the Duluth & Rainy Lake railway, from an operating standpoint, were announced at the Duluth offices of the company this morning.

That the Canadian Northern intends to assume a broader policy in the passenger business of the West and among the Western railway lines, is manifest by the announcement that Roy Hall, formerly traffic manager of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railway, holding that position after the taking over of the Duluth railroad by the Canadian Northern interests, will be commercial agent of the Canadian Northern at Chicago, the Duluth office of traffic manager being abolished.

In addition to the announcement made of this change, comes the announcement of the appointment of George Stephen as general freight agent of the Canadian Northern; W. G. Manders to the position of assistant general freight agent, and C. W. Cooper to the position of general passenger agent. These changes are made by William Mackenzie, president of the Canadian Northern.

From now on the traffic management of the Duluth & Rainy Lake railway, or the Duluth branch of the Canadian Northern railway, as it should properly be called, will be vested in the Winnipeg offices of the Canadian Northern. Today the office force of the Duluth office is busy packing the records of the office for shipment to the Winnipeg office of the Canadian Northern.

The traffic affairs of the Duluth branch, as well as all other branches of the Canadian Northern railway, will in the future be directed from the Winnipeg offices of the company.

W. H. Cook remains at the head of the Duluth branch of the Canadian Northern, but the operating affairs of the line will be centered at the main offices of the company.

The establishment of a commercial agency at Chicago is considered a very important move, as it is taken to mean that the Canadian Northern is going to make a bid for much of the freight business that will move to and from Canada via the Head of the Lakes.

FALLS INTO BOAT'S HOLD

Workman Almost Instantly Killed at Northern Pacific Dock.

Andrew Hanson, a laborer 33 years of age, employed upon the Northern Pacific docks, was almost instantly killed this afternoon by falling headlong from the dock into the hold of the Northern Light, which was loading at the dock.

Hanson struck upon his head, crushing his skull. He was carried from the hold of the boat unconscious by the dock laborers, and died before the arrival of the ambulance.

The body was removed to the undertaking rooms of Durkan & Crawford. It is not known that the deceased has any relatives living in this city.

Hanson was engaged in loading the Northern Light, the package freighter. He lost his balance as he stood directly over the almost empty hold of the vessel.

SUIT FOR LOSS ON FLAX CARGO.

Wallace Muller & Co. has begun suit in district court against the Northern Cereal company, for $1,028.32, the amount they allege they lost on an order of flax placed with the company some time ago.

It seems that the Muller company some time ago placed an order with the cereal company for 681 tons of ground flax. This flax was was to contain, according to the complaint, 15 per cent of fat. They claim that the flax contained no such amount of fat.

In the answer to the cereal company it is claimed that the flax was in every way as the company ordered it, and that if at the end of its journey, when it was tested, it was found wanting, the loss occurred on the way. It is claimed also that the flax was not examined until it reached Germany.

Walker's letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial said:

"Copper 18 steady at unchanged prices. Lake 12½ to 13¼ cents and electrolytic 12⅝ to 12⅞ cents per pound. I a maware that the daily press and trade publications are quoting copper slightly lower, but these are the prices which consumers who are buying have to pay. There have been creased deliveries and other things lead me to believe that consumption is increasing steadily, and that the surplus is supplies are gradually being absorbed.

"Within a short time a very general buying movement should begin which will so reduce the unsold surplus as to bring about a general advance in prices. I feel confident that returning prosperity will show itself in the metal market very soon. The prospect is even more favorable now than copper will again sell at 26 cents per pound than it was in 1902, when it sold around 12 cents. At that time I was predicting that copper would go to 15 cents, and two brokerage firms discontinued buying and circulating my letters on the ground that I was too sanguine. It afterwards advanced to 26 cents per pound."

REPLIES TO ZANGWILL

Duluth Jewish Woman Gives Ideas on "The Melting Pot."

Comes Far From Being "The Great Jewish Play."

(By Mrs. Edward A. Silberstein.)

While "The Melting Pot" is a play of the life of the Russian immigrant in America, and is of decidedly American flavor in patriotic expression, there are a few facts which, if known, will permit an open-minded person to understand the play from a different standpoint.

Israel Zangwill himself is an English Jew, and knows America only through perhaps three visits here, and from the columns of his English newspapers, and I should judge that if English newspapers resemble American newspapers in any degree, it would be Americans of the type of Davenport and his ilk that he would be apt to know most of.

Mr. Zangwill married a non-Jewess, which may explain his enthusiasm on intermarriage.

There are no Jews who are hailing "The Melting Pot," as "the great Jewish play, or in the slightest degree as the solution of the Jewish problem, for intermarriage would result in the blighting of one of the most cherished treasures of Jewish life—its home life—and is looked on with as much disfavor by Jews as it is by the various sects of non-Jews. The chief satisfaction that a Jew finds in seeing the play is that this is one of the few plays in all history where the better side of the Jewish character is sown.

Why all this continual harping on the "Jewish race?" Have the Huns and the Goths, and the Vandals retained their racial names? That the Jews are not a pure semitic race is a historical fact: that they are as loyal to the land of their adoption which ever it may be, has been proven time and again in history. Read of the assurance given during the Revolutionary war by Hayne Solomon of Philadelphia. They have given their lives and their fortunes at their country's cry of need. Can we not be Americans, Germans or English because we insist on worshipping God through our own souls without the intercession of one of our own brothers, whom we refuse to accept as the miraculous Son of God, whose teachings were simply the fruit of the learning he received in Talmudic schools? The world-wide cry of the churches today has been aroused as the result of a new interest on the part of thousands of their followers, who are drifting into Unitarianism and New Thought, which are really the oldest surviving religions thought of the world, first proclaimed by Abraham.

And why must the orthodox Jew be accepted as the true representative of his "race" any more than Catholicism is the representative Christian sect because it is the oldest? Is it necessary, in order that we show our loyalty to God, for us to follow customs centuries old, which were needed in the tropical climate of Palestine, which were essential to life in the crowded Ghetto perhaps, but which in this day and age of sanitary science seem absolutely superfluous. To some of us who feel that the spirit of our religion still and always will satisfy and fulfill our religious needs, as it does that of thousands of people who have thrown off their dogmatic yoke, though they do not realize that our belief is practically the same, the ancient forms and ceremonies and sanitary regulations seem an unnecessary burden to a living religion. The childhood of any religion or race demands visible ceremonial; not so its spiritual fulfillment.

As for the story of the Jews through the ages, David, of course, was our last great poet and has any poetry ever brought such comfort to the distressed soul, to the yearning heart, to the afflicted father, mother, child, friend, as it has? The Jew had no place in the Middle Ages, he could not be lord, he would not be serf, he would not enter the church, and was denied the army, he could not strike his roots into the nation's soil for not an inch of soil could he possess. Is it then strange that the nations did not look to the Jews for progress and light? Is it not stranger that it was necessary to degrade his brothers in order that the religion of love and mercy, which was preached and lived by Jesus should be fulfilled? And with all this the Jews were the backbone of the Middle Ages, for the Jews by their restrictions were forced to be the merchants and financiers of that day, and it is a unique fact in history, that their expulsion, which invariably came sooner or later was always followed by a national decline.

The Jew has been consistent through the ages, he has lived his life in his highest God-consciousness, and it has been a good life, he has been loyal to his country, has been a good citizen, he has been charitable, he has lived his life content with his lot, nonresistant, he has not asked for love and mercy, but he has asked for and still asks from fair-minded people—justice.

FLOODED WITH APPLICATIONS

The county commissioners will meet Tuesday morning, but from present indications the meeting will be devoid of any unusual happenings.

The board is flooded with applications for jobs in the new courthouse. Many people seem to think that the amount of help to be employed will be unlimited, and that the pay for trifling services will be great. Many have invented new jobs and many are asking how they can best get their names on the county pay roll. The applications are being filed in the order in which they are received and will not be acted upon until the last of July or the first of August.

At the meeting to be held Tuesday, a petition asking that township 65-20 be annexed to the town of Lelding, will be read. It is probable that a hearing will be granted. The matter of annexing 53-16 to the town of Northland, which was postponed from the last meeting, will be taken up at the meeting Tuesday.

COMMERCE BOARD NOT SURPRISED

Washington, May 3.—Intense interest was manifested today by the interstate commerce in the decision rendered by the supreme court on the commodities clause. The decision did not come as a surprise, because it had been anticipated on the basis of the debate in congress that the court would hold that ownership of the stock or bonds of coal companies does not constitute a violation of the act.

No member of the interstate commerce commission in advance of the reading of the opinion of the court, would express an opinion as to its effect. The concrete situation is that only two of the anthracite roads own, operate and market their own coal. It is regarded that, under the decision of the court, the law applies to these roads—the Lehigh Valley and the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western. The effect of the decision, it is believed, will be to induce those lines to organize separate coal companies and conduct their operation through them, because the mere holding of stock in such coal companies as held by the court not to be violation of the law.

CANADIAN BOATS NOT AFFECTED.

Fort William, May 3.—The seamen's strike has not affected any of the boats in this harbor. The foreign vessels now here are the Mullen, Butler, Hutchinson and Carter. They may receive words today or may be allowed to make an American port. The strike, however, will not affect Canadian boats.

There are 200 newspapers in China, while ten years ago there was but one recognized as such.

IS SLAP AT RAILROADS

Appendix to Waterways Commission Report Hits Them.

Lines Carry Goods Under Cost to Balk Vessel Competition.

Washington, May 3.—Few realize that the traffic movement on the Lower Mississippi river, once so tremendous, has so materially declined in recent years; that the supremacy once enjoyed by that great stream has been transferred to the Ohio river, and that, therefore, Pittsburg, rather than either St. Louis or New Orleans, is today the most important river point in America.

These and other interesting facts are gleaned from the appendix to the report of the inland waterways commission. The report itself was made public recently, but the appendix, which has just come off the government printing office presses, was made public today. The greater portion of the data contained in it was prepared under the direction of Herbert Knox Smith, commissioner of the bureau of corporations.

The serious declaration is made that in many cases railroads are probably carrying goods at less than cost for the purpose of shutting out water competition. "It is evident that in such cases an increase in the rail rate would be an advantage to all concerned," it is declared, "for it would restore certain bulky traffic to the waterways, where it economically belongs, and leave the railway equipment available for traffic properly moving by land, and at the same time making possible a reduction of other rail rates by cutting off business done at a loss and by increasing the volume of profitable business. Nor should the railways fear the restoration of water traffic to this extent, for the history of water transportation shows that it frequently makes traffic for the railroads more than sufficient to make up for the apparent loss of business."

Retains Relative Importance.

It is shown by the report that the Lower Mississippi, which has always been recognized as of greater commercial importance than the upper part, still retains this relative importance. Among the important factors in the decline of traffic on the Lower Mississippi may be mentioned that formerly large quantities of wheat, corn and oats were sent down the river from St. Louis and other points to New Orleans, but the building of railroads through Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma to the Gulf, together with the lack of attention to river improvements, has operated against the shipments of grain down the Mississippi.

This has resulted in the gradual disappearance in the last fifteen years of many finely equipped steamboats on the Lower Mississippi, as a result of sharp railroad competition and other causes.

Another important cause for this decline in the traffic movement on that great stream has been the introduction of the cotton compress, resulting in the overturning of the old system of handling cotton by river. Formerly the only cotton compresses were located at important centers, such as Memphis, Vicksburg and New Orleans, but now any town of slight importance has its own compress, which have excellent facilities for receiving and shipping bales of cotton by rail.

Hindered By Railroads.

The report declares that the development of river traffic is hindered in many ways by the railroads, which at some important points on the Ohio have gained control of much of the land available for terminal facilities. One of the serious difficulties for lines operating on the Ohio and its tributaries is the matter of excessive wharfage charges. The packet lines charge that it is a common practice for little towns along the river to levy charges which in some instances run from one-fourth to one-third of the net profits of the boats. Boat lines as a rule, make lower rates than those of rail carriers. The loss of pro-rating arrangements with the railroads added difficulty for the river lines, for instead of being able to quote through rates, the packet lines must now quote their own rate to the point where they connect with the railroad, and then add the local tariff rate of the railroad from that point to destination. This loss of pro-rating arrangements has seriously affected the packet lines and has practically ruined the traffic in horse shoes, cotton ties, bar iron, wire nails, staples, etc., in shipments to the South and West, where formerly the river freight was heavy.

A significant feature of the report is that dealing with railroad control of river traffic and private canals. A number of packet lines engaged in business on the Mississippi and its tributaries are mentioned as showing traces of railroad influences, and several private canals are also mentioned as being dominated by railroad influences.

The report strikingly shows the extent to which state and private canals have been abandoned, the total mileage abandoned to date being 2,444.26 miles, representing a cost approximated at $81,171,374. Among the more important causes for this wholesale abandonment of canals are the inability of some canals to compete with modern railroads and the mismanagement of other canals, together with a popular impression that such systems of public works have done more harm than good, and, finally, a belief that the chief means of internal communication was not to be water, but rail.

Cause of Discrimination.

Discussing the relation of water transportation to railroad rates, the report says:

"It has been claimed that water transportation is a safeguard against exorbitant charges by railroads through large sections of the country. It is undoubtedly true, at any rate, that water competition is a potent cause of local discrimination in railroad rates."

It is pointed out that the importance of water competition depends very largely upon whether it is by canal, river, lake or ocean. It appears to vary with the physical characteristics of the navigable waterways employed and the number and size of the vessels which can be used thereon.

The importance of canals as regulators of freight rates, it is shown, is much less than formerly. Relative to rivers, it is stated that their influence on railroad charges varies with the length of the navigable route, and also with the depth, wharfage facilities, etc. The Mississippi is paralleled on both sides by railroads operating long trains over easy grades at the least possible cost. River steamers can still underbid the railroads to some extent on local traffic, but they are at a disadvantage in loading or terminal expenses, and in insurance or risk, as well as on account of the rise and fall in the river. It is claimed that the railroads take traffic at unduly low rates along the river and at competitive points generally, and recoup themselves by high charges at non-competitive points.

WILL FEAST AT TEMPLE

Thirty-Ninth Annual Banquet of the Palestine Lodge.

The thirty-ninth anniversary of the organization of Palestine lodge, No. 79, A. F. & A. M., will be observed this evening by a banquet at the Masonic temple. An exceptionally attractive program of toasts has been arranged for the occasion.

This will be the fourth annual banquet to which ladies have been invited. The idea of having ladies at the yearly affair met with such favor four years ago that it was decided to continue the pratice. This, of course, adds greatly to the number of banqueters, and all the available seating space will be occupied this evening.

A. C. Volk, W. M., will open the program of toasts with "Words of Welcome," W. R. Patton will speak on "Masonry's Architecturals," and George Ripley will have "Masonry's Universality" as a subject. Master Donald Alexander will sing "Under the Willow," and there will be two chorus numbers.

T. W. Hugo will speak on "Masonry's Personnel," and A. P. Cook on "Masonry's Guests." There will be vocal numbers by George E. Suffel, Miss Francis Burris and Erving Mostue.

GRAND FORKS MAN IS AFTER POSTMASTERSHIP.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. Abrahamson is a candidate for postmaster of Grand Forks and will make an effort to secure the appointment next November. It is announced that he has decided to yield to the request of friends and make it known that he would be a candidate. He had been talked of but there had been no definite announcement.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

"I love 'The Merry Widow,'" said Miss Mabel Wilber, who will sing the role in Duluth, this morning at the Spalding. "She has $20,000,000. Who wouldn't love her and love to be her, and love to sing her, and love to see her? Twenty millions! From the minute the call bell rings for a performance I begin to have that feeling of a pampered plutocrat, and although between you and me the merry widow works pretty hard for a person with a single million, let alone twenty, it's a nice comfortable, settled, independent feeling having twenty millions," said Miss Wilber with a sigh, "even if it does disappear into thin air the minute the curtain goes down on the last act!"

"It's rather a hard part to play. You have to dance and you have to sing. And I love to dance, but it's rather hard to dance and sing at the very same minute. Then there are contrasts in the character. The widow is wildly gay at one moment, coquetting with the many suitors for her millions and is sadly pensive the next, and what with it all, you're some busy while you're acting the merry widow. I've never been serious before," said Miss Wilber. "I've sung and danced and romped with 'gay abandon,' according to the press agent, through musical comedies and 'The Merry Widow' is rather different, but it's nice."

Miss Wilber has the interesting record of having danced the role with every prince who has played the part in America and with a few who thought they would, but didn't. That just any one who feels the lure of the music can execute. No, indeed! And although many men have thought they could and some few of the many have applied for the opportunity, there are still fewer who have ultimately been allowed to interpret that bit of rythmic movement for the American public.

"They'd have another man to try out," said Miss Wilber, "and the request would come for me to just step around and go through a few steps with him. Many nice, kind, young men who had excellent taste in ties, and meant well, tried to be a gay prince and couldn't. But though my willingness to step through the dances it has come that I have played with every single one of the American princes."

Miss Rosemary Gloz, who was to have sung the role in Duluth, has broken down and went from St. Paul to Chicago to consult a throat specialist there. The role will be sung at the four performances by Miss Wilber, who has been alternating with Miss Gloz on this tour.

PUPILS' RECITAL.

Pleasant Program Presented at Flaaten School.

The third pupil's recital of the Flaaten conservatory was given Saturday evening at the auditorium. An attentive and appreciative audience listened to a program of excellence throughout.

The opening number, a double ensemble number, "Alla Marcia" by Bohm, and "Invention" by Corelli, played by the string orchestra, Mr. Flaaten directing. The first showed some nervousness of attack due to the natural excitement of the younger members of the orchestra, but the second went with a swing and precision that the character demanded.

The piano solos by Myrtle Finkle, William Smith, Katherine Barnard and violin solo by Alice Gow, all younger pupils, together with the double ensemble number in two parts, played by Sam Mallowitz, Vina Passener, Margaret Hever, Alice Gow, Morris Lavlek and Lionel Larson showed presence of mind and thoroughness of preparation. Anna Sturminski played a piano solo and Ralph Page a duet with Miss Pearson creditably. A very full and delicately rendered number was a piano trio, "Sorrento, Mazurka Elegante" by Bachman, played by three little girls, Gertrude McCuen, Laura Elberson and Winnifred McCuen. The violin soloists were Edward Dillon, Leslie Moore, Eleanor Kraft, John Moody and Henry Lavick.

All played extremely well and won generous applause. Miss Ethel Moliter played "Arag-onaise," by Massenet, brilliantly. Her manner and position at the piano are especially commendable. The work of such students as she may be watched with much interest. Perhaps the most finished numbers were those by the string ensemble class, which included the soloists, Miss Capron, L. Larson, E. Forsmark, F. Collatz, violinists and Alphin Flaaten cellist. They played "Andantino piu Animato," by Fowler, and "Cruinnon Sans Karoler" by Tschaikowsky. The 'cello parts were beautifully played by Alphin Flaaten, his work making a distinct impression on the audience. The program closed with "Serenade" by Widor, played by Roy Flaaten, violin, Alphin Flaaten, 'cello and Miss Pearson piano. Miss Nell Brown and Miss Pearson, deserve special mention for the fine accompaniments.

While being near the end of the winter season's work, it is appropriate to compare the recital just given, with the former ones. The improvement in the poise and general musicianship of the participants is characteristic of the work done in the conservatory.

TO PLANT TREES.

Duluth Children Buy 1,600 Apple Trees.

As soon as the snow drifts melt before the sun and the frost has retreatnly left the ground, there will be planted in Duluth by the school children of the city, more than 1,600 young trees. This number has been ordered by the children through the department of the home and education of the Twentieth Century club. The trees which are of good sturdy growth are bought at a very low price and instructions for its planting and care are sent with each tree. It is possible that some observation of the occasion of the planting of so many trees will be made at the schools.

REAL LIFE.

The End and Aim of All Religions.

The signs of the times seem to indicate that religion is on the wane: but this is not the truth. We are all just as religious as ever we were; some of us more. We could not live without religion any more than we could live without love, says Eternal Progress. We all have souls, or, to speak the exact truth, we all are souls, and the real life or religion cannot be separated from the real life of the soul. When the soul feels, the result is religion; though all souls may not feel in the same way. Some souls are feeling after God; other souls are feeling after the spirit of things, but in each case the real object is the same. We are all trying to find that interior oneness with infinite life, which we know will bring peace; and however we may proceed, we must admit that it is strictly a religious process. We must also admit that the more religious we are in this higher, more sublime sense, the more beautiful is life. And after all has been said and done, what is it that we all want? Nothing less than life—real life—the most beautiful and the most masterful life that we can possibly find.

BACK YARD GARDENS

May Yield Vegetables For a Half Year.

"A space 20 by 50 feet may, under intensive culture, be made to yield fresh vegetables for a small family through half the year," says Martha McCulloch-Williams in the Circle Magazine. "With 40 by 50 feet, or 50 by 100, there can be a garden spelling riotous plenty.

"Have the spading done as early as possible, use thoroughly rotted manure, and supplement it with some good commercial fertilizer, either broadcasted and raked in or put in hills or drills.

"It is a waste of seed, strength and time to plant a garden in poor soil. The seed will come up, the spindling plans will be harder to work than if they were luxuriant, and the resultant crop will be mostly conspicuous by its absence.

"So, if it is impossible to do more, make small rich beds, four feet wide and as long as the manure holds out, and sow them crosswise with such things as radishes, lettuce, cress, parsley, beets and onions. Make the rows about to eighteen inches apart, or sow the radishes broadcast.

"Lettuce also yields more for broadcast sowing. Pull out the thriftiest as soon as edible and leave the rest to grow. Radish tops make excellent greens, sometimes better flavored than mustard. By sowing thickly you can have dishes of greens.

"Say the garden is 40 by 50 feet, this is something what the planting of it should be: Dwarf early peas, medium early and late peas, beets, early and late; beans in succession, including bush limas; carrots, radishes, tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers.

"Do not adventure upon corn unless it is sweet corn planted on the pea space as a second crop, to come in just before frost. Make an asparagus bed all across one end of the plot, setting 2-year-old roots and fertilizing the bed heavily in early summer just after cutting ceases.

"Peas are so hardy they may be planted before snow is past, provided, of course, the ground is right when they go in. Make it fine and light, cover the seed at least three inches deep, then tramp the earth over them, setting the feet so one track touches the other. A quart of seed will sow 100 feet of drill the proper thickness. An ounce of beet seed will sow the same row length.

"Cultivate your garden with a wheel hoe or use the trowel and hand hoe, remembering Izaak Walton's adjura-tion as to the bait worm: 'Use him as though you loved him.' As one thing yields pull it up and plant something else."

Paris Fashions.

The latest reports from Paris indicate that the fashionable women of the French capital do not seem inclined to give up their scant, clinging skirts and gowns of the empire and directoire model and are ordering new costumes built on the same lines notwithstanding the fact that some of the famous dictators of the mode have abandoned the extreme lines of the directoire and empire in favor of somewhat greater fullness. However, it is still early in the season, and warm weather may prove a more powerful agent in bringing about the expected change than even the "ipse dixi" of the leaders of fashion.

It is reported on good authority that there is an increasing demand for fuller sleeves in Paris. It has actually been employed in foulard gowns. It is considered as a concession to the coming warm weather and it is also explained that the gathered sleeve became necessary with the unexpected gathers of the foulard skirt. The new sleeves are described as a sort of bishop sleeves, although less full. They are gathered into a bishop cuff or wristband, but not, as yet, fulled into the armhole. The upper part of the sleeve is gathered into a three or four-inch sleeve cap, fitted to the arm.

• • •

Frequently the cap and the wristband are of the foulard and the full portion or middle of the sleeve is net, of the same shade of the gown, lined with white chiffon or white net. On some models this central portion of the sleeve is made of cream or white batiste. Actual puffs and frills are seen about the elbows, showing out from beneath the upper half or a sleeve that is no longer as close fitting as the winter models.

• • •

There is no prettier and daintier material for summer wear than foulard. It is light and cool; it may be procured in many varied textures, and it wears remarkably well. For many years the silk which was the original representative of the foulard family was a kind of thin surah, in dark colors decorated with a splashy design in white. This often took the form of dots or shooting stars, and, while the material was satisfactory in weight and wearing quality, it was not at any time particularly beautiful. But the last few years have seen a great change, and now foulards differ, and each separate one is known by some new name.

BLIND FORCE ERA ENDED

Dr. Trueblood at Peace Congress Rejoices at Great Reform.

Pacific Public Sentiment Growing Around World, He Says.

Chicago, May 3.—"We have met in this second national peace congress in the interests not of an unrealizable dream, but of a great already triumphing reform," said Dr. Benjamin F. Trueblood, secretary of the American Peace society at today's session of the second national peace conference. "The peace movement has passed its theoretical period. It is far along toward the completion of its practical stage," continued the speaker.

"The men and women, now a great host, who believe that the day is past when blind brute force should direct the policies of nations and preside at the settlement of their differences, are now thoroughly organized. A hundred years ago there was not a society in existence organized to promote appeal to the reform of reason and right in the adjustment of international controversies. Today there are more than 500, nearly every important nation having its group of peace organizations."

Dr. Trueblood mentioned some of these and told of the work they are doing. Continuing, he said:

"It is this far-flung pacific public sentiment of the world, growing constantly, crossing all boundary lines, disregarding all language barriers, organized and having its definite, well-digested program, that constitutes the real strength and the promise of the peace movement. Out of this has come all the rest—the limitation and restriction of war, the splendid triumphs of arbitration, The Hague conferences, the international court of arbitration, the beginnings of the world parliament and of a supreme court of the nations. It is on this intelligent organized public sentiment, to which governments are compelled to listen, that we must still rely absolutely for the accomplishment of what yet remains to be done to bring the nations of the famous declaration of 1776 to sane and rational relations to each other, and to relieve them from the torturing nightmare of militarism with which they are still obsessed.

Triumph of Arbitration.

"The position which the peace movement has reached is no less distinctly determined by the practical attainments of arbitration. Within the last twenty years, so rapid has been the triumph of arbitration that more than 100 international differences have been disposed of by this means, or between five and six a year for the whole twenty years. Arbitration is no longer an experiment. It is the settled practice of the nations. A score of disputes today go naturally to arbitration where one gives rise to talk of war.

"The first Hague conference, ten years ago, gave us the permanent international court of arbitration, which has now been in successful operation for about eight years, and disposed of several important controversies. This court was strengthened and improved by the Second Hague conference two years ago, and by the admission of the South and Central American states to it has become the arbitration court, not of the twenty-six powers that gathered at The Hague in 1899 but of the entire world. This tribunal is now taking practically all the international differences not adjustable by diplomacy. Within a year these have been referred to it the Casa-Blanca dispute between France and Germany, the fisheries controversy between our government and Venezuela, and a dispute between Norway and Sweden.

Within less than six years, more than eighty treaties of obligatory arbitration, stipulating reference to the Hague court of all questions of a judicial order and those arising in the interpretation of treaties, have been concluded between nations in pairs, twenty-three of which were negotiated the past year by our distinguished ex-Secretary of State Root, and ratified by both the president and the senate. Arbitration has won its case. There remains, in fact, but one further step in its development, and that is the conclusion of a general treaty of obligatory arbitration to be signed by all the nations together, stipulating the reference to the Hague court of all international differences not capable of solution by diplomacy. A treaty of this order, limited somewhat in scope, came much nearer adoption of the second Hague conference than is usually known. Thirty-five of the forty-four delegations voted for it, and only five against it, a vote of seven to one, or by the populations of the nations represented, of more than seven to one, leaving out of account the four powers that abstained from voting and tacitly gave their consent to the proposed convention.

Record Is Unsurpassed.

"This record, made by arbitration, is unsurpassed, probably unparalleled, by any other chapter of the history of the progress of civilization during the last 100 years, and before long the wise and learned historians, who have heretofore so largely estimated history by its feuds and battles and slaughters, will find it out."

Dr. Trueblood discussed the significance of some of the special conventions adopted by the second Hague conference which exclude warlike operations from certain fields and make war in general much more difficult and less likely to occur at all.

As to the important work of the conferences, the speaker said: "The first Hague conference gave us the permanent international court of arbitration, to which the powers represented finally became parties by ratification of the convention. This court has now for eight years been in successful operation, and not less than four conversions have been referred to it during the past year. The second Hague conference enlarged and strengthened the convention under which this court was set up, and made the court the tribunal, not of the powers already represented, but of all the nations of the world. Though reference of disputes to this tribunal is still in general voluntary, a majority of the important nations have already, by special treaties with each other in pairs, pledged themselves to refer all disputes of a judicial order and those arising in the interpretation of treaties to its jurisdiction. It is reasonable to believe, therefore, that we have arrived at a stage in the development of our movement when there already exists among the nations a sustitute for war practically, if not theoretically adequate for the adjustment of all their disputes, without resort to force, in a way to conserve the honor and vital interests of the separate governments.

Substitute for Force.

"Another step of still greater moment was taken by the second Hague conference in the direction of providing a perfect substitute for force in the settlement of international differences. It voted without a dissenting delegation for the principle of an international court of arbitral justice, with judges always in service, and holding regular sessions." The speaker said it is safe to assume that the difficulty in regard to the selection of the judges will be speedily solved, and that we shall have in a comparatively short time the august tribunal which will render war between the powers of the world scarcely thinkable. He continued:

"The high water mark of the work of the second Hague conference was reached in its action in regard to future meetings of the conference. The principle of periodic meetings of the conference hereafter was approved without a dissenting voice. The date even of the third conference was fixed and the governments urged to appoint at least two years in advance an international commission to prepare the program of the meeting. This action means, if approved by the several powers, as it undoubtedly will be, that we are to have hereafter regular meetings of a world conference. The powers of the conference will at first be only advisory, but in the very nature of the case its conclusions and recommendations will be very largely adopted, and in this way it will, from the very start be substantially a legislative world assembly. Its powers will naturally grow and be extended. Here we reach the real position which the peace movement has attained. The promise, therefore, is very large for the years just before us, for when the nations meet representatively at regular periods, and men of the highest ability and experience discuss, in a friendly and frank way, all of the common problems of the world, the days of war will be numbered, the great armaments which now burden and distract humanity will tumble to pieces and the era of universal and perpetual peace will have begun. It takes no large vision to see this great consummation realized at no distant time."

EXTENSION IS OPPOSED

West Enders Do Not Want Saloon District Changed.

The Fourth street paving matter and the proposed extension of the saloon district from Twenty-fourth to Twenty-fifth avenues west, on Superior street, will be the principal subjects up for consideration at the meeting of the city council this evening.

It is understood that there will be active opposition to the extension of the saloon district. The move is to allow a saloon to open in a building at present unoccupied. Some of the West enders object to the saloon being established and will make an effort to prevent the extension.

Owing to a different understanding of the specifications, P. McDonnell and A. G. Deman have a contest on for the contract for paving Fourth street from Fifth avenue west to Sixth avenue east. It will be up to the council to award the contract to one or the other this evening. City Engineer McGilvray will report as to the respective rights of the two men.

The dispute is over sandstone block paving along the street railway tracks, and does not affect taxpayers, as this portion of the work will be paid for by the street car company.

BRIDGE PROTEST UP TO DICKINSON

Washington, May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Miller today laid before the war department a protest from the Commercial clubs of Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis., against the construction of a bridge across St. Louis bay, as proposed by the Northern Pacific.

The Commercial clubs object to the bridge because it does not provide for accommodations for foot passengers and vehicles.

The secretary of war has taken the protest under advisement, and may force the railway to so modify its plans as to provide for foot passengers and vehicles.

CLEANEST IN THE STATE

Free Lance Reformer Hands a Bouquet to The Herald.

Cleaning newspapers of objectionable advertisements, stopping the sale of obscene literature and prosecuting those who make a living by such methods constitute the life work of C. W. Arnold of Minneapolis, who is in Duluth today on the trail of some persons who come under these headings.

Mr. Arnold is a free lance in the field of reform. Nobody pays him a salary for his work and he lives a hand-to-mouth existence.

"A check generally shows up from somebody when I need it," said Mr. Arnold. "I get enough to eat three meals a day and find a place to sleep with, and that is all I want. It sometimes bothers me to find money for railroad fares for I do a lot of traveling around the state, but a check always turns up at the last minute."

Mr. Arnold is the author of the bill introduced in the legislature and passed, prohibiting certain classes of medical advertising in newspapers of the state.

"I have to thank you senators and representatives and your business men for the passage of that law largely," said Mr. Arnold. "Your Mr. Bevis here is certainly a live wire. He stirred up such an agitation here in a few hours that more than 400 letters went from Duluth urging the passage of the bill. It should help greatly in the work. During the last few days the advertising of this nature in one Minneapolis paper has declined from nearly three columns to less than half a column.

"The Minneapolis Journal and the Duluth Herald are the cleanest papers in the state so far as this class of advertising is concerned. Once in a while an advertisement creeps into The Herald that I would like to see cut out, so that I could fully and freely recommend it as absolutely free from anything objectionable, but your paper is and has been before the passage of the recent law cleaner than any other daily in the state with the exception of the Minneapolis Journal.

If Mr. Arnold's statement about the few advertisements he objected to in The Herald can be verified they will be discontinued when the contracts expire.

Mr. Arnold has a habit of camping on the trail of circulators of obscene literature that has made him feared and hated by them, and many times have threats been made on his life.

He gets at the unclean newspapers through the advertisers, and has issued a series of thirty open letters to the big advertisers of the state, calling attention to the want columns of certain Twin City newspapers with their suggestive and immoral advertisements.

FOWL AND FISH MUST BE PROPERLY DRESSED.

Fargo, N. D., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pure Food Commissioner Ladd is about to inaugurate a campaign among the game and fish dealers of the state in which fowl and fish which have heretofore been on the market undrawn and kept there for over twenty-four hours in that condition will in the future be tabooed.

Instructions in pamphlet form have been prepared by Commissioner Ladd and will be sent broadcast through the state, so that all dealers will be instructed in ample time before the active enforcement of the law, as it is understood by the commissioner is begun.

It is understood that when the dealers keep killed fowl or fish over twenty-four hours before dressing the same they are violating the pure food law, and these violations, who at present may be ignorant of the law, will be especially prodded by Commissioner Ladd as soon as instructions have been sent out and time given for adhering to the law.

This is but another step of the food expert in North Dakota, who is bent upon placing North Dakota first in the entire list of states with anything that resembles a pure food law.

Biliousness

MARINE NEWS

A FIGHT TO THE FINISH

"Win Out or Disorganize the Union," Say Seamen.

Owners Stand Pat; "We Are Running Boats," They Say.

Either win out or disorganize the union, is the feeling among the members of the Lake Seamen's union, in their strike, declared Saturday, against the Lake Carriers' association. The local situation has changed but little since the strike was ordered.

Union men feel peaceably inclined, but are meeting the crews of all incoming vessels in an effort to persuade them to leave their boats and take a stand on the union side.

Some few men have deserted, but the Lake Carriers' association feels that as a whole, the crews will stand by them. The shipping season is not yet in full swing and work is scarce.

The members of the Lake Seamen's union, on the other hand, assert that they will have matters arranged in a short time, so that it will be practically impossible to secure competent crews without consulting the union interests.

Many union men are preparing for a long strike by taking such work as offers and a number of them have found employment on the ore docks.

The captains of vessels arriving since Saturday say they have had no complaint to make against the non-union crews, and find them fully competent to do their work.

A member of the Lake Carriers' association summed up the situation this morning from the owners' point of view:

"We will not give in and we will not arbitrate," he said. "The unions have gone a step too far when they attempt to dictate who shall and who shall not be employed. We stand for the open shop policy, because we believe it is for our best interests. Wages have not fallen, as a result of our agreement, and the same causes that will determine the pay of seamen this season with non-union crews, have determined them heretofore where only union help has been employed. It is safe to say that no agreement will be made which will abrogate the open policy clause, which all are now compelled to sign. We are running our boats, which is the main thing."

Chicago, May 3.—The steam freights Elwood and Zenith City, belonging to the United States Steel corporation, and which it had been stated would sail today, probably will not get away for another week.

At the headquarters of the Lake Carriers' association it was said that most of the fleet had already sailed during the last fortnight, but that the above-mentioned were not yet outfitted.

Victor A. Oland, secretary of the Lake Seamen's union, however, declared that the non-departure of the two boats was due to their inability to ship crews, owing to the strike which began Saturday.

"Our men are leaving their berths as fast as their ships come into port," said Mr. Oland. "It is not necessary for our agents to meet them, as the sailors report at headquarters as fast as they arrive here."

Police were on guard at South Chicago today, but no disturbances were reported.

Chicago, May 3.—Fifteen boats controlled by the Lake Carriers' association are tied up in South Chicago as a result of the strike of the Lake Seamens' union. Three boats left port there yesterday, but all were manned by union crews. The police guard remained, but no violence was reported.

Circulars calling upon sailors, wheelmen, watchmen deck hands, marine firemen, oilers, cooks and porters, to stay away from strike-bound boats, were sent out by the union to all lake ports.

THE LIST IS COMPLETE

No More Disasters Reported on the Great Lakes.

Saturday's appalling list of disasters on the lakes has not been added to, and it is believed that all the other vessels which passed through the storm are safe.

The arrival of the Moore in port Sunday morning lightened many hearts in Duluth, as friends of those on board could not but be anxious regarding her safety, in spite of the fact that she is a staunch little vessel, and that Capt. Hector has the reputation of knowing the north shore better than any man living.

Inquiries have been frequent at the office of the Union Tug company and at the agencies of the several companies owning lake carriers for news of upbound boats. No word that would cause anxiety has been received, and it is thought the full record of disasters is in.

The records of the Lake Seamen's union give the crew of the Nester, which foundered Saturday, in part as follows: Capt. J. DeVoe, Algonac, Mich.; mate, name unknown, of Cleveland; Edward Peterson of Cleveland, Algoma, Mich.; Peter Coquette, Algoma, John Star, Cleveland; Fred Brouillard.

The union records give the cook as probably the captain's wife, but dispatches from Houghton discredit that.

All incoming vessels show more or less the effects of the storm. The crews invariably report a hard time with rough seas after leaving Whitefish and the intense cold kept them under cover as much as possible. The bows of the Gary were covered with ice when she made her way up the canal yesterday.

Among shipping men it is regarded as remarkable that no disabled vessels have come into Duluth at this end of the lake, received the full force of the northeast gale.

BIG FLEET ARRIVING

Ore Shipping at Head of the Lakes Now Under way.

Captains Tell of Tremendous Pressure of Ice at Soo.

Iron ore shipping from the Head of the Lakes is now under way. The big fleet of the Pittsburg Steamship company began to straggle into port yesterday, the first being the Elbert H. Gary. She was followed during the afternoon and night by four others and including the vessels which came coal laden, there are now eleven ore vessels at the docks.

Several boats will leave tonight and the season of 1909 may be said to be fairly on. The ore fleet, which was blockaded at the Soo numbered nearly forty vessels. All are now on Lake Superior and will continue to arrive through the day and tonight. Five are scheduled to reach Two Harbors today.

It is estimated that about 300 men will be given employment on the docks at once. Among the applicants for work are many union seamen, who are holding aloof from their regular employment on account of the strike.

To the cheers of scores of men who had gazed at the dock to witness her departure, the big freighter E. Y. Townsend left her berth at the Allouez docks yesterday carrying the first down bound consignment of iron ore of the season. Her cargo consists of 10,000 tons from the Mahoning mine at Hibbing. She is bound for Cleveland.

The big Mutual Transit steamer, Starrucca, loaded with 2,500 tons of merchandise, arrived in from Buffalo yesterday noon. The Starrucca was one of the ice-bound fleet at the Soo.

Capt. J. C. Clark told of the trials encountered in bringing the Starrucca through the ice from the Soo to Whitefish bay. The vessel had to work its way almost by inches and on one occasion the ice pressure was so great that he was more than five hours in making an advance of only half a mile.

The Starrucca did not meet the Aurania, but learned of the disaster before leaving Whitefish. "No one can realize," said Capt. Clark, "the tremendous pressure against the sides of the vessel. It is only a wonder that more of them did not founder."

The Starrucca is better known in Lake Michigan ports than at the Head of the Lakes. She made one trip to Duluth last season and may remain on the Duluth run throughout the summer.

STEAMER MOORE REACHES PORT

Long Overdue Vessel Was Never in Danger From the Storm.

Fears for the safety of the Booth line steamer C. W. Moore were put to rest with the arrival of that vessel in Duluth yesterday morning. It was eighty-three hours from the time the Moore left Port Arthur until she tied up at the Booth dock in this city.

Capt. Hector states that he left Port Arthur in the teeth of a bad gale, but deemed it necessary to start when he did, in fear that the ice, which was being forced into the harbor, might prevent his sailing later.

He made direct for Isle Royale and remained there until the storm had subsided. Capt. Hector says that the Moore did not feel the force of the storm between Port Arthur and Isle Royale, and that the trip from the latter place to Duluth was in comparatively quiet seas.

For several hours previous to the Moore's arrival, the offices of the Booth company and the Union Towing company were besieged with anxious inquiries concerning her.

The Moore has made her last trip to Port Arthur for this season. She will be put on the south shore run, between Duluth and Houghton, leaving on her first trip tomorrow.

The steamer Easton will take the place of the Moore, leaving Duluth Sundays and Wednesdays for Port Arthur and way ports. The Easton went north early yesterday morning.

TOWED SUPERIOR BACK TO PORT

Steamer Rochester Went to Aid of Disabled Freighter.

The Mutual Transit steamer, Rochester, arrived in port shortly afternoon today with a large consignment of package freight. The Rochester was at the Whitefish bay when the accident occurred that disabled the Superior, owned by the same company.

The Superior was exposed to the battering of huge masses of ice. In attempting to get clear she lost her propeller blade, and disabled her steering gear.

The Rochester found her in this condition and towed her back to the Soo. Word was received today that she had been repaired and left the Soo during the morning.

BIG FLEET REACHES CANADIAN PORTS.

Winnipeg, Man., May 3.—During the last forty-eight hours eighteen boats have reached Fort William and Port Arthur from the lower lakes, having left the Soo Thursday night. They encountered very severe weather Friday.

These boats will take out wheat cargoes, there being 7,000,000 bushels in store to be taken out this month.

LARGEST BOAT ON THE LAKES

Detroit, Mich., May 3.—The largest steamer on the Great Lakes, the freighter Shenango, was launched Saturday at the Ecorse yards of the Great Lakes' Engineering yards of the Great Sarah C. Chaplain of Swickley, Pa., christened the great ship as she went off the ways.

The Shenango is 607 feet long, 58 feet beam and 32 feet depth. Completed her cost will be $475,000. Two special cars brought a party of Pittsburg people to attend the launching.

Conference in Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 3.—It is said in marine circles here that William H. Frazer of Boston, general secretary of the International Seamen's union, and other officials of that body, will meet in Buffalo during the week for a conference in connection with the strike of the lake seamen, the matter of financial support being one of the questions considered.

TOO COLD FOR DYNAMITE

Stump Blowing Exhibition Postponed on Account of Frost.

Fifty Farmers Hear Practical Talks at Commercial Club.

There will be no demonstration of blowing out stumps by dynamite given by experts at Woodland Park this afternoon. Experts employed by the Dupont Powder company made a trip the the grounds this morning and reported that there was too much frost in the ground to make a stump-blowing demonstration of any value.

Gathered in the rooms of the Commercial club rooms were more than fifty farmers from various parts of the country. These men were addressed by Superintendent A. J. McGuire of the Northeastern Experiment farm at Grand Rapids, J. C. McDowell of the United States department of agriculture, and by Mr. Casky of the Dupont Powder company, who has been giving practical demonstrations in the northern part of the state for the past few weeks.

Supt. McGuire informed the farmers that there were 10,000,000 acres in the northern part of the state that must be cleared of stumpage. That the battle for better farms is going on in earnest, was made manifest by his remarks.

He told the farmers that the easiest and cheapest way to clear the land was by the use of dynamite. To demonstrate the use of dynamite the Dupont Powder company has had three men in the field for the past few weeks, traveling among the farmers of the northeastern part of Minnesota. The men will work in the state all through the present month. In July they will come to the counties immediately surrounding Duluth and will work under the direction of the Commercial club.

Supt. McGuire informed the men that by co-operation they could secure the powder at about half a cent above the wholesale cost. In this way the land could be cleared quickly and at very little cost to the farmers.

The campaign of education will continue far into the summer. Although it was found impractical to hold the demonstration at Duluth this afternoon, a demonstration will be held in this city just as soon as the frost leavce the ground. In due course of time there will not be a county or community of farmers in the northern part of the state that has not been given a practical demonstration of the use of dynamite for blowing stumps.

J. C. McDowell, who is in the farm management bureau of the department of agriculture, explained to the visiting farmers the plans of that department in regard to the farming interests of this section of the country.

For instance, men employed by the farm management bureau have certain sections of the country to cover. Mr. McDowell has Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and North and South Dakota. He has men under him who assist in the work. It is the duty of Mr. McDowell and his assistants to go out among the farmers and learn the problems that they are facing. When they discover a problem that is vexing the farmers of any community it is the duty of the employe of the department of agriculture to solve this problem.

If the problem is one that the employe of the bureau cannot solve, it is his duty to send it to the department where it will be turned over to some specialist.

Mr. McDowell told the farmers that eventually it was the plan of the department to have a man for each state, and then later to have a man for each congressional district. Under this plan the employes of the agriculture department could get among the farmers more often.

The farmers gathered here today took a most enthusiastic interest in the work that is being done by Supt. McGuire and by the agricultural department of the Commercial club in their behalf. Many questions were asked and many of those present stated that they proposed to investigate thoroughly the plan of clearing land by the use of dynamite.

WOMAN'S HASTE FATAL.

Fargo, N. D., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dressed in deepest mourning for her husband, recently deceased, Mrs. E. McIsterteigen dropped dead en route to a train. She had been spending some time in Grand Forks, and was here in consultation with the attorney for the estate. Fearing she would be late for the train, she hurried too much and dropped from heart disease. The couple were early residents of the city.

MAILS STOLEN WATCH.

Conscience-Stricken Thief Returns Timepiece to Owner.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Will Colton was startled yesterday when he received by mail a watch which had been stolen from him last July. The watch was just as good as when he lost it. It had been mailed in Minneapolis and the handwriting had been disguised by the writer.

The watch is a valuable gold one and Mr. Colton is well pleased over its recovery. He had no clue to the thief. He left it in his room in the boarding house one day and someone sneaked in and secured it. An effort was made to locate the timepiece but with no success.

It is supposed that the thief's conscience bothered him so he decided to return the loot.

THE POLES AND LIBERTY.

It is deeply pathetic that the Poles, who are as ardent lovers of liberty as the world harbors, must celebrate today the anniversary of a freedom that has been taken away from them, instead of a liberty that should still be theirs as a free and independent nation, honored and respected among the sisterhood of nations.

Yet it is evidence that the Poles deserve the national entity which the greed of their neighbors has taken away from them, that theirs should have been the fifth nation in the world to adopt a Constitution preserving to the people their God-given human rights. It was a bright day in the annals of mankind when, as an interesting article related in The Herald Saturday evening, the Polish diet, on May 3, 1791, created the famous Constitution of May 3, and placed the Polish nation in the van of human progress. To quote Saturday's article: 'Its action stands unique in the history of mankind—that an all-powerful class voluntarily renounced most of its privileges under no other pressure than the feeling of pure patriotism and under the command of sound statesmanship."

A people that could do this ought to be free, to give its examples to peoples still suffering in bondage. The Pole, even today when his country is dismembered and divided up among greedy powers, harbors dreams of liberty and Polish nationhood. The cause of liberty will be materially advanced if those dreams can be materialized.

THE "BUSHEL TAX" ON WHEAT.

Elsewhere on this page The Herald reproduces an article by Editor Elmer E. Adams of the Fergus Falls Journal, who is also Representative Elmer E. Adams of Otter Tail county, strongly criticising the tax of a quarter of a cent a bushel on wheat in elevators, provided for by a law passed at the recent session of the legislature.

There can be no question that the objections raised to this law by Mr. Adams and others are well founded. It is a bad law, based on a bad principle. It should be taken into the courts at once, and if it is not declared invalid there it should be repealed at the next session of the legislature. We feel confident, however, that this measure will not stand the test of the courts, and that no other specific tax, levied without regard to the value of the property taxed, will square with the provisions of the state Constitution regarding uniformity of taxation, even under the so-called "wide open" amendment.

The Herald does not recall, however, that Mr. Adams opposed this law when it was before the house, nor that he even voted against it. Perhaps he did, but if he didn't it was because he, in common with the others who participated in its passage, believed that it hit the terminal elevators only.

As a matter of fact, it not only hits the terminal elevators, but every country elevator and every farmer who raises grain.

And right there lies the greatest evil of specific taxes o fthis character: they never hit the interests they are aimed at. The bushel tax on wheat was probably aimed by the legislature at the terminal elevators. As a matter of fact the terminal elevators are quite content with it, but the country elevators and the farmers are by no means content with it, nor should they be.

This tax of a quarter of a cent a bushel on every bushel of wheat handled in every elevator of the state during the year bears no relation whatever to the value of the wheat. A bushel of No 1 hard wheat, worth say $1.40, is taxed just the same as a bushel of "no grade" wheat, worth not much more than half that amount. This is not uniformity. If the tax is high enough as to the No. 1 hard, it is too high as to the "no grade," and if it is fair for the "no grade" it is too low for the No. 1 hard.

The tonnage tax was aimed at the steel trust and it would have hit the laborer and the merchant and the consumer.

Both are specific taxes, based on production and not on value, and both are therefore bad. They are bad in principle, bad in practice, and bad in results.

The tonnage tax is defeated, and the bushel tax should be taken into court and defeated there. Not only should these two instances of specific, arbitrary taxation be ruled out of this state, but so should the principle upon which both are founded.

HOW TO REVISE THE TARIFF.

The task that confronts congress in the special session for tariff revision is by no means so complex and difficult as congress is making it out to be.

The people wanted—and still want—tariff revision; but by that they meant a real revision, and not a sham one. They asked to be granted real relief from the iniquitous exactions of the Dingley law, and they will not be satisfied with a hocus-pocus of tariff schedules that leaves the trusts just where they are now—on top—and the people just where they are now—a very much abused under dog.

What congress had to do, if it intended to do its duty by all the people, was to revise the tariff so as to reduce the cost of living without curtailing the revenues. Congress says that is a hard thing to do, but it isn't. It is the easiest thing in the world—if congress could forget for one moment the greedy demands of special privilege and consider singlemindedly the needs of the people.

For instance, there are tariff schedules that now produce practically no revenue whatever now, and that still work to tax the people enormously. They shut out honest foreign competition, erecting an impassible barrier behind which industry concentrates its forces and pushes its prices up to inordinate heights. That is the real defect in the Dingley tariff law, and it was that defect that the people expected congress to remedy.

An attack upon such schedules as these would accomplish at a single stroke all that the people expect of tariff revision. By reducing them to a level that will permit fair competition from abroad, without discriminating against American labor—in short, by squeezing the tariff brigandry out of present prices—the cost of living could be reduced and the revenues largely increased, without injuring any American industry.

But that is just what the representatives of big business in congress are seeking to avoid, and it is precisely what they are going to avoid.

The leaders of the plunderbund in congress have become expert at avoiding such things. They are going to perform a clever feat of legerdemain, by revising the tariff without really revising it. They are going to bring about tariff revision, most assuredly. But the task they have set for themselves is to bring it about without treading upon the rich preserves of their clients, the trusts—and that means without affording any real relief to the American people.

There isn't the slightest question, at this moment, that the revision is and will continue to be a farce. The people demand a lower cost of living, but they are not going to get it. That would involve cutting the fat dividends of the trusts, and that is something congress, as it is organized at present, will never permit.

A DANGEROUS PRECEDENT.

The Herald is glad to see that Delavan Smith and Charles R. Williams, publishers of the Indianapolis News, will resist being dragged away from their homes and friends for trial in the District of Columbia upon the indictments against them for criminal libel in publishing statements relating to the purchase of the Panama canal by the United States government.

Altogether aside from the merits of the prosecution of these newspapers and their publishers, it is clearly an outrage upon justice to compel these defendants to leave their homes and go to a strange region for trial. They should resist the attempt to the last ditch, and in their resistance they will have the fullest sympathy even of those who believe that the offense of the alleged libel is great enough to demand prosecution. To add to the prosecution, however, this strange proceeding of a trial at Washington, turns it into persecution and proposes a precedent that may work infinite harm to the liberties of press and people.

WAR ON THE COMIC SUPPLEMENT.

Another organization of women has declared war against the infamous "comic supplement" which many newspapers still continue to perpetrate upon the public. The Nineteenth Century club of Chicago, at its annual meeting the other day, adopted plans for a campaign seeking the elimination of this vile and degrading institution, many members of the club asserting from personal observation that the pranks depicted in the "funny" pages of the Sunday papers have had a bad influence on their children.

It is not alone the bad art, the evil taste, the wretched coloring or the shameful travesties upon humanity that make the average comic supplement dangerous and degrading. It is all of these, and in addition it is the promptings to malicious mischief, to irreverence, to contempt for authority, that the pictures provide.

The fight need not be against the comic supplement itself, but for its improvement, though it would be far better to have no "funny pictures" at all than to let the present flood of wretchedness continue. It ought to be possible to provide comic supplements that would amuse without harming. It is true that we know of no such comic supplements, but surely there are artists and humorists in this country capable of producing wholesome and harmless pictures who could be set at work getting up comic supplements that would satisfy what demand there is for such amusement. The wonder of it is, after a glance over any half dozen of the various comic supplements now being put out by syndicates, that any artist would draw, or any editor accept, matter so crude, so void of humor and good taste, so harmful and so destructive of ideals.

The St. Paul Dispatch, which has used a comic supplement for some time, is evidently experiencing some twinges of conscience about it, for it is asking its readers to express their opinions on the matter, and to say whether they believe the comic supplement should go or stay. While the supplement finds some friends—there is nothing so low that it will not strike a responsive chord in some human breast—many of those who take the trouble to answer the query of the Dispatch give the supplement pretty nearly what it has coming.

For instance, one man says: "I wish to utter a most emphatic protest. The subject matter is on exactly the same order as the nickel yellow library for youngsters." Which is hardly fair to the nickel yellow library.

Another man rises to "denounce the slang-breeding effluvia." Another says "keep up the comics, but provide something sensible." Still another says "there can be no question about the harm done children." A minister says: "Not only as the father of two boys, but as a pastor of a good-sized church, I find that the comic supplement is demoralizing to the children."

If the editors of a newspaper are fitted to conduct it, they ought to be able to make this decision for themselves, without asking the public to make it. Surely an editor whose editorial columns show good taste must be aware that the vulgarity and illiteracy of the average comic supplement does not harmonize with the ideals he sets for other departments of his newspaper.

AS TO THE WEATHER.

In the bright sunshine of today—that is, it was bright when these lines were written, whatever it may be when they are read—it is easy to be complacent about the freakish weather of last week, when a prodigious amount of snow fell all over the northwest, and a most unseasonable blizzard performed mighty feats. It isn't pleasant to have an April blizzard trailing over into May, but it is a lot better than the tornadoes that destroyed life and propery in places further south.

Besides, the snowfall did no real harm, however inconvenient and unpleasant it was and still is, and by covering the ground with snow which will, in melting, take time enough to percolate into the ground and saturate it with a moisture highly conducive to good crops, it will add many dollars to the value of the Northwest's farm production.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

C. E. Smith of New York, who is at the Spalding, has been asked to run for mayor of Proctor. Making his home in the charming little suburb of Duluth for the past year, Mr. Smith has so endeared himself to the inhabitants of Proctor that they have tendered him the greatest honor in the gift of the city.

Mr. Smith spoke feelingly of the offer at the Spalding last night. "I was raised in the East," said Mr. Smith, "and before coming West always believed that the East was the country that was originally chosen for the abode of man. But since coming out here to Minnesota, I have met so many fine people that I am not so sure that I would prefer to live in the East. I have been at Proctor for the past year, and up there the people and I have got along so well that some of the citizens have asked me to run for mayor of the village. I can't very well accept the honor that has so generously been made to me, but you may be sure that I shall always appreciate the generosity of the people of Proctor."

Frank Lane of the Florence Roberts company is one man who longs for the comforts of the big city of New York. The members of the company for the past two weeks have been playing the small towns of Canada. They have been as far in Northwestern Canada as Edmonton, upon the Canadian Northern railway, and from there have played the small towns upon the branch lines.

"We close in another week," said Mr. Lane at the Spalding yesterday, "and you may be sure that I am going to hike for little old New York. We have had the worst run of one-night stands that any company ever played in, and all of us are very nearly wrecks from the sleep we have lost. This is the first big town we have played in for the last two weeks. Do you know that I felt like an amateur at his first performance when I stepped upon the stage of the Lyceum last Friday evening? I had been playing in small theaters and in small towns for so long. Honestly, I felt like a rube. That is one of the things that every company has to go through with at some stage of the route, and we have received the worst of our experiences at the end of the itinerary."

Hal Cooper of Minneapolis, a guest of the St. Louis hotel, who is in the cement business, says the range country is one of the best territories in the Northwest for the cement dealers, for the simple reason that they are building more stone and concrete houses in this part of the state than in any other part of the Northwest. They are building few frame buildings in any of the towns of the range country. In Chisholm practically all of the business buildings are of stone or cement. The territory of the cement man is naturally increasing through the building of more stone and concrete houses, but the range country is building more in proportion to its size than any part of the country."

Charles Oswald, who has lived in Duluth for a number of years, but who has been making Sioux City, Iowa, his business headquarters for the past six months, is at the St. Louis hotel.

Mr. Oswald says through the development of the beef industry, Sioux City is increasing as a market center. There are more Iowa cattle being sent to that market annually, according to Mr. Oswald, and this increase is resulting in the growth of Sioux City as a commercial center.

Mr. Oswald says Iowa is growing some of the best beef cattle in the world, particularly the Aberdeen Angus type, and that these cattle are commanding the highest prices upon the American market at the present time. Most of the products of the Iowa farms are finding their way to the market through the Sioux City slaughter houses.

Frederick Huskin, the noted newspaper correspondent is at the Spalding. Mr. Haskin, whose name is familiar to newspaper readers in many parts of the country, as the contributor to many newspapers upon a variety of historical and current subjects, came to Duluth to investigate the iron industry and conditions in connection with mining on the iron ranges.

It is the intention of the writer to make a thorough study of the conditions throughout the famous Minnesota iron district, the result of which will probably be a series of articles upon the mining industry in the Lake Superior region.

J. W. McGregor of Whitewood, Sask., says the Canadian grain crop will be the greatest the present year of any season in the history of Canada. The reason for this statement, according to Mr. McGregor, who is at the Lenox hotel, is the greatly increased acreage that will be placed under cultivation. Besides this fact, Mr. McGregor says the farmers of Canada are sewing a better grade of wheat, a grade better adopted to the needs of the soil.

THE WEATHER.

After carefully peeping out of the windows and opening a crack in the front door, Duluthians dared to issue forth from their homes yesterday, deciding that the blizzard was over. It does seem safe to venture forth today, and the weather is springlike once more. That blizzard is something that should be expunged from the weather records and forgotten. It wasn't right, or natural, or Duluthlike.

A year ago today it was fine and warm.

The sun rose this morning at 4:49 and will set this afternoon at 7:21, making fourteen hours and thirty-two minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather:

"During the past twenty-four hours light snow or rain fell over the greater part of the lake region, Ohio valley, Middle Mississippi valley and Eastern Gulf states as a result of low pressures. A disturbance that is developing over Alberta is causing warmer weather in Saskatchewan, Eastern Montana and the Western Dakotas. Heavy to killing frosts occurred this morning in Iowa and Nebraska. The barometer is highest over the Atlantic states. Generally fair and thawing weather may be expected at the Head of the Lakes this afternoon, tonight and Tuesday.

"Bushel" Tax on Wheat.

Representative Elmer E. Adams in Fergus Falls Journal: Among the measures passed at the last session of the legislature was chapter 466, levying a "bushel" tax on grain. This is a twin sister of the tonnage tax, and was introduced as an antidote to the measure providing for a stamp tax on all trades executed in the various chambers of commerce in the state. The measure provides that every person or corporation operating an elevator shall pay a tax of one-fourth of a mill per bushel on all wheat and flax received, and one-eighth of a mill per bushel on all other grain received or handled during the year. The bill was introduced shortly after the measure imposing a tonnage tax and the providing for a stamp tax on trades in futures. The tonnage tax passed both bodies. The stamp tax on futures passed the house and went to the senate where it reposed for the last month of the session in the pocket of Senator Ed Smith and never escaped. The "bushel" tax passed the house only a short time before the close, but they attended to it in the senate, and it passed there without attracting much attention during the last days of the session.

It is not yet known how much revenue the "bushel" tax will produce, but in view of the fact that all of the grain which is not used for seed or flour at home goes into an elevator once or more times, it ought to produce considerable revenue. There is some curiosity as to whether anyone will attack the constitutionality of this bill, for the imposition of a tonnage tax was an interference with and burden upon interstate commerce, on the theory that when the ore left the mine it had started on its journey to Buffalo, this may apply to wheat, as when it enters its first elevator it is on its way to some destination outside the state, and the tax therefore may be in violation of the Federal Constitution.

There is also a possibility that it may not hold water under the State Constitution, as the so-called wide-open amendment, adopted two years ago, provides that taxes shall be uniform on the same classes of property, the only exceptions being gross earnings on railroads and special assessments for municipal improvements.

In view of the fact that wheat which goes to market bears a burden which wheat at home escapes, it would seem that the tax was not exactly uniform. The curious thing about this matter, however, is that the tax on deals in the chambers of commerce went into a pocket and was forgotten, and the tax on iron ore was vetoed, while the tax on the wheat purchased from the farmers' wagons stands. It is also quite noticeable that the telegraph wires were not melted by telegrams from business interests all over the state demanding that the governor veto it on the ground that it was unfair, unequal, unjust, sectional and liable to stop the tilling of the soil, prevent the building or operation of milling plants, and close down the school's, so he signed it.

If.

"If men were only handsomer."
The little maiden highed.
"Soon, soon I'd say; 'Take me away
And make of me a bride!'"

"If men were only cleverer,"
The older maiden said.
"I'd take a chance with word and glance
And mayhap I would wed."

"If men were only wealthier,"
The buxom widow breathed,
"I might incline a vow to sign
With brow all orange wreathed."

"If men were only easier,"
The ancient spinster wept,
"I'd set my cap for any chap
And wed him ere I slept."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Grand Rapids Herald-Review: By the way, under the Constitution, Northern Minnesota should not pay any state taxes. Taxation without representation is unjust and unlawful.

Virginia Virginian: The people of Southern Minnesota do not understand that there are living, breathing men and women in this section of the state. Closing their eyes to all else, they look upon the United States Steel corporation as a monster to be crushed. They do not realize that in crushing the monster of their imagination they will crush also rising, flourishing communities. They would render a part of their state less prosperous and retard its advancement not knowing that they would injure the whole state and consequently themselves.

It is certainly up to Northern Minnesota to get busy. Let the people in the southern part of the state understand the true effect of such measures as the Bjorge bill and the demand for a law of the kind will be so feeble that it will not be heard in the halls of the legislature.

Anoka Herald: Throughout this long struggle over the tonnage tax newspapers at the head of the lakes have been fair, honest and consistent. The Duluth dailies, while energetic in their opposition to the measure, have been kind in their treatment of those who believed in the bill.

Lake Crystal Union: Robert C. Dunn of the Princeton Union is loud in praise for Governor Johnson. This is certainly magnanimous on the part of Mr. Dunn. It takes courage for one to forgive his political enemy as well as as for one to do some other heroic act.

Sandstone Courier: The southern part of the state seemed willing to make the northern part pay all the taxes, but were not willing to allow a just representation from that district. The south now holds the power, but it will be different in a few years.

Elk River Star-News: The legislative session which closed last week costs the taxpayers $288,000, nearly half as much more than sessions in the nineties cost. Public officials are getting more and more extravagant with public funds as time passes. The time will come when a halt will have to be called.

Stillwater Gazette: Many women declare that the comic page of the newspapers is responsible for many pranks and has a bad influence on the younger children. The exaggerated colored supplements have outlived their usefulness.

Foley Independent: Someone has suggested that the legislature be cut down and the terms of members lengthened to six years in the senate. For instance, eight years in the senate. For instance, the salary grabbing bunch! Wouldn't the people rejoice in the fact that legislation for the next eight years would continue on a level with that of the session just closed?—Royalton Banner.

Wouldn't that be fine! The people of Minnesota have just cause to be proud of their legislature. It was a cuckoo.

Dealing With Drunkards.

Rochester, N. Y., Chronicle and Democrat: New Mexico has found a way at last to deal with that elusive problem, the habitual drunkard, who has been the subject of so much legislative care and study, though heretofore without much effect. New Mexico has a scheme to compel men to take out a license, as for an automobile or a bull pup, before being eligible to stand before the bar and study navigation, that is to say, the handling of schooners. The man who lingers too long at the bar and takes on a heavier cargo than he can carry conveniently will forfeit his license or have it suspended when brought before the court the next morning. The ability to obtain a drink will therefore depend on something more than the ability to pay for it when once this plan is in operation. The customer must have a license as well as the price. It is a decided innovation in sumptuary legislation, and its results are difficult to foretell.

MORE ABOUT TONNAGE TAX

Was Best for the State.

Wabasha Herald: Some newspaper men are knocking the governor for his veto of the tonnage tax. Time will show that the governor knew that the veto was the proper thing for the state.

Didn't Talk Tonnage Tax.

Detroit, Becker county, Record (Rep.): The Lake Park Journal, in its current issue, referring to the governor's veto of the tonnage tax bill, states that at the time he spoke in Lake Park last fall the governor asserted that he would sign the bill provided it ever passed the two branches of the legislature. This is erroneous. No such statement was made by Governor Johnson at the time and place mentioned. The Record representative occupied a seat directly in front of the speaker and but a few feet distant, and we are willing to take oath that the words "tonnage tax" were not used by Mr. Johnson at any time during the evening's address. Not only that, but we have yet to learn of any statement made by Mr. Johnson during any of his three campaigns—at any time or place—where he forecasted what his actions would be regarding any measure pending or discussed by either his own party or the others.

That's No Joke.

Aitkin Republican (Rep.): Governor Johnson can run for any old thing in the shape of a political office and be assured of an almost unanimous vote in Northern Minnesota.

It Certainly Covers the Ground.

Virginia Virginian: The Michigan legislature proposes to put a tonnage tax on iron ore and copper. The bill goes some better than Bjorge's measure by fixing the iron tax at 25 cents and the copper at ½ cent a pound. Northern Minnesota extends the hand of sympathy to Northern Michigan, and wishes the people of the mining regions of the neighboring state the best of luck in their fight against the bill. For the prosperity of the state. It is hoped that the Michigan legislature will be made to see the light. Governor Johnson's veto message, circulated among the legislature of the Wolverine state, might help.

The Governor Was Right.

Aitkin Republican. In vetoing the tonnage tax bill the governor gave reasonable argument a great boost. He called attention in his message to the fact that fifty-eight counties now get more from the state than they pay back in taxes, and that he couldn't see any justice in these counties trying to extract more from the iron country, especially in view of the fact that it was claimed by Northern Minnesota that if this part of the state had its proper share of representatives in the state legislature, a tonnage bill never would have been passed. And the governor was right.

Mashed in Politics.

Sauk Center Herald: Bob Dunn is one of the most vitriolic of Republican backers and a fighter who never gives quarter or cries quits. But he's big enough and fair enough to give credit to an opponent when he believes that opponent is in the right. Hence it transpires that one of the most hearty and sincere commendations reaching the governor for his stand in vetoing the tonnage tax bill came from the Bluff Pinecottian, who wired: "As a citizen of Minnesota, with all my heart I congratulate you on your brave stand." And Bob followed this up with a fine editorial in his newspaper. These little amenities rob political strife of some of its unpleasantness and show that underneath the surface there lies a substantial stratum of the highest and best manhood.

It Must Get Busy.

Aitkin Republican: The steel trust should now get busy and push the $10,000,000 dollar steel plant at Duluth as rapidly as possible toward completion. Good faith on the part of the corporation officials will go a long way in solving the people of Northern Minnesota in their fight against unjust and unfair methods in taxing the iron ore of the state.

No Reason for Tonnage Tax.

Nora, Ramsey county, Times: The clear and logical reasons given by Governor Johnson in vetoing the tonnage tax bill appeal to any fair minded person and as a result many who have advocated a tonnage tax, are now convinced that the Bjorge bill was wrong in principle and did a great injustice to the mining sections of the state. Leading papers in Southern Minnesota, where it has been claimed the sentiment for a tonnage tax was the strongest, are commending the governor upon his action. In connection with this subject it might be well to explain that the tax commission in 1907 made a very thorough and exhaustive investigation of assessments on all iron properties with the result that assessments were increased $125,000,000. Prior to that time there might have been some excuse for a tonnage tax, but the tax commission having demonstrated their work of two years ago that valuations can be determined under the ad valorem system with a reasonable degree of certainty, and leaving itself a fair valuation upon this class of property there no longer exists any good reason for a tonnage tax, or at least such a one as was vetoed by the governor. The ad valorem method is now producing a revenue to the state of more than $600,000 annually, being more than two-thirds as much as the state taxes paid by all the farms of the state. The ad valorem system also has the advantage of equality between the different classes of mining properties and insures a fixed and certain revenue to the state which cannot be said of any tonnage tax method yet devised. It is contended by the tonnage tax advocates that the mines and mining properties are still assessed too low. If it be true the remedy is to increase the assessments. This can be done without trying a new and admittedly crude system. Our tax laws provide ample remedies for increasing assessments where they are found to be too low. An increase in assessments would give the county and local communities their share of all taxes levied which in all fairness, it must be conceded they are entitled to. They need it to freedom and build up their section of the state. Under the Bjorge bill the local communities were left to shift for themselves while the state reached in and took the lion's share in the form of a tonnage tax.

Bjorge's County Approves.

Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county, Gazette: The latest Record, the leading paper in Representative Bjorge's county, commends Governor Johnson's veto of the tonnage tax.

It Will Be Built.

Madison, Lac Qui Parle county, Independent Press: No one thing has caused more newspaper comment lately than Governor Johnson's veto of the tonnage tax bill, and unless that new steel plant is built the question will cut a big swath in the next campaign.

It Might Enlighten Them.

Cannon Falls Beacon: It will conduce to longevity in those editors and legislators who supported the tonnage tax proposition to remain west of St. Louis county line.

The Real Test.

St. Peter, Nicollet county, Herald: The Northfield News, which fought honestly and conscientiously for the tonnage tax bill, is, very naturally, wrought up over Governor Johnson's veto of it, and complains that, in the first real test, the governor has sided with the corporations as against the people. This charge is, perhaps, a natural one for the News to make under the circumstances, and does not come unexpectedly. But is it the first real test? Have not the assessments of the steel trust been raised from $60,000,000, the maximum under Republican administrations, to $180,000,000 during the four years of Johnson?

He Deserves Credit.

Mora Times: The Lindstrom (Chicago county) Press, which has been inclined to favor the tonnage tax bill, comments as follows upon Senator Victor L. Johnson's vote against the bill: "We desire to give him the credit which is in all justice due him for voting against the tonnage tax bill. We believe that he acted entirely in accordance with his own convictions in this matter, and we do not hesitate to give credit where credit is due."

The State's Best Interests.

St. Peter, Nicollet county, Herald: There remains no doubt but that Governor Johnson acted wisely and for the best interest of the whole state in vetoing the Bjorge tonnage tax bill. Regardless of party and other considerations, Northeastern Minnesota was unanimously opposed to the law, and its enactment would have been injurious and detrimental to that section, the first effect being to greatly retard the development of the new ranges and properties which produce low-grade ore. There is good reason to believe that the steel trust is not paying a fair share of taxes and that the state is not receiving adequate returns upon the valuable iron ore being mined, but this condition can be remedied by making further and additional increases in the assessments on mining property, which have been heavily increased since Governor Johnson has been in office.

That's What They Think.

Madison Independent Press: It is quite evident that the iron range country had no care as to the justice and fairness of the tonnage tax. Right or wrong, they did not want the bill to become a law. Getting worn by a scratch. Had the Republican party elected its candidate for governor last fall quite likely those people up there would be slinging quite a different song today.

Our Prosperity is Theirs.

Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county, Gazette: There is comparatively little criticism of Governor Johnson's veto of the tonnage tax, even in Southern Minnesota. The trouble is that very few people understand the principle involved in a tax of this nature, and most of those insistent for the tax predicated their belief on the theory that it was a deserved "swipe" at the steel trust. However, as the burden of the tax would fall most heavily on the independent mine owner and the "innocent bystander," it is but fair to ask that such a radical change in taxation methods be postponed for a little while. The farmers of the Red River valley find a market for many of their products in the iron country and they are particularly interested in preventing a season of depression on the ranges.

Let It Go at That.

Ortonville, Big Stone county, Herald-Star: Having had a chance to take their breath and size up the situation the people seem to regard the governor's veto of the tonnage tax bill as a matter wholly between the governor's conscience and himself, and are willing to let it go at that. No one really expected the steel trust to get the worst of it, anyway.

It Seemed Interested, However.

Ortonville, Big Stone county, Herald-Star: Someone has asked what Jake would have done had he been elected governor and the legislature had passed a tonnage tax up to him. He would have vetoed it, just as Governor Johnson did. That is why the steel trust took such little interest in the last election; it was healed, whoever was elected.

Praise for Everybody.

Ada, Norman county, Index: A number of our exchanges come to hand this week praising the legislature for passing the tonnage tax law and also praising Governor Johnson for vetoing it! Everybody apparently did the right thing.

A Real Statesman.

Milaca, Mille Lacs county, Times: Governor Johnson measured up to the standard of a real statesman when he ignored the popular prejudices of the southern part of the state and vetoed the unfair and probably illegal, tonnage tax bill.

Equal to Every Occasion.

Waverly, Wright county, Star and Tribune: Governor Johnson has again proven that he is equal to every occasion. In vetoing the tonnage tax bill he brought this fact most forcibly to our minds. It would have been a comparatively easy matter for him to sign this bill, but he wished to do justice to all. He has demonstrated that he is truly governor of the whole state by refusing to attach his signature to a bill that would be detrimental to one section and a means of creating sectional feeling, especially when this bill savors of class legislation and is practically an experiment. The governor gives good and sufficient reasons for his action, and we believe is supported by the greater part of the people of the state. It is said that the people of Southern Minnesota were in favor of the tonnage tax. This in a number of cases is true, due to ignorance of the real meaning of the bill and a desire to see the "steel trust pay their share." Most people did not understand the situation, but hoped that the right thing would be done in any event, and while the bill was not opposed, it was advocated by but very few people. The action of Governor Johnson has made him a bigger man than ever in Minnesota because he has shown a capacity to view great problems from the standpoint of fairness and justice.

Buncombe Put It Through.

Ely Miner: While Bjorge's name was at the head of the tonnage tax bill, the material for the same was gathered and the bill drafted by ex-Attorney General Young. Bjorge had all to gain and nothing to lose by its introduction. He made a most excellent fight on behalf of his masters. Sectionalism, "get something for nothing," steel trust, "to 'ell with the cities and people, this legislature is for farmers" and other equally as desperate measures were used to push it through the legislature. The same class of buncombe put it through the senate, Senators Clague and Putnam firing the balls of doubtful origin in this body. In the clear cut language of a man who knew whereof he spoke, Governor Johnson in his measure shattered each and every one of the arguments and stands forth as a governor for every section of the state and not alone for farmers. In Governor Johnson, Minnesota has timber for a president, but in our opinion, it will be a dinged long while before the other fellows will be timber for anything.

Were Against the Bill.

Verndale, Wadena county, Sun: The Akeley Tribune calls on Senator Johnson of Bertha, to explain to his constitutents his vote on the tonnage tax bill. This district was undoubtedly against the bill.

A Heatwole Echo.

Ely Miner: (Sour) Applegate, the editor of the Cannon Falls Beacon, sees in the appeals to the governor last week by the people of this country a desperate condition brought on by the "big stick" in the hands of the so-styled steel trust." Three hundred thousand people trying to protect their homes and families have no weight alongside of the opinion of this five-foot six regulator of Minnesota who edits the Beacon by proxy, the main spring of the sheet being located at Northfield. Oh, Joel! Why did you pull the string and cause Johnny C. all this exertion?

The Leaven is Unkind.

Akeley, Hubbard county, Herald-Tribune: While Governor Johnson has given the tonnage tax a lotion strong enough to send it into dreamland for two years, it is evident that the people of Southern Minnesota are not satisfied with Governor Johnson's action. The governor, after a thorough and personal examination into the proposition considered the tonnage tax bill a menace to Minnesota in general, but a decided detriment to the development of the northern section and as unjust as it was detrimental. The people of Southern Minnesota do not understand the situation. They are merely prejudiced against the "big steel trust" and demand a tonnage tax law without regard to the merits of such a law. The people of Southern Minnesota would not work an intentional hardship upon this section of the state, but they are "From Missouri." An educational campaign is in order, free from the heat and prejudice of a political campaign and now is the time for the work to commence.

KNOWLEDGE MEANS FREEDOM

The Ignorant Man Is a Prisoner, Says Rev. Gebauer.

"For the mind of man, not chains and walls mean bondage, but alone ignorance," said Rev. George R. Gebauer, at the First Unitarian church yesterday.

"The less a man knows the more he is shut in. The more he possesses of knowledge, the greater grows his freedom. If we had absolute knowledge of the universe, then our mind would possess the freedom of God. Our knowledge may be but imperfect, and yet even the least acquisition of truth widens by so much the freedom of the mind. The theory of light does not give us a single more ray of light, but it breaks down opaque partitions in our intellect. The study of geography does not increase the world by a single square inch, but the mind expands, as it comprehends this wondrous earth of ours. Our knowledge of history does not change a single fact in the past, but it gives to us the freedom of humanity. To him who is ignorant the past is but a huge graveyard, in which human follies and human ambitions lie buried. But to him who knows, the past is as alive as the present, perhaps more so, as in a way the present only becomes alive in the future. The names of places and persons open to the student of history wonderful vistas, while the ignorant sees nothing. Westminster Abbey is to the ordinary tourist a huge pile of stone and an immense tomb, but to him who has looked at least a little into the magnificent history of Great Britain these stones tell wondrous stories.

"And so if we travel, the more we know about a land, the freer we move in it, the better do we understand the things we see. The freedom of a city is ours, not so much by a patent letter, but by our knowledge of its history. So it is in art. There is enjoyment in music to him who has ears to hear and to understand the harmonies of tone, but vastly greater joy is his, who can see the inner truth of a Beethoven sonata, or who can apprehend the meaning of a score by Wagner, and con understand the intricacies of an opera by Richard Strauss.

"The same is true as to our social relations. The more ignorant a man is the more is he limited in his intercourse with his fellows. He may, perhaps walk and talk with the educated, but he cannot consort with them. The more we know the wider is our sphere of life, the more freely may we move about. All these social fences and bars which we see about us do not seriously interfere with a man's real freedom. The truly educated and true mind laughs at the little hedges of society, and like a bird flies over them and is at home everywhere.

"But there is a higher freedom than the freedom of the intellect in knowledge. It is the freedom of the heart in the truth of love. Mere intellectual freedom is a poor thing after all, if not joined by a loving heart. The man who, by his sympathy understands his fellows in their strength and weakness, has a greater freedom than he who knows all about planets and suns. The purer our life is, the more we possess of that precious freedom. All that disturbs the purity of love, limits that freedom. As soon as we hate, we are shut up in ourselves. If we but despise a single soul, we have by that limited our freedom, that soul is shut to us. And so the guilty conscience, the wrong within the soul, is like a charmed circle, which lets none enter into us and does not permit us to step outside into other lives. Our guilty conscience imprisons us, the free flow of soul to soul is interrupted, we are prisoners of sin. And, lastly, there is the freedom of faith. It is that attitude of perfect trust, which will never doubt the goodness of the spirit of the universe. Spiritual freedom, the freedom of the sons of God, comes to him who trusts God with all the powers of his soul, trusts Him against all appearances, trusts Him most when despair would be but natural. In God we possess the truth, which frees us from all fear and leads us into the liberty of the Son of Man."

WOMAN HOLDS DOWN CLAIM

Is Seven Miles From the Nearest Woman Neighbor.

Almost isolated from human association for six long winter months on her claim in Beltrami county, Mrs. Richard Wohlin of the West end returned yesterday to her home, where she will remain with her husband for a few weeks before returning to her homestead.

She lived alone on the claim, which was more than a mile distant from any other homesteader, and seven miles away from any homesteader who has a family. She often walked to a neighbor's several miles away, just to chat for a short time.

Game was plentiful, and Mrs. Wohlin was a sure shot with her rifle, which she always carried with her. She also reports several narrow escapes from being overtaken by wolves while coming to and from her abode in the woods. Mrs. Wohlin is doing what but few others of her sex are attempting, and she says that she is proud to do it all alone.

SEND GIFT TO OLD COUNTRY

At a meeting of Nortun lodge, No. 16, Sons of Norway, to be held next Thursday night at Kalamazoo hall, Duluth Norwegians will have an opportunity to express themselves as to the nature of the gift they believe should be presented their native land by Norwegians in America.

It is proposed to present something very fine to Norway on the occasion of the 100th anniversary of that country's independence. The ninety-fifth anniversary will be commemorated by Duluth Norwegians, May 17. Meetings for the purpose of considering the kind of gift to be made will be held all over the United States, wherever there are Norwegians, simultaneously with the one in Duluth next Thursday. A national meeting for the same purpose will be held in Minneapolis in June.

These meetings will be open ones, and by holding them five years ahead of the 100th anniversary of the declaration of Norway's independence, it is believed plenty of time will be allowed in which to get ready the gift.

LAST OF THE THREE CONCERTS

The close of the season of free concerts given by the Scottish Rite Masons at the Masonic temple called out a large attendance and the program was well received and regrets expressed that there were to be no more until next fall, except organ rehearsals to be held at the same hour and place as the concerts until further notice. These rehearsals will include much the same kind of music as rendered at the concerts and in cases particular programs will be prepared. On Sunday, May 23, the Franklin school orchestra, (in connection with the organ music,) will entertain their parents and friends and the public generally, and other such occasions may develop.

The program yesterday afternoon was made up of music by German composers, Miss Gladys Reynolds assuming the burden of the vocal portion. For her first number the ever popular "Serenade" by Schubert was given. Miss Reynolds' rich, full voice and intelligent rendering, brought out the beauty of the piece to the satisfaction of the audience and in response to a hearty encore she sang the old German folk song, "Lorelei."

Her second number was Lassen's beautiful song, "Thine Eyes So Blue and Tender," given with good grace, phrasing and skill and for the second encore the German Folk song, "Ah, Me, How Can It Be."

Dr. W. Davis has moved offices from the Irwin Sloane block to 17 East Superior street.

The organ music was ushered in with Beethoven's overture, "Egmont," which was well suited to that instrument followed by Strauss' well known waltz, "Sounds From Vienna Woods," Schuman's "Abendlied" with beautiful obligato for the flute running through the middle portion, was a gem, as was Weber's overture to "Oberon." "Pique Dame" overture represented the lighter operatic style, of which Suppe was a master. All those pieces called for a brilliant technique and quick manipulation of the instrument.

TO CLEAN NICKEL.

Nickel bath-room fixtures and other "trimmings" about the house, are ornamental, if kept bright; but keeping nickel bright is what many housekeepers dread.

True, this is not easy, unless one has Gold Dust, but this may be obtained at any grocery. The rest is easy.

Make a warm suds, using Gold Dust, and wash the nickel fixtures with a cloth. If very dim, rub a little of the Gold Dust directly upon the surface, rinse, and rub dry with a piece of soft linen or flannel.

Nickel lightly washed each week in Gold Dust and warm water, then wiped with a soft cloth, will never get dull and will never need hard rubbing, but is as easy to keep bright and clean as a piece of glass.

APRIL COLD AND WET.

Comparative Figures Show That the Temperatures Were Low.

The month of April, which ended Friday, was just a little colder and wetter than the average. The average temperature for last April was 32 degs. above zero, while the average April temperature for the past thirty-nine years, was 38.4 degs. above zero.

Last month's temperature was in direct contrast to that of April 1908, when the mean temperature was 39 degs. The warmest day last month was April 20, the mercury reaching 58 degs. April 9 was the coldest day of the month, the temperature then being 8 degs. above zero.

The total precipitation for the month was 2.15, and the total snow fall, 12.6 inches. Seven inches of snow was on the ground at the end of the month.

Northeast winds were the prevailing ones of the month, the velocity reaching 60 miles an hour on the afternoon of the 29th.

The statistics show six clear days during the month. The rest were cloudy or partly cloudy.

MANY INDICTMENTS FOR REVENUE VIOLATIONS.

Fargo, N. D., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.) — Thirty-four indictments were reported by the United States grand jury in the first batch. About half of them were for violation of the internal revenue laws. The officials are not giving out any of the indictments until the warrants are served.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

TO SETTLE ITS DEBTS

Beltrami County, Needing Money, May Issue Some Bonds.

Thereby Pay Off Floating Indebtedness and Refund Bonds.

Bemidji, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A special meeting of the board of county commissioners of Beltrami county will be held at the courthouse tomorrow to consider the question of issuing bonds to secure funds with which to meet the outstanding or floating indebtedness of the county, also to consider the question of selling bonds to refund outstanding bonds and to perform such other business as may legally come before the board.

A bill was passed at the last session of the legislature and became a law whereby boards of county commissioners of any county are authorized to issue the bonds of the county without submitting the proposition to a vote of the people for the purpose of taking up the outside or floating indebtedness of the county, and the meeting to be held Tuesday is conforming to this rule.

It is expected the board may issue bonds for the purpose stated.

TO FIND HOMES FOR MOTHERLESS

Deer River, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The three youngest children of John Tremain, aged up to 12, whose mother died a month ago were taken to Minneapolis by Agent E. P. Savage of the State Children's Home society and homes will be found for them.

The father felt that he could not properly care for the little ones.

While here Mr. Savage appointed a local advisory board to represent the society in this part of the country. On the committee are President W. J. Shreve; secretary, O. C. Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. King and Mrs. J. C. Brace.

Mr and Mrs. John Howard have returned from Saskatchewan to again make Deer River their home, having sold their farm in the province.

A. J. Schroeder, night operator at the Great Northern station has been transferred to Swan River as agent. He is succeeded by E. L. Howard.

A petition has been circulated asking the county to make a road of the old unused Duluth & Winnipeg right of way to the head of the Ballclub lake. The way is entirely cut out and graded most of the way.

Orrin Sterling, who has been a settler at Island Lake for the past six years, is reported having undergone three operations in a Minneapolis hospital and is surviving the ordeal.

DUFUR BLOCK IN ASHLAND GUTTED

Two Stores and Law Firm Sustain Loss of $20,000.

Ashland, Wis., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Dufur block was gutted by fire this morning, the loss being $20,000.

Berg's grocery, Johnson's clothing store and the law office of Dillon, Risjord, Calhgnen & Garvin loses everything.

ROBBERIES EXPLAINED.

Menominee., Mich., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the arrest and confession of William Olive, said to be from Green Bay, the mystery of the numerous robberies that have been committed in the Fox River valley and upper peninsula during the past three months, have been cleared up.

Incidentally the Twin Cities were thrown into a state of excitement by Olive's statement to the authorities, that his pal, a safe blower was either in Menominee or Marinette, preparing to get busy.

Every nook and corner in the two cities, every suspicious saloon, hotel and residence was searched, but no safe blower nor suspect was found. Nevertheless many merchants slept in their stores last night with loaded weapons close at hand, but no robberies were committed. Olive has been bound over for trial in circuit court.

WATCHING BANK TELLER.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 3.—Ellis W. Niles, receiving teller of the First National bank, is under surveillance in connection with a defalcation from the bank variously stated at between $25,000 and $35,000. Niles lives at 506 Eighth street south, and has been in the bank's employ for five years, coming to Minneapolis from Canada.

No formal arrest was made, nor has any warrant been issued. Niles was accosted as he entered the bank Friday morning by Frank L. Colwell, a special detective employed by the bank. With Colwell at the time were Detective Crummey and Lieut. David Derrick of the Central police station. An interview followed with officials of the bank.

The city detectives subsequently departed, and Niles was left under the surveillance of the bank detective and Lancaster & McGee, attorneys for the institution. He has been closely questioned. His whereabouts is for the time being closely guarded.

The bank will not suffer on account of the defalcation, as Niles and every other trusted employe is under heavy bond. Niles is bonded by the United States Fidelity & Guaranty company of Baltimore, of which Wilson & Force are local managers.

CALUMET STUDENT WINNER.

Raymond Burt Carries Off the Upper Peninsula Oratorical Honors.

Marquette, Mich., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The champion high school orator of the upper peninsula is Raymond Burt of Calumet, and the champion declaimer Miss Lucille Spaulding, also of Calumet. This was the decision of the judges of the upper peninsula contest, held at the normal school here. Raymond Burt, the winner, had for his subject "World Peace." He spoke of Jefferson, Grant, Lincoln and Sherman as opponents of war, and said that war destroys commerce, devastates fields and saddens homes. Civilization and humanity should be placed above patriotism, he declared.

STAPLES BANK CHANGE.

Staples, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. J. Meyer, F. B. Coon and A. M. Hall, all of Wadena, have purchased the City National bank of this city.

The Dower Bros. of Wadena and E. E. Greeno of this city have conducted the affairs of the institution in such a manner during the past six years that it is today regarded as one of the most thrifty banks in its class in this part of the state. The officers under the new management will be as follows: J. J. Meyer, president; F. B. Coon, vice president; George Harris, cashier, and Murray McNair, assistant cashier. The board of directors will be J. J. Meyer, F. B. Coon, A. M. Hall, George Harris and Murray McNair.

BLIND PIGGERS ARRESTED.

Roseau, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sheriff E. T. Olsson Thursday, assisted by a half dozen deputies, served warants sworn out by S. Kvam upon Jonas A. Johnson, Andrew Elliott, Frank Wheatcroft and Flessie Eldridge, charging each of them with selling liquor contrary to law and the vote of people of Roseau at the March election.

Search warrants were also issued and the sheriff seized a large stock of liquor in Wheatcroft's place, a small quantity at Jonas Johnson's residence and a barrel of bottled beer at the Eldridge premises. No liquor was found in Elliott's place.

The arrests are the result of investigations conducted by a couple of outside detectives and had been expected for some time by the knowing ones. All defendants entered pleas of not guilty, and the trials will take place before Justice Miller as follows: Jonas Johnson, May 10; Andrew Elliot, and Frank Wheatcroft, May 11, and Flossie Eldridge, May 12.

MANY PIKE CONFISCATED.

State Game and Fish Warden Makes a Big Haul.

International Falls, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—G. W. Loman, warden for the state game and fish commission, seized more than a ton of wall-eyed pike which had been illegally caught by parties who live at Long Sault, on the Rainey river, west of here.

The parties who caught the fish were arrested and brought before a justice of the peace, where they were fined heavily, the men paying their fines.

RED LAKE COUNTY TO REBUILD COURTHOUSE.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of county commissioners of Red Lake county have adopted resolutions declaring that as the courthouse here has been destroyed by fire another should be built and bonds to the amount of $35,000 for that purpose issued. The board will meet May 22 to open and consider bids for the bonds and also to consider plans for the new building.

Some claim that the attempt to offer bonds for sale for a new courthouse may revive the county seat fight and result in further proceedings in the court, thereby depriving the county of a suitable building for months.

THREE MONTHS IN JAIL.

Menominee, Mich., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three months in the county jail was the penalty served by Louis La Mountain, 26 years of age, for stealing $26 from his sister, her entire winter's savings. La Mountain used the money to generate a bad case of delirium tremens and had less than $2 when arrested. He pleaded guilty.

BANKER HENRY UPHAM OF ST. PAUL IS DEAD.

St. Paul, Minn., May 3.—Henry P. Upham, for more than thirty years a prominent St. Paul banker and capitalist, died here Saturday night aged 72 years. Mr. Upham, until a short time ago, was president of the First National bank, which position he resigned because of ill health.

Bank Examiner Hurt.

Wadena, Minn., May 3.—Bank Examiner Rathbe: was struck on a crossing here by an engine running light. Two of his ribs were broken and he sustained other serious injuries. He will recover.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Brainerd.—Rev. C. F. Edwards, superintendent of the Minneapolis District Swedish conference delivered a lecture on "Going to See the Elephant" on Saturday evening. Rev. Charles Fox Davis also spoke, taking as his subject "The Man With an Elephant on His Hands."

Warroad.—N. Shears has commenced to excavate for the foundation of his opera house block, and work will be pushed on that structure as fast as possible. The publisher of the Plaindealer has leased the west half of the lower floor of the building in company with Alexander Fosmark, the rear sixty feet to be used for a printing office, while the front part will be divided into two rooms.

Greenbush.—An effort is being made to organize a new school district in the southwest part of the town of Grimstad. There are only a few families in that part of the town, but there are several children of school age and it is too far for them to go to school in the northwestern part of the town.

Stillwater.—Berglund & Mattson, saloon keepers, pleaded guilty in the municipal court to selling intoxicants to P. E. Hammer, aged 20 years. A fine of $25 with costs was paid. The court warned the boy that he would be punished if found drunk in a public place again.

Red Lake Falls.—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Janne of Two Harbors, on their wedding tour, spent last week with Mrs. Janne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Marchildon in this city. Mrs. Janne, who was Miss Bell Marchildon, has many friends in this city.

Roseau.—The 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Yeaman of Salol is in the Roseau hospital. The little fellow got into trouble with a neighboring homesteader, who took it upon himself to whip the boy. The boy received a stroke across the back, which has affected his kidneys.

Long Prairie.—After a hard fought battle lasting two days, the jury late Wednesday night brought in a verdict of $100 for the plaintiff in the personal injury suit of Martin Olson against Sophia Bottemiller. The parties reside at Bertha.

Walker.—Rev. George Michael, for nine years pastor of the Congregational church at Walker, preached his farewell sermon Sunday evening. Mr. Michael has accepted the pastorate of a new Congregational church at Mahnomen and will leave for his new field of labor within a few days.

Little Falls.—J. W. Stephenson, the new owner of the Northwestern Milling company, has announced that he will furnish the new baseball suits which are to be worn by the Little Falls baseball team this season.

Belle Plaine.—The people of Belle Plaine are rejoicing over their success in securing the Mead Flaked company's enterprise. Enough stock has been taken to land the new business. The mill property, which has been idle for a few years, will be utilized by the company in the manufacture of the celebrated breakfast food.

Hinckley.—The location of the pickling station in Hinckley has now been definitely settled by Griggs, Copper & Co. A letter received from them by R. G. Harte states that the seed will be sent immediately and that Mr. Longaker of St. Paul and Mr. Grandt of Pine City will come to Hinckley to instruct in the raising of the pickles at any time selected.

Pine City.—The family of Marshal Riley have shipped their household goods to Cloquet, where they expect to make their home. Mr. Riley's business called him from home much of the time and the change became necessary.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Hancock—The hearing of the case of John Frankki of Hancock, charged with having entered the Carlson liquor store last January, was adjourned by Justice Funkey until next Tuesday.

Calumet—Over 100 guests invaded the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Uksila, C street, Raymbaultown, Thursday evening to assist them in celebrating their silver wedding, the couple having been wedded in 1884.

Laurium—A fire was discovered Friday night in the scale shed owned by the Van Orden Coal company in Laurium. The shed was entirely consumed and the scales were badly damaged.

Houghton—The annual meeting of the Portage Lake Motor Boat club has been called for Wednesday evening at the Houghton town hall. Officers will be named at this meeting.

Hancock—Arvid Storm, employed at the Hancock mine, was injured Wednesday by receiving a blow from a bucket, which injured his head, left shoulder and arm, and rendered him unconscious for a time.

Calumet—The fifty-third annual conclave of the grand commandery, Knights Templar of Michigan, will be held in Detroit June 8, 9 and 10. A large number from Montrose commandery of Calumet intend being present.

Hancock.—After suffering for more than a year from tuberculosis, Miss Agnes Dwyer passed away at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Dwyer, Friday at the age of 19. The deceased was born and reared in Hancock, and was educated at St. Patrick's high school.

Laurium—Laurium's water problem is causing quite a little comment in the village, and the general opinion is that the aldermen are going after the question right by deciding to install meters in every home as soon as possible.

Hancock—The St. Joseph's society of Hancock will meet on May 1 to act upon the matter of the renewal of its charter, which was for thirty years, for another period of the same length. The society was organized in October, 1878.

Ontonagon—Charles Stier and Charles Zuelhke of Bondueli, Wis., are at Woodspur, getting ready to ship their hard wood logs to Green Bay, they having sold them to the Diamond Lumber company. Mr. Zuelhke will return home very soon, but Mr. Stier will remain here for a few weeks.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Rolla, N. D.—Joseph La Counte of Shell Valley, this county, arrested on a charge of making an assault with a dangerous weapon, was bound over to the district court to keep the peace, his bond being fixed in the sum of $300.

Linton, N. D.—A grand jury has been called from Emmons county and it will convene here Tuesday. The calling of the grand jury is a result of the last general election. At that time charges were hurled back and forth between the various sides as to fraudulent voting.

Milton, N. D.—It is probable that criminal proceedings will be instituted against a local resident shortly for cruelty to dumb animals. A cow was left in a barn for a number of days without care, and was in a pitiable condition when found.

Rolla, N. D.—The residence of William Craig in Oxford township was burned to the ground, the cause of the blaze being unknown.

Grand Forks, N. D.—W. G. Buchanan and William Brown of this city expect to make a trip to the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition during the coming few weeks, using dogs in covering the country. Both have splendid teams of dogs and they expect to have little trouble in reaching Seattle.

Fargo, N. D.—Mrs. Charlette Stephens, aged 84, the mother of Mrs. Robert McCulloch of this city, died Friday morning at the home of her daughter. Death was due to old age and a general breaking down.

Aneta, N. D.—A big mass meeting was held at this place and an organization was perfected which will be known as the Aneta Improvement association. The object of the association is to rid Aneta of the violators of the prohibition law.

Valley City, N. D.—A deal has been completed, whereby the Episcopal church society became the owners of the William McKay property at the corner of First street and Fifth avenue. This is one of the handsomest as well as one of the most valuable resident properties in the city.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Preliminary arrangements are being made for the annual gathering of the State Association of Congregationalists, which will be held in this city, May 18, 19 and 20. The meeting this year promises to be one of the greatest religious gatherings in the history of the state.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Judge C. F. Templeton has declined to give a directed verdict in favor of the defendant, despite his directed verdict for the plaintiff, in the action of Schlosser of Mayville, vs. Great Northern. The railway company will probably appeal the case to the supreme court.

Fargo, N. D.—The petition in bankruptcy of Sadie E. Thomas, an art storekeeper of Valley City, has been filed at the office of the clerk of the federal court. The schedule of accounts shows liabilities amounting to $4,496.49; assets, $,975, of which $1,000 is claimed exempt by law.

Mandan, N. D.—John Fenl, a farmer residing several miles south of Mandan, attempted to kill himself Thursday by drinking a solution containing blue vitriol. The attempt proved unsuccessful.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The contract for the remodeling of the Bijou theater has been awarded to Melby & Standal, whose bid was $3,460. Ole Nygard put in the other bid which was about $300 higher. Work on the remodeling of the theater will be commenced at once.

Valley City, N. D.—President McFarland has secured ex-Governor Joseph W. Folk of Missouri as one of the normal lecturers during the coming summer school. The noted reformer will probably come on Aug. 26, during the big institute week.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Milwaukee—Harry Dizack, wanted in Iron Mountain, Mich., the sheriff's office says, for alleged theft of $160 worth of laces, was arrested here by Deputy Sheriff William Salzman, Sheriff H. E. Franke received a description of the man from Sheriff A. E. Robbins, Dixon county, Mich. Dizack was found on Fond du Lac avenue.

Appleton—Alfred Gosha, aged 12 years, lies at St. Elizabeth hospital with a 32-caliber revolver bullet wound near his heart. He was accidentally shot by an older brother, Llewellyn, while the two, with a number of other boys, were playing in the barn.

Green Bay—George Putney, a former resident of this city, was killed at Tacoma, Wash. He has a son residing at Milwaukee.

Whitewater—P. H. Casey, a Milwaukee road detective, arrested William O Brien on a charge of burglary, he having, it is alleged, broken into the depot a few nights since and taken $87. He made a confession and was taken to Elkhorn.

Sheboygan—Hazall B Donohue, aged 26 years, is dead after a six months' illness. He was employed in the office of the Crocker Chair company for ten years. His father built the Lake Shore division of the Northwestern.

Eau Claire—Fred Struve, the new agent of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway company, in this city, has entered upon his duties. Former Agent H. G. Cowling leaves, with his family, for the Yakima Valley, Wash., this week.

Ashland—Several days ago, the police force received a consignment of regulation caps which the whole force are now wearing.

Ashland—The remains of Joseph Werden were taken to Iron River by Undertaker Sohlie Sunday morning, and the funeral held there in the afternoon. Brownstone lodge I. O. O. F. of Iron River had charge.

Eau Claire—Gust Soley of the North Side hill, aged 18, pleaded guilty in Judge Singleton's court late Friday to a charge of shooting wild ducks during the closed season and was fined $20 and costs, amounting in all to about $25.

Fond du Lac—Albro R. Horn, proprietor of the Palmer house, president of the common council, president of the board of education and for ten years division superintendent of the Wisconsin Central, with headquarters at North Fond du Lac has been made defendant in a divorce action the grounds for which have not been made public.

A BAD BACK MAKES LIFE'S JOURNEY HARD

DULUTH EVIDENCE

Proves the Wonderful Merit of Doan's Kidney Pills. Willing Statements of Residents of Our Own City. This is Proof that You Can Verify.

Twenty-Seventh Ave.

Mrs. W. F. Humerickous, 109 Twenty-seventh avenue, Duluth, Minn., says: "For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and the medicines I used did not help me. My back often ached severely and when I stooped, dizzy spells seized me. When I had used one box of Doan's Kidney Pills, I felt so much better that I procured a further supply. I am now free from backache and my condition has improved in every way. I do not hesitate to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills in return for what they have done for me."

W. First Street

Edward J. Hoppman, 422 West First street, Duluth, Minn., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times during the past seven years and they have never failed to give me relief from pain in the back and other symptoms of kidney complaint. I have previously indorsed this remedy through the local papers and at this time, I willingly verify my former statement. I keep Doan's Kidney Pills in the house most of the time, knowing that they can be relied upon to give prompt relief."

Backache and kidney and bladder diseases are becoming more common in every walk of life. It's due to the hurry, worry and strain of modern living. The kidneys are overtaxed—can't keep up with their never-ending task of filtering the blood. Lame back comes, backache, dizzy spells, urinary disorders, stitches of pain when stooping or lifting, rheumatic twinges.

BURDENS LIFTED FROM BENT BACKS

Not one of the early warnings should be overlooked, for neglect often results in a fatal case of diabetes, dropsy, bright's disease or stone in the kidneys. Strengthen the bad back—cure the weakened kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that is endorsed by our own townspeople.

If the Pain is There It's Your Kidneys

Doan's Kidney Pills cure backache, kidney and bladder troubles. At any drug store, 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Cr., Buffalo, N. Y., Proprietors.

DULUTH EVIDENCE

If You Are Seeking Relief for a Lame Back or for Weak Kidneys, Read the Testimony of Local People Who Have Found Relief Through Doan's Kidney Pills.

Superior Street

Mrs. M. McGillivray, 1228½ Superior street, Duluth, Minn., says: "The statements I have previously given in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills have fully expressed my admiration for this remedy and at this time, I gladly confirm all I have previously said."

On Oct. 20, 1904, Mrs. McGillivray gave the following statement: "Kidney trouble clung to me for a year or more and I suffered from dull, heavy pains through the small of my back. I also had headaches, did not rest well at night and was annoyed by irregular passages of the kidney secretions. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me from the first and soon freed me from my trouble. I have had no need of a kidney remedy since."

W. Palmetto Street

J. H. Tomlin, 112 W. Palmetto street, Duluth, Minn., says: "I am only too pleased to tell of the benefit I received from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. A severe attack of kidney complaint clung to me for two years and finally my back became so lame and sore that I was obliged to lay off from work for days at a time. Whenever I brought the slightest strain on the muscles of my loins, my suffering became almost unbearable. The kidney secretions were also irregular in passage and on this account, I could not obtain my proper rest at night. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me after short use and I can now say that the cure has been permanent."

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION —OF— HUGO & TIMS COMPANY.

We, the undersigned, do hereby associate ourselves together and adopt the following articles for the purpose of forming a corporation under and pursuant to the laws of the State of Minnesota.

FIRST.

The name of this corporation shall be "HUGO & TIMS COMPANY."

SECOND.

The general nature of the business to be carried on by this corporation shall be the erection, construction and improvement of buildings, structures, docks, wharves, piers, canals and all kinds of public or private improvements of every kind, nature and description, either for its own use or for others, and the contracting for such building, constructing and improving, also the manufacturing, purchasing, selling and dealing in any and all kinds of material used for or in connection with such buildings, structures and improvements and the buying, selling, owning, mortgaging, leasing and dealing in lands, tenements, hereditaments and personal property of any and all kinds or any interest therein, together with such operations or business as may be incident to and connected with all of the foregoing, or convenient for the proper carrying on of the same, and the carrying on of the business of dredging and submarine work in all its various branches, and the maintaining and operating of docks, scows, lighters, dredges and vessels, steam or otherwise, or necessary or convenient in carrying on said business and to do generally all kinds of contracting work for individuals and corporations such as railroad, bridge, concrete, piledriving, rock-crushing, timber work, tunnelling or mining and to own, buy, sell or lease real estate and to borrow and loan money on any kind of security.

THIRD

The principal place of transacting the business of said corporation shall be the City of Duluth in the County of St. Louis and State of Minnesota. The said corporation may carry on its business and exercise its rights in any other place where the same becomes necessary.

FOURTH

The names and places of residence of the persons so associating to form said corporation are the following to-wit:

N. F. Hugo, Duluth, Minnesota.
F. P. Tims, Duluth, Minnesota.
W. A. Hicken, Duluth, Minnesota.

FIFTH

The management of the affairs of this corporation shall be vested in a board of directors of three persons who shall be stockholders in the corporation, any two of whom shall constitute a quorum to do business. Until the first annual election the following persons shall compose the board of directors to-wit:

N. F. Hugo of Duluth, Minnesota.
F. P. Tims of Duluth, Minnesota.
W. A. Hicken of Duluth, Minnesota.

The annual meetings for the election of directors of said corporation shall be on the third Wednesday of December of each year at the office of the corporation in Duluth, Minnesota, at such hour of the day as shall be fixed by the by-laws or by order of the board of directors.

SIXTH

The officers of this corporation shall be a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, and the offices of president and treasurer or the offices of vice president and secretary may be held by one and the same person. The following persons shall constitute the first officers of the corporation and shall hold office until the first annual election and until their successors are elected and qualified, viz

N. F. Hugo, President and Treasurer
F. P. Tims, Vice President.
W. A. Hicken, Secretary.

SEVENTH

The amount of the capital stock of this corporation shall be One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000) divided into One Thousand (1,000) shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100) each. The capital stock shall be paid either in cash or property acceptable to the board of directors and in such amounts and at such times as the board of directors shall determine and designate. The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which this corporation shall at any time be subjected shall be Two Hundred Thousand Dollars ($200,000).

EIGHTH.

In case of the death, resignation or disqualification to serve of any officer or director of this corporation the vacancy so caused may be filled by the remaining members of the board of directors.

NINTH.

The time of the commencement of this corporation shall be May 1, 1909, and its period of duration shall be thirty years from said date.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, We have hereunto set our hands and seals in duplicate at Duluth, Minnesota, this 27th day of April, A. D. 1909.

FORESTERS' INITIATION

Supreme Ranger Sherrard of Chicago Arrives in the City.

The different Head of the Lakes United Order of Foresters lodges will hold a joint initiation at the U. O. F. hall in this city tomorrow night. The event will be an important one.

E. C. Sherrard, supreme ranger of the order, arrived in the city this morning from Chicago and left this afternoon, together with several other officers of the organization, for Cloquet, where a large class of candidates will be initated this evening.

J. B. McGilligan of Superior, supreme vice ranger, and John McMurchy of Iron River, Wis., chief ranger, met Mr. Sherrard here and accompanied him to Cloquet. A number of Duluth members also were in the party. The officers and lay members will return to Duluth tomorrow and will take part in the initiation ceremonies here in the evening.

After the business has all been transacted and the initiation services are over with, a banquet will be served, and there will be addresses by officers of the order. A large delegation from superior will be in attendance. It will arrive in chartered cars.

The U. O. F. was organized only fourteen years ago, but at present its membership is 14,000, and the cash surplus on hand is $250,000. Sick and life insurance benefits to the amount of about $500,000 have been paid out in this jurisdiction most of it coming to Duluth. There are 2,400 members in this jurisdiction.

There will be two degree teams present Tuesday evening. The team of Court Eastern Star, No. 86, is composed of women, and has taken a second prize both at the meetings of the high and supreme court. Court North Star, No. 10, is composed of men. Prominent among Foresters in attendance Tuesday will be James Kelly, looked upon as the father of the order at the Head of the Lakes.

Court Eastern Star, No. 86—Ada Blanchard, chairman; Minnie Longstreet, Jennie Wilson, Lee Winn, May Conners, Julia McIntosh.

Court Central, No. 61—L. W. Gilleland, Mrs. L. W. Gilleland, Mrs. Hanson.

Erie, Pa., May 3.—Lying in a half-bushel basket, well protected with blankets, but completely covered with snow, a girl baby, 3 weeks old, was found in a blizzard on a doorstep. The child's clothing indicated its parents were wealthy. It was learned that two women, claiming to be from Cambridge Springs, Pa., had taken a child to Crittenden home, but admission there was denied.

MOVING PICTURE THEATER BURNS

Peoria, Ill., May 3.—As the result of an explosion in the film room of the Crescent Nickelodeon here last night, resulting in plunging the entire front of the theater into flames, William W. Robinson, editor of the Peoria Star and manager of the playhouse, is dead, and Walter Woodrow, moving picture machine operator, is severely burned. Two women fainted.

More than 300 people were in the theater at the time of the fire, but no panic ensued the crowd walking out through the fire-enwrapped entrance without exhibiting any signs of panic.

Robinson dropped dead an hour later as the result of inhaling the flames.

WILL MEET IN DULUTH.

Managers of Northwestern theaters will hold a meeting in Duly May 11. The association comprises about thirty theater managers. Some of these managers represent more than one theater. It is expected that managers present at the Duluth meeting will represent about seventy-five theaters in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

LARGE ORDERS BEING PLACED

Railroads Are Stimulating the Iron and Steel Industry.

New York, May 3.—The most important feature of the iron and steel trade is that railroads, encouraged by the low prices prevailing, have placed large orders for structural material, aggregating a little over 100,000 tons in April, or a little more than half of the total fabricated steel contracts placed last month. Even orders for rails have been the most generous in over a year. The imperial tonnage was about 250,000 tons. For both light and heavy material, new orders and specifications on contracts have steadily increased. The Steel corporation plants last week were running 65 per cent of full capacity. This week's operations will be increased to 67½ per cent.

Independent mill with a smaller output are doing slightly better. Several were aggressive for business last week and obtained a larger proportion of the tonnage. The Erie bridge over the Hackensack river, requiring 2,500 tons of steel, and the approach, requiring 800 tons, is reported to have gone to the Lackawanna Steel company, who will probably build the lift bridge. The same company is to furnish about 8,000 tons of steel shapes for wool warehouses in New England.

The contract for the highway bridge over the Monongahela, near requiring 2,000 tons of steel has been awarded to the Fort Pitt Bridge company. Nearly all small building contracts placed last week went to independent fabricators. The Steel corporation's subsidiaries are less aggressive from a price standpoint.

Contracts for about 50,000 tons of pig iron were placed in the Eastern district last week, and the April total sales, in all distributive markets, are estimated at somewhat over 500,000 tons. As a result of the heavy buying, prices have advanced 50 to 75 cents per ton North and South. Electrical machinery manufacturers and malleable founders have been the largest buyers in the East, but most all foundry interests have been represented.

LYCEUM—"The Merry Widow."
BIJOU—New Vaudeville Bill.

"The Merry Widow."

If one is to believe all the glowing praise bestowed on "The Merry Widow" by the people who have heard this notable Viennese operetta, the long-lost dances that once charmed the classic Ancients has come to earth again on a breeze of delicious music. In "The Merry Widow" with its tumult of attractive color and spirit, composer Lehar is credited with bringing the soul of elegant light music back to its own, out of the mire of rag-time and three note jingles, which have swamped opera comique in musical comedy for the past ten years.

Thanks to Henry W Savage, local music lovers are soon to have the great pleasure of judging for themselves of the merits of Franz Lehar's exquisite work of art,—"The Merry Widow" which comes to the Lyceum for five performances beginning tonight. The wonderful opera will have an interpretation by a typical Savage company of lyric artists and splendid orchestra perfectly schooled in the lovely measures provided by the composer who has suddenly grown into a great celebrity through this one symmetrical operetta.

Actor a Great Fan.

One of the warmest supporters of the Tigers in their battling against the Cubs for the world's championship was Fred R. Stanton, who plays the part of Scobbs, the janitor in "Girls," which comes to the Lyceum next Friday and Saturday May 7 and 8, with a matinee on Saturday.

Stanton is also stage manager of the production. He is one of the most enthusiastic baseball "fans" in the country. Stanton probably enjoys the distinction of knowing as many big league players as any person not directly connected with the business.

His best friend is George Mullin, the big pitcher, and the only member of Jennings' staff who defeated the Cubs. Stanton is also an honorary member of the Detroit club, and constantly carries with him a "contract" he received from the Cub management.

Whenever Stanton gets a chance he is on the baseball field. He played with Cornell for three years. His regular position was first base, but after his "soup bone," as he calls it, went back on him, he switched to second base. After leaving school he played semi-professional ball and later worked his way to Newark of the Eastern league. He forsook the diamond for the stage.

In his trunk he has a Detroit uniform that was given him by Mullin. He never misses an opportunity to get out on the field with his dark blue outfit bearing the big white "D."

CONTROL OUTPUT OF GREEN STONES

New York Jewelers Will Sell Them By Carat.

Isle Royale green stones, which have been so common in Duluth for many years, are soon to be raised to the grade of a semi-precious stone, if the ideas of Tiffany & Co., the New York jewelers, are carried out.

An agent of that concern is now in Duluth. The purpose of his visit is to arrange matters so that the Tiffany company will control the market. If this is accomplished, the stones will then be sold by weight, and the supply to the trade limited.

This will mean a big advance in the price of the little green pebbles that for years have been a familiar sight in Duluth jewelry and curio store windows. They are found along the shores of Isle Royale and no place else in the world so far as known.

Eight or ten years ago green stones could be bought for very little, but of recent years the demand has increased, and with it the price. The smallest of the stones now command a price that would have purchased a dozen ten years ago.

The Eastern demand for the green stones increases every year. It is the aim of the Tiffany company to buy up all the stones in the market, and hereafter dictate the selling price. The agent will go to Isle Royale on the Easton the latter part of the week.

CHINESE GIRL WANTS PLACE.

Thinks Chicago Library Work Suitable—Applies to Commission.

Chicago, May 3.—Rose Lee, an almond-eyed miss of 18 years, appeared at the office of the city civil service commission today and filed the first application ever made by any of Chicago's Chinese for a public position.

Miss Lee says that she would like to be a clerk in the public library. She declares she has completed a grammar school education and finished a course in stenography, but that she believes the quiet of a book room is more suited to her tastes than the rapid fire scratching of the pothooks of shorthand.

In her application blank she declared that though her father is a Chinaman, she was born in Chicago and that her brothers also are Americans, being among the few Chinese voters in the first ward.

Tar Paper Used For Packing Rings.

An engineer for a lath mill had considerable trouble with rubber packing rings blowing out on the cylinder and steam chest. The trouble was overcome by cutting tarred paper and applying the same as for rubber packing. The packing was placed in and the nuts turned up, then after the steam had heated the cylinder thoroughly the nuts were turned up as tight as possible. This packing gave better satisfaction than rubber. The most satisfactory beverage is Golden Grain Belt beer and is considered as an ideal spring tonic. Serve a glass with each meal. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

OLD OFFENDER.

Minnie Esterlund Is Fined $50 in the Police Court.

Minnie Esterlund, an old offender, was arraigned in police court Saturday afternoon, charged with being a common prostitute. She was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and costs, or serve sixty days in jail.

Oscar Nystrom of West Duluth made complaint against the woman. He claimed that she had lured him into a St. Croix avenue house, and that, after getting him inside, an attempt was made to rob him of a purse containing $90. Two men, one of them the woman's husband, he says, attacked him and tried to take away his cash.

Nystrom made his escape from the house, but was overtaken and overpowered outside, and robbed, but later got the money back. The police were unable to find the two men.

ASLEEP AGAIN.

Woman, Who Was in Trance Eighty-Five Days, Relapses.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 3.—For the third time in two years Mrs. Beulah Hawkins, whose strange affliction has puzzled medical men throughout the world, has entered into a sleep of mystery. She sank into a trance last Tuesday and has been in that condition since.

Just a year ago Mrs. Hawkins emerged from the thrall which held her for eighty-five days and related her amazing experience.

During the nearly three months of her unconsciousness her mental faculties were acutely active.

LOSSES PROMPTLY PAID.

Insurance Companies Settle With Verndale Fire Victims.

Verndale, Minn., May 3.—The insurance adjusters made quick work last week of the losses resulting from the big fire here of the previous week. Contrary to former custom, the losses were paid at once, the property owners receiving drafts for amount of claim.

All those burned out, with the exception of Reynolds, received the full amount insured for. Reynolds saved most of his stock and will be paid for amount of goods damaged and stolen. Mrs. Lenerville was allowed $25 for damage to household goods in moving out. The Masonic lodge drew $25 for broken windows and damage to roof of their building. H. Calvert received $127 as damages to his flour and feed stock. He reported the theft of many sacks of flour. Dr. Corse was settled with for $100 for damage done his stock and fixtures in moving. Johnson, the harness maker, and J. B. Conley had claims for damages to stock and building, which were paid. F. W. Dickinson was settled with for $35, the adjusters' own figures.

The new building for the Farmers' & Merchants' bank will be a handsome structure if the plans now drawn are carried out. The building will be 24 by 40 feet. It will be brick with stone trimmings. The front will be of Menominee pressed brick and plate glass. The entrance will be on the corner with a passage-way on two sides of the bank counter and a private office in the rear. The vault will be built fireproof and large enough for any present or probable future needs. The floor will be of tile.

LAKE NEBAGAMON POPULAR.

Many Duluth and Superior People Planning Outings There.

Lake Nebagamon, Wis., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. R. Fanning of Superior, who was here recently, says there are at least 100 men now owning automobiles in Duluth and Superior who desire to come to this lake and are anxious that a suitable road be built for that purpose.

The best prospect and most favorable plan is to improve the Eighteenth Street road, which could be done reasonably.

He also says there are many in the two cities who are looking to this plan for their future summer home. Should the South Shore road put on an extra train the coming summer, this place will have plenty of visitors, many of whom will buy property and build fine homes here.

SNOW STOPPED TRAIN.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 3.—Stuck for several hours in six feet of snow near Crosby, a Soo train had strenuous time during a snow storm. It was necessary to shovel it out. Five passenger trains passed through Flaxton over the Soo when the storm abated.

First Livestock Shipment.

Onamia, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first shipment of livestock from this place to Chicago was made a few days ago when M. C. Coleman billed out eight young wolves, which are to be placed in Lincoln park in that city. Mr. Coleman secured the little ones, which are about five inches in height, in a hollow log, about five miles east of town.

Udell, the Apple King, Is Dead.

Lockport, N. Y., May 3.—Foster Udell, known as the "apple king," died here Saturday. Mr. Udell's orchards are famous. He had been a student of pomology for over sixty years, and probably planted more apple trees than any other man in the world.

"The Blood is The Life"

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are effected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood.

Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty cents in postage stamps to Dr. R.V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

SPORTS OF THE WEEK

Racing Season to Open on Belmont Track, New York.

Racing enthusiasts are gratified at the success of the sport at the Pimlico meeting and believe that it augurs well for the future of racing in the East, which will be put to the test this spring and summer at the tracks of the Metropolitan district. The attendance of Pimlico has been large and certain instances have exceeded hopes of track officials.

This week Metropolitan tracks will serve as training courses for horses entered in the Metropolitan handicap at a mile, at Belmont Park on May 15, the opening of the racing season in New York. This inaugural race day will bring thousands to the track eager to watch the conduct of the sport under legal restrictions that are designed to make race track betting impossible.

With Sam Langford, the negro heavyweight, meeting England this week to prepare for his coming fight with Indian Hague, British heavyweight champion, the boxing game so far as the big fellows are concerned is quiescent. Paris is still enthusiastic over boxing and next Saturday night Willie Lewis will meet "Billy" (Honey) Mellody, former welterweight champion for twenty rounds, at the Cirque De Paris.

Bowling centers all over the United States are interested in the coming National Bowling Championship tournament in New York. Indications are that the tournament will partake largely of an international character. Announcement has come from Germany that a team from the united bowling clubs of Berlin will compete and bring with them a handsome trophy, to be bowled for at the tournament at Madison Square Garden. Oscar Tomas, mayor of Magdeburg, will be one of the party of German bowlers. This is the first time that a German team has ever come to the United States to compete in a bowling tournament.

An interesting feature of the bowling tournament will be two events open to any woman and boy in America. Prizes emblematic of the world's championship in those classes will be provided. The competition for boys is restricted to those of 15 to 20 years of age.

The grand international Marathon will be run at the Polo Grounds, New York, next Saturday afternoon. Most of the prominent distance runners have entered. Longboat and Shrubb will not, however, compete as they are matched for a 15-mile race that day at Montreal.

DULUTH TIES WITH FREEPORT

Game Was Called at End of the Seventh Inning.

Freeport, Ill., May 3.—The Duluth Freeport baseball game was called at the end of the seventh inning on account of rain and snow. The score was 2 to 2. The field was not in the best of condition but notwithstanding this fact both teams played fast ball. The Duluth team showed up especially fast in the infield.

Marion was on the slab for Duluth, and although he was touched up pretty hard at times, he was steady at the critical moments. The attendance was poor.

Hans Wagner, who has been playing ball ever since the Civil war, was released and signed by Freeport. Pitcher Joe Miller was also dropped. Score:

Pittsburg Wins Two.

Chicago, May 3.—Pittsburg won both games from Chicago yesterday. Passes to first two men up in the first inning followed by hits gave Pittsburg two runs. Chicago made the score in their half of the first, but were unable to hit Camnitz afterward, while the visitors found Overall at the right times. Reulbach pitched one inning of the second game, gave two passes and hit a batsman. Two errors, two hits and six stolen bases followed, netting five runs. Wagner in this inning stole second, third and home. Lord in their Chicago helpless throughout the game, only three men reaching second. Scores:

Inquiries have been sent to the sporting department of The Herald regarding the coming Jiu Jitsu match between Capt. Leopold McLaglen and Yamagata. These inquiries will be answered and some idea given of the nature of a Jiu Jitsu struggle.

In Japan there is a national school of Jiu Jitsu. This is known as the Kodokan school. A man who is proficient in the art—for in Japan Jiu Jitsu is considered a great art—is given a degree from this national school.

It has only been in recent years that the general public of Japan was allowed to know anything of this school. It was formerly maintained for the instruction of those immediately surrounding the emperor. Of late, however, the soldiers of the empire are given instruction in this school as well as many others.

There are three methods of Jiu Jitsu struggling. One of the methods is to fight with small-sized sticks. This is something upon the order of the Englishman's game, only that it is vastly more complicated. Another form of Jiu Jitsu is where both of the antagonists employ ropes in the struggle.

However, the true Jiu Jitsu, as known to the Kodokai school, the national school of the Flowery Kingdom, is that struggle in which the hands only are employed, without the aid of ropes or sticks. It is in this form of the game that Capt. McLaglen has become so proficient that he has been awarded the ninth degree from the Kodokan school.

The antagonists struggle in their bare feet. They wear Jiu Jitsu jackets. The science of the game includes many holds, each hold being in the nature of a deadly leverage. Added to this is the knowledge of nerve centers. An expert Jiu Jitsu expert can easily put a less expert opponent to sleep through the slightest pressure of some nerve center that communicates with the brain.

Capt. McLaglen gave an interesting demonstration in Duluth upon a man who doubted his ability in this direction. It required the captain just four seconds to put the doubting Thomas to the land of nod. The subject of the experiment did not experience the least pain. However, he imagined that he had been asleep for a week.

The rules of Jiu Jitsu permit the contestants to strike with the open hand. They also permit kicking in the abdomen with the bare feet. But as the stomach of a Jiu Jitsu expert is knotted with muscles that make it resemble a washboard, there are few matches won by this means of attack.

Jiu Jitsu is a scientific struggle. It is one of the oldest forms of attack and self-defense known to the world. It has been a secret with the Japanese for years, and it has only been of late years that the mysteries of the science have come from the Orient.

Capt. McLaglen says he has devoted years to the study of the science. He gained his first knowledge from a Jap valet, and since obtaining his majority has been studying with the most famous Japanese experts. In this way he was able to master the science and receive the highest degree of proficiency from the famous Kodokan school.

Hans Wagner is given credit for being the most modest of all the baseball stars. This is all the more creditable in the big Teuton, when it is considered that he hails from Pittsburg.

Papers throughout the country are at the present time taking a slant at Lil Arthur Johnson for his attempt to sidestep the Ketchel match. The big black may fight the boy from Michigan after all, but it is a safe wager, and a vast deal safer to be hoped for, that the Ketchel person will just need that shift upon the middle section of the black.

PASS THROUGH MINNEAPOLIS

Cars in the Glidden Tour Will Spend Sunday There.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 3.—The chief feature of Secretary Lewis' work in laying out the route for the Glidden tour contests last week, was the reception accorded him and the rest of the pathfinding party at Minneapolis. In the course of the tour proper, a Saturday and a Sunday will be spent at Minneapolis, which will be reached at the end of the fifth day out. The automobilists and other citizens there are planning to give the contestants a rousing reception. Their enthusiasm may be inferred from the fact that a car was sent all the way to La Crosse to pilot the route makers and they were escorted into Minneapolis three days later by more than a score of cars.

Mr. Lewis left La Crosse, Wis., last Sunday and, as laid out, the run from there to Minneapolis will be by way of Pleasant Valley, Winona, St. Charles and Rochester. Some long stretches of sand and clay roads that will be hard and fine in summer were met and as the frost is now coming out of the ground, and there have been heavy rains, the pathfinders have had their own troubles. Mr. Lewis said that in his six years of pathfinding he never has encountered anything much worse, but while he made slow progress he was not seriously stalled at any time. He says he is fortunate in having a light car at this time, although in the summer time the lighter cars will not have the same advantage over the route, because the roads will then be uniformly hard and some stiff grades are to be traveled.

Arrangements with hotels for the accommodation of the contestants are progressing finely this year and as there are no stop-overs at big summer resorts, the accommodations will, on the whole, be better than on the tours through the Eastern states. Some very satisfactory and rather elaborate arrangements, to be announced later, are being made in connection with the sleeping and dining cars that will be used during a part of the trip. Chairman F. B. Hower of the A. A. A. contest board, who has managed two previous Glidden tours, is using all the lessons of practical experience in an effort to make this one greatly excel.

Charles J. Glidden, donor of the chief trophy, will accompany the contestants this year, riding in the car of Chairman Hower, which will be the pacemaker.

Each of the three trophies, the Glidden, Hower and Detroit, will go to individual contestants this year, a fact that is adding greatly to the interest and rivalry.

WHAT! GIRLS PLAY BASEBALL?

Hush! Duluth girls are playing baseball.

Oh no, not rough baseball with a hard ball, sliding for bases and all that sort of thing, but a modification of the great national game with a soft ball made especially for the purpose.

These balls are a trifle larger than the ordinary baseball and much softer. They are called picnic balls, and have been on sale for a long time by the several hardware dealers.

The game is already the big hit down South. In Los Angeles, San Francisco and a number of Southern and Western cities girls' teams have been organized, and in some instances they have leagues with a regular percentage column, just as have the professionals.

The game is particularly popular among high school girls, and the rivalry is just as keen when a contest is played between the girls as it is when the boys meet to battle for the honor of their school.

Girls in Duluth have already been seen practicing, and it is a safe bet that in the unfrequented parts of the city many an exciting game will take place the coming summer.

A small light bat is used, about the size of an indoor baseball bat. The game has not reached that stage in Duluth as yet, but if she can use the stick as handily as they can the ball a number of "Hilltop Sluggers" and "Second Street Hummers" should result.

In the new game the diamond is smaller than in the regulation game, and the field is not so far from the home plate. The players are hunched closer together and the catcher doesn't wear a mask and body protector.

A man down in Memphis invented it, and after he introduced it in his own town, he branched out and got the neighboring towns crazy about it.

If the game was taken up in Duluth, maybe there might be less of "now you see there are nine men on each side and ——."

BATTLER MAKES ANNOUNCEMENT

Three Fights on String—One for Ninety-Nine Rounds.

Chicago, May 3.—Battling Nelson announced last night that he would fight Fighting Dick Hyland, and Cyclone Johnny Thompson before meeting Packy McFarland. The matches will take place as follows, according to Nelson:

Hyland at Colma, Cal., May 29, forty-five rounds, 122 pounds ringside; Thompson at Colma, July 1, 133 pounds ringside; Nelson also made the formal offer to meet McFarland, Sept. 9, at Colma for a 15-round match, the weight being 133 pounds four hours before the battle.

One peculiar feature about Nelson's engagement is that, probably for the first time in the history of the American ring one of his matches has been set for ninety-nine rounds. This is the bout with Thompson for July 1.

Released By La Crosse.

Third Baseman Ed Day of Odanah, Wis., passed through Duluth on his way home yesterday.

New Discus Record.

New York, May 3.—Martin J. Sheridan of the Irish-American Athletic club made a new record yesterday by throwing the Olympic discus, free style, from a seven-foot circle, 138 feet, 6 inches, at the Pastime Athletic club grounds. The previous record of 122 feet, 1 inch, was made in last year's national championships at Traverse Island by W. F. Horr.

WAR VETERAN BURIED.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gilbert S. Wedmar, a veteran of the Civil war and one of the oldest residents of Thief River Falls, is dead. He was born in Norway and shortly after arriving in this country enlisted in the Second Minnesota and served with distinction throughout nearly the full four years of the war. He leaves a widow and seven children, most of whom live in this city and the vicinity. He was buried from the local Methodist church, all the old veterans attending his funeral.

SOCIALISTS HAVE RALLY

International Labor Day Is Celebrated By the Local Branch.

Speakers Boost Public Ownership Cause Amid Great Enthusiasm.

In the calendar of Socialism Saturday was international labor day and members of the local branch of the Public Ownership party were sponsors for a monster mass meeting held at the Lincoln Park auditorium Saturday night.

The auditorium was well filled and there were many women in the audience, some of them representing the women who work and who harbor Socialistic ideas and others being the wives of the celebrants.

The Socialists began the festivities with a parade. They met at their hall, 104 West Second street, about 6:30. About 7 o'clock the parade started down to Superior street, about 300 strong.

The snow and slush made the streets very disagreeable for pedestrians, but the Socialists did not seem to mind. They waved their red flag and the Stars and Stripes of America at the front of the cavalcade.

When the paraders reached the auditorium they found that many people were already there and by the time the program began, the place was filled.

John A. Keyes was the first speaker and he made a distinct hit with the audience when he referred to the cause they were all interested in and the significance of the day.

Thirty-five million Socialists were gathered that evening, said the speaker, in the furtherance of the cause and observance of the international labor day.

He spoke hopefully. He said the time would come when Socialism would be the dominating political and economic belief of all the people of the civilized countries of the globe.

"Socialism is the only hope of the white race in its battle to continue its domination of the world," said Mr. Keyes. "The white race will be powerless against the yellow races of the Far East without it. The menace of cheaper labor from the Eastern hemisphere can only be removed by extending Socialism to the yellow peril itself."

Ed Blackwood, a well-known local trades unionist, spoke of the connection between Socialism and the union man. He said the Socialist party was largely made up of union men. The "scabs," he declared, were to be found in other political organizations.

In his address David M. Robertson dwelt upon the significance of the red flag of Socialism. He said there was some misapprehension about the red flag. It was not, he said, the emblem of anarchy or disorder, but the international emblem of Socialism and stood for peace, plenty and prosperity to the exclusion of adverse conditions. He said it would always be carried on the streets of Duluth by the local Socialists to typify their cause.

An address by Morris Karlan concluded the program. He urged the workingmen to stand together in their fight to better conditions, and made an eloquent appeal for the cause of Socialism.

All of the speakers were enthusiastically received. The auditorium was poorly heated, and it was rather chilly sitting there during the program, but the lack of heat could not chill the enthusiasm.

CONVENTION CALL IS OUT

State Labor Meeting Will Be Held at Red Wing.

The official call of the convention of the State Federation of Labor has been issued by W. E. McEwen, secretary and treasurer. The sessions will be held in Red Wing, June 14, 15 and 16.

All the trades assemblies, label leagues and crafts organizations will be entitled to five delegates at the convention, and the individual unions connected with the federation will be entitled to one delegate each. Unions in arrears will not be entitled to representation, nor will those which have seceded from national or international bodies.

The call declares that delegates should be elected at least two weeks before the convention and their names sent to the secretary at the state capitol, St. Paul, who will also furnish other information desired not given in the call.

C. M. Nordby of 711 Bush street, Red Wing, is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

As the sessions of the convention are short, it is necessary to expedite business by insisting that resolutions, bills and memorials should be typewritten or printed at the expense of the delegation presenting them, before being turned over to the secretary.

OBJECTIONS WITHDRAWN

Council Committee Will Report Favorably on Sundby Road.

Those opposed to the construction of the proposed Sundby road, along plans originally drawn, withdrew their objections at a hearing before the council committee on harbors, parks, and roads, Saturday afternoon, and the committee will report to the council this evening that there is no further bar to going ahead with the road work.

It appears that the objections came from a misunderstanding in the first place. After the council had ordered condemnation proceedings on the project started, several farmers asked that the route of the road be changed. These were residents along the Swan Lake road, who believed that the improvement would not benefit them.

When it was explained that the plan was to commence work at the Duluth end of the road, and by improving it to the top of the heights it would benefit not only the residents along the Sundby cut-off, but those on the Swan Lake road as well, they withdrew their objections.

MRS. HAMILTON DIES.

Mrs. Alexander Hamilton of 117 East Third street, an old resident of Duluth, died last night of pneumonia, at the age of 62 years. She had been ill for only four days. Her husband, Alexander Hamilton, is deputy clerk of the district court, and the one son, Edward, is in business at Hancock, Mich. The only other child is a daughter, Mrs. Stephen T. Wood of Duluth.

The deceased has been a resident of Duluth for the past twenty-eight years. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

S.S.S. CURES ECZEMA, ACNE, TETTER ETC.

While Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, etc., are troubles which affect the skin, their source is far deeper than the outside cuticle. These affections are caused by irritating humors, or uratic acid in the blood. Such impurities inflame and irritate the delicate net-work of fibrous tissue which lies just beneath the surface of the outer skin, and the inflammatory discharge thus produced is forced out through the pores and glands, and is continually kept up while the blood remains infected. This exudation causes the formation of scales and crusts so often seen in Eczema, and when they are scratched off the flesh is left raw and more susceptible to other infection. It can very readily be seen then that to produce a cure the circulation must be purified and cleansed. This S. S. S. will do. It goes down to the very bottom, removes all humors and impurities, neutralizes the excessive acids of the system and in this way removes the cause of disease. Local applications can only soothe the irritation and assist in keeping the skin clean; they never produce a cure because such treatment does not reach the blood S. S. S. restores to the thin, acrid blood all its lost properties, makes it pure and rich and enables it to nourish the skin and keep it soft, smooth and healthy. FREE LUMBER IS MENACE, HE SAYS

Senator Piles Declares It Would Aid Canadian Provinces.

Washington May 3.—A plea against free lumber and a story of Oriental labor figuring in the difference of cost between the two sides of the Canadian boundary line featured a speech made in the senate today by Senator Piles of Washington. He contended that a tariff sufficient to save the American manufacturer the United States market for the low-grade lumber and shingles would make it possible for him to utilize every part of the tree. If this market were taken possession of by the Canadian manufacturer the American lumberman he said would be obliged to leave a large percentage of the tree in the forest a total loss and a constant fire menace to the standing timber.

Free lumber he said would stimulate the development of Canadian provinces and be a detriment to the business interests of this country and he declared that practically the only persons seeking a lumber tariff reduction are American owners of timber in Canada.

He presented an appeal from the Washington Forest Fire association against any reduction, and exhibited an original proposed contract of sale of original proposed contract of sale that Canadian lumbermen had submitted to American consumers, in which they stipulate that one-half of the reduction in duty shall be paid to them

NASHWAUK TO BUILD CHURCH

Grand Rapids Contractor Will Erect Structure for $2,100.

Nashwauk, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bids have been opened for the erection of the Methodist church. Contractor Lavassier of Grand Rapids, Minn., was awarded the contract, his bid being $2,100. Work will begin on the building soon, and it is expected to be finished by July 1.

Mr. Lavassier also has a contract for building a structure on the old site owned by Domonic Tarro, who lost his property last winter by fire.

A steady and strong wind from the northwest blew here steadily, and two feet of snow has fallen up to Saturday night.

Mrs. H. Enright returned Friday from Hibbing, where she has been attending her son, who underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Earl Smith has returned from Aurora, where he spent the greater part of the winter.

The snow storm which visited this place delayed work on the Ollia hotel and the school building.

County Commissioner Archie McWilliams has a force of men at work building a road to the Pearson mine, about three-quarters of a mile northeast of here.

The Hawkins mine is shipping ore, having one shovel in operation, and expecting to put another to work soon.

IRON RANGE WILL RAISE ITS TRACK

Grade Along Brimson to Be Elevated About Two Feet.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Iron Range road has a work train and extra gang raising the main line at Brimson about two feet for a distance of nearly a mile. Commencing today, the company put on another extra gang to ballast the new Knox mine spur at Mesaba. The gravel will be hauled from Brimson pit.

A. Orckovsky of Duluth, who purchased the stock and store of the bankrupt Nordby Mercantile company here, has reopened the store for business. L. Wallace has gone to Endion to work as operator, vice J. Lynott, promoted.

The night telegraph office at Highland has been opened for the season, Frank Bury being transferred from Waldo there for the position.

The Presbyterian brotherhood has decided to put a hardwood floor in and fix up the basement of the church for additional Sunday school room and other uses.

A night switch crew was put on at Bryant last week and another engine was sent there today for yard work.

Robert and Oscar Swanson left Saturday for an extended visit with relatives in Sweden.

Conductor William Smith will leave this week for Columbus, Ohio, where he will represent the local lodge at the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen's convention.

Born, the 30th ult., to Mr. and Mrs. John Peterson, a son.

The home of J. Strom on Fifth avenue is under quarantine on account of scarlet fever.

PUSH EXTENSION WORK.

Great Northern Hurrying Nashwauk Grand Rapids Line.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Despite the inclemency of the weather, the contractors building the extension of the Great Northern road, from Nashwauk to this village are making good progress. A large part of the grading, with the exception of the heaviest cutting, is completed.

At the point where the new road crosses the Grand Rapids-Bovey road near the Betts-Mitchell ice houses the wagon road has been graded down four feet to conform with the grade of the railroad. From the indications a cut forty feet in depth will be required through a hill at this point, while on the opposite side of the road a heavy fill will be needed, and all the dirt from this cut, as well as from other large cuts on the other side, will be required for this fill. In the larger cuts between here and Bovey the work is done with steam shovels.

During the past week a large crew with a steel laying train has been laying the steel on this end of the line, and almost three miles are down. It is expected that a double track will be laid between this city and the junction of the new road with the main line a mile east of here.

MARBLE CAUCUS NAMES.

Marble, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—This village, which has just voted for incorporation, has nominated the following ticket, to be voted on May 10:

W. E. Bawden, president; Fred Ekman, J. A. Robertson, A. E. Perrier, trustees; Joseph Gravelle, recorder; Glenn Strader, treasurer. These candidates have no opponents.

JUDGE WELL INSPECTED.

Eveleth, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Vivian Prince returned Saturday from Baudette, where he instituted Red Sky lodge, No. 98, Improved Order of Redmen. He had to cross the border both times being inspected each time by the customs officials, who found nothing dutiable.

A daughter has been born to Editor Perham of the Eveleth News.

Matt Thomas, who has been doing some logging around Mckinley this winter has about finished. He cut 1,500,000 feet of timber most of which was sold to the local Adams mine, the Elba mine and the Duluth Logging company.

A party was given the other night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dishnow at Cedar Island lake.

BALD EAGLES WON.

Eveleth, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The two teams of local Eagles known as the "American" Eagles and the "Bald" Eagles, the first captained by S. A. Mead and the latter by James Brazanovich have finished their contest for membership begun last December, the latter team winning by a good majority.

EVELETH HONORS SUPT. HEARDING

Eveleth, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The banquet given Saturday night at the Globe hotel, in honor of J. H. Hearding, who left today to assume the position of assistant general manager of the Oliver Iron Mining company, at Duluth, was the most notable affair of the kind ever given in this city. About 150 representative men from Sparta, Gilbert, and the local mines, besides business men, were present.

Mayor W. J. Smith was toastmaster, and in introducing the different speakers, had something appropriate to say each time. Rev. Mr. Carswell gave the invocation. A quartet composed of C. T. Jenkins, Fergus Ellsworth, R. M. Dungan and H. W. Irwin rendered some selections between speeches. Supt. Frank Webb of the Republic Iron Mining company, read a selection: "St. Peter At the Golden Gate," which was alluded to several times by subsequent speakers. Solomon Sax spoke of "What Eveleth Needs." Rev. R. C. Johnson of the M. E. church, praised Mrs. Hearding and her influence with her husband. He said the best thing about Mr. Hearding was that "He found time to be a good citizen."

Father Floyd of St. Patrick's church wished Mr. Hearding all the blessings that could be conferred on him. G. A. Whitman was the next talker. Dr. Dougherty spoke of some things about the honored guest not known by many people, such as taking care of many poor people on the locations and other little things that had come to his attention in his professional visits to the poor around town. Superintendent of Schools B. O. Greening presided. Mr. Hearding is a member of the school board. Dr. Barrett told of the many good things that Mr. Hearding had done for Eveleth and the help he may be to Eveleth in his new position. William Davey of the Adams Spruce office told of the loss Mr. Hearding's departure will mean to the mining men. Several others spoke. Mr. Hearding expressed the feeling of deep regret he had at leaving so many of his friends; that he hoped when he would come around here again he would be able to still call them friends. He said he was leaving the town which he has lived in for fourteen and a half years with a mixed feeling. He had seen the town grow from a place of eight houses to one of the biggest towns on the range. He spoke of the co-operation that has always existed between the town and the mines, which has made possible both its success and the growth of the town. He said the giving of the banquet was a thing that impressed him, showing the real feeling in which he is held by the Eveleth people.

HAD SEVERE HEMORRHAGE.

That Was Trouble With Charles Olson on Train in West.

Aurora, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Olson, president of the village, said, relative to his trip West, that he had left Duluth on the Lake Superior-Nevada mining special car and was taken sick shortly after leaving the city.

Some hours before the train reached Helena, Mont., he was taken with a severe hemorrhage of the nose and that a doctor was telegraphed to meet him at the train at Helena. The doctor met the train as directed and advised Mr. Olson to accompany him to the hospital, which he did. He remained in the hospital five days. In the meantime members of the I. O. O. F. lodge had found his card in his pocket and had telegraphed the lodge at Biwabik, and that the Knights of Pythias order also looked after him.

Mr. Olson is very indignant over the reports that he had been drugged, robbed and left unconscious.

AUNTIES.

They Belong to the Whole Neighborhood.

That dear old neighbor we knew as "Aunty" and who lived down the street was no relation, of course, except that her tender old heart made her "Aunty" to all the young people. And how she did love the young mothers!

One who remembers her says:

"We could always depend on "Aunty" for good sound advice. She was particularly well informed on food and what to use for certain troubles.

"After having taught in the public schools for years my health became bad and I suffered frequently from indigestion. After my marriage I had indigestion so badly it became chronic.

"Owing to my condition my little baby did not get proper nourishment and was a very delicate child. I had about decided to put her on artificial food altogether when the advice of dear old 'Aunty' put baby and I on the right road.

"She insisted upon my trying Grape-Nuts food, declaring that it would help me and give baby more nourishment, so to please her I did, trying it for breakfast. The result was so marked and so quick that I ate it for luncheon, too, and I must say the change has been wonderful. I have good health now and baby is a strong active child.

"My mother says that Grape-Nuts helps her more and keeps her more cheerful and happy than anything else she has ever done. Truly pure, scientific food has great power." "There's a Reason."

NEW CLUBHOUSE OPENED.

Fine Place Is Offered Mine Employes at McKinley.

McKinley, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A banquet and entertainment marked the opening of the new clubhouse opened here for the employes of the Pickands-Mather company. The building was constructed by the company for the use of its employes and the furnishings are second to none on the range. The Turnbull-Cameron-Degler company of Superior, had the contract to supply the furniture and succeeded in doing the work in first-class shape.

HIBBING SENIORS TO PRESENT CLASS PLAY.

Hibbing, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rehearsed by Prof. Todd E. Paulus of the Range Business university, the senior class of the high school is working hard to make a success of the class play, "Brown of Harvard," which will be given this year during commencement.

The fourth publication of "The Orb," the paper printed by the high school freshmen, made its appearance today. One more issue will appear before the end of the school year.

NEGAUNEE PIONEER HURT.

Negaunee, Mich., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Sjostadt, a pioneer resident of this city, was severely injured at the Hartford Iron mine Saturday. A large stick of timber fell on one of his legs, and one of his feet was so badly crushed that amputation may be necessary to save his life.

K. OF P. CARD ASSURED RUCKS DECENT BURIAL.

Aurora, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A Knights of Pythias receipt in his coat pocket was all that saved John Rucks, the man who was killed by the cars at the Perkins mine here last Wednesday, from being hurled in the potters' field. His home lodge at Centerville, Ohio, was communicated with and $69 sent to the local lodge. After repeated attempts to locate his parents, which failed, the funeral was held yesterday from the Presbyterian church under the direction of the Aurora lodge Knights of Pythias. Rev. Mr. Surver delivered the funeral sermon, and music as furnished by the local Knights of Pythias choir. About fifty knights accompanied the body to the cemetery.

FIRST AURORA GRADUATE.

Miss Mattson Will Be Given Three-Year-Course Diploma.

Aurora, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The school board has decided to clean up the school yard, and also to build a sidewalk to run at the rear of the school. The board decided to graduate Miss Mattson from a three-year course. This will be the first graduate from the Aurora high school. The seventh grade will also receive diplomas entitling them to enter the eighth grade.

JUDGE SHOWS LENIENCY.

First Sentence in Range Court Tempered With Mercy.

Virginia, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Schirza, who was indicted by the grand jury last week under the name of Frank Schulz, pleaded guilty to assault in the second degree before Judge Hughes in district court. Schirza stabbed John Mikelson in a drunken row at Aurora a month ago Saturday night. Judge Hughes was lenient in the first sentence imposed by him here in a criminal case, giving Schirza the option of paying a fine of $200 or going to jail for five months. He was unable to raise the money and was taken to Duluth Saturday, beginning to serve his sentence within a week after the commission of the crime.

COMMODITIES CLAUSE HELD CONSTITUTIONAL

Hepburn act approved June 29, 1906, commonly called the commodities clause, prohibits a railway company from moving commodities in interstate commerce because the company has manufactured, mined or produced them, or owned them in whole or in part or has had an interest direct or indirect in them, wholly irrespective of the relation or connection of the carrier with the commodities at the time of transportation is decided to be untenable. It is also decided that the provision of the commodities clause relating to interest, direct or indirect, does not comprehend an interest which a carrier may have in a producing corporation as the result of the ownership by the carrier of stock in such corporation irrespective of the amount of stock which the carrier may own in such corporation, provided the corporation has been organized in good faith.

Its Sole Object.

"Two—Rejecting the construction placed by the government upon the commodities clause it is decided that that class when all its provisions are harmoniously construed has solely for its object to prevent carriers engaged in interstate commerce from being associated in interest at the time of transportation with the commodities transported, and therefore the commodities clause only prohibits railroad companies engaged in interstate commerce from transporting such commerce commodities under the following circumstances and conditions.

"(a.)—When the commodities has been manufactured, mined or produced by a railway company or under its authority and at the time of transportation, the railway company has not in good faith before the act of transportation passed with its interest in such commodity.

"(b.)—When the railway company owns the commodity to be transported in whole or part:

"(c)—When the railway company at the time of transportation has an interest direct or indirect in a legal sense in the commodity which last prohibition does not apply to commodities manufactured, mined, produced, owned, etc., by a corporation because a railroad is a stockholder in such corporation. Such ownership of stock in a producing company by a railway company does not cause it as the owner of the stock, to have a legal interest in the commodity manufactured, etc., by the producing corporation.

Within Power of Congress.

"Three—As thus construed, the commodities clause is a regulation of commerce within the power of congress to enact. The contentions elaborately argued for the railroad companies that the clause if applied to pre-existing rights, will operate to take property of railroad companies and, therefore, violate the due process clause of the fifth amendment were all based upon the assumption that the clause prohibited and restricted in accordance with the construction which the government gave that clause, and for the purpose of enforcing which prohibitions these suits were brought.

"The construction which the government placed upon the act and seeks to enforce is now held to be unsound and none of the contentions relied upon are applicable to the act as now construed."

History of the Case.

The announcement as to the commodities clause was made in deciding twelve injunction and mandamus cases brought by the government against the Delaware & Hudson, the Erie, the New Jersey Central, the Delaware & Lackawanna, the Pennsylvania and the Lehigh Valley railroads. The cases came to the court from the United States court for the Eastern district of Pennsylvania, whose decision as announced by Judge George Gray in 1908 attracted much attention.

They originated in the circuit court, and in its petition the government charged that the railroad companies in question were engaged in transporting in interstate commerce anthracite coal mined by themselves in their own mines which are located in Pennsylvania.

The Hepburn act makes it unlawful "for any railroad company to transport from any state to any other state or to any foreign country any article or commodity other than timber manufactured, mined or produced by it, or under its authority, or which it may own in whole or in part, or in which it may have an interest, direct or indirect, except such articles or commodities as may be necessary and intended for its use in the conduct of its business as a common carrier."

"The circuit court decided against the constitutionality of the provision, because, as it was alleged, it deprives the corporations of their property without due process of law, which is prohibited by the fifth amendment to the Constitution. It was also held by that court, that the clause, 'not indirectly but directly,' works a practical confiscation of the property of the railroad, hence the law was held to be invalid and 'in its nature and effect a discriminative prohibition.'"

That verdict was reversed by today's decision.

CHILD KILLED BY AN ENGINE

Father Claims Negligence and Demands $5,000 From Butler Bros.

George Tomac, as administrator of the estate of John Tomac, aged 15 months, is suing the Butler Bros. company for $5,000 for the death of the child, as he was playing in the yard on July 21 last.

Butler Bros. were engaged in stripping operations near Nashwauk and ran a miniature railroad in connection. Tomac claims that, without his consent, the company laid tracks so that they run very close to his door. The child, it is claimed, was playing in front of the house when he was run over. One of his arms was cut off, and he died ten days later.

The father claims that the company was negligent in that it engaged no lookout, and that no signal or warning was given of the approach of the cars.

The case has been transferred from Itasca county to the district court of St. Louis county.

WAGES ARE UNCHANGED

May Day Saw No Labor Troubles in Building Trades.

The first of May has gone by and relations between the Duluth employers and the members of the local trades unions remain calm and friendly.

There have been no reductions in wages, and no increases were asked by the unionists. Apparently everybody is satisfied to go through this year on the same scale of wages which prevailed last year.

Ordinarily, the first of May is the time when the employer and the employed in the building trades confer upon wage scales for the ensuing twelve months. Sometimes these conferences are fraught with difficulties, for the reason that often one side or another wants changes made to which there is serious objection by the opposition.

Nothing of this kind has happened in Duluth this spring. The first day of May passed as calmly, so far as the relations between the unions and the employers were concerned, as the sunniest day in July.

The union men did not ask for more pay; they merely insisted upon the same scales as last year, to which the employers agreed without a squabble.

"I cannot recall a time in Duluth when the feeling between the employers and the unions was pleasanter than it is at the present time," said a prominent member of the building trades this morning.

To Consider Issuing Bonds.

Fargo, N. D., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bids for the bond issue voted for waterworks and electric light plans are called for at tonight's meeting of the council. There is some question as to their validity.

COUGHED ALL NIGHT

Till This Recipe was Tried. Cure Followed in 5 Hours.

A prominent medical man, who suffered with a severe cough and cold on the lungs, often being kept awake all night, and weakened by loss of sleep, finally discovered a simple formula which will cure any cough in five hours by the clock. It is a laxative tonic cough syrup which can be made at home by any one and the formula is here given for the benefit of those who have sleepless nights in painful paroxysms. Those who have tried it say it is magical, and beats any high-priced slow-acting cough medicine ever sold.

Mix in a bottle, one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardoll and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then take one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day. Give children less according to age. This will tone up and rid the system of deep-seated coughs every time.

New York's Points of Interest

Hundreds of Them are Within Comparatively Short Distances

OF THE ST. REGIS HOTEL

The length of the island of Manhattan—from the Battery to the Harlem river—varies from eight miles on the east to twelve miles on the west. The average width is one mile. Fifth Avenue is the central dividing line between the eastern and western sections. On Fifth Avenue, at Fifty-fifth street, is located the Hotel St. Regis, five miles from the Battery and an equal distance from the Harlem river. This location, in practically the geographical center of the city, insures the shortest distance and the least travel for guests of this hotel to the many points of interest to be found in Manhattan Borough. Central Park and the Metropolitan Art Museum are within a few blocks, the Natural History Museum requires but a five minutes' ride, while the great shopping and theatrical districts can be reached in even less time. The stranger in New York should also bear in mind that this hotel is unique among the city's modern public houses. It was built, arranged, fitted up and furnished with an exquisiteness that knew no stint, yet it is the farthest removed from the ostentatious. Its atmosphere is that of homelikeness and refined comfort, and its cuisine equal in all respect to the most famous restaurants of London and Paris, yet with charges no higher than other first-class hotels in America. Room rates are equally reasonable: $3 and $4 a day for a splendidly furnished single room; $5 a day for the same with private bath (or $6 for two people); or $12 a day and up for an elegant suite of rooms consisting of parlor, bedroom and private bath.

WHEAT HAS AN ADVANCE

Flax Is Quiet, But Is Stronger at the Close Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 3.—After the opening wheat was in good demand in the local market, Duluth showing a larger gain over Saturday than any of the other American markets.

It was rather difficult to locate the buying, but the demand was very firm. Eastern millers were buying here Friday and Saturday, but there were no evidences that they were doing the bidding here today.

Other American markets closed fractionally higher. Seeding is still retarded and cables were higher. Other news was inclined to the bearish side. Liverpool closed ⅝d higher to ¼d lower, Antwerp ⅝c higher, Budapest ⅞c lower, and Berlin 1¾c higher.

The May option closed 1¼c higher in Duluth, 1c higher in Chicago, ½c higher in Minneapolis and Winnipeg, and ⅜c higher in New York. The close was not received from the Southwest. The July option closed ⅝c higher in Duluth, ⅝@⅞c higher in Chicago, ⅜c higher in Minneapolis, ½c up in New York and ½c higher in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ½c higher in Chicago and oats ⅜@½c higher.

World's shipments of wheat last week were:

America, 1,368,000 bushels; Russia, 2,362,000; Danube, 568,000; India, 880,000; Argentina, 1,968,000; Australia, 952,000; Chile, North Africa, 168,000. Total, $ 144,000 bushels.

Corn—America, 520,000 bushels; Russia, 760,000; Danube, 634,000; Argentina, 1,504,000. Total, 3,434,000 bushels.

"There was a firm undertone in the speculative wheat market this morning with values ¼c higher to ¾c lower for May. Following the opening, support developed and values showed a sharp advance, gaining ¾@1 on last. The fact of the heavier world's shipments than were expected, particularly from Russia, for a time caused some realizing. Support was the result of strength in American cables, firmness of primary markets, unfavorable weather in France, continued decrease in the amount on passage and the report that a large Chicago house was buying in this market. There was a lack of selling among the dock hands at the reported closing of the docks at the port of Buenos Ayres and this also had a tendency to increase bullish sentiment. Just before mid-day the market reacted, July and September closing ¾d on the decrease in stocks here. At mid-day the market was firm and from ⅝d to ¾d higher than Saturday.

"Corn was quiet at the start and unchanged. Later, July advanced ⅜d on the reported strike in Argentina and firmer La Plata offerings."

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 21, against 10 last year, and at Minneapolis 303, against 211 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 324, against 221 last year. Chicago received 5, against 17 last year. Winnipeg received 48, against 78 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 484,000 bu, last year 595,000 bu. Shipments 539,000 bu, last year 888,000 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour were 311,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 852,000 bu, last year 428,000 bu. Shipments 219,000 bu, last year 396,000 bu. Clearances of corn were 86,000 bu.

Wheat was quite active here, May wheat opened ½c lower at $1.22⅛, advanced to $1.21⅝, and closed at $1.24⅛, a gain of 1¼c over Saturday. July wheat opened ¼c lower at $1.22⅜, went to $1.24⅛ and closed at $1.23⅝, a gain of ⅝c over Saturday. September wheat opened ⅜c lower at $1.07⅞, advanced to $1.08⅜ and closed at $1.07⅞, a loss of ⅛c from Saturday.

Durum wheat closed ⅜c higher.

Flax was quiet but stronger. May flax opened ⅛c lower at $1.6734 bid, advanced to $1.66 and closed there, a gain of ¼c over Saturday. July flax sold at $1.6612 and closed there, a gain of 2¼c over Saturday. September flax closed ⅝c higher at $1.44⅝, and October flax ½c higher at $1.39⅛.

Oats closed ⅜c lower and other coarse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard on track $1.24⅛. To arrive—No. 1 northern, $1.26⅝; No. 2 northern, $1.24⅝. On track—No. 1 northern, $1.26⅝; No. 2 northern, $1.24⅛. May, $1.24⅛; July, $1.23⅝; September, $1.07⅞. Durum on track—No. 1 hard, $1.13⅝; No. 2 $1.13⅝. May durum, $1.13⅜; July durum, $1.14; September durum, 97c. Flax to arrive, $1.67, flax on track, $1.67. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Clear Weather Proves an Offset to Advance in Liverpool.

Chicago, May 3.—Clear weather throughout Minnesota, the Dakotas and the Canadian Northwest, accompanied by higher temperatures, offset an advance of 1½d to 1⅝d in the price of wheat at Liverpool, and caused the market here to rule moderately steady early in the session at about Saturday's closing quotations. Commission houses were quite lively bidders at the start and opening prices were unchanged to ½c higher, compared with the previous close, July opened at $1.12@1.12⅛, but on free selling by pit traders dropped back to $1.11⅝. Weekly statistics were somewhat bullish, the world's shipments being less than for the previous week and the amount on passage showing a decrease of 1,520,000 bu.

Buying of the July delivery by bull leaders caused a rally during the final half of the day, at which time July advanced to $1.12⅝. There was another wild reaction on profit taking, but the close was firm, with July 1@1⅛@⅜c at $1.12⅜@1.12⅝.

Scattered demand by commission houses held the corn market steady early in the day despite considerable realizing by local holders, based on improved weather conditions. July opened ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher at 68⅛@68⅜c and sold later at 68⅞c.

Later on covering by shorts July advanced to 69@69⅛c. The market weakened again however, later in the session and closed barely steady, with July unchanged at 68⅝c.

Oats were firm on buying by crop damage reports from Iowa. Prices at the opening were a shade lower to ⅛c the opening July being at 49⅝c to 50c. Later the price eased off to 49⅜c.

Provisions were firm owing to moderate demand by shorts and local packers. Prices at the start were 2½c to 7½c, compared with Saturday's final figures.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Favorable Weather Does Not Make Break Expected By Bears.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 3.—The favorable weather did not tend to make the break the bears looked for. The market was very nervous throughout the session. Local stocks decreased 225,000 bu for two days. The trade was light principally on account of lack of offerings. July closed almost 1c above the opening. Minneapolis today reported 263 cars against 211, Duluth 21 against 10, Winnipeg 48 against 78. May opened at $1.24⅛; high, $1.25⅜; low $1.23¾; closed, $1.24⅞. July opened at $1.25⅛; high, $1.25⅝; low, $1.23¾; close, $1.24⅝. Cash wheat was in strong demand again today. Local and country millers were eager buyers and a sale of 5500 bu of No. 1 northern for Kansas City was made. No. 1 northern went at 3@3½c over the July option and No. 2 northern at 1@1½c. No. 1 northern spot and to arrive, $1.27⅜@1.27⅝; No. 2 northern spot $1.25¼@1.25⅝; to arrive, $1.25@1.25⅜. No. 3 wheat, $1.22⅜@1.24⅛. No. 2 yellow corn, 69¼@69⅜c. No. 3 white oats, 53⅛@53⅞c. No. 2 rye, 85¾@86c. No. 2 rye, 85¾@86¾c.

Flax—Receipts, none today, against 76. Shipments, 2. The market was purely nominal on account of no offerings. Prices were quoted 1c over the Duluth May option, $1.67¾.

Barley—Receipts, 23 cars today, against 8. Shipments, 19. The market was steady. Malting grades received the strongest inquiry. Receipts were heavy, and prices held firm. Close, 62@68c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,512 tons. The situation continued strong and active. Demand was far in excess of the supply, and prices advanced as results. Shipments over Sunday were light and prices were unchanged. Shipments, 54,935 barrels. First patents, $6.10@6.20; second patents, $5.50@5.60; first clears, $4.75@4.95; second clears, $4.10@4.35.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., May 3.—Barrett & Zimmerman report trading in the horse market fair. The receipts of horses was much the same as for the two weeks preceding. Receipts have been very liberal and of good quality. The market is well supplied with draft and wagon horses. One of the large logging companies have consigned in 150 head of our horses from their logging camps. These horses have lightness with them and they should find ready sale the coming week. Good big mules clear freely to outside buyers. With good spring weather dealers expect an active market this week.

Snow's May Crop Report Is Issued to the Trade.

Says the Winter Wheat Is Merely Holding Its Own.

"Snow's crop report May 1 says that, despite the fact that the month of April was moist and cool over practically the whole winter wheat belt, furnishing almost ideal conditions for seeding and early growth, the general condition of the crop is reported at only 82.3, against 81.8 on April 1. Failure to show material improvement, plenty of moisture and an entire absence of unseasonably forcing weather, can only be taken as evidence of low plant vitality from the drought experience of last summer and fall. East of the Missouri river top growth has improved but the plant has not developed strong stooling, and the stand is thin and poor. In Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska the plant has little better than held its own, and in the western part of the belt there is an absence of sub-soil moisture that may become a serious factor should a period of warm weather be experienced. The condition of the crop last year at this date was 90.9, and the average for seven years, 87.2. A considerable area seeded to wheat will be abandoned because of poor stand, but the full extent of this loss cannot be determined until corn planting shall have been finished.

"Spring wheat seeding is seriously delayed by cold weather, and in the northern part of the territory it will be difficult to seed the whole area intended. There will be some increase in area, but it will not reach original intentions, nor will it equal the abandonment of winter wheat acreage."

* * *

The first of May came upon North Dakota and other spring wheat territory like the first of April. While the snow drifts will delay seeding farther, they are not expected to do any harm. Where the seed was already planted, no harm has been reported in many sections, aside from poor germination. Where the ground is still too hard for planting to begin and it seems a certainty that the spring wheat crop will be quite late this year.

* * *

The visible supply of wheat decreased 1,514,000 bu., and is now 29,695,000 bu., against 31,159,000 bu. last week and 21,144,000 bu. a year ago.

The visible supply of corn decreased 1,210,000 bu., and is now 3,601,000 bu., against 4,811,000 bu., last week and 4,987,000 bu. a year ago.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Slump Followed Supreme Court's Decision Affecting Coal Roads.

Prices Recovered Later and the Market Closed Strong.

New York, May 3.—Prices of stocks moved uncertainly in the opening dealings today, as shown by the mingling of gains and losses. The southwestern railroad group showed strength, Wabash preferred and St. Louis Southwestern preferred rising substantial fractions. American Telephone & Telegraph also gained ¾. Amalgamated Copper declined ⅜.

Moderate selling of Reading and the copper stocks caused a shrinkage in values all through the list. There was very little doing in the grain carriers and they were less affected outside of Canadian Pacific and the Harriman Pacifics. Reading and Canadian Pacific yielded 1¼ and Erie second preferred, Lake Erie & Western, Amalgamated Copper and American Smelting 1.

Declines reached a point in Norfolk & Western, Atlantic Coast Line, American Woolen and North American, with fractional recoveries. The trading became almost stagnant. American Ice rose 2. Bonds were irregular.

Prices broke sharply on the receipt of the report that the government had won the decision in the commodities clause act case. Reading slumped 3 points, Union Pacific, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, 2; Southern Pacific and Canadian Pacific, 1⅝; St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred, ⅛; Delaware & Hudson, 1, and Pennsylvania, New York Central, Northern Pacific, St. Paul, Colorado & Southern first preferred, Erie and the second preferred, Great Northern preferred, Denver & Rio Grande and Brooklyn Rapid Transit, 1. A rally followed, which lifted Reading ¾ and made most of this gentleman on other deals, and tipped a couple of good chances to him, but he would not come across. This time I went after him strong and said to him: "You ask me to make money for you, but when I tell you to make a switch you do not move." I also told him about the Scott at this time and said: "Now, you protected to buy some bruins. Scott is selling for $4 a share. Sell everything and put it in. The mine is one of the best on Butte Hill, and at $4 it would be a mere $2000 for all the properties." I simply had to call this gentleman a fool and a whole lot of other things, but he studied me hard and therefore knew that I meant what I said regarding the purchase. At last he came over to my side and said: "Sell me out and buy 700 shares." Inside of five days he took a profit of nearly $6,000 on $2,800 investment. These are facts. Others have also made big money on Scott. Some did not sell, and they are the ones who will make the big clean-up in the end. This stock should sell above $30 next Christmas. We have received news from the mine today stating that they are opening up big bodies of high grade ore richer than ever.

My people make money. My judgment has been pretty fair. We stand by our stocks night and day and sometimes use our money to make good in a big way. The management is one of the best. Mr. N. F. Hugo is as good as any man in this country to push the work and get it done for as little money as possible. The big machinery will soon be at the mine. The N. P. spur reaches up to our shaft. About thirty miners are working under contract and things are simply singing at the mine. We have plenty of money and a call on $650,000 more, so if you do not think we are financed you are badly mistaken, for the Butte-Alex Scott is as well financed as any mine in the United States. Mr. Ellis Beebe, editor of the Duluth Stock News, was allowed to go through the books and made a statement in his paper. This proposition is on the square, and the success of this particular issue will give me one of the greatest followings of any broker in this country, for this is No. 2 and the greatest money maker I have ever put on.

Zenith Lead & Zinc should move along next week. It is worth more money.

Calumet & Sonora should also wake up very soon. Hallnaklava has about reached the bottom. The mine is bigger than ever and I think it is one of the best purchases on the board.

Butte-Alex Scott closed $10 bid on the Pittsburg exchange. The part paid closed 7¾, bid on our wire which reaches from Duluth to Boston. Hallaklava traded at $12.25. This is selling too low.

Calumet & Sonora offered at $13 but can easily do better. Zenith Lead & Zinc closed $2.12 bid.

Never since Mr. Thomas F. Cole came out with the announcement that North Butte should be bought by the people at $15 a share for big returns have the people had a chance to make such big money. But now comes a chance equally as great as on North Butte. We tell you that the Butte-Alex Scott mine on Butte Hill has every chance in the world of becoming another Minnie Healy mine. If my friends doubt me on this, please get busy and take a train for Butte and see this great mine, located between some of the greatest copper producers in the world, and do not forget this mine is now mining ore from some of those great copper veins that have made millions upon millions for the people who own them. This is a mine that is a mine. Did you ever ask a miner from Butte or any other person from that same city who did not says it was as good a property as any on Butte Hill? On this hill, which is the richest hill in the world, they never have missed it in 35 years of mining. You cannot sink a shaft without getting ore. The great Amalgamated Copper company's mines, the Butte Coalition, the North Butte, the Clark properties, the Butte-Alex Scott, the Butte-Hallakiava and the Tuolumne mines are all on Butte Hill, where every acre is worth over a million and in a case like the West Colusa of the Amalgamated probably could be figured $3,000,000 an acre. I tell you that the people of the Northwest who do not buy Butte-Alex Scott now when the valuation is nearly down to $5c,000, when this company owns two big properties, way, boys, you are foolish. I'll tell you a little incident that happened about four weeks ago. One of my traders, and you all know him very well, but no name will be mentioned, had a couple of hundred shares of stock which were selling at $10 while Scott was selling at $4.50. I had made money for this gentleman on other deals, and tipped a couple of good chances to him, but he would not come across. This time I went after him strong and said to him: "You ask me to make money for you, but when I tell you to make a switch you do not move." I also told him about the Scott at this time and said: "Now, you protected to buy some bruins. Scott is selling for $4 a share. Sell everything and put it in. The mine is one of the best on Butte Hill, and at $4 it would be a mere $2000 for all the properties." I simply had to call this gentleman a fool and a whole lot of other things, but he studied me hard and therefore knew that I meant what I said regarding the purchase. At last he came over to my side and said: "Sell me out and buy 700 shares." Inside of five days he took a profit of nearly $6,000 on $2,800 investment. These are facts. Others have also made big money on Scott. Some did not sell, and they are the ones who will make the big clean-up in the end. This stock should sell above $30 next Christmas. We have received news from the mine today stating that they are opening up big bodies of high grade ore richer than ever.

My people make money. My judgment has been pretty fair. We stand by our stocks night and day and sometimes use our money to make good in a big way. The management is one of the best. Mr. N. F. Hugo is as good as any man in this country to push the work and get it done for as little money as possible. The big machinery will soon be at the mine. The N. P. spur reaches up to our shaft. About thirty miners are working under contract and things are simply singing at the mine. We have plenty of money and a call on $650,000 more, so if you do not think we are financed you are badly mistaken, for the Butte-Alex Scott is as well financed as any mine in the United States. Mr. Ellis Beebe, editor of the Duluth Stock News, was allowed to go through the books and made a statement in his paper. This proposition is on the square, and the success of this particular issue will give me one of the greatest followings of any broker in this country, for this is No. 2 and the greatest money maker I have ever put on.

Zenith Lead & Zinc should move along next week. It is worth more money.

Calumet & Sonora should also wake up very soon. Hallnaklava has about reached the bottom. The mine is bigger than ever and I think it is one of the best purchases on the board.

Butte-Alex Scott closed $10 bid on the Pittsburg exchange. The part paid closed 7¾, bid on our wire which reaches from Duluth to Boston. Hallaklava traded at $12.25. This is selling too low.

Calumet & Sonora offered at $13 but can easily do better. Zenith Lead & Zinc closed $2.12 bid.

HAINS IS SURELY INSANE INSIST THE WITNESSES FOR THE MURDER DEFENDANT

They Agree as to Irrational Acts of the Captain.

Doctor Who Attended Daughter of T. Hains Gives Testimony.

Aged Mother Is on Hand Ready to Be Called.

Flushing, N. Y., May 4.—Mrs. Virginia Hains, aged mother of Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., came to Flushing today to be at hand if called to testify in her son's behalf at Capt. Hains' trial before Judge Garretson in the supreme court here for the killing of William R. Annis. It was expected that she would be called today.

Effort to show that Capt. Hains had at various times prior to the shooting of Annis acted irrationally was continued to the defense at the opening of today's session. Dr. Hugh A. Bodden, formerly connected with the observation ward of the Queens county hospital, testified that while attending the daughter of Thornton Hains, the defendant's brother, he observed the conduct of Capt. Hains at his brother's home on July 4, 1908, and considered the captain's manner and speech at that time irrational.

Thomas W. West, a negro employe of the government engineering department at Washington, testified that in 1882 he was steward on the lighthouse tender Pharos. He said Capt. Hains, when 9 years old, was on the Pharos with his parents and one day he saw him fall down a hatchway, fifteen feet to the deck below, and strike on his head. The boy was rendered unconscious for a long time, the witness said.

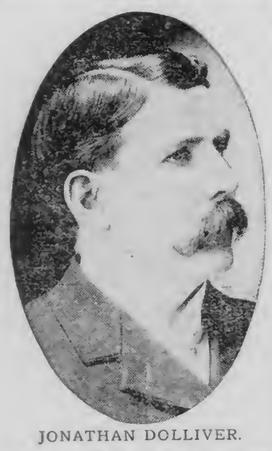
TWO MURDERERS HANG TOGETHER

Double Execution at Andover for Killing Peddler.

Andover, N. B., May 4.—Antolio Arosha and Leon Seppopil were hanged here today for the murder of Edward Green, a jewelry peddler. It was the first double execution in the history of the province. Death in both instances was instantaneous.

Green was murdered last summer. Suspicion pointed to Arosha and Seppopil, laborers on the railroad near where the murder occurred and they were arrested and convicted. Afterwards Arosha confessed.

ATTACKS THE TARIFF BILL WITH VIGOR



JONATHAN DOLLIVER.

Washington, May 4.—Senator Borah of Idaho today took the floor shortly after 11 o'clock and concluded his speech in the senate in favor of an income tax amendment to the tariff bill. Senator Dolliver of Iowa and Senator Bradley of Kentucky also spoke. Dolliver antagonized the bill in its present shape in a vigorous manner and had many interruptions by senators on the Republican side.

ASSIGNMENTS OF BISHOPS ARE MADE

BISHOP McINTYRE.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 4.—At the session of the Methodist-Episcopal bishops of the world, assignments of bishops to fall conferences of the denomination were made, among them being: Michigan, Sept. 22, Moore; West Wisconsin, Sept. 1, McDowell; Wisconsin, Sept. 8, McDowell; North Dakota, Sept. 8, McIntyre; North Swedish Sept. 16, McIntyre; Minnesota, Sept. 23, McIntyre; North Minnesota, Sept. 29, McIntyre; North German, Oct. 6, McIntyre; North Danish, Oct. 13, McIntyre; Black Hills Mission, Aug. 26 Warren.

JUDGE ASKS NO INQUIRY

Will Not Demand Investigation of His Judicial Acts.

Decides to Make No Reply to Murphy's Charges.

Kansas City, Mo., May 4.—Judge John F. Philips of the United States circuit court of this city, whose official conduct, together with that of Judge Smith McPherson of Red Oak, Iowa, was criticised in a resolution introduced in the house of representatives yesterday by Congressman Murphy of Missouri, today decided not to ask for a congressional investigation of the charges.

Philips had contemplated sending a telegram to Speaker Cannon asking for the appointment of a congressional investigating committee, but upon reflection, decided that such a procedure would be a bad precedent, as well as somewhat irregular as congress would have no jurisdiction in the premises unless impeachment proceedings were started.

Judge Philips also reconsidered his determination to make a formal statement for publication today, deciding it would be unwise to do so. He said a statement of his in relation to the Missouri rate cases would be unsatisfactory to him, as it would be construed as shifting all the responsibility upon Judge McPherson.

"That would be unmanly and uncivil-arous," said Judge Philips.

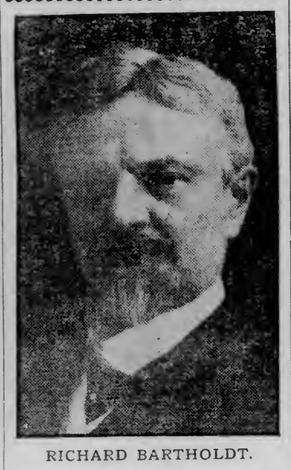
OMAHA VOTERS ARE ELECTING CITY OFFICERS.

Omaha, Neb., May 4.—With bright sunshine, the weather not too warm, and the general interest stimulated by vigorous campaigning, the promise is for a heavy vote at today's city election in Omaha. The liquor question, while not directly a issue, has figured prominently in the campaign. The Democratic ticket is headed by James C. Dahlman, widely known as the "cowboy mayor," and the Republican ticket by John P. Breen, an attorney.

RECOMMENDS McCREA TO BE CENSUS SUPERVISOR.

Washington, May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Lindbergh has recommended E. E. McCrea of Alexandria to be supervisor of the census in the Sixth congressional district. Mr. McCrea is editor of the Alexandria Post-News.

GREATEST ISSUE OF ALL IS PEACE, HE SAYS



RICHARD BARTHOLDT.

Chicago, May 4.—Representative Richard Bartholdt of Missouri was one of the principal speakers yesterday at the second national peace conference. The idea which gave birth to the congress, he said, is the greatest moral issue confronting the nations of the earth. He declared it is not his optimism but his deliberate judgment which prompts him to believe that when that idea shall once have penetrated the minds and hearts of the masses, it will sweep the world.

STEEL WORKERS DISCUSS WAGES

Meet in Detroit to Formulate New Wage Agreement.

Detroit, Mich., May 4.—Representatives of the 15,000 members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel & Tin Workers convened today to formulate a new wage agreement with the manufacturers. The annual agreement will expire June 30. The work of the convention will consume a large part of this month and then a conference committee will be sent to meet a conference committee of the manufacturers. President T. J. McArdle of the Amalgamated association said yesterday that the members of the steel and iron industries who cut wages during the recent depression were not signers of the agreement with the Amalgamated association.

JOIN WITH IDEALISTS

Hard Headed Business Men Also Urging for World Peace.

Chicago, May 4.—Discussion of the commercial and industrial aspects of universal and permanent peace was the feature of today's session of the second national peace congress in this city. Special sessions were set apart for consideration of women's work in the interests of peace, and for the part which universities and colleges have played in the great problem.

The women's session was held under the auspices of the Chicago Woman's club. Mrs. Ellen M. Henrotin of this city presided. Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead of Boston spoke on "Five Dangerous Fallacies." She said in part:

"The world surely will see during this century an international police, but rival navies and armies are doomed. These monstrous anachronisms of civilization must be turned into beneficent messengers of commerce.

"Human nature is changing, but whether it changes or not, the business of the world will not much longer tolerate two nations making a cockpit of the people's highways and dragging neutral nations into commercial loss. A comparatively few influential persons in a few influential countries can and will end international war. It is chiefly a question of statesmanship."

In explaining the attitude of business men on this subject, Marcus M. Marks, president of the National Association of Clothiers of New York, said:

"The merchants of the world have done much indirectly to bring about the improved relations between the various nations. Let them now help finance the peace movements and add unselfish, practical co-operation in a great cause.

WOMEN FAIL TO USE CARS RESERVED FOR THEIR SEX

New York, May 4.—The failure of women to use the cars reserved for them on trains in the McAdoo tunnel has caused the management to confine the reservation of such cars to one hour in the morning and one hour in the evening. The company announced that it was found that the cars were occupied by women only during the rush hours and that even then there are more women in the unreserved cars than in the reserved. The new order also gives permission to men to occupy the cars reserved for women if they desire to do so.

WOMEN SHOT DOWN FOR PLEASURE; YOUNG GIRLS CARRIED INTO HAREMS

Whole Families Burned to Death in Asiatic Turkey.

American Mission House Yard Looks Like Prison Pen.

Adana, May 4.—Adana is still lawless. More people were killed in the city Sunday. There are 30,000 dead in Adana province as a result of the massacres, and 35,000 homeless and penniless refugees are wandering in the vilayet.

Tarsus, Asiatic Turkey, Saturday, April 24, via Constantinople, May 4.—Authentic details of the atrocities committed by the fanatical Mohammedans in the villages and farms in this district are now coming into Tarsus with sickening abundance. The worst particulars of these narratives cannot be mentioned, but they set forth without doubt that at least 10,000 persons lost their lives in this province, and some estimates place the total casualties at 25,000. Villages like Osmanieh, Bazsche, Hamadieh, Kara, Kirkilan, Keoy and Kezolook, were actually wiped out.

Each of these places had populations

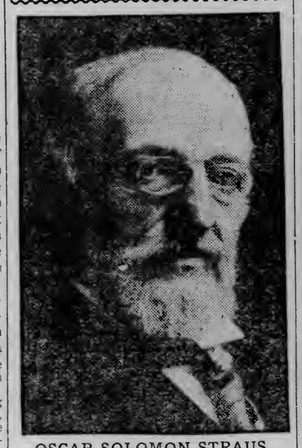
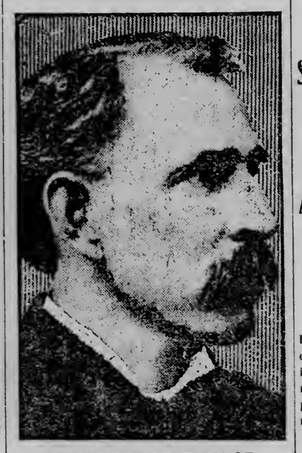
IS MADE AMBASSADOR TO TURKISH EMPIRE



OSCAR SOLOMON STRAUS.

Washington, May 3.—Oscar S. Straus, former secretary of commerce and labor, has been selected for ambassador to Turkey and W. W. Rockhill for ambassador to Russia. Mr. Rockhill was formerly assistant secretary of state and later minister to China. Ambassador John G. A. Leishmann, who has been stationed at Constantinople has been transferred to Italy.

PARDONED, REMAINS OUT OF HOME STATE



EX-GOVERNOR TAYLOR.

Williamsburg, Ky., May 4.—Charles Finley, former secretary of state, who with ex-Governor Taylor was pardoned by Governor Wilson for alleged complicity in the Goebel murder here, returned home. He was met by a large number of friends, who escorted him to the home of his father and mother, who had waited his return for nine years. Taylor is still in Indiana.

POLITICS IN A CHURCH PICNIC

Stephenson Worker Tells of Buying Cigars and Refreshments.

Madison, Wis., May 4.—Leo Kolpinski, who spent money in behalf of Senator Isaac Stephenson and also Samuel A. Cook, both candidates for the United States senatorial nomination, was heard before the senatorial investigating committee today. He told again how he spent $75 or so at a church picnic, his brother being pastor of the church. The money went for refreshments, cigars, etc. Later he was hired to work for Cook and was paid for his work.

Republican State Chairman E. A. Edmonds then took the stand. In answer to questions the witness said he managed Stephenson's campaign before the legislature from Jan. 26 to March 4. He had an understanding with Senator Stephenson that he was to be the senator's sole representative.

SCORE HURT IN A WRECK

Torpedo Signals on Track Are Exploded Too Soon.

St. Paul, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Great Northern passenger train No. 3, west bound, ran into a light engine at Delano, Minn., last night. Two day coaches were burned and twenty passengers more or less seriously injured. The injured were care for at Delano until a special train could be secured to take them to Minneapolis, where the most seriously hurt were placed in a hospital.

The wreck was caused by a freight train which became stalled. The crew placed torpedoes on the track as a signal to the coast train, but a light engine going to the relief of the stalled train exploded the torpedoes. The crew of this engine failed to set other torpedoes and the the coast flyer came along and ran into the light engine.

THROUGH TRAFFIC ROUTE, MANCHURIA TO EUROPE.

Victoria, B. C., May 4.—When the Osaka Shoshen Steamship company starts its trans-Pacific service next season with the sailing of the steamer Tacoma Maru, a through traffic connection with Manchuria and Asiatic Russia to Europe, will be effected under a Russo-Japanese traffic convention just completed. Connections will be made via Japan with the steamers running to Dalny, the terminus of the South Manchurian Railroad company and via the Japanese government railroad to Tsurruga and thence via the Russian volunteer steamship line to Vladivostok.

STEEL TRUST'S CUT IS MET BY INDEPENDENTS.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 4.—A reduction of from $16 to $10 a ton is announced by the United States Steel corporation in the selling prices of wire and wire products. The cut was at once met by the Pittsburg Steel company and other independents.

Dr. James Freeman Dies.

Saginaw, Mich., May 4.—Dr. James Freeman, for thirty years a prominent physician here, si dead. He was 81 years old and was the father of the late Alice Freeman Palmer of the Chicago university.

WOMEN ASSEMBLE FOR WHIST PLAY

And Every One of Them Has to Keep Still, Too.

Boston, Mass., May 4.—Four hundred women, from many sections of the country, assembled today in the parlors of the Hotel Somerset for the opening game of the annual congress of the Women's Whist league. They will continue through the week. Nearly every large whist club in the country was represented, while most of the smaller organizations sent delegates.

The first rounds of play were begun at 10 a. m., in open progressive pairs, for the Washington, Cavendish and Boston trophies and the Philadelphia cup and for women playing to qualify for the Brooklyn trophy contest. A special section of the parlors was reserved for play in mixed pairs, where men players were allowed to compete.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON A RAKE, HE DECLARES

SENATOR M. N. JOHNSON.

Washington, May 4.—War is to be made by Senator M. N. Johnson of North Dakota on the effort to erect a statue of Alexander Hamilton on the public square in this city, and has introduced a resolution to repeal a resolution providing for such a memorial. "I want that man forgotten as soon as possible," says Senator Johnson. "I do not want an effigy of Hamilton put up as a model for any young man. Alexander Hamilton was one of the most contemptible rakes we have ever known in this country."

CONGRESSIONAL STUMP BLOWING

Uncle Sam: "Say Mister, Why Don't You Use This Kind?"

PERSIAN SHAH ACCEPTS REFORMS INSISTED UPON BY GREAT BRITAIN

St. Petersburg, May 4.—Special dispatches received here from Teheran say that the shah of Persia has accepted the project for reforms advanced by Great Britain and Russia. The two powers have made arrangements to grant a loan to Persia as soon as the date of the elections shall have been decided on.

Russian troops have entered Persia with the consent of Great Britain and relieved the beleaguered city of Tabriz, which for months had been held by Persian Nationalists, who are demanding the establishment of constitutional government.

The Tabriz section has been torn by disorder for many weeks, and all Persia is threatened with a revolution such as has just reformed Turkey.

On the day that the Russians reached Tabriz the shah's troops and those of the Nationalists clashed only a few miles from Teheran, the capital, and the Imperialists were signally defeated. The Nationalists are on the point of attacking the capital. The shah has summarily dismissed his minister of foreign affairs, Said ed Dowleh, for his constitutional leanings.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 4.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Appleton, Wis., says: Charles W. Treat, vice president of Lawrence college and instructor in physics, was last night hung in effigy on a trolley wire on the city's main thoroughfare, in front of the college campus. The effigy was labeled "Abdul Hamid Treat."

Vice President Treat has expelled four of the most popular fraternity men in the college during the two weeks in which President Plantz has been out of the city. Two of those expelled are members of the glee club and the entire thirty-six members of this organization now threaten to leave the college.

The case will be appealed to President Plantz. Many of the students threaten to leave college unless Vice President Treat is relieved.

Citizens' Staff Meeting.

The annual meeting of the citizens' staff will be held Thursday evening in the rooms of the Commercial club. Election of officers will be held and arrangements for Memorial day made at the meeting.

Several hundred of the citizens of Duluth are members of the citizens' staff, and it is expected that a large attendance will be present. It is planned to make the observance of Memorial day the most pretentious ever held in Duluth, and it is desired to have a full attendance of members.

FIRE WAS STUBBORN

Early Morning Blaze at Crookston Does Considerable Damage.

Three Women, Residing Over Store, Escaped in Scanty Attire.

Crookston, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—This morning fire broke out in C. C. Hoch's saloon, and completely gutted the building, entailing a loss on the stock of about $4,000, covered by $3,200 insurance. The second story was not occupied.

Brandow's store, adjoining, was damaged by fire and water, as was Morrison's saloon on the other side. The fire was one of the the most stubborn the department ever had to combat.

Three women residing over Brandow's store escaped in scanty attire. Had there been any wind the conflagration would have been one of the worst in the history of Crookston. A. F. Rausch, owner of building, occupied by Hoch, sustained a $4,000 loss, with only $1,500 insurance.

SALOON LICENSE IS TURNED DOWN

Was Too Near School—County Examiner Is Appointed.

Hugh McCoy appeared before the county commissioners at their regular monthly meeting held this morning at the courthouse, and asked that a license be granted him to run a saloon near the town of Spina. In view of the fact that the site of the saloon was within 500 feet of the schoolhouse, it was not thought advisable to grant the license, and his request was turned down. There are two other saloons in this district that are located quite near to the school buildings, and the board will soon investigate them.

Andrew J. Wasgott has been appointed county examiner. He will examine the books and accounts of all villages, towns and charitable institutions receiving help from the county. Mr. Wasgott was former deputy county treasurer, and is at the present time deputy county auditor.

Bids were received for the construction of a bridge over Mud Hen creek. They were not acted on, however.

NEGLECT OF DISEASE

Causes More Deaths Annually Than All Other Causes Combined.

Recent statistics show that more deaths are caused every year by sheer ignorance than by the failure of medical science to find a cure. There are very few diseases nowadays that some cure has not been found to overcome if applied intelligently and in time, but the trouble is that most people do not consult a doctor about their "little ailments" until they have passed far beyond the stage of being inconsequential and have become, if not hopeless, at least sufficient to impair the health of the patient permanently. Men who are suffering from any form of disease should not delay an instant in laying the case before the PROGRESSIVE MEDICAL EXPERTS. Thousands of such cases are laid before them every year and none leave their offices without experiencing relief.

They specialize in this line and have devoted their whole lives to obtaining every possible scrap of knowledge on the subject which might in any way further their cures. A cure is guaranteed if they assume the case. It will be worth your while to come up to their offices at No. 1 West Superior street, Duluth, and lay your case before them, even though other doctors have pronounced it hopeless. A large number of the cases they treated during the past year were pronounced hopeless by others before coming to them and were completely cured. If you wish to see the way in which the fame of these scientists have spread beyond the confines not only of the city in which their offices are, but of the state, you should call at the institute and see the addresses of some of the patients who have come, in some cases hundreds of miles to leave the PROGRESSIVE MEDICAL INSTITUTE CURED. You will find cases of men from Bergland, Mich., Cloquet, Calumet, Mich., Ballard, Wash.; Chicago, Remboldt and Aurelia, Iowa, with tumors and festering cancers, gallstones and ulcered legs, or crippled from rheumatism. These are people who bear the mark of pain and suffering of long standing, people who have sought a cure for years without success, to find it at last in the office on West Superior street, which has taken in so many hopeless wrecks of humanity to turn them out virile and strong once more, able to play their part in the grim game of life and to fulfill their duties as citizens of this great Republic.

Nothing has a more depressing effect on the system than the slow insidious progress of some deadly disease. It saps the vitality from a man and robs life of all its brightness. Such are the men who are continually finding new health and brightened prospects at the hands of the Specialists. We cannot sufficiently impress upon you the need of haste in dealing with these diseases, delay even for a few weeks may increase the time required for a cure, to say nothing of the additional expense, pain and suffering.

If you detect the slightest signs of any form of disease in yourself, do not delay an instant, but come at once to the PROGRESSIVE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, NO. 1 WEST SUPERIOR STREET, DULUTH, and have your case examined. The cure will be guaranteed.

SUPERIOR NEWS

FINANCES TO BE PROBED

Citizens' Committee to Investigate the County's Affairs.

No Scandal Expected, But Mismanagement Is Charged.

The financial affairs of Douglas county will be probed by an investigating committee appointed last evening at a mass meeting of taxpayers at the Commercial clubrooms. The committee comprised L. E. Waterman, D. R. Long and O. E. Dunn. An attorney will be retained by the committee.

Although it is not expected that any scandal will be unearthed, it is thought that there are a number of irregularities in the management of the county's funds. Besides, the taxpayers feel that certain unnecessary items of expense might be eliminated.

PRINCIPAL LYNCH HAS RESIGNED

Will Leave to Take Position at Cedar Falls, Iowa.

S. A. Lynch, for the past five years principal of the Blaine high school, will resign from his position in the superior schools, to accept a position in the English department of a high school at Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Mr. Lynch has not yet handed in his resignation to the board of education, but today gave out the statement that he would do so at the next meeting of the board. He has a large following of friends in Superior.

EBERHART'S FORMAL BOW IN GUBERNATORIAL WAY.

St. aul, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lieutenant Governor A. O. Eberhart, Senator S. D. Works, Senator E. H. Canfield, Senator F. E. Putnam, and others prominent politically in the Second congressional district were guests at a banquet in Mankato, given by the Commercial club of that city last night. Though politics were barred, and any mention of possibilities severely frowned down, according to the promoters, the dinner was generally regarded about the capitol today as Mr. Eberhart's formal bow to the voting public in a gubernatorial way.

HOME WAS NO PLACE FOR HIM

Home must have been a happy place for George Marsh, if half the facts he alleges in his answer to his wife's divorce complaint are true.

Marsh was married on Dec. 31, 1891, and during the past winter his wife brought suit for divorce, alleging drunkenness and cruel treatment. Marsh comes back with an answer, in which he claims that his wife was in the habit of throwing knives, stove lids, dishes, and bricks at him; that she was an habitual drunkard, and had been arrested for drunkenness. He claims that she was in jail for a week on suspicion of insanity from over indulgence in liquor. He asks the divorce and the custody of their young son, Stanley.

WHEN LOVE WAS A SCHEMER.

By Jennie M. Chenery.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

"It's a great disappointment to us all, Louise, but I suppose arguing is useless. A headstrong girl will take no advice."

"Now mother, that's very unkind, I'm sure that one ought not to be scolded for listening to the dictates of conscience," responded a laughing voice.

"Conscience—fiddlesticks!" retorted Mrs. Allison sharply. "It's only because your head is filled with these newfangled notions about the independence of woman and the tyranny of man, and such rubbish. Two or three years ago you were glad enough to consider yourself engaged to the most likely young fellow in the county," and she gave a disdainful sniff.

"Well, what could be expected of a girl of 17?" demanded Louise, a little defiantly. "Since then a college education has altered my views of life; marriage does not seem so inevitable and necessary as it did in those days. Why should a woman surrender her liberty and her ambitions to become the victim of a man's caprice, perhaps ill temper, when out in the busy world there are countless opportunities for her to carve her own way in life?"

"When I was young," Mrs. Allison retorted with scornful dignity, "girls married for love, and were proud and happy to help along all they could to make home comfortable. They didn't have time to hunt for tyranny. Your father and I never had a chance to get an education and I've always said that you should have every advantage we could afford, but if a college course has only given you these foolish ideas I'm sorry you ever went away from home."

"I think you are very unjust, mother," cried the girl indignantly, "when I only desire to make the most of my life. Before I went to college I did consider myself bound by the engagement which you and Mrs. Whitney planned when Neil and I were children, but now it is very different. When his lordship came home this summer—a full-fledged lawyer—he conceitedly imagined that I would immediately fall into his arms, and he is not inclined to accept his dismissal at all gracefully, but I have plainly told him that love and marriage have no interest for me."

"Neil is not conceited," responded Mrs. Allison, "but I suppose he never dreamed of doubting your constancy. 'I believe Neil is coming now' she continued anxiously. "Do treat him with common politeness, anyway; he deserves that much," and she hurriedly retreated.

He was a good-looking fellow, with earnest, dark brown eyes and a lovable mouth, but Louise was proof against such superficial attractions and she greeted him with studied dignity.

"I've come for my final answer, Louise, dear," he said gently. "Forgive me if I seem abrupt, but—well, I couldn't stand the suspense."

"You seem to ignore the fact that I gave you my decision several days ago," rejoined the girl stiffly. "You are very unreasonable to refuse to take a denial," and she frowned a little.

"Perhaps I am," he assented, with passionate eagerness, "but Louise I can't give up so easily. You must surely understand how I feel. For years I have dreamed of you and of the happy life before us, and now—you crush my hopes as coolly as you would destroy a cobweb."

"I am so sorry that you think me merely heartless," she answered slowly. "I only claim the right—which surely is every woman's heritage—to live my life in my own way. Why should I surrender my freedom, all the joys of an independent career, for the lower level of a mere housekeeper? There are plenty of girls without ambition; choose one of them."

She spoke decisively, but there was a strange pain at her heart as Neil arose and looked down upon her with a grave sad face.

"If you feel like that about marriage, Louise," he said quietly, "then you are right in saying that you are ignorant of the meaning of love."

He hesitated a moment, then added: "I almost forgot that Grace wants you to come over this afternoon and stay to tea. My friend, Bob Gordon, came down this morning."

Louise meditated a moment, then shook her head. "I'm awfully sorry, Neil, but I can't go. Father and mother are going to the city, the girl is out for a holiday, and I must stay at home. Besides, I am preparing a paper for 'The Universe' and must finish it today."

As the young man walked home, plunged in gloomy reflections, a sudden idea flashed through his mind and he hurried homeward with feverish haste, pondering excitedly on the wild plan which had taken root in his imagination.

The paper for "The Universe" did not progress very rapidly that afternoon. Louise was tired and nervous and the unwonted stillness of the house cast a strange sense of depression over her spirits. She remembered that tramps were common in the neighborhood, and she was conscious of a thrill of fear.

After several futile efforts to compose her mind and the essay Louise was forced to own herself vanquished by the uncanny silence of the house, and, with a sigh of impatience, she abandoned her work and ingloriously fled to the more pleasant vantage ground of the front porch.

When she re-entered the kitchen a gay little song was on her lips, but it died away in a cry of terror as she caught sight of an alarming apparition standing in the center of the room. Her senses reeled as she gazed at him—a hideous, dirty tramp, with an insolent smile on his ugly face.

"I say," he growled, "stop that noise! And see here, the old man has got a pot o' money here somewhere, and you've got to get it this minute. Hurry up now!"

"Money," she whispered hoarsely, "there is none. I—I—" then, as he advanced fiercely, she gave a frantic scream that echoed wildly through the silent house.

For a long, terrible moment she seemed floating in the dark mist of a frightful nightmare, then, as from a great distance, she heard the sound of rushing feet and like a whirlwind Neil burst into the room. The tramp turned upon him, revolver in hand, but the young man, heeding it not, sprang upon his evil looking opponent and dragged him, struggling and cursing, out upon the porch, and Louise knew no more.

When she opened her eyes she was lying on the couch in the sitting room with Neil standing beside her, his handsome face grave with anxiety, and—could she have read it aright—contrition.

"Where is—he?" she murmured, shuddering.

"I fear that he has escaped," answered the young man, coloring slightly. "I saw you fall and forgot all about him."

For a long time she lay there, thinking vaguely how the erstwhile dreary room was glorified by her companion's presence—but he at last broke the silence.

"You do not need me now," said he, a little wistfully. Perhaps I had better go."

Then she raised her eyes to his while a lovely flush flamed into her pale face.

"No," she whispered softly, "you need not go unless you wish, Neil, dear. I'm tired of being independent."

Bob Gordon was best man at the wedding. Perhaps if the bride had known that he was the star of the college dramatic club with a special talent for tramp and burglar parts there might have been no wedding—but, then, she was happy in her ignorance, and Cupid reigned supreme.

This Rebuilding Sale Has Aroused Enthusiasm in Garment Buying

Rebuilding operations and the moving of stocks makes a re-adjustment of garment lines practically urgent to us just now—and our customers get the benefit of it. It's merely another evidence of the Gidding system of letting the garments out the minute we see the stocks need it. If that happens to be a mid-season time, when women are eager to get them, all the better!

A. G. OSMAN DISGUSTED

Will Not Bid Again for Fourth Street Work.

Claims He Should Have Been Awarded Paving Contract.

A. G. Osman, one of the bidders on the Fourth street paving contract, is quoted as having said that he will not bid on the job again. Mr. Osman is very much put out over the fact that he did not get the contract. His bid on its face was the lowest, and he maintains that the work should have been awarded him. The council last night ordered the board of public works to readvertise for bids.

It is said that it would be irregular if Mr. Osman were awarded the contract because of the wording of specifications covering it. These specifications were understood differently by different contractors, and the city authorities say the only way in which every one can be expected to receive a square deal, and in which the contract can be legally awarded, will be to readvertise for bids.

Osman and P. McDonnell were the only ones to bid on the entire work, according to specifications. Osman's bid was the lowest, but if he had received the contract it would have meant a larger assessment against owners of abutting property than if Mr. McDonnell had received it. This seeming ambiguous statement is explained by the fact that Mr. McDonnell's bid it was provided that the street railway company should pay about $3,000 more than was provided for in the Osman bid. This being the situation, the taxpayers would naturally have preferred to see Mr. McDonnell receive the contract, while the street car people would have preferred to have Mr. Osman's figures accepted.

Under the readvertisement it is understood that two or three other contractors will make a bid for the work.

BULLISH SHOWING IS MADE BY JULY WHEAT.

Chicago, May 4.—July wheat on the board of trade today made a sensationally bullish showing, advancing from $1.12, the low point of the day, to $1.16, at which the market closed. This marked a net advance of 3⅝@3¾c. May closed at $1.28. The market has been advancing steadily for the last week, following the spectacular decline which set afloat reports that James A. Patten had dropped out of the market. Today's high prices were but 1¼c under the best price of the bull campaign for May and only 2⅞c below the July record.

ROCKHILL SATISFACTORY TO RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT.

St. Petersburg, May 4.—The appointment of W. W. Rockhill to succeed John W. Riddle as ambassador to Russia is thoroughly satisfactory to the foreign office. The Russian government was sounded several days ago through Baron Rosen, ambassador in Washington, regarding the acceptability of Mr. Rockhill, and lost no time in responding that he is persona grata.

Riddle, who is retiring to private life, has been approached to accept the chair of international law at a prominent American university and has this proposal under consideration.

FOUR PERSONS DROWNED: EIGHT BARGES ARE LOST.

THREE DUCKED IN THE HARBOR

Minister and Two Companions Given a Chilly Bath.

Their boat swamped in several feet of water, a party of three, including Rev. E. F. Stidd, pastor of the Merritt Memorial M. E. church, Oneota, Leslie E. Gundy of 110 South Forty-sixth avenue west and a boy named Lacey, were given a cold bath today at noon in St. Louis bay.

They were picked up at an opportune time by Einer Johnson and Jean Gauthier in a boat and taken to shore. The accident occurred quite a little distance from shore in a slip in the vicinty of the Red Cliff Lumber company's mill. The party were out for a pleasure ride and attempted to change places in the small rowboat. The water poured in and swamped the small craft.

The water was about six feet deep at that place, and had not the party been promptly picked up by the passing boat the accident might have been much more serious than it proved to be.

WILL ORGANIZE EAST END LODGE

West Duluth Society Has Too Many Uptown Members.

The West Duluth and West end lodges of the Modern Brotherhood of America will jointly organize a downtown branch of the order some time in June.

A special meeting will be held some time next month, at which seven delegates from each lodge will be present. It is planned to have this meeting at the same time as the annual banquet of the M. B. A., which is to come off at the St. Louis hotel.

The need for a downtown lodge has been felt more and more as the order grows. A number of members now attend the meetings of the lodge at West end live in the East end.

T. B. Handy, supreme president of the order, Des Moines, Iowa, and E. L. Balez, supreme secretary, Mason City, Iowa, will both attend the organization of the new order.

TWO LODGES WILL INSTALL

The Royal League and Good Templars Plan Ceremonies.

The West Duluth fraternal orders, the Royal League and the Good Templars, will hold elaborate installation ceremonies tonight.

The Royal Leaguers, who were erroneously reported in the morning paper as having installed their officers last night, will meet tonight at the Commercial clubrooms. The Good Templars will gather for their exercises at Victor hall, on Central avenue.

The ceremonies attendant on the installation of the officers of West Duluth council, No. 225, Royal League, are to be something out of the ordinary. Mayor Haven and City Comptroller W. S. McCormick will speak. Others who will talk are Andrew Nelson, H. H. Stone, state organizer, and J. A. Wheaton, past vice archon of the grand lodge.

Besides installing their officers, Morning Star lodge of the I. O. G. T. will draft resolutions of thanks to be forwarded to Mayor Haven in commending him for his action on the Meier saloon license. The new officers to be installed are: Chief templar, Gustav Hedman; past chief, Conrad Wicklund; vice chief templar, N. G. Nelson; marshal, Peter Docken; chaplain, Anton Wicklund; lodge deputy, Alfred Erickson; secretary, Emil Soderberg; treasurer, Adolph Anderson, and financial secretary, John Wickstrom.

WILL BLOW IN BLAST FURNACE

Repairs Are Completed and Work Will Be Resumed.

The blast furnace of the Zenith Furnace company will be blown in tomorrow, having been filled up today. Repairs have been made during the past two months.

It is probable that the first cast will be made tomorrow, and from then on upward of 250 tons of iron will be cast every day. The coke ovens have been running steadily and a large amount of coke has accumulated to be used in the furnace.

AFTER 500 MEMBERS.

Samaritans Will Initiate Big Class During Coming Summer.

The West Duluth lodge of Modern Samaritans has caught the boosting fever and has joined with the downtown council in an effort to get up a class of 500 members to be initiated by the supreme council some time in June.

At a meeting of the West Duluth council last night plans for conducting the campaign were discussed. To work up enthusiasm, a meeting has been called for Monday night in which the Alpha council, the downtown lodge has been invited to participate. It is expected that a number of prominent members will speak and a musical program will be carried out.

At last night's meeting two prominent workers in the Alpha council were present, Miss Irwin and Mrs. Purdy, and both expressed themselves as being heartily in favor of the "boosting campaign."

VISITS OLD HOME.

Father of Adelaide Thurston in West Duluth on Business Trip.

Harry Sawyer, for many years a resident of West Duluth, but now of Murray Hill, N. J., a suburb of New York city, returned to Duluth today after a year's absence and is renewing acquaintances with old friends.

Mr. Sawyer is the father of Adelaide Thurston, the well known Duluth actress and while in Duluth resided at Raleigh street and Fifty-ninth avenue west. Mr. Sawyer came back to look after some of his business interests here. He will return in a few weeks.

Will Be Operated On.

H. H. Stone, state organizer for the Royal League, with headquarters in Duluth, will undergo an operation Saturday at Dr. Graham's hospital at West Duluth. He had a severe attack of appendicitis about four weeks ago at Moorhead while out in the interests of the fraternity.

West Duluth Briefs.

Miss Minnie Sawyer, 3902 West Third street, who has been confined to St. Mary's hospital for the past few weeks, was today reported to be recovering.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Thomshack of Grand Marais, Mich., who have been stopping a few days with friends in West Duluth, have gone to Knife River, where Mr. Thomshack has taken employment with the Alger-Smith company.

Miss Rhea Storms of North Fifty-fifth avenue west, will give a dancing party Wednesday evening, May 12, at Flaaten's hall. Invitations were issued today.

The meetin gof the Irving alumni, which was to have been held this evening, has again been postponed until Thursday night. Arrangements for the annual banquet will be made and a new constitution will be discussed.

Frank Connors, formerly of West Duluth, but now of St. Paul, was in West Duluth this morning, after being absent for about eight months. He returned to St. Paul this afternoon.

The Knights of Pythias, West Duluth lodge, will met in regular session Thursday evening at the lodge headquarters at the West Duluth Commercial club.

Will open boarding house within few days. Intending boarders please call evenings. Mrs. Olson, 516 North Fifty-ninth avenue west.

There will be a meeting tonight of the board of trustees of the Merritt Memorial M. E. church at the church, Oneota.

Ernest Bleau, Grand avenue and Fifty-seventh avenue west, is able to be up and around again after an illness of about two weeks.

The Immanuel Young People's society will be entertained Thursday evening at the home of Miss Igna Clementsen.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Lanners are expected back from St. Paul tomorrow, where they have been on their wedding trip.

The women of St. James Catholic church will entertain tonight at a card social and musical program at Gilley's hall.

Frank Kreidler is home on a short vacation from his school, the Carnegie Technical college, at Pittsburg, Pa. He is prominently identified with athletic affairs at the Carnegie "Tech." He will visit with his parents in West Duluth before returning.

The Mens' club of Our Savior's Norwegian-Lutheran church met last evening at the church. A literary program was carried out.

The Willing Workers, an organization of small children of the Merritt Memorial M. E. church, met last night at the regular monthly session. Refreshments were served and a social hour was spent.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Our Savior's Norwegian-Lutheran church will meet Thursday afternoon at the church reading room. Mrs. Oscar Anderson and Mrs. Baigrod will be in charge of the gathering.

The young women of the Merritt Memorial M. E. church met last evening at the church parsonage. About twenty were present.

Watch repairing. Hurst, W. Duluth.

RAILROAD NEWS

EIGHTEEN CREWS ARE AT WORK

Ore Shipments Over the Missabe Road Fairly Heavy.

The Missabe road at the present time has eighteen crews working and the Iron Range about the same number of trainmen. It is not believed that any additional crews will be put on during the present week.

There is an increase of ore coming from the Hibbing and Virginia districts, and it is reported at the office of the Missabe road at Duluth that there is a fairly heavy shipment for this time of the year, with the prospects that the shipments will show a heavy increase next week.

More than 300 of the new patent steel ore cars of the Duluth & Iron Range railway are at the shops at Two Harbors, at the present time. It is expected that a large consignment of the cars will be received the coming week. As soon as the cars are received at the shops they are set up and placed in commission. The officials of the company expect that at least 600 of the new cars will be in commission within the next two weeks.

LAYING STEEL FOR THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

Winnipeg, Man., May 4.—A gang of 200 men started laying steel today on the Grand Trunk Pacific railway from Superior Junction, 140 miles east of Winnipeg. The work will be completed by July and after the ballasting is finished, trains may be run from here to Fort William over the new road.

Guilty of Wife Murder.

Cambridge, Mass., May 4.—C. S. Jordan was found guilty in the first degree on a charge of murdering his wife, by a jury in the Middlesex superior court today.

WRONG, SAYS McPHERSON

Judge Declares Murphy, Who Makes Charges, Is Misinformed.

Relates His Part In the Railway Rate Cases.

St. Louis, Mo., May 4.—Judge Smith McPherson issued a long statement here today, reviewing his work in the Missouri rate cases, and defending the course taken by him in those trials. He asserted his willingness to undergo a congressional investigation, "if any one member of congress aside from Mr. Murphy thinks there should be such a committee," and added that the Missouri congressman had done Judge Phillips a "great wrong," as the latter had "practically nothing whatever to do with these Missouri rate cases." The statement follows:

"I know nothing about Congressman Murphy of Missouri—never heard of him until late last night—know nothing of his motives or purposes—and they are of no concern to me except that, of course, I do not like to be held up in an unfavorable light in public. His many 'whereases' preceding his resolution are notable principally on account of the mistakes, both as to what he says and what he either omits or conceals. He, or someone for him, ought to have gone to the courthouse in Kansas City and obtained a memorandum of the orders, which are on record.

Doubted By Folk.

"The legislature of Missouri in the winter of 1905 passed a maximum freight law, pertaining to certain commodities. Governor Folk, in signing that measure, sent a message to the legislature to the effect that he signed, with reluctance, and practically said that he doubted its validity.

"About the time that the statute took effect—in June, 1905—when I was holding court at Kansas City, the application was made to me for a restraining order against the enforcement of that law. I set the case down for hearing within one or two weeks, with a temporary writ of injunction. Judge Phillips and I sat together in that matter and granted the temporary injunction.

"I filed no opinion, but I think Judge Phillips did—of this I am not certain. I had nothing more to do with that case, directly or indirectly, for about one year. Late in 1906, or early in 1907, the railway companies filed a motion to have the cases tried in open court. Attorney General Hadley and his assistants filed a motion to refer the case to a master in chancery.

"Judge Phillips overruled the railways and sustained the attorney general, and referred the case to Mr. Scofield of Hannibal, Mo., who, as I understand it, was selected by agreement of both parties. My understanding is that Mr. Scofield is a gentleman of the highest character and attainments in his profession.

Should Be Repealed.

"In the winter of 1907 Attorney General Hadley, in an official report either to the governor or to the legislature (I have forgotten which), said that, in view of the evidence already taken before the master in chancery, the statute of 1905 should be repealed and a substitute enacted therefor. The legislature did this. In June, 1907, when I was holding court in Kansas City, supplemental bills in equity of these eighteen cases brought two years before were filed and I granted restraining orders, restraining the state officers from proceedings in the state courts.

"In the application for a temporary injunction the matter was most elaborately and thoroughly argued, and after argument both the attorney general and his assistants and the railroad attorneys agreed that a temporary injunction might be issued as to the freight rate statute.

Insists On a Test.

"I made an order denying the order as to the 2-cent passenger fare, insisting that the matter have a practical test for some months. Thus the matter stood until about June, 1908, when the attorney general and his assistants and the railway attorney appeared before me at Kansas City, and by written agreement, filed an application agreeing that Judge Phillips' order sending the case to the master in chancery should be vacated and set aside, that the master should report the evidence as already taken, that the balance of testimony should be taken in open court in Kansas City, commencing Oct. 5, 1908.

"On that date I went to Kansas City, pursuant to agreement and by mutual agreement the cases were put off until the Monday following election, namely Nov. 9. In the meantime I had correspondence with Judge Phillips and with Judge Sanborn, senior circuit judge of this circuit, as to the trial of the cases and who should try them. Still later on I had a personal conference in St. Louis with the four circuit judges as to who should try the cases and whether singly or associated with some other district judge, or one or more of the circuit judges.

"What that correspondence and the discussion in the conference of the four circuit judges was I must, in due respect to the others, decline to say, but the result of it all was that I was to proceed with the hearing of the cases, giving many weeks to the most arduous work. After the cases were submitted, I requested that the two experts for the state and the two for the railways should remain with me for consultation, which they did for about ten days, resulting in an agreement by the four experts. These four reduced their agreement to writing, all signing, and this is on file with the clerk of the circuit court at Kansas City.

The Fishing Trip.

"There has never been an order made by way of injunction as to the freight rate statute except as by agreement of attorneys on both sides, except, of course, the final decree made March 8, 1909, by me. I denied the temporary injunction as to passenger rates, and there has been an injunction as to them until the final decree.

"As to the fishing trip of three years ago this winter I have but little to say. I was invited by Gardner Lathrop, now general solicitor of the Santa Fe system, a warm friend, to go with the party to Tampico, Mex., and was gone two or three weeks as his guest. I was then glad to be his guest, as I always am. Everybody that knows him knows that he is a perfect gentleman and a man of the highest character, as was his father, once president of the state university.

"In my opinion filed March 8, 1908, I said in substance that the fixing of rates was a legislative act, subject only to be reviewed by the courts as to whether such rates were sufficiently remunerative. I used language which we lawyers call dictum. I said that the courts had no powers to fix rates, but that if I did have the power, I would fix the passenger rates at 2½ cents per mile for the stronger roads and 3 cents for the weaker roads.

"My understanding is that Governor Hadley was most delighted with that dictum, but I may be mistaken in that, and you will have to confer with Governor Hadley as to that. At all events, the railroads, through some of their counsel, were indignant at this expression and recently made a motion before me to eliminate that expression, which last week I denied in a written opinion now on file with the clerk of the court of Kansas City.

REGULAR AIRSHIP LINE WILL BE ESTABLISHED.

Stuttgart, May 4.—In a meeting today of the Wurttemburg Aerial Naval league a representative of Count Zeppelin declared that the company formed in connection with the Zeppelin Airship Construction company, has undertaken to establish a regular line of airships from Lucerne or Friedrichshafen to North Germany, via Frankfort-on-the-Main. The actual route to be adopted will depend on the offers of landing places made by cities on the line. It is hoped to open the line for traffic next year.

FOUR ARE ARRESTED ON OLD SMUGGLING CHARGE.

New York, May 4.—Four arrests were made today by United States Marshal Henkel on charges arising out of the seizure of smuggled trunks at this port a year ago. The persons taken into custody were George C. White, dealer in dressmakers' supplies, Forty-fifth street and Fifth avenue; Lorne B. Walker, a former employe of the customs department; W. H. Kilgamon, former salesman for George A. Crowley, West Thirty-fourth street, and Elizabith Kilgamon, his wife. They were arraigned before Justice Hough in the United States circuit court.

ON THE IRON RANGES

TWO STRUCK BY FROZEN GROUND

Nashwauk, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two Italian laborers, whose names could not be learned, were seriously injured while working at the Hawkins mine here yesterday.

The two men were at work near the steam shovel, when the frozen earth above caved in and a large piece rolled on top of them. One received a broken leg and the other met with internal injuries.

BOATS LOADING AT TWO HARBORS

Night Force Working at Ore Docks—More Switching Crews.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The big fleet of ice bound ore boats made their appearance here yesterday and were passing all day. About a dozen of them stopped here for loading and there has been a big rush in ore business in consequence. A night force was put to work at the ore docks, more switch crews put on, and the number of ore hauling crews increased to twelve. On account of the increasing shipments from the Ely district a short run was put on at Ely today to handle the ore between there and Tower Junction. A work train and extra gang has been put on to lay some tracks to the Kellogg mine near Biwabik. The hauling of gravel to the Knox mine tracks at Mesaba will commence later.

The night telegraph offices at Biwabik and the ore docks, and the day office at Fayal have been opened for the season. There are now ten switch engines and crews employed in the yards here.

NO HIBBING COURT.

Cases Not Heard at This Time Will Go Over Until July.

Virginia, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Hughes has announced that there will be no adjournment of the present term to Hibbing. He said that the other judges are so engaged that one of them will be unable to come to the range at this time, and Judge Hughes was interested in a number of cases before his elevation to the bench, so those cases will have to go over to the July term. A number of the Hibbing cases will probably be heard here, if the attorneys so desire.

The civil calendar here was disposed of yesterday and the criminal cases were taken up. Frank Montalto, charged with conducting a house of ill fame in the town of Clinton, was the first to go on trial. He will be followed by Conti Generosa, who is charged with an indecent assault on Selma Timms in the Stevenson location near Hibbing. Those two are the only criminal cases to be tried.

Judge Hughes granted a divorce yesterday to Cylinda Sandberg from her husband, Andrew W. Sandberg. She is 24 years old and he is 24. They were married in Minneapolis Aug. 4, 1903. She told a story of cruelty dating from three months after their marriage, and said that her husband had been drunk almost continually. They separated about Feb. 1, and Sandberg is now at Hibbing. There are no children.

FOUR COUPLES WEDDED.

Monday Was Busy Day With Father Bilban of Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Father Bilban of the Holy Family church has his hands full yesterday morning in uniting in marriage eight well-known Austrians.

Almost the whole Austrian colony was present at the respective ceremonies, which followed one another in the church.

Those who were married were John Terak and Terasia Skomdar, Martin Kore and Mary Stoole, John Knavs and Francisco Kral of Gilbert, Frank Garvas and Terasia Klemenezich, the former of whom lives on a homestead about ten miles from here. After the ceremonies the friends of the married couples went to one of their homes where there was feasting and drinking all day yesterday.

EVELETH SCHOOL BOARD HAS ENGAGED TEACHERS.

Eveleth, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The school board has decided on the new teachers for the coming fall term as follows: Bertha Dahling, Stillwater, Minn.; Lola Farr, Lake Benton, Minn.; Regina Manley, Henderson, Minn.; May Christensen, Le Seuer, Minn.; Margaret Kaus, Warren, Minn.; Ada Moulton, Morris, Minn; Hulda Johnson, Warren, Minn.; Mollie Donovan, Eveleth, Minn.; Grace Touhey, Aurora, Minn.; Alice Caesar, New Lisbon, Wis.; Blanche Murray, Tracy, Minn.; Koyla Ketchum, Herman, Minn.

A teachers' meeting will be held the latter part of the week, when all the old teachers will have the privilege of signing their contracts for the coming year. Most of them will be here next year from present indications.

FATHER HOGAN TRANSFERRED

Virginia, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. Father James Hogan, pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes' church, surprised his congregation Sunday morning by announcing that he had been notified of his transfer to East Grand Forks.

He said the transfer was made at his own request, as he desires a change. The announcement was regretfully received by the congregation, as the relations between pastor and flock have always been most pleasant. Father Hogan has been in Virginia four years and has secured excellent results. The church, which had been erected a short time before his coming, has been cleared of debt, and money is now being raised for a parochial school. Father Hogan was connected with the cathedral at Duluth before coming here.

East Grand Forks, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge T. A. Sullivan, who was a member of the committee who visited Bishop McGolrick of Duluth relative to the appointment of a resident priest for the Sacred Heart church parish of this city, has received notice that Rev. Father James Hogan has been appointed to take charge of the work here.

The vacancy caused by the death of the late Rev. Father Greene will be filled by the Rev. Father James Hogan, who comes to this city from Virginia, Minn., where he has had the appointment for several years. He is a very able man and will do much to uphuild the parish. He is a good speaker and is excellently qualified to carry on the business duties of the church.

Father Hogan announced in his letter to Judge Sullivan that he would arrive here next Saturday, May 8, and would start his work at once.

GILBERT ELECTS OFFICERS MAY 17

Several Candidates Are Already Casting About for Offices.

Gilbert, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—May 17 has been decided on as the date for holding the village election. Those already in the field for president are Martin Masterson, and J. B. Thompson of the First National bank; for trustees Pete Cosgrove, formerly of Sparta, George Rattenbury, a former trustee, and Harry Silliver, Dave Hogan, whose name was mentioned as trustee, has pulled out of the race. Verne Sutton and A. M. Kapeller are out for village clerk while Former Justice C. O. Welch and George Pittsley, who was elected justice before the incorporation was knocked out are again in the field for justice.

The campaign will be started in earnest in a few days as there is only about two weeks left before election day.

The current report that the present number of saloons will not be allowed to continue is a subject for much comment and opinions appear to be divided. It is contended that the act passed by the legislature gave the re-incorporated Gilbert the rights and obligations of the first incorporation.

Although the legislature has also passed an act limiting the number of saloons to one in every 500 population and Gilbert had thirty-one saloons when the old incorporation was knocked out and many contend the present incorporation will have a right to continue the same number. The matter may, however, have to be determined in the courts.

HOTEL FOR RAPIDS.

Duluth People Said to Be Interested in New Enterprise.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Several Duluth people are said to be interested in a scheme to erect a $50,000 hotel here this year.

The Dorans of this city have practically decided to rebuild the Gladstone hotel building, which was destroyed by fire a year ago. The new building will probably be a two-story brick structure.

NASHWAUK PLAYERS WIN.

Defeat Bovey at Lively Game of Box Ball.

Nashwauk, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Nashwauk box ball team won from the Bovey five by 124 points Sunday afternoon.

The total score was, Bovey, 2,760, and Nashwauk, 2,850. This is the second game played by the two teams. The result was favorable to the 200 spectators and home team, they having lost in the former game played at Bovey.

The lineup was as follows:

Bovey—Steeves, Belanger, Carlson, Simons and Bentz. Nashwauk—Infelt, Ohles, De Pedro, A. Marlo and McGuire. High score, A. Marlo, 133; high average, A. Marlo, 125.

Bax ball has only recently been introduced on the range.

LITERARY SOCIETY TO RENDER PROGRAM.

Eveleth, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—An entertainment is to be given Friday evening at Fayal hall by members of the Crescent Literary society of the high school. The program follows: Selection, high school orchestra; recitation, Celia Roski; song, chorus; debate, Anna Neimi and Richard Floyd against Ida Ellsworth and Ralph Wilk; piano duet, Anna Mulligan and Esther Rabinowitz; high school journal reading, Emma Perrault and Percy Pryor; recitation, David Erickson; selection, high school orchestra.

Leo Mitchell Promoted.

Hibbing, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The vacancy in the position of superintendent of the Monroe-Tener and the Chisholm district of the Oliver Iron Mining company caused by the promotion of R. J. Mitchell to the general superintendency of the Adams-Spruce, succeeding J. H. Hearding has been filled by the promotion of Capt. Leo Mitchell of the Pillsbury mine.

WIDOW'S HOME BURNED.

Chisholm, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire starting from an over heated stovepipe in the home of Mrs. Belle Juneau, a widow, residing across Longyear lake, yesterday destroyed the building, the remoteness of its location from fire protection making it impossible for the department, which hastened to the conflagration, to render assistance.

Mrs. Peter Isaacson, who occupied three rooms in the house, also lost all her effects. Mrs. Juneau was visiting at a neighbor's when the house took fire.

CHISHOLM POSTOFFICE OCCUPIES NEW QUARTERS.

Chisholm, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.) — Postmaster McDonald and the patrons of the local postoffice are pleased that the office has been moved from the shack it has occupied since the great fire of last September into the new quarters. The new building is commodious and has been equipped with modern fixtures, so that the first class service may be provided.

Mrs. Minnie D. Green, state secretary of the W. C. T. U., gave an address to a large crowd at the First Methodist church last night on the work of the union in the state.

MAYOR APPROVES PARK RESOLUTION.

Virginia, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor Andrew Hawkinson Saturday afternoon signed the council resolution approving the award of the commissioners in the proceedings for the acquiring by the city of lots 4 to 29, inclusive, of block 43 for park purposes. Saturday night was the time limit for the mayor's affixing his signature, but he decided favorably on the resolution before the time had expired. There was some fear that he would use the veto power. The tract comprises almost the entire block fronting on Central avenue, opposite the Roosevelt high school.

Two Harbors Woman Dead.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Ellen Anderson, wife of Andrew Anderson of Sixth avenue, died yesterday after a short illness with typhoid fever. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the Swedish M. E. church.

LARGE FAMILY ESCAPES.

Close Call When Home Near Chippewa Falls Is Burned.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., May 4.—The dwelling of Rudolph Pitsch and family of the town of Anson, this county, was burned to the ground between 5 and 6 on Sunday morning.

The eldest boy, William, aged 16 years, had risen at 5 a. m., started a fire in the kitchen stove and come out to do the chores. Mr. Pitsch later rose to get breakfast ready, his wife being still ill after childbirth. He discovered that the house had caught fire from a defective flue and gave the alarm. The family all got out of the burning dwelling. There are ten children, ranging from 16 years to 2 weeks old. Almost nothing of the contents of the house could be saved, so rapidly did the fire progress. About all Mr. Pitsch saved was a watch and a sewing machine. Most of the children got out with bare feet and in their night clothes. The wife and children were taken in by different neighbors.

FARMER'S DAUGHTER IS INJURED BY HARROW.

Dickinson, N. D., May 4.—While running a disc harrow on the farm of her stepfather, George Clark, a few miles from New England, on the Little Missouria, Cassie Parker, 16, was unfortunate enough to lose her balance and fall from the seat on the machine. She was tangled in the harrow and before the team could be stopped her left foot was cut off at the ankle. She also sustained a number of deep cuts and gashes on her left leg, an especially serious one being upon her knee.

HARRISON IS INVITED

Son of Former President May Speak in Duluth.

Sons of Veterans Make Plans for Memorial Day.

Russell B. Harrison of Indianapolis, Ind., son of Former President Benjamin Harrison, and past commander of the Spanish-American War Veterans, may be one of the speakers in Duluth on Memorial day.

Camp John G. McEwen, post 6, of the Spanish-American War Veterans, met last evening in Kalamazoo hall, and took up the matter of Memorial day arrangements. The committee in charge reported that preliminaries looking to an observance of the day at the Asbury M. E. church in West Duluth, May 31, were under way.

The committee is trying to secure Mr. Harrison as one of the speakers. Rev. Thomas Grice, pastor of the Asbury M. E. church, will deliver the oration of the day. Aside from the church program, the camp is planning on decorating the graves of war veterans, and also on Memorial day services at the various cemeteries. The Ladies' auxiliary will scatter flowers over the surface of water in the harbor in memory of the sailor dead.

The adjutant last night was instructed to notify the G. A. R. posts of the city that the camp offers the services of its members, to be distributed as the G. A. R. sees fit. Probably escorts of Spanish-Americans will be provided members of the G. A. R. in their visits to the different churches of the city.

The committee appointed to look after the matter reported that it had been successful in securing quarters in the new courthouse for meeting purposes, along with the allied patriotic orders.

At the next meeting of the camp delegates will be elected to attend the state encampment at St. Paul July 12. These delegates will be instructed to secure the 1910 encampment for Duluth, if possible.

COULDN'T LEAVE THE OLD HOME

Mrs. A. M. Miller Will Move Building and Shrubbery to New Site.

The A. M. Miller residence will be moved to Twenty-third avenue east and Second street, where it will be set up in exactly the same way in which it has stood for many years on the grounds of the new St. Louis county courthouse. Even the shrubbery will be transplanted with the same reference to the house that it held at the old location. In fact everything will be replaced as nearly as possible in the way it stood at the old home.

Anderson & Gow have taken the contract to move the house. They expect that it will take about two weeks and that very shortly the house will be in condition for occupancy. The basement will be finished by the time the house has reached its destination. It is now being divided into two parts as it was too large to move in one section.

Mrs. Miller had intended to build a new residence on the property in the East end, but she was unwilling to give up the old home she had occupied for years and took the matter of moving the building up with contractors, who told her the idea was practical. Yesterday she gave orders to go ahead with the work and the contractors say that within a month's time the old home, better than ever, will be set up on the East end site.

Object to Strong Medicines.

Many people object to taking the strong medicines usually prescribed by physicians for rheumatism. There is no need of internal treatment in any case of muscular or chronic rheumatism, and more than one out of every ten cases of the disease are of one or the other of these varieties. When there is no fever and little (if any) swelling, you may know that it is only necessary to apply Chamberlain's Liniment freely to get quick relief. Try it. For sale by all druggists.

LEONARD GENERAL MANAGER.

A. W. Leonard in Charge of Stone & Webster Interests in District.

Houghton, Mich., May 4.—A. W. Leonard, former general manager of the Houghton County Traction company and the Houghton County Electric company for Stone & Webster of Boston, has been made general manager of the properties in a district including Minneapolis, where he is now located, the Copper country and several other properties.

Mr. Leonard represented the Stone & Webster interests here up to 1896, when he was transferred to Minneapolis to take charge of the corporation's interests there. Recently W. H. McGrath, his successor here, was named as assistant manager at Minneapolis and this announcement was evidently preliminary to the announcement regarding his assumption of the management of a larger territory. Mr. Leonard thus returns to the supervision of the properties in a district where he is well known. His new duties will make necessary frequent visits to the Copper country and this fact will be received with much pleasure by Copper country business people with whom Mr. Leonard was very popular.

Rev. I. W. Williamson's Letter.

Rev. I. W. Williamson, Huntington, W. Va., writes: "This is to certify that I used Foley's Kidney Remedy for nervous exhaustion and kidney trouble and am free to say that it will do all that you claim for it." Foley's Kidney Remedy has restored health and strength to thousands of weak, run down people. Contains no harmful drugs and is pleasant to take. Sold by all druggists.

SEVEN MINERS INJURED BY EXPLOSION OF POWDER.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 4.—An explosion of powder 2,000 feet underground in the Aerona mine of the Keystone Coal company, at Aronaw, Westmoreland county, seriously injured seven miners today and caused a panic among 200 others.

The men were entering the mine for the day's work, when there was a blinding flash accompanied by a deafening roar. Fulminite was used in the mine. It is believed a can of powder was being smuggled into the mine and was ignited by a spark from the trolley. The mine was not damaged.

VALLEY CITY SCORCHED.

Valley City, N. D., May 4.—Starting from a gas stove in the Burnham cafe, a fire, accompanied by a terrific explosion, totally wrecked one building, knocked in the walls and roofs of several others, injured Mayor Cowell and did damage amounting to $50,000 Sunday morning. The blaze started at 8 o'clock, and before an hour's time had been consumed the disastrous results had been tolled.

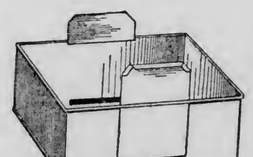
Cake Baking

Are you interested in knowing how an expert cake baker produces cake that fairly melts in one's mouth? Then visit the basement tomorrow and listen to the lecture and watch the demonstration there. An expert cake maker will show and tell you just how to do it.

The best cake you ever ate will be made right before your eyes by a man who knows as much about this particular art as the lawyer knows about law.



These demonstrations and lectures are given to familiarize Duluth women with the Van Duesen Cake Moulds, which go a great ways toward making cake baking easy and satisfactory. Remember, in the Basement of Freimuth's.

of from 500 to 600 people. In one town of 4,000 people there are fewer than 100 left, nearly all women and children. It was the same thing with the hundreds of Chiftlikes, or farms, that dot this wide and fertile plain. The slaughter was unsparing even Greeks and Syrians were struck down with the Armenians.

Entire families were burned to death in their homes and hundreds of girls and women were maltreated and carried off to the harems.

Slain As Women Cling.

The correspondent was informed that at one place a party of 100 Armenians surrendered to the soldiers. The prisoners were taken to an open field, where the women were ordered to stand apart from the men. Every one of the men was then shot. In many cases they went down to death with their women clinging to them, trying to save their lives. A large number of women were wounded because of their persistence.

Sixty men who were brought down into this district from Hadjin are now held as slaves.

Young Turks around Tarsus are trading Armenian girls for horses and modern repeating rifles. The entire ten days seem to have been an insensate orgy of lust and violence in the name of race and religion. In the massacres of fourteen years ago there was no such desire to kill women and children as has been evidenced in the last ten days. Now, however, there have been numerous instances of the murdering of women and children with deliberation, and there are other instances where women were brought out one by one and shot down, the bystanders clapping their hands at each fresh execution.

Four Cents a Day.

The local authorities are giving 4 cents a day for each refugee in Tarsus. There are about 4,000 refugees here and this sum does not suffice. The government allotment is being supplemented by funds of the American mission. The local officials say they are soon going to discontinue their contributions and if this is done there will be a famine.

The yard of the American mission house looks like a prison pen. The men wander around all night trying to keep warm. The women and children sleep on the floors of the schoolrooms. Very few of them have beds. In the day time the men sleep usually curling up in the sunshine outside. There have been four births at the mission since the refugees came in. In the meantime the Moslems, in the wasted country round-about, are pasturing their horses and cattle on the green crops of their Armenian victims.

now possible through modern war agencies and the still undeveloped air warships, force upon all men the absurdity of settling international difficulties by mutual annihilation. The idealists may at last be joined by hard-headed men of affairs whose daily cry is for results. Business men all want peace."

Louis P. Lochner of Madison, Wis., was the principal speaker at the college session. He said in part:

"The complexion of the American student body is assuming an entirely new character. At the University of Wisconsin the number of foreign students has risen from seven in 1899 to ninety-five in 1904. I believe we shall find a partial solution of this problem in the work of the Association of Cosmopolitan Clubs, composed of international students' organizations in nineteen leading universities. We are affiliated with the Corda Frateres of Europe. We have "national nights" when students from different nations describe the history and institutions of their fatherlands. The day is not far distant when we shall have branch societies in every civilized country in the world, when a student can travel to what large university he will and yet be sure of meeting sympathetic friends and of finding men filled with similar high ideals of the brotherhood of man."

Other speakers were Prof. William I. Hull of Swarthmore college, Pennsylvania, and James Brown Scott, solicitor of the state department at Washington.

Yes, "The Blood Is the Life"

If Bad, Hardly Worth Living. If Good, Healthy and Happy.

"I am well pleased with my experience with Hood's Sarsaparilla for my blood. My trouble was of a scrofulous nature—sores frequently came on my neck, increasing in number and size. Years of treatment failed to effect a permanent cure. The sores discharged freely, and gave me much pain. The drain on my system had been so great I was completely worn out, easily became tired, and did not have much appetite. My neck was so sore and swollen, I could hardly turn my head around, but I took Hood's faithfully, and within two months the benefit began to come. The sores healed up, my general health improved, appetite came back, and my flesh took on a good color. Since then I have never been troubled with scrofula, and have had good health all the time." Mrs. Alvin Barton, West St., Walpole, Mass., Jan. 10, 1909.

Hood's Sarsaparilla effects its wonderful cures, not simply because it contains sarsaparilla, but because it combines the utmost remedial values of more than 20 different ingredients.

Begin taking Hood's Sarsaparilla today. Get it in the usual liquid form or in chocolated tablets known as Sarsatabs. 100 Doses One Dollar.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The power of an ideal!

Nobody doubts it, but still in the press of everyday duties one is at times likely to forget it, to hurry on and pay little attention to that thing, intangible but efficient, which is the impulse of every well regulated life.

At the new building of the Young Women's Christian association gay young electricians are whistling blithely "I'm look-ing—for—the—man—who—wrote—the Mer-ry—Wid-ow waltz."

On the second floor, more sedate carpenters are humming: "Work for the Night is Coming," decorators while applying a coating of warm yellow, sing "Let a Little Sunshine In," and down before the roaring grate fire in the hall an Irish stew bubbles cheerfully watched carefully by a German girl, who is looking after the needs of the Y. W. C. A. workers.

Here's where the power of the ideal comes in. How could any general secretary with her crowd of assistants, ever keep calm and cool through this awful time if they had not constantly before them the vision of well swept corridors, a dining room where people might dine, a sitting room where people might sit, sleeping rooms where people might sleep, instead of having them cluttered up with harmless but necessary workmen and their buckets of color and their horses and boards and brushes and endless paraphernalia? What if not that ideal would keep that general secretary and her assistants from digging their hands deep into their pompadours and emitting a wail as of a lost soul?

Confusion reigns at the new Y. M. C. A. It was necessary to move into the new building at once and the move was made a day or two ago, but the workmen busy on the interior finishing have not yet moved out. It is hoped that within a very few days the dining room and kitchen will be available, and that the serving of meals may be begun very soon. Some days later the rest of the building will be ready for occupancy.

Meantime over the telephone is hung a bright red sign bearing in clear white letters the admonition "Keep Cool."

May Party.

The members of the Social club of the Trinity Pro-cathedral will entertain at a May party tomorrow evening at guild hall. There will be a Maypole with ten young girls in the dance, and there will be a musical program by Miss Hyland, Miss Mary Bradbury, Miss Myrtle Hobbs and Joseph Lonegren, with Mrs. Harry C. Strong as accompanist.

Dancing Party.

The members of the Hillside Athletic club entertained at a dancing party last evening at Harmony hall at Lester Park. Decorations of red and gold were used and Martelli's orchestra played. The chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. Martin Brown and sixty of the members and their friends were present. The party was the first in a series of affairs planned by the members.

In Your House for

That is all it will cost you to make a start, then you can pay the balance $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 or $3.00 per week and have the use of it while you need it. Any boy or girl drawing a small salary can own a piano on such terms. You are cleaning or have cleaned house, have a nice, new, bright, clean piano put right in. Our new styles are so refreshing. We never had, and may never again have so many old standard makes in used pianos, that we have traded in for Steinway and Ivers & Pond grands, and the famous Pianola Player Pianos. Among these are Steinway, Ivers & Pond, Kranich & Bach, Knabe, etc.

We are selling so many of these to persons who have waited for years to find just what they want, and at such reasonable prices, too. We hope you may be able to get one of these, but our stock of them won't last long.

We have the best tuning and repairing department in the city.

NEW SLEEVE.

A Larger One to Be the Style Again.

There is a new sleeve in vogue that is not a compromise, but a definite departure from the tight, close affairs of last winter. It is an old-fashioned bishop sleeve, quite small at the top, but fuller at the wrist where it is caught into a little cuff. The fullness is all below the elbow and droops a little over the cuff. It is a very possible and becoming style and one that is especially pretty for thin summer materials, says Mrs. Simcox in the May Delineator.

There is also a decided tendency toward oversleeves reaching just to the elbow and continued from there to the hand by a close-fitting gauntlet affair of lace and embroidery. They pave the way for the elbow sleeve, which will undoubtedly return with the warm weather. It will be small, of course, not glove-tight, but decidedly close-fitting and ending at the elbow in a simple little frill—the Revolutionary sleeve, I think, it might be called.

Among the tailored suits the coats are not quite as long as they were last winter, but there are none that are really short—that is, to the hipline or above it, as some people seemed to think a few weeks ago they would be. There are all sorts of fulness and pointed effects, but they are always incorporated with dresses, not suits. I've seen several that are quite fascinating in very heavy linens, with small checker-board banding appliqued to the bottom of the skirt and the bolero.

It is curious how uninventive most people are in regard to these features. So many fancy that their use is limited to the straight plaited skirt. It is a pity for there are so many attractive borders and all sorts of attractive ways that they can be utilized. I saw a lovely dress just the other day in shell-pink foulard, with a border that was handled very cleverly. Two rows of it were used down the front of the dress from neck to hem, but instead of being brought together their edges were buttonholed and fastened down to a rather narrow panel of heavy white linen. The bodice had an open V-shaped neck and collar and cuffs of the scalloped linen, edged with valenciennes.

PIQUES AND LINENS

To Be Much Worn During the Summer.

White and ecru color linens are well to the fore, but there seems a probability that white pique, reinstated in favor last summer, will once more rival white linen.

In colored effects linen has no rival of its own general character, and the colors now secured in this material are of surprising variety and beauty.

This year the manufacturers have accomplished great results in the line of fancy linens—two-tone effects chiefly—and a host of novel and beautiful border designs are presented.

Some of these are very unusual, as, for example, plain linen of delicate color along whose border is inset a wide band of heavy white filet net with a band of black check in white and color of the linen on each side of the net band.

Another design shows stripes of white and color with a wide band of colored embroidery on white set between groups of heavy transverse stripes forming the border.

Borders are a feature of the new cottons as well as the linen.

Shades of rose and berry are especially liked for these cottons; and, indeed, throughout the new materials one finds these colorings and the lighter pinks much in evidence.

Violet, wistaria, mulberry, amethyst and kindred colorings are also in the first rank and a good deal is done with blues on the Copenhagen order and various soft greens.

Browns, too, usually in combination with white, so that they lose their oppressively warm look, are well represented, and there are charming things in black and white and gray and white.

Persian colorings and designs find a place in many of the new cottons, being used as a relief to less striking color schemes.

For Small Boys.

Shepherd checks belong by right to the small boy, and his spring suit or overcoat is very likely to be of black and white pin check fabric.

If a more cheerful color is desired for the little lad, there is the festive scarlet reefer coat, and many of these are displayed in children's outfitting shops this spring, each accompanied by its correct accessories of gloves and hat.

The jaunty little green felts, with rolled back brim at the side, will be worn through the spring, and there are cream Milan straw hats shaped like them for warmer days.

For play wear there should be, as well as the dozens of suits of washable fabrics, at least one well-tailored wool suit, and this suit should be as smart as can be bought.

Most mothers find that it is more expensive to clothe the very small lad than the bigger boys of from 11 to 14, for on the very small suits are dainty embroidery and trimming that must be applied by hand.

Household Helps.

If your lamp smokes or gives a poor light, it may come from clogged pipes. Take the lamp apart, boil the burner in soda water and pour hot water through connecting rods and tubes, says the New York Times.

• • •

A large pinch of salt put in the tank of a coal oil lamp will cause it to give a better light.

• • •

Instead of adding blueing to water in which lace has been rinsed, try making the final rinsing in milk; it gives a lovely creamy tone to the lace.

• • •

The easiest way to clean a cereal cooker is to turn it upside down in a pan of boiling water and steam it until the sticky mass is soft and loosened from the sides of the pan.

• • •

Try a little lemon and salt mixed the next time a price mark sticks to the bottom of china dishes or bric-a-brac.

• • •

A sticky cake or bread pan should not be cleaned with a knife or anything which will scratch the surface and make sticking more probable thereafter. For this reason the crust of bread often advised as a cleaner, is not desirable.

• • •

A little muriatic acid added to the rinsing water after a blue and white floor rug is scrubbed with soap and water will help to restore the color.

• • •

Do not put a tomato aspic to harden in a tin or iron baking pan; the acid in the jelly acts on the tin and makes the salad taste, while the black pan gives an unsightly black rim to the aspic.

• • •

When too many oysters have been creamed for filling patties they can be reheated the next day by adding a little more milk and fresh seasoning, heating in a double boiler, or they may burn.

• • •

Much time is saved if paper linings for cake pans are cut in quantities and kept ready for instant use in a dust-proof box with tight lid.

• • •

Cake pans can be more quickly greased if the pans are first heated. An easy way is to put small lumps of butter over the lining and stand pan on top of stove for a minute before spreading the grease.

• • •

Always line a cake pan with paper. The medium weight yellow paper, used for wrapping, can be bought for 10 cents a roll. Grease the paper, not the pan, except on the edges.

Marshal Grimshaw Sick.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 4.—William H. Grimshaw, United States marshal of Minnesota, is seriously ill with typhoid fever at his home, 2616 Park avenue. He has been confined to his bed for about ten days, and was complaining for several days before ordered by the doctor to give up his work. Saturday the case was diagnosed as typhoid. It is complicated with other troubles.

WITHOUT THUMBS; WORK IS SCARCE

Crippled Vagrant Given Two Weeks in the County Jail.

Arrested for vagrancy, Bert Johnson, in municipal court yesterday afternoon, was sentenced to two weeks in the county jail, without labor.

The man had his thumbs frozen during the winter, and both of them had to be amputated. He has had difficulty in finding work which he could perform in his crippled condition, and because of this condition the judge had it understood that Johnson would not have to work while serving out his sentence.

He says he expects to be able to find employment when his term expires, and it is believed that he will carry out his intentions in this direction, if there is any work to be had.

TAFT TO PRESENT MEDALS TO WRIGHT BROTHERS.

New York, May 4.—The reception of the Wright brothers in this country will not suffer by comparison with their treatment abroad, if the plans of the Aero Club of America as announced last night are fulfilled. When Wilbur and Orville Wright, with their sister, Miss Katherine, arrive at New York, probably May 14, they will be met down the bay by representatives of the Aero club, and the aviation convention of the Automobile Club of America, who will take them off the steamer at Quarantine and bring them up to the city. Here they will be tendered a reception at the Automobile club, or at a hotel, and, so far as the plans have thus far matured, a dinner will be given them, at which distinguished persons will be invited to speak. June 10, President Taft will present to the brothers, the Aero clubs' medals in Washington. The club will escort the noted aviators to Washington in a special train. Immediately after the presentation, the Wrights will begin the trials for a government contract.

MILLION PERSONS FOR DETROIT IS FORECAST.

Detroit, Mich., May 4.—A population of 1,000,000 for Detroit, possibly within ten years, and municipally-owned subways for transportation lines are the forecast and recommendation made by a sub-comittee of the citizens' committee, investigating the local situation with regard to expiring street railway franchises.

The sub-committee on extensions and route rearrangements last night submitted its report to a committee of fifty recently appointed by Mayor Breitmeyer.

BROTHER OF PITCHER WALSH DIES IN MINE.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 4.—David Walsh, younger brother of Edward Walsh, the Chicago American league pitcher, was killed yesterday in the mines at his home in Plaines. He was ambitious to emulate his brother's career, and was one of the best amateur ball players in this vicinity.

Whooping Cough.

This is a more dangerous disease than is generally presumed. It will be a surprise to many to learn that more deaths result from it than from scarlet fever. Pneumonia often results from it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, and always with the best results. Delbert McKeig of Harlan, Iowa, says of it: "My boy took whooping cough when nine months old. He had it in the winter. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which proved good. I cannot recommend it too highly." For sale by all druggists.

CHOIR BOY KILLED BY ELECTRIC VOLTS.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., May 4.—Joseph Cronin, 14 years old, a member of the Cronin, 14 years old, a member of the Paulist Choir Society of Chicago, in charge of Father Finn, was instantly killed today by electricity on the Canadian side of the river.

With sixty of his companions, who were visiting Loretto convent, he started to climb to the tanks to the transformer station of the Ontario Power company, which he came in contact with an 11,000-volt cable, which had been temporarily strung by the company.

Liberian Commission Sails.

Washington, May 4.—With members of the United States-Liberian commission and attaches aboard, the scout cruiser Chester sailed from St. Vincent, Cape Verde island, today for Monrovia, Liberia. Owing to defects in her boiler the scout cruiser Birmingham, which carried three commissioners from New York to St. Vincent, did not accompany the Chester. The Birmingham will proceed later to Monrovia and rejoin the Chester, which should reach Monrovia Friday.

Is the selection of the style of your new suit a puzzle?

Here, you can try on before buying.

Is the selection of the tailor or clothier another puzzle?

The high-priced tailor—alright if you can afford $50 or $60.

The low-priced tailor—in most cases a misnomer for the agent of a Chicago "Tailor-to-the-trade" house, patterning over ready-made blocks, work not as good as ready-made, prices $5 to $10 more—and a fake because he sails under false colors.

The cheap clothier—he of maximum and minimum prices—be careful—do not pay maximum prices on low values. Don't go there unless you take a clothing expert along.

Solution of the puzzle: Wear Columbia Clothes! Made by such responsible wholesale tailors as Stein-Bloch and the Sincerity Shops. Sold at one uniform and fair price, according to the best modern methods.

SAID HE WAS POLICEMAN

Was Insisting on Woman's Right to Drink Intoxicants.

Julius Kleven insists that a woman has a perfect right to drink beer in generous quantities. To assist in preserving that right, he last night impersonated a police officer, or so it is charged, at least, and was afterwards arrested. He pleaded not guilty in municipal court this morning, and his hearing was set for tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The trouble occurred at 605 West First street, in a rooming house conducted by Mrs. Martha Todd. She rented a room to a woman who, last evening, had Kleven as a caller. Kleven, it is said, concealed several bottles of beer about his person when he entered the house, and, with his friend, proceeded to consume their contents.

There was more or less noise attendant upon the consuming operations, and Mrs. Todd was attracted to the scene. She was scandalized at the procedure, and told her roomer that if she could not act like a lady she had better leave the house. This is where the chivalrous Kleven is said to have come to the rescue.

"I am a police officer, and will take care of this woman myself, without any interference from the outside," he is quoted as having said, at the same time showing a nickle-plated star.

Mrs. Todd wasn't satisfied with this, and told a real policeman about it. It appears that Kleven worked in the capacity of policeman for one month early in the winter, and then got out of the department for the good of the service.

Chamberlain's Liniment.

This is a new preparation and a good one. It is especially valuable as a cure for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and for the relief from pain which it affords in acute inflammatory rheumatism. Those who have used it have invariably spoken of it in the highest terms of praise. Lame back, lame shoulder and stiff neck are due to rheumatism of the muscles, usually brought on by exposure to cold or damp, and are quickly cured by applying this liniment freely and massaging the affected parts. Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is allayed by this liniment. For sale by all druggists.

COKEFAIR BACK FROM THE WEST

Says Business Is Much Improved On the Coast.

C. C. Cokefair, president and general manager of the Northern Development company, returned this morning from a trip to the southern coast of California. Mr. Cokefair was several months upon his trip and saw most of the country between San Francisco and the southern summer resorts.

"Conditions are looking much better upon the coast than they were a year ago," said Mr. Cokefair. "The business is better, the hotels are full of tourists and business men, something that was decidedly lacking when I was out upon the coast last year. There seems to be a general increase in all kinds of business and a healthy development of the entire Western country."

Mrs. Cokefair and her son, Frank, will spend some time upon the coast. They are expected to return to Duluth in June. They will return over the Canadian Pacific.

While in the West, Mr. Cokefair visited the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition grounds. Mr. Cokefair has seen all the big expositions and fairs held in this country since the Philadelphia centennial, and says that the grounds at Seattle compare most favorably in the point of scenic beauty with any of the grounds that have contained the other fairs of this country.

Mr. Cokefair says many of the buildings are of a permanent nature. These buildings will be turned over to the state university of Washington at the close of the exposition. The grounds of the exposition are beautifully laid out, according to Mr. Cokefair, and the beautiful lakes and mountain views make the spot almost an ideal one for the exposition.

Mr. Cokefair will leave for Cincinnati in two days for a business trip.

CONTRACT IS AWARDED

Work Will Begin at Once on Duluth's New Hotel.

Six Stories in Height—Four More May Be Added.

The general contract for the construction of the new hotel that will be built on the northwest corner of Superior street and Fifth avenue west, was yesterday awarded to McLeod & Smith. The bid was $100,000. Work upon the structure will begin immediately.

The bid submitted by McLeod & Smith does not call for the wiring, plumbing, or inside finish. The total cost of the new hotel will be considerably over the figure of the contractors.

Louis Levine will build the new structure. The hotel will be constructed upon the latest hotel ideas. It will be six stories instead of ten, as was the original intention of the builder. However, the building will be constructed so that additional stories may be added.

The new hotel will be equipped with a modern grill room and cafes. Many of the leading hotels of the East were inspected, with the idea of securing the latest improvements for the Duluth structure. Bray & Nystrom, the architects, made a personal inspection of the newest hotels, with the idea of incorporating the latest ideas into the new building.

Hotel men here say that there is room for the new hostelry. They say the hotel patronage of Duluth is growing and that the construction of the new building will be a good thing for the city in general. The completion of the hotel building will mark further inroads into the old Bowery.

NOTICE

The adjourned annual meeting of the Duluth Playground association will be held at the office of the Mayor, City Hall, Tuesday, May 18, 1909, at 3:30 o'clock p. m. Important matters of business will come before said meeting and all members are cordially invited to be present.

SNOW BALLS ARE FREELY FLYING

A good many complaints have been made during the last few days over the fact that small boys have been altogether too free in their use of snowballs. It is to be expected that they will occasionally make life miserable for pedestrians, but when it comes to throwing the hard spheres of snow at helpless automobilists it is considered a little too much.

One prominent citizen was riding down the street yesterday in his machine, intent upon the road in front of him, when a snowball, thrown by a mischievous youngster, struck him squarely in the eye, almost causing a catastrophe. If the machine had been going faster the fact of its driver being put momentarily out of commission might easily have caused it to crash into a telegraph pole. As it was, the escape was a narrow one.

Complaints of having been snowballed are being made by several other automobilists, and street car conductors are also claiming that a promiscuous throwing on the part of youngsters of the city is placing car windows in constant danger of being smashed. Certain boys seem to take great glee in pelting passing cars, greatly to the annoyance, not to say danger, of passengers behind the glass window panes.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

We wish to inform you that we have leased the Clifton Hotel, 321 and 323 West First street. The same has been renovated and will be conducted on the European plan as the LINCOLN HOTEL, under the supervision of McINTYRE & LEE.

EDMONDS OFFERS HIS CHECKBOOK

Says It Will Show All His Stephenson Expenses.

Madison, Wis., May 4.—Late this afternoon the examination being conducted by the senatorial primary committee, drifted onto the speakership of the assembly. Mr. Edmonds said he discussed the speakership with Mr. Bancroft and that he asked Mr. Cleary to withdraw from the contest.

He explained that he understood that Bancroft believed that his hard and faithful service in behalf of Senator La Follette had not been recognized; that he had hoped to be appointed United States district attorney, and failing in this, he hoped to round out his political career by being elected speaker.

Witness said he asked C. C. Wyland to come to Madison when Stephenson was not elected on the first ballot. He also employed D. H. Davis, the Milwaukee private detective, and one Scanlon from his own office.

Davis, the witness said, was in Madison at the beginning of the legislature as a candidate for sergeant-at-arms. Overbeck suggested that Davis stay here to help out all he could and witness told him to stay and that he would pay his expenses and for his time.

Edmonds said his checkbook would show practically all his expenses in behalf of Stephenson.

WILL ELECT PRINCIPAL

School Board Will Fill Vacancy Caused By C. A. Smith's Death.

The High School Teaching Force Also to Be Chosen.

The election of a principal for the Central high school, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Charles Alden Smith, will be the chief business to be transacted by the board of education at its regular May meeting Friday night.

Mr. Smith's death occurred some months ago, but the election of a successor was deferred. The board decided to wait until the regular time for the election of teachers and supervisors for the next school year, before determining on a principal. It is understood that there are several candidates for the post, but just who they are has not been divulged, the board members preferring to keep silent upon the matter until it comes before them in regular session.

Besides choosing a principal, the school board will fix the personnel of the high school teaching force, both for the Central building and the Industrial high school in West Duluth. The reappointment of the grade teachers took place at the last meeting, but no action was taken on the high school corps at that time.

A number of new teachers will also be elected.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS

Examinations will soon be held under the United States civil service commission for positions as clerk in the forest service. These positions pay from $800 to $1,200 a year and are considered desirable positions, as the salary is increased from time to time.

The duties of the office consist on office correspondence, keeping up the files and conducting routine business during the absence of the forest supervisor in the field.

There are many positions open throughout the West. Many of them are desirable as places of residence.

The examination consists of spelling, arithmetic, penmanship, letter writing, grammar and common school subjects. The examination is one which almost anyone of average intelligence could easily pass.

The examination will take place June 16 in the local postoffice building. Information can be had by applying to the secretary of the local civil service commission at the local postoffice.

TOUCHED A SLEEPER.

Andrew Peterson Arrested for Stealing From Drunken Man.

Andrew Peterson was arrested on a charge of petit larceny last night. He entered a plea of not guilty in municipal court this morning. He will be given a hearing later in the week.

If the story told the police is correct, Peterson's work is very coarse. It is claimed that he extracted a pocketbook, containing about $5, from the pocket of Ole Thorsen while the latter was intoxicated.

Thorsen was sleeping off his jag in a chair in the office of the Nicollet hotel close to the drunken man and sat down beside him. A guest at the hotel told the clerk that he saw Peterson put his hand in the other's pocket and extract the purse. Hence the arrest.

CANDIDATES PLENTY FOR VACANT JUDGESHIP.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The death of Judge William S. Donahue leaves a vacancy on the Hennepin county bench and the fact was evident yesterday and today in some overworked wires between Governor Johnson's office and the Mill City.

A dozen candidates have made their appearance including C. J. Bartellson. Nothing will be done in the matter until Governor Johnson shall return from the South.

ANTI-SALOONISTS MAY MAKE THE SHORE "DRY."

Indianapolis, Ind., May 4.—The saloon question is to be decided for two years by elections today in Pulaski, Clay and Spencer counties. Spencer is an Ohio river county. Both shores of the Ohio have been "wet" since the river has been navigated by white men, but, with the anti-saloon campaign sweeping over Indiana, three of the river counties—Ohio, Switzerland and Jefferson—have prohibited the sale of liquor.

TAXING MINES AND FARMS.

The Herald has had a surfeit of tonnage tax talk, and no doubt most of the people of this section have had enough of it to last quite a while. Yet some statements are going the rounds of that section of the country press which still advocates a tonnage tax that should not be permitted to pass unchallenged.

For instance, here is the Waseca Journal-Radical, complaining of the governor's veto of the tonnage tax, and adding: "Where is the justice of requiring the farmers to pay taxes on a valuation of 38 per cent, and letting the steel trust off with a tax on only one-tenth the value of their mines?"

There wouldn't be any justice whatever in such a proceeding, and it shouldn't be allowed to exist a month in this state. But it doesn't exist at all. The farmers do not pay on a valuation of 38 per cent, and the mines pay taxes on a great deal more than a tenth of their value.

But in the first place, even if this remarkable statement were true, it isn't an argument for the tonnage tax. As Governor Johnson said in his message vetoing the tonnage tax: "If the revenue now derived from iron mines is not sufficient, the state under the present system has the full power and machinery to increase the assessment to a proper and just figure, without plunging any section of the state into panic and arresting its development." If the Waseca paper's confident statement were anywhere near true, it would be the duty of the tax commission to change the condition complained of, and it could and would do it instantly. It is as easy to get at the actual value of a mine as it is to measure the contents of a load of hay. So if the Journal-Radical's statements were true, they would constitute simply an argument for increasing the valuations of the mines, or reducing the valuation of the farms. They could have no bearing whatever upon the tonnage tax question, one way or another.

The tax commission states that iron mines are now assessed at 40 per cent of actual value. Last year there was a slight reduction in the total valuation of the mines, due to a readjustment of mistakes in the first valuation by the tax commission, but unquestionably the next few years will show increases rather than decreases, as new discoveries and new developments will bring the total assessment considerably higher than it has ever yet been.

Now as to the farms. The state auditor's report shows that the average assessed valuation of farm lands in Waseca county in 1907 was $14.38 per acre. That is 40 per cent of $36 an acre. Can a farm be bought anywhere in Waseca county for $36 an acre? Hardly. It would cost nearer $100 an acre to buy any of the prosperous farms of that county. A modest price would be $75 an acre, and 40 per cent of that would make a valuation of $30 an acre instead of $14.38. The situation is the same in other rich counties of Southern Minnesota—Wabasha county, $10.50 per acre; Pipestone, $11.28 per acre; Murray county, $13.04 per acre; Faribault, $14.88 per acre; Lyon county, $13 per acre; Lac Qui Parle county, $10.86 per acre.

But argument about present valuations is idle. If they are not what they ought to be, the tax commission has full authority to make them what they ought to be, whether they are of farm, mine or factory. Because farm lands are assessed at a low rate is not an argument for an output tax on farm products; if anything it is an argument for increased valuations. If iron lands are not assessed high enough that is not an argument for a tonnage tax, but for higher assessments.

FOLLOWING A BAD EXAMPLE.

It has provided by law for a legislative journal which is to be patterned after the Congressional Record, the official publication of congressional proceedings.

It is to be hoped that this example will not spread through the states, and certainly it is to be hoped that if it does it will not get to Minnesota.

Everybody knows how it is worked in congress. The Record is not a truthful relation of the proceedings of congress, and the proceedings of congress are very different from what they would be if there were no Congressional Record. The chief purpose of the Record, from the congressman's viewpoint—and the senator's, too, of course—is to provide a medium for getting his speeches before his constituents. His speech having been printed in the Record, he is able to send copies of it free through the mails, also to have those copies printed at actual cost. Whether the speech has actually been made or not makes no difference. The Record is full of speeches that have never been made at all, the orator having secured "leave to print." Also, it is full of speeches that never would have been made if it were not for the Record. Much of the valuable time of congress is given up to speech-making that does not advance congressional business a particle, but that is permitted so the orators can get their speeches before their constituents. When such speeches are delivered nobody listens, and nobody is there to listen except those who are feverishly awaiting their own chance to occupy several pages of the Record.

This is all vanity and foolishness,of course, and it is often almost childish. It is a ridiculous waste of congressional time and public money.

So it isn't a good example at all for the legislatures to follow. If Minnesota adopted it, speech-making would become the rage. It is quite enough the rage already, without the encouragement of publication to exaggerate it. The legislature wastes enough time now, without giving up a lot more to be uselessly consumed in manufacturing material for a legislative journal.

It is easy to imagine what would happen in the Minnesota legislature if the members were allowed to make speeches to be printed at public expense, with the privilege extended to the orators to put in "laughter," "applause," "great applause," etc., as often as they desired. It is easy to imagine it, and the picture thus summoned up is frightful to contemplate. By all means, if Pennsylvania insists on having a legislative record like that which congress perpetrates, let her have it, but by all means let it stop there.

That is not saying that it would be an unmixed evil, either. Crafty hirelings of the railroads, for instance, who make fierce speeches against regulatory measures and then vote for them or dodge the vote, so their record will be clear, wouldn't be so likely to stultify themselves as they are now.

THE LAW AND THE COAL TRUST.

We fancy that there will be some people in the country whose irreverent sense of humor will lead them to laugh when they take in the meaning of yesterday's decision of the United States supreme court on the "commodity clause" of the Hepburn railroad rate law.

Congress passed a law forbidding coal-carrying railroads to own the coal they transport. It was a good law, too, because it was aimed at a practice upon which the insatiable coal trust was built. Obviously, when the big coal miners were in control of the coal-carrying roads, there wasn't much show for independent miners who didn't own any railroads. The trust had been formed, was busy bleeding the people, and it was a good deal like locking the barn door after the horse was stolen, but it was better late than never.

The lower court held the law invalid, and the government took it up to the supreme court. When the belated decision was handed down yesterday afternoon, a hasty reading of it made it appear a government victory. A more careful reading shows that it is also a railroad and coal trust victory, and this victory is far more important than the government's.

The supreme court says that the government has a right to enact such a law, and there is occasion for gratitude that the court has conceded this privilege. Under the law, says the court, railroads can't own the commodities they transport. But, says the court in the next breath, they can own stock in the companies that actually own the coal. It doesn't say how much they can own, so presumably they can own it all. They can't own the coal, but they can own the companies that do own the coal, and if that isn't the same thing when it comes to results it certainly isn't very radically different.

Some of the coal railroads already control their coal mines that way, and they will not have to change. Others, which have actually owned the coal, have been preparing to incorporate the mines and distribute the mining stock among the railroad stockholders. All they will have to do is to keep on with their plans.

There is one gleam of hope in the decision—and but one. The court having graciously conceded the right of congress to make such regulations, it seems possible that congress may also have the right to prohibit coal-carrying railroads from owning stock in coal mines, or at least from owning a controlling interest. The attempt is worth making, if congress can be induced to make it.

AN EXAMPLE OF TARIFF GREED.

While watches are not so vitally necessary to the people as bread and shoes and fuel and building materials, they are in very wide use, and they would be in wider use if the watch trust had not been so successful in its lobbying in congress during the enactment of the present Dingley tariff law.

The watch trust lobby is joining hands with the lobbies of other special privileges at the present session of congress—and its demand is about as startling an evidence of tariff greed as the sordid and stained history of tariff-grabbing can show.

Working under a prohibitive tariff, the American watch trust has been regulating its foreign and domestic prices so that quite a profitable industry has sprung up in the buying of American watches abroad, shipping them to this country, and re-selling them here at prices far below the trust's schedules, but still high enough to afford handsome profits on the enterprise.

Naturally, the watch trust doesn't like this practice. It not only sets up a strange but effective competition from its own product, but it makes the tariff on watches look as absurd as it actually is.

So the trust wants to stop it, and it is not only asking that the tariff bill now in the making shall contain a duty of 175 per cent on foreign-made watches, but it asks that a heavy duty be applied to American watches bought in foreign countries by American dealers and brought back to this country. In other words, it not only wishes to continue its present robbery of American watch-buyers while keeping up its sales at reasonable prices abroad, but it asks the government to prevent American dealers from buying trust goods in the cheapest markets—which are the foreign markets.

An amendment has been proposed to the pending tariff bill admitting duty free watches sold in foreign countries that are either as a whole or in part of American manufacture, and bearing the name and trade-mark of American manufacturers.

This amendment the watch trust is fighting tooth and nail. It will probably defeat it, and get its own greedy wishes satisfied. It probably wouldn't be strong enough to do this alone, but a blind man could see that special interests of this character have pooled their issues, and that all have combined to get the utmost out of the tariff bill now in process of enactment. Working thus, the watch trust will probably be able to fix it with congress so that hereafter it can continue its wicked robbery of the American people unhindered by competition from its own products, bought abroad at European prices and sold in this country at retail prices far below those charged for trust goods sold at trust prices.

GARFIELD AVENUE PLANS.

It is very desirable, from every viewpoint, that Garfield avenue should be paved. Its condition has been a disgrace for years, but because so much of the abutting property is owned by railroads, which the state has exempted from local assessments, nothing could be done about it until the legislature passed a law allowing the city to issue bonds and pay a part of the cost of paving. The plan just devised by a city council committee seems reasonable and fair all around. The city is to pay half, commercial interests using the avenue a quarter, and private property-owners along the avenue another quarter. This distributes the burden where it ought to be. The railroads would do a gracious act if they would chip in the major portion of the share that must be raised by subscription.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

A. J. McGuire, speaking at the McKay last evening of the work that is being done in the northern part of the state in the battle with the wilderness, stated that the great thing necessary for an economical clearing of the land was for the farmers of the different communities to club together.

The campaign for the clearing of the many acres of land in the northern part of the state is on at its height, and there is no man taking a greater interest in the movement than Supt. McGuire.

"I want to place special emphasis upon the fact that by clubbing together the farmers of this county and other parts of the state can secure dynamite much more cheaply. If they will club together and order a car, coming to the station and taking the powder off the car themselves, the farmers will find that they are saving a great deal of money. If they order through the local merchant without depositing the cash, often that person has found that he has been unable to dispose of his stock of powder. He has made a purchase that has lost him money, and is forced to bear the added expense of insurance."

Mr. McGuire pointed out that the fight for the clearing of the land in the northern part of the state would be an expensive fight to the farmers, at the best. But by securing their powder in the cheapest possible manner they would find that they could blow the stumps out cheaper than they could pull or dig them out.

Continuing, Mr. McGuire stated: "This is a campaign of education. After a great deal of trouble and time we have succeeded in getting some of the big powder companies interested in the project. They have taken the trouble to send men out here to educate the farmers in the use of the dynamite. The meetings that we have held throughout this section of the state, and the different meetings that we will hold in the future, cannot but help in the work that we are taking up for the clearing of land.

"The clearing of land is one, if not the greatest, problem that faces the farmers of this part of the state. We have harder conditions to face than the farmers of the southern section of the state, but from what I have learned of the men up here, these problems will be met and eventually this made one of the most prosperous agricultural sections in the state.

"I hope that many acres of stump land will be cleared this summer. I believe that the farmers are taking hold of it in the right way. When you come to consider the fact that there are millions of acres of stump land in this part of the state, you gain some idea of the vast amount of labor there is to be done by the farmers up here. Just think how many farms will be added to this part of Minnesota. When one stops and considers that this land is of no practical value under the present conditions, one can realize the importance of having it cleared of stumps and placed under cultivation."

• • •

E. A. Charles of Rosebud, Mont., stated at the St. Louis yesterday that the opening of the Rosebud reservation to settlement has resulted in a great boom to that part of the state.

"In keeping with the agricultural movement that is going on all over the state, the country of the Rosebud reservation is going ahead at a very rapid rate of development," said Mr. Charles. "Men have come to this recently opened land from every part of the West. Most of the people who drew land for settlement are very good farmers. From a bleak stretch of country they have changed the aspect of the place into a part of the state dotted with farm houses and tidy farms.

"Montana is going through an increase in population at the present time. Like other parts of the West, the cheap land is being taken up by settlers. The rush to the Rosebud lands has been duplicated, in a more leisurely way in many other parts of the state. Like Texas, Montana is losing the large ranches which are being cut into smaller farms. Although there are still many cattle raised in Montana, and that remains one of the chief industries of the state, the small farmer is taking the place of the large rancher to a great extent. This is due, of course, to the increase in the value of land. Where it was worth only a few dollars an acre a few years ago, it has now advanced to a price where many of the large holders of land have decided to part with some of their holdings.

"In this way some of the states of the West are rapidly losing their characteristics. Texas is undergoing a transformation. It is the same way in Montana. Arizona, Nevada, Wyoming and Idaho have not experienced the land rush as much as the first two named states. However, it is only a question of time before these states will begin to lose that land bigness, as they call it in the West. The movement from the East to the West is on, and if it continues for two or three years at the present rate, it will make the western states a fairly well settled community."

THE WEATHER.

Cloudy weather with rain is looked for tonight by the weather man. Yesterday was delightfully clear and bright, although a trifle cool, and today broke fair, but the sky clouded during the morning.

The sun rose this morning at 4:47 and will set this afternoon at 7:22, making fourteen hours and thirty-five minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"A disturbance of marked intensity has developed over Alberta and Saskatchewan. Thus far it has caused rain in Oregon only, but there has resulted a decided increase in temperature in all districts lying between the 85th and 115th meridians, while the barometer has fallen in nearly all districts. During the past twenty-four hours further rain or snow occurred in the northeastern lake region, Ohio valley, Arkansas, New England and South Atlantic states largely due to the storm center that has moved off into the North Atlantic region. Indications favor occasional light rains at the Head of the Lakes tonight and Wednesday."

North Dakota—Fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer in south and cooler in north portion tonight.

Reduce the Cost of Living.

New York World: No amount of quibbling by Senator Aldrich over the tariff plank in the Republican platform will alter the fact that the people expect the cost of living to be reduced by the revision of the Dingley rates. Senator Dolliver was right when he said that they "are tired of having these duties raised from 100 to 150 per cent for the clothes they wear upon their backs."

The average man does not understand economic and trade technicalities. The subject does not interest him. He will not wade through dreary senate debates on protective duties on carpet wool, on waste and shoddy or on schedules graded according to the number of threads in a piece of cotton goods. He cannot interpret the phraseology of tariff acts or estimate the effect, measured in imports and manufactures, of ad valorem and specific duties. But he does know that the necessaries of life are oppressively high and he wants the tariff changed so as to afford him relief from the exactions of privilege that grows more and more arrogant and greedy.

The people have little time for analyzing the Dingley rates, even if they could, but they know what has happened to them under the existing tariff. They know that they have not been getting the worth of their money in protected articles of food and clothing. Steadily increasing dearness of prices is what they hear powerful sections of the party glorify as prosperity. They are tired of it, as Senator Dolliver declares, and they judge tariffs by their results. They have had enough of the Dingley tariff, of which the schedules are designed to make things better for them, not merely for a special class who have the ear of congressional committees.

The pending tariff will be acceptable to the people only if its schedules are made reasonable in the eyes of the people. They will not be reasonable if they do not lower the cost of living. They will not be reasonable if Senator Aldrich enables his old-time stand-patter friends outside of congress to write their own schedules into the bill. They will not be made reasonable by putting a false partisan construction on the Republican platform to justify higher duties on necessaries and higher prices to millions of consumers.

Hark! Hark! The Lark!

Hark, hark, the lark at heaven's gates sings,
And Phoebus 'gins arise,
His steeds to water at those springs
On chaliced flowers that lies;
And winking Mary-buds begin
To ops their golden eyes;
With everything that pretty is,
My lady sweet, arise:
Arise, arise.

And given you a jab

The Sanguinary Sultan.

Louisville Herald: It is impossible to connect the hideous outrages that are at present deluging Armenia with the collapse of innocent blood with the collapse of constitutional government in Constantinople.

Back of both these recent developments is the sultan, a man of sinister and unscrupulous mind, utterly selfish and eager only to conserve his own life with what vestige of power he can retain.

The uprising of the soldiers and capture of the committee on union and progress was unquestionably instigated by the sultan, and the subsequent massacres are probably the sequence of his prompting, the purpose being to distract attention from the constitutional crisis, and in the chaos to find excuse for abandoning the constitution and regaining his autocratic control.

The sultan knows that Europe dare not interfere effectively. He knows that it is in the interests of European politics to keep him on his bloody throne, and he cares little for a parade of warships, being ready at any time to call off his Turkish dogs and make a show of restoring peace while he protests to the world that Turkey is manifestly unready for a parliament of the people.

The slaughter of Jews and Christians is a crime that lies at the sultan's door. The lives of women and children are the coin with which he is buying his own immunity from overthrow. It is an eternal shame to Christian Europe that it should permit the continuance of this plague spot upon its map.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Tonight Duluth will take on a long delayed metropolitan feature. The first circuit of the Duluth Electric company will be turned on, and that portion of the city from Tenth avenue west to Fifth avenue east, and between Superior and Eighth streets, will be a blaze of light and glory. About forty lights will be in operation. Some delay has been experienced in getting poles, but the entire system will be in shape by May 21.

H. A. Tiffany, manager of the Iron Range company, is moving his effects from Manistee, Mich., and will soon occupy his fine residence on Sheridan street, Ely.

Charles Conaty, newsboy on the Duluth & Iron Range road, is short fifty boxes of figs—stolen from the baggage room at Duluth.

H. R. Elliott, foreman at Sutphin's slaughter house at Oneota, is laid up with a sprained ankle, the result of a chase for a runaway steer. The men employed at the house gave chase when the steer dashed out of a door, but were in turn bunted by the infuriated animal and were compelled to seek safety. The steer then turned and made for the bay, and swam two miles to the opposite shore. Mr. Elliott found it this morning wandering near Superior and killed it with a rifle shot.

M. O Hall, cashier of the State bank, charged with assault and battery on the person of C. C. Brown, a reporter, was fined $15 and costs, amounting to $22.14.

The St. Nicholas hotel on Lake avenue, which has been closed for nearly a year, will be opened in a few days with Edward Dixon, an old hotel man, as proprietor.

James McDermott, night clerk of the Western Union Telegraph company, while attempting to walk on logs in the bay near the foot of Fifth avenue west, fell into the water and was nearly drowned before he was rescued.

The board of education has entered into a contract for the Johnson heat-regulating apparatus in all the Duluth school buildings heated by steam or furnace. The contract amounts to about $7,000.

On the silver wedding anniversary of Herr Dworshak, editor of the Volksfreund, on May 1, his friends at Turner hall presented him with two fine revolving chairs.

The executive board of the ladies' new literary club has decided to name the organization, "The Saturday club."

The contract for building the Graff block, to be erected next the Merchants hotel, has been let to B. F. Shanley. It will be of brick, four stories high on Michigan street and three stories on Superior, and will cost about $17,000.

The Norris tenements on Third street east, between First and Second avenues, will be built by Carlton & Hankinson. They will cost fully $28,000.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Pine City Pine Poker: Since the adjournment of the legislature the usual number of chronic kickers are out with the hammer, apparently forgetful of the fact that the legislature is a necessary evil.

Waverly Star and Tribune: Evidently the defeat of Jacob P. Jacobson for governor did not altogether dampen the enthusiasm of some of his friends, and the Lac qui Parle man is now being mentioned as a suitable candidate for state auditor two years hence.

Milaca Times: The Milaca Times editor knows something about Socialism, but wisely keeps it to himself.—St. Cloud Times.

And the editor of the St. Cloud Times knows nothing about Socialism and is unwisely exposing his ignorance.

Ortonville Herald-Star: The session just closed was at least not guilty of making any new statesmen. Governor Johnson is still the whole thing with both the old parties.

Sauk Center Herald: The 1909 legislature did a few—very few—good things. It certainly reached the limit when it came to helping anybody but itself. It's adjourned, and that's something to be thankful for. There will probably be still further cause for thankfulness when the next legislature convenes, for unless all signs fail, most of the 1909 chairwarmers will be left at home. Mark the prediction.

Wabasha Herald: Well, the legislature is through once more and will be the worst ever—until the next one.

Aitkin Republican: If Northern Minnesota ever expects to get reapportionment, it will have to send men to the legislature who will make all measures of local interest and benefit subservient to the question of the passage of a just reapportionment bill, and who will unite and work for such a law to the exclusion, if necessary, of all other laws. Without the power it is entitled to in the legislature, Northern Minnesota will always be at the mercy of the members from the southern part of the state, who are not always guided in voting by a sense of right and justice.

Johnson Came Out Ahead.

Detroit News: With the adjournment of the Minnesota legislature the newspapers of that commonwealth are commenting on the work accomplished. There was too much maneuvering for political advantage by the legislators, a large majority of whom were Republicans. They started out with a determination to ignore the recommendations of Governor Johnson, Democrat, and to do only those things initiated by the machine. But this effort to frame up a party policy met with poor success, for it was found that back of the governor's recommendation the people, and that the more his policies were ignored the worse it was for his opponents. So the governor succeeded in his demand for more effective regulation and supervision of state banks; for a new state prison plan desired by the farming interests; for county schools of agriculture, and for the re-enactment of the commodity rate law, with those sections eliminated that had been declared invalid by the supreme court.

All attempts to pass laws giving greater control over public utility corporations failed, as also did attempts to improve the tax laws. The politicians wanted to abolish the primary election law, but did not dare to; so they contented themselves with voting down amendments for either its extension or perfecting. One commendable thing done was the practicing of economy in making appropriations, so that next year's tax rate should be lower than this year's, but some of this good work was undone by considerably increasing the cost of this legislative session over the last. As Governor Johnson is a possible Democratic presidential candidate, the methods of his Republican opponents in a Republican state to lessen his influence and prestige is interesting; but in this as in other contests of this character he seems to have come out ahead.

MEANT TO BE FUNNY.

Life: From a Forthcoming novel—Paniestricken, we saw that our little airboat, in which we had endeavored to escape from the wreck of the airship, was rapidly filling with atmosphere.

"But had I been drinking?"

"Well, you were ordering him to go aloft and furl sail."

Puck: "They say Flubdub's youngest boy is quite a prodigy."

"Yes, he can name all the vice presidents of the United States."

London Public Opinion: Cholly—The dentist told me I had a large cavity that needed filling.

Ethel—Did he recommend any special course of study?

Chicago Tribune: "You are charged with larceny. Are you guilty or not guilty?"

"Not guilty, Judge. I thought I was, but I've been talkin' to my lawyer, an' he's convinced me that I ain't."

Philadelphia Record: Henpecke—Every man has something to be thankful for.

Wigwag—What have you to be thankful for?

Henpecke—That I'm not a Mormon.

Boston Transcript: He—If I'd known how sarcastic you were I never should have married you.

She—You had a chance to notice it. Didn't I say, "This is so sudden," when you proposed to me after four years' courtship?

The Strength of Hughes.

Chicago Post: When Governor Hughes was interrupted at a public meeting in Rochester by the news that the Hinman-Green bill, which embodied his direct primary views, had been killed in committee at Albany, he said: "This question is not past, it is only just begun."

Why this prediction has been received with considerable distaste by the leaders of the "organization" the New York Evening Post cleverly illustrates through a composite interview with "the man on the street." The words of this imaginary yet real personage run as follows:

Now, as for the Hinman-Green bill, I don't know. I haven't read it, and I don't expect to read it. I'm not a lawyer, and like as not I wouldn't make head or tail out of it if I did read it. I didn't read the insurance bills three years ago, but I was for 'em; I didn't read the public service commission bill, but I wanted to see it passed; I didn't read the race track bills last year, but I was in favor of 'em. I don't read any bills that are before the legislature, and I don't expect to.

But I tell you what I do intend to do. We've got down there at Albany now a governor that we can trust. We can trust not only his heart, but his brains, and we know he's on the job. I don't know much about the Hinman-Green bill—though from what I've heard of it in the newspapers it looks pretty good to me—but I know that Governor Hughes has been over it line by line, and that he has had the help of some pretty clever politicians in getting it up. Now, if he says it's all right, I'm going to take his word for it.

We don't get a man of his character and ability in the executive chamber every day, and while he's there I'm going to back him, and I know a lot of other people who are going to do the same. All we're waiting for now is for Hughes to say when and what.

This is the strength of Hughes. The people believe in him. Also he has the ear of his state as directly as Mr. Roosevelt had the ear of the nation. And with this combination to beat we advise the Hon. Timothy Woodruff to climb down from his perch and be just as good as the "organization" heart beneath his little pink waistcoat will let him.

Wonderful!

Los Angeles Express: And yet women will put on the ugly, unsightly, hideous imitation of a washtub inverted, wear it on the street and then wonder what drives man to divorce!

"MERRY WIDOW" HITS DULUTH

And She Proves Fully Up to the Advertisements.

"The Merry Widow" hat is a familiar friend in Duluth; "The Merry Widow" waltz has been tried on most local pianos, and "The Merry Widow" rings are decorating many fair feminine fingers in town, but the lady, who gave such inspiration to the milliners; such a twinkling in the feet and humming in the throats of several continents did not arrive until last night, when she appeared at the Lyceum theater against a gorgeous back-ground of elaborate scenery, swagger, expensive costumes and smart players that has seldom if ever been equalled in a local theater. In fact, 'The Merry Widow" is just as advertised.

The reason the piece has not been seen here before is that New York and other Eastern cities which have first call in matters theatrical would not let it go. Those who attended the opening performance of "The Merry Widow's" engagement at the Lyceum last night easily understood why New York and the capitals of Europe raved over the piece.

Last night's audience eagerly drank in every bit of the delightful, tinkling music, every line of the story, and sat enraptured at the wonderful stage pictures which were unfolded in kaleidoscopic profusion.

So much was heard about "The Merry Widow" before the piece came to town that some people went to the theater with the firm conviction that its merits had been overestimated and that the production could not possibly come up to expectations. Those who harbored such ideas saw them dissolve at the first rise of the curtain, which displayed a ball scene of such brilliance that some people involuntary gave little "ohs" and "ahs" of delight and appreciation. And so it was during the rest of the performance, something new to charm, every minute.

THE MERRY WIDOW WALTZ.

"The Merry Widow" is a beautiful peasant girl of the mythical comic opera country of Marsovia, who upon the death of an aged husband finds herself possessed of an immense fortune and in consequence her hand is much sought.

Popoff, the Marsovian ambassador in Paris, seeing the fortunes of his beloved fatherland dwindling and his own comfortable job in danger of being extinguished, because of his nation's financial stringency, plans a marriage between his nephew, Prince Danila, and the widow.

The prince is a likeable, care-free individual, fond of the cafes and absinthe frappes. He discovers in the widow a sweetheart of his youth and scorns the idea of marrying her merely for her money, but promises his tottering old uncle to at least manage to put Sonia's (the widow's) other suitors out of the running.

As a matter of fact, the prince finds that he really loves the widow, and there is no mistake about her affection for him. By one ruse and another, mostly by showing up the other suitors as money-grabbing cads, not excluding the Marsovian ambassador, who was ready to divorce his wife to marry her, the prince gets rid of all the widow's admirers. When she makes the statement that if she marries again, she loses all her money, most of them hustle away, but the prince declares his love, to prove that his affection was not the mercenary brand. And they lived happily ever afterwards.

Aside from the attraction of her money, the widow might easily have many at her feet, for, in the person of Mabel Withee, who sings the role, she presents as charming a picture of feminine loveliness as the average masculine fancy could conjure. Moreover, she is an actress of ability and manages the many little situations which are a part of the role with captivating artfulness. Yes, "artful is the word," as Mr. Nish (Thomas Leary), the comic embassy messenger, was wont to remark.

Opposite here there is Charles Meakins, in the role of the prince. These two are the most important members of the cast and they give complete satisfaction. Mr. Meakins is a handsome chap, with a good voice, an excellent idea of what comedy is and an ability to dance, which is most essential to the part.

The charm of the music begins with the ball music at the rise of the first curtain. After a pretty duet by Natalie (Miss Georgena Leary) and Camille (Paul Bleyden), Miss Withee makes her entrance, and is heard to advantage in a beautiful number, "In Marsovia."

Toward the end of the first act the prince and the widow do a very graceful waltz, but the famous "Merry Widow waltz" does not come until the second act. To arouse his jealousy and induce him to speak his love for her, the widow tells Danilo that she is soon to wed, and urges him to dance with her for the last time the national dance of their native land, Marsovia. The prince consents, and they afterwards do the waltz.

This waltz is perhaps a little more amorous than it is given in local ball rooms, but it is not offensive and called forth many encores last evening. Incidentally, neither is the cafe scene in the last act anything to get squeamish about.

At the opening of the second act, the chorus does a peasant dance that is wonderful in its way. The widow's song, "Villa," her "Cavalier" duet with the prince and "Women," sung by a male septet are other delightful numbers of the second act. The finale of the second act is an operatic effort of great effectiveness and musical worth.

For all of the numbers, Frank Lehar's original score gives a bewitching basis and Adrian Ross, who wrote the lyrics, has happily caught the splendid motif and provided lines that are intelligent as well as pleasant to listen to.

Much of the comedy is furnished by the Marsovian ambassador and the embassy messenger. Oscar Filgman, who has appeared here in "The Burgomaster," "The Tenderfoot" and other pieces, makes himself amusing as the ambassador without getting out of the role, and Thomas Leary, who has appeared here in the support of many comic opera stars, is capital as the absurd messenger.

Georgena Leary as the ambassador's dutiful wife and Paul Bleyden as Camille possess good voices, as do the other and less important members of the cast, and there is one of the prettiest and best gowned choruses that ever cavorted at the Lyceum. The work of the chorus is worthy of no end of commendation.

Scenically, the production is a triumph for Col. Henry W. Savage, whose sagacity in entertainment matters was proven when he secured the American rights to "The Merrie Widow" at the time it was being presented in Vienna, the home of the composer.

"The Merry Widow" will be repeated this evening, tomorrow afternoon and night, and Thursday night.

AT THE BIJOU.

Two strong acts are included in the Bijou program this week. The strongest act of the bill is the Dunitsero-Vernette troupe of acrobats, who do some of the most difficult flying bar work ever seen in this city. Their work is thrilling at times, and they do their feats with an ease and grace that make them seem easy.

Jack Wyatt and Blanche Rice, in a one-act sketch, "The Unexpected," provide many hearty laughs for the audience. The act is one that was once played on the Orpheum circuit, and it has lost nothing in production or mounting in the change to the Sullivan & Considine circuit. Little Miss Rice is a clever person, and Jack Wyatt does full justice to the college man, who was ready to plunge upon a sure thing.

The Ramsey Sisters made one of the biggest hits of any musical offering of the current season. The smaller of the two sisters, in addition to being a clever musician, is a comedian who is able to get a laugh at any stage of the performance. The act is very good.

Mlle. Rialto and company, presenting "The Artist's Dream," give an act that pleases. Mlle. Rialto does some artistic posing.

Slater Brockman in character songs and imitations, was fair. He works hard and does some things well.

The motion pictures were very good.

There are 200 newspapers in China, while ten years ago there was but one recognized as such.

THE SOX TAKE A WALLOPING

Madison Team Takes Duluth Into Camp 14 to 4.

Madison, Wis., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Madison team of the Wisconsin-Illinois league walked all over the Duluth White Sox in a game here yesterday. The final score was 14 to 4, favoring the locals.

The home team got to Thorsen for fourteen safe bingles and the team made errors at critical points. The weather was not the most favorable for baseball and that may account, in part, for the rather loose playing on both sides. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Duluth ..... 2 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0—	4	13	2

Five Pitchers Used.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 4.—Boston gained what appeared to be a safe lead by scoring six runs in the fourth yesterday, but two innings later Brooklyn tied the score. In their final round at bat, however, the visitors hit in two runs and won, 9 to 7. Both teams batted freely, necessitating the employment of five pitchers. Bates led in the batting with a single, double and triple. Boston and Brooklyn will play a double-header tomorrow. Score: R. H. E.

Chase Given Cup.

New York, May 4.—Hal Chase's return to first base after a siege of smallpox was signalized yesterday by the presentation to him of a silver loving cup by his team mates and a 9 to 6 victory over Philadelphia. The game, however, was otherwise featureless and slow. Schlitzer was knocked out of the box in the first inning, and Dygert, who succeeded him, fared little better. Krause, pitching for Philadelphia, in the last five innings was fairly effective. Chase made one hit but scored three runs. Pitcher Chesbro also reported to Manager Stallings yesterday. Score: R. H. WINTERGREEN WINS DERBY

Takes Classic Kentucky Event on a Heavy Track.

Louisville, Ky. May 4.—Running strong and never in trouble at any point along the mile and a quarter journey, Wintergreen led a field of ten all the way around the famous old Churchill Downs course in the thirty-fifth Kentucky derby yesterday afternoon. The winner, a big, bright bay colt by Dick Welles out of Winter, owned by J. P. Respess, finished a length and a half in front of Miami, which was two lengths ahead of Dr. Barkley. The mile and a quarter was covered in 2:08 1-5 over a rather heavy track. The horses contested for the stake, which had a total value of $6,000 and worth $5,600 to the winner. Cold weather and showers which fell until noon kept the attendance down to 15,000.

Betting in the Pari-mutuel machines and in the auction pools was heavy. The weight of the public's money in the machines made a ticket on Wintergreen pay about 2 to 1; Miami 2½ to 1; Friend Harry 3 to 1; Michael Angelo 4 to 1; Dr. Barkley 15 to 1, and the others strung out all the way up to 100 to 1.

DULUTH CHILDREN ARE CLEVER PERFORMERS

JESSIE BEATTY AND ARCHIE DENNIS,
Two Duluth Children, Who Will Appear in a Fancy Skating Exhibition Friday and Saturday Evenings and Saturday Afternoon at the Temple Roller Rink.

Dr. Lynam, emulating the numerous attempts of one Commodore Perry, is thinking seriously of trying tomorrow to assemble his recruits at the boathouse of the Duluth Boat club and attempt to for a some way through that wall of ice into the open waters of the bay beyond.

Eliza would have a splendid scenic equipment for her dash with her child across the ice if she would only come down and do a dash for liberty upon the floes that block thebay. The ice may be out by June also, it may not. The officials of the boat club are thinking seriously of blasting a boat path out to the blue track of the big boats. Something desperate will have to be done. It is like waiting for the outcome of the Whitehead-Gunther fight.

If old Sol is indulgent tomorrow there may be some chance that the ice will have melted sufficiently for the crews to get out into the clear waters. It is rather hard luck that after getting nicely started, the crews were forced to abandon their outdoor work.

Weather conditions at St. Paul were not very much better than the conditions up here, but the current of the Mississippi river probably kept the course of the Minnesota Boat club from freezing over, and it is probable that the chaps who are trying for that crew have had another early start upon the candidates for the Duluth crews. Up at Winnipeg they are liable to run into almost any kind of weather, but it is safe to gamble that the crews of the Winnipeg club are also out upon the water. Duluth is usually the last crew to get on the water.

St. Paul is the crew that the Duluth people have their optics pealed for, and that crew is the crew that Duluth will have to beat, probably both in the junior and senior events. For that reason it is up to the members of the crews to work all the harder when the weather man gets over his fit of distemper.

Lloyd K. Jones, writing in the Denver Post, says:

"We may laugh, with the wanton mirth of city folk, at the ruddy glow of the boys from the small towns and the bucolic places. In fine, it would seem as though we had placed a premium on early senility. The country boy might, betimes, shy at street cars, and at automobiles (a most pardonable sin), and might gasp at the dizzy trips elevators take. He might drink out of the finger bowls, and do other rash things, but he usually has health, and in that has us beat ten ways from the ace and forty ways from breakfast."

Brother writes apropos of Champion Frank Gotch and little Freddy Beell. Gotch was raised upon a farm at Humboldt, Iowa, when other athletes, he has since met and conquered, were straining their vitality in too great exercise and neglecting their lungs by not breathing enough pure air into them, the man from Humboldt was plowing the broad and smiling acres of Papa Gotch's farm. He was guiding the handles of a plow and pitching hay in his early youth.

Frank first burst upon an admiring public in store clothes and a country drawl. But he had the glow of health in his ruddy cheeks, something that is sadly missing from the faces of many professional athletes.

He beat Hackenschmidt because his vitality was greater than the Russian's. Gotch never held that he was as strong as the Russian Lion. But he had greater staying powers, simply because in the formulative part of his physical development he lived close to the bosom of old Mother Nature.

It has been the same way with little Beell. The little Dutchman went to the woods of Wisconsin when he was still upon the milk diet. He has remained there most of his life. There is a look of the great outdoors in the eye and countenance of the little Badger wonder, and the reason that he has been able to beat so many men, who outweighed him many pounds, was because his vitality has been conserved instead of strained to the breaking point.

There are other cases that might be cited. Old Cy Young, eh? Born down on the farm, by jiek, he is pitching ball when, without exception, the men who started in the game with him have been sent to the cleaners. You have to hand it to the boy from the country; when he goes into athletics he generally gets to the top.

GOTCH WINS FROM REIMER

Throws Des Moines Man in Two Straight Falls.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 4.—Before 5,000 people, the largest crowd that ever attended a wrestling match in Iowa, Frank Gotch, world's champion heavyweight wrestler, last night defeated Jesse Reimer of Des Moines in two straight falls, 19¾ and 15 minutes respectively.

The first fall was conceded by Reimer after Gotch had almost broken his leg with a wicked toe-hold. Reimer twice succeeded in breaking the hold, but failed at the third attempt.

The second fall came after some spectacular sparring, in which Reimer succeeded in staying behind Gotch half the time and breaking six different holds. The house went wild when Reimer got the champion into several dangerous holes but Gotch broke the holds at will. Finally Gotch worked Reimer into a body and head hold and slowly crushed his man to the mat.

Thousands of out-of-town sports attended the match. Dr. H. F. Roller of Seattle refereed. Farmer Burns, George Turner, Lawrence Piergue, Chris Pearson and Emil Klank were among the more celebrated wrestlers present. Considerable money was wagered, as Reimer has a strong following in Des Moines. Gotch received 40 per cent of the gate receipts of a $4,000 house.

Arrangements were made after the match for a finish bout between Dr. Roller and Reimer in June, to be held here.

GAME LAWS ARE MORE STRINGENT

Sept. 7 Will Now Be Opening of Hunting Season.

The game and fish laws are this year greatly changed and some privileges that have been extended to the sportsmen during the past few years have been taken away. The game in Northern Minnesota is none too plentiful and the new laws aim to protect what is left so far as possible.

As a general thing the new laws make a hit with local sportsmen. Everyone is anxious that the game be protected, and those that have a chance to get into the woods but once a year are particularly anxious that means be taken by the legislature whereby the wholesale slaughter of game be stopped.

The new laws provide that hunting rabbits with ferrits is unlawful; changes the date of the opening of the bird season from Sept. 1 to Sept. 7, and prohibits hunting from motor boats, launches or sail boats.

The laws also say that the selling of wall-eyed pike shall be unlawful and calls for the permanent protection of the beaver. The laws prohibit fishing within fifty feet of a fishway.

Bowling Scores.

The bowling season was brought to a close last evening, when the Fitwells took three straight games from the General Electrics. C. Hale of the Electrics rooled the high score of 230 and high average of 204.

INCOME TAX IS FAVORED

Borah Says Extravagance Has Become a National Disease.

Wealth Should Bear Just Proportion of Cost, He Declares.

Washington, May 4.—Declaring that extravagance has become almost a national disease, Senator Borah yesterday argued for an income tax as a means for wiping out the deficit in the treasury as well as awakening public interest in national expenditures. He said the tax, which he proposed, should be used to build up a great navy and a great army for the purpose of cowering the nations of the earth, but that the burden of taxation should be taken from those who dig the earth and put upon the purses of those who would never miss it.

"I believe in an income tax," said Mr. Borah, "not that we may impose the whole burden of government upon the rich or upon wealth, but that wealth may bear its just proportion of that burden which it does not do under a system of taxation resting entirely upon consumption. Every system of taxation resting upon consumption should be supplemented with an income tax, not alone for the purpose of raising extra revenue, but for distributing the burden of whatever revenue is necessary more equitably and more in accordance with the ability to pay."

Contending that the income tax was equitable and fair, not class legislation and not an attack upon wealth but simply a reasonable demand that the burdens of government should be met in due proportion by the great property interests and accumulated wealth, Mr. Borah asserted that it was a tax which gauges itself according to a man's success or failure. He said it reaches the income of the professional man, who may now escape almost entirely. Declaring that it was no more an incentive to perjury or fraud than the personal tax laws in the various states, Mr. Borah claimed that the income tax was no more inquisitorial than the system of national taxation of today. He referred to the recent smuggling cases in New York.

Educator in Economy.

"I believe in it," continued Mr. Borah, "strange as it may seem to some, as an educator in economy in public expenditures. For a hundred years we have been making speeches in favor of cutting down expenditures, and voting the other way. The congress in which the voice of retrenchment was loudest has been followed almost invariably by the congress carrying the largest appropriations."

Referring to the statement which was made by Mr. Aldrich that congress, in the last session, appropriated $50,000,000 unnecessarily, Mr. Borah said "If that be true, and I believe the figures to be modest, what an awful indictment of this congress, and how vain and futile seems all prophecy as to the future in the matter of retrenchment. I do not want to be misunderstood. I have no kind of doubt that the senator from Rhode Island is entirely sincere and wholly in earnest when he says that we must curtail expenditures. Neither do I underrate his ability or his power. If he succeeds, he will have performed a greater service to his country than has been performed by any man in forty years."

Mr. Borah, asserting that extravagance has become almost a national disease, said, "It permeates the home, it permeates college and church, it pervades society and it is rife in every department of government—that it has reached almost the point of criminality is proven by the words of the senator from Rhode Island. It is a disease of the blood and you cannot cure it like appendicitis by cutting it off. You will have to rehabilitate the system. This will take time and a great deal of attention and immeasurable persistence of purpose. In other words, you will never do it until public opinion is thoroughly aroused."

Lacks Specific Information.

So long as the sole system of taxation for national expenditures consists in that form of taxation which does not inform the man who pays the tax, of the specific amount he pays, and so long as it taxes the poor and rich to the same extent, Mr. Borah contended that public opinion will lack that specific information, the direct, concrete example as to extravagance necessary to arouse it to a careful scrutiny and an awakened interest in what is being done with the money collected. He said there is no way by which public opinion can be aroused so deeply and so quickly as by calling upon the powerful property interests to assume each year a specific amount to defray the expenses of the government.

"When you say to them under those circumstances," argued Mr. Borah, "I have spent $50,000,000 of your money unnecessarily and just because I could, you will be called to the bar of public opinion and condemned to the solitude of private life."

Speaking of the agitation for a greater navy, Mr. Borah said that if more ships must be built, they should be built by the wealth of the nation. The constant preparation for war justified and demanded an income tax just as much as the preparation for war did in other days, was his contention. He said he did not criticise at this time the necessity of building ships or enlarging the army, but claimed that this program could not be continued by a tax on consumption. "The working people and the producers of this country are willing to help," concluded Mr. Borah, "but they ask that in these extraordinary expenditures property and gathered wealth may assume their portion of the burden.

Trenton, N. J., May 4.—Misses Emma, Lillian and Mary James, wealthy maiden ladies of this city have sailed from New York for a three-months' European tour, taking with them as personal escort and bodyguard Patrolman Hamilton Crisp, a husky member of the city police force.

Several months ago, in a series of burglaries, an attempt to enter the James home was frustrated through the vigilance of Crisp.

It was to show their appreciation of this watchfulness, as well as because they felt the need of a man in their party during their tour, that they invited Crisp to accompany them, and used their influence with the police commissioners to obtain leave of absence for him.

HAIR-PULLING CONTEST.

Indulged In By Women While Divorce Suit Was Going On.

Morgantown, Ky., May 4.—While Attorneys N. T. Howard and N. W. Good were engaged in taking depositions in a divorce suit in the circuit court clerk's office the defendant, Mrs. Curley Taylor, and the witness, Mrs. Frank Baker, became enraged over some evidence which the witness was giving and indulged in a fierce hair-pulling contest and fist fight. The two attorneys and Circuit Clerk R. E. Keown were unable to separate the two women and three or four other men had to be called in before they could be separated. Beyond a few bruises and scratches, and with the loss of some hair, the two women were unhurt.

Atlanta, Ga., May 4.—Because his wife, Mrs. Sue Montgomery, said disparaging things about Atlanta and refused to live here, preferring to live in Chattanooga, which she praised, H. B. Montgomery, a merchant, has sued for divorce.

The petitioner states that he and his wife were married in Jefferson county, Ky., and afterward came to live in Atlanta; that his wife did not like Atlanta, and continually nagged at him and "was all the time running down Atlanta."

The petitioner states his wife finally left him, but afterward agreed to live with him if he would come to Chattanooga. His wife, he says, is now at her home, in Kentucky.

Tornadoes — AND — Wind Storms

Man has no adequate defense against such storms. He may build with the utmost care, construct his home and office structure of the most approved material and with the most competent workmanship, and use every precaution experience approved; yet comes a puff of wind and man's puny works are undone. He can temper the storm, but not conquer it. The elements are still supreme.

Millions of dollars in property are destroyed annually, many lives lost, men and women maimed and crippled for life—it is usually a sorry story written in letters of ruin and devastation. Great manufacturing plants crumbled beneath their furious blasts, churches wrecked, their spires wrenched off and toppled into the naves, residences crushed and pushed from their foundations, streets littered with the debris of church, home and factory; such details but inadequately tell the story.

You can build a fire-proof but not a tornado-proof building.

The cost of tornado insurance is small. The chance of loss is great. Can you afford to save the small cost and assume the great loss?

A tornado today might destroy your home, and a policy tomorrow would be too late. Buy a policy today. It will build your home if destroyed by a tornado tomorrow. The rate is surprisingly low.

GARFIELD AVENUE WILL BE PAVED THIS SUMMMER

City Will Pay Half the Cost of the Improvement.

Balance Will Be Raised By Assessment and Subscription.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.

Bound city to pay one-half of paving Garfield avenue, which means that improvement will come this year.

Refused to extend saloon limits in West end.

Adopted resolution asking representatives of Minnesota and Wisconsin in Washington to see about a wagon bridge between Superior and West Duluth.

Authorized reorganization of city engineer's department.

Voted to make it a misdemeanor to extinguish street lights.

Ratified mayor's appointments of poundmasters.

According to a resolution adopted by the council last night, Garfield avenue will be paved this year, from the viaduct to the interstate bridge. The city will pay one-half the cost of the work, one-fourth will be assessed against owners of abutting property, and one-fourth will be raised by subscription among the business interests benefitted. The cost of the improvement will, it is estimated, be about $80,000.

There was quite an argument over the proposed work. Aldermen McKnight and Bloedel were opposed to it on the ground that the city could not afford it at the present time. When it was explained to Alderman McKnight that the city's share of the expenditure would be raised by a special bond issue, not to exceed $60,000, and that the bonds were to be taken care of in equal amounts yearly, with money to be raised by a tax provided especially for the purpose, he reluctantly admitted that it might be all right to go ahead with the paving. It will be necessary to raise only about $5,000 a year by the special tax.

Alderman Moore delivered a strong talk in favor of the improvement. He urged the city to accept the opportunity to have the work done on the basis finally agreed upon. He said the avenue was a disgrace to the city, and that Duluth was not treating its business and commercial interests fairly in allowing the thoroughfare to remain unimproved. He made the statement that Duluth did less than any city in the country for its commercial interests. Aldermen Hector, Moe and Hogan were among those speaking for the project.

Mayor Haven explained that about 27 per cent of the property along Garfield belonged to the railroads, and was therefore exempt from taxation. The biggest portion of the remainder is owned by corporations, and only a small part is owned by individual property owners. It is among these corporations that it is proposed to raise 25 per cent of the cost of the work, which they will pay in addition to the 25 per cent assessment, according to an agreement already made. Thus the corporations along the avenue will be paying double the amount assessed against the small property holder. Some of the additional assessment or, more properly speaking, subscription, will be borne by other business interests using the avenue, but which do not own property along it. The resolution adopted by the council reads as follows:

"Resolved, That the board of public works is hereby directed to circulate a petition for the paving of Garfield avenue, from the viaduct to the southerly line of Pine avenue, and also to circulate a subscription list toward the cost of said improvement among the commercial interests using said avenue, and the city of Duluth does hereby agree that the property assessable for said improvement will not be assessed for more than 25 per cent of the total cost of said improvement."

A delegation was on hand from the West end to protest against the extension of the saloon district from Twenty-fourth to Twenty-fifth avenues west, on Superior street, and gained its point. The aldermen voted to lay the matter on the table. There were several women in the delegation, which was made up largely of the same people who visited the council chambers at the time of the fight against the Meier license was on. Three or four members of the delegation spoke against allowing the extension.

* * *

The council ordered the board of public works to readvertise for bids for paving Fourth street, from Fifth avenue west to Sixth avenue east. A change in the specifications, made after the plans were originally announced to the contractors, led to a misunderstanding among some of them, which had the result of making their bids worthless, as not properly applying to the subject in hand. The different contractors understood the specifications differently. By readvertising, all the men wishing to bid on the job will be given a fair show, for they now thoroughly understand just what is wanted.

* * *

The condemnation of a route for the proposed Sundby road was ordered. This was ordered two or three weeks ago, but opposition arose from certain quarters, and the action was reconsidered. Last week the opposing factions got together, at a hearing before the council committee on harbors, parks and roads, and came to a harmonious agreement, whereby the road was to follow the course originally mapped out. The resolution of last night provides for a condemnation of that route.

* * *

An ordinance was adopted last night making it a misdemeanor for any person maliciously to extinguish street lamps, either by turning them out or breaking them. Anyone detected in extinguishing any of these lights will be arrested and fined.

* * *

A resolution was adopted asking Congressmen Miller and Senators Nelson and Clapp to see to it that any bridge authorized between West Duluth and Superior be provided with a right-of-way for teams and pedestrians, as well as for railroads.

* * *

The reorganization of the city engineer's department, allowing a larger force for certain classes of work, said employes to be hired under competitive civil service examinations, was authorized.

* * *

The Duluth Telephone company was granted permission to lay underground conduits for its wires on First street from Twelfth to Twenty-first avenues east; on First alley from Fifth avenue west to Mesaba avenue; on Fifteenth avenue east from Second alley to Superior street on Fifth avenue west from First street to the courthouse; on Seventeenth avenue east from First to Second street; on Nineteenth avenue east from First to Dingwall streets, and on Twenty-first avenue east from First alley to the north side of Fourth street.

* * *

About $6,000 worth of sidewalks were ordered, and sewer contracts to cost in the neighborhood of $7,000 were provided for. All of them were for small improvements in this line, but in the aggregate the amount is large. A number of miscellaneous licenses were granted. Alderman Moe objected to the council granting any more auctioneers license, and it was decided to postpone action on some of these applications one week.

* * *

The mayor's appointments of poundmasters were ratified as follows: James M. Campbell, First district; Frank Ellis, Second district; Samuel Wenberg, Third district; J. N. Ritchie, Fourth district; John Mark, Fifth district.

MASONIC LODGE GIVES BANQUET

Palestine Celebrates Its Thirty-Ninth Anniversary.

More than 500 people, men and women attended the banquet at the Masonic temple last night, given in commemoration of the thirty-ninth anniversary of the founding of Palestine lodge No. 79. An excellent menu was served, followed during the late evening by toasts and a fine musical program. Many women were present, it having become the established custom for them to attend these annual banquets.

A. C. Volk was in charge of the evening's entertainment and welcomed the Masons and their invited guests. W. B. Patton, responded to the toast, "Masonry's Achievements," and T. W. Hugo spoke on "Masonry's Universality." The ladies were honored with a special toast which was responded to by A. P. Cook. The musical program was as follows:

"Chorus of peers" (Iolanthe)..Sullivan
Chorus
Song—"Under the Willow"....Stanton
Master Donald Alexander.
"Day Is Breaking".....Mozart
Chorus.
"Family Tree" ..... Morse
George E. Suffel and chorus.
Finale (in opera style).....Arranged
Miss Francis Burris, Erling Mostue and Chorus.

Choruses were by members of the high school choir, accompaniments by Flaaten's concert orchestra. The director was A. F. M. Gustance.

ALL THE WAY TO FRISCO.

This Preacher Proposes to Walk, Saving Souls En Route.

Boston, Mass., May 4.—Rev. Elliott D. Saunders, former evangelist, is now on his way to San Francisco, which he proposes to reach by walking. He reached Worcester, Mass., Sunday on the first leg of his long jaunt, and stopped there long enough to preach a sermon. He says he will not seek to make the trip by a direct route, nor will he try to make a record. Rather, he will turn to the right or left as the spirit moves, delivering daily sermons.

SUFFRAGETTE HIDES IN THE PIPES OF AN ORGAN.

Bristol, Eng., May 4.—Another strange freak of the suffragettes was witnessed here last Saturday night. While Augustine Birrell, chief secretary for Ireland, was addressing a meeting a woman's voice continually interrupted him, shrieking "vote for women." It was not until after a long search that the disturber was finally located behind the pipes of the organ in the gallery of the hall.

GAINED FLESH, COLOR AND A GOOD APPETITE

A Minnesota Woman Tells What the Tonic Treatment Did for Her When She Was Weak and Nervous.

Neglect or improper treatment of woman's ills almost inevitably leads to a train of unfortunate results and frequently to a lifetime of misery. In time almost every organ of the body becomes affected, the nervous system is broken down, the digestion is weakened and symptoms of kidney trouble develop.

Women who become pale and lose weight and ambition and are subject to headaches and fainting spells, need such a tonic as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are especially adapted for girls and women of all ages and give just the aid required to bring back health and strength to the nervous and exhausted.

Weak, nervous women owe it to themselves to try this tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The value of the pills is well shown in the case of Mrs. Richard Ahrens, of Columbian Block, Brainerd, Minn.

"I have found Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," she says, "to be the best medicine for weakness common to my sex. Owing to a run-down condition of my blood, I suffered for over two years with weakness and nervousness. My nervous system was in a terrible state. I lost flesh and suffered everything a woman could. I had severe pains through the top of my head and across my temples. When these spells came on me I would have to give up and was often confined to bed for a day or so. After these headaches I would feel weak for days. I had no appetite whatever.

"The doctor did not help me much. For a time I would feel better under his treatment and then be worse again. Through reading about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was led to give them a trial. I soon felt better and gained rapidly. I gained in flesh, had a good color and could eat a hearty meal. I take the pills now once in a while for a tonic and always receive benefit from them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. The pills are guaranteed to be safe and absolutely harmless to the most delicate constitution. They contain no morphine, opiate, narcotic nor anything to cause a drug habit.

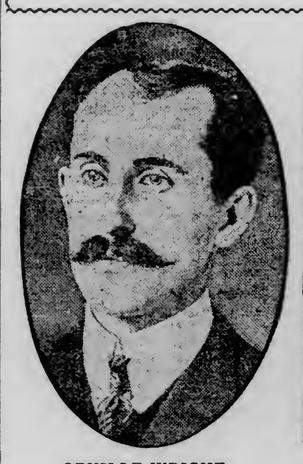
YANKEE AIRSHIP MEN HONORED IN LONDON



ORVILLE WRIGHT.

WILBUR WRIGHT.

London, May 4.—There was a demonstration, remarkable in its character, at the institution of civil engineers last night, when the Aeronautical Society of Great Britain conferred on Wilbur and Orville Wright its first gold medal. Those who had gathered at the institution to witness the presentation cheered and applauded repeatedly, while the Wright brothers blushingly bore their honors through an hour of the warmest eulogies. Finally the entire assemblage arose and gave three cheers for each of the brothers. They sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and ended by cheering Miss Katherine Wright.

Sir Maxim, Gen. Baden-Powell, Capt. F. S. Cody, an American who is struggling, thus far unsuccessfully, to perfect his own aeroplane for the British army, and a large number of scientists and ladies were present. Speeches were made by Gen. Baden-Powell, Col. J. F. Capper, the war office aeronautic expert who referred to the Wright brothers as "unspoiled as though they were nobodies," and declared the nation which failed to keep pace with the flying developments might get badly left in the war, and the chairman of the gathering was Edward Purkise Frost, who presented the medal.

Wilbur and Orville Wright made brief speeches, tersely expressing their thanks. A reception was held and the brothers were surrounded, questioned and besieged for autographs. Early in the evening they were given a dinner at the Ritz hotel by the Aeronautical society. They were the guests at luncheon of leading aeronautical experts, including seven Englishmen who had accompanied them in flights in France.

NEGRO MAIDS RELATE ANTICS OF MRS. HAINS

Flushing, N. Y., May 4.—With thirteen of the defense's witnesses disposed of, the Hains trial started on its third week. Perhaps the most important bit of testimony on behalf of Capt. Peter J. Hains, Jr., the defendant, charged with the murder of William E. Annis, came just before court adjourned, when Leo Bugg, a real estate dealer and a member of the Bayside Yacht club, where Annis was shot, testified that he had discussed the merits of certain property adjoining the yacht club with Thornton Hains, the defendant's brother, and at one time made an appointment with Thornton Hains to meet him at the yacht club.

Buggs' testimony tends to show lack of premeditation on the part of the defendant and to corroborate that of Thornton Hains, who testified that he and the captain went to the yacht club the day Annis was killed to find Bugg and his partner, Jesperson, and inspect the Bayside property.

Most of the session was occupied by the examination of officers of the United States army and government employes and negro servants employed in Capt. Hains' household when he was in the Philippines. The Hains cook and two negro maids employed by Mrs. Claudia Hains caused amusement by the characteristic manner of telling their stories of the alleged "antics" of "Billy" Annis and Claudia Hains at the Hains' Fort Hamilton home during the captain's absence.

The prosecution, it is said, expects to call a number of army officers to combat the testimony of irrationality submitted by the defense's army witnesses.

WOMEN OF THE TURKISH HAREM BEING SET FREE

Constantinople, May 4.—Since the deposition of Abdul Hamid there has been a daily exodus of women of the harem from the Yildiz Kiosh. Sunday forty-five carriages, each containing two or three women and yesterday fifteen more, were seen proceeding to Stamboul. It is evident that the total number of fair prisoners in the palace must have been prodigious. Palaces have been set apart for their accommodation, but in the present condition of the country, their fate is pathetic.

JAP SAILORS SEE A MINSTREL SHOW GIVEN BY THE YANKEE TARS

San Francisco, May 4.—Officers and men of the Japanese training squadron were entertained at two receptions to Rear Admiral Ijichi and commanding officers of the Japanese training cruisers Aso and Soya; a dinner on board the West Virginia, given by chief petty officers of the Pacific fleet to officers of similar rank of the Japanese vessels; a minstrel show aboard the United States flagship to 200 Japanese enlisted men by the jackies of the American cruisers and a dinner to the Japanese warrant officers by American warrant officers at the Brunswick cafe, followed by a theater party at the Orpheum.

In the main hall of the Merchants' Exchange building, decorated with Japanese and American flags, Oriental officers met their hosts, under the international signal code flags, "Z. B. E.," the symbol for "welcome."

In the evening the ball room of the Fairmont hotel was the scene of a brilliant official reception. This was followed by a late supper given by Japanese Consul General Nagai to 400 guests.

Every Tablespoonful Will Digest 20 Eggs

Or 2¼ lbs. of any kind of food that you may eat during any ordinary meal. Kodol will do this, and it is the only preparation that will.

One tablespoonful of Kodol will do you more good than a handful of Pepsin tablets or powders claiming to be digestants. The natural digestive juices of the stomach are liquids. Kodol supplies these. The natural acids of the stomach, and what the stomach needs if weak, are supplied by Kodol, and cannot be conveyed in tablet or powder form.

Kodol digests every particle of food, promotes assimilation, and thus tends to make the entire body healthy and strong. Kodol promotes general good health throughout the entire system. It is a mighty good thing for you to know how good Kodol is—whether you ever have dyspepsia or not. And you may have it some day—almost every one does. Then Kodol comes in very handy. And there isn't any secret, remember, about why Kodol is such a good digestant—Every tablespoonful will digest 2¼ pounds of any kind of food.

Our Guarantee. Get a dollar bottle of Kodol. If you are not benefited—the druggist will at once return your money. Don't hesitate; any druggist will sell you Kodol on these terms. The dollar bottle contains 2½ times as much as the 50c bottle. Kodol is prepared in the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

LIFE OF PIMPLE

Complexions Are Cleared and Pimples Disappear Overnight Without Trouble.

The dispensers of poslam, a new skin discovery, ask that notice be given that no one is urged to purchase it without first obtaining an experimental package. Every one who has tried it knows that the fifty-cent box, on sale at the Lyceum Pharmacy and W. A. Abbett's in Duluth, Holmberg's in Superior and all drug stores, is sufficient to cure the worst cases of eczema, where the surface affected is not too large. The itching ceases on first application. It will also cure acne, tetter, blotches, scaly scalp, hives, barber's itch and every other form of itch, including itching feet. Being flesh-colored and containing no grease, the presence of poslam on exposed surfaces, such as the face and hands, is not perceptible. Water and soap cannot be used in connection with it, as these irritate and prolong skin troubles, sometimes even causing them.

As to the experimental package of poslam, it can be had free of charge by mail of the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth Street, New York. It alone is sufficient to clear the complexion overnight, and to rid the face of pimples in twenty-four hours.

NEW PASTOR IS BASEBALL FAN

Boston, Mass., May 4.—Rev. Dr. W. W. Bustard, paster of the Dudley street Baptist church, confirms the announcement that he has been called to fill the pulpit of the Euclid avenue church at Cleveland, generally known as "John D. Rockefeller's church," and will send his acceptance.

Dr. Bustard is popularly known as the "ball-playing parson," and avowedly likes the title. An idea of the sort of strenuous minister that soon will occupy the Rockefeller pastorate may be gained from an announcement made by him to the effect that before he leaves Boston he will raise $30,000 for a new parish home for his church here.

The plans for the new home carry provision for a fully equipped gymnasium, bowling alleys and reading rooms for the use of the young members of the church.

Dr. Bustard until recently was captain of a baseball club made up of members of his church.

Lawn tennis is also a favorite game with the minister, and he holds several trophies won at various tournaments. He is decidedly one of the most democratic ministers in Boston.

His rapid rise in the ministry has made him one of the most talked of preachers in New England. He graduated from Brown university in 1894 and then took a course at the Newton Theological seminary, from which he graduated in 1898. His first pastorate was a small church in Amesbury, Mass., with a congregation of only 300 members, from which pulpit he was called to the Dudley street church.

LIABILITY ACT IS ADVOCATED

Government Files Brief in Suit Against Road.

Washington, May 4. — The government has filed in the supreme court of errors, New London county, second judicial district of Connecticut, its brief in the case of Edgar G. Morton, plaintiff, against the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. The case was brought under the employers' liability act of April 22, 1908, and the government, by the permission of the court is allowed to intervene and file a brief in support of the constitutionality of the act which has been challenged by the defendant.

The briefs says:

"The interstate business of railroads is so intermingled with their state business, that no segregation can be recognized in regulating the relation between interstate carriers and their interstate servants.

"The employers' liability act is a wise, progressive and human statute. It seeks within approved and conservative limit to accomplish an object, whose worth and justice all men have long admitted and many other civilized nations have long ago attained. Legislation that is to protect railway employes does not benefit a class alone. The safety of an interstate carriers' servants means the safety of interstate commerce itself.

"With respect to this act not only its beneficient purposes, but the care with which it was framed to meet the very constitutional objections now urged against it, should make its validity issured.

"We respectfully submit that the act here challenged is an appropriate exercise of the power of congress to regulate commerce between the states and ought to be upheld."

TAKES GIRL BRIDE.

Samuel E. Gross, Divorced Eight Days Ago, Weds Again.

Battle Creek, Mich., May 4.—Samuel Eberly Gross, who is 65 years old, formerly of Chicago, once a multimillionaire, and reputed author of "Cyrano de Bergerac," and Miss Ruby Louise Haughey, aged 18 years, were married here Sunday morning. The bride is the daughter of James R. Haughey, a well known building contractor, and had been attending the local high school, only leaving a few days ago to prepare for the ceremony.

Mr. Gross, who secured a divorce from his wife only eight days ago, has resided in Battle Creek for the last year. He came here in pursuit of a decree in bankruptcy, which he attained a few months ago, and, although he once was a multimillionaire, is now rated as being only in comfortable circumstances.

The bride is an accomplished musician and is possessed of a remarkable contralto voice. Eventually Mr. Gross will take his bride to Europe, where she will receive a musical education from the best teachers on the continent.

CLAIMS BREACH OF CONTRACT

Suit Against J. R. Wood of San Antonio Copper Company.

Tombstone, Ariz., May 4.—R. L. Hogue, a prominent mining engineer of Bisbee and Sonora, has brought a suit against John R. Wood and the San Antonio Copper company, which involves about $50,000.

Hogue alleges in his complaint that on Aug. 17, 1906, and for several months prior to that time, he was the owner of an undivided half interest in an option for the purchase of the San Antonio property, located in the Ures district, the option being given by the owners to Wood; that the sale was consummated with the aid and money of third parties, who had become interested in the deal through the efforts of himself and Wood; that part of the consideration was that after incorporation a large amount of stock was to be issued to Wood.

On the date mentioned the plaintiff alleges that differences arose between himself and Wood over the latter's interest and a compromise agreed upon at Hermosillo, whereby Wood agreed to pay Hogue the sum of $5,000 gold and $2,500 Mexican currency and 2,000 shares of stock in the corporation that was to be organized in the United States to take over the stock of the Mexican corporation.

Hogue continues in his complaint with details regarding the formation of the San Antonio Copper company and subsequent dealings with his former partner. He states that the company was incorporated under the laws of Arizona on April 12, 1906, and that Wood received a large quantity of stock—about 40,000 shares fully paid and non-assessable. He states that Wood paid him the money due according to the compromise agreement, but that he failed to deliver the shares of San Antonio stock, upon which he places a valuation of $25 per share.

The plaintiff prays the court, pending final adjudication, that Wood be restrained by a temporary writ of injunction from selling or assigning the stock in the San Antonio Copper company owned by him, and also asks for a writ restraining the corporation from transferring any stock now owned by Wood.

SCHOOL FOR BLIND CHILDREN

Milwaukee Woman in Duluth Raising Funds for Institution.

Miss Alice Burnham Fellows, who is at the head of a school for the blind at Milwaukee, is in Duluth, on business connected with the institution.

The school, declares Miss Burnham, is a private, charitable institution maintained by the subscriptions of generous-hearted friends and by fellow citizens of its inmates, who are received from all parts of the country.

Miss Fellows has had a great deal of experience in charitable work and she says the fault of a great many organizations which are engaged in the work, use up so much of their receipts in maintenance that a small percentage of the donations are expended upon the objects of the charity themselves.

At her school the expense is reduced to the minimum, says Miss Fellows, and 75 per cent of the receipts go to the objects of the charity and only 25 per cent to raise sufficient money in the city where a students' home is located to pay for his or her education.

"In Chicago during 1907," said Miss Fellows, "67 per cent of the receipts went to pay for the expense and maintenance of the Associated Charities and only the remaining 33 per cent was spent upon the actual objects of charity. It costs 63 per cent of the total receipts to run the Associated Charities in Milwaukee."

ORDER FOR HEARING ON PETITION FOR ADMINISTRATION—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis —ss.

In Probate Court.

In the Matter of the Estate of George K. Taylor, Decedent.

THE PETITION of J. Clark Taylor having been filed in this Court, representing, among other things, that George K. Taylor, then being a resident of the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, died intestate, in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, on the 15th day of April, 1909, leaving estate in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, and that said petitioner is the brother of said decedent, and praying that Letters of Administration of the estate of said decedent be granted to him.

IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this Court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House in Duluth, in said County, on Monday, the 24th day of May, 1909, at ten o'clock A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required, at said time and place, to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

ORDERED FURTHER, That this Order be served by publication in The Duluth Evening Herald, according to law, and that a copy of this Order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not less than ten days prior to said day of hearing.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., April 27th, 1909.

By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

BANKER UPHAM BURIED.

Prominent Men Pay Last Tribute to St. Paul Financier.

St. Paul, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Henry P. Upham, the late St. Paul banker, who died Sunday night, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the same residence in which he lived and was attended by many prominent Twin City men.

Rev. Floyd Wright, D. D., rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church conducted the services at the home and at the late residence of the deceased.

The pall bearers were:

Honorary—N. P. Langford, Emmett, Hill, Thomas F. Wilson, Richard P. Gabbett, Percy Williams, W. A. Bunn, W. P. Clough, Edward Bigelow, Sherrill Kennedy, Charles E. Vanderburg, Winter, W. A. Miller, Channing Seabury and J. M. Hagerstrom.

Active—Lucius W. Markham, L. W. Hill, Charles H. Spencer, Edward B. Ware, Jr., William H. Lightner, Charles W. Ames, Horace L. Thompson and C. J. Arnoldi.

COSTLY FREIGHT WRECK.

Wilmar, Minn., May 4.—Westbound Train No. 61, a fast freight on the Great Northern road, was wrecked three miles east of Wilmar Sunday. Twenty cars of merchandise largely automobiles and trains were derailed and the contents broken to pieces and scattered.

The wreck was one of the costliest known in many years on this division. Just how it occurred is not apparent. It was caused by a broken rail, or a broken flange on the wheel of the train. The engine and eleven forward cars left the track.

WORK OF CLOQUET PUPILS IS BEING EXHIBITED.

Cloquet, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The public schools of the city are placing on exhibit the work of the pupils in manual training and domestic art. Hawk, the instructor in manual training, has charge of the exhibits and as this work has been a feature of the school training only since last year the parents of the pupils are expected to inspect the work and get an idea of the value of the training which this department affords. The entire east end of the high school room, Miss Yu-Nesa, which was presented here last Friday evening, yesterday witnessed a performance of the same play by the pupils of the Duluth Central high school.

CLOQUET Y. M. C. A. BOYS PREPARING FOR CARNIVAL.

Cloquet, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. is busy putting up big bills announcing a carnival, which is to take place Friday and Saturday evenings of this week in the boys' rooms at the association building. The proceeds will go to the support of the boys' work. Each committee plans to raise a certain amount of money each year and the entertainment committee has chosen the carnival. All sorts of freaks and wild men will be in evidence, while other features of the evening program will include a minstrel show, physical exercises, high class vaudeville stunts, etc. The enthusiasm of the boys practically insures the success of the undertaking.

WISCONSIN GOVERNOR DENIED REQUISITION.

St. Paul, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor J. O. Davidson of Wisconsin, has refused to honor the requisition from Minnesota for the return of Edward H. Hill, who is wanted here on the charge of kicking sick horses from the Carling stables, first ward of Ian 7. The famous wrangle over the possession of the six ailing horses was aired in Governor Davidson's office Saturday and Hill's attorney impressed the Wisconsin executive. He denied the requisition on technical grounds, the affidavit of the complainant, E. F. Gilbert, being deemed insufficient.

MENOMINEE WITHOUT BASEBALL THIS YEAR.

Menominee, Mich., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because of indifferent financial support, Menominee, which has always boasted of a crack organization will be without a baseball team this year. Ed Van Wye pitcher, has signed with Fond du Lac Powell, the hard-hitting first baseman, with Green Bay, while Lehman, Day, Cull and Klebs will play either in the Lake Shore or Interurban league.

FARGO MAY ACCEPT COMMISSION PLAN.

Fargo, N. D., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council last night acting upon the petition of 52 per cent of the voters filed May 2 as the date for voting upon the acceptance or rejection of the commission plan of municipal government.

WOMAN'S NIGHTMARE

No woman can be happy without children; it is her nature to love them as much so as it is the beautiful and pure. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass is so full of dread that the thought fills her with apprehension. There is no necessity for the reproduction of life to be either very painful or dangerous. The use of Mother's Friend prepares the system for the coming event, and it is passed without any danger. STATE MEET DRAWS MANY Fifty-First Convention of State Sunday School Association.

Several Hundred Delegates Present When Crookston Meet Opens.

Crookston, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—With several hundred delegates on hand and much enthusiasm evinced, the fifty-first annual convention of the Minnesota State Sunday School association began here today at 9:30 a. m. with President W. H. Gold of Redwood Falls, presiding, and song and praise service, led by Prof. J. H. Power of Crookston.

An address by W. C. Pearce of Chicago, on "A Forward Movement in World Conquest," Bible study, led by Rev. George R. Merrill of Minneapolis, and a practical visitation campaign demonstration consumed the balance of the morning session.

H. Bendixen of Springfield will preside this afternoon, following devotional exercises led by E. H. Nicholson, district superintendent of Litchfield, other features of the afternoon program are:

"The Sunday School as an Evangelistic Agency," Rev. E. M. Hullett, Detroit. "The Pastor and the Sunday School," Rev. Charles Pleasler, Fergus Falls, round table; twenty-five practical questions on the pastor and the Sunday school, led by W. C. Pearce; addresses by evangelistic and denominational rallies, held in each of the churches.

Tuesday Night's Program.

The program for tonight follows: George H. Wright, Crookston, presiding service of song, led by Prof. J. H. Powers and a chorus of 150 voices; the Holy Scripture, Rev. S. E. P. White, Bemidji; prayer, Rev. T. W. Barbour, Cass Lake; greetings from Crookston; for the city, Mayor J. D. Mellroy; for the churches, Rev. T. Over; "A Message from Our President," W. H. Gold, Redwood Falls, thank offering, appointment of committees, address, "World Conquest Through Men," W. C. Pearce, Chicago; benediction, Rev. J. Stewart Moorhead.

Fourth and Northeastern Minnesota are well represented in the convention. The convention will end Thursday afternoon. Rev. Mr. Kirtley of Duluth is on tomorrow morning's program for a lecture.

BANK TELLER UNDER ARREST

Employe of First National of Minneapolis Traveled Too Swiftly.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ellis W. Niles, until last Friday receiving teller of the First National bank, was turned over to the police department and formally placed under arrest yesterday afternoon, charged with the embezzlement of bank funds aggregating $48,500, of this sum $8,100 has been recovered in the form of money in Niles' possession and in the hands of brokers, deposited as margins.

Niles' arrest was the climax of two months of work on the part of bank officials and Frank L. Colwell, a special detective in the employ of the bank and formerly chief of detectives of the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad. Colwell was taken in charge by Colwell Friday morning and has been under surveillance since that time.

Niles' arrest came about originally through information received by the bank that he was playing fast horses, and almost continually in the company of women.

Niles' case, according to those who have been investigating it, is apparently purely one of an attempt to get rich quick. For between eight and nine months, it is alleged, he has been taking the money of the bank. Each night he would withhold enough deposit slips to balance with the amount he had taken from the bank. Each morning he would turn in these slips, repeating the process at night. With the first of the month, when statements were to be sent out, he would balance with clearing-house checks. When Niles was taken in charge by the detective Friday, five deposit slips are said to have been found in his drawer which represented the exact amount of the alleged defalcation.

BOARD OF CONTROL MEETS.

Charles Halverson, Recently Appointed, Attends His First Meeting.

Stillwater, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state board of control held its May meeting at the prison yesterday. Charles Halverson, the newest member of the board, made his first appearance and the other two members were in attendance. The day was devoted to routine affairs at the old prison and a visit was not made to the new institution.

There were thirty-eight prisoners before the board, twelve of them being new applicants for parole. Three of the number had special matters on which they desired to be heard.

The financial statement for April shows collections on account of binder twine to the amount of $12,958.89 and $5,704.10 additional from miscellaneous sources. The latter sum included $4,517.73 charged to the warden for binder twine labor of convicts, $1,008.04 for shoe factory labor and $144 collected by the usher from visitors.

Edward Fannett has been received at the prison from Hennepin county under a reformatory plan sentence for forgery in the second degree.

FIGHTING STOCK DISEASE.

North Dakota Sanitary Board Divides State Into Districts.

Bismarck, N. D., May 4.—At the organization of the state livestock sanitary board, just effected, the state was divided into districts for better inspection work.

The state board will have charge of the inspection in the First district, comprising Dunn and McKenzie counties, and the federal board will take the Second district, comprising Morton, Oliver and Mercer counties, and also the Third district, comprising Hettinger, Bowman and Billings counties. The balance of the state will be in the inspection care of both boards, but the districts where the scabbis prevail, which are divided, will receive the big portion of attention.

The Indian reservations at Berthold and Standing Rock will also be cared for by the state and federal boards.

At the organization meeting Messrs. Davidson, Hinbaugh, Rishel, Babcock and Sylvester were appointed field superintendents to take charge of the inspection work. No new member of the board was appointed to take the position left vacant by the retiring member, Dugal Campbell, of Kindred. Dr. W. F. Crew of Devils Lake will continue as executive officer.

Three members of the board were present, being Andrew Veitch, Grand Forks, and E. J. Walsh of Willow City. The officers elected for the coming year were: President, E. J. Walsh, Willow City, and secretary, W. L. Richards, Dickinson.

ARE HURTING MILWAUKEE.

Former Sheriff Would Stop Rose-Dickie Debates.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 4.—That the Rose-Dickie debates should be stopped immediately in order that Milwaukee's good reputation among other cities may not suffer, is the opinion of W. R. Knell, former sheriff.

"Nothing is being accomplished by these debates," said Mr. Knell. "And if they would cease immediately, both Mr. Rose and Mr. Dickie having had fair flings at their respective sides of the liquor question, Milwaukee would yet be able to save her reputation.

"As it is, this city is getting a vast amount of undesirable notoriety. Since the first debate in Milwaukee, opprobrious nicknames have been hurled at the city. It has been termed 'a big-beer saloon,' and the 'city where drunken men are carried home instead of being locked up.'

"Such stories in the press all over the country are bound to hurt Milwaukee. It is all well and good enough for this city to take pride in her immense brewing interests, but we have other industries here that reflect equal credit. The opprobrious terms applied to this city are the indirect results of the debate."

WRECK VICTIM IS HOME.

Mrs. Murphy, Hurt in Steamer Collision, Reaches Grand Forks.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Murphy have arrived home from New York, where Mrs. Murphy has been since the latter part of January, when she was seriously injured in the collision of the Republic and Florida. She stood the trip from New York nicely and is pleased to be home again. She is recovering rapidly from her injuries and will be all right in a few months, it is believed. A broken thigh caused her long stay in the hospital. She is able to walk with the aid of a cane.

TAFT COMING THIS WAY.

Reported President Will Attend Exercises at Mackinaw City.

Negaunee, Mich., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Those who care to travel a short distance will have an opportunity to see the president this summer, as it was reported here yesterday that Mr. Taft has consented to attend the ceremonies connected with the dedication of the new state park at Mackinaw City and the unveiling of the statue of Father Marquette on Mackinaw island in August. Excursions by rail and water will be run to the island at the time of the president's visit for the benefit of the upper peninsula people.

DEATH CLAIMS EDITOR.

H. M. Henderson of the Verndale Sun Victim of Cancer.

Verndale, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. M. Henderson, editor and owner of the Verndale Sun and one of the pioneer newspaper men of this section, is dead of cancer. He had conducted the Sun successfully for the past sixteen years, and was a member of the Great Northern Editorial association. He was 37, and is survived by his widow, but no children. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

WILL SING IN OMAHA.

Saengerfest Assured Lid in Nebraska Town Will Be Lifted.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 4.—Omaha will have the 1909 saengerfest of the Northwestern Saengerbund after all. The guarantee has been fulfilled by business men of Omaha, and local officers of the league have been informed that the Nebraskan city will be the scene of the great singing convention.

Nor will the singers and visitors have to retire with the chickens. Assurances have been given by citizens of Omaha that the singers will be allowed to quench their thirst after strenuous nights of song. In fact, they have given assurance that the "saengerkommerse," social gatherings to which the fit drink of German singers is essential, will be held after night sessions.

Charles Rohlfing, Theodore Kelbe and George H. J. Kieck, and other members of the band in Milwaukee have lost their puzzled and doubtful frowns and given up training for a saengerfest in a dry town. They originally announced that it was impossible—out of the question. Now they have found their way around it, and things look smooth for the twenty-fourth saengerfest.

Hope Papa Will Forgive.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 4.—Alpheus Hastings and Miss Esther Brunk eloped from Emerado to Grand Forks and were married before the father of the bride knew of their plan. The bridegroom gave his age as 21, and the bride stated she was 18. They are hopeful Mr. Brunk will forgive them.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Quincy—The Mistletoe lodge, Sons of St. George, attended the morning services Sunday at 10:30, when Rev. Mr. Eldred addressed them on "Burden Bearing."

Hancock—Mrs. August Walters and daughter, Gladys, have gone to Chicago, where a second operation will be performed on the young lady by Dr. Murphy.

Lake Linden—The funeral of Miss Annie Gerard, who passed away at the C. & H. hospital, was held Sunday afternoon, with the following honorary pallbearers from the clerical force of the store in which she was employed: Misses Della Piche, Alma Roy, Lillian Dullinger, Julia Lesage, Anna Savard and Mrs. Elmer Barkell.

Calumet—Word has been received in Calumet of the death at Great Falls, Mont., of Mrs. Bert Roag, formerly of this city. Bright's disease was the cause of death.

Menominee—In addition to causing thousands of dollars' worth of damage to Menominee county property along the bay shore, Friday's terrific storm destroyed a large portion of the Ann Arbor railway docks connecting the boat landing with the main yards.

Calumet—On Saturday evening, May 17, the Calumet lodge, Knights of Pythias, will give a benefit production of "Damon and Pythias" at the Grand theater.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Madison—The cornerstone of the St. Paul's Catholic university chapel, to be built on State street, opposite the lower campus, was laid with appropriate ceremonies Sunday afternoon. Bishop James Schwebach of La Crosse officiated, and was assisted by the Rev. H. C. Hengell university chaplain, and other members of the city clergy.

Grand Rapids—The Wood County National bank of this city has let contracts for the construction of its new banking house, to the Wienberg Construction company of this city. The new building will be constructed of Bedford cut stone, and its estimate cost is about $60,000.

Ashland—That the proposition to build a great coal dock here is not dead yet is the statement of Secretary Blair, who has returned here from North Dakota. He is at work on a plan of organization which promises success, but refuses to give details.

Sparta—Six bids have been received by the water commission for the erection of new storage tanks for the city water system with a capacity of 100,000 gallons.

Beloit—Ernest A. Munger was found dead hanging by his coat collar from the tail light bracket of an automobile he had been repairing downtown. As he was afflicted with locomotor ataxia and apparently had fainted while at his work, no inquest was thought necessary.

Madison—Word has bene received of the death of Miss Nina Johnson, '09, at her home in Kokomo, Ind. Miss Johnson was badly burned by the explosion of a vial of carbon bi-sulphide in the general chemistry laboratory of the state university last October, and this resulted in complications which caused her demise.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Devils Lake, N. D.—A carload of stone for the new government building was received Saturday, and the work of unloading is now progressing. In the meantime Contractor Mitchie is in Milwaukee securing more men for the work.

Bismarck, N. D.—The annual meeting and election of officers of the Bismarck Gun club was held in the Commercial club rooms on Friday evening, and the following officers were elected: President, Frank Reid; vice president, E. C. Cooper; secretary and treasurer, Dr. Kershaw.

Devils Lake, N. D.—Sheriff Belford has returned from Bisbee with R. F. Hartman of that city in custody. Hartman is charged by A. D. Scotts of Hampden with swindling him by pretending to be a Yeoman organizer.

Minot, N. D.—Concrete hatching troughs and all other late inventions will enter into the first state fish hatchery to be located six miles from St. John. Plans for the hatchery were examined and approved at a meeting of the state board of fish and game commissioners Saturday.

Grand Forks, N. D.—On the Great Northern Saturday an order went into effect to have the Walhalla freight leave Grand Forks Monday, Wednesday and Friday and return Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. This will make it so the crews will spend Sunday in Grand Forks.

Bismarck, N. D.—Sister Boniface, who for fourteen years was superior of the St. Alexius hospital here, has returned to the institution after a rest of three years, and resumes her old position.

Dickinson, N. D.—Dickinson Masons have found a site which suits them for their proposed lodge building, and will buy it for $5,700. Thus far $2,300 worth of stock in the building enterprise has been subscribed for.

Leeds, N. D.—The Benson county fair to be held in Leeds July 13, 14 and 15 will be one of the biggest events of its kind ever attempted in this state. The directors of the association have been doing some splendid work during the past few weeks, and are getting things into shape for the greatest fair ever held in this county.

Langdon, N. D.—Paul and Lambert Frank of Mount Carmel were arraigned before Justice Devaney in Langdon on a charge of practicing veterinary without a license. Their bail was fixed at $.00 each, and they will be tried by the next term of district court.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Aitkin—The summer school, which it was announced by County Superintendent of Schools Hall, would be held here this summer, is to begin on July 6, and continue four weeks.

Moorhead—Congressman Steenerson has secured the establishment of a rural route out of Baker, the delivery of mail on the new route to begin on June 1. To commence with there will be tri-weekly delivery.

Little Falls—The examination car of the Northern Pacific railroad is in the city and the local railroad employes are being examined. The car is under the charge of the examining board which is made up of Conductor A. A. Sharpe, who runs through this city on the local numbers 7 and 8, and Chief Dispatcher J. B. McLain.

Spooner—Right Rev. J. D. Morrison of the Episcopal church, bushop for the diocese of Northern Minnesota, arrived here Thursday evening and held services in St. John's church.

Stillwater—The wife of James Wheeler died at San Diego, Cal., on Easter Sunday, April 18. Mr. and Mrs. Weeler were former well known residents of this city, living here for many years.

Crookston—The Co-Operative Fuel & Commission company has elected officers as follows: President, J. D. Ball; first vice president, H. A. Ball, second vice president, L. C. Hanna; general manager and treasurer, Nelson Miller; secretary, R. S. Klitz. Board of directors, Nelson Miller, L. C. Hanna, J. D. Ball, S. L. Davis and Alexander Kerr.

East Grand Forks—The Valley View printing plant, owned by Stoughton & Stenbeer, co-partners, will be sold at public auction May 25. Hugh Dunlevy having been appointed receiver. Judge William Watts of the district court has ordered the public sale and made the appointment of the receiver.

Crookston—Mrs. Anna Mickelson died at her home here Saturday at the advanced age of 70 years. Death was due to old age. She was an old resident of the city and was well known throughout this section. Her son was killed in a railroad wreck about seventeen years ago.

Moorhead—A party consisting of P. H. Lamb, Leslie Weller and Hugo Bachmeier returned Friday evening from International Falls, Minn. They are enthusiastic over their trip, and declare that people in this section have absolutely no idea of the wonderful development that is going on at the extreme northern boundary of the state.

Sebeka—Old man Ostrom of Rockwood, the charcoal burner, lost his house and contents a few evenings ago and barely escaped from the burning building with his life. S. P. Aarnes was the first person to see the blaze and gave the alarm to the neighbors over the telephone, and it was not long before several were at the scene of the fire.

Badger—The long talked of change in trains in this branch is now said to be set for May 23, when a general change in time of trains on all the Great Northern lines in the Northwest will be made. Instead of one train making the round trip each day, as at present, through service to Fargo will be established and two trains put on.

BABY'S ITCH EASILY CURED

Infantile Eczema Quickly Relieved by Washing With Wintergreen Compound.

Results of the last two years indicate conclusively that baby's itch, infantile eczema and other skin diseases of children can be very simply cured by the application of a compound composed of oil of wintergreen, thymol and glycerine, as in D. D. D. Prescription.

The Rev. Lewis Steeley of Weatherly, Pa., writes:

"Our baby boy's little face was so dreadfully covered with eczema that blood and water ran from the sores nearly all the time. After using 3½ bottles of D. D. D. Prescription (at $1.00 a bottle) we are so happy to tell you he is entirely cured and the disease has never broken out again. If this letter is in any way a help to other sufferers, you may publish it."

If you have a child which is suffering with the terrible itch, we are sure you will not neglect one hour to give your baby the right kind of relief. We have seen too often how quickly the remedy mentioned above takes the itch away at once and how all the sores seem to be permanent; we have seen this too often to hesitate at all in recommending the remedy for your children.

COULD NOT CURE WEEPING ECZEMA

Disease Began over Ear and Spread till Face and Neck were Raw—Itching, Inflammation and Soreness were Terrible—Lasted Over a Year and All Treatments Failed

UNTIL CUTICURA AGAIN PROVED GREAT SUCCESS

"Eczema began over the top of my ear. It cracked and then began to spread. I had three different doctors and tried several things, but they did me no good. At last one side of my face and my neck clear up to my hair were raw. The water ran out of it so that I had to wear medicated cotton, and it was so inflamed and sore that I had to put a piece of cloth over my pillow to keep the water from it, and it would stain the cloth a sort of yellow. The eczema itched so that it seemed as though I could tear my face all to pieces. The disease began in the fall and I did everything for it until the next winter. Then I began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and it was not more than three months before it was all healed up. I still use the Cuticura Resolvent Pills once in a while to cleanse the blood. I am very thankful that I tried Cuticura, and I can recommend it to any one. Miss Ann Pearsons, Northfield, Vt., Dec. 19, '07."

COTTON IS PRESIDENT

Named to Head Rejuvenated Duluth Mining Stock Exchange.

Quarters Will Be Secured By Organization Within Short Time.

Members of the Duluth Mining Stock exchange met late yesterday afternoon at the Commercial club for the purpose of electing officers and getting the rejuvenated organization in activity again.

Joseph B. Cotton was elected president; S. E. Smith, vice president, and D. L. Fairchild, treasurer. The directors will elect a secretary, who is not a member of the exchange.

A committee is looking up suitable quarters for the exchange, and will make a report to the directors at an early date. A number of locations have been suggested but the matter will be finally disposed of by the board of directors, which comprises President Cotton, Vice President Smith, J. T. Hale, D. L. Fairchild, A. L. Warner. Lucius Merritt, M. W. Lee, N. S. Mitchell and E. C. Congdon.

It is planned to begin the work of the exchange as soon as quarters can be secured. The best local curb stocks will be listed and trading in them will be done on the exchange floor instead of over telephones from the offices of the brokers.

Practically every broker in the city is a member of the exchange, the rest of the membership being made up of mining operators and men interested in various mining enterprises.

The complete membership list follows:

Aeronaut Drew Up Rope and Machine Was Pulled Down.

Mexico City, May 4.—A dispatch from Pueblo says:

"Having failed to perfect the descending mechanism of his new aeroplane in his enthusiasm to make the machine go up, Felix Calo of this city, who has been working on the problem of aviation for many months, found himself suspended for an embarrassing period in the air.

"With the lightness and grace of a bird the machine left the earth when Mr. Gallo put it in motion before a large group of witnesses just outside the city. It attained an altitude of about fifty feet, where at will, Mr. Gallo executed various evolutions. When he wanted to come down however, the flying machine refused to obey orders.

"Finally a small boy sent up a toy rubber balloon to which was attached a fine thread, and with this thread Mr. Gallo was able to pull up a stout cord, which in turn pulled up a rope. Several men seized this rope and pulled the flyer back to earth."

FATHER VAUGHN, ACTOR-PRIEST, REPORTED DYING.

Janesville, Wis., May 4.—Word has been received here that Father Laurence J. Vaughn, a Catholic priest who was formerly an acter with Modjeska, and prominent in chautauqua circles, is dying from the effects of an operation for gall trouble in a Dubuque hospital. Father Vaughn was formerly at La Crosse and came to Janesville three years ago, nominally as assistant at St. Mary's church here. Just before Christmas he was sent to the Cuba City parish and last week was taken violently ill.

DIOCESAN COUNCIL MEETS AT FARIBAULT.

Faribault, Minn., May 4.—The diocesan council of the Episcopal church will be held at the cathedral here, Wednesday, May 26.

The opening service will begin at 11 a. m. and the sermon will be preached by Rev. George C. Tanner, D. D., who was present at the first council at which Bishop Whipple presided fifty years ago. The bishop will deliver his annual address immediately after the organization has been perfected at the afternoon session. After the conclusion of the bishop's address, the woman's auxiliary will withdraw to the parish house for their semi-annual meeting. Bishop McCormick of Western Michigan will deliver an address. He will also be the preacher at the Seabury commencement on Tuesday, May 25. On the evening of the first day of the council there will be a public missionary service in the cathedral followed by a reception at the deanery.

Do Not Show Your Age in Your Complexion

By DOROTHY VENN

(From San Francisco Examiner.)

What woman would not look young if she had a clear, soft complexion?

Perhaps the most wonderful skin treatment is one of the most simple. Dr. Takka Quoldo, Japan's famous skin specialist, gives San Francisco women the following advice:

"Yes, we never grow old in Japan—I mean the women's faces never show age. All Japanese women use mayatone dissolved in witchhazel, and massage the solution thoroughly into the face, neck and arms once or twice a day. This treatment is absolutely harmless even to a baby's skin and gives wonderful results, removing all manner of facial blemishes. It also prevents the growth of hair. You never saw a Japanese woman with hair on her face.

"Take a small original package of mayatone and dissolve it all in eight ounces of witchhazel, and you are supplied with this aid to youth."

Germany Prepares to Fight Airships.

German military experts have devised two guns with which to fight airships. One is mounted on a specially devised gun carriage and the other is mounted on a high speed automobile. The gun carriage outfit is so devised that the muzzle can be elevated to an angle of at least 60 degs. The advantage claimed for guns mounted on automobiles is in the fact that the machines can chase the airship across the country, keeping under them, and firing until the aerial fighter is brought down. Many good inventions, as well as Golden Grain Belt beer, owes its origin to Germany. Its purity and wholesomeness has won for it the same as the home beverage. Have a case sent home today. HARVARD NEWSPAPER.

University May Establish Practical School of Journalism in Boston.

Boston, Mass., May 4.—A suggestion that there will be established in Boston a morning newspaper, printed and administered by Harvard university as a practical school for journalism, has excited earnest discussion in the faculty of the university, among the graduates in Boston, and especially among the members of the English department of the college.

The idea of the proposed newspaper is two-fold, primarily, to train the men in a practical way for a newspaper career, secondarily, to link Harvard as a university more closely with the actual life and problems of Boston, of Massachusetts, and the entire country.

The school of journalism would, as proposed, be a graduate school, and the newspaper would be run in actual competition with other morning papers in Boston.

DIED IN CALIFORNIA.

Brother of Bagley Banker Stricken By Paralysis.

Bagley, Minn., May 4.—A. Kaiser received a telegram Saturday, announcing the death at Coalinga, Cal., of his brother, W. G. Kaiser, aged 32 years.

W. G. Kaiser was born at Winona, Minn., the home of the Kaiser family and grew to manhood there. His health became very poor four years ago and he moved to California, in the hope of benefitting his condition, and was apparently gaining ground, when he suffered a fatal stroke of paralysis.

The body is en route to Winona, where it will be interred in Woodlawn cemetery.

W. C. Kaiser is survived by his wife, a mother, three brothers and three sisters.

To Organize Fargo Fraternity.

Fargo, N. D., May 4.—(Special to The Herald. The Greek letter fraternity men of Fargo are to hold a meeting next Monday evening to organize a Pan-Hellenic association. Starving Won't Cure Rheumatism

Dieting will not help Rheumatism—indirectly it is harmful. For by taking away the strengthening food you become less able to stand the pain. To diet simply means to "lock the barn door after the horse is stolen." The poisons which cause Rheumatism must be dissolved and removed before the pains will stop or you can expect to be well.

Hill's Rheumatic Pills are made from healing roots and herbs which quickly dissolve the poisons which cause Rheumatism. And then, by strengthening and gently stimulating Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, the poisons are passed from the body and every trace of the acid pain along with them.

These Pills have never been advertised till new merit alone has introduced and sold them. We have letters from over 18,000 grateful people who have been relieved from pain and made well by the wonderful remedy.

Hill's Rheumatic Pills

have been in use for 78 years without a single change in the formula. They are the only remedy we know which really cures Rheumatism without leaving trouble just as bad in its place. Hill's Rheumatic Pills are purely vegetable. They contain no harmful minerals, such as iodides and salicylates, to upset the digestion or weaken the heart. They cure by aiding nature to throw off the poisons which cause Rheumatism. It only takes a short time, and you are free from every ache and pain and feel years younger as the deadly uric acid poison is dissolved and passed off as nature intended.

Determine to know today what the harmless but wonderful healing herbs and roots used in Hill's Rheumatic Pills will do for you.

TEST THEM FREE

We realize that there are hundreds of worthless nostrums on the market that you may have been deceived into trying them and derived no benefit. If so, you will have a right to be suspicious. To all such, we will give a liberal sized package of Hill's Rheumatic Pills for a letter or postal describing their case. Address the letter to Belden & Co., the makers, Dept. 185, Minneapolis, Minn. The package will come prepaid. Pay nothing then or at any time. When you find the aches and pains going, and see yourself becoming better and stronger each day—then you will KNOW and BELIEVE, and will be as anxious to continue the remedy and be cured as we are to relieve your suffering.

You can then secure these Pills from your home druggist.

Analysis of the Supreme Court's Decision in Commodities Cases.

Railroads Can Hold Stock in the Producing Companies.

Washington, May 4.—Although the decision of the United States supreme court in what is known as the commodities clause cases, affecting the anthracite coal-carrying railroads, was a reversal of the federal circuit court for the Eastern district of Pennsylvania, the reverse was based upon technical grounds and was really favorable to the railroads. The court's judgment was announced by Justice White, who, while he read from an elaborate printed opinion, declined to give out anything more than a summary, showing the net result of the court's finding.

Analyzed, Justice White's decision is that congress did not transcend its constitutional authority in the enactment of the commodities provision. But, on the other hand, it was held that the government's construction of the provision had been entirely too comprehensive. As construed by the court, the sole object of the clause is to prevent carriers from being associated in interest with the commodities transported at the time of transportation, hence that the law only prohibits the transportation of articles when they have been produced by a railway company which has not, in good faith, parted with them; when the company owns or controls, in whole or in part, the commodity to be transported, and when the company has an interest, direct or indirect, in the commodity in a legal sense. It was especially held, however, that the prohibition does not apply to the ownership of stock in a producing company, but that a carrier may own stock in such a company and at the same time transport the product of that company.

Summary of the Decision.

Summed up, the act only compels companies to disassociate themselves from products they carry, and the contention of the government that the law applies to the ownership, simply because they have been produced by a railroad company, regardless of the fact that the company has parted with them, is untenable and incapable of enforcement. It thus appears, first, that the commodities clause is a vital and operative statute with respect to all products, such as coal, which the railroad companies actually own at the time of transportation, and that the railroads must sell such property to somebody else before they can lawfully ship them, and, second, that unless the act is promptly amended so as to include stock ownership, the railroads can escape the law entirely by converting their direct ownership of coal properties into stock ownership by the organization of subsidiary coal companies.

The effect of the decision under existing conditions is favorable to the railroads, and the government lost on practically all points except in the sustenation of the principle involved, that congress had not gone beholding its authority in enacting the law, the court concedes the right to legislate and it is believed that, if so disposed, congress might enlarge and extend the scope of the provision. Hence, while the railroads gain a practical victory, the government is not confronted by a constitutional bar from further action in the direction of control of the roads in the matter of the shipment of their own commodities.

The decision sustained the provision of the law exempting timber from operations of the clause. This exemption was used as a basis of attack by the railroads on the law discriminatory, but Justice White refused to accept that view. As enacted the law did not apply to the transportation of timber and it is, of course, untouched by the decision.

JUDGE DONAHUE DEAD.

Jurist Appointed By Governor Johnson on Minneapolis Bench.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge William H. Donahue, who was recently appointed on the local district bench by Governor Johnson to succeed F. V. Brown, died Sunday in a Philadelphia hospital, following an operation. The deceased was prominent in Knights of Columbus circles, and that order is to participate in the funeral, which will probably be held tomorrow.

Judge Donahue was born in Allan, Mich., in 1858, graduated from the law department of the University of Michigan, and came to Minneapolis soon after graduation. He became prominent in the practice of both the civil and the criminal law, and three months ago Governor Johnson appointed him to succeed Judge Brown. His wife, formerly Miss Mary Walsh, and five children, survive.

ARCHITECT GILBERT TO STUDY UNIVERSITY PLANS.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cass Gilbert of New York, architect and designer of the accepted plan for the "greater university" of Minnesota, will be in Minneapolis tomorrow to confer with the building committee of the board of regents. They will inspect the tract outlined to be acquired with the additional $356,000 granted for new land, and will determine where the five new buildings provided for the next two years shall be placed.

AGED WOODSMAN DEAD.

Lewis De Laittre of Minneapolis Known in This Section.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lewis De Laittre, 80 years old, a veteran of the Mexican war and an early resident of the city, died Sunday at Asbury hospital, after a brief illness.

Mr. De Laittre came to Minneapolis from Houlton, Me., and entered the employ of the Bovey-De Laittre Lumber company. He had charge of camps in the woods, and was also engaged with the company in the city. He was a conspicuous figure in North Minneapolis. He was six feet tall and was as erect as a man of 20 years.

Mr. De Laittre was born in Foxboro, Me.

Mr. De Laittre is survived by a son, Percy De Laittre, a detective on the police force, and three daughters. Several of his cousins reside in Minneapolis.

Attorney Bunn's Son Dead.

St. Paul, Minn., May 4.—Sam H. Bunn, eldest son of C. W. Bunn of this city, chief counsel for the Northern Pacific railway, died at North Yakima, Wash., Sunday of Bright's disease. He was about 27 years old. The body will be brought here for interment.

DEATH COMES TO WILLIAM A. EDEN

Was Well Known Railroad and Fraternal Society Man.

William A. Eden, 46 years of age, died at 11:50 o'clock last night, of aneurism of the aorta, at his home, 1228 East Second street. He had been a resident of Duluth for the past twenty years, and was very widely known here. He is survived by a widow.

The deceased was an Elk, Mystic Shriner, a Knight Templar, belonged to the United Order of Foresters, Samaritans, Commercial club and

WILLIAM A. EDEN.

United Commercial Travelers. The Masons will probably have charge of the funeral, which will be held Thursday afternoon. The hour and place have not yet been decided upon.

Mr. Eden had not been feeling well for several months past, but his illness did not take a serious turn until recently. It became evident Sunday night that his condition was critical, and Edward H. Eden, his brother, who resides in Minneapolis, was summoned. He arrived in the city yesterday morning, and was at his brother's bedside when the end came.

Mr. Eden was born in Bayfield, Ontario, in 1863. From boyhood until seven years ago he was engaged in the railroad business. He left the employ of the Great Northern, as general agent in Duluth, to go into business for himself. For the past three years he had conducted a cigar store at 310 West Superior street.

COWBOY SEEKING BRIDE.

Texan Writes to Marinette Land Company for Information.

Menominee, Mich., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Living the lonely, heart-aching life of a bachelor in far away Texas is a cowboy, John Arson, who has conjured up a mental picture of blissful happiness awaiting him amid the tall, scrubby pines of Menominee and Marinette counties.

The Skidmore Land company of Marinette, which operates extensively in Michigan, has received the following letter from Arson:

"Sir: I want a little information about your county. First, how are wages on the farm in your county? I am a wageworker. In fact, I am a cowboy. Do you know of any young lady who owns a farm, or better still, do you know of any young widower? If so, please write me their names?"

Thus far the Skidmore Land company has received no local requests for further information.

NEW PARK TO BE IMPROVED

Plans Presented to Board By Donor, Chester A. Congdon.

Should Be the Most Beautiful Park in the City.

Plans for the elaborate improvement of Congdon park, prepared at Mr. Congdon's expense by Charles W. Leavitt, Jr., New York landscape artist, were presented to the park board at its regular meeting yesterday, by Mr. Congdon. If the plans are followed out, as it is expected they will be, it is understood that this new park will easily be the most beautiful in Duluth.

Mr. Leavitt has been in the city to supervise the landscape work on the property about Mr. Congdon's home, and while here took the time to draw up the other plans. The park will be left in its natural state as nearly as possible, but drives and pathways will be prepared. There will be a driveway along both sides of the stream, foot walks crossing and recrossing it, and bridle paths along it. The park property was a gift to the city from Mr. Congdon. The improvement work proposed will take several years in the carrying out.

At yesterday's meeting, plans were discussed for the extension of Lake boulevard so that it will eventually reach Pond du Lac. It is also proposed to build a road up Lester river to met the Snively road. There was also talk relative to the proposed playgrounds in West Duluth and the West end. The board is short of funds just now for the carrying out of the various improvements contemplated, but it is considering means for marketing a $50,000 bond issue at 4½ per cent interest.

MACVICAR TURNS ON COLLEAGUE

Sensational Break in Commission Plan Family at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 4.—Councilman John MacVicar created the biggest sensation known in years in Des Moines when at the city council meeting yesterday, he charged that Councilman John L. Hamery, in charge of the public safety department under the Des Moines plan, narrowly escaped indictment for obtaining money by false pretenses in Cottonwood county, Minn.

MacVicar asserted that there is now a recommendation to a grand jury in that county that Hamery be indicted.

Hamery denied the charge, although admitting that he was formerly a resident of that county. MacVicar asserted that Hamery was then known as John Hammer. This Hamery admitted, declaring that his was another man by the name of Jo A. Hammer in the same town.

MacVicar charged that some years ago Hamery corresponded with a man named John Randall, who resides in Lamberten, Minn., relative to furnishing the old man a wife in the person of Hamery's aunt. After securing sums of money from Randall, MacVicar charged that Hamery dropped the case by writing that the aunt could not come. The woman all this time was in ignorance of what Hamery was doing, according to MacVicar.

Hamery declares that the letters are forgeries. The accusation has stirred up a terrific furore in Des Moines, and is an outgrowth of recent sensational charges in the city council relative to the selection of an architect for a new city hall. Hamery made a surprising strong race for member of the city council, under the Des Moines plan, being elected by the second largest vote received by any of the five men.

Burglars Overlook Prize.

Menominee, Mich., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—While Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Landgraf were absent Saturday evening, burglars entered their home, spattered candle grease through the parlor and library, but were frightened away before they secured anything of value. Mrs Landgraf's jewels, worth over $1,000, were lying in a dresser drawer.

MARINE NEWS

LONGSHOREMEN MAY STRIKE IN SYMPATHY

The Missabe Ore Docks Are Being Carefully Guarded.

Crews of Vessels in Harbor Refused Shore Leave.

Added interest in the local strike situation was aroused this morning with the announcement that the Longshoremen's union may join in a sympathetic strike with the other unions which are now holding out against the Lake Carriers' association.

The information of the disaffection of the longshoremen comes from a semi-official source, and while their plans have been kept secret, there is a general feeling among members of the union that a strike may be called at any time.

A telegram from Port Huron this morning states that the longshoremen of that place had refused to unload the steamer Anna Minch. The Minch was loaded at Fort William.

No reasons were assigned for the refusal of the men to unload the vessel. It is not known that the longshoremen have any special grievances against vessel owners, and if a general strike is declared, it is thought it will be to assist the other unions in the stand they have taken.

The strike status, so far as it concerns the Head of the Lakes, has changed but little in the past twenty-four hours. The principal new feature of the situation is the added precautions being taken by the Pittsburg Steamship company to protect its vessels and keep union agents from gaining access to the crews.

Docks Are Guarded.

It is practically impossible for anyone not in the employ of the Steel company to get to the Missabe docks. The docks are guarded night and day by special officers, who stop all comers. If they are known or have credentials they are permitted to go on the docks. If not, they are turned back without ceremony.

The only approach open to the docks is from the water side. Tug boats and tug boat employes are allowed to go to and from the docks, but are not allowed to board any of the vessels.

Every ore boat has its special officer aboard. There were nineteen ore freighters in port at noon today, of which fourteen were at the ore docks and five anchored in the harbor.

No Shore Leave.

It is said the crews of these vessels are not at all pleased in being refused shore leave. The officers of the Pittsburg Steamship company decline to discuss in any form their side of the case. It was stated today that any member of an ore carrier crew that leaves the vessel is discharged.

The Lake Seamen's union, through its agents, is active in an effort to meet all boats and persuade their crews to desert to the union cause. They are meeting with some success, but so far no vessels have been unable to secure a full quota of men when needed.

The strike is still in its infancy. Approximately 20,000 men will be affected by the strike, which number includes about 12,000 seamen, 6,000 firemen and 2,000 cooks and second cooks. There are about 2,000 members of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial association who are bobbing out, though the last named disclaim any connection with the other strikers.

There are more than 25,000 union men employed on the Great Lakes. This does not include those employed on docks and tug boats under the control of the International Longshoremen's union. The Lake Carriers' association controls 353 vessels or about 99 per cent of the lake vessels.

Clash at Toledo.

Toledo, Ohio, May 1.—The first clash in the lake seamen's strike occurred last night as the freighter Frank Stephenson was leaving the Toledo harbor laden with coal for Milwaukee.

As the steamer was passing through the Cherry street draw, a crowd of men on the bridge hurled a shower of rocks on the deck of the vessel, which was manned by a non-union crew. In reply some one on the Stephenson fired five shots, but it is not known that any one on the boat or the bridge was injured. When the police arrived at the bridge the men had disappeared. Various docks are being patrolled by police to prevent trouble.

CAPTAIN OF BIGGEST BOAT

Henry Peterson Appointed Master of New Lake Leviathan.

Capt. Henry Peterson, a vessel master, well known at the Head of the Lakes, is one of the happiest men in the freight hauling business. He has been named as the man who will command the new steel boat, Shenango, the largest freighter on the Great Lakes.

The launch of the great bulk carrier Saturday was carried out without a hitch, in the presence of thousands of people. She will be the flagship of the Shenango Steamship company's fleet, and will carry ore from the Shenango mines to down lake ports. The vessel is so large that it is estimated she could move 488,000 bushels of wheat at a load.

Capt. Peterson, who will take command of the vessel as soon as she is ready for service, is the fleet captain and senior commander of the Shenango company. Her maiden trip will be to Duluth.

Of Interest to Mariners.

Capt. Swenson of the branch hydrographic office in Duluth has received the following notices of interest to mariners:

The light of the Gravey Island shoal buoy, which was extinguished May 1, will be relighted as soon as practicable.

The front range light at Point Edward at the entrance to the St. Clair river was burned down April 18. A temporary fixed red light, elevated twenty-eight feet above the level of the lake will be shown from an anchor lens lantern hoisted on a pole in the line of range near the site of the old lighthouse and will be maintained until the tower can be rebuilt.

The exhibition of a lighthouse on Lighthouse point, northeast point of Pelee Island, Lake Erie, has been permanently discontinued.

WRECKAGE IS FOUND

Crew of Glen Ellen Find Rigging Near Whitefish Point.

Wreckage Indicates a Tow Barge; No Vessel Reported Missing.

Sault Ste Marie, Mich., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Glen Ellen reached the Soo late last night with the news of the finding of wreckage in Whitefish bay.

According to the captain, the Glen Ellen anchored under Whitefish point on her way down. When the anchor was raised, it brought to the surface of the water a mast with rigging attached.

The rigging was practically new which indicates that it had not been under the water long. The captain says that the wreckage indicated that the vessel was a tow barge about 800 tons. There is, so far as can be learned, no missing vessel that has not been accounted for.

ICE BOUND AT PORTAGE LAKE

Calumet, Mich., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The four vessels which were the first to get into Portage lake this season were still ice bound this morning. They are not in a dangerous position. It is believed the captains are holding vessels outside of port until the strike troubles become more settled, in order to retain their crews. Crews of vessels in the lake do not as yet know of the strike.

The steamer Panay, loaded with coal for Superior, is still aground in the Portage river, but has not suffered any damage. The vessels in the lake are William A. Paine, North Wind, Mahoning and McGean.

THE CONEMAUGH.

New Anchor Liner Will Have Speed of Thirteen Knots.

The new 5,000-ton steel package freighter ordered built for the Anchor line will be named the Conemaugh. She will be 372 feet in length, with a hold 30 feet in depth and equipped with engines that will give her a maximum speed of thirteen knots an hour when loaded. The Conemaugh will be ready for service during the summer, and with her completion the Anchor line will have a fleet of fourteen vessels, with an aggregate capacity of 46,750 tons.

Traffic on the Great Lakes has increased so rapidly that a fleet of 3,000 vessels is now required to haul the 100,000,000 tons of freight which pass through the lakes during the eight months of the navigable season, each year.

The main part of the lake freight is iron ore and grain. The lake tonnage of ore increased from 2,500,000 tons in 1895 to 41,000,000 tons in 1907, which is the highest point ever reached.

Package freight traffic has increased in about the same proportion and it is to meet the ever growing lake trade that the Anchor line has ordered the Conemaugh. She will be equipped with the latest machinery and freight handling devices and will be a valuable acquisition to the fleet.

TO INSPECT PAPERS.

Claimed That Canadian Officers Are in Charge of American Boats.

Collector of Customs L. M. Willcuts has received instructions to inspect the papers of all licensed officers as the boats arrive in Duluth. It has been claimed that Canadian captains and engineers are in charge of American vessels.

The United States laws require that captains, mates, watchmen and engineers and their assistants shall be American citizens, holding United States licenses.

The complaint is made that many of these officers are residents of Canada and not bona fide citizens of the United States. Mr. Willcuts is having all papers carefully examined. If any suspicious cases come to light he will report the matter to Washington and an investigation will follow.

Panay Strands.

Houghton, Mich., May 4.—Almost simultaneous with the opening of inter-lake navigation on Portage lake, occurred the first stranding of the season in the local waterway.

The steel trust steamer Panay, coal-laden for the Quincy Mining company, went aground in lower Portage river, near Light No. 1, yesterday afternoon, and is still fast. The low stage of water in the channel and the draft of the Panay caused the stranding and prevented its release. The Panay is in the middle of the river and may have to be lightered.

Housewives, Attention!

The greatest sale of Notions ever inaugurated in Duluth begins here on Thursday morning and continues for three days. For weeks we have been preparing for it—unpacking new goods—marking down prices, etc., and now we are ready!

Only buying in enormous quantities made possible the radical price lessening—and that is just what we did! We bought largely, because we know from experience how many women anxiously await these sales—and how rapidly even this huge stock will dwindle away.

Thursday is the Day! Come!

WEST END

SNOWBALL HITS SPIRITUAL SIGN

Odd West End Barber Shop Decoration Comes to Grief.

A May snowball, probably thrown by some malicious youngster, has put out the guiding light in front of the barber shop of Andrew Monahan at 2222 West Superior street.

The sign read, "Look Up to God," and was put up by Mr. Monahan some time ago at quite a little expense. It was painted and gilded in rich colors and could be seen at night for some distance on Superior street.

Yesterday morning when Mr. Monahan came to work he found that some one had put daylight through the sign. Mr. Monahan does not say whether he would replace it or not.

SUNDAY MOTHERS' DAY.

Sunday will be Mothers' day at the Second Presbyterian church.

The debt of the child to its mother, the relation of the mother to the home and her influence on the character of her offsprings will be the subject of the sermon to be delivered by Rev. J. L. McBride. Beside the sermon, there will also be a special musical program.

Every one entering the church will be presented with a white carnation. The services in honor of the mother will be held in the morning.

In the evening, Rev. F. E. Higgins, the famous sky pilot of the Northern woods, who works as a missionary among the lumber camps, will give a talk.

MAY FESTIVAL PROGRAM.

Arrangements have been completed for the annual May festival, to be presented Thursday evening, May 6, by the Young Ladies' Society of the First Swedish Baptist church, Nineteenth avenue west and First street.

One feature of the affair will be an address to be delivered by Rev. Bennett Erickson, pastor of the Bethel Baptist church. Following is the program that will be given, in addition to the talk by Rev. Erickson:

Song ..... Audience.
Scripture reading and Invocation ... Miss Atilda Johnson.
Song—"The Banner of Song" ..... Choir.
Piano duet .....
N. E. Erickson and Miss Olga Hagberg.
Recitation—"I Will" .....
Hannah Nelson.
Duet .....
Mrs. N. E. Erickson and Mrs. C. Hagberg.
Song—"Lovely May" ..... Male Chorus.
Song—"Sunset" ..... Ladies' Quartet.
Song—"Water Lily" ..... Choir.

Mrs. Anna Johnson Dead.

Mrs. Anna Johnson of Cotton, Minn., died yesterday at St. Luke's hospital, at the age of 41. Death was due to pneumonia. Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at R. R. Forward's undertaking parlors, 2910 West Superior street. Interment will be at the Lutheran cemetery.

Death Takes Child.

Ruth Evelyn, the 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Johnson of 212 South Twenty-sixth avenue west, died at 6 o'clock this morning after a short illness. Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced.

West End Shortrails.

E. H. Kirkland has returned to St. Paul after a business visit to the West end.

The Young Peoples' Society of the First Swedish Baptist church will meet this evening at the church.

M. J. Morgan of St. Paul is visiting in the West end for a few days.

C. A. Nelson has returned to Gordon, after a short business trip to the West end.

The trustees of the Second Presbyterian church will meet tonight at the church.

It is expected that the sewer outlet at the foot of Thirty-first avenue west will be completed in a few days. This will drain the neighborhood between Twenty-fourth and Thirty-ninth avenues west, as far up as Fifth street.

Miss Minnie Olsen has gone to Spokane, where she will spend the summer as the guest of her sister and other relatives. Miss Olsen resides at 125 Nineteenth avenue west.

There will be an important meeting tonight of the Emerson school alumni at the school.

Arrangements for the annual banquet of the Bema club will be completed tonight at a meeting. Dr. Oredson will preside.

For bedbugs and roaches use Lion Bug Killer, 25c, at Lion drug store.

L. C. McBride has returned to Little Falls after a visit with his family at the West end.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Swedish Baptist church will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. John Hurtig, 613 Twenty-third avenue west.

Miss Jean Poirier of 2128 East Second street will entertain the members of the Haven Marching club this evening at a taffy pull.

Miss Molly Roise of 2104 West Superior street was surprised by a number of her friends last evening at her home. She is to be married May 12, and they gave her a linen shower.

Mrs. D. Sunberg and son, Ray, of 2008 West Fourth street are in Chicago on a few days' visit.

The condition of Ellen Holmsten, who broke her arm above the wrist Saturday afternoon while working at Nelson Bros.' knitting factory, was today reported as better.

The choir of the Swedish Mission church will give a concert on May 13.

The regular monthly meeting of the Swedish Christian Sick Benefit society will be held Friday evening at Sloan's hall.

New lockers have been received for the gymnasium of the Young Men's Sodality of St. Clement's Catholic church. The quarters are being otherwise improved.

Rev. James Sanacker, superintendent of the Red River Valley district of the Norwegian-Danish M. E. churches, left last evening for Minneapolis, after a short stay with West end friends.

The Epworth Sewing Circle of the Norwegian-Danish M. E. church met last evening at the church and made arrangements for the big May festival, which is to take place May 25. Those who are to participate will be grotesquely gowned.

The Young Ladies' Guild of St. Luke's Episcopal church will meet at 8 o'clock tonight at the church.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church will meet Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Andrew Petersoon, 11 Twenty-fifth avenue west.

There will be a meeting of the cadets of St. Luke's Episcopal church tomorrow evening in the vestry rooms.

Rev. H. K. Madsen, pastor of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church has as his guests three delegates to the Virginia conference of Norwegian-Danish churches. They are Rev. K. Wiberg of Grantsburg, Rev. Abrahamson of Ashland, and Rev. Wilhelmson of Chicago.

Rev. C. C. Nelson, pastor of the Swedish Mission church, is in Minneapolis.

The choir of St. Luke's Episcopal church will meet Thursday evening at the vestry. Prof. Reyner will direct as usual.

Mrs. Ness and daughter, Rachel, of Twentieth avenue west and First street have left for a trip to Norway.

The Ladies' Guild of St. Luke's Episcopal church will meet Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robinson 7 Nineteenth avenue west.

The men of the Swedish M. E. church will hold a festival at the church, Thursday evening. A fine program is being arranged.

The Ladies' Foreign Missionary Society of the Swedish M. E. church will meet tonight at the church at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Swenson, who was struck yesterday morning by a westbound street car at Twenty-third avenue west, is getting along very well today.

ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR ADMINISTRATION.

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. In Probate Court.

In the matter of the estate of Augusta T. Albertson, decedent.

The Petition of William S. Albertson having been filed in this Court, representing among other things, that Augusta T. Albertson, then being a resident of the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, died intestate, in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, on the 25th day of September, 1908, leaving estate in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, and that said petitioner is the husband of said decedent, and praying that Letters of Administration of the estate of said decedent be granted to John M. Schuler.

It Is Ordered, That said petition be heard before this Court, at the Probate Court rooms in the Court House in Duluth, in said County, on Monday, the 24th day of May, 1909, at ten o'clock, a. m., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

Ordered Further, That this Order be served by publication in the Duluth Evening Herald according to law, and that a copy of this Order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not less than ten days prior to said day of hearing.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., April 26th, 1909.

By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

(Seal, Probate Court, St. Louis County, Minnesota.)

Duluth Evening Herald, April 27; May 4, 11, 1909.

DEMAND IS VERY FIRM

Wheat Goes Up Two Points in the Duluth Market.

Flax Has a Good Advance During the Session Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 4.—Wheat shot up 2 points during the last half of the session in the Duluth market today and the other American markets showed similar substantial gains over the previous day.

At the opening, the options were rather quiet, with prices hovering around yesterday's closing level, but a strong demand developed later and with the good buying, prices advanced well.

Bradstreet's reported a decrease of 7,944,000 bu in the world's visible supply of wheat. In the United States and Canada there was a decrease of 4,444,000 bu and in Europe and afloat, a decrease of 3,500,000 bu.

Liverpool closed ¼d to 1⅝d higher; Antwerp ⅜c higher, Budapest ⅜c lower and Berlin, ⅜c higher.

The May option closed 2c higher in Duluth, 1¼c higher in Chicago, 2¼c higher in Minneapolis, 2⅜c higher in New York and 1⅞c higher in Winnipeg. The July option closed 2⅜c higher in Duluth, 2⅜@2¾c higher in Chicago, 2c higher in Minneapolis and 2⅜c higher in New York and Winnipeg. Comparisons on the Southwestern close are impossible.

May corn closed ⅝c higher in Chicago, and oats ⅜c higher.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"The strength in American markets yesterday caused small offerings here at the opening and values were unchanged. Following the opening, the market was dull with the undertone heavier, and July and September eased ¼d to ⅝d. Pressure was the result of the free Russian offerings, improved foreign crop conditions, quietness of spot and the fact that cargoes were offered at a decline and met with poor response. Later, however, the near months gained sharply, May advancing a penny and July half, due to reports of manipulation in these deliveries. Country markets continue firm. Receipts for three days show a decrease, and it is said that the European visible supply will sharply decrease this week. Shorts were nervous and covered freely. At mid-day the market was nervously with values unchanged to ⅝d higher than yesterday.

"Corn was quiet and ¼d lower. Pressure was the result of the cheaper La Plata offerings."

Primary receipts of wheat were 286,000 bu, last year 317,000 bu. Shipments 261,000 bu, last year 295,000 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour were 115,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 303,000 bu, last year 432,000 bu. Shipments 466,000 bu, last year 458,000 bu. Clearances of corn were 21,000 bu.

Wheat was quite active in Duluth May wheat opened unchanged at $1.24⅜, declined to $1.23⅞, rallied to $1.26⅛ and closed there, a gain of 2c over yesterday. July wheat opened ½c lower at $1.23½ bid, advanced to $1.25⅛ and closed there, a gain of 2⅜c over yesterday. September wheat opened late at $1.08 bid, went to $1.09⅝ and closed there a gain of 1¾c over yesterday.

Durum wheat closed 1⅝c higher and a cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2⅞c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quiet, but stronger. May flax opened unchanged at $1.66, advanced to $1.67 and closed there, a gain of 1c over yesterday. July flax opened ¼c lower at $1.46⅞, advanced ½c to $1.47 and closed there, a gain of ½c over yesterday. September flax closed ⅛c higher at $1.44⅜. October flax sold at $1.39¾ and closed at $1.39, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday.

Oats closed ⅛c higher and other cereals remained unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Bearish Sentiment in Pit Brought On By Weather Conditions.

Chicago, May 4.—Weather conditions in this country were again the dominating influence in the wheat market and as the "weather map" showed higher temperatures generally throughout this country and Canada, sentiment in the pit today was bearish. Commission houses and pit traders were inclined to sell but the offerings were large. Early in the day trade was dull and featureless, with prices ranging a trifle below yesterday's closing level. Initial quotations were a shade higher to ¼@⅝c lower, July being at $1.12⅝@1.12⅝. After touching $1.12@1.12⅝, the price again dropped back to $1.12⅝.

The market developed into an old-fashioned bull market late in the session on active buying by bull leaders. July advanced 4c from the low point of the day and the more distant deliveries rose nearly 3c. The top for July was reached at $1.16. The market closed strong with prices at the top notch. July being up 3⅝@3¾c at 1.16. May closed at $1.28, a net gain of 1¾c.

Warmer weather and a slight increase in local receipts prompted considerable selling of corn early in the day, resulting in moderate weakness. Prices at the opening were ⅛@¼c lower. July being at 68⅜@68½c. Later on, July broke up to 69c.

The market became strong with wheat early in the day. July advanced from 68⅜@69c. The close was strong with July up ¼@⅝c at 69⅝@69c. The more springlike weather induced free selling of oats by commission houses and pit traders, which caused slight weakness at the start. July opened ⅛c to ¼c lower at 49¾@49⅝c, but later sold up to 49¾c.

Trade in provisions was dull, but the market was quite firm owing to a 5c advance in live hogs.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Strength Gained as the Session Progresses—Three Cars of Flax.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 4.—The market was very strong today. Light offerings were given for the advance of 2½c when May went to a new high point, $1.27½. Local stocks decreased 350,000 bu for three days. The market gained strength as the session progressed. No buying by outside markets was reported here today. Minneapolis today received 161 cars against 112. Duluth 18 against 34. Winnipeg 94 against 78. May opened at $1.24⅝; high, $1.27½; low, $1.24⅝; close, $1.27⅜. July opened at $1.24; high, $1.26½; low, $1.24; close, $1.26⅝. Cash wheat was in strong demand with premiums on the lower grades advanced. Country millers were eager buyers of No. 1 northern at 3¼@3½c over the July option and No. 2 northern at 1¾@2c over. No. 2 northern spot and to arrive, $1.29¾@1.29⅝. No. 3 northern spot and to arrive, $1.27⅜@1.27⅝. No. 4 wheat, $1.24¾@1.26⅜. No. 3 yellow corn, 69¾@69¾c. No. 3 white oats, 53⅝@53⅞c. No. 2 rye, 84⅜@85¾c.

Flax—Receipts, 3 cars today against 21; shipments none. Light offerings made the trade inactive. Demand was strong and prices were the same as the Duluth July option. Close price, $1.66⅝. Barley—Receipts, 24 cars today against 9; shipments none. Demand was steady and there was little change in the situation. Prices held firm. Malting barley received the strongest inquiry. This market continued to be out of line with the outside markets. Closing range, 62@63½c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,424. Demand was strong and the market held firm and active. Shipments showed a decrease and prices held firm. Bran in bulk, $23.50@24.00.

Flour was in fair demand again. Millers generally agree that the business has slightly improved in the past week. The trade looked for an increased Eastern demand, regardless of the wheat market as Eastern stocks are low. Shipments were steady and prices firm. Shipments, 84,186 barrels. First patents, $6.10@6.20; second patents, $5.50@6.10; first clears, $4.50@4.95; second clears, $3.45@3.55.

HEARD ON THE FLOOR.

Gossip of the Trading Room and the Pit.

The government crop report for May will be issued Friday at 1 p. m., Washington time, and will relate to the winter wheat, meadow, mowing lands and spring pastures and the percentage actually done up to May 1 of spring plowing and spring planting.

* * *

The Oklahoma crop report for May puts the condition of the winter wheat in that state at 74 per cent, against 78 per cent a month ago. It estimated the abandoned acreage at about 11 per cent, leaving about 1,000,000 acres to be harvested. Some counties reported the presence of the green bug.

* * *

Reports of dry weather and the need of rain came from the winter wheat country today and had a bullish effect on the market. Le Count wired from Wilson, Kan., that the weather was very hot and that the wheat was deteriorating.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Movement of Reading Dominated the Market Throughout Session.

Inroads on Day's Gains Made By Declines Near Close.

New York, May 4.—An irregular tone prevailed today at the opening dealings in stocks, which were on a large scale. The industrials were strong and made some conspicuous advances. Central Railroad of New Jersey rose 2, American Cotton Oil 1¾ and Illinois Central, St. Louis Southwestern preferred, American Car, American Smelting and American Beet Sugar, large fractions. Reading opened with sales of 4,200 shares at an advance of ½. There was a good proportion of declines, including some of the most prominent stocks, but they were all limited to small fractions.

Large amounts of Reading were thrown on the market, which caused a reaction in the railroad stocks. Reading fell back a point, while Union Pacific sold as much below yesterday's closing. Some of the metal stocks and industrials were meanwhile moving upwards. Buying orders were distributed in Reading and Union Pacific later, which pulled them up 1⅜ and 1½ from the lowest and the rest of the list also briskly. Reading second preferred gained 4 points, American Cotton Oil and Union Pacific, Wheeling and Lake Erie first and second preferred, United States Steel preferred, the Bethlehem Steel stocks, United States Rubber, Virginia-Carolina Chemical and American Linseed preferred 1 to 1½.

The movement of Reading dominated the whole market and when that stock fell back to 151 the list halted. Enormous transactions in Reading then came up, carrying the stock to 153½. Union Pacific was heavily dealt in at an advance of 1½. Gains of a point or more were made by Great Northern preferred, Northern Pacific, American Smelting, American Telephone and American Agricultural Chemical and New York Central. New York, Chicago & St. Louis second preferred sold at an advance of 4 points, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie and Bethlehem Steel preferred, 3; National Biscuit preferred 2, Southern Railway preferred and New York, Chicago & St. Louis declined 1, and United Railways 2. Reading fell back a point at noon. Bonds were firm.

The United States Steel was carried up 2 points to 118¾. This gave another upward advance to prices. Reading was less prominent, but hovered around 153. Union Pacific also was a notable feature, reaching 190¾, a gain of 2 points. American Steel Foundry moved up 2¾, Federal Mining 1½, St. Paul 1⅜, Pennsylvania 1¼ and Southern Pacific, Amalgamated Copper and American Tobacco preferred, 1, Canada Southern ran off 2, Western Union 1¼ and Pressed Steel Car preferred, 1.

Hesitation caused a contraction in the dealings for a while, but the market did not vary much, and a further rise in Reading to 145¾, making its gain 3 points, stiffened prices again. Central Railroad of New Jersey jumped 16 points, New York Central 1⅝, Illinois Central 1⅜, Northwestern 1.

The market closed irregular and unsettled. Traders sold to take profits and Reading and Union Pacific fell back 2¼ and 1¼ respectively. Central Railroad & New Jersey and Lackawanna made gains of 15 points and Louisville & Nashville, the United States Rubber first and second preferred and Tennessee Copper 1½. The decline became sharp in the late dealings making inroads on the day's gains. Denver & Rio Grande lost 1.

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION —OF— CULVER LAND & MINING COMPANY.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, That we, whose names are hereto subscribed, have agreed and do hereby agree to form a corporation under Chapter 55 of Revised Laws of 1905 of the State of Minnesota, and for that purpose do hereby subscribe and acknowledge the following Certificate of Incorporation:

ARTICLE I.

The name of this corporation shall be Culver Land & Mining Company, and the general nature of its business shall be to buy, sell, let, lease, plat, improve and develop lands, tenements, and hereditaments in the State of Minnesota or elsewhere. To prospect for, locate, acquire by discovery, purchase, lease, license, option, franchise, grant, gift, devise or otherwise, and hold, possess, enjoy, develop, mine, work, operate and exploit mines, minerals, lands, claims and mineral rights in the State of Minnesota or elsewhere, and to construct and maintain such plants as are necessary to such business and to do a general mining business. The principal place of the transaction of the business of this corporation shall be the City of Duluth, State of Minnesota.

ARTICLE II.

The time of the commencement of this corporation shall be May 1, 1909, and the period of its continuance shall be thirty (30) years.

ARTICLE III.

The management of this corporation and the conduct of its affairs shall be vested in a board of three (3) directors who shall all be stockholders, and who shall be elected at the annual meeting of this corporation, to be held on the first Tuesday in April of each year, the first annual meeting to be held in the year 1910. The names and addresses of the persons composing the Board of Directors until the first election are as follows: James Ferguson, Hugh J. McClearn and William D. Edson all of Duluth, Minnesota.

The officers of the corporation shall be a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer. The secretary and treasurer may or may not be members of the Board of Directors. The corporation may provide by By-law for the appointment of such other officers or agents as may be deemed convenient or essential for the transaction of its business. Until otherwise elected, the following shall be the officers of this corporation: James A. Ferguson, President, Hugh J. McClearn, Vice President, and William D. Edson, Secretary and Treasurer.

Any vacancies, either in the Board of Directors or other offices of the company, occurring at any time, may be filled by vote of the Board of Directors until the next regular election.

ARTICLE V.

The amount of the capital stock of this corporation shall be Fifty Thousand ($50,000) Dollars, divided into Five Thousand (5,000) shares of Ten ($10) Dollars each, to be paid for in cash or its equivalent as called for by the Board of Directors.

ARTICLE VI

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which this corporation shall be subject shall be Fifty Thousand ($50,000) Dollars.

CHRISTIANS ARE THREATENED AND WARSHIPS HURRY

More Trouble Is Brewing at Sadia and Duertyul.

Starvation Is Menacing Hadjin; Americans Care for Orphans.

Soldiers of the Sultan Cross Over Border Into Persia.

Beirut, Asiatic Turkey, May 5.—The situation at Sadia and Deurtyul again is critical. Trouble is brewing, and further anti-Christian outbreaks are feared.

Five hundred Turkish troops have been dispatched to those two points.

In addition the British battleship Triumph with the British consul on board left here this morning for Deurtyul.

Hadjin Faces Famine.

Hadjin, May 5.—Hadjin is facing a terrible famine. There is neither money nor food in the city. The orphans that have been cared for by the American missionaries are crying for bread and the missionaries are anxious that their benevolent friends be notified of the situation here.

Rosary Worth $375,000.

Constantinople, May 5.—The commission which is taking an inventory of the property at the imperial palace at Yildiz has discovered, according to the local newspapers, bank notes to the value of $2,250,000 and a large quantity of jewelry, including a rosary, alone valued at $375,000. Papers seized at the palace show that Abdul Hamid had something over $7,000,000 on deposit in a foreign bank.

Tewfik Pasha has placed his resignation as grand vizier in the hands of the sultan, but he has agreed to retain the post until after the ceremony of "girding on the sword," which corresponds to the coronation in other countries and for a few days thereafter, until the country is quieter. This ceremony probably will take place next Monday.

Bound For Turkey.

Gibraltar, May 5.—The United States cruisers North Carolina and Montana arrived here today from Guantanamo bay, Cuba, bound for Asiatic Turkey to protect American interests.

Turks Invade Persia.

St. Petersburg, May 5.—It is reported here that Turkish troops have occupied Urumiah in Northern Persia. The Russian foreign office has no confirmation of the report.

Urumiah is forty miles from the Turkish frontier and a week's march from Tabriz. It is a center of foreign missionary activity, and a dispatch from St. Petersburg yesterday said that the Kurdish tribesmen, balked in their attempts to plunder Tabriz, had turned their attention to the outlying villages and towns and that the situation in Urumiah was particularly alarming.

Urumiah and the surrounding country was occupied by Turkish regulars last June and there was every indication that Turks were taking advantage of the disturbed conditions in Persia to secure a valuable strategic post.

The Turkish troops were withdrawn from all the positions in contestable Persia in August of last year and it was agreed by the grand vizier of Turkey and the Persian ambassador at Constantinople to effect an equitable arrangement regarding disputed points.

TWO GOVERNORS MAKE ADDRESSES

Southwest Country Life Commission Convenes In Guthrie.

Guthrie, Okla., May 5.—With delegations from Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Arizona, Kansas and Texas in attendance, the Southwest interstate commission on country life, convened today for a three-days session.

The convention, which is the first of its nature ever held in Oklahoma, is called for the sole purpose of considering ways and means for betterment of country schools, country roads and country life in general. Prominent speakers from all parts of the Southwest will deliver addresses.

Governor Charles N. Haskell delivered the address of welcome on behalf of the state of Oklahoma at the morning session. He was followed by Governor T. M. Campbell of Texas, who responded on behalf of the visiting states.

ACCUSED OF ATTACK ON WIFE, KILLS HIMSELF.

Aberdeen, S. D., May 5.—Mabel Russell was found in her room at Groton unconscious from a blow on the head from some sharp instrument. She was brought to the Aberdeen hospital still unconscious.

Bert Russell, her husband, from whom she separated last fall, when arrested at Wanbay suspected of the crime, killed himself.

RESTAURANT MEN PROMISE NOT TO RAISE THE PRICES.

Seattle, Wash., May 5.—At a meeting of the Seattle Restaurant Keepers' association a pledge was given to I. A. Nadeau, director general of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, that prices would not be raised during the exposition.

AMBASSADOR TALKS AT PEACE CONFAB

COUNT VON BERNSTORFF.

CALLED WAR INCUBATOR

Compulsory Peace Is Decried at Conference in Chicago.

Diplomats of Various Nations Raise Voices for Harmony.

Chicago, May 5.—An exchange of greetings today between diplomatic representatives of various nations and a business session to consider the practical results of the gathering of peace envoys constituted the last day's work of the second national peace congress. Joseph B. Moore, justice of the supreme court of Michigan, presided over the business session. Ten-minute talks were made by eight delegates. Alfred H. Love of Philadelphia, president of the Universal Peace union, said in part:

"Compulsory peace is an incubator of war, preparation for war is a menace of war; broken treaties of peace are peacebreakers. It is a lamentable page in our history, this showing to the world the gigantic destructive dreadnoughts, our boasted instruments of death, causing other countries to imitate this cowardly, selfish and unneighborly nationality that can say on its coin 'In God We Trust,' and then in its intercourse with others repudiate the psalmist when he says 'The Lord is our refuge and our strength.'"

Mrs. Fannie Fern Andrews of Boston, secretary of the American School Peace league told of the work of that organization. She said:

"The American School Peace league aims to secure the co-operation of the educational public of America in promoting international justice and equity. The great economic and social current of peace in the United States is receiving ever-widening impulse from the Mohonk arbitration conference, which has secured the co-operation of more than 100 boards of trade and 200 colleges; the American Peace society, whose literature reaches every corner of the country; the Italian-American, German-American and Scandinavian-American societies, organized to promote educational and social international relations; the Intercollegiate Peace association, with branches in forty-seven colleges, and the Cosmopolitan clubs."

WRIGHTS START FOR HOME LAND

They Will Conduct Experiments of a Secret Nature.

London, May 5.—Wilbur and Orville Wright journeyed to Southampton this morning and embarked on the steamer Kronprinzessin Cecilie for New York. A large gathering of members of the Aero club bade the American aviators farewell from London.

Orville Wright said he and his brother are to conduct further experiments of a secret nature. On their return to England they will carry out some important trials for the British government, the character of which he was not permitted to divulge.

Orders Wright Aeroplane.

St. Petersburg, May 5.—The All-Russian Aero club has placed an order or a Wright aeroplane in Paris. M. Lebedeff, a member of the club, will go to Paris for instructions in manipulating the machine.

Berlin, May 5.—A dispatch received here from Stuttgart says that Count Zeppelin, the middle of May, will undertake to come from Friedrichshafen to Berlin in his new airship Zeppelin II.

YIELDS TO DEMANDS

Shah of Persia Issues Proclamation Granting a Constitution.

Only Way to Restore Order and Promote Public Welfare.

Teheran, May 5.—A proclamation granting a constitution to Persia has been signed and issued by the shah.

The document announces that as a constitutional regime alone is capable of bringing about the restoration of order and promoting the welfare of the people, his majesty accords a constitution to the nation.

Elections will be held in accordance with the new electoral law to be published shortly and should be completed by July 19, when the deputies will assemble at Teheran.

COMMANDER COE, WISCONSIN, DIES

Department Chief of the G. A. R. Passes Away in Whitewater.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 5.—A special to the Daily News from Whitewater, Wis., says: Edwin D. Coe, department commander of the G. A. R. of Wisconsin, and veteran editor of the Whitewater Register, died today from complication of heart trouble and liver and kidney disorders.

Mr. Coe was 69 years of age. He had been United States pension agent in Milwaukee for ten years, retiring from that position about a year ago. He had been a newspaper man forty years and served one term as president of the Wisconsin Press association.

Mr. Coe enlisted with the First Wisconsin cavalry during the Civil war.

BE GENUINE, IS ANGELL'S ADVICE

Venerable Head of Michigan University Addresses Seniors.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 5.—"Be genuine and sincere; genius is not necessary to give us a good influence over others," said the venerable Dr. James B. Angell, president of the University of Michigan, addressing the 900 members of the class of 1909.

The graduation of this class in June will be coincident with Dr. Angell's retirement from the university presidency, which he has held since 1871.

The occasion of the address was the annual "swing out," when the seniors don their caps and gowns, and after a parade on the campus, assemble in University hall to listen to the farewell advice of the university president.

EAGER FOR ROOSEVELT

Sleeping Sickness Board Wants Him to Visit Camp.

Two More Big Lions Fall Before His Rifle.

Nairobi, British East Africa, May 5.—Theodore Roosevelt went lion hunting again yesterday, and before the chase was over two more big lions had fallen before his gun. Mr. Roosevelt now holds the record for lion killing in the protectorate. Since Saturday of last week a total of five lions and one lioness have been bagged by him.

Mombasa, British East Africa, May 5.—The sleeping sickness commission is hoping that Theodore Roosevelt will pay a visit to the expedition's camp at Sesse, Uganda, where Sir David and Lady Bruce are in charge of the segregation hospitals. The governments of Germany, France and Belgium, as well as the government of the United Kingdom, are loyally working together, endeavoring to find a cure or preventive for the sleeping sickness. Altogether seven European doctors have succumbed to the fatal disease since the attempts to cope with the evil were commenced. Governor Hesketh Bell, in appealing to the millionaires of the world and others benevolently disposed for money gifts to enable him to purchase stock to gratify the one and only craving of those whose suffering is so intense, which is summed up in the word "meat," describes his latest visit to the camp in part as follows:

"The patients were lodged in large thatched bandas and were divided, ac-

MAY WHEAT AT NEW HIGH MARK

Advances to $1.29 1-2 Shortly After Opening at Chicago.

Chicago, May 5.—May wheat advanced to $1.29½, a new record price, shortly after the opening of business on the board of trade today. July rose 1 cent from last night's close, to $1.17. Dry weather in Kansas and Nebraska were the new bullish influences.

Exceeded in Gotham.

New York, May 5.—The record price for May wheat was exceeded on the New York grain market today, when its price advanced 2⅝c to $1.25. At the same time July wheat went up 1⅝c to $1.22⅝. Reports of a shortage in the supply of cash wheat were associated with the advance. There was also a rumor that a pool had been formed to hold up the price of the July option.

TRAGEDY AT NICKERSON

Peter Swenson, Hotel Proprietor, Cut His Throat With Razor.

First Struck His Wife With Rock, Knocking Her Unconscious.

Sandstone, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nickerson, a small station on the Great Northern railroad, north of here, in Pine county, and thirty-seven miles south of Duluth, was the scene of a tragedy early this morning when Peter Swenson, proprietor of the hotel, killed himself after trying to kill his wife.

The couple had quarreled frequently of late, and their troubles came to a climax about 2 o'clock this morning when Swenson attacked his wife with a rock. He is said to have struck her over the head, inflicting a deep, but not fatal, wound, from which blood flowed freely. The woman sank to the floor in a stupor and, thinking he had killed her, Swenson ran into his room and, picking up his razor, cut his throat, dying almost instantly. The coroner investigated the case this morning and pronounced it plainly one of suicide. The woman, although sustaining a painful wound, will recover. Swenson was about 40 years of age.

PAINTER SLAIN BY MOTORMAN

Widow of the Victim Is Detained as a Witness.

Detroit, Mich., May 5.—Robert Barrows, a painter, is dead; Michael Burkhardt is under arrest charged with the murder, and Mrs. Barrows is under detention as a witness as a result of a shooting in the rear of 143 La Fayette avenue, where Mrs. Barrows was employed as housekeeper. The husband and wife had been separated for some time.

Last night Mrs. Barrows was standing on the back porch talking to Burkhardt, a motorman, who had driven up in an automobile, when her husband appeared. Only a few words were spoken when a revolver flashed. Barrows dropped to the ground and Burkhardt disappeared.

KIDNAPING THREAT IS BELIEVED A HOAX.

Philadelphia, May 5.—On suspicion of knowing something of a threat to kidnap an 8-year-old boy in this city unless the parents pay $10,000, George Hodgens, aged 38 years, was taken into custody in Fairmount Park today, and is being detained. The police, however, believe the man is innocent and that the threatened kidnaping is a hoax.

DEMOCRATS ARE WINNERS IN THE CITY ELECTIONS

MAYOR J. C. DAHLMAN.

Omaha Re-elects Its Famous Cowboy Mayor, J. C. Dahlman.

Spokane is Lost By Republicans By a Neat Plurality.

Reno, Nev., Votes For Gambling; Building to Begin.

Spokane, Wash., May 5.—N. S. Pratt, Democrat, defeated J. T. Oma, Republican, for mayor yesterday by a majority of 600 to 700.

Democrats Sweep Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., May 5.—The Democrats made a sweep of Omaha at the election yesterday, and Dahlman, the "cowboy mayor," was re-elected. The waterworks proposition carried. Dahlman won by 3,000 plurality, a gain of 2,000 over his vote of two years ago.

Lincoln Votes Dry.

Lincoln, Neb., May 5.—A "dry" capital city for the next year was the verdict rendered in the municipal election here. The proposition to abolish the saloon carried by a majority placed at not less than 500 in a total vote of nearly 9,000. After next Tuesday, when the municipal year expires, there will be no more saloons in Lincoln. Republicans claim to have elected Don L. Lovemayer over Rust Malone. Democrat, by a majority estimated at 100, while the Democrats claim the election of Malone.

Reno Goes for Gambling.

Reno, Nev., May 5.—Arthur Britt, liberal candidate, was elected mayor of Reno, defeating the candidate of the Municipal league by about 100 plurality. The league favored a closed town. James May announces that he will begin the reconstruction of the old Palace gambling house at a cost of $150,000.

MILCH COWS TESTED FOR TUBERCULOSIS.

Ashland, Wis., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.) — State Veterinarian Clark of Madison gave a public demonstration of bovine tuberculosis in slaughtered milch cows here today. Tests of about half the milch cows in the vicinity showed that thirty-one had tuberculosis.

NIGHT RIDERS NOW CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Union City, Pa., May 5.—Pete and Smith Branham, two night riders, defendants out on bail awaiting trial, were arrested and placed in jail today, charged with the murder of a man by the name of Phillips of Rexford lake late yesterday afternoon. It is said that the parties were involved in a quarrel of long standing.

UP BEFORE McPHERSON

Judge Who Was Attacked Resumes Missouri Rate Case Hearing.

Jurist Philips Makes Brief Statement, Speaking From Bench.

Kansas City, Mo., May 5.—Missouri's rate cases were again up for consideration in the federal court here today when Judge Smith McPherson heard arguments for a permanent injunction to restrain the state courts and state officials from interfering in this litigation, which orginated in the United States courts.

An amended decree to the original passenger and freight rate decision was filed in Kansas City, April 17, by Judge McPherson. It restrained the state courts from interfering in the regulation of the rates, but it was general in its application. Judge John F. Philips issued an injunction a week later in the federal court which absolutely tied the hands of every state court, every state and county official and every private citizen against regulating railroad rates.

Arguments for a permanent injunction on Judge Philips' order was set for today. This order was intended to prevent the circuit court of St. Louis from proceeding with an injunction against the state of Missouri. The injunction in the state court in St. Louis charges that the railroads in Missouri are in an unlawful combination to increase passenger rates. It was insti-

DEEP WATERWAY CAUTION URGED

Lorimer Would Go Slow in Spending of Bond Issue.

Springfield, Ill., May 5.—Consideration of the deep waterway plans in committee of the whole began today with the convening of the house, and Congressman Lorimer gave a description of what the Federal government deep waterway plans are, and of their application to Illinois.

He said he wished to go on record as opposed to spending one dollar of the $20,000,000 bond issue for a deep waterway until the United States government agrees to join with the state of Illinois in the carrying on of the great work.

"I am confident," he said, "that when the survey of the government engineers is published that it will demonstrate the feasibility of a waterway from the lakes to the gulf."

George E. Plumm, a delegate from the Association of Commerce of Chicago, said the people of Chicago believe the work should be carried on in uniformity as to locks, sills and other details from the lakes to the gulf. The water power that will be developed he described as an incident to the great work, holding that no incident should govern the main question at issue.

CONGRESS NOT LIKELY TO ADJOURN BEFORE JUNE 15.

Washington, May 5.—President Taft has come to the conclusion as a result of talks with senators and members of the house of representatives during the past two days, that there is little or no chance for an adjournment of congress before June 15 or July 1.

ELKS' CHERRY PICKERS' CAPTAIN KILLS HIMSELF.

Toledo, Ohio, May 5.—Delirious from illness, Capt. William Cook, prominent Elk, noted drillmaster and captain of the Elks' Cherry Pickers, a famous drill squad, leaped from a fourth-story window today and was instantly killed. A daughter tried to prevent her father from jumping.

DIES AFTER RECEIVING FIRST PENSION MONEY.

Elkhart, Ind., May 5.—His desire that his services to the Union in the Civil war should be appreciated by the granting to him of a special pension being satisfied by the receipt yesterday of his first voucher for $20 a month under act of congress, Edwin Shelmade under act of congress, Edwin Shelmade was found dead in his buggy today. He was 75 years old, and in feeble health, but was determined, as he often said, to cling to life until his pension bill was passed.

SEVEN GRAFTERS ARE SENTENCED

Former Bank President Ramsey Gets Year and a Half.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 5.—Sentences were imposed in criminal court today by Judge Frazer on seven persons convicted within the last few weeks in the municipal graft cases.

The sentences follow: W. W. Ramsey, former national bank president, convicted of bribery, one year and six months' imprisonment and a fine of $1,000; Capt. John F. Klein, councilman, two years and a fine of $1,000 on the bribery conviction and one year and six

MAY TERM OF COURT OPEN

Grand Jury Charged and Goes at Once Into Session.

Lawyers Discuss Legal Point in New State Laws.

The May term of the district court opened this morning with the call to the calendar.

There are to be heard this term 114 cases, of which fifty-one are court cases and ninety-three jury. Fifteen cases were stricken, one was transferred to the new range court at Virginia, and ten were continued until the September term.

The grand jury was instructed as to its duties by Judge Dibell and they at once went into secret session. It is known that they will have but little to consider, and it is believed will remain out but a short time. The grand jury for this term is composed of: H. A. Wing, A. C. Barthe, Walter A. Poehler, Charles E. Bassett, P. T. Brownell, Cliff T. B. Hawkes, A. A. Filder, J. A. Todd, George A. Everest, I. Freimuth, Fred G. Bradbury, W. L. Underhill, James McCahill, W. O. Smith, J. D. Mahoney, A. R. Zweifel, W. F. Bemboom, E. E. Knox, W. B. Logan, John Portham, (Ely), C. A. Phelps and John M. Oldham.

One thing that was under discussion by local attorneys this morning that appeared to interest most of them was the new law passed by the recent legislature regarding the opening of court. The legislature passed a law establishing terms of court on the range on the third Tuesday in January, March, April, July and September.

Immediately after passing this law another was passed establishing court generally for this district on the first Wednesday in January, March, April, May, July, September, October and November.

At the present time court opens in Duluth on the first Wednesday in January, March, May, September and November. Local members of the bar are trying to figure out if two extra terms will be created in Duluth. Some are of the opinion that a mistake was made in the enrollment of the bill and others are inclined to think the error was made in the printed copy of the new laws.

PETITION FOR BRIDGE.

County Aid Asked for Structure Across Red River.

Fargo N. D., May. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—More than usual interest attached to a petition from the residents of Wild Rice, south, though up stream from Fargo, for county assistance in the construction of a pile bridge across the Red river.

A meeting, presided over by Mat. Shunk of St. Paul, was recently held here to urge the removal of the pile bridges down stream, between here and Grand Forks. It has developed that some of these were constructed with county aid. The petitioners assert that while the Red river might be construed by the Federal government as navigable up to Fargo, that it is unlikely to be so regarded beyond this point.

GOOD LIST OF TOASTS

Royal League Installation of Officers a Successful Affair.

Mayor Haven and City Comptroller Among the Speakers.

The annual installation of officers of the West Duluth council of the Royal League last evening was a very successful affair. The meeting was called to order by the retiring archon, N. P. Willner, and, after the business of the evening was disposed of, James A. Wharton, vice archon of the state grand lodge, was called to the chair and officiated as installing officer and administered the obligation to the class of candidates.

After the installation ceremonies were over the members of the council served lunch in honor of the visiting members, and while the smoker, which followed, was in progress, members of the Duluth councils responded to toasts suggested by the toastmaster, Martin J. Murray, the incoming archon.

Mayor Haven spoke on "Practical Fraternity," concluding with some optimistic predictions in regard to West Duluth. W. S. McCormick, city comptroller, had "Two Pictures of Life" as a subject, and by request gave a recitation, "Story of the Boxer Troubles," and "Tom" Sparkling Water," by Eugene L. Hargraves, member of the supreme council, told about "The Royal League from a Financial and Business Standpoint."

Alderman W. B. Getchell stated the reasons why he always attends the meetings of the league, and followed this by telling his famous story on "Why Mayor Haven Drinks Milk," which took with all of the members present except the mayor himself. James A. Wharton spoke on "Prospects of the League in West Duluth," following it by the story of "Brother Jim and the Portfolio," which seemed to somewhat embarrass the archon, "Jim" Murray, but pleased the audience immensely.

There were also responses by J. C. McDougall, past archon of the state grand lodge; N. P. Willner, retiring archon; Dr. A. A. Giroux, L. R. Clark, L. A. Barnes and others on various topics.

NON-SUPPORT CASE.

Peter A. Anderson Will Be Tried Before Justice Flack.

Aversion to work brought Peter A. Anderson, 5719 Cody street, to grief yesterday afternoon. He was arrested upon the complaint of his wife, charged with non-support. Besides Mrs. Anderson, there are three children in the family.

A hearing before Justice Flack has been set for this evening. Mrs. Anderson claims that her husband "takes it easy," and is somewhat inclined to shun work. She charges him with coming home drunk on various occasions.

Peter Anderson is a longshoreman, 45 years of age, and has lived in West Duluth for a number of years. He was arrested yesterday afternoon by Lieut. Wilcox of the West Duluth department. He was released upon his own recognizance, and will appear this evening for his trial.

OUT FOR PRACTICE.

Oak Hall Ball Team Getting Ready for Sunday Game.

For the first time this season the Oak Halls will get out for a real practice event tonight. Manager Jack Gram says that from now on, the weather permitting, he will get his men out every evening before the Cloquet game Sunday.

The lineup of the team has not yet been announced, as there are two or three changes that may develop in the course of the Cloquet game Sunday, which will open the season for the West Duluthians.

GOOD PROGRESS.

New Baptist Church About Ready for Interior Decorators.

Interior decoration of the new West Duluth Baptist church will begin in the near future.

Rev. Arthur J. Hoag, pastor of the church, left this morning for Minneapolis, where he will negotiate for the purchase of the necessary furniture.

Work on the church at the present time is progressing very nicely. The first coat of plastering has been put on and the plasterers are working on the second coat. After the plastering has been finished the floor will be put in and then interior decoration will be begun.

Will Launch Doman.

F. H. Wade will launch his new boat, the Doman, tomorrow, the last finishing touches in preparing it for the season having been completed today. His other launch, the Gee Whiz, has been in the water for about a week.

Will Ask for Hearing.

The secretary of war will be requested by the West Duluth Commercial club to call a public meeting in Duluth of local and Superior citizens for the purpose of bringing out the real public sentiment in regard to the rebuilding of the Grassy Point bridge.

As matters now stand, unless some influence is brought to bear upon the war department to reject the submitted plans of the Northern Pacific road, the bridge will be constructed for railroad purposes exclusively. West Duluthians and people of Superior believe that the bridge should be so built as to also allow team and foot passenger traffic. The communication to the war department will be sent after the meeting of the Commercial club Friday evening.

West Duluth Briefs.

STATE OFFICERS IN DULUTH

Auditor and the Attorney General Visit Zenith City.

Sam G. Iverson, state auditor, and George T. Simpson, attorney general, are at the St. Louis hotel today. The two state officials are in Duluth upon a business trip.

Mr. Simpson was in Duluth a short time ago. At that time it was gently rumored that the attorney general was at the head of the Lakes upon a political mission. Mr. Simpson denies that politics has any connection with his visit to the Zenith City.

Both Mr. Iverson and Mr. Simpson are here upon business, according to their statements. They both stated that there was nothing new in state politics at the present time.

Mr. Simpson said that there was nothing to the rumor that there was a quiet little boom being fostered in his interests, the object of the boom being to place Mr. Simpson in line for the Republican nomination for governor. If there is such a boom being fostered in some dark and secret corner, the attorney general says he knows nothing of its origin or whereabouts at the present time.

KILLS FIVE CUBS WITH A CLUB

Fred Travers Has Some Luck Near Town of Stuntz.

Fred Travers of the town of Stuntz, near Hibbing, brought to the auditor's office in the courthouse this morning the pelts of five cub wolves.

They were all very small, the largest being hardly eight inches long. He found them while traveling through the woods one day and being without a gun killed them with a club. It was quite a remmerative excursion for the county is just as anxious to get the cubs as it is the older ones, and the bounty paid is just as large.

BALL TEAM GETS HOME

Work an Easy Victory in Last Out-of-Town Game.

Darby O'Brien Says He Has a Bunch of Pennant Winners.

Catchers: Cooper and Breen. Pitchers: Murray, Douss, Marlon, Thorsen and Klingbell. McCrone, first base; Darby O'Brien second base and manager; Kohl, shortstop; Breen, third base and change catcher. Outfielders: Smith, Taylor and McNally.

Finishing their last spring season, out-of-town engagement by a well-administered coat of whitewash to the Madison, Wis., team yesterday, the White Sox crew, led by gallant Darby O'Brien, struck Duluth today with a sigh of relief.

There are thirteen men in the squad, which may account for some of the reverses of the spring training trip. They are young, hustling players, according to O'Brien, who says that they are full of the necessary pepper to win ball games. Darby says the members of his squad look good to him, and that most of the defeats sustained upon the preliminary training trip were due to the fact that all of the teams Duluth met had the advantage of at least two weeks' training.

O'Brien says he has a good lot of stickers in his bunch. He has quite a few left-handed stickers in the squad, and in most of the games of the trip they were opposed by southpaw twirlers. The fact that the Duluth hitters batted well against these port-wing shooters speaks well for the batting strength of the team.

Of course, it is not known that the present lineup will be the permanent aggregation that will represent Duluth in the race for the Minnesota-Wisconsin league pennant. Every member of the team will have to prove his worth when the season gets under way. O'Brien is not sure that all his players will make good; he just hopes they will. He says he has a good bunch of fast, snappy youngsters, who have performed well upon the trip. Every one of these players will be given the real test when the umps calls "Play ball" for the opening game of the season.

The manager says Catcher Cooper is the pegging kind. He throws down to the second station like a discharge from a Maxim gun, according to the statement of Manager O'Brien, and if the youngster keeps up this high-class order of pegging in the league games there will be few marks in the S. B. corner of the opposition score sheet.

In Smith, Taylor and McNally, O'Brien says he has three out-gardeners who can hit and cover a good piece of green outfield. They can all get up on their toes a bit, if Darby is not dealing in blarney. They all have good throwing wings and they can meet the ball. What more could you ask from outfielders?

Change Catcher Breen will play at the hopeful corner of the diamond at the start of the season. If he makes good at third he will be kept there in all probability. The third station is the regular occupation of Mr. Breen, he only donning the padded mit and the padded protector when necessity calls upon him.

O'Brien did not say much regarding the standard of his own performances at the second sack. He blushed delightfully when the query was put, how'd you like to get a word of praise for the work of the remainder of his infield.

In McCrone, Kohl and Breen the manager-player believes he has an infield that will prove a first-class defense wall against infield swats. They have made a hit in every town the team has appeared. Darby says team play is beginning to show and the infield is working well together.

The first real game of the local season will be on tomorrow. The Sox will meet in the Fitwell aggregation a team worthy of their mettle. The Fitwells are about the fastest semi-professional aggregation in this part of the country, and they will make the Sox travel at every stage of the journey.

The men are all in good condition. Although they ran into some bad weather, they have been working steadily and will be ready to answer the bell a week from Wednesday.

DIES AT AGE OF NINETY-FOUR

Bertlimey Blutneisky Had Lived in Duluth Since 1873.

Bertlimey Blutneisky, a resident of Duluth since 1873, died this morning at the home of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Lesgoda, 19 East Seventh street, at the age of 94 years.

The deceased is survived by a daughter, residing in Los Angeles, Cal., and a son, Frank, who lives in Duluth. The funeral will be held Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock from the Polish church, Third street and Fourth avenue east. Interment will be at Calvary cemetery. Old age was the cause of death.

The deceased was well known among the pioneer residents of Duluth, and in the early days was quite a prominent figure locally. He was born in Germany, and came to this country when a young man.

ENDLESS CHAIN PRAYER REVIVED.

Letters are being sent out through the Duluth postoffice, containing a prayer, with the injunction to the recipient to write and forward nine similar letters to friends. The prayer is as follows:

"Oh, Lord Jesus, I implore Thee to bless all mankind, keep us from all evil, by Thy precious blood, and take us to dwell in eternity."

The plan is to start an endless chain of letters that will reach millions in all parts of the world. A few postal cards have been received with the prayer printed upon them. They have been held up and sent to the dead letter office, as there is a postal ruling against cards of this kind.

ALL RECORDS ARE BROKEN

More Building Permits in April Than Any Previous Month.

Total for First Four Months Passes $1,000,000 Mark.

More building permits were issued by the city of Duluth during April than during any month in the history of the municipality. Every month since the beginning of 1909 has shown an increase over last year.

The first four months of 1909 show an increase in the buildings started of $583,543, as compared with the first four months of last year. Last year's record for this period was $468,496, while the first four months of the present year the total was $1,052,039.

During this time the total was swelled considerable by the Consolidated elevator permit for $311,000; the Commercial club building, representing an expenditure of $70,000, and a new school building, valued at $61,000.

In April 183 building permits were issued by Inspector Kielley's department. This breaks all previous records. The same month last year the total number of permits was 140, and the money represented by them in building construction was $242,720. The money represented last month was $338,135, and the total fees collected were $685, while in April, 1908, the total fees were $429.75.

It is expected the total expenditures for the current year in the line of building will eclipse all previous records. An encouraging sign is the fact that a large number of medium-priced homes for the middle classes are being erected. Numerous flat and apartment buildings are also in the course of construction.

APPEAL TO BE TAKEN THIS WEEK

Friends of William Schrieber Busy in His Behalf.

Things are shaping themselves around and those who have in charge the appeal of William Schrieber for a new trial are confident that they will gain their point. A meeting is being held this afternoon by those interested, and they expect to appeal for a new trial some time during the present week.

Rev. A. T. Moody of the Bethel says that the funds have been growing right along and that there will be no trouble along this line. Schrieber's friends have worked very hard in his behalf, and those who think he has not yet had a fair trial have subscribed liberally for his defense.

Because it was expected that an appeal was to be taken in the case he was not sentenced. He is still in the county jail and his spirits seem to be higher most of the time than those of his friends.

Ross & McKnight are his attorneys.

MINER CRUSHED IN PETTIT MINE

Eveleth, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—While working 185 feet under ground at the Pettit mine near Gilbert this morning, Victor Foula, an experienced Finn miner, was instantly killed by a rock falling from the back of the drift in which he was working.

Ten minutes before the accident the drift was pronounced secure. Foula was 28 years old and single. Deputy Coroner Gleason brought the body to the Eveleth morgue.

DEPARTMENT IS REORGANIZED

The City Engineer's Force Divided tnto Five Sections.

The reorganization of the city engineer's department, as provided for by the council resolution Monday night, will mean the employment of a larger force of men. The department will be divided into five sections, with an experienced engineer at the head of each.

There will be a general survey section, sewer section, street-paving section, inspection department and sidewalk section. General surveys will include all surface surveys; the sewer section will have charge of the platting and surveying of both storm and sanitary sewers; the inspection branch will inspect the work of all departments.

Two new employes have been selected to work in the sidewalk inspection department. Other employes for other departments of the office will be employed, after they have passed a rigid civil service examination.

Mexico Is Celebrating.

El Paso, Tex., May 5.—Today the anniversary of the re-establishment of the Mexican republic, following the overthrow of Maximinan, is being generally observed as a holiday throughout the republic. Business is practically suspended and patriotic exercises are being held in many cities and towns.

Constipation Should not be neglected. It leads to more serious troubles. It shows that the important functions of the liver are imperfectly performed. The best medicine to take for it is the mild, gentle and purely vegetable cathartic

WOLVES SLAUGHTER DEER.

Wild Animals Slaughtered Many in Northwestern Minnesota.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thief River Falls is one of the best fur markets in Northern Minnesota. This point has always been the rendezvous of the trappers for the whole great Red Lake region and more fur has been brought into this city this winter and spring than in any former year.

The small fur-bearing animals appear to multiply and thrive in spite of the increasing settlement of the wooded sections of the northern part of the state, while the larger animals are fast disappearing. Trappers who have spent the whole winter and last fall in the woods north of the Red lakes and who are arriving in the city report that the usual winter sacrifice of the deer continues unabated.

Nearly all the damage is caused by the wolves, though the human hunters reap more disnan the law allows them. It is claimed that many times as many as five to eight carcasses have been found, all slaughtered by a pack of wolves merely for the sake of wolfish satisfaction.

ENDS HER TROUBLES.

Desperate Over Ill Health, St. Paul Girl Cuts Her Throat.

St. Paul, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mary Lawler, 17 years old, died at the city hospital yesterday from the effects of a gash in her throat, self-inflicted, it is said, by the girl while despondent over continued ill-health. The girl was taken from the home of her parents, 633 Capitol boulevard late Monday night by the police.

Timothy W. Lawler, a letter carrier, father of the girl, told the police his daughter has but recently come home from a sanitarium, where she was sent for treatment of nervous disorders.

ONE-LEGGED MAN IS IN TROUBLE

Resists Arrest and Judge Gives Him Jail Sentence.

Oscar Dubois, a one-legged man, resisted arrest in a Bowery saloon last night. He was found guilty in municipal court this morning on a disorderly conduct charge, and was sentenced to twenty days in jail.

The man was intoxicated, it is claimed, and raised such a disturbance in the saloons along the Bowery that he was thrown out of several of them. Finally, at 625 West Superior street, an officer undertook to place him under arrest.

The man became greatly enraged, and tore the policeman's star from his coat, throwing it on the floor. Then he made a jump for the bluecoat's legs, and the latter had quite a time getting himself untangled.

MARINE NEWS

LIVINGSTON IN CHARGE

In Conducting Fight for Open Shop on Lakes.

Was Responsible for Placing Guards on Association Vessel.

President William Livingston of the Lake Carriers' association, from his office in Detroit, is keeping in close touch with the strike situation at all of the Great Lake ports. As the head of the association he is looked to by all members as the authoritative source of all orders affecting vessels controlled by the Lake Carriers' association. Mr. Livingston is a firm believer in the policy of silence, and his public utterances on the subject of the strike have been neither frequent nor lengthy. So far as those not of the inner circle are aware Mr. Livingston is not a bit worried over the strike, as his latest remark would indicate. "Of the two evils," he says, "I think perhaps the scarcity of tonnage is the greater." Mr. Livingston is, however, neglecting nothing that will tend to aid the carriers in maintaining their open policy plan. It was he who took time by the forelock and placed guards on association vessels and along the water fronts of the various lake ports.

NON-UNION MEN.

Forty Hired in Buffalo to Replace the Unionists.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 5.—About forty seamen and cooks left the boats of the Lake Carriers' association here yesterday, but the local shipping office of the association was busy and an equal number of men shipped during the day. Pickets are busy on the docks and are gaining recruits.

The steamer William M. Mills sailed last night with a full non-union crew. All the men on board except Capt. Hesson and his mates quit the Mills when she docked three days ago and she was delayed until tonight. The seamen of the steamers America and Frederick B. Wells left when the boats got to the docks yesterday.

As the steamer Ramapo sailed out of the Blackwell canal last night she was showered with stones by a gang on the docks, but no serious damage was done.

VESSELS GUARDED

Close Watch Kept on All Boats Coming Into Port.

Unions Have Two Agents Among the Special Officers.

It has been impossible to confirm the dispatch from Chicago that a union oiler had been shanghaied aboard the Norman B. Ream and that an attempt would be made to free him when the vessel arrived in Duluth. The Missabe docks are unapproachable, except to those holding passes showing them to be in the employ of the company.

The Ream will complete her cargo of ore at the docks late today and will leave some time tomorrow morning. Union oilers in Duluth state that, as far as they know, no plans have been made to investigate the rumor. Any attempt to reach the Ream at her berth would be opposed by the special officers aboard the vessel and on the docks.

Several private detectives have been added to the force of special police. They are circulating along the water front, watching for any indications of trouble. So far nothing has developed that would indicate any violent outbreak.

It was learned today that the Lake Carriers' association has in its employ, as special officers, two men, who if not active members of the Lake Seamen's union, are in sympathy with the strikers.

That has made it possible for the union to communicate with the crews of incoming vessels, despite the seemingly perfect surveillance that the association has maintained for several days. Whenever it has been possible they have talked the union side of the question with the men.

Desertions are not frequent, although five or six are reported to have left without warning. Several men have obtained shore leave of an hour or so and voluntarily remained away several hours overtime. They have all been promptly discharged. One man who secured his release in this manner admitted that he did it to side with the union and at the same time get the wages due him. It is the custom for men signed at down lake ports to be paid only on the completion of the round trip.

Marine engineers are in demand, and several boats which usually carry three engineers are reported to be running with but two. The Wolvin steamers George W. Peavey, Frank Heffelfinger, Wells and Ward Ames have but two engineers each. James Patterson, chief engineer of the Ward Ames, is claimed to be the only union man who has remained with the company this season.

Lake carriers are trying as far as possible to ignore the strike, and are careful to make no statement that will indicate that they are at all worried. Employers in Chicago and Cleveland have opened employment offices. The proposition has not been considered as yet in Duluth.

MANY DUCKS ON BAY.

Boatsmen Say That Birds Seem to Be in Stupor.

Boatsmen on St. Louis bay last evening reported the present of an unusual number of wild ducks. One boat, which contained C. S. Raymond, C. La Salle and L. M. La Salle, run into a big flock of the water birds.

The ducks appeared to be in a kind of stupor, as no resistance was offered to the boatsmen. Several of them, they claimed, were picked up.

EMERSON ALUMNI BANQUET.

Association Plans a Big Spread for This Month.

Alumni of the Emerson school met last evening, elected officers and made arrangements for a big banquet May 26, at which it is expected to gather all the graduates of the school who are now in the city. The committee in charge comprises Miss Martell, Dinham and Burtwick; and Messrs. Page, Stevens, Quimby, McArthur and McGinnis.

Jack McGinnis was elected president of the association and the other officers were: Vice president, Millie Older; treasurer, George Haycroft; secretary, Mabel Trix, and sergeant-at-arms, George Proff.

Preparing for Graduation.

Preparations are now being made at the Adams school for the annual eighth grade graduation exercises. The Adams school will graduate about thirty this year and will take part in the big graduation program to be given at the Central high school on Wednesday afternoon June 2.

The Adams graduates are on the program, among other things, for a wand drill, upon which they are now practising. The students are also preparing for final examinations, which will be given in the next few weeks.

A Memorial day program will be given at the Adams school, the date to be set later by Supt. Denfeld.

COPPER COUNTRY HAD MUCH SNOW IN APRIL.

Houghton, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—A total of 17.4 inches of snow fell in copperdom during the month of April, according to the monthly meteorological summary issued by Weather Forecaster Wiesner. The report shows the month just ended to have been unusually cold, the average temperature being 32 degs. as against an average for nine years of 37.1 degs.

SIXTY-SIX DIED DURING APRIL

Contagious Diseases Well Under Control in Duluth at Present.

There were sixty-six deaths in Duluth during April, according to the monthly report of Health Commissioner Patton. Thirty-seven of these were men, and twenty-nine women. Seven persons brought in from outside the city, in addition to the number above given, died at local hospitals.

The death list was headed by six pneumonia cases. Senility with five deaths came next, and Bright's disease stood third with four. Twenty-five people died in the Second ward, and ten in the First. The Fourth ward stood third, with nine deaths. The remainder were pretty evenly scattered over the city.

Contagious diseases are now well under control in the city.

FORESTERS GATHER HERE

Nearly 200 New Members Taken Into the Order.

Foresters of Duluth, Superior, Ashland and other places in Northern Wisconsin and Minnesota, to the number of several hundred, gathered at the U. O. F. hall, Fourth avenue west and First street, last night. The occasion was one of especial interest to Foresters, as the supreme and high court officers of the order were present. A class of 195 new members was initiated into the order. Of these, 110 were from Superior.

For some time past a membership contest has been on among the various lodges a prize having been promised to the lodge securing the greatest number of candidates to be initiated at the meeting last night.

The rivalry has been keen, all of the large lodges about the Head of the Lakes having entered the lists. Officers, members and committees have been busy for weeks rounding up prospective members, and the announcement of the winner has been eagerly awaited. With its offering of 110 candidates, the Superior lodge easily won, and was awarded the prize. General good feeling prevailed, and the Superior Foresters were heartily complimented for their earnest work in behalf of the order.

The ceremonies of initiation occupied the greater part of the evening, the work being exemplified by the officers of the supreme lodge present, Supreme Ranger Sherrard of Chicago and Vice Supreme Ranger J. B. McGillilland of Superior were at the meeting, and after the initiation spoke on topics of interest to Foresters. Both spoke strongly in favor of the insurance feature connected with membership in the U. O. F.

To close an evening of pleasure and profit, an elaborate banquet was served in the lodge banquet room. The following supreme and high court officers were present: Supreme Ranger A. M. Sherrard, Chicago; Supreme Vice Ranger J. B. McGillilland, Superior; High Ranger John McMurchy, Iron River, Wis.; High Vice Ranger Gertrude Holstein, Ashland; Past High Ranger James Kelley, Duluth; High Secretary Harry Mimms, Duluth; High Chaplain Rachael Veltch, Superior; High Archon Jessie Rutchard Duluth; High Woodward Julia McIntosh, Duluth; High Outer Woodward Ernest Hellock Duluth.

MAXIMS GIVEN FOR YOUNG MEN

Advice By Peter Van Vlissingen, the Chicago "Forger King."

Chicago, May 5.—A few maxims as a guide to young men entering business were given yesterday by Peter Van Vlissingen, former real estate operator, whose gigantic forgeries, covering a period of twenty years, were unfolded last week. Van Vlissingen is serving a sentence in Joliet prison, but is in Chicago trying to straighten out his books for his creditors.

This is the advice which the "forger king" would have young men follow to avoid his own fate:

"Be honest in small things; all criminals begin by practicing small dishonesties."

"Do not permit your conscience to become calloused. Once this occurs the fall will be certain."

"Be economical, and never risk other people's money in a venture, no matter how certain success may seem."

"Once you commit a wrong, make restitution immediately, for delay means ruin, maybe death."

Van Vlissingen said sadly that once he was known as "Honest Pete." His first forgery was for $2,500. A clerk discovered this and absconded with all the money. Then Van Vlissingen had to forge again, and he kept at it until a year ago, when he was exposed.

ROBBERS LOSE BOOTY.

Blew Safe Only to Be Chased By Armed Posse.

Osage, Iowa, May 5.—An attempt of robbers to secure their booty after blowing open the safe at a lumber yard office in Ostrander, ten miles north of here, was thwarted by citizens. Running to the station near by, the safeblowers secured a handcar and made their escape. A few miles up the track they ran into a freight train, but escaped by jumping. Armed with shotguns, a posse of citizens followed, but after stopping the freight train and securing no information, they returned to the town.

Four charges had been placed in holes drilled in the safe by the robbers. A large sum was in the safe, but the robbers did not have time to get it.

Continuing the Sale of Women's Suits at $19.95 and $24.95

This is too big an event for any woman to let pass by without participating, if there is the slightest need for a new suit.

In yesterday's ad we told you the story of these suits; how we made what the newspapers call a "scoop"—practically on our own terms.

Two remarkable bargains, Suits that were $30.00 and $35.00, now marked at $19.95. Suits that were made to sell at $40.00 and $45.00 are now offered at $24.95. Not many of a style or a size, of course, but all sizes among them—and every suit fresh as a spring day.

The materials are serges, satin soliel, satin faced cloths and fancy novelty weaves, including practically every desirable shade in vogue this season—rose, stone green, wistaria, catawba, navy, Copenhagen, smoke, gray, tan and black. Practical street and dress modes, in strictly tailored styles, designed to please the very best dressers. Coats lined with Satin Duchess, and the tailoring is of the very best skilled labor can produce. Choose from these $30 to $45 Tailored Suits, tomorrow — at only $19.95 and $24.95.

We also offer some very special values in Tailored Wash Coat Suits, in linen crashes, French repp, poplin, etc., in white and all the popular shades—all in practical tailored styles.

WELLMAN PREPARES TO TRY FOR NORTH POLE BY AIRSHIP

Washington, May 5.—Walter Wellman announces he will this summer renew his effort to reach the North Pole by means of a dirigible balloon or airship. All preparations have been made and Wellman will sail next week for Paris and Norway. This expedition will be under Mr. Wellman's individual ownership and responsibility. The capital has been supplied by Americans interested in the enterprise solely on scientific and patriotic grounds.

The first section of the expedition is scheduled to leave Christiansand, South Norway, May 21, in the new motor ship "Arctic," launched this spring. She is a three-masted schooner of 450 tons built for ice navigation, with great sailing power, and with a petroleum motor, which gives her a speed of seven knots without sails. Leaving Tromsoe, North Norway, at the end of May, she will carry to the headquarters at Danes Island, in addition to her crew of twelve men, twenty foremen and mechanics, 100 tons of sulphuric acid and seventy-five tons of iron turnings for making hydrogen, a new gas apparatus, timber and iron for repairing the airship, hall supplies, etc.

Upon arriving at the base, cargo will be discharged, and the party will at once set to work clearing away thousands of tons of snow which covers the airship hall, machine shop, gas apparatus, steam pump house, and all the premises. While this work is in progress the Arctic will return to Tromsoe for her second cargo, consisting of the airship and other machinery and supplies. Before the end of June the entire party should be assembled at the base ready for the short but strenuous campaign of two months.

SWARTHMORE MAN PRAISES THE HAGUE CONFERENCES.

Chicago, May 4.—Speaking before the national peace congress on "The Advance Registered by the Two Hague Conferences," Prof. William L. Hull of Swarthmore college, Pennsylvania, said: "The Hague conferences are to international law what the industrial revolution of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries is to human industry, or what the rise of the American republic was to human government.

"The civilized world," said he, "in common with our own country, has made use of many instrumentalities in its great ascent towards international peace and justice; but the greatest of them all I believe to have been the two conferences at The Hague. For these conferences, like the great heroes or institutions of history, embodied in themselves nearly all the instrumentalities, which have been achieving for the world its renowned victories of peace."

HAD TOO MUCH DRINK.

When Sobered Up Duluthian Recovered His Normal Senses.

Forman, N. D., May 5.—Victor Baglund, aged about 35 years, who during the past five years, has been spending his summers at Milnor and his winters at Duluth, Minn., was brought before the insanity board at Forman a few days ago, and examined as to his mental condition. Certain people of Milnor had become alarmed over the actions of Baglund, whose custom it was to roam about at all hours of the night, talking to himself in disjointed fashion.

At the hearing before the insanity board it developed that Baglund had been drinking steadily ever since last Christmas—hence was in a condition that made the matter of "seeing things at night"—snakes for instance—of dreadful seeming reality to his disordered mind. The wife of the unfortunate man arrived from Duluth and she seemed to think that her husband only needed to "sober up" to become all right. The insanity board ordered Baglund kept at the jail until he had straightened up, and then discharged. The wisdom of this proceding was soon manifest, as Baglund was in an entire normal condition in a few days. By order of the county commission for the Milnor district, a railroad ticket to Duluth over the Northern Pacific line was given Baglund, and he left Milnor to take the train at that point for his destination, accompanied by his wife.

KICKED BY A HORSE.

Boy's Skull Depressed and Doctors Have to Operate.

Brainerd, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Albin Hoguist, son of H. P. Hoguist of Malmo, a settlement twenty-eight miles south of Aitkin was brought to a hospital in this city suffering from a depressed fracture of the skull, caused by the kick of a horse. The depressed skull was raised, the operation being performed by Dr. Belsheim and Dr. A. W. Ide. The case is critical but hope is entertained of his recovery.

Mankato Shoeman Bankrupt.

Mankato, Minn., May 5.—Henry Spleer, a shoe dealer, has filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy, with liabilities of $8,091.02, of which $1,890.43 are secured, and assets consisting of a $6,000 stock, $1,000 in real estate, and $430 in accounts. The Sharood Shoe company of St. Paul is the heaviest creditor, its claim amounting to more than half of the total liabilities.

TUGS AT THE HEARTSTRINGS

LITTLE GIRL DIES FROM PLAYING NEAR BURNING GRASS.

Sackville, N. B., May 5.—Three children of Charles Crossman, a painter, were suffocated by smoke from a fire which badly damaged their home. A short time before the fire a young daughter of Fred Allen died from burns sustained while playing about a grass fire.

KILLS NEIGHBOR, SURRENDERS; DITCHES CAUSED QUARREL.

Tipton Ind., May 5.—Henry Yarling, a wealthy farmer, walked into the office of Sheriff Beck here and said:

"I have killed Charles Smith and I surrender myself."

Yarling and Smith lived on adjoining farms. They had quarreled over the construction of ditches.

MOTHER ASSAULTED IN SIGHT OF HER YOUNG CHILDREN.

Dayton, Ohio, May 5.—Mrs. Frank Hennessy, wife of a young farmer, was assaulted by a man who gave his name as John Norris. The crime took place in sight of her young children, who brought farmers. The man was captured by them after a chase of over two miles. Deputy Sheriff Leo rescued the man from his captors.

MAN AND GIRL FOUND DYING IN BUGGY; POISONED.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 5.—Arthur Stitt and Miss Lesta Stroud were found dying in a buggy in Central avenue early today. Stitt, is is believed had given the woman carbolic acid with whisky and had then taken a dose himself. Both died a short time after they were found. The tragedy is believed to have been the result of Stitt's being spurned by the girl.

MURDER OF AGED WIDOW BAFFLES THE AUTHORITIES.

Chicago, May 5.—Baffled by the mystery surrounding the murder of Mrs. Margaret Grippen, an aged widow of Winnebago, Ill., and a cousin of Gen. Lew Wallace, the authorities of Winnebago county have called upon the police here for aid. Rewards aggregating $1,000 have been offered.

SOMETHING FUZZY

Seen By Eb Files and Gave Pointer to Treasure Cache.

Row's Run, Kalkaska county, Mich., May 5.—While Eb Files always has been considered above reproach, so far as veracity and all that sort of rot go, he let one loose at the village store that passeth all understanding.

Eb asseverated that, as he was passing the old Fairfield homestead he heard a strange noise and also saw something fuzzy.

Incidentally, it may be said, Eb held a judgment against old man Fairfield at the time of his ascent, or, some say, descent.

Anyhow, as he was walking by the homestead a large, fat bat hit the footpath ahead of him and left, starting him in the face, a map that would lead him to a spot under a certain oak tree, which was the very same where old man Fairfield had cached a wad of the evil-root.

Eb and some others are going up there to excavate.

THIRD ROSE-DICKIE DEBATE IN NEW ORLEANS.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 5.—According to the information yesterday, the third and final joint debate of Mayor Rose and President Dickie on the subject of prohibition will be held in New Orleans. It will take place within a few weeks.

If you could see your dishes through a microscope, you would never again wash them with SOAP

Soapy dish-water leaves a film of grease behind it; smell of your dishes after they are dry, and see.

GOLD DUST is the greatest product yet discovered for washing dishes. It does the work more thoroughly than soap or any other cleanser, and does it, too, with scarcely any help from you.

GOLD DUST also sterilizes, as well as cleans—leaves your dishes beautifully sweet and clean, wholesome and sanitary.

GOLD DUST will enable you to wash your dishes in half the ordinary time. The GOLD DUST TWINS do the work without your assistance.

Why not call them to your aid today by buying a package of GOLD DUST of your grocer?

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN RAPS CLARK

Tallahassee, Fla., May 5.—"When a representative cannot conscientiously do what his constituents conscientiously desire him to do, he ought to be conscientious enough to resign and let them select a representative in harmony with them."

This is William J. Bryan's criticism of Congressman Clark's attitude on the tariff bill, presented in a letter addressed to the Florida general assembly and read in the house last night. The reading was greeted with applause.

"There are two schools of thought," wrote Bryan, "in regard to the duty of the official. The aristocratic theory is that people elect representatives to think for them; the Democratic theory is, on the contrary, that people think for themselves and elect representatives to give legal expression to their thoughts and to voice their sentiments.

"I am suspicious of the official whose conscience is dormant in the campaign and only active when he wants to find an excuse for doing what his constituents do not want done."

Bryan in Canada.

Winnipeg, Man., May 5.—An immense audience greeted William J. Bryan at his lecture here. He said that all Americans settling in Western Canada should become naturalized Canadians. All Americans who are well informed, he claimed, desire to see Canada prosper. Speaking of the international friendliness, in reply to the question, "During your lifetime, have you noticed considerable change in sentiment between the United States and Great Britain and her colonies?" he said:

"No, I do not know that I have in later years, or even in any earlier years, seen anything by which we can measure any change. I think people outside of the country get erroneous opinions on the subject, possibly antagonistic. These sentiments are most likely to be quoted, but are apt to be personal opinions, one man speaking for himself alone. I have never seen the United States' unfriendliness toward any country. I think I can speak as an expert witness on this subject. I have attended banquets, read editorials and discussed national subjects generally all over the country and have never seen an unfriendly spirit."

FOURTH AVENUE IS FAVORED

The Mining Exchange Will Probably Locate on That Thoroughfare.

Judging from present indications and sentiments expressed by a number of members, the quarters of the rejuvenated Duluth Mining Stock Exchange will be located in the neighborhood of Fourth avenue west.

Two locations are available in that thoroughfare. Each has its supporters, and they outnumber those who are favoring other locations, of which two or three have been mentioned.

It has been proposed to locate the trading rooms in the new building which is being erected for the Commercial club at First street and Fourth avenue west.

Another plan is to lease the entire second floor of the Phoenix block, at Fourth avenue west and Superior street. In many ways, this building is singularly well adapted to the uses of the exchange. In the very center of the second floor there are a number of offices, the partitions of which could be removed and the whole made into a trading room. The outside offices in the building, across the corridors from the proposed trading room, would be taken by members of the exchange.

Directors of the exchange also have in mind the ground floor of the Elks building on First street between Third and Fourth avenues west.

The directors are awaiting the report of the committee appointed to look into the matter of rooms, when they will close a deal with the agents of one of the buildings mentioned.

REFUSED TO PAY DEBT

And Canadian Jailer Is Prisoner in His Own Cell.

Windsor, Ont., May 5.—In a cell just like a common felon, Governor John Harmon of Sandwich jail, is held a prisoner, because he was adjudged guilty of contempt in refusing to obey an order of court ordering him to appear and show cause why he should not liquidate a debt of $12 to a local hardware dealer.

This is not the first time Governor Harmon has been ordered confined within the jail, of which, he is the head official, but it is the first time the sentence of the court has actually been carried out.

Harmon takes his arrest and confinement philosophically, but declares he will never settle the claim against him because he considers it unjust. The case is unique in Canadian criminal annals.

REVOLT BY SENATORS

Against Aldrich and His Tariff Bill Is Steadily Growing.

Has Not Enough Votes at Present to Pass Measure.

Washington, May 5.—As the Aldrich tariff bill now stands there are not enough votes in the senate to pass it. This fact has been disclosed by a careful poll taken by the Republican leaders.

It will require forty-eight votes to pass the bill, and Senator Aldrich is still shy three or four, according to the count. He has been skirmishing around for additional votes and believes he will get them this week, but before he does he will have to make a few concessions in the way of schedules.

It is possible, however, that Aldrich will be short more than the number specified by the end of the week, because several of the Republican insurgents are prepared to make a general onslaught on some of the schedules providing in the pending measure. These men have been making a careful study of certain rates which affect the prices of articles in common use, and will demand material modifications of them. Dolliver of Iowa, who offered some severe criticisms of the cotton schedules several weeks ago made another speech yesterday. His colleague, Cummins, one of the original revolutionists and author of the so-called "Iowa idea," is getting ready to talk, and it is interpreted he will point out more shortcomings than Dolliver. Shively, the Democratic senator from Indiana, is also loaded up with material and is going to turn loose on some of the most important schedules.

Not What Was Promised.

There doubtless will be others who do not regard the measure as such a fine work of art as Aldrich and other members of the finance committee consider it. When these men add to the accumulation of evidence that the bill fails to meet the expectations of the people and is not the kind of revision the country thought it was voting for last fall, the public may raise a clamor which will prevent Aldrich from bagging the additional votes he now needs to insure the passage of the bill in practically its present form.

Aldrich is still holding out on the coal schedule in order to keep his club over the head of Senator Elkins, of West Virginia. Elkins was one of the original insurgents, and is still off the reservation. There appears to be no rational reason why the finance committee should not report the coal schedule because there is no special complication about it, and, of course, no other conclusion can be drawn than that Aldrich hopes to keep Elkins from raising too much of a disturbance through the implied threat that the duty on coal will be made much lower than the figure at which the West Virginian wants it fixed.

The senate bill in the section which deals with the maximum and minimum proposition, has, in the judgment of tariff experts, one very important feature. It practically vests in the president the power to declare a tariff war against any nation, or to refrain from any such war. It is given to him to decide whether any nation is discriminating against the products of duties. This permits the government, through the state department, and the other agencies provided by law, to make agreements with other nations as to trade and tariff concessions which can be made effective by a proclamation of the president without the necessity of anything in the way of legislation or treaty agreement.

Its One Great Beauty.

In this way the delay can be obviated, which would necessarily follow the submission to congress or to the senate of any proposition requiring such sanction and approval before putting it into effect.

The bill, it is explained, authorizes the president to employ, at his discretion, any persons to secure information or assist him in the discharge of these duties, which would mean that he can appoint commissioners representing the United States to go abroad and make agreements with foreign nations.

At the same time attention is paid to the wishes of those who are not in favor of reciprocal agreements of any kind. The proposition makes it impossible to have any rate established lower than the rate in the tariff law. Any change in the case of any nation must be a change in the way of higher duties. No amount of bargaining or concession can secure for any country any reduction in the tariff law.

The general debate on the tariff in the senate is expected to continue during the present week, and it is now believed that it will extend all through next week.

The committee on finance is disposed to allow the widest latitude in the general discussion on the subject, but is at the same time prepared to proceed with the consideration of the schedules which have been passed over whenever there is a cessation of the speech-making.

WHAT IS HOME

Without a Wife, Says Aged Cobbler, Who Weds Third.

Baltimore, Md., May 5.—Having decided that a man of his age is out of place in this world without a wife, John Schmidt, 86 years old, a cobbler, has made his third matrimonial venture at his home, 1345 Cooksie street.

The bride is Mrs. Veruna Hugelmier of 1341 Cooksie street. Mr. Schmidt lost his wife about three months ago and was left alone in the little house which he occupies.

At the house where he was taking his meals he met Mrs. Hugelmier, whose husband died about a year ago. He had known her for some time and decided that she would make him a good wife.

Healthy Food-Easy Work

If It Takes Your Strength to Digest Your Meal You Can't Do Much Work.

The power to overcome all the ailments of human life, and to meet all the difficulties which life presents is within the province of every individual, says one writer of authority.

He might have added with equal truth most of our ailments we bring upon ourselves, and very often we alone are responsible for our difficulties. Wrong living causes many ailments. Rich, greasy foods at all times, day or night, cause stomach disorders, which must vitally affect every part of the system, becoming quickly chronic.

Start the day right with a sensible breakfast of E-C Corn Flakes or Egg-O-See Wheat Flakes. They are always ready to serve—crisp and delicious. They satisfy the hunger and give health and strength without overloading the digestive powers. Many a chronic stomach has been restored to health by Egg-O-See breakfasts of crisp flakes of corn or wheat served with good milk or cream and a little fruit of some kind.

Remember it is the original and justly famous Egg-O-See process that makes the E-C Corn Flakes and Egg-O-See Wheat Flakes so nice and crisp and healthful.

LOCAL TRAFFIC EXPENSIVE.

Declares General Manager Ward in Rate Case Hearing.

St. Paul, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Testifying at the Great Northern rate hearing in progress at the federal building, Frank E. Ward, general manager of the Burlington and former general manager of the Great Northern explained why the operating cost of the intra-state business is greater relatively than the cost of interstate business.

For freight business, he declared the cost of local traffic on the Great Northern is—or at least it used to be—from four to six times the cost of through traffic; for passenger business the cost of local traffic, other things being equal, was 50 per cent more than the cost of through traffic.

In connection with this testimony may be recalled a statement previously submitted by the railroad—that the length of the average haul is:

For freight—Local, 113 3-10 miles; through, 557 8-10 miles.

For passengers—Local, 36 8-10 miles; through, 133 8-10 miles.

Minneapolis Minister Dead.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Rev. George B. Barnes, D. D., for the last two and a half years pastor of Vine Congregational church, East Lake street, died yesterday at the parsonage, 2011 East Lake street, aged 71 years. He had been sick nine days of pneumonia.

The funeral will take place at the church Thursday at 3 p. m. and will be conducted by Rev. W. H. Medlar of the Linden Hill church.

ANOTHER SOO RUMOR.

Negaunee, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rumors have been circulating among the railroad men here to the effect that the Soo line is preparing to run a line from Escanaba south to Neenah for connections with the Wisconsin Central and also that the Soo is preparing to take over the Wisconsin & Michigan road and continue that line south. While nothing has been brought out to verify either of the rumors, matters have shaped themselves of late so that a change of some kind is expected.

THE STATE ROAD "PORK BARREL."

By way of variety from the tonnage tax debate, we note considerable agitation in the press of the state over the so-called "pork barrel" distribution of state funds for aid to local road-building.

One or two of the city newspapers having criticised the methods used in disposing of this annual appropriation, some of the country newspapers seem disposed to treat the criticisms as evidences of city hostility to the country, which is, of course, absurd. There is no city hostility to the country, and we trust there is no country hostility to the cities. Since neither could possibly get along without the other, and since the thing that benefits one benefits the other, their interests are common, and they ought to counsel together for the common good instead of bickering foolishly and fruitlessly.

The Herald approves most earnestly all proper expenditures of state money for making roads. Yet it cannot approve the "pork barrel" custom which has lately grown up in the legislature. Two years ago the legislature appropriated $200,000 a year for roads, and divided it up so that each county got some. This year the appropriation was increased to $300,000 a year, and the same method of division followed.

It is not the amount of this appropriation, but the manner of it, that is open to criticism. Expenditures of ten times that much every year would be warranted, and would be a good business investment, if the money were properly expended. But it ought to be laid out in accordance with a general plan of state road improvement, and there should be some central authority over it to see that it is properly used and that the state gets back returns in better roads, dollar for dollar.

The legislature does not approve of such methods as those, however, and it is to be feared that its reason is not wholly public-spirited. The real reason why the legislature likes to "cut up" this road money instead of turning it over to the state highway commission for distribution and expenditure, is that the "pork barrel" system enables the members of the legislature to go back to their districts and claim credit for having secured an appropriation for local roads. Of course this claim is ill-founded, except in the cases of a few crafty and powerful members who were able to give their counties more than their proper share, thus depriving other counties, represented by weaker and less crafty men, of their full proportion of the "cut-up." Outside of this, the distribution was made by a committee, and the basis of distribution was purely arbitrary, without taking into consideration the needs of the various counties or their size, assessed valuation or population.

Furthermore, many of these appropriations were even taken out of the hands of the county commissioners, who are in a position to direct a county-wide system of road improvement, and turned over to the legislators themselves, to township supervisors or to private individuals. In several instances the money is to be used in improving village or city streets instead of country roads.

It is the manner of this distribution that constitutes a scandal and a shame, and not the amount of it. It is on a par with the congressional system of "cutting up" river and harbor appropriations, under which a very large percentage of the people's money devoted to this purpose has been wasted. It would be better to have half as much money, properly and systematically used. It would be better still to have ten times as much, if it were spent systematically.

SYSTEMATIC COUNTY ROAD WORK.

Matters of large importance to the development of St Louis county and the growth of Duluth were considered by the county board yesterday. Chief in interest and value was the decision of the board to employ a county superintendent of roads to oversee the development of a comprehensive system of county roads. It is casting no reflection whatever upon the members of the board to say that this will be a long step forward. The system of county road-making prevailing in the average county is too much like the legislative grab-bag system of state road work. Each legislator tries to get as much as he can for his district, and each county commissioner does the same. Inevitably, the larger needs of the whole state and the whole county are lost sight of in this way. An expert county superintendent, whose duty it shall be to see that the work in the various districts forms an effective part of a county system, and that no waste occurs, can do a lot of good. Much will depend, however, upon the capacity of the man selected for the place.

THE "BUSHEL TAX" ON WHEAT.

It is unfortunate that the legislature didn't examine the measure taxing wheat in elevators a little more closely, because if it had learned that the measure hits the country elevator and the farmer unjustly, it wouldn't have passed it. But the lawmakers supposed they were hitting the terminal elevators, and let it go at that without considering what the ultimate results of the bill would be.

At the same time, now that the mistake has been made, it is on the whole rather fortunate that it occurred. It will help a great deal toward making the agricultural communities appreciate the viewpoint of the mining communities on the tonnage tax. If that exchange of viewpoints can successfully be brought about, both mining and agricultural communities will join hands against any further extensions of the principle of specific taxation which has no regard to the value of the property taxed.

The bushel tax hits all grain, regardless of its value. It taxes the highest grade no more than the lowest grade, the lowest as much as the highest.

The tonnage tax would have hit all iron ores regardless of their value. Its so-called "sliding scale" was based solely upon the percentage of iron in the ore, and took no heed whatever of the many other elements determining the respective values of various ores. Ores containing more than 59 per cent of iron were all to be taxed 5 cents a ton, whether they were worth $1 or $5. There was this additional evil in the tonnage tax, that it was to be for state purposes only, while the bushel tax on wheat is to be for the benefit of the state and the cities in which the elevators are located.

It was to enter upon such fields as this that the wide-open tax amendment was proposed to the people. The people, scenting trouble, rejected it twice, only to find it read into the Constitution by the supreme court of the state—as stupid and lawless a proceeding as any court ever carried out. Now the fruits of it are being gathered. The people of Northeastern Minnesota had their share in the tonnage tax fight. The people of the agricultural sections are now getting theirs in the bushel tax on wheat. Before very long this state will have its fill of this class of tax legislation, and will turn back gladly to the good old way of taxing all property according to its value in money—which is the best way ever imagined of distributing the burden of taxation so that it will rest most lightly upon all.

There never was anything the matter with the tax system of Minnesota except that there were gross inequalities of assessed valuation. All its evils could have been cured by equalization of assessments. That is what the tax commission is for, largely, and it could devote its energies to no better purposes.

A tax amendment to the Constitution insisting rigidly upon ad valorem taxes for tangible property, while permitting an income tax to eliminate the obvious difficulties of proper assessment of intangible property, with an earnest effort all along the line to put ad valorem assessments upon an equal basis for all sections and all interests, would place Minnesota in the very van of progress in taxation.

DULUTH'S ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS FIGHT.

No civic movement in progress today promises greater good than the fight against tuberculosis. People know, now, how to prevent it, how to cure it, how to wipe it out. It is only a question of work and of popular education, and that takes money.

Duluth is making satisfactory progress in this fight through the Duluth Anti-Tuberculosis committee. That organization has the work of popular education well advanced, and now it is attacking the evil in a concrete form by employing a visiting nurse to look after cases in families too poor to give them proper attention. The object is not only to set these unfortunates on the road to health, but to prevent their becoming a source of contagion for people now healthy. Also, the committee designs a free dispensary, and when the movement for a county tuberculosis hospital is taken up, the society will be found active.

Starting with a few members, the committee membership is widening daily. Every public-spirited citizen of Duluth ought to be a member of it. There is a minimum of effort and expense involved in merely paying the membership fee of a dollar a year, but that helps a lot more than it does to sit idly back and do nothing except applaud the work. The work needs applause and encouragement, but it must have money—hence the request that you join the committee and let your dollar join the other dollars that are making possible this splendid campaign against a plague that would, if uncombatted by just such means, overwhelm the world.

NOT ONLY GREEDY, BUT DISHONEST.

The people of this country pay a very liberal contribution every year to the sugar trust in the form of tariff taxes. Ostensibly for the encouragement of sugar beet farming and for the aid of the sugar industry of the South, there is added to the price of sugar a stiff tariff tax, which is practically a bounty to the American sugar industry, and incidentally a very tangible bounty to the sugar trust.

But it seems the sugar trust is not satisfied with this rich bounty that the people's representatives in congress have bestowed upon it. It has been caught in a wholesale system of smuggling in a despicable, petty larceny fashion, and forced to pay fines amounting to more than $2,000,000.

The Outlook tells all about it in an illuminating article which is very instructive as to the character of the sugar trust management, and as to the principle of tariff-grabbing in general.

On the dock of the American Sugar Refining company at Brooklyn there are seventeen scales, on which the sugar that is landed from vessels is weighed so that the agents of the treasury department may know what duties to impose. Suspicion having arisen as to the manner of this weighing, an investigation was quietly begun. It was found that the scales were read by a treasury agent, and checked by a sugar trust agent sitting at the other end of the scales. An agent stepping into a scale house just as a load was being weighed, had that load and the two loads that had preceded it weighed over again. The weight of the load on the scales when the secret service man arrived was found to be correct. The other two loads were found to weigh quite a bit more than the scales showed them to weigh when they first passed over them.

This was significant, so the government kept up its investigation. It was found that the sugar, having been weighed so the tariff duties could be fixed, was immediately weighed on other scales so that it could be sold. The trust was compelled to exhibit its books, showing the record of the two scales, and then it was disclosed that on every cargo the company's weighing showed a large advantage over the government's weighing.

Clearly, the trouble was with the scales on which the government did its weighing, so they were examined. Just where the company's agents sat to check the weighing was a little hole, extending into the mechanism of the scale. In the little hole was a slender key, which penetrated far enough to affect the weighing, and that enabled the trust to steal the duty on a few pounds in every load. Some of the seventeen holes, in scales on which more weighing was done than others, had been worn by constant use so they had had to be plugged up and new holes made. This pitiful petty larceny had been going on ever since the enactment of the Dingley tariff law in 1897, and its profits had mounted to the dignity of very grand larceny.

The government could have collected about $9,000,000, with penalties, but it compromised on $2,135,486, which the trust paid without a struggle. It doesn't appear that anybody is going to jail for it, and that is a pity.

Not so long and wide the world is but the paragraphers can overtake Roosevelt.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Philip Scott of Bison, Kan., who is a wheat raiser from that great wheat-raising section of the Southwest, was at the Lenox hotel yesterday.

Down in the wheat belt of Kansas, Mr. Scott says, the farmers are of the opinion that wheat will sell for a high price this fall, because it is believed that the American crop will not be as large as the crop of last year.

"Kansas will not produce any more wheat than it did last year, and I believe that is the case with every wheat-raising section of this country," said Mr. Scott. "The main reason for this is of course, that we are not materially increasing our wheat acreage in this country, and another reason is that the old wheat-raising sections of the country are not increasing in the number of bushels that are produced to the acre.

"For years Kansas has been one of the great wheat-producing sections of the country. It is still a great wheat producing state, but it is not producing as much wheat as it did some years ago. What is true of Kansas is true of many other sections.

"The Canadian crop will some day largely supplant the American wheat in export trade, in my opinion. They will greatly increase their output annually for some time to come. The wheat area of Canada is increasing and the wheat producing land upon the other side of the line is new and the fertility of the soil has not been exhausted. Until we get so that we rotate our crops and pay more attention to conserving the energy of the soil, we will find that we are not increasing the output of wheat in this country, but upon the other hand, each year are showing a decrease."

There were more than the usual number of visitors from the range in town yesterday. Most of them came down here upon business.

George Shepley of Douglas, Ariz., at the St. Louis yesterday, says that within a decade from the present time the great American desert, that for years has been a barren spot in the West, will be a condition of the past.

Irrigation is bringing vegetation to the barren sands of the desert, and before the government has finished its work in Arizona, Mr. Shepley is firmly of the opinion that the cactus bush section will be cut up into farms.

Not only has the government accomplished great work in that part of the state, but private owners of property have also accomplished much in the way of irrigation, according to the statement of Mr. Shepley, who says that the demand for land in that part of the country has resulted in men taking up land in the most unpromising part of the state, and then nursing the land into a state of fertility, where it will produce.

The completion of the Roosevelt dam at Phoenix will, believes Mr. Shepley, result in irrigating and fertilizing thousands of acres of land in the great valley of Arizona.

Victor J. Bergstedt of Nashwauk, at the McKay, says farmers and settlers in the northern part of the state have in many cases taken out fire insurance since the forest fires of a year ago, and where they are in close proximity to timber belts have provided protection against such disasters as happened to many settlers in the northern part of the state last fall.

John McGhie, musical director of the "Merry Widow" company, stated at the Spalding yesterday that the music of the opera is the best in point of conception of any that has been heard upon the light operatic stage for years. It recalls to the mind of Mr. McGhie, who has been a director of musical productions for years, the best operas of Gilbert and Sullivan, and the best productions of the Boston Ideals and the Bostonians.

Mr. McGhie has directed many of the famous light operas of the past. He is also a composer, and has written music that is being used in some of the present productions.

The Mills of The Gods.

Jacob A. Riis in The Survey for May. They tell us that ever so slight a change in the earth's tipping on its axis brought the glacial period that swallowed up all life in the North as the ice crept down from the pole, inch by inch, foot by foot. When it righted itself again, our present day broke, and the river wore its way through the rock, draining the mighty glaciers. So the dawn of a new humanity in which man, facing toward the ideal of brotherhood, shall do justice and love mercy is upon us now. It is good, when one gets impatient, to remember that these things are so, that though the mills of God grind slowly they grind exceeding small.

Will Fool 'Em Again.

Chicago News: Doubtless in 1912 "tariff revision downward" will be once more a perfectly good rallying cry.

THE WEATHER.

CLOUDY

There was a touch of summer in the air last night and this morning, and today was delightful. The weather man looks for partly cloudy and colder weather tonight and tomorrow. A year ago today it was cool and cloudy. The sun rose this morning at 4:45 and will set this evening at 7:25, making fourteen hours and thirty-eight minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Barometric pressures are lowest this morning over Wyoming, South Dakota, Minnesota and Manitoba. During the past twenty-four hours these disturbances caused much warmer weather in the lake region and central states, and rain in the Ohio valley, Tennessee, Alabama, Florida, Arkansas and Oregon, while some snow fell over portions of Montana and Wyoming. A strong high pressure area has appeared off the North Pacific coast, the influence of which has already caused much lower temperature in Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia, Montana, Washington and Oregon. This turn to colder will be felt at the Head of the Lakes Thursday and possibly tonight."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures:

Ancnt the Old and the New in Lake Steamers.

Detroit Journal: The loss with five men of the old steamer Eber Ward in collision with an ice floe in the Straits of Mackinaw revives that ancient topic of discussion—the comparative efficiency of the old school of marine architecture and the new on the Great Lakes. It is probably true that had the Eber Ward been of steel construction she would not have sunk. It is equally true, perhaps, that had she been a new wooden steamer she would not have sunk.

The Eber Ward was built in 1884. For a wooden steamer twenty-five years make a long life. However staunchly she may have been built, it is altogether probable that her timbers were rotten.

If ago and many storms had weakened the old hull, what was the Eber Ward doing, tempting the early season storms and buckling the ice floes of Lake Michigan? Five deaths make the query reasonable and timely.

There is still much criticism of the design of the steel freighters beside which the Eber Ward was little more than a yawl-boat. These new carriers, for all their steel construction, are often driven on the rocks. Some have gone down in Lake Superior and no man knows why or how. Two have been broken in twain. It has been argued acrimoniously that the new steel freighters of astounding capacity are built only for the cargoes of ore and grain they can carry; that these have had buoyancy and power and control, all the old essentials of seaworthiness, have been sacrificed to attain the ideals and dimensions of a floating warehouse of steel. These leviathans are easily blown out of their course. They do not ride seas as buoyantly as the shapely little packets and schooners of the old days. Also, even on the great reaches of the Great Lakes, it is hard for them to find sea room in a hard blow and a heavy sea. They are not built to ride out storms and then proceed leisurely on their course. More lives and property are lost annually on the Great Lakes than were lost twenty years ago. But the enormous increase in the number, size and value of freighters and the increase in the number and size of their crews quickly and finally answer that. It is impossible to compare the statistics of twenty years ago and the statistics of last season.

However, where are the old ships of the Eber Ward's type and age? Many of them are rotting at their moorings. There were six sister ships in the old Detroit-Lake Superior line which operated the Eber Ward, and the Eber Ward was the lone survivor. Three of them were lost in storms. One burned and two sank in the ice floes. That is rather a grim family record.

The new architecture of the Great Lakes stands that comparison pretty well. Evidently the march of science and our experience with the tempests have taught us something worth while, after all.

"Wearing Our Way."

Jacob A. Riis writing in The Survey for May, draws an analogy between the steady effort of the ages that wore out the Grand Canyon in Arizona and the patient forces that are remoleding our social life. But he still has a hidden word for the impetuousness of his champion, Roosevelt, when he writes:

"I spoke of the forces that dug out the Grand Canyon as persistent and patient. Perhaps I was wrong as to that last. They raged in their day, I know, and it helped. It is a good sign when communities lose patience over management of their schools. We did that in New York or we should never have got where we are. In Denver I was reminded of that day, when I heard a demand for more schools and for a municipal lodging house in the same breath. That was quite like New York a dozen or fifteen years ago. And the two are not without the connection that seems obscure at first glimpse; more schools to prevent the making of idlers and tramps of the children drifting in the street; decent lodging for the homeless to prevent the making of more tramps by furnishing that which is only fit for tramps, and as a logical step toward parting the goats from the sheep, so that the tramp may be dealt with as such and the honestly homeless man on his merit."

Down With Poles.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1889.

G. T. Jarvis, superintendent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic road, has resigned, and his office is merged into that of general manager.

Prof. W. F. Parsons is entertaining his brother, who has just arrived from Kalamazoo, Mich., and will locate in Duluth.

Attorney General M. E. Clapp has been secured by the Willis A. Gorman Post No. 13, G. A. R., as orator for Memorial day.

Fred H. Russell, manager of the Wells Mercantile company at Itasca, Minn., is in the city for a few days.

Miss Magie's benefit, to be given by the G. A. R. post, will take place on May 14.

The report of the Wisconsin Central's lease by the Northern Pacific has been confirmed. Work has been started on repairing tracks in anticipation of a large increase in business between Duluth and Ashland.

Judge J. B. Brisbin, the well-known St. Paul attorney, is in the city. The judge has been an interested spectator of Duluth's growth for eighteen years.

For three days fires have been raging in the woods back and west of the city, and today the air is filled with smoke as with a fog. The government fog whistle has been in steady operation a large part of the day, and the troubles of mariners have been increased to no little extent by the smoke which has settled like a pall over the whole end of the lake. Farmers from the surrounding country report a great deal of damage done to the standing timber, farm buildings and other property.

George Kimball of Two Harbors is in the city.

E. P. Emerson, landlord of the Spalding house, has returned from New York. He has completed arrangements for opening the hotel by June 1.

Work at the West Duluth Iron & Steel works has started up after the winter's quiet. Gordon, Strabel & Laureau of Philadelphia, who have the contract for furnishing everything needed to complete this immense plant, will begin at once the erection of hot blast stoves.

Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Ouellette have gone to Marine City, Mich., to attend the funeral of Mrs. Ouellette's only sister, Mrs. John Laubilitz.

Supt. W. M. Burgess of the Duluth Electric Light & Power company, will leave soon for Erie City, Pa., on a combined business and pleasure trip.

Rev. W. L. Clarke of Danville, Ky., who is supplying the pulpit for Dr. Ringland during the latter's vacation, is stopping with Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Sherwood.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Biwabik Times: Another state legislature has passed into history without having increased the gross income tax of the railroads to the point where they will pay their proper amount of taxes. Railroad companies are less subject to regulation than any other form of business in Minnesota. All this due to the political activity of the corporations.

Grand Rapids Independent: The reason that the county and state are ruled by bosses is that it pays ordinary folks better to attend to their own business than to try to control political affairs.

Thief River Falls Press: The Crookston Times is authority for the statement that Governor Johnson will in all probability enter the field of national politics and that his successor on the state Democratic ticket will in all probability be W. S. Hammond of St. James. Mr. Hammond is the only Democratic representative that Minnesota has in congress and it is claimed that he feels very lonesome there and that he would be glad to get back to the state especially if he could occupy the gubernatorial chair. We are quite well acquainted with Mr. Hammond and we would predict that if he gets into the race for governor he will keep some of the other fellows from getting lonesome.

Fairmont Sentinel: Governor Johnson has vetoed the bill designed to reduce the mortgage registry tax from 50 cents to 10 cents per $100. Good boy.

Walker Pilot: It's a strong head and a weak backbone that is putting the state Republican party to the bad just at present.

Pine River Sentinel: The farmer that refuses to take chances on the free distribution of seeds from Washington for his summer vegetables should not be accused of being a quitter. Of all the rotten grafts the United States government permits, the seed graft is the worst.

Owatonna Journal-Chronicle: The source of the state capitol letters, written by a "competent observer" and describing the work of the state legislature, which so many Minnesota newspapers have been publishing, is at last revealed. It is found that these were letters provided by an organization of Republican state officials in the capitol, who furnished funds and employed the scribe to furnish these letters free to the country newspapers. The best that can be believed as to their motive is a desire to advance the interests of the Republican party by coloring the legislative reports to that end. The worst to be believed of the scheme is that it was for the purpose of advancing the personal interests of the officials contributing thereto, and the interests of their particular friends and allies in the legislature. Take your choice. As for this paper it wanted and accepted none of the letters, whatever their source or object.

Wrong Kind of Education.

St. Joseph, Mo., Gazette: There is a more or less popular delusion that education has a bad effect on some people. A colored man, up for sentence in a St. Louis court, declared that he had been ruined by education. Indeed, he asserted boldly that education had made him a criminal, without it he would have been content to occupy the humble field in which he was born, without ever having dreamed of the broad fields of enjoyment open to those who have an abundance of wealth with which to enjoy them. The trouble with this colored man is not education, but the lack of it. He may be, as he asserts, a graduate of one of our great universities, and still be far from being an educated man. One may have an abundance of book-learning and still be so far short of being a really educated man as to be an object of commiseration and pity to all who know him.

No attempt at education amounts to anything unless it educates the heart as well as the mind. Nor is an education that merely gives one an insight into what is being done in the world of affairs, without balancing the character in such a way as to make it possible for the one possessing it to look on that world without covetousness, of value to any one. We dwell too much in our education on the value of money and the necessity of preparing oneself to acquire it, without recognition of the fact that the true education enables one to grasp the more important facts of life and to put proper value upon them. The truly educated man is not necessarily a college graduate, although the possession of a diploma will not hurt him. The true education, on the other hand, teaches one to control the heart and mind and hand, looking upon life complacently as a serious thing in which one must take a man's part.

RELIC OF BARBARISM

Resolutions Adopted at Peace Conference So Define War.

Armed Hostility Between Nations Is Declared Out of Date.

Chicago, May 5.—The following is the report of the committee on resolutions of the national peace congress, adopted today:

"Whereas, Civilization has now reached a point where conscience, reason and the sense of brotherhood are increasingly controlling men in their relations to each other; when private war and duel have wholly or largely disappeared, and the different nations have created for themselves systems of law and courts by which differences between their citizens are peacefully adjusted; and,

"Whereas, The two Hague conferences have created a permanent international court of arbitration, to which all the nations are now parties; have approved unanimously the principle of obligatory arbitration for the settlement of international controversies; have sanctioned without a dissenting voice, the creation of a permanent court of justice, with judges, always in service, and holding regular sessions, and have urged the governments to find a satisfactory formula for the selection of the judges; and have laid the foundations of a regular congress of nations by unanimously voting for periodic meetings of The Hague conference hereafter—which great measures are the most decisive steps yet taken toward that organization and systematic operation of the nations which shall eventually substitute law for war, therefore, be it

War Out of Date.

"Resolved, By this second United States peace congress, that public war is now out of date, a relic of barbarism unworthy of our time, and that the nations of the world by joint agreement, by a league of peace among themselves, ought to make its recurrence hereafter impossible.

"Resolved, That no dispute between nations, except such as may involve the national life and independence, should be reserved from arbitration and that a general treaty of obligatory arbitration should be included at the earliest possible date. Pending such a general treaty we urge upon our government and the other leading powers such broadening of the scope of their arbitration treaties as shall provide, after the example of the Danish-Netherlands' treaty, for the reference to the Hague court of all differences not settled otherwise by peaceful means.

"Resolved, That the prevailing rivalry in armaments, both on land and sea, which imposes such exhausting burdens of taxation on the people, and is the fruitful source of suspicion, bitter feeling and war alarms, is wholly unworthy of enlightened modern nations, is a lamentable failure as a basis of enduring peace, and ought to be arrested by agreement of the powers without delay.

Expresses Appreciation.

"Resolved, That this peace congress expresses its high appreciation of the action in our government in the recent conclusion of twenty-three arbitration treaties and in the promotion of friendly relations between the various American republics. It recognizes with special satisfaction what was done by our government and representatives at the second Hague conference in behalf of a general treaty of obligatory arbitration, a court of arbitral justice, the immunity of private property at sea from capture in time of war, and the establishment of a periodic congress of the nations and in support of the proposition of the British government for limitation of armaments. It respectfully and urgently requests the president and the congress of the United States to take the initiative, so far as practicable, in an endeavor to complete the work of the second Hague conference in these various directions, and especially to secure an agreement among the military and naval powers for a speedy arrest of the ruinous competition in armaments now prevailing. As an immediate step to this end, we urge our government, in obedience to the charge of the second Hague conference, as well as the first, that all nations should earnestly address themselves to this problem, to create a special commission of the highest character for its consideration, whose report shall serve as a basis for the action of our delegates at the third Hague conference.

"Resolved, That this congress earnestly indorses the movement so auspiciously begun by the governments of Denmark and Great Britain to provide at public cost for constructive measures to promote international good understanding, hospitality and friendship, and appeals to our own government for broad and generous action upon these lines.

"Resolved, That this congress, representing all sections of our great country, appeals to our church, schools and press, our workingmen's and commercial organizations, and to all men of good will, for increased devotion to this commanding cause and such large support of its active agencies as shall strongly advance the great measures which are to come before the next Hague conference, and shall maintain our nation in high and influential leadership in behalf of international justice and order."

House With a Tree-Roof As Well As Roof-Tree.

A piece of land upon which the curiously jointed tree and house are located was too small to contain both separately, but rather than lose the tree the owner built the house around it. It is known as the house with a tree-roof as well as a roof-tree. The property is in Des Moines, Iowa, where it attracts considerable attention. Another interesting fact is that Golden Grain Belt beer is attracting considerable attention in the Northwest as a home beverage. Nearly everybody has a case in their cellar. See that you are supplied today. Order of your nearest dealer, or be supplied by Duluth branch, Minneapolis Brewing company.

GOO-GOOS OF SOLDIERS

Largely Responsible for Danger of Being Killed By Filipinos.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 5.—J. J. Stanley, formerly of Pittsburg, a hospital apprentice of the first class, attached to the naval quarters at Oleongapo, P. I., has written to a Pittsburg newspaper a letter in which he says: "The true history of an enlisted man's life in the Philippines" is given.

He holds that the soldiers themselves are largely responsible for the disposition of the natives to kill the Americans whenever they have an opportunity to do so. The native men, he says, are afraid that the Americans will steal their women, and Stanley says these fears are far from being groundless. The soldiers who are doing outpost duty are declared to be almost constantly in danger of a knife being plunged into their backs by some aggrieved native.

Stanley says that while some of the American soldiers have legally married Filipino women, others content themselves with obtaining a special license which authorizes a man to live with a Filipino woman so long as he wishes, provided he supports her. He is not required to take her with him in public or introduce her as his wife. When the soldier's enlistment expires he can come home and abandon the woman. Many of the offenders, according to Stanley, have wives at home. The native women are called "Goo-goos," and it costs the American soldier $17 a month to keep his "Goo-goo."

DULUTH, MINN.

FIRE WIPES OUT TOWN OF WESLEY, NEAR BORDER.

Winnipeg, Man., May 5.—Fire yesterday wiped out the little town of Wesley, twenty-five miles west of Nelson, near the United States boundary. The Yale-Columbia Lumber company's mill employes' houses and other buildings and the stock of lumber valued at $250,000 were destroyed.

Bankers Meet at Fargo.

Fargo, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The financiers of the Third judicial district will meet in Fargo, May 21. This is a district association of the North Dakota Bankers' organization and there are over fifty banks in the counties of Cass, Steele and Traill, included in this district.

STEAM SHOVELS WORKING.

Ore Being Loaded From Two Properties at Negaunee.

Negaunee, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first steam shovels to go into commission at the mines in this city since navigation opened were put to work yesterday. One is loading ore at the Hartford mine, operated by the Oliver Iron Mining company, and the other at the Mary Charlotte, operated by the Breitung interests. Both mines have been shipping ore from the pockets for several days.

Shipments will continue both from the pockets and the stockpiles, and if the boats are not tied up on account of labor trouble it is expected that the shovels will be continued at work for some days. The forces at several of the mines are being increased.

Babe Drowns in Washtub.

Mapleton, Minn., May 5.—The 18-months-old baby daughter of William Hardtke was drowned in a washtub, which stood near the house. Mrs. Hardtke went into the garden for a few minutes, but before going she made a little pen for the child out of some boxes and chairs. On her return she found that the child had crawled out and fallen into the tub of water and was dead.

HUGHES SIGNS BILL AIMED AT BAD PLAYS.

Albany, N. Y., May 5.—Governor Hughes has signed a bill which is aimed at immoral plays. The new law makes it a misdemeanor to advertise or present any obscene, immoral or impure drama, play, exhibition, show or entertainment which would tend to the corruption of youths.

Crazed Italian Shoots.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 5.—J. H. Hilby, who for years had a run as a conductor out of Grand Forks, is in a Tacoma hospital, where he is securing treatment for wounds in his hip and shoulder which were inflicted by a crazy Italian. The Italian was a passenger from Tacoma to Portland. When he flourished a revolver the conductor attempted to quiet him and in doing so was wounded.

MILLIONAIRE IN NAVY.

Young Man With $40,000 a Year Wants to Resign.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 5.—Addison Lyle Crow, the 23-year-old son of Mrs. Edward Crow, of 5245 Irwin avenue, Pittsburg, who has an income of $40,000 a year, and who will inherit $1,000,000 when he is 38 years of age, is a sailor in Uncle Sam's navy.

Eleven months ago, while in Cincinnati, the young man suddenly disappeared, and his family hunted high and low for him without avail, until a few days ago, when Mrs. Crow received a letter from her son, saying that he had enlisted in the navy. In Cincinnati several months ago. The young man also requested that his mother use her influence with the department at Washington to have him discharged, but she declared she would let him remain just where he is. He is now with a vessel at Hongkong.

Negaunee Fans Elected.

Negaunee, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.) — Negaunee fans are elated over the fact that Glenn S. Cole, the crack catcher of the Rapid River baseball team, is thinking seriously of accepting a proposition that the manager of the local nine has extended to him. Cole has received several offers from other upper peninsula teams, but he is very much satisfied with the offer from this city and a good many are confident in the belief that he will wear a Negaunee uniform this summer.

INCREASED PRODUCTION

Of Gold Is Causing Flush Times Instead of Stringent.

Great Expansion in Commerce Is Declared to Be Certain.

New York, May 5.—Before entering into the details of last week's business affairs, which were the most encouraging of any week since July, 1907, it will be well to start with the primary reason for the change from stringent to flush times, from dull business to good business, from depression to optimistic confidence.

It all lies in the increased and still increasing production of gold, and it is this and this only that made the 1907 panic a panic of months, and not years, as were its predecessors.

It is this constant and increasing production of gold from the mines of the world, throwing into circulation every day in the year, more than $1,000,000 in new money, in primary money, which, under the banking system, is sound basis for $5,000,000 in additions. It is this increase in the volume of currency which has restored business to its largest proportions.

And it is this same condition of cash increase which is going to carry all values of real estate and of commodities in general to far higher levels than they ever have reached.

Just one example of how the production of money, or gold, has changed in the United States.

In the whole country in 1890 there was produced gold to the value of $32,500,000.

Last week, in the single camp of Goldfield, Nev., there was produced gold to the value of $540,000, or at the rate of more than $25,000,000 a year.

New Gold in Sight.

The single state of Nevada will produce more gold in the coming twelve months than the entire United States did in 1890.

This, too, must be remembered, that Alaska was not turning out an ounce of gold in 1890, and that territory will produce many millions in this same period. California, Colorado, Utah, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho, South Dakota, Arizona, New Mexico, each and every one of them, will produce this year more than they did last year.

It is safe to predict an output, from the mines within our own borders, of new gold to a value of more than $125,000,000 in the next twelve months, and every day brings into circulation its quota of that amount.

If we did not receive a dollar in gold from abroad our business men can depend upon it that we will have more than $100,000,000 in gold added to our present stock of money before the first of May, 1910.

If we have money enough to do business with now we will have that amount in addition then.

That crop is assured. It is not affected by frosts, wet weather or drought to any material extent.

The Bank of England reports a reserve on Thursday last of more than 50 per cent and an increase in gold holdings for the week of £132,000. The discount rate on the curb in London is but 1½ per cent a year, and millions can be had at that rate at long time.

The Bank of France reports an increase in her gold holdings for the week of 14,725,000 francs.

Upward of $3,000,000 value in new gold from Africa arrived in London on Monday.

This is the money situation in the money centers and in the business affairs of the leading financial and commercial nations of the world.

Real estate here continues to show growing activity and advancing prices with every week.

Municipal Improvements.

There are each day transactions in the millions in the aggregate, and it is difficult to say which of them is greater demand for inside or suburban realty.

Plans were filed last week for a 31-story hotel at Forty-second street and Madison avenue. The estimated cost is $2,000,000 and the lot has a total height from curb to apex of 370 feet.

The builders throughout the city, and those furnishing building supplies, report a strong and constant demand for all kinds of building material.

Speaking last week with a man who is familiar with municipal contracting work, he stated to me, that for more than a year municipal work throughout the United States had been limited in nearly every section to contracts given prior to the panic; that but little new work in that line was as yet obtainable, but that the ease in the monetary market was encouraging municipal authorities to provide funds now for new work, that the bond market was excellent, and that the bankers and financiers in the various cities were now really desirous of handling municipal securities, and were encouraging the projects looking to municipal improvements.

He was of the opinion that, after July 1, municipal improvements would be pushed with vigor in all the cities of the country.

Atlantic City reported last week a record-breaking sale of property fronting upon the boardwalk. The purchase did not include the building on the lot. The frontage of the lot was 19 feet, and the price paid was $50,000.

Railway orders for all classes of material were filed last week calling for greater quantities and greater aggregate values than in any single week since 1907. Railway earnings made great gains and in all railway circles there were quiet satisfaction and the utmost confidence in present business and future prospects.

Securities Going Abroad.

Plans are well under way to place immense sums of our securities abroad, and, as each week marks favorable progress of our crops, it is thought that by June 1 to 10 foreign investors will be in the very best frame of mind and condition of bank accounts to absorb them.

The sums that the railways of the United States propose to put into extensions and betterments, if crops are good, are huge and tremendous, and, in themselves, these expenditures will be sufficient to inaugurate and maintain for years a remarkable industrial activity throughout the whole country, but especially in the very region which has suffered the most during the last eighteen months, viz, the manufacturing and mining districts of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. The great bulk of the money which will do this new work and carry on the activity arising from it will be from foreign countries and will add that much cash to our already abundant supply of funds.

Europe profitably cannot employ the money that is now held in her banks. European activities will not require gold, sums called their use must be sought abroad.

South America has millions more in gold today than she ever possessed, and so has Africa.

Their business while growing, is not yet at a stage of expansion that will employ additional sums of even $20,000,000 a year, while Europe's supply of new gold is running up to nearly $30,000,000 a year.

Our Morgans, Harrimans, Hills and others know the situation and recognize that when our banks arrived to pipe line the surplus European cash to the railways of the United States.

It can go to no other country for as safe or as profitable investment as it will find here.

HOT WATER BOTTLE

Does the Business When Hen Deserts the Eggs.

Columbus, Ind., May 5.—Mrs. Andrew Faulkner of this place has accidentally discovered a new and novel incubator.

One of her hens that had been mothering a "setting" deserted the nest when the eggs were about due to hatch. Mrs. Faulkner took the eggs from the nest and placed them around a hot water bottle in the hope of preserving them against the time when the hen might decide to return to her nest.

Water of the proper temperature was kept in the bottle, and this morning Mrs. Faulkner found ten fine chicks around the improvised incubator.

FORGAN DENIES HEAVY LOSS

Banks Will Not Lose $9,000,000 on Walsh Indebtedness.

Chicago, May 5.—James B. Forgan, president of the First National bank and chairman of the clearing house committee in charge of the liquidation of the assets of the defunct Chicago National bank, yesterday issued a statement correcting a report that an aggregate amount of $9,000,000 of the Welsh indebtedness has been set down as a loss by the forty banks which carried the burden of the failure.

According to his statement the "aggregation amount of the banks' participation," as it now stands on their books, is therefore less than $7,500,000, against which there is held as collateral for series A securities of the face value of $13,973,742.71, and for series B the coal properties, which have just been bought in for the banks at foreclosure sale for $2,500,000. Taking the most pessimistic view possible of the value of these securities and properties, there certainly cannot be much, if any, loss to the banks beyond what they have already provided for, and it is strongly hoped that sufficient will be realized on them to prevent further loss in the matter.

DIVORCE MILL WAS STOPPED

In Order That Judge Might Marry Minneapolis Couple.

St. Louis, Mo., May 5.—Judge McQuillan of the circuit court sitting at St. Louis stopped scuttling the marital barque long enough to launch one yesterday when he united in marriage Paul H. Peters and Miss Dina Flom, both of Minneapolis.

Judge McQuillan was busily grinding out decrees in default divorce cases, of which there were 132 on the dockets of eight divisions of the court, when Charles F. Joy, city recorder of deeds, asked permission to speak with him. The court listened to Recorder Joy's whispered plea, which was to the effect that a pair who did love each other were waiting for him to unite them in wedlock.

"They said they didn't care to have a clergyman," explained the recorder, "and they wouldn't have a mere justice of the peace, so I have brought them to a dignified circuit judge."

Judge McQuillan looked pleased.

"This court will take a recess for five minutes," he said, retiring to his private chambers, where he performed the marriage ceremony.

Peters and his bride, a handsome young woman, were stylishly attired. As they departed Judge McQuillan returned to the bench and granted a divorce in the case he was hearing when interrupted.

THE SHEPHERD LADY

Wanted to Nurse the Young Polecats, But Pop Cut In.

Bad Axe, Mich., May 5.—Steve Seibert was out after cows in the back twenty, when he was almost thrown off his fodder by the sight of a male polecat and his trusty shepherd dog engaged in a decidedly sanguinary battle.

It appears that Steve's canine was of feminine gender and, finding a hole full of young polecats, had determined that she and she alone should give them a little unearned increment. So she did.

But Pop Polecat arrived at the psychological instant and objected.

Steve says he'll save the dog's hide.

MODEL CAN FOR RUBBISH

Mayor Investigating the Paper Receptacles for Street Corners.

Type Designed By Denver City Officials Is Favored.

Mayor Haven has taken up the matter of rubbish cans for certain street corners in the city, and will try to have them put in place here. He favors the type of can used in Denver, which was designed by one of the city officials of the Western city.

The can itself is a very simple affair. It stands thirty-six inches high. The height makes it easy for foot passengers to drop in waste paper as they pass. Adjustable feet are under each corner, so the can, which is designed to be attached to a street post, may be permitted to adjust itself to the pitch of the post or to the slant of the walk. Thus it may be kept always in an upright position.

Within the can is a large sack, fastened to hooks within the top, so arranged that when the top is on and locked the sack cannot be removed. The movable top is really a hopper through which the waste passes to the receptacle sack within. The sack can be removed only when the hopper top is put to one side. This is to prevent any but those authorized from removing the sacks or any considerable part of the contents.

Of course, as the hopper is kept open to facilitate the depositing of rubbish, it is within the possibilities that the curious may inspect the contents, or a part of them. The sanitary idea is carried out by having perforations in the bottom of the sack to permit the escape of moisture, and this, together with an arrangement to permit the free circulation of air through the can, which has an open bottom, keeps the contents as nearly dry as possible.

An objection urged that waste being inflammable, danger would be incurred because of the throwing of lighted cigar and cigarette stubs in among the rubbish, has not been upheld by experience in Denver. This happened but once, and even then the presence of the can was an added safety, for it kept the fire within bounds, so that no damage resulted to anything but the sack.

A great point in favor of the sanitary can lies in the easy removal of its contents. The top is taken off, the sack or pouch lifted from the hooks supporting it, the draw string at the top pulled, closing its mouth, and the whole is thrown into a wagon, which bears the rubbish away to the place of disposal, replacing the full sack with an empty one. There is no possibility that the contents may be blown about on the streets, thus undoing the work of the ordinary rubbish can, and the man in charge of the cart may do his work in trim uniform, without any danger of soiling it.

The can permits everything to be done so cleanly that the arrival of the rubbish wagon is not a signal for storekeepers to close their doors, in fear of a gust of wind carrying dust and scraps of paper into the interior of their buildings.

SHOCKING, BUT MUST SEE IT!

Thousands of Pittsburg Church People Viewed Nude Art Gem.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 5.—Artistic and religious Pittsburg is once again on her hind feet yelling aloud at the awfulness of the second-money winner at the recent international art exhibit in Carnegie institute. It is "The Bridal Morning" by George Sauter of London, who gets $1,000 in second money, and the Carnegie art gallery reserves the right to buy this picture within a specified time at the price which has already been set on it.

But artistic Pittsburg wants more clothes on the lady, who is portrayed in rather nude loveliness while her dressing maids are evidently discussing what shall be done next. Artistic Pittsburg is yelling worse than it did over the masterpiece of Gaston La Touche, "The Bath," with which he took first money, $1,500, some years ago here. Pittsburg's yawp was so loud and so prolonged at this that the Carnegie art gallery dared not buy it from the famous French painter as part of the permanent exhibit, and so were sending it back to Paris, when a Pittsburg broker named Hall bought it for $1,500.

Yesterday 12,000 Pittsburg, most of them church people, gasped their way past "The Bridal Morning" on exhibition.

TORN FROM BRIDE.

Big Feet Caused Jeweler's Arrest, But He Was Acquitted.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 5.—Just because he was unfortunate enough to have big feet, H. M. Lockie, a jeweler, was torn from the side of his newly wedded bride at Utica, Neb., extradited to his former home town, Paulina, Iowa, and forced to stand trial for burglary. He was acquitted after a two days' trial.

Some one broke two plate-glass windows and stole some goods in the store of L. Wallenberg at Paulina. The town night watchman discovered the tracks of the offender in soft soil. They were immense, about No. 10.

Jeweler Lockie has very big feet, and, furthermore, he had not been on good terms with Wallenberg.

Aha! the very man! And Sherlock Holmes, quietly following up his "clew," secured an indictment against Mr. Lockie.

A Plague of Rats

Everybody Should Join in Fighting the Pests.

Rats have grown very numerous of late, being driven indoors by the cold weather, and this has resulted in attacks on children and in some instances on grown persons.

Everybody should join in destroying these dangerous pests. The best way to get rid of them is with Stearns' Electric Rat and Roach Paste, which drives them out of the house to die, and is absolutely reliable.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, ST. LOUIS County—
District Court Eleventh Judicial District.
Earl D. Coates, Plaintiff.
vs.
Maud H. Coates, Defendant.

Plaintiff complains of the defendant and for his cause of action alleges:

That plaintiff has been for more than one year next and immediately preceding the commencement of this action, and still is, a resident of the State of Minnesota and County of St. Louis.

That on the 24th day of November, A. D. 1896, at the City of Greenfield in the State of Massachusetts plaintiff and defendant were lawfully married and from said day until on or about the 1st day of December, A. D. 1907, lived together as husband and wife.

That on or about the 1st day of December, 1907, the defendant above named wilfully and without any cause whatever, deserted and abandoned the plaintiff herein.

The plaintiff is Thirty years of age and the defendant is Twenty-seven years of age, and that there are no children as the issue of said marriage.

Wherefore plaintiff demands Judgment against the defendant:

1st. That he be given a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony now and at all times heretofore existing between plaintiff and defendant, and that the same be wholly and forever dissolved, in conformity to the Statute in such case made and provided.

SOCIALIST CAUSES JAR

Fiery Resolutions Finally Tabled; Vote, Two to One.

Chicago, May 5.—The peaceful deliberations of the peace congress were rudely disturbed today when A. M. Simon of the Chicago Daily Socialist attempted to secure formal recognition of Socialism as the "greatest peace force in the world."

It happened after the congress had officially adopted a platform in strict keeping with its well-known principles along broad lines, carefully avoiding matters of sectional or political controversy.

Mr Simon arose with 499 words of "whereases," and "be it resolved," outlining Socialistic beliefs and accomplishments and attributing the causes of war to "the exploitation of labor and the impoverishment of those who toil."

Great confusion followed. The regular platform had been read, and amidst the turmoil aroused by the Simon resolutions there were repeated calls for the original question.

On a viva voce vote the report of the resolutions committee carried unanimously and the question then recurred to the adoption of the Socialist resolutions.

Secretary Melendy arose to state that he thought industrial causes of war should be recognized, and likewise the efforts of the organizations which make for peace, but he could not vote for the resolutions as presented. He suggested a substitute resolution less radically worded.

"If there is any way by which this recognizance of which Mr. Melendy speaks can be secured, I am sure the Socialists and trade unions will be very glad to make an amendment that would recognize this fact," said Mr. Simon.

Judge E. O. Brown of the resolutions committee declared that the regular platform already adopted seemed best to embody the varying opinions of the delegates as a whole, without unduly emphasizing those of any one faction.

J. E. Iglehart opposed the Simon resolutions, saying: "My opinion is that this convention will lose more or less of its moral force, especially with the countries of Europe, if we interject a partisan view of any question like this into the record."

This declaration was received with applause, and a motion to lay it on the table was promptly seconded. The chair called for a viva voce vote, the result of which, in the ensuing confusion, seemed to be against tabling the matter.

A second vote seemed to have the same result, and a standing vote was then demanded. This showed a vote of two to one in favor of tabling, and it was so ordered.

SIX MEXICANS DEAD AND ONE MAN IN JAIL.

Vera Cruz, Mex., May 5.—Harold Sanborn, son of President Sanborn of the Junta Plantation company and the Sanborn Lumber company, is in jail, and six Mexicans are dead as the result of a clash between Young Sanborn and the owner of the La Tienda plantation one side and a number of Mexicans on the other.

Vicente Espinosa, a prominent cattle man, and one woman are among the dead.

Both President Sanborn and his son are Chicagoans.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

It was a beautiful day for a wedding. Almost anybody would have consented if the matter had been approached properly, and "Eddie" had been giving the best part of his effort for some time past to induce "Flossy" to say the word, and so no one had a word to say against it when the sun arose bright and early this morning and sparkled on the bluest inland sea that man knows anything about, and the breezes, soft and suggestive of spring, wafted down from the hillsides, and Florence announced that the day had come.

It was a morning of all mornings for weddings and a few of the chorus people of "The Merry Widow" company welcomed their invitations, and were waiting at the church at the appointed hour when the bride, who, in the dignity of the marriage license, is known as Miss Florence R. Brooks, became the wife of him who in the marriage license is named as Edmund N. McCray.

The bride is the prettiest girl in the company. The bridegroom himself told her so, and there was no visible reason to doubt him at the church this morning. The ceremony took place at St. Luke's Episcopal church.

There was no wedding music; there were no ushers; there were no bridesmaids; there were no critical acquaintances to make disparaging remarks. At the hour the proud-looking young bridegroom led the girl he had chosen from all the galaxy of beauty with which the company teems, to the altar, and before a few reverent and sympathetic friends, the simple and beautiful wedding service was read by Rev. Roderick J. Mooney. The spring sunshine streamed in through the door of the church left open for the air and brightness to enter, and after the prayer that closed the service, there were the happy congratulations of their nearest friends.

The bride wore a street suit of dark blue serge with a very nice mushroom hat of Milan straw. But this afternoon when they went to Maxim's for their wedding trip she wore a blue spangled creation with a hat that shines like a pawn shop window. She is a vision of delight in a coiffure, for all the world like Mrs. Newlywed's, and the spangley dress of light blue.

The fever of matrimony has struck the company. Unlike the dashing prince, who made it clubs, when he was offered the privilege of deciding between a dear little home and a dear little wife on one hand, and his clubs and their pleasures on the other, the men of the chorus are choosing dear little wives and dear little homes in a suit case. This is the second wedding that has set the company in a flutter of interest within a very few weeks and the spring is advancing and there is talk among some of the company to take out wedding present insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. McCray will take no other wedding trip than their daily trip to Maxim's via the third act of "The Merry Widow."

DULUTH GRADUATES.

Eight Local Students Complete College Course.

More than 500 students will be graduated this year from the Minnesota State university. A large number of Duluth students are numbered among the graduates this year. Those who will take degrees from the institution in June are Harold Graham Cant, Florence Helen Mooney and Ruth Eugene Ringsred, who will receive the degree of bachelor of arts.

Lumbar Francis Lippitt and Charles A. McFadden will be graduated as doctors of dental surgery.

Frederick W. Buck will graduate from the department of mechanical engineering; George A. Kruschke from the department of electrical engineering, and Robert A. Jaques as a civil engineer.

COOLEY-McKINNON.

Former Duluth Man Wed at Indianapolis.

A wedding of interest to many Duluthians took place last Saturday at Indianapolis, when Miss Mabel Cooley of that city became the bride of Roderick William McKinnon of Chicago. Mr. McKinnon will be remembered by many Duluthians, as he made his home in this city several years ago and was well known socially during the year of his residence here. The wedding was a brilliant affair at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. McKinnon and his bride will sail today from New York on the Mauretania for London. They will tour North and South Devonshire and the continent and will be at home after August at Evanston.

"KNOW THYSELF."

Best Possible Advice For Moderns.

"Ah, wad soom power the giftie gie us, to see ourscls as ithers see us," sang Burns. The idea is as old as human thought. It is the basis of all the mysterious spiritual exercises which make up the Yoga system. It was in the mind of the sage who wrote upon the walls of the great temple of Delphos those tremendous words, "Know thyself."

Self-examination is not self-knowledge, but it leads to self-knowledge. Self-examination is not justice, but it leads to justice; self-examination is not power, but it leads to power, writes Dr. W. R. C. Latson in Health Culture.

By self-examination I do not mean that morbid introspection to which is so usual a symptom of a certain stage of our mental growth. Such timid self-consciousness has in it too much of self-reproach to be either instructive or inspiring. I mean an honest, straightforward and impersonal examination of certain acts of our lives—which acts it makes little, large or small, exactly what did we do, why did we do it, what effect will our action have upon ourselves, what effect upon other people, the probable reasons for that effect, and so on and so on.

The art of thinking, that splendid old art which the ancients thought so much, on which even our grandfathers prided themselves, the art which gave us the grand masterpieces of literature and oratory—the art of thinking is almost a lost art. From the man of deep thought most people turn in derision. "Old bore," they cry. "Look out, or he'll begin to tell you that the nearest fixed star is twenty millions of millions of miles away, or he will preach a sermon with a blade of grass for a text."

And from the real wit, the wit of the Richelieu and the Sheridan type, most people turn in fear. "He's awfully clever," they will say. "But, you know, I am never quite sure how to take him." Most people do not want thought; they want clap-trap. They will not listen, for instance, to a lecture on popular science, but they will follow fads to the verge of madness—and sometimes over the verge. They do not want wit, but they will spend hours in gossip and vacuous mental horseplay. I say this of most people. Happily there are meny exceptions.

Among Women.

Shall women propose? is a question which does not bother the Hopi Indian maiden, who not only invites her chosen one to matrimony, but if necessary drags him to the altar, or its Hopi substitute, by main force.

When a girl has selected her victim—this ungallant way of putting it is that of a magazine writer—she simply calls upon his mother and talks business. If the old lady lends a willing ear the matter is settled forthwith, and the young man has no recourse but to agree excepting to bow to the inevitable. At times, it is said, violence has been resorted to to drag an unwilling youth to the altar.

There is a movement among Methodists, headed by Mrs. Phebe Stone Beeman, a niece of Lucy Stone, to have women granted the right to become ordained Methodist ministers. Since 1872 women have been permitted to preach; but, although after three years of preaching men are ordained, women are not.

Fashionable Things.

Bedford cord, that most delightful of materials, has come back, although under different names. The new Olympia cord and Coteline are really nothing but the old Bedford cord. They are shown in all the colors of spring and in attractive two-tone effects. Liberty offers from among his London guild materials a corded crepe of satin finish that is none other than the most delicate of Bedford weaves. The cotton quality is, in reality, a pique in wide wale and with the cord running lengthwise of the material. Pique has responded to the call for cords in canary, old rose and a wondrous blue, and in ribbing of varied widths. Linen is woven with heavy horizontal ridges from selvedge to selvedge, resembling the ottoman and tussor textures. Silk poplin has taken its place among the ribbed materials and in the spring weights of costume cloth there is a multiplicity of cord-like fabrics. There is every reason to believe that all these materials will be extremely popular this spring and summer.

The last few years have seen a remarkable revival of tassels, and now there are few evening dresses or wraps which are finished without one or two of these dangling affairs, which may be procured in all the modish colors. With the revival of the tassels has come the use of fringes and passementerie drop trimmings, which are interwoven with metallic braids and bits of pearl, jet or crystal. Chenille, too, has not been entirely ignored, and sometimes it is finished in conjunction with knotted silk threads. This is particularly good for mourning and semi-mourning fashions, where dull jet is a little bit too heavy to suit the general effect.

A growing inclination to wear white is apparent. White was once regarded as the special privilege of youth. Now, with a clearer knowledge of the values of color and a better realization of the importance of surroundings, we indulge our natural tastes. Perhaps the influence of the period under which fashion is passing has something to do with, this, for the women who amused themselves at Trianon used white freely and without stint. Be that as it may, white gowns, and white generally, will be more worn this coming season than ever. White cloth in a variety of makes, satin charmeuse, the cashmere, and white serge, in an infinite variety of qualities and thickness, will come in for much attention from artists in dress. As to the lingerie gown, its importance in the wardrobe can not be questioned. It is one of the most useful things we have, and, whether worn outside or indoors, permits so much individual taste and charm in contrast that it is quite indispensable.

Fads of the Season.

The Spanish flounce is familiar again with the spring gowns.

Burnt and butter tones seem to be the leaders among straw hats.

Handkerchief lines are being worked into dainty summer dresses.

Black and white combinations continue to be popular in millinery.

The princess model is welcomed by everybody over into the new season.

In millinery the black hat is a striking adjunct of the spring displays.

THE EVENING STORY

THE VIAL.

By Herman A. Landon.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

It was during the first days of spring that they met one evening in a secluded nook of the park. The wind was laden with the heavy, intoxicating scent of lilacs.

He was young, romantic and just out of college. Unconsciously he thirsted for the fullness of life and the essence of things. In the meantime, cognizant only of a vague craving for something undefinable, he was selling his birthright for a song.

She, also, had heard the beck of unexplored wilds. Obeying the call, she had voyaged across the ocean, leaving her home in sunny Andalusia to assuage the craving of a heart which rebelled against the monsters which held it in bondage.

She was tall and slender, and her dark eyes mirrored all the expectancy of unborn worlds. The plain black dress which she wore adequately emphasized the sinuous graceful curves of a vivacious womanhood.

Around the white, slender throat she wore a curiously wrought necklace, from which was suspended a brilliant object of fantastic shape. He lingered it in an absent-minded fashion as he gazed into her dreamy eyes and poured into her willing ears the old story of many failures and few triumphs. The world had been slow to recognize an art in which he gave vent to all the dreams and fantasies of his eagle heart. And in her dark, fathomless eyes, as he told his story, he read pity, sympathy and immature love.

She quivered violently as a curl of his wavy hair came in contact with her burning cheeks. Like a surging river, the electrifying current of joy rushed through her veins—joy that at last her journeyings had brought into her life one who understood.

Suddenly, under the nervous manipulation of his fingers, the tiny ornament she wore sprang open and disclosed a miniature silver vial. She removed it from its case and kissed it passionately.

"It is a relic my mother gave me when I left home," she murmured in explanation. "It has a history. I have been told, and it possesses wonderful qualities."

"A love charm?" he ventured, vaguely, as one in a trance.

"It performs miracles," she continued, and her eyes grew more fathomless. "It soothes your heart when you are tired and weary—when the world mocks you and the darkness is heavy around you. My mother—oh, how beautiful she was!—gave it to me just before she died. 'When the sun has gone out of your life,' she said, 'and your heart is weary unto death, then drink its contents. It will drive away your sorrow and make you extremely happy.'"

A violent sob shook her slender form as she concluded. With speculative wonder in his eyes he gazed on the mysterious talisman; then he drew her violently to his side and covered her mouth and cheeks with burning kisses.

They met frequently after that. Under the magic touch of his caresses her soul grew by leaps and bounds. All the fiery devotion of her temperament she drowned in her love for him.

The world began to talk about him. She heard his name above the surging maelstrom of the great city, the masses whom he despised sang its plaudits—and she was extremely happy. Had he not admitted that she had awakened the living spark of fire in his heart; had he not thrown his proudest laurels at her feet?

And the magic charm was almost forgotten.

Then, after months of delirious bliss, she noted the absence of fire in his kisses; the tenderness of his words which had fascinated her in bygone days was no longer there to thrill her senses to ecstacy; his caresses were cold and passionless.

One night, when the rain and sleet were beating against the windows, she followed him. His path was devious, but brightly illumined. And then she returned; she threw herself on the bed and wept until she thought her heart would break.

The months rolled past and he did not return. Still she heard the world murmur its admiration for his art; the papers related his escapades among the gayest of the gay set, but she sought him in vain. Then came a time when the tormenting gnawing at the young heart ceased; she resolved to mourn him as one dead.

She burned her bridges behind her; she flung her adieus to the old life. She surrendered herself to gay abandon; she had gold, silks and jewels, and only in the silent hour of the night did she wake at times to mourn the gods who had fled from her heart.

Once again Fate brought them together. It was during one of Bohemia's gay affairs, and she had been escorted to her destiny by a rising young writer. It was during one of the pauses in the dance that she caught sight of his face. He was maintaining an animated conversation with a young actress whose name she had seen mentioned frequently in the papers. He had changed; there were cold, hard lines in his face, and his hair was turning gray around the temples. Her heart beat wildly as a flood of memories surged through her brain.

She could stand the suspense no longer. She followed his as he sauntered out on the balcony and stealthily stepped up behind him and touched him on the arm.

"You!" he exclaimed.

She was silent for a moment gazing into his handsome face, tormented the while by the onward rush of mighty emotions.

"I have wanted to see you," she said simply. "At last Fate is kind to me." The words were almost choking her.

He tried to relieve the tension by joking, but the usually glib tongue failed him.

"You are more beautiful than ever," he said, surveying her with a cold glance. "And I sincerely hope that you are happy." Now his words were almost tender again.

"Happy—happy——" she faltered. "And you?"

"The fates have been kind to me, also," he replied. Then, after a pause: "Tomorrow is my wedding day."

The slender form trembled violently for a second. She looked at him with eyes full of appeal and subdued passion. Then the sinuous strains of the waltz reached her ears and played soothingly on her nerves.

"One more kiss before we part," he pleaded, and nestled his arm around her waist.

"A last kiss," she repeated falteringly. Their lips met, and he was gone. For a moment she stood in deep thought.

Then she drew the charm from her bosom, pressed the spring and the casket flew open. She took out the little vial and smiled through her tears.

"Now, if ever," was her thought, as she hastily pressed it to her lips.

When they found the lifeless body a few hours later the smile was still playing on her lips.

FARMER HELD PRISONER.

Appeal for Aid Furnishes Clue That He Is in Chicago.

Chicago, May 5.—Following the slender clue of a Chicago postmark on his letter of appeal, search is being made for Augustus Roeske, a farmer of Hancock, Wis., believed to be imprisoned and held for ransom in a barn near the city.

The letter received by his wife at Hancock asserts that the farmer has no idea of his present whereabouts. He tells of affable strangers, a business proposition, an automobile ride, being relieved of his money, and being held as hostage until more money is produced.

Descriptions of his captors, the locality of their meeting with him, all are missing in his appeal for aid. The only indication is the postmark, "Chicago, Station C, 8:30 a. m. April 28."

Roeske was last seen Tuesday, when he boarded a train for Portage, telling his wife that he was proceeding there to meet some men and discuss the purchase of some blooded cattle which they had for sale, with which he intended to stock his farm.

RAILROAD WORK WILL BE HEAVY

Western Roads Planning on Huge Expenditures This Year.

Construction of a vast nature will be carried on this summer by Western railroads, according to information received at the offices of some of the Duluth railroads.

It is stated that the Great Northern will expend $15,000,000 on the completion of its transcontinental line across Western Canada and added construction and repairs to branch lines.

The Canadian Pacific railway will expend $20,000,000. Some of this money will undoubtedly be expended upon repairs and added mileage to the subsidiary lines of the Canadian Pacific in the United States.

The Canadian Northern railway, according to the same information, will expend $11,000,000 during the present season upon construction, repairs and added mileage to branch lines.

As the Canadian Northern now owns subsidiary lines in the United States, the Duluth & Rainy Lake railway being one of them, some of the items of this expenditure may be made upon this side of the boundary line.

The program of construction is a very heavy one and will entail the employment of a large number of laborers.

LENOX IS BEING APPRAISED

Appraisers Trying to Get Line on Value of Hotel Property.

At a hearing held Tuesday afternoon in the offices of R. B. Knox & Co. a number of local real estate men testified as to what, in their opinion, the site of the Lenox hotel is worth. The property is being appraised and the opinion of local dealers, as to the actual value was asked for by the appraisers in order to readjust the ground rental.

The appraisers were unable to reach an agreement yesterday afternoon and another meeting is being held this afternoon when it is expected the appraisement will be finally made. The appraisers are: R. B. Knox, W. A. Holgate and William Getty.

Some of the local dealers testified yesterday that the property was worth, in their opinion, from $800 to $1,200 a front foot. Just what the figures are that are being considered, is not known, as the appraisers refuse to give them out, but it is thought the property is valued at about $100,000.

The owners of the land, George L. Murphy and his brother of Woodstock, Ill., were present at the hearing yesterday.

OLD CALUMET EMPLOYE.

Funeral Held Wednesday of William Hicks Who Died Sunday.

Calumet, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald)—The funeral was held this afternoon from the residence of Mrs. Walter Chapman on Cedar street, Tamarack, of her father, William Hicks, aged 73, one of the old residents of Calumet, who died Sunday.

A native of Cornwall Mr. Hicks came to this country forty years ago, and to the Copper country thirty-eight years ago. Up to three weeks ago when he retired on a pension, he was continuously in the employ of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company.

He was a prominent member of the Calumet M. E. church, and for thirty-seven years or just one year after his arrival here he was a member of the Calumet M. E church choir. To him was given the privilege of singing the last solo to the music of the old organ before its removal, and he also sang the first solo on the institution of the present instrument a couple of years ago. Mr. Hicks was a class leader in the M. E church, and he was widely known throughout the Copper country.

CLAIMS TEXAS LANDS WERE MISREPRESENTED.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 5.—Llewellyn S. Gravath has begun an action in the United States court in this city against George Washburn and O. Kellogg, to recover $14,720. Mr. Gravath alleges that the defendants induced him to trade certain lands in Texas for lands which he held in North Dakota, and that they represented the Texas lands to be good, level tracts, but which proved to be so rough and broken that they could not be crossed on horseback.

Olaf Wolden was arrested at Dalton and brought to this city on the charge of furnishing minors here with liquor.

Nursing Mothers and Over-burdened Women

In all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken-down by overwork, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the most potent, invigorating restorative strength-giver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting an abundant nourishment for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless boon to prepare the system for baby's coming and rendering the ordeal comparatively painless. It can do no harm in any state, or condition of the female system.

Delicate, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headache, backache, dragging-down distress or from painful irregularities, gnawing or distressed sensation in stomach, dizzy or faint spells, see imaginary specks or spots floating before eyes, have disagreeable, catarrhal drain, prolapsus, anteversion or retroversion or other displacements of womanly organs from weakness of parts will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and a permanent cure by using faithfully and fairly persistently Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This world-famed specific for woman's weaknesses and peculiar ailments is a pure glyceric extract of the choicest native medicinal roots without a drop of alcohol in its make-up. All its ingredients printed in plain English on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Dr. Pierce thus invites the fullest investigation of his formula knowing that it will be found to contain only the best agents known to the most advanced medical science of all the different schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments.

If you want to know more about the composition and professional endorsement of the "Favorite Prescription," send postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for his free booklet treating of same or, better still, send 31 one-cent stamps for cloth-bound copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, new, revised up-to-date Edition, 1008 pages.

You can't afford to accept as a substitute for this remedy of known composition a secret nostrum of unknown composition. Don't do it. It is not only foolish but often dangerous to do so.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

PREPARE FOR MEET

Cass Lake Firemen Getting Ready for Annual Tournament.

Committees Planning to Make This Year's Event Best Ever.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—An enthusiastic meeting of the members of the fire department was held last evening and preparations were begun for the firemen's tournament which will be held here June 22, 23, 24 and 25.

All the committees which will have charge of the different matters were appointed, and from the interest manifested it is a safe prediction to say that the tournament will be one of the most memorable in the history of the association.

Already five teams have registered and each will send a running team. Secretary Ittner has been in communication with several departments and from the correspondence received by him it is believed that at least five other teams will register before the date of the tournament.

The boys are getting the track into shape. It will soon be covered with cinders, and from then until the tournament will be rolled every day, so that the track will be in excellent condition.

SUPERIOR MAN IS SUSPECTED

Peter Tassolainen Arrested Charged With Wadena Killing.

Detroit, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Tassolainen, whose home is said to be in Superior, Wis., is in jail here, charged with having murdered Mrs. Paul Kuha and Mrs. Dan Mursa in the Finnish colony in Wadena county while trying to secure a large amount of money believed to be in the Mursa house, in the absence of the head of the house.

Deputy Sheriff Hurley arrested the accused at Mangha.

Tassolanien has relatives in the town of Runeberg, Becker county, who live near the Mursa home. At Wadena he met Mursa, who was on his way to Canada, to be absent some time. The examination, which will be held in Detroit, will not take place until the return of Mursa. Tassolainen has employed Hughes & Marks of Wadena to defend him.

TO MAKE DURUM MORE POPULAR

Former North Dakota Lieutenant Governor Proposes Scheme.

Edgely, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Durum flour, made from durum wheat, is to be popularized if a plan started by L. A. Veland of Edgely, formerly lieutenant governor, succeeds.

He sugegsts that the Durum Wheat association levy an assessment of a mill a bushel on every grower of durum wheat in this state. This will create a fund of $40,000, which can be used to advertise the flour. Bread-making demonstrations, publicity articles and circulars could be used and many other methods through which the people could be induced to use the flour. In this way a greater demand for durum wheat would be created, and the price would be nearly equal to that of the other wheats raised in this state. The growers of durum protest vigorously against what they construe a most unjust discrimination against their wheat.

BLACKDUCK DOCTOR SUED.

Alleged to Have Given Wrong Treatment, Causing Death of Patient.

Bemidji, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alleging the doctor had made the wrong diagnosis, and given the wrong treatment in caring for her son, who died in March of last year of diphtheria, Mrs. Mary Johnson of Blackduck is suing Dr. Koch of the same place in the district court here for $5,000 damages.

A jury was secured yesterday afternoon, the opening statement of plaintiff's counsel, Senator Peterson of Moorhead, made to the jury, and Dr. Koch partially examined before court adjourned last night. Dr. Koch's examination was resumed this morning. The case is out of the ordinary and is attracting no little attention. Senator Peterson secured an admission from the defendant on the stand that he was secured against malpractice damages by a surety bond.

FATHER IS WRESTLER.

Celebrates His Golden Wedding By Throwing His Son.

Platte, S. D., May 5.—With elaborate ceremonies the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Peter G. Delire, living northwest of Platte, was celebrated a few days ago. That Mr. Delire has come through his half century of married life with unimpaired vigor was shown when he and his son, Peter G. Delire, Jr., put on a wrestling match at the Delire home. After a short but decisive struggle, the younger man was put on his back, and was ready to admit after the first fall he was no match for his father. The day began with an address at the Catholic church, before a large audience, by Rev. Father Burke. In the afternoon and evening a reunion and dance were held at the Delire home.

CLOQUET COUPLE IS MARRIED IN WINONA.

Cloquet, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Clarice Chiminsky and Mr. Philip Walker, both of this city, were married yesterday at Winona, Minn., the home of Miss Chiminsky's parents. Both young people are well known in this city. The bride was in the employ of the confectionery store owned by W. E. McKenna. They will make their home in Winona.

MRS. WRIGHT GOES TO PENITENTIARY

Convicted of Killing Her Stepdaughter, Is Taken to Bismarck.

Fargo, N. D., May. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fargo entertained two alleged slayers this morning. Mrs. Wright of Ramsey county, convicted of the murder of her adopted daughter, was here en route to the state penitentiary from Devils Lake. John Hill, released from the state penitentiary yesterday after serving eighteen months for assault with a dangerous weapon, was rearrested by the sheriff of Traill county on a murder charge and was held in jail here on his way to Hillsboro. He is accused of the murder of Charles Lane in the fall of 1905.

BIG REVIVAL ENDED.

Gipsy Smith Concludes His Work in the Twin Cities.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 5.—Gipsy Smith Monday night closed his stay in Minneapolis. More than 3,000 people were at the Auditorium and Mr. Smith spoke for two hours. As a remembrance of his work in Minneapolis, Mr. Smith will carry to his English home a large silver vase as a gift from the choir. This, he said, will have a prominent place in his home and will be kept filled with the flowers that he loves.

Col. David E. Jones, who led the song service, was given a heavy ebony cane heavily mounted with gold. The cane was selected by Mr. Jones timself, under the delusion that he was picking a cane for Mr. Smith.

Dr. J. E. Bushnell, who presided at the meeting, made a short talk in commendation of Mr. Smith's work in Minneapolis.

"He has made a tremendously deep impression on the consciences of our city," said Dr. Bushnell. "As the result of his intense devotion to the saving of souls, Minneapolis is today a vastly better and purer city."

THEY LOST EVERYTHING.

O'Neill Family Living Near Tomahawk, Wis., Have Hard Luck.

Tomahawk, Wis., May 5.—Fire destroyed the home of Mrs. Martin O'Neill of Meadow View farm, near Bass lake, nothing being saved but a sewing machine. Mrs. O'Neill's five children, three girls and two boys, were at school when the fire broke out. They saw smoke issuing from the house as they sat at their desks at school and their teacher allowed them to go home and join the neighbors in fighting the fire. It had obtained such a headway that it could not be stopped and only the machine was saved.

The unfortunate family lost everything by the fire.

ORGANIZE NEW LODGE.

Woodmen Now Have a Camp at Fariston, Minn.

Fariston, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—T. Strand of Duluth, district deputy M. W. of A., organized the Woodmen lodge here Monday night.

The officers of camp No. 4155 of Milaca came over, bringing a degree team, the goat and a brass band.

The hall was filled with enthusiastic Woodmen. All enjoyed the excellent selections by the Milaca band. A class of twenty charter members was initiated, the degree work being in charge of the team and officers of Milaca camp. The attendance was large, and at the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

IS KNOWN IN DULUTH.

Burglar Caught in Waukesha Said to Be No Stranger Here.

Menominee, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charged with burglarizing the Bird & Wells general store at Wausakee and securing $150 in cash and merchandise, Harry Lawrence of Menominee has been arrested at Wausakee and will be held for trial.

The prisoner has practically admitted his guilt, and will probably plead guilty at the present term of circuit court. Lawrence is well known in St. Paul and Duluth, having been employed in both cities last year.

JUDGE DONAHUE BURIED.

Funeral of Hennepin County Jurist Held Wednesday Morning.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Judge William H. Donahue of the Hennepin county district court, who died Sunday in Philadelphia, took place from the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Third avenue north and Third street, at 10 o'clock this morning. Members of the Hennepin county bar attended the services in a body, as did members of the Minneapolis and Hennepin councils of the Knights of Columbus.

Out of respect for the memory of Judge Donahue, district courtrooms were closed yesterday and court work will not be resumed until Thursday.

The active pallbearers were Judge David F. Simpson, Judge F. C. Brooks, Dr. W. J. Byrnes, W. P. Devereaux, Martin King, Mathew McDonald, Truman E. Penny and J. J. Regan. Honorary pallbearers were Judge John Day Smith, Judge Andrew Holt, Judge H. D. Dickinson, F. L. McGee, W. A. Lancaster, F. N. Hendrix, H. D. Irwin and Judge George R. Smith.

FOR OLD PEOPLE.

After reaching the age of forty the human system gradually declines. It is then that the accumulated poisons in the blood make themselves manifest by rheumatic pains in the joints, muscles and back.

The following prescription shows wonderful results even after the first few doses and it will eventually restore full physical vigor.

"One ounce compound syrup of Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris compound; half pint of high-grade whiskey. This to be mixed and used in tablespoonful doses before each meal and at bedtime. The bottle to be well shaken each time." Any druggist can supply the ingredients.

CLOQUET VOTES BONDS.

Will Issue $30,000 for Purpose of Building New School.

Cloquet, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a general election of the voters of this city held last evening, bonds to the amount of $30,000 for the erection of a new school building to be located at Fourteenth street and Carlton avenue were voted. The vote stood 172 against 10, three votes being blank, making a total vote of 185.

At the last annual investigation of the city schools by the state board of health the crowded condition of the schoolrooms was condemned, and the matter was immediately taken up by the school board, with the result that by the election last evening, a new building will be erected.

FINDS DEN OF WOLVES INSIDE FERGUS FALLS.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 5.—Edward Burau found a den of wolves inside the city limits yesterday. The old wolves escaped, but he captured six cubs, and the county auditor paid him $30 bounty.

KILLED "FLIPPING" CARS.

Madison, Wis., May 5.—George Hutton, Jr., aged 10 years, son of George Hutton, Sr., foreman of the state university farm, was killed while trying to climb on a freight train on the Milwaukee road at the Box Elder crossing on the university grounds. The youth was playing with another boy, Dana Taylor, and both attempted to board the moving train.

To Give Ibsen Program.

Fargo, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—An Ibsen program is to be given at the North Dakota Agricultural college soon. It will be both literary and musical in character, and a number of prominent Scandinavians, headed by Dr. H. O. Fjelde of Abercrombie, are behind the movement.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Ashland—Lewis Tillison of Odanah was held to trial in circuit court by Judge McCloud Monday on the charge of arson. He was accused of setting fire to a neighbor's house.

Eau Claire—Edward E. Vallier and E. C. Laughlin have returned from an extended tour to the Western states. They both speak very highly of Idaho and Washington, and are telling their friends of the great possibilities that are found there.

Green Bay—The master plumbers have refused to grant the increase demanded by journeymen plumbers, and as a consequence it is expected the plumbers will be out for some time.

Neenah—Anson M. Brainard, aged 67 years, and Mrs. Alice M. Little, aged 57 years, both of Oshkosh, secured a special dispensation and were married here on Monday. They will live in Oshkosh. They had been sweethearts thirty years ago.

Madison—Governor Davidson has reappointed Joseph Ewens as a member of the board of trustees of the Milwaukee hospital for the insane for a term of seven years.

Green Bay—Ralph Simonet was held at the point of a revolver on a lonely road in the town of Allouez Sunday evening. The highwayman secured a gold watch, but overlooked $40.

Madison—State Superintendent C. P. Cary has filed with the secretary of state an expense account in his recent campaign for re-election, the total being $736. Of this amount $548 was expended for printing and postage.

Milwaukee—Struggling in the chilled waters of the Milwaukee river Monday afternoon in the rear of Trostel's tannery on East Water street, Alex Doyle, 21 years old, was finally rescued by O. H. Miller and several boatmen, who reached the drowning man's side in a rowboat.

Eau Claire—While on his way to his home in Waterloo, Iowa, after having partly recovered from a severe illness, Henry Nespert, aged 55, created a panic on the Omaha passenger train by becoming suddenly crazed. An effort was made to quiet him, but he eluded his pursuers, dashed to the end of the car and jumped from the speeding train. He was taken charge of by two officials and is held here pending the arrival of relatives.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Calumet—The Hosking home and lot, corner of Eighth and Pine streets, has passed into the hands of Herman C. Guck of Pine street. The consideration is not made public. Mr. Guck intends residing there this summer, and will take up his residence in his new home as soon as it is vacated.

Houghton—Edward Haug, son of Matthew Haug, the jeweler, left Saturday afternoon for Globe, where he will take a position with the engineering department of the Superior & Boston Copper company. Mr. Haug was graduated this spring from the College of Mines.

Dollar Bay—The Dollar Bay band has been reorganized with twelve members, including Werner Benga, leader: John Steve, Alfred Thors, Abram Abrahamson, Oscar Beckman, Matt Johnson, John Bechmann, John Sodermann, August Moyar, Frank Stoor and Matt Ostrand.

Hancock—Manager E. H. Johnson of the Quincy band has announced a series of promenades to be given by the band at the Amphidrome. The first will be on Friday, May 14, and the second on Friday, May 28, with the full band present in uniform.

Laurium—The curfew ordinance in Laurium has gone into effect, and Marshal Wills and his staff of nightwatchmen will be on the lookout for all girls and boys under the age of 16 who may be inclined to wander on the streets after 9 p. m.

Calumet—Calumet lodge of Elks, No. 404, will soon become the owner of a real elk's head, typical and emblematical of the order. It is coming from Missoula, Mont., and is to be a gift of the lodge from M. E. O'Brien and Thomas Bastian, two prominent members of the local branch.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Fargo, N. D.—The program has been issued for the meeting of the North Dakota Medical society in Fargo May 11 and 12. Many of the leading physicians of the state are to participate, and some outside doctors of national prominence will be in attendance.

Jamestown, N. D.—Fire, which is supposed to have originated in the furnace room of the Wheeler Floral company, in the rear of the Daily Capital building, at an early hour Sunday morning, destroyed property to the value of $2,000.

Rolla, N. D.—Suit has been filed in the district court of Roblette county by Mary Ferguson against John Garnet, $5,000 being the amount the plaintiff seeks to collect. Slander is the grounds on which Mrs. Ferguson commenced the suit.

Minot, N. D.—The Grand View hotel at Portal has been purchased by Peter Iddvedson, who has been managing the Great Northern hotel in Minot, and William Gilroy.

Fargo, N. D.—The temperature during April was lower than since 1875, with two exceptions, and was 7 degs. less than normal—averaging only 35 degs. as against a general average of 42. The hottest day of the past month was 69, April 26. The minimum temperature was 12 degs. the next day.

Jamestown, N. D.—Maps have been issued by the Midland Railroad company showing the route of the proposed new line through North Dakota. According to the map, the line will touch at Edgeley, Jamestown, Courtney, Bonetta, Park River, Crystal, Hamilton and Pembina.

Grand Forks, N. D.—At a meeting of the Order of Railroad Conductors held in this city Saturday afternoon, W. S. McGraw of Grand Forks, who is delegate to the national convention of conductors, which convenes at Boston, was given a proper sort of sendoff and told to bring back the news of the big meeting. Mr. McGraw left Tuesday.

Mandan, N. D.—Messrs. Siems, Cook and two other railroad contractors arrived in the city and drove out along the survey of the north branch to view the proposed route with the intention to place a bid on the construction of the same. This is somewhat a surprise to the local public.

Bismarck, N. D.—The board of school and university lands refused to consider the purchasing bonds recently issued at Fargo for the purpose of building waterworks and an electric light plant. There is grave question as to the legality of the election when the bonds were voted.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Crookston—Mrs. Bergen, who has returned from Bemidji says that her son Olaf was quite seriously injured in an accident in the sawmill at that place. While at work a big timber fell on his foot, smashing it so that it was necessary to amputate two of his toes.

Stillwater—It is unlawful to fish with nets in the waters of the St. Croix until the middle of June. This is a new feature provided for by the recent legislature. Deputy Warden Dietzen is rounding up the men that have been fishing with nets, and as the law is severe it is probable that it will be observed.

International Falls—A. E. Underwood has left for Chase, B. C., where he will start the erection of his large hotel building. He was accompanied by Frank Russelburth, who will look after the construction of the building.

Little Falls—The sawmill reopened Monday after a closedown of a couple of days made necessary by the heavy storms of last week. The crews on the river were also able to resume their work Monday.

Royalton—Wood and coal have been in great demand the past week and were hard to get as the dealers had let their stocks run low thinking there would be no more call for fuel this season.

Brainerd—The Northern Pacific now has 2,000-mile "good for hearer" tickets for sale at the Brainerd ticket office. There has been considerable demand for them, but heretofore it was necessary to send to St. Paul for them.

St. Cloud—Rev. A. G. Hall, aged 48, who formerly was pastor of the Swedish Baptist church in this city, died at Spokane, Wash., last Thursday. Death was caused by tuberculosis and came after an illness of two years. The funeral was held at Spokane.

Beaver Bay—Eugene Betzler has returned from Hot Springs, Ark., much improved in health. While in that state he worked on the Cotton Belt railroad several months.

St. Cloud—Fire partially destroyed the foundry of the Granite City Iron works on Fourth avenue north Saturday evening. The loss will reach $4,500, which is covered by $1,800 insurance. The blaze originated in the cupola of the west portion of the building.

Wahkon—The prospect for the erection of a modern brick hotel here is getting brighter. There are three hotels here now and their capacity is already pretty well taxed.

Minneapolis—A huge tarantula, a find made in a bunch of bananas Saturday, is on exhibition at the Bryant Avenue grocery, Bryant avenue and Thirty-second street. The deadly reptile measures four inches across and had been hidden among a new supply of bananas for three days.

St. Cloud—Barney Gehm, aged 41, died quite suddenly at his home in the West end of the city Sunday evening, death being caused by a stroke of apoplexy. Mr. Gehm had put one of the children to bed shortly before 8 o'clock and was preparing to sit down to enjoy his paper when he suddenly sank over in his chair and expired.

Little Falls—The state convention of the Catholic Order of Foresters will be held in the city June 8, 9 and 10. The committees have affairs well under way, and it is expected that all delegates will be given a royal reception.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

WHITE SOX HOME SOON

Team Will Play Exhibition Games Here This Week.

Local Fans Will Have Chance of Checking Over Players.

Local baseball fans will have a chance of checking over the Duluth White Sox tomorrow afternoon when they will play the Fitwells. The stockings aggregation will arrive from their training trip tomorrow morning.

There will be other games at the league park this week in addition to the contest between the White Sox and the Fitwells. Friday, Saturday and Sunday afternoons the league team will meet the Regina team of the Western Canada league. Monday there will be a game with some local team.

Everything considered, Manager Al Kushnow Capt Darby O'Brien and the fans are well satisfied with the showing made by the Sox on their training trip.

The squad which arrives tomorrow will consist of five pitchers. The personnel of the pitching staff is as follows: Myers, Thorsen, Deuss, Klingebiel and Marion, while the receiving department will be presided over by Breen and Soper. Manager Kushnow has been giving exciting pictures of baseball beginning while on the road, and he is expected to be strong with the fans here. He will again install himself at first and Frost at the second sack and Hohl will play third. Wisser is at short, and Smith Waterwood McNally and Arrowsmith are looking after the gardening.

WHITE SOX GRAB ONE.

Madison, Wis., May 5.—Before leaving our beautiful city the Duluth team of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league took a fine game from the local players of the Wisconsin-Illinois league in the city park yesterday afternoon. The final score being 4 to 3. It was the last exhibition game of the season here. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Duluth	4	9	1
Madison	3	6	0

ON THE IRON RANGES

GARBAGE CANS FOR VIRGINIA

Question of Ordering Them Consume Council Meeting.

Virginia, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Virginia city council held a long meeting last night with garbage cans as the theme of discussion. After about an hour's discussion of the different bids submitted for furnishing the city with 1,000 cans, according to the advertised specifications, the council decided to let the contract for furnishing the cans to J. Gilbert Taylor of Virginia.

The cans will be manufactured by the Republic Manufacturing company of Buffalo. Five hundred cans will be seventeen inches in diameter and will cost $2.54 each and 500 will be fifteen inches in diameter and will cost $2.63 each. The cans will be distributed at the rear of lots in the alleys of the city and the property owners will be charged with their cost.

George Holcomb was appointed electrician for the inspection of the wires of the Gamewell fire alarm system. The council also voted to furnish the firemen with new uniforms.

RESORT KEEPER TO COUNTY JAIL

Frank Montalto Pleads Guilty, Thereby Ending Virginia Court.

Virginia, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first term of the range district court came to an abrupt end yesterday, when Frank Montalto pleaded guilty to the charge on which he was indicted, and the case of Conti Generosa was postponed until the next term of court. There was no further work for the jurors, and Judge Hughes dismissed them with a few words of commendation for their faithful service during the week the court has been in session.

Monalto was to have been placed on trial on a charge of keeping a house of ill fame in Hibbing. He decided at the last moment to plead guilty. Judge Hughes imposed a straight jail sentence of sixty days. Montalto said he was 29 years old and was born in Calabria, Italy. He came to the United States about thirteen months ago and has lived in Butte, Mont., and St. Paul before coming to Virginia.

The case of Conti Generosa, charged with indecent assault on Selina Timms in the Stevenson location, near Hibbing March 21 of this year, has been postponed until the July term of court, on account of the illness of one of the witnesses.

There will be no adjourned term at Hibbing until July.

DESPERATE SALOON FIGHT.

Saloon Keeper and Patron in Eveleth Have Vicious Mixup.

Eveleth, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Max Stipetich a saloonkeeper and Carl Verden got into a violent fight late last night and both were badly used, especially Verden, who is in the More hospital with a broken leg and a damaged skull.

Stipetich and Verden were in the former's saloon playing cards for drinks, when Verden refused to pay for something he ordered. Stipetich said he would have to pay, when Verden drew a jack knife and cut Stipetich three times in the side wounding him slightly. Stipetich picked up a cuspidor and threw it, but missed. The men clinched and kept fighting out to the sidewalk where many blows were exchanged. The police took both of the men to jail. Verden complained of a sore leg and a doctor, who was called said his leg was broken. The policemen secured a stretcher and carried the man to the hospital. Stipetich is now out on $250 and will have a hearing before Judge Prince today.

HIBBING GETS A NEW CATCHER

Mark Chaffee, Fast One From Southern Michigan, Secured.

Hibbing, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Hibbing ball team is to have a new catcher in a few days. He is Mark Chaffee, a catcher of considerable experience, who has spent most of his time on fast semi-pro teams in Southern Michigan. He is reputed to be a good, "handy" ball player, fast on his feet and a good hitter.

Manager Brady is trying to arrange games here for Saturday and Sunday with the fast Pitwell team of Duluth. There is little doubt but the games will be scheduled and if he weather is nice, a record-breaking crowd will turn out.

SUCCEEDS DR. WEIRICK.

Ald. Frank Ansley Chosen Head Hibbing Official.

Hibbing, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—After a protracted session, the village council has chosen Alderman Frank Ansley village president or mayor, to succeed Dr. H. R. Weirick, who resigned because, it is claimed, the council turned down his appointments.

This action was taken after the resignation of the mayor, which had been lying on the table some time, was accepted. When a resolution was introduced electing Ansley mayor Alderman McHardy took umbrage to the proceedings and left the council chamber. The recorder and Alderman Butchart voted for the resolution, but as one more vote was needed, Alderman Absten-key voted for himself on the suggestion of the village attorney, and was declared elected.

It will be necessary to elect an alderman to succeed former Alderman Ansley, now mayor, and if Alderman McHardy resigns another election will be necessary.

The council decided to appoint a city park board.

Action upon the resolution to extend the franchise of the Northern Traction company was deferred one week.

REWARD FOR CHIEF.

Head of Chisholm Police to Be Given Gold Medal.

Chisholm, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—In return for the efficient manner in which he has rid the community of blind pigs, Chief of Police Dennis Madden is to be suitably rewarded by the people of this village. Local admirers are preparing to present him with a handsome gold police star the emblem of his authority.

SELECTING SCHOOL SITE.

Virginia Board Will Probably Decide Upon Ball Park.

Virginia, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a meeting today the school board of Virginia will decide on the site for the proposed new $125,000 high school, which was authorized by the voters of the district at a recent meeting.

The voters authorized the building of the high school, but left the matter of the site and the means of raising the money to the school board. The board is inclined to favor the present baseball park, which is owned by the school district, as a site for the school. There is considerable opposition on the part of the citizens to tearing down the fence and stands on the baseball park before another park is provided, and pressure has been brought to bear on the board to choose another site.

The building will be constructed, and the baseball park is the most available site, so the choice of the board will probably fall on that. Such action will decree the death of baseball in Virginia, at least for this season.

MANY ORE TRAINS NOW IN SERVICE

Steamers Coming and Going at Two Harbors These Days.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Parent arrived yesterday and is unloading a cargo of rails for the Alger-Smith company for the summer extensions to be built on the Duluth & Northern Minnesota railway.

Eighteen ore trains were run out of here yesterday, being the biggest day's business so far this season. They will bring in between 25,000 and 30,000 tons of ore.

The steamer Ends arrived yesterday with a cargo of coal, being the first coal boat of the season.

P. L. Pierce has returned to his duties as night chief clerk at the ore docks.

J. Lofgren has gone to Fayal to work as day operator during the ore season.

The Elba and Multo mines of the Pickands-Mather company have started ore shipments.

CREOSOTE HAS MANY FRIENDS

That Paving Appears to Be in Favor In Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The resignation of Alderman E. H. Hatch of the First ward was received at the council meeting last night and accepted. H. E. Loye, chief engineer of the Adams-Spruce mines was elected in his place.

M. Friedman asked for permission to move his store building; Max Shapiro, to move a residence house, and Nick Amatuze, to raise his building six feet. All were referred.

P. L. Dowling was given permission to use half of the street in front of the property on which he is building on Jones street.

The proposed sewer was discussed. The matter was referred to the water and light committee and to the engineers for the mining company and the fee owners for settlement.

On recommendation of Chief Nellon, all fire alarm box poles will be painted red, to distinguish them from the other poles.

The report of Chief of Police Kent showed the total fines for the municipal court for April to be $668.50.

Estimates were received from the waterworks superintendent for some necessary sewer work and water pipes. On Rice avenue 280 feet of sewer will be put in by the city at an estimated cost of $202.65. The estimate for 1,400 feet of water pipe to be put in on Adams avenue was $1,945.80. As this work was out of the city limits, the petition from Missabe Mountain property owners who wanted the water pipes laid was rejected.

The city engineer was instructed to prepare plans and specifications for laying several blocks of sidewalk work.

City cleaning was discussed. As there is always trouble during spring as to how the town should be cleaned up, the matter will rest with the health commissioner, and he will have teams go around cleaning up the city, while the property owners will be charged with the number of loads taken from each place.

It seems as if the council expects another snow storm, as it passed Ordinance No. 85, making it necessary for all animals drawing vehicles to be equipped with sleigh bells.

The paving committee which visited Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago, told what they favored. Creosote seemed to be preferred by most present, while tar macadam and other pavements were favored also because of their cheapness. The property owners will be allowed to vote as to what pavement they prefer.

NEW HOTEL PROJECT.

One of Matters Coming Before Virginia Commercial Club.

Virginia, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The May meeting of the Commercial club will be held Friday night and some important matters will come up for consideration. The new hotel project is still hanging fire and the committee appointed at the last meeting to investigate means of securing a new hotel for Virginia will make a report, which is expected to be rather favorable.

The settlers of the Bear River district, which should ordinarily be tributary to Virginia, are clamoring for better roads, and the institution of freight and passenger service on the Sand Lake branch of the Virginia & Rainy Lake company's logging road. The Commercial club has had the matter up before, but no action was taken. It is probable that something will be done Friday night, having for its end the relief of the farmers, who now have no means of taking their produce to market.

EVELETH GIRL BURNED.

Used Kerosene in Starting Fire With Usual Result.

Eveleth, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mary Lenosi, the 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lenosi of A avenue, was badly burned last night, when she tried to start a fire and put too much kerosene on the wood, the flames catching on her dress and burning her face and hands. Her injuries were considered serious.

BOATHOUSE REBUILT ON SHORE OF TROUT LAKE

Coleraine, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The boathouse belonging to the Ingalls Motor Boat company, situated on the shores of Trout lake, which was recently destroyed by fire, has been rebuilt. The company has received a consignment of twenty-four new boats, which will replace those destroyed by the fire several months ago. Of the new boats, one is an 18-foot launch, another is a 30-foot launch and the remainder are rowboats.

The ice is still solid on Trout lake, except near the shore where it shows signs of breaking up.

GILBERT PAPER OUT.

Gilbert, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Gilbert Booster has made its first appearance and is devoted to telling about the past and future of Gilbert. The first issue was printed at the Eveleth Star office. P. E. Dowling of the Eveleth Star is publisher, and John Leary editor. The paper will be in its own office in Gilbert in a couple of weeks.

Engages Chicago Doctor.

Eveleth, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. W. E. Harwood of the Fabiola hospital has returned from Chicago, where he engaged Dr. George H. Bankdale of the St. Louis hospital to take the place of Dr. Schultz, who leaves on the 15th of the month for fourteen months' study in Paris and Berlin.

To Hear Chief Ranger.

Eveleth, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The members of the local lodge of the United Order of Foresters will go to Gilbert tomorrow night to hear Supreme Ranger R. C. Sheriard speak before the Gilbert and Eveleth lodges.

Visited at Hines.

tuted by Seebert Jones, circuit attorney of St. Louis at the suggestion of state officers.

All the proceedings of the federal court for the western district of Missouri in these rate cases, with a single exception, have been handled by McPherson, who is presiding judge of the southern district of Iowa. Judge Phillips presiding judge in the United States district court for the western district of Missouri, has in the meantime been engaged with cases in the circuit court of appeals, and his only entry into the present litigation has been to issue the temporary restraining order against the state courts simply to save Judge McPherson from coming to Kansas City to perform that action.

At the opening of court today Judge Phillips took the bench long enough to make a brief statement of his connection with the cases, this is as a result of Representative Murphy's resolution demanding a congressional investigation of the acts of the two judges. Phillips then vacated the bench and McPherson, who had arrived during the morning from St. Louis, was left to hear the arguments of the state and the railways in the injunction suit.

EAGER FOR ROOSEVELT

cording to sex and the various stages of the disease. In one enclosure we saw a number of infants, in which the first outward signs of the scourge were just appearing. Unaware of their impending doom, the little black mites played and romped to their hearts content in the shade of the bana grove, and only the swelled glands at the base of their necks showed that their fate was sealed.

In the Second Stage.

"In a row of sheds, surrounded by the bana groves which supply the food of the patients, we saw numbers of those who had reached the second stage of the disease. Most of them appeared to be suffering acutely. They seemed to shun the cool shade of the broad-thatched roofs, and preferred to sit or lie in the full blaze of the noonday sun. Even there many of them shivered almost constantly. The drawn features and haggard eyes testified to the gnawing pains that almost constantly afflicted them, and the unhappy creatures appeared to have special dread of being touched. Many of them were in the peculiar state of lethargy which has, doubtless, been responsible for the misleading name by which the disease has become commonly known. Fortunately sound sleep comes to the relief of the doomed. Many of them, in unguarded moments put an end to their miserable lives and it is a wonder that more of them do not do likewise.

"Further in we came to those who were in the last stages of the disease. Lying about on beds of withered leaves, they had reached a degree of emaciation that was horrible to see.

Tsetse Fly Is Agent.

"It is generally accepted that a variety of the Tsetse fly, the Glossina Palpalis, is the principal, if not the only agent for the transmission of the disease. This fly exists in enormous numbers on the shores of the Victoria, Nyanza, and also on the borders of some lakes and rivers of Uganda. Its habitation, however, is restricted to a narrow growth of adjoining water, and a width of two miles is believed to be the limit of the infested zones. Out of some 300,000 souls inhabiting the shores of Victoria, Nyanza and the islands in the Great Lake, over 200,000 have already been swept out of existence, and it remains to be seen whether the remainder can still be saved.

"The extermination of the Tsetse fly appears to be a hopeless task, and it has, therefore, been decided to remove all the surviving population out of the reach of the fatal fly.

"It is estimated that over 2,000 sick now remain to be dealt with, and they are being located in large camps capable of accommodating about 3,000 at a time."

his state's experience in state peace congresses.

Other speakers were Rev. J. L. Tryon of Boston, assistant secretary of the American Peace society, who spoke of "The Peace Congress of 1908," and Rev. Gilbert Bowles of Tokio, Japan.

Congressman Richard Bartholdt of Missouri presided at the "international greetings" session, and the principal speakers were Count Johann Heinrich von Bernstoff, the German ambassador; Wu Ting-Fang, the Chinese ambassador, and Secretary of the Interior Richard A. Ballinger.

Dr. Wu Ting Fang, in his address, said:

"I am happy to bring to you today the greetings of the oldest empire in the world, of which I have the honor to be official representative. Especially proud I am to stand before you, because the nation I represent is famed for its love of peace. When it is remembered that China has a population of 400,000,000, you will agree with me that its attitude on the subject of war and peace is of some importance to the world at large, and I can assure you that whatever other changes, political, educational and social, may take place in my country, her traditional policy of settling disputes by discussion and amicable means will not be departed from. China has no schemes of self-aggrandizement at the expense of others, so often the cause and pretext of bellicose action. Even in her days of past conservatism and seclusion from the nations of the West, her only desire was to be left alone and be permitted to enjoy peace. Her motto has been and is, 'Live and let live.'

Army Reorganization.

"In recent years the reorganization of the army occupies a prominent place on our program of reform, and the excellent showing made by our troops of the Northern and Southern armies at the maneuvers of the last two years, witnessed and favorably reported by correspondents and military experts of different nations, proves that there is good material in our people for the making of soldiers. The reorganization of our army need not, however, create the least alarm, nor is it in conflict with the objects of this society. The Chinese government has been actuated by one aim, and that is to place the troops in a state of efficiency for police and defensive purposes only. This is in accordance with the principle laid down by many eminent statesmen that in order to maintain and preserve peace, it is necessary to be prepared for war. China has never been and never will be aggressive in a military way—she is too fond of peace and realizes too fully the horrors of war.

"If general disarmament should be proposed, you would not find China indisposed to accept it. I am aware that upon this subject there is a difference of views. We all have yet to learn and to educate public opinion for the cause of peace. Many inventions and discoveries have been made in the last several centuries which have contributed to the welfare of mankind. But what greater work can there be, I venture to ask, than that of interesting people in the cause of universal peace and leading them to see the folly and brutality of slaughtering one another by fearful machines, which is the object of this peace society?"

D. D. MANN WILL COME TO DULUTH

Accepts Invitation Extended Him By the Commercial Club.

D. D. Mann, vice president of the Canadian Northern road, has accepted an invitation extended him by the Duluth Commercial club to come here and deliver an address before members of the club on "Duluth and Its Relation to the Canadian Northwest and the Railroad Situation."

The date for the Canadian railroad man's appearance here has not been set. That was left to his own convenience. At the present time he is in the East, and probably will arrange his appearance in Duluth coincident with his first trip West. Upon his arrival here he will be made the guest of honor at a banquet at which men representative of the commercial interests of Duluth will be present.

Lyceum—"The Merry Widow."

"The Merry Widow's" Origin.

"The Merry Widow," which is playing to crowded houses at the Lyceum, was first produced at the Theater an der Wien, in Vienna, where it had the German title, "Die Lustige Witwe." This historic theater is the house in which Mozart produced his "Magic Flute." The drop curtain shows a picture of episodes in "The Magic Flute," and one of the characters is a portrait of old Schikaneder, the shrewd manager who wrote the execrable libretto of the opera and made his fortune out of Mozart's genius.

In the same theater Johann Strauss, of "Blue Danube" fame, disclosed to the world his captivating adaptations of his rythmic dance tune to the realm of the operetta.

This theater was in the throes of pecuniary distress when the manager decided to try "The Merry Widow" and found that he had struck a new vein of amusement assaying almost entirely pure gold. It is a well-known fact that, notwithstanding the many scenic productions this fascinating operetta has had in Europe and this country, Mr. Savage's American investiture is credited by tourists with excelling in all respects any of the splendid settings furnished on the continent. The scenery from Walter Burridge's studio was made from designs secured in Paris, while the superb gowns and exquisite hats have all been imported direct from France, where the scene of the opera is laid.

"The Merry Widow's" engagement will close tomorrow night.

"Girls" a Breezy Comedy.

On Friday and Saturday at the Lyceum the Messrs. Shubert will present Clyde Fitch's latest and most successful comedy, "Girls," which played one year in Daly's theater, New York. "Girls" is a breezy, laugh-provoking comedy and shows a keen insight into the workings of the mind of woman. It is said that nothing that Mr. Fitch has ever written has made so instantaneous an appeal to the audiences who have enjoyed the work of this most prolific playwright as has "Girls." The production and cast supplied by the Messrs. Shubert is said to be beyond reproach. A matinee will be given on Saturday.

GOVERNOR GENERAL OF PHILIPPINES COMES HOME

Manila, May 5.—Governor Gen. James Smith, who has secured a long leave of absence will leave here next Saturday. He will go first to Japan, where he will embark on the Minnesota for Seattle. From Seattle he will go to San Francisco and then to Washington and then for a conference with President Taft.

For Duluth Cars.

Duluth automobiles will be numbered from 2,600 to 2,999 under the new state law regulating them.

All automobiles owned in the state must be registered with the secretary of state, and in a letter to Edward C. Congdon, who made application for a state license, Secretary of State Schmahl requests that Duluth owners be notified that numbers from 2,600 to 2,999 have been set aside for them.

County to Pay Fargo.

Fargo, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cass county has agreed to pay the city of Fargo for caring for infectious cases of disease. The county has no detention hospital and for some time when a case could not be handled in outside points the patients were sent to Fargo and became a burden to the city. After a fight over the matter an amicable agreement was finally reached.

Day by Day Little by Little

The old worn-out cells are rebuilt slowly but surely when the change is made from Coffee to

POSTUM

Nature requires time to rebuild. This cannot be done instantly. But each day progress can be seen.

The change to Postum is not hard because the flavour of well-boiled Postum is similar to that of mild Java and it quickly wins its own way.

The aches and ills (caused from coffee) cease and the pure food elements of Postum bring out the glow-of-health in place of the muddy coffee complexion.

The change is worth while.

"There's a Reason"

POSTUM CEREAL CO., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

MORE THAN EVER.

Increased Capacity for Mental Labor Since Leaving Off Coffee.

Many former coffee drinkers who have mental work to perform, day after day, have found a better capacity and greater endurance by using Postum instead of ordinary coffee.

An Ill. woman writes:

"I had drank coffee for about twenty years, and finally had what the doctor called 'coffee heart.' I was nervous and extremely despondent; had little mental or physical strength left, had kidney trouble and constipation.

"The first noticeable benefit derived from the change from coffee to Postum was the natural action of the kidneys and bowels. In two weeks my heart action was greatly improved and my nerves steady.

"Then I became less despondent, and the desire to be active again, showed proof of renewed physical and mental strength.

"I am steadily gaining in physical strength and brain power. I formerly did mental work and had to give it up on account of coffee, but since using Postum I am doing hard mental labor with less fatigue than ever before."

TO EMPLOY AN EXPERT

Superintendent to Have Charge of County Road Building.

Commissioners Plan the Work and Make Their Apportionments.

Roads were the chief topic of discussion by the county commissioners at their regular monthly meeting held yesterday at the courthouse, and they decided to employ a general road superintendent, whose duties it shall be to lay out, survey and superintend the construction of all roads in the county and report the condition of others.

The idea of having a man at the head of the road building system was advanced by the Commercial club. John G. Williams and many other individuals favored the idea. Mr. Williams appeared before the board and gave a talk on the necessity of improving the roads to the farming districts and of the finding of new ones.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the appropriation of road money apportioned to the First and Third commissioners' districts for the improvement and construction of roads within the city limits.

There is $12,000 available for the carrying on of this work. It will probably be expended in the construction of the Sandby road, which will run from the city to the adjacent farming districts. It will also be used for the improvement of the Piedmont avenue approach to the city as well as improvements on the Hermantown road.

While the commissioners are enthusiastic for better roads and are willing to lay all in their power for the furthering of the work, yet they expect the city to do its share. There have been a number of informal conferences on the subject, and there will be more within the next few weeks when the plans will be talked over at greater length.

The work to be done was mapped out at the meeting yesterday and the appropriations made. They are as follows: Lismore road, $4,200; Rice Lake road, $1,000; Tischer road, $2,000; Mesaba road, $1,500; Ryan road, $500; Vermilion road $500. In the Fourth district the following allotments were made: Nelawa road, $500; Tower and Ely road, $1,500; Tower and Hibbard road, $500; Pike River road, $200; Vermilion, $500; Severson, $800; Beatty, $644; Miller Trunk, $500; Wakley, $500; Tower and Ely, $1,500; Leander, $500; Burnside, $500; White Iron, $4,500; Brown, $500; Johnson, $500. Crane Lake, $1,000. In the Seventh district Thomlin road, $2,000; Kilhollin, $1,000; Tower and Hansa, $8,000; Sturgeon Lake, $8,000; Eden, $1,000; Bullolitz, $1,000; Willow River, $2,000; Peterson, $1,000; Chisholm, $2,000, Green Rock, $2,000.

INCOME TAX AS A LAST RESORT

Taft Favors Inheritance and Corporation Levies First.

Washington, May 5.—President Taft today declared he favors an income tax only as a last resort, that recourse in case of deficiency under the new tariff act should first be had to an inheritance and next to a corporation tax.

FORMER MARQUETTE MEN.

Arthur M. Bigelow and Trowbridge Johns Are Called.

Marquette, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two former residents of this city, Arthur M. Bigelow and Trowbridge Johns, are dead.

Mr. Bigelow died at Henseley, W. Va., where he was visiting at a brother's in search of health. The deceased was one of Marquette's best known business men, having resided here for about twenty-five years. He was 50 years of age. He came to Northern Michigan from the lower peninsula about thirty years ago, first settling in Ishpeming, where he secured employment in Gratz's jewelry store. It was there that he married.

Trowbridge Johns died in Chicago. Mr. Johns was a resident of Marquette for about twenty years, during all of which time he was in the employ of the Mining Journal company.

MAYOR WILL VETO.

Grand Forks Executive Will Put Quietus on Resolutions.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two resolutions passed by the city council Monday evening, one directing that ex-Street Commissioner Durick be paid in full to the first of the month as commissioner, and another prohibiting the mayor or city auditor from paying Commissioner Dunlop, will be vetoed by Mayor J. D. Taylor.

Mayor Taylor has reappointed Mr. Dunlop as street commissioner ad interim, Mr. Durick having been removed from office.

WAR VETERAN DEAD.

Peter Lies, Stillwater Octogenarian, Heeds Final Call.

Stillwater, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Lies, a veteran of the Civil war, and resident of this city for several decades, is dead, aged 82 years. He was sick several years with cancer. He always attended Memorial day exercises and for years was one of those who rode in a carriage in the parade.

Mr. Lies was a member of Company I, Ninth Minnesota. He is survived by a widow and the children, Mrs. W. H. Foster of St. Paul; Henry, Anna, Herbert, Joseph T. and Nicholas Lies.

BAD START FOR TAG DAY

Milwaukee Blind School Not Recognized By Merchants There.

Miss Fellows' School Causes Bitter Fight in Home Town.

Miss Anna Burnham Fellows, who is now in Duluth for the purpose of soliciting funds for the maintenance of a home for blind children in Milwaukee, and who is planning on having a "tag" day here, to raise money for carrying on the institution, was refused a card by the Merchants and Manufacturers' association of the Wisconsin city, upon her application for permission to solicit funds from members of the organization.

The association in question has a bureau reporting on all worthy and unworthy charities in the city of Milwaukee, for the purpose of protecting its members, and this bureau, according to a letter received in Duluth from G. Frellson, superintendent of Associated Charities, refused to give her a card signifying that she represented a worthy institution.

Miss Fellows has been the central figure in a bitter fight in Milwaukee between friends of her school and its opponents. Miss Fellows admits that she was refused a card by the Merchants & Manufacturers' association. She claims that an agent of the bureau demanded $25 to report favorably on her school, and that when it was refused he reported unfavorably. She appealed to the association and asked for a hearing, which was not granted her, she says. She entered suit last January for $50,000 against the association, and this suit is now pending.

The association did not intimate that there was any mismanagement of the funds of the school, but claimed that there was no need for it, and that the children could be cared for in other institutions.

Miss Fellows has been in the city for the last week or two. Her home for blind children will take little ones from any part of the country, she says. She raises money for conducting the institution by visiting the various cities from which the children come, and soliciting aid among the business men, or else through a "tag" day system, such as was used in Duluth last summer to raise money for St. Luke's hospital. She has a little boy from Duluth in her home for the blind and asks this city for enough money to pay his expenses.

There are many worthy charities in Duluth, and the business and other interests are so frequently called upon to help them along, that there is a strong aversion locally to contributing to outside charitable funds, whether they are worthy ones or not. Miss Fellows therefore has met with some strong opposition locally, although she has also received some strong encouragement.

Duluth Minister's Address Feature of State Sunday School Meet.

County Apportionments Made on Same Basis as Last Year.

Crookston, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The State Sunday School association devoted this morning to routine business. The report of Treasurer Herman showed $3,540 was received from the county apportionments and $1,263 from the counties for special funds, with other cash subscriptions making a grand total received, aside from $1,582 borrowed money, of about $8,000.12. The county apportionments were made the same for the coming year. In addition, Rev. W. C. Pearce of Chicago secured pledges of $1,000 for an assistant to State Secretary Locker for the ensuing year.

The nominating committee will report tonight or tomorrow. Two great great audiences in the Methodist and Baptist churches listened to wonderful addresses last evening by Rev. W. C. Pearce of Chicago, on "World Conquest Through Men," and Rev. Mr. Kirtley of Duluth, on "The Barefoot Kingdom." So impressed was the audience by the latter address that Rev. Mr. Kirtley will be secured to repeat it in the auditorium at some future date.

The report of Grace M. Longfellow, in the elementary department, showed a great step forward during the past year, though lack of funds have hampered the work somewhat.

TUTTLE TESTIFIES IN SENATORIAL INQUIRY.

Madison, Wis., May 5.—Deputy Game Warden E. L. Tuttle of Oconomowoc informed the senatorial investigating committee today that he handled $200 of the Stephenson fund, of which $125 was given him by Deputy Warden Bowman and $75 from Chief Warden Stone. Tuttle attended the famous meeting at Mr. Stone's house and said he heard either Stone or Kinsley saying something to the effect "that $500 has got to be taken care of."

The witness said Assemblyman Thomas took no part in the conversation. He said he heard Kinsley and Johnson say that they could use $200 and Richman say he could not use that much.

SUPERIOR NEWS

HARD BLOW TO SUPERIOR

Railroad Terminal Taxation Bill Defeated in the House.

Was Superior's Pet Piece of Legislation This Year.

Word was received from Madison this afternoon that the Stack railroad terminal taxation bill was defeated in the lower house of the Wisconsin legislature today by a vote of 48 to 36. The purpose of the measure was to equalize the distribution of the railroad tax over the state. It provided for a refunding of a part of the railroad tax to those cities having large terminal properties, such as Superior, Fond du Lac, Milwaukee, etc.

The bill was Superior's pet piece of legislation in the legislature this session. Now that it has met defeat, the Commercial club, city administration and others interested, are backing a movement to take the matter to the courts where it is believed that the present law, regarding the taxation of railroad terminals might be ousted from the statute books.

BODY FOUND IN BOX CAR

Unknown Man Believed to Have Hanged Himself.

The lifeless body of an unidentified man was found dangling from a rope in a box car in the Terminal road yards at Connor's Point this afternoon. Coroner G. Giesen was notified and took charge of the body.

Up to a late hour this afternoon his identity had not been established. A post-mortem examination was conducted and suicide was the verdict. He was roughly clad, and is supposed to be some "knight of the cinder path" who became tired of living and took his life.

Superior Loses Game.

Superior lost to Regina in a tryout game played at Chippewa Falls yesterday afternoon. The score was 2 to 4, and the game was devoid of any interesting features. The teams are playing again today.

Gillis on School Board.

W. R. Gillis was appointed school commissioner in place of Judge W. M. Steele, resigned, last evening by Mayor Crumpton. The appointment was confirmed by the council. Mr. Steele resigned from the position on account of the anti-pass law, which does not permit a railroad man acting in any public office to ride on free transportation.

Saloon Matters Laid Over.

An ordinance introduced last evening at a meeting of the council providing that the saloon license be boosted from $500 to $1,000 was referred to the committee on licenses and the matter will come up again next week.

Another ordinance, reducing the liquor licenses to 100 in number, was given the same treatment and is in the hands of the license committee. The meeting was otherwise uneventful.

Gave Bogus Check.

Charged with presenting a worthless check for $52 at Siegal Bros. store and buying with it $31 worth of clothing, Matt Erickson was yesterday given a hearing in police court and bound over to the present term of superior court. He is held in default of a $500 bail, at the county jail.

THE ANNUAL MEETING

The Local Curb Market Is Quiet and Unchanged.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Butte-Ballaklava Copper company was held today in the company's general offices in the Sellwood building.

"About the only business transacted was the hearing of reports and the election of officers," said John A. Percival, the secretary.

"The report of the treasurer showed the company to be in splendid financial condition. We have available cash assets to the amount of $326,104.31 and there are no outstanding liabilities. All debts have been paid.

"The mine is now on a shipping basis. The report from the Washoe smelter at Butte shows that we received $990.83 for the first car of ore sent there, on April 21. Since then the company has been shipping regularly.

"President Dear's reports showed the work of the past year and outlined the development work to be carried on this year. At the mine they are now down to the 1,400-foot level."

The officers of the company held over. They are: President, R. B. Dear of Superior; secretary, John A. Percival, Duluth; treasurer, Milie Bunnell of Duluth. These three, with P. H. Nelson of Hibbing, Gust Carlson of Hibbing, I. Freimuth of Duluth and John Panton of Duluth, comprise the board of directors.

The directors will meet in July.

POLICEMAN WHO HAD HAINS, NEXT

Testifies in Murder Trial —Hypothetical Question Asked.

Flushing, N. Y., May 5.—When court opened for today's session in the trial of Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., for the killing of William E. Annis, the indications were that the anticipated battle of experts would be well under way before the session was many hours old.

The defense expected to call its five alienists and to propound to them a hypothetical question upon which they will base their opinions of the defendant's mental condition at the time he shot Annis.

Policeman Baker, the first witness today, was at the Bayside Yacht club on the afternoon of the shooting and ran down to the float and arrested the defendant. He took his prisoner to the spot where Annis was dying and then to the police station.

Policeman Baker testified that the appearance and conduct of Capt. Hains was irrational. "His eyes stared, his mouth twisted and he trembled," the witness declared.

Mrs. Virginia Jenkins Hains, mother of the defendant, concluded her testimony, after a trying and pathetic ordeal in an effort to save her son, Peebe and on the verge of nervous collapse, the testimony of Mrs. Hains, who is 69, her references to "her boy" and her pleading to be allowed to tell everything she knew," made the most dramatic incident of the trial so far. She broke down and sobbed throughout her direct examination by Mr. McIntyre, and when District Attorney Jerome started his cross-examination, the strain proved too much for the mother's heart. She sank into the witness chair and, covering her face with her hands, sobbed bitterly. At this point her questioner promptly announced that he had concluded the cross-examination, and Mrs. Hains was taken from the courtroom.

The hypothetical question in regard to Capt. Hains' sanity, which will be submitted to the alienists, contains 10,000 words and will require an hour and a half in reading.

Washington, May 5.—A fine of $1,000 and costs on each count imposed in Missouri yesterday on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway, which pleaded guilty on two counts of an indictment for violating the Elkins act, which prohibits departures by common carriers from the lawfully established rate, was today declared "adequate" by the department of justice.

Crew Deserts.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 5.—Agent Hanson of the Lake Seamen's union announced today that the steamer Kotcher, which arrived here during the night, had been deserted by its crew of seventeen men, and that the steamer Barlow, which had arrived with a non-union crew, would sail with an entire union crew.

HIGH TIDE ON THE STAGE.

New York Sun: The latest feature at the London Hippodrome is a spectacle entitled "The Sands of Dee," which culminates in the rescue of the heroine, gagged and bound to a stake planted on the beach, just as the rising tide sends in great breakers which nearly overwhelm the girl.

Nine huge rollers sweep across the stage in a most realistic manner, and the hero, on the back of a swimming horse, barely reaches the unfortunate heroine as the water laps about her shoulders.

The apparatus necessary for the production of waves is very simple. Seventy-nine feet above the stage, in the flies, are three great tanks, each capable of holding five tons of water and fitted with an arrangement whereby the water may be discharged in a solid mass as though the bottom had fallen out.

A wave producing board is built up in the stage immediately beneath the tanks, says Harper's Weekly, extends across the full width of the proscenium opening, and is concave in form, with the back ten feet high and the front edge only about twelve inches above the trough.

The falling water swirls as it strikes the hollow of this board and is projected in a solid sheet about thirty feet into the air before it breaks in the arena. A back cloth and waterproof paint aid materially in creating the illusion.

Nine waves dash into the arena at intervals of six seconds and the roar of the breakers is very similar to the surf. A high pressure main fills the tanks in three seconds after they are emptied.

WHEAT GOES UP AND DOWN

Market Strong at Opening, But Declines at the Close.

Flax Is Quiet and Closes Slightly Lower in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 5.—After hitting new high prices for the crop, wheat declined toward the end of the session today and closing prices showed fractional losses from yesterday, except in the Southwestern markets.

Cables were higher and shorts were good buyers at the opening. May wheat went to $1.26⅝ here and July wheat to $1.25⅞. During the last half of the session, prices eased off and the close was weak.

Weather conditions in the Southwest looked more hopeful, cloudy weather being reported in some sections.

Antwerp 1⅞c higher, Berlin 1¾c higher.

Liverpool closed 1¾d to 2⅛d higher, Paris and Budapest ⅞c lower.

The May option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth, unchanged in Chicago, ⅜c lower in Minneapolis, 1c higher in New York, ⅝c higher in St. Louis, ⅛c higher in Kansas City and ⅝c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth, ⅛c to ¼c lower in Chicago, ⅝c lower in Minneapolis, ⅜c lower in New York, unchanged in St. Louis, ⅛c higher in Kansas City and ⅝c lower in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ⅛c higher in Chicago and oats 1¼ to 1⅝c higher.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"The market was firm at the start, with offerings mild and inquiries numerous and native cancelling and values were 1¾d to 2¼d higher than yesterday. During the early morning the next months farther gained ¼d to 5-8d. Support was the result of firmness of American cables yesterday, unfavorable American crop advices and a good demand for cargoes and parcels, which were held at an advance. Offerings here of the cargoes were the firmness in spot strength in English country markets, firmness in Manitoba and less favorable reports from Hungary. It is said that the strike in Argentina will extend to the port of Rosario and it is predicted that shipments from Argentina will be small this week. Toward mid-day there was liberal realizing in September, which carried this month a penny lower and July was affected 5-8d. This selling was reported to be purely speculative. At this time, the undertone to the market was very firm and 1¾d to 1¾d higher than yesterday.

"Corn was quiet at the start and unchanged. Later July advanced ¼d as a result of a better inquiry for La Plata parcels.

Car receipts at Duluth were 7, against 34 last year, and at Minneapolis 146, against 128 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 352, against 162 last year. Chicago received 4, against 26 last year. Winnipeg received 77, against 81 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 328,000 bu., last year 361,000 bu. Shipments, 262,000 bu., last year 468,000 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour were 116,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 225,000 bu., last year 338,000 bu. Shipments, 404,000 bu., last year 269,000 bu. Clearances of corn were 61,000 bu.

Wheat was unusually active in the Duluth market. May wheat opened ⅛c higher at $1.26⅜, advanced to $1.26⅝, declined to $1.25⅝, rallied to $1.26⅞, went off to $1.26⅝, rallied to $1.26⅞, declined to $1.25⅞ and closed at $1.26⅛, a loss of ⅜c from yesterday. July opened ⅛c higher at $1.25⅛, advanced to $1.25⅜, declined to $1.24⅞, rallied to $1.25⅜, went off to $1.24⅞, rallied to $1.25⅜, declined to $1.25 and closed at $1.25⅛, a loss of ⅜c from yesterday. September wheat opened ⅛c higher at $1.03⅞ bid, went to $1.04 and declined by the close to $1.03, a net loss of 1½c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ⅜c lower cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2½c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was dull and closed easier. May flax prices unchanged at $1.67 bid, advanced to $1.67½ and closed at $1.66¾, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. July flax opened unchanged at $1.67, unchanged from yesterday. September flax sold at $1.45 and closed there, a gain of ⅛c. October flax sold at $1.39½ and closed there, a gain of ½c over yesterday.

Oats closed ⅛c higher and other coarse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Mark Scored By May Wheat Highest of the Season.

Chicago, May 5.—A new high record mark for the season for wheat for May delivery was scored today, when that option sold at $1.29½. Other deliveries also made sharp gains from yesterday's closing quotations. July advancing 1c above the previous close to $1.17. Trade was active and general, with shorts and prominent commission houses leading buyers. Continued dry weather in Kansas and Nebraska was the chief bullish influence.

The market was very nervous during the last half of the day, but developed considerable weakness late in the session, the deferred futures being especially heavy. After selling at $1.17¼, July declined to $1.15⅝, and May dropped to $1.28. The close was weak with July off ⅛@¼c at $1.15⅝@1.15¾. May was unchanged at $1.28.

The market opened irregular with prices 8c lower to ½c higher compared with yesterday's close. May being at $1.28@1.29 and July at $1.15⅞@1.16. Within fifteen minutes May had advanced to $1.29⅛, while July jumped to $1.17. Offerings in the pit seemed to be entirely inadequate to the demand.

A firm tone prevailed the greater part of the day, the high point for July being 69⅞c. There was some reaction late in the session in sympathy with wheat the close being steady, with July ⅜c higher at 69@69⅛c.

Corn developed considerable strength early in the session on buying facing the depleted stocks of corn in store here. The linkage in wheat also helped to strengthen the market. Prices at the start were a shade lower to a shade higher, July being at 68⅝@69c. Later July advanced to 69¼c.

Trade in oats was broad and active, especially for the May delivery, the price of which option advanced more than 1c during early trading. Shorts and cash interests were leading buyers. Opening quotations were ⅜@⅝c lower on selling brought out by improved weather conditions, May being at 56⅜c and July at 49¾@49¾c, during the first quarter of an hour. May advanced to 57½c and July to 50⅜c.

Provisions were quiet and easy. The market was bearishly affected by liberal receipts of hogs at all western packing centers. Prices at the opening were unchanged to 5c lower.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Reports of Rain in Winter Wheat Belt Cause Break.

Minneapolis Minn. May 5.—The opening today was strong, and July and May advanced to new high points. Offerings were light. The market was very scalping. Local stocks decreased 500,000 bushels for four days. Later in the session reports of rains in the winter wheat belt caused a break and July closed 1c lower than the opening. Minneapolis today received 145 cars against 138, Duluth 7, against 34, Winnipeg 77, against 68. May opened at $1.27 high $1.27⅜, low $1.26⅜; close, $1.26⅜. July opened at $1.26¼@1.26⅜; high $1.27⅛; low $1.25⅞; close $1.26⅛. Cash wheat was active, demand and cash wheat was active, demand and again. The light offerings were eagerly sought in both country and local millers, and all the cars were disposed of early in the session. No. 1 northern sold for 3@3½c over the July option, and No. 2 northern for 1@2c over. No. 1 northern spot and to arrive, $1.28¾@1.28¾; No. 2 northern, $1.26¾@1.26¾; No. 3 wheat, $1.24¾@1.25¾. White oats low corn 70@70¼c. No. 3 white oats 55@55¼c. No. 2 rye, 84½@87½c.

Flax receipts, 4 cars today, against 16; shipments none. Light offerings made the market inactive. Prices were the same as the Duluth May option. Close, $1.67¾.

Barley Receipts 18 cars today against 2. Shipments, 24. Lagh offerings and active demand made the market stronger today. For the first time the month's barley was bought here by traders from outside markets. Prices advanced 1@2c on all grades. Close, 63@65c.

Minneapolis—Shipments, 1,575 tons. The market was active and without any important change. Demand continued strong and far in excess of the supply. Shipments were normal and recently advanced prices held firm. Bran in bulk, $23.50@24.00.

Flour was in only fair demand. The prices advanced, the fine the strong prices asked. Local millers expect soon to have a better Eastern inquiry as stocks in Eastern markets are very low. Shipments were: 29,000 barrels, first patents, $6.10@6.30; second patents, $6.00@6.20; first clears, $4.75@4.95; second clears, $3.45@3.55.

STOCKS ARE UNSETTLED

Large Selling Orders Put an End to Early Advance.

Strength of Southern Pacific Was Feature of the Market.

New York, May 5.—The opening stock market showed great irregularity today, but the mixed changes were small in all cases. Dealings were on a large scale. Reading declined ¾ and Consolidated Gas 1¼. American Tobacco preferred advanced ⅝.

Strength in Union Pacific led a rally in prices. Support was extended to Reading and it rallied 1¼, with a good sympathetic effect elsewhere. Union Pacific, St. Paul, American Telephone & Telegraph, American Tobacco preferred and United States Rubber first preferred were lifted a point above yesterday's closing. Chesapeake & Ohio 1½. New York Air Brake 2. Active selling for both accounts began later in Reading and Union Pacific, which depressed the whole list sharply. Reading reacted to a point below yesterday's final price and Union Pacific fell 1¼ from the top. Not much was left of the rise in other stocks.

The large selling orders which appeared when prices rose dampened the enthusiasm of the bulls. The decline was checked after Reading touched 151, but the rally was undecided. A few industrials, especially Railroad Equipment stock, rose sharply. Pressed Steel Car preferred gained 2. American Locomotive and Havana Electric 1¾ and Railway Steel Spring preferred 1. St. Joseph and Grand Island sold at a decline of 4. Bonds were firm.

Large inroads were made on prices again after mid-day with Union Pacific and Reading bearing the brunt of the selling. Union Pacific dropped to 183⅜, which was a point below yesterday's last prices and 2 points under the highest of the morning. Reading encountered vigorous support at 151 and again prices rallied. United States Steel preferred gained 1¾ and Pressed Steel Car, American Hide & Leather preferred and International Pump a point.

Business was very dull in the afternoon, but a better undertone prevailed. Southern Pacific's rise to 122 was responsible for a moderate hardening in the general list and a continued rise in United States Steel preferred also contributed to the improvement. United States Steel preferred got up 1⅝ to 119⅞ and American Smelting 1. Delaware & Hudson was forced down a point.

The market closed irregular and unsettled. Prices broke away from the support afforded by the strength in Southern Pacific, and Union Pacific dipped to below 183. Northern Pacific, Norfolk & Western and North American lost 1, and United Railway and Investment preferred lost 1¾. The market rallied again when Southern Pacific recovered to 122⅛. Wisconsin Central, the preferred certificates and American Cotton Oil rose 2, and St. Joseph Grand Island preferred 3½. The rally was not well held.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 5, 1909.

Butte-Alex Scott is getting stronger and stronger every day. This only goes to show that a proposition that is right from one end to the other has to win in the end. We have the making of another Minnie Healy mine. Many miners are now employed. Mr. Hugo is bending every effort to make this mine a rich producer in a very short time. We have the property, one of the best on Butte hill and this mine is equally as good as any independent property on the hill. The stock at these prices only represents $500,000 for one of the best mines in the country. Every report from the mine is good. You can expect nothing but good news from the property and as we have said before we can look forward to almost a mass of ore on the lower levels. Mr. C. P. Ouiette of Ouiette & Baxter, was out at the mine only a short time ago and he told me yesterday that from what he could see and from what he could learn while at the mine and in Butte that it should be a regular mass on the lower levels. We cannot all be wrong.

Such men as N. F. Hugo, P. C. Ouiette, Max Stevens, A. J. Maunier, James Fisher, John Frederick, W. T. Bates, William Farrish, J. G. Bennett, John Chapman, L. L. Culbertson, Bob Patterson and dozens of others, all have to concede that it is a rich property.

One of our directors, Mr. M. K. McMullen, president of the American Plate Glass company, is one of the heavy holders and has been steadily buying. The other day he sent in $30,000 of the old Butte-Montana without rights to be turned in to be full paid. Only a

ORDER FOR HEARING ON PETITION FOR ADMINISTRATION—In the State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis, ss.—

In Probate Court.

In the matter of the estate of Rachel McEachen, Deceased.

THE PETITION of Charles McEachen having been filed in this Court, representing, among other things, that Rachel McEachen, then being a resident of the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, died intestate, in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, on the 29th day of December, 1908, leaving estate in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, and that said petitioner is the son of said decedent, and praying that Letters of Administration of the estate of said decedent be granted to Henry Taylor.

IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this Court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House in Duluth, in said County, on Tuesday, the 1st day of June, 1909, at ten o'clock A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

ORDERED FURTHER, That this Order be served by publication in The Duluth Evening Herald, according to law, and that a copy of this Order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not less than ten days prior to said day of hearing.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., May 3rd, 1909. By the Court, J. B. MIDDLECOFF, Judge of Probate.

(Seal Probate Court, St. Louis Co., Minn.)

WILLIE WHITLA POINTS TO BOYLE AND DRAMATICALLY SAYS: "THAT IS THE MAN"

Kidnaper Brought to Bar of Justice in Mercer.

Doors to Courthouse Are Locked to Prevent Disorder.

Boy Liars Go to Hell, Says the Child Witness.

WILLIE WHITLA.

KIDNAPING LETTER ONLY BOY'S JOKE.

Philadelphia, May 6.—The police today discovered that the writer of the letters to Max Apt threatening the kidnaping of his 8-year-old son, Albert, and blow up his house with dynamite unless the father paid ransom of $10,000, is a 15-year-old boy, a schoolmate of Albert's 13-years-old cousin. The boy, whose name the police have not made public, confessed that he wrote the letters for a joke.

Mercer, Pa., May 6.—"Billy" Whitla, on the witness stand in the trial of James H. Boyle, his alleged abductor, today pointed his finger at the defendant as he sat in the prisoner's box and said with a positiveness that could not be doubted.

"That is the man."

He had been asked if he could point out the man who took him away from Sharon last March, and his answer was given without the slightest hesitation.

Hundreds crowded the frail building serving for a temporary courthouse, when court convened this morning, and the doors were ordered locked to prevent a possible disaster from overcrowding. James Boyle entered a formal plea of not guilty, the jury selected yesterday were sworn, and the opening address to the jury was made by T. C. Cochran, in charge of the prosecution.

"Billy" Whitla was the first witness, and before being sworn, caused a ripple of laughter when he answered

SWEDISH CONSUL DONATES FUND

Lindgren Gives $25,000 for Series of Peace Lectures.

Chicago, May 6.—The first material fruit of the national peace conference, which closed here last night, is $25,000, donated to Northwestern university by John R. Lindgren, Swedish consul to Chicago and cashier of the State Bank of Chicago.

The money is to be utilized for the purpose of founding a permanent series of lectures, and to secure the annual payment of prizes for essays upon the questions of international peace and interdenominational religious harmony.

A second gift of $25,000 additional to the same institution, to found a chair of Scandinavian literature, also was announced by Mr. Lindgren.

FIND TOWNS ARE CHARNEL HOUSES

Britons Go to Relief of Victims of Turks.

Beirut, Asiatic Turkey, May 6.—The situation in Cilicia, where a number of Armenians have been massacred, has been relieved as a result of the presence and exertions of the captain of the British battleship Triumph and the British consul at Alexandretta, who went down the coast on board the Triumph.

The two officials visited Caindron and Kessab and found these towns indescribable charnal houses. There are over 1,000 helpless and destitute women in in a village on the sea coast near Kessab.

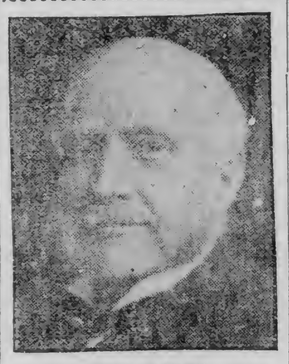
AMATEUR WALKERS ACCOMPANY WESTON.

Kansas City, Mo., May 6.—Edward Payson Weston, the pedestrian, started west from Oak Grove, Mo., thirty miles east of Kansas City, at 7 o'clock this morning. At Independence ten miles east of Kansas City, Weston was met by a delegation of Y. M. C. A. amateur pedestrians, who intend accompanying him on the last portion of the day's tramp.

WESTERN UNION IS MIXED IN DIVORCE SUIT.

New York, May 6.—The right of a telegraph company to transmit messages which might reflect on the character of a person is to be tested in a damage suit, brought by Mrs. Mary Ilsar Brokaw, wife of W. Gould Brokaw, against the Western Union. Suit for divorce, instituted by Mrs. Brokaw some time ago contains sensational allegations concerning the young millionaire's treatment of her and she now alleges that her husband sent many messages, not only to her, but to her relatives and friends derogatory to her character.

NOTABLES GATHER TO HONOR PREMIER



HENRY CLEWS.

Washington, May 6.—A notable group of public men will meet in the New Willard tonight as guests of the president and directors of the American Peace and Arbitration league to honor the new secretary of state. Today Secretary Knox is 56 years of age, and the gathering is not only to allow those present to recognize his ability as premier of the American cabinet, but to congratulate him on this anniversary of his natal day.

Former Senator James B. McCreary of Kentucky, president of the league, will speak. Among others who will address the gathering will be Ambassador Bryce of Great Britain, Minister Portela of Argentina, Justice Brewer, Senator Taylor of Tennessee, Speaker Cannon and Henry Clews of New York.

THOUSANDS PERISHING

Victims of Turkish Onslaught Minus Food and Clothes.

American Missionary Says That the Dead Number 23,000.

Adana, Asiatic Turkey, May 6.—Rev. Stephen R. Trowbridge, a missionary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, estimates the number of Armenians killed in the province of Adana since the outbreak of the anti-Christian rioting at 23,000. The missionary says:

"A conservative estimate of the Christians killed in Adana is 3,000. This calculation is made up from the lists prepared by officials, who give permits for burial. No fewer than 20,000 perished in the towns and villages of the province. This figure is based on the full information sent forward by the British consul.

"The surviving Armenians in the entire province are largely women and

CLOSES A 60,000 TON STEEL DEAL

Illinois Company Contracts With the St. Paul Road.

New York, May 6.—Announcement is made that the Illinois Steel company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, has closed a contract for the sale of 60,000 tons of steel rails to the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway at $28 per ton. Early delivery is to be made on this contract, which is the largest since the open market for steel was begun several months ago.

DUST WITH THE HEAT

Nebraska and Iowa Get Premature Taste of Summer.

Mercury Drops and Sandstorm Sweeps Vicinity of Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., May 6.—The mercury, which registered 95 degrees above zero yesterday afternoon, dropped to 44 during a sandstorm that prevailed in this section all night. The velocity of the wind was not much above thirty miles an hour, but Sioux City reports a sixty-four-mile wind, and at other points it registered from forty to sixty miles.

Sixty-six Miles an Hour.

Norfolk, Neb., May 6.—The temperature dropped fifty-seven degrees in twelve hours, falling from 96 yesterday to 39 this morning. Yesterday's intense heat, by far the hottest of the year was followed last night by the severest dust storm Northern Nebraska ever experienced. The wind blew sixt-six miles an hour, and the air was saturated with dust.

Chicago Perspires.

Chicago, May 6.—A hot wave, accompanied by several prostrations, is the weather dealt out to this city as a contrast to the snow and rain that prevailed during the first two days of the month. The temperature rose thirty degrees in nine hours, making the maximum for the day 86. Several pedestrians were overcome.

SAYS LUNATICS ARE OUTRAGED

Doctor Resigns From Asylum; Offers to Specify Charges.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 6.—In resigning his position as assistant physician of the State Hospital for the Insane No. 2 here today, Dr. T. E. Graham gave as a reason that the patients are subjected to gross outrages on the part of the attendants, with the knowledge of Sup. W. F. Kuhn.

He offers to give names and dates, if the board of managers desires them. There are nearly 2,000 patients in the hospital, which is the largest asylum for the insane in Missouri.

NORDICA WILL WED AND QUIT STAGE

LILLIAN NORDICA.
GEORGE W. YOUNG.

New York, May 6.—Just before leaving for Europe on the Kaiser Wilhelm, Mme. Lillian Nordica announced that her marriage to George W. Young, the New York banker, would be celebrated about a year hence. In addition to this interesting news, Mme. Nordica said that next season would not only be her last upon the operatic stage, but that she probably would not sing again in public after that.

"I am going to London, where I am to sing at a recital on May 28, and then, after some concerts, shall go to the continent," said Mme. Nordica.

"And about your engagement?"

"Oh, that is all true," and Mme. Nordica blushed and looked at Mr. Young.

"The marriage?"

"Oh, that will not take place until just about a year from now, after my next season at the Metropolitan is finished. I shall not sing in opera or elsewhere after that.

"The festival house I am building on the Hudson is getting along finely. The administration building is all finished, but the rest will not be pushed ahead until I have time to give the project my personal attention. I am not at liberty to say whether I shall engage anybody abroad for it."

LITCHVILLE, N. D., MAN LEAVES VERY MYSTERIOUSLY

Fargo, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—A former resident of Fargo, Andrew Hageman, is missing from Litchville, where he has conducted a shoe store for some time. He had been ill, and friends fear his mind may have become affected. Others think he has gone to the coast, where he recently located a brother he had not heard from in many years.

HURRIES TO AID GIRL

Millionaire Eldredge in Race Across Continent After Raid.

His Daughter, Wife of Senator, Found With Chauffeur.

Santa Barbara, Cal., May 6.—H. Fisher Eldredge, millionaire brewer of Portsmouth, N. H., who raced across the continent at the summons of his daughter, who is the wife of F. J. Shaw, a Massachusetts state senator, when she was caught in an early morning raid in this city last week with H. Keno Marble, the former Shaw chauffeur, arrived in this city at midnight last night.

He refused to discuss the case.

Immediately after getting off the train he jumped into a cab and went to a hotel with his daughter. Mrs. Shaw met her father in Los Angeles, where a conference was held between the father, daughter and their lawyers.

The habeas corpus proceedings brought by Mr. Shaw for the possession of her 11-year-old son came up in court today. The boy is in custody of the police.

CZAR'S PREMIER MAY LEAVE POST

Threatens to Resign With Cabinet—Authority is Issue.

St. Petersburg, May 6.—The campaign against Premier Stolypin, which the reactionaries and the courtiers close to Emperor Nicholas have been waging for the past two years and which broke out with special vigor during the absence of the premier from St. Petersburg, has been brought to a head by Stolypin himself, who has demanded that his majesty either disassociate himself from these schemes or accept the resignations of the entire cabinet.

This decision centers upon the bill creating a general staff for the navy, sanction of which Stolypin has demanded as an ultimatum. The real question at issue is whether the opponents of Stolypin are to be permitted to continue to sap the authority of the cabinet and weaken its prestige by continually raising similar points.

WILLIAM H. DEAN,
Immigration Inspector, Who Ran Down the Black Hand Men.

FRANCISCO TINO,
Black Hand Organizer, Who Is Under Arrest.

Roundup Made on Confession of Half-Breed Squaw.

Robbery and Blackmail Also Charged Against the Prisoners.

Three Held at Grand Rapids, One in This County.

Charged with robbery, blackmail and murder, four alleged members of the Black Hand society, who, part of the time, have made their headquarters in Duluth, have been rounded up by William H. Dean, inspector in charge of the local United States immigration office, and it is expected the arrest of others will follow within the next few days.

Three of the men, Francisco Tino, Mike Massinlino and Dominick Capoletta, are in jail at Grand Rapids, Minn., whence Inspector Dean returned last evening, and the fourth, whose name is withheld at present, is in custody in St. Louis county. During his investigation of the case, the government official discovered that there is an organized branch of the Black Hand working in Northern Minnesota, and along the Canadian border, its operations being principally confined to the smaller towns, because of fear of the police in larger cities.

It is claimed the band has also been in communication with the mother organization in Italy, as well as with other branches in this country, and that there is scarcely a city in the United States which does not contain at least a few members. This being the case, with the system of communication that is carried on, it is almost an impossibility for a man spotted by the organization to escape.

There are many more Black Hand outrages in the way of robbery and

HE WARNS REVISERS

Cummins Insists There Must Be Lower Import Duties.

Party Pledge as Yet Unfulfilled, Declares Iowa Senator.

Washigton, May 6.—Predicting that failure to pass a tariff bill providing lower duties on imports would provoke a political contest for another revision of the tariff, Senator Cummins of Iowa delivered a notable speech in the senate today:

"The bill now before us, which, it may be assumed, presents the views of the finance committee respecting the revision of the tariff," said Mr. Cummins, "will not be accepted by those who have favored a revision of the tariff as either a fulfillment of the party puedge or as a settlement of the controversy. If this bill, or anything substantially like it, becomes a law, I predict that a campaign for lower duties will start the moment the extraordinary session of congress adjourns and will continue with increasing zeal until the judgment entered in the court of the public conscience is also entered in the journals of congress."

There is no question, he said, that the Republican party has promised a revision under a demand for lower duties. He continued:

"I have heard it said over and over again since we began this discussion

WRIGHT'S PUPIL HURT BY FALL

Italian Navy Lieutenant Tumbles Out of an Aeroplane.

Rome, May 6.—Lieut. Calderara of the Italian navy, was injured here today while flying in a Wright aeroplane. As he was making a sharp turn the machine fell to the ground and the aviator was picked up unconscious. It is estimated he fell ninety-five feet. His right cheek and his right eye were injured, and he sustained a dislocated shoulder.

The lieutenant, who is a pupil of Wilbur Wright, was revived and moved to a military hospital.

IS IT A SPARRING MATCH OR A REAL FIGHT?

NO WIRE TO THE PATTEN RANCH

Bull Leader's Brothers Say He Is Still Away.

Chicago, May 6.—Reports that James A. Patten, the bull leader in wheat, had returned to his home after his vacation in the West, were vigorously denied today by his brothers, George and Harry Patten.

"Mr. Patten has not returned; he has no private wire to the Bartlett ranch, as reported, and we have not heard a word from him for three days," is the way George Patten entered his refutation of the story.

RIVER PILOT GUIDES WARSHIP

The Battleship Mississippi Goes Up Stream of That Name.

New Orleans, La., May 6.—The battleship Mississippi lifted her anchors and entered South Pass at 9 a. m. today. With an old Mississippi river pilot on board the trip through the narrows was made with safety and without incident. The big vessel is due at the naval wharf here this afternoon.

Old Mississippi pilots laugh at the fears expressed in some quarters that the big warship Mississippi will come to some harm on her trip up the river of the same name. They assert that any one of a dozen men who have held the wheel of the river boats can take the battleship up the river much further than Natchez and never let her get a scratch. The big fighting craft draws twenty-seven feet.

HITCHING POST BURNING ISSUE

Hoosier Voters Tie Local Option Question To It.

Bloomington, Ind., May 6.—This city, the seat of Indiana university and of the county of Monroe, is the center of a controversy over the merits of the old-fashioned hitching rail in the public square, and the matter has been projected into the local option campaign, which is to close with an election May 25.

Farmers, indignant because an old broken-down hitching rail around the new courthouse has not been replaced by the city council, threaten to vote "wet."

The county commissioners, in sympathy with the farmers, threaten to build a hitching rail of their own if the city will not.

To this the members of the council answer that the city will enforce an old ordinance forbidding a wagon to stand in the public square for more than an hour at a time. The merchants are in sympathy with the farmers.

Memorial Day Services in Every School in City.

Exercises of a patriotic nature will be held in all of the public schools of Duluth and vicinity on Friday May 28, the last school day preceding Memorial day. Special musical and speaking programs have also been arranged for the same day at the normal school and the cathedral parochial school of the city, both in the morning and afternoon.

The German and Culver posts of the G. A. R., acting together have appointed committees to visit the schools on that day and participate in the exercises. The following special notice has been sent to all members of both posts:

"Comrades—Again do we urge every member of the G. A. R. to attend these school exercises. The reasons we have repeated each year should urge themselves, without repetition more and more as each anniversary comes around. Our numbers are fast decreasing and there is all the more need that while our strength holds out that each one of us shall by what we can to advance the cause of patriotism in our schools. Let no comrade shirk this duty this year."

REAL TEST WILL COME NEXT WEEK

The real test which will show the strength or weakness of the seamen's strike will come within the next few days when the loaded vessels begin to arrive at down lake ports.

Cleveland has shipped more men than any other port on the Great Lakes, and in every case the men have signed for the round trip, with the provision, that they receive no pay if they leave the vessel before returning to the contract port.

This fact may account for the very few cases of desertion that were reported in Duluth. The claim is made that many signed for the round trip who are union men and who will refuse to stay with the boat after the first trip. Most of the vessels, which are now nearing Cleveland and Buffalo, left those ports before the strike was formally declared.

The Lake Carriers expect to lose some men, but feel confident that there will not be enough seamen quit to cripple or tie up any of their vessels.

CORRECTING MISTAKES OF LITTLE BLIND GOD

Divorce Grist in District Court Heaviest on Record.

Seven Decrees Granted; Many Other Cases Are Heard.

The divorce mill is grinding.

Judge Cant, Judge Ensign and Judge Dibell are hearing the mismated couples as they tell their chief objections to married life, and they were kept busy today, with a first-class chance of being just as busy Friday.

Seven divorces have been granted already this term, and hearings have been held in many more cases, the judges taking the cases under advisement.

The courtroom was filled today with unhappy husbands and wives, with their witnesses. In the majority of the cases the defendants did not show up at all, and only one side of the case was heard.

Some of the women plainly showed the marks of abuse, ill treatment and non-support. Others were timid, but determined. Some were haughty and held their heads in the air; others showed plainly that it was their first appearance in a courtroom.

Most of the cases hinged on cruelty and inhuman treatment, with drink as the foundation of all the trouble. The calling of vile names figured conspicuously in a number of cases, while non-support was the backbone of others.

Laura E. Sills was granted a decree from her husband, Frederick A. Sills, by Judge Ensign. She charged habitual drunkenness and desertion.

A hearing was held in the case of Elizabeth Springer against George E. Springer, and Judge Dibell took the case under advisement.

A hearing in the case of Jennie Larson and Christ Larson was held before Judge Cant. He took the case under advisement. This couple had been married seventeen years. She told a pitiful story of abuse and neglect, ending with desertion. They have lived a greater part of their married life in Superior and New Duluth.

Judge Dibell heard the plea of Agnes Alice Martin against Frank J. Martin and took the case under advisement. She charged inhuman treatment.

Judge Dibell also heard the cases of Minnie O. Grant and Robert R. Grant, and Blanche Berkovitz against David Berkovitz. He took both cases under advisement.

Angeline McLennan was granted a divorce from John McLennan. She charged cruel and inhuman treatment, with drink as the bottom of the trouble. She cited instances where she had been whipped in the presence of the neighbors, several of whom testified in her behalf.

Gertrude E. Lentz was granted a divorce from Harry C. Lentz on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment by Judge Dibell. He also heard the case of Jennie M. Murray against James F. Murray, which he took under advisement.

The case of Helen H. Kiman against Thomas J. Kiman was continued by Judge Ensign.

The case of Elva A. Mee against Walter M. Mee was taken under advisement by Judge Dibell. Mrs. Mee recited a tale of long want, suffering, non-support and drunkenness.

Florence E. Remington gave her husband two chances to be good. He did not seem to improve, however, and this morning she was granted a divorce by Judge Ensign on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment.

Judge Dibell heard the case of Carrie Turley against her husband, Brant Turley, and the case of Gertrude Dougherty against Michael Dougherty. Both wives told stories of abuse, cruelty and ill treatment. Their cases were taken under advisement.

Edna Jones was granted a divorce from Delbert Jones on the grounds of desertion by Judge Ensign. Carrie Hollands was granted a decree from her husband, Alfred J. Hollands, on a charge of cruelty and non-support.

Hilda Steinborn was granted a decree from her husband, Gustav Steinborn, on desertion grounds by Judge Dibell.

The case of Fred A. Lee, a local dentist, proved the most interesting of the entire grist. He recited a long tale of suffering and the woes of a married life with a woman with a temper. He recited instances where she threw dishes at him, stove lids and any other household goods that came handy. On one occasion she threw a costly vase at him, he claims. According to his story she called him vile and unrepeatable names, and on another occasion gave him not only one black eye, but two. He admitted that his wife was not much larger than himself, but said he never in his life attempted to harm her; that he was busy most of the time trying to defend himself.

He told of numerous instances when he was turned out of his own house; how, when his brother came to visit, he was told by Mrs. Lee to get out, and how, on no less than six occasions the police had to be called in order that peace might be restored. Judge Dibell took the case under advisement.

FINDS LIFE PARTNER

"Dakota Farmer" A-sail on Sun-Kissed Sea of Bliss.

Finds Affinity Through Aid of Humane Society.

Jim Sheehan, the man who asked Mrs. Forgy of the Humane society to help him find a wife, is now ecstatically sailing on the sun-kissed sea of connubial bliss. He was married yesterday in Superior to Miss Daisy Sorby, a resident of Lakeside, and is now wearing the smile that is riveted on.

Mr. Sheehan gained considerable notoriety recently by the fact that he asked for outside assistance in finding a partner to share his life's sorrows and joys. For the purpose of concealing his identity, he gave it out that he was a Dakota farmer, living alone on the prairie, with no one to care for him. As a matter of fact, he is an employe at the city hall.

The idea of the lone man in the prairie wilderness aroused a flood of sympathy in the breasts of Duluth women, and, judging by the answers to Mrs. Forgy's request for a woman anxious to venture on matrimony, most of the unmarried ladies in Duluth acted on this sympathetic impulse, and applied for the position offered. The would-be husband had a wide field to pick from, and Miss Sorby more nearly filled the qualifications of affinity than any of the others.

It appears to have been a case of love at first sight. After Mr. Sheehan had laid eyes upon the woman who later was to become his wife, he devoted all his spare moments to her, and had no time for the numerous other applicants, and so happy is he in his new-found bliss that the tears and lamentations of the rejected fail to mar his joy.

WILD RUMORS ARE AFLOAT

No Truth in Reports of Attempts at Dynamiting.

A persistent rumor was circulated about the city today that members of the striking marine unions had been detected placing dynamite aboard iron ore cars and that the steel company was taking additional precautions for the safety of its men and property by increasing the number of guards in the freight yards and at the Missabe docks.

President McGonagle said this afternoon: "There is absolutely nothing in the story. It is just a wildcat tale invented by some one and passed on by others. The men at the docks have not been increased and are the same as have been with the company for the past two weeks."

Another rumor that gained some credence was to the effect that the state militia had been requested to be in readiness for any violent outbreak on the part of the strikers. This was also untrue.

The strike situation has not changed. The unions are working peaceably, according to the orders of Victor Olander, secretary of the lake seamen's organization. Their efforts are directed toward getting the working crews to abandon their work and not against the property of the vessel and dock owners.

FIREWATER IS BARRED

Indian Bureau Intends to Keep It From Poor Lo.

Zollman, Representing the Minnesota Brewers, Visits Washington.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred Zollman, representing the Minnesota and Wisconsin brewers, arrived in Washington today to take up the question of how far the Indian office will go in enforcing the law forbidding the sale of liquor on Indian lands.

He called on acting Indian Commissioner Valentine this morning and had a conference, and has an appointment for further conferences during the week. It is probable the question will be settled soon. There has been considerable correspondence and one interview between Zollman and officials of the Indian bureau on this much mooted question since last December.

At an interview last December, bureau officials intimated that the law would be construed in a rational manner, and that their efforts would be directed toward seeing that liquor was kept away from the Indians, and that white settlers in so-called Indian country would not be disturbed. Today a statement was made in the Indian bureau that an attempt will be made to secure an agreement with the liquor interests for the enforcement of the law, along the lines indicated.

UNIFORM SYSTEM OF BOOKKEEPING

City Comptroller Issues Report in New Approved Form.

City Comptroller W. S. McCormick has issued, at his own expense, a little book giving his annual report to the city council, for the year 1908, in full, together with a number of interesting tables showing the yearly cost of operating different city departments. The book is published under an attractive binding, and is arranged in a comprehensive fashion.

Heretofore no intelligent comparison of the various items of expenditure was possible, owing to the fact that each city published its annual report in accordance with the ideas of the city comptroller, which resulted in there being as many forms of report as there were cities, thus rendering them of no value for comparative purposes. A uniform system of reporting has been adopted by various cities of the country, Duluth included, making possible a comparison of the same items of expenditure in cities of approximately equal population. It is by enabling the public, as well as the official, to make these comparisons, that cities are greatly benefited financially.

WHITE SOX TO MEET REGINA

Fans Will Have Opportunity to See New Team Work.

Duluth baseball fans will probably get their first chance of the season to see the White Sox perform Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The game this afternoon was called off on account of the threatening weather.

The Regina team of the Canadian league will be the opposing nine, and from all accounts they will be able to give the Sox quite a run for their money.

Regina has picked up a fast aggregation and they think they have it on the Sox. There is a rivalry between the two leagues, and the games to be played in Duluth will be hard fought for this reason.

The game that was to have been played today between the Eltwells and the Sox will probably be played Monday, after which the team will leave for a series in Chippewa Falls before opening the regular league season.

THREE-I LEAGUE SEASON OPENS

All the Fair Fans Are Presented With Carnations.

Bloomington, Ill., May 6.—The Three-I Baseball league opened its season today. In the first game played here, Bloomington and Peoria were the contestants. Preceding the game there was an automobile parade. Each feminine spectator at the game was presented with a carnation. Mayor Carlock pitched the first ball. Decatur opened at Springfield, Rock Island at Cedar Rapids, and Dubuque at Davenport.

RAILROAD NEWS

KANSAS CITY THE FUNNEL

Through Which Great Tide of Immigration Is Pouring.

Some idea of the immense amount of passenger traffic that is pouring across the American continent, from the borders of the eastern states, through the neck of the traffic funnel at Kansas City, may be gained by some facts given by F. D. Lyon, representative of the Rock Island system, who is in the city today.

The homeseekers' excursions are given twice a month by the Rock Island. Upon the days of the excursions Mr. Lyon says that there are often over 15,000 homeseekers packed in the union depot at Kansas City.

The Rock Island was compelled to run as many as sixteen sections from Kansas City upon one of these excursion days, so great is the rush to the cheap lands of the Southwest.

Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arizona and the Indian Territory are the objective points of the homeseekers. They are on their way to these comparatively unsettled states to make new homes. They are buying cheap land, making homes, and are settling the country at a rate that is without parallel in the history of the country.

The traffic gateway is at Kansas City. From here gather the thousands of homeseekers from the Eastern and Middle Western states. From Kansas City the flood of humanity spreads out over the various lines that lead to the states they are bound for.

This immigration has been going on all of the present winter. This spring, Mr. Lyon says, the passenger traffic to the Southwest is increasing. He says that until one can see the really wonderful sight that is presented by the thousands of homeseekers gathered at the little end of the funnel one can gain no true idea of the immensity of the movement.

According to Mr. Lyon, the congestion of people at Kansas City is something that can be described only as a vast mob.

It is estimated by the various lines that are engaged in the hauling of homeseekers to the Southwest that 500,000 people have crossed the country to the Southwest within the short space of a few months.

The irrigation of the government in the states of the Southwest has made agricultural pursuits in these states possible and has resulted in the opening of large territories for settlement.

Rushing Extension.

James Thompson, traveling passenger agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, is in the city today upon traffic matters. Mr. Thompson says progress upon the Pacific coast extension of the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound railway is progressing very rapidly and that freight will be moving into Seattle in the near future.

Excursions Begin.

June excursion rates over the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad, via the Detroit and Cleveland line of steamers were announced today.

The excursions will begin Tuesday, June 8, and will be held Friday, June 12, Wednesday, June 16, and Friday, June 18. The South Shore trains will connect with the D. & C. steamers at St. Ignace, Mich., for Sheboygan, Alpena, Port Huron, Detroit, Cleveland and Buffalo.

The following rates from Duluth and return will prevail: Duluth to Detroit and return, $12; Duluth and Toledo and return, $12.50; Duluth to Cleveland and return, $13.50; Duluth to Buffalo and return, $14.00.

The inauguration of the South Shore excursion will mark the beginning of the excursion and tourist travel from Duluth to Eastern points.

$100 Reward, $100.

"MERRY WIDOW" TO WED MANAGER

Miss Mabel Wilbur to Become Bride of Madison Corey.

Every evening and at two matinees every week Miss Mabel Wilbur, as "The Merry Widow," takes a husband at the finale of the last act of the piece, but announcements have been made that she is going to take a husband in real life. She is to wed Madison Corey, general manager for Henry W. Savage and one of the best known theatrical men in America.

The date of the wedding has not been announced as yet, but it is understood that the marriage will take place in June or in the autumn.

Miss Wilbur is a very charming young woman and those who have seen her interpret the role of "The Merry Widow" can understand how her smiles charmed the theatrical manager. The couple kept their engagement a secret until Easter Sunday when the announcements were made.

Mr. Corey, the bridegroom-to-be, has for years been closely associated with Col. Henry W. Savage in his various theatrical enterprises and in other deals, and at present is general manager of the Savage productions.

SUPT. GEMMELL WILL RETURN TO BRAINERD.

Brainerd, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is learned from reliable sources that W. H. Gemmell will again return to Brainerd. The work caused by the increased business of the Minnesota & International railroad combined with the work of assistant land commissioner of the Northern Pacific have proven too much for one man and he will hereafter give his entire time to the Minnesota & International railway.

Tornadoes — AND — Wind Storms

Man has no adequate defense against such storms. He may build with the utmost care, construct his home and office structure of the most approved material and with the most competent workmanship, and use every precaution experience approved; yet comes a puff of wind and man's puny works are undone. He can temper the storm, but not conquer it. The elements are still supreme.

Millions of dollars in property are destroyed annually, many lives lost, men and women maimed and crippled for life—it is usually a sorry story written in letters of ruin and devastation. Great manufacturing plants crumbled beneath their furious blasts, churches wrecked, their spires wrenched off and tossed into the bays, residences crushed and pushed from their foundations, streets littered with the debris of church, home and factory; such details but inadequately tell the story.

You can build a fire-proof but not a tornado-proof building.

The cost of tornado insurance is small. The chance of loss is great. Can you afford to save the small cost and assume the great loss?

A tornado today might destroy your home, and a policy tomorrow would be too late. Buy a policy today. It will build your home if destroyed by a tornado tomorrow. The rate is surprisingly low.

YOU WANT THE BEST —WE FURNISH IT.

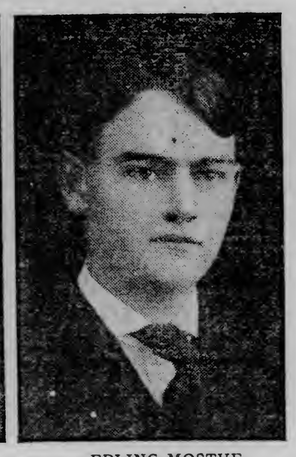
GALLANT HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS WILL ESPOUSE CAUSE OF THE FAIR SEX

RALPH JOHNSON.

JOHN SKADBERG.



ERLING MOSTUE.

Three sturdy young men of the senior class at the Central high school will espouse the cause of women in the debate with the juniors on the topic, "Resolved, That the Women of the United States Should Be Given the Right of Suffrage on Equal Terms With Men." The debate will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at Central high school.

John Skagberg, Erling Mostue and Ralph Johnson are the seniors who, with their oratory and rhetoric, will attempt to batter down the arguments propounded by the juniors, who will take the negative side of the question, in tomorrow's contest.

They are earnestly preparing for the debate, encouraged and fortified by many donations of fudge by the fair members of their class, on whose side of the argument they are.

There is much interest in the debate at the school.

A NEW IDEA IN SALOONS

Saul Goldberg Would Place His Under "Welcome" Arch.

Asks Permission to Sell Liquor From Center of Street.

Saul Goldberg appeared very much surprised yesterday when Secretary Murchison of the board of public works told him there probably would be objections if he moved his saloon, now at 501 West Superior street, out into Fifth avenue, and continued to sell liquor, while wagons and pedestrians took the other side of the street.

While the Levine hotel building is being erected on the northwest corner of Fifth avenue west and Superior street, it will be necessary for the saloon now occupying the site to either go temporarily out of business, or else move. Mr. Goldberg hates very much to discontinue the sale of liquor during this period, and thought it would be a grand idea to deal out intoxicants from the street, placing his saloon under the "Welcome" arch, where all the newcomers in town could see it as they climbed the hill from the two passenger depots.

Secretary Murchison told him it would doubtless be a money-making proposition, but mildly ventured the opinion that there might be some objection on the part of the general public to having a saloon blocking the sidewalks and part of the street, while the sale of drinks went merrily on. Mr. Goldberg explained that he would occupy no more space than would be taken by building material usually piled in the street while a new building is in course of construction, but Mr. Murchison said, in any event, the board of public works and, so far as he knew, no other department of the city's government, would have any right to grant the permission asked.

The proprietor of the liquor parlor was much cast down at the information tendered him, but didn't say whether he would go ahead and carry out his intentions, without authority of any of the city officials. The chances are that he will not. It is presumed that there would be a vigorous howl from the public if he tried to carry out the plan. There would be plenty of ways of stopping him if the public objected to the plan. In the first place, his license reads 501 West Superior street, and if his saloon was moved from there, even a few feet, he could be arrested for running a blind pig. He could also be arrested for obstructing the street.

It is said that, in order to remain in business, Mr. Goldberg may try to get permission of the owner of the property to leave his bar where it is, while the hotel is built around it. It is a question whether this could be done without causing too great inconvenience to the contractors, in a case of this kind, it is considered likely that the council would grant him a temporary transfer, which would allow him to open a saloon in some other nearly building until the new structure is far enough along for him to move back to his old quarters.

Minneapolis Concern Is to Build the Bemidji Plant.

Bemidji, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council has awarded the contract for the construction of the city water works to W. D. Lovell of Minneapolis for $27,094.10. Pasteret & Lamz of Duluth were the next lowest bidders, $27,936.95.

Other bidders were: Thomas & McCoy, Duluth; Bosworth Bros., Ada; William C. Fraser, Rochester; G. W. Hagert, Fargo, N. D; Haugsten & Johnson, Two Harbors; James Kennedy, Fargo, N. D., and O. F. Boyle, St. Cloud.

The new system, which will be laid by Mr. Lovell, will contain 3.8 miles of water mains in addition to the old pipes.

Dickinson Theater Sold.

Dickinson, N. D., May 6.—Walter Junkins has purchased the Unique theater of R. F. Warren, who started it here six months ago. Mr. Junkins is a local business man and, with his son, will give his personal attention to the theater. Mr. Warren has an option on a good business at Miles City, Mont.

ROB STORE SIX TIMES

Thieves Also Steal Fast Trotter to Draw Away the Plunder.

Their Loot of Firearms and Phonographs Is Recovered.

La Porte, Ind., May 6.—Four robbers early today cleaned out the store of C. F. Sonneborn for the fourth time in six years, and covered their flight by an explosion of dynamite that wrecked and set fire to the building.

The thieves carried off $1,000 worth of firearms, phonographs and sporting goods in a delivery wagon drawn by Humming Bird (2:14), a valuable trotting horse, which they stole from a nearby stable. Mrs. Augusta Jones, living over Sonneborn's store, was injured by the explosion.

The robbers were overtaken shortly before noon in the Galena woods near the Michigan line by Sheriff Ansliss and Chief of Police Cochrane. An exchange of shots followed, during which three of the robbers escaped. The fourth was captured, and all the plunder was recovered.

LEMON EXTRACT WITHOUT LEMON

Speaker of Wisconsin Assembly Shows Need of Food Law.

Madison, Wis., May 6.—Today Speaker Bancroft of the Wisconsin assembly speaking on a measure to fix a standard for food products took a sharp crack at a Chicago company. Mr. Bancroft exhibited a bottle of lemon extract, which he said was manufactured by the Chicago concern and said that an analysis showed that it did not contain one drop of lemon juice.

A bottle labelled "port wine" he said consisted of glucose, coal tariff and benzote of soda. "No wonder with such frauds, we have millionaires. We are being poisoned. We are bartering away our health," said the speaker.

He condemned the adulteration of other food products and scored some of the centralizing plants that have, he said, a process of working 40 per cent of water into butter, where the law fixes 16 per cent as the maximum.

STABBED THREE TIMES.

Ishpeming Man Came Near Being Killed in North Dakota.

Ishpeming, Mich., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Will Gill, who arrived here Monday evening, suffering from knife wounds inflicted by a fellow workman at Sarles, N. D., is by no means out of danger. He is confined to the home of his parents on East Pearl street, and is receiving the best of attention. There are three wounds in his back, but two of them are not serious. The worst wound severed an artery and penetrated the right lung, and has not started to heal, so that his physician is unable to state at this time what the outcome will be. In spite of the fact that he suffers much pain, Mr. Gill is cheerful and he feels certain he will be around in a few days.

The attack upon him by a man named George R. Grubb, was entirely unexpected. After Gill had been stabbed three times, he turned on Grubb and forced him off the coach, though he made no attempt to punish him. He did not realize that he was badly injured until after a surgeon had examined his wounds.

BUSINESS METHODS

Effort Will Be Made to Organize Charities in Duluth.

Mass Meeting Is Called for Friday, May 14.

The following call has been issued by H. V. Eva, secretary of the Commercial club:

"You are urged to attend a meeting at the Commercial club rooms Friday, May 14, at 8 p. m., for the purpose of forming an Associated Charities association. Eugene T. Lies of Minneapolis will be present and address the meeting at that time.

"It is our belief that the charities of the city can be handled in a far more economical manner than at present, by consolidation, and we therefore urge you to be present or have some one represent you at this meeting."

The organization of an Associated Charities in Duluth has been discussed for several months, and the active work of organization will be begun at the meeting Friday of next week.

CAN'T GET RING BACK FROM GIRL

Court Decides There Is No Legal Way of Recovery.

Norfolk, Va., May 6. — A jilted fiance may not legally recover the engagement ring and his only redress is by way of a breach of promise suit, holds Justice Andrew Jackson Dalton of the Norfolk magistrate's court, in a decision handed down today. The decision reverses Justice Denning of similar jurisdiction.

J. D. McFarland, after being rejected by Miss Lulue B. Short, sought to recover his $55 ring. The girl pleaded that it was a Christmas gift, and Justice Dalton upheld her. Then Justice Denning, not knowing Justice Dalton had already tried the case, ordered the ring returned to McFarland. Justice Dalton, saying his decision was original, reaffirmed his ruling. The ring, he said, was either a gift or a contract and as there was no written contract, engagements rings not being given on condition that girls marry but after they agree to marry, there can be no forcible recovery.

EX-CONVICT RETURNED TO STATE PENITENTIARY.

Long Prairie, Minn., May 6.—Henry George was sent to Stillwater for two years for obtaining money under false pretenses. He had served a term at Stillwater when he went to the home of a man who is serving a prison sentence and represented to his wife that he was an embassy from Governor Johnson, and by giving him a stimulated amount of money he could secure the release of her husband.

One Experience With "Con" Men Enough for Cindrich.

Austrian, a Sucker in Duluth, But Wise in Minneapolis.

Mike Cindrich, an Austrian, was robbed of $20 in Duluth, by the old drop-the pocket book gag, and when he went to Minneapolis a few weeks later the same men tried to work the same game on him again. He had one of the men, Mike Dorson, arrested, and he will be brought back to Duluth for trial.

It takes two men to work the scheme. They wait around the depot until a promising looking subject comes along, and then one of them scrapes an acquaintance with him. That is the precedure followed in Cindrich's case. When approached by an Austrian at the Duluth union depot, he was willing enough to enter into conversation with him.

The two men walked up the street together. They hadn't gone far along Superior street before a man a few feet in front of the pair dropped a fat-looking pocket book. Cindrich picked it up, and looked at it doubtfully.

"Hurry up and stick it in your pocket, before the fellow gets wise," urged Dorson. "In Duluth when any one gets a hold on money they hang on to it."

Cindrich rather doubtfully followed the advice, and the man in front turned in time to catch him in the act. He grabbed the frightened Austrian by the arm and demanded his pocketbook back.

"You're crazy," Dorson cried, before Cindrich could speak or act. "He hasn't got your money; some one else must have found it."

"I'll soon see whether he's got it or not," the stranger observed, and, seizing him roughly, proceeded to go through his pockets. He found the missing purse, all right and, unobserved by Cindrich, took the latter's roll of $20 along with it, as the Austrian discovered a little later, after both men had disappeared.

Yesterday morning Cindrich landed in Minneapolis and the first man he met at the depot was Dorson. The latter evidently failed to recognize his victim of a few weeks before, and entered into conversation with him. Cindrich was too wise to say anything, but walked along the street with the con man. The expected happened, and a pocketbook was suddenly dropped a few feet in front of the pair.

"Pick it up and put it out of sight," said Dorson.

Instead of doing that, Cindrich clung to the man and called a policeman. An officer of the local police department was sent to Minneapolis today to get Dorson.

JUDGE AMIDON OFFICIATES.

First Fargo Wedding Is Performed By a Federal Judge.

Fargo, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first marriage ceremony ever performed in Fargo by a United States judge occurred last night, when Judge Amidon married Stanley S. O'Neill of Milwaukee and Miss Elizabeth Darrow of Fargo.

The bride's family was most intimate with Judge Amidon and asked him to officiate. The bride is a daughter of Fargo's famous surgeon, and the bridegroom is a son of a prominent Milwaukee banker.

WANTED—A CORONER.

Todd County Experiences Trouble in Securing Such Official.

Long Prairie, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Todd county seems to have hard luck trying to get a coroner. From year to year at election time no one files for the office and the nominations have been made as a rule, by a few voters writing in the name of some physician. Last fall Dr. Crossette of Staples was nominated after a heart-breaking struggle in which some eighty or 100 votes were cast throughout the county. Dr. Crossette has resigned, however in order to go into business at Swanville, which is outside the county, and so the county fathers are looking around for another coroner.

Dr. Crossette's resignation was presented the board at its session Monday. He has formed a partnership with Dr. Storey of Grey Eagle and the two are to establish a hospital at Swanville. Dr. Crossette will be in active charge of the institution.

TEMPLE ROLLER RINK.

ALIENIST TELLS OF INSANE FITS

Says Hains Was Suffering From Impulsive Variety.

Flushing, N. Y., May 6.—The examination of expert witnesses for the defense was expected to be concluded today in the trial of Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., for the killing of William E. Annis.

District Attorney De Witt resumed his cross-examination of Dr. L. S. Manson, the alienist. The district attorney explained to the court that he did not consider Manson had qualified as an expert. Asked if a man suffering from maniac depressive insanity would be able to plan and carry out his acts, Dr. Manson said he would during periods of quiescence.

"When Capt. Hains stood on the Yacht club float at Bayside with folded arms looking out over the water, and then grabbed the boom of Annis' boat and shot Annis to death; what kind of insanity was he suffering from?" asked Mr. De Witt.

"With impulsive insanity," was the reply.

"At just what time did the impulse seize him?" asked the district attorney.

"I can't tell, no one can," replied the witness. "It probably was when he first heard the name Annis."

Dr. Manson said the defendant would be able to recognize the face of Annis while suffering from maniac depressive insanity.

Would he be likely to shoot any other man while suffering from that form of insanity?"

"That all depends upon what form of maniac depressive insanity it was the man was suffering. The man might or might not be able to tell the difference between right and wrong."

"Were the defendant's mental functions in operation up to the time of the shooting?"

"Yes."

Asked about the examination the witness made of Capt. Hains in September, Dr. Manson said the defendant's face was a blank, that he refused to answer questions and was greatly depressed.

CRUSHED TO DEATH UNDER LOG ROLLER.

Menominee, Mich., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Overturning, without an instant's warning, a huge log roller, owned by the Dunbar Lumber company, fatally crushed Louis H. Gander of Marinette. The victim lived only a few minutes. Gander was walking alongside of the roller when it toppled upon him so quickly, that a half dozen fellow employes were unable to render assistance. He was 59 years of age and is survived by a widow and six children.

Whooping Cough.

This is a more dangerous disease than is generally presumed. It will be a surprise to many to learn that more deaths result from it than from scarlet fever. Pneumonia often results from it. BROTHERHOOD LODGE EXTENDS Uptown Branch of the Order to Be Organized Here.

Col. James F. Dykeman, district organizer of the Modern Brotherhood of America, and one of the best known fraternal men in the Northwest, will institute a new lodge of the order in Duluth, during the first week in June.

The roster roll on the night of initiation will contain the names of more than a hundred members, and preparations are being made to make the affair a great success. One of the largest halls in the city will be secured for the night, and the work will be exemplified by the supreme officers of the lodge.

Supreme President T. B. Hanley and Supreme Secretary A. L. Balz of Mason City Iowa, will be present. Members and officers of lodges in West Duluth and the West end will also be present and the attendance of many hundred is anticipated.

Following the initiatory work, a banquet will be served at the St. Louis hotel, with speeches by grand lodge and subordinate lodge officers.

HOT DISCUSSION FOLLOWS SPEECH

Commission Form of Government Is Subject of Debate.

The Political Equality club, which includes as members those of both sexes and nearly every known political creed, met last evening in the council chamber of the city hall to listen to an address by James A. Wharton on the subject of the commission form of city government.

Mr. Wharton outlined the plan as it has been adopted in other cities. A general discussion followed the address and Mr. Wharton was bombarded with questions. Dr. Mary McCoy, president of the club, spoke and called for expressions of opinion from those present.

The women present approved of anything that would aid them in their struggle for universal suffrage, and suggested that if the commission form of government is calculated to advance the cause of woman's rights it should be adopted at once.

Socialists at the meeting brought Mr. Wharton into a discussion as to wherein Socialism would be benefited, and agreed that they could find little personal encouragement in the plan.

Hot-Air Shoe Drier.

The device is now being installed in a number of golf clubs, hotels, school and private houses. The apparatus consists of a cylinder with a gas burner at its base. From this cylinder a number of small tubes branch out, acting as supports for the shoes as well as conveyer of hot air. Shoes dried by a well regulated circulation of hot air inside last longer and keep their shape better than if dried in the ordinary way. PET THEORY

Of Psychological Expert Exploded By Street Arab Protege.

Philadelphia, May 6.—Prof. Lightner Witmer, psychological expert of the University of Pennsylvania, who makes a specialty of studying bad little boys and girls, is wondering just what is the matter with his theory that juvenile depravity always has a psychical basis that can be removed.

For some time the professor had made a protege of 9-year-old Willie Spahn, a street arab with no relatives, who was regarded as incorrigible until the professor took him out of an institution and put his theory to work on him. The boy did splendidly under the treatment. The professor fairly glowed with enthusiasm. He used Willie repeatedly as a subject for lectures at clinics. One of these clinics was on Saturday last.

Recently it was found that Willie had disappeared with $800 worth of jewelry. He had manipulated a desk burglary that detectives say would be the pride of an old hand. Willie was caught, but not until he had sold a $200 diamond ring for a trifling sum. The ring has not been recovered.

SAYS CASH WAS GIVEN

Detective, at Primary Hearing, Tells How He "Peeked."

Assemblyman Ramsey Promptly Calls Him a Liar.

Madison, Wis., May 6.—They have finally "started something" in the senatorial primary investigation which is probing the charge of corruption on the part of United States Senator Stephenson and his henchmen, and they have "started something" with a vim, too. Frank T. Wagner, a private secret service man of Milwaukee was called to the stand and stated that on the second Saturday before the primary election, he was rooming in No. 153 in the Plankinton house at Milwaukee on some private business. He heard some familiar voices in the room across the hallway, and, as his curiosity was aroused, he looked through the transom into this room, and saw Assemblymen Thomas Ramsey and Joe Farrell in the room with two other persons one he heard them call "Towne" and the other M. J. Regan of Milwaukee. They were talking in low tones and he could not understand anything except at one time, when one of the men made arrangements to go away, when something was said about "$25,000, not more."

"This was the only thing I heard" said the witness.

Lie, Says Ramsey.

Assemblyman Ramsey declares that when Wagner swore that he saw him in a room in the Plankington house a few days before the election of Stephenson, he deliberately lied.

"I haven't been in the Plankinton house since the day before the general election last November," says the assemblyman.

Wagner Continues.

Wagner also said:

"Mr. Regan then went away and came back in ten minutes. A little later a fifth person came in. It was Mr. Puelicher, cashier of the Marshall & Ilsley bank. He gave Mr. Regan two packages, one wrapped up and the other a bundle of currency. Mr. Regan then went over to the back part of the room to the three assemblymen and divided the bundle of currency between them. He gave them all the loose currency that he held in his hand. I could not tell what the wrapped up packages contained.

"After this, Mr. Regan left the room and the others left in short intervals afterward. I remained on my perch till all had departed. This all occurred in broad daylight between 11 and 12 o'clock on that Saturday forenoon."

"Who did you tell about this first, after this happened?"

"I think I told Mr. Hoyt, editor of the Milwaukee Daily News, a few days after. On the same day I told Col. Jim Stover."

Hoyt Makes Statement.

Hoyt, in an interview given out at Milwaukee immediately after this statement of Wagner's was made public, says:

"Mr. Wagner's testimony is much fuller than any conversation had with me relative to a meeting, which he said had been held at the Plankinton house. I listened to his statements, but they seemed so improbable that I was loath to attach much seriousness to them.

"The conversation was had after Stephenson's election. However, that afternoon I gave the story told me to the Daily News' legislative representative and requested him to learn what he possibly could about it. Nothing authentic could be ascertained."

Wagner Is Queried.

When Wagner came to a pause in his narrative he was asked, "Who else did you tell about this?" by Attorney Black.

"I don't think I told any one else, except Jim Stover.

"You positively did not talk to any one else about it?"

"No, I did not. I left it to Jim Stover, who told me he would take care of it, and that I should keep it under my hat, as I might be called upon to tell sooner or later."

James H. Stover, the Milwaukee attorney, has this to say:

"It is true that Wagner spoke to me one West Water street in Milwaukee about what he had seen some time before, but I believed it was a romance. Later I spoke to some of my friends on the matter and they thought that the facts should be investigated.

"I then tried to find Wagner, but was unable for about two weeks. Then he repeated the same story in the Plankinton house. I still treated is as a romance.

"After the April election I met Wagner again and told him that he would probably be severely punished by the press if he persisted in his story, but he stated that he was willing to take his punishment if necessary, that he was an unwilling witness to the transaction and had always been friendly with Matt Reagan, Ramsey and Farrell, but that he knew they got the money and if this would ruin him he would have to submit."

Farrell Interrupts.

During the progress of the examination of Wagner Assemblyman Joseph Farrell suddenly appeared beside the witness and exclaimed excitedly: "Did you say you saw me in a room at the hotel?"

"You will have your opportunity to go on the witness stand later," quietly said Senator Marsh.

After a few more questions Assemblyman Farrell again interrupted:

"Now, you know you're lying here. You are perjuring yourself and lying about me," said he.

FIGHT OVER SNOW BALLS

Grocer Remonstrates With Boys—Whipped By Their Father.

Fred Sjosellus, a grocer at 822 Mesaba avenue, claims that because he remonstrated with boys for throwing snow balls and rocks at his store windows, Frank Grams, father of the boys, assaulted him. He caused the arrest of Grams, and the case will come up for trial in municipal court late this afternoon.

The grocer says the boys began annoying him Monday evening, and asserts that he told them if they did not stop he would send for a policeman. The following evening, according to his story, they again got busy with snow balls, and he remonstrated with them, saying that unless they stopped he would have to ask the aid of the police.

At this point Frank Grams appeared and jumped on to the grocer, the later claims. Grams had the advantage, because the other recently suffered a fracture of the leg, and he is said to have got much the better of the encounter. A warrant for the arrest of Grams was sworn out. He pleaded not guilty in municipal court, before Judge Cutting, and his hearing was set for this afternoon.

Chamberlain's Liniment.

This is a new preparation and a good one. It is especially valuable as a cure for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and for the relief from pain which it affords in acute inflammatory rheumatism. Those who have used it have invariably spoken of it in the highest terms of praise. Lame back, lame shoulder and stiff neck are due to rheumatism of the muscles, usually brought on by exposure to cold or damp, and are quickly cured by applying this liniment freely and massaging the affected parts. Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is allayed by this liniment. For sale by all druggists.

COL. RESCHE IS HONORED

Rifle Team Gives a Banquet for Well Known Guardsman.

Col. F. E. Resche of the Third Regiment of the National Guard of Minnesota was the guest of honor at a banquet given last evening at the Commercial club by the rifle team of the regimental field staff and band.

During the evening, Col. Resche was presented with a pair of gold cuff buttons as expressive of the appreciation of the rifle team for the services he has rendered and the interest he has taken in their work. The donation speech was made by Col. Johnson, the toastmaster. Maj. H. V. Eva was present.

The field staff and band rifle team of the Third regiment was winner of the state indoor shoot last winter, and the assistance lent by Col. Resche was a large factor in the team's success.

AWARD CONTRACT FOR GRANDSTAND

St. Paul Firm to Erect Concrete One at Fair Grounds.

St. Paul, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The contract for the new concrete grandstand was let yesterday by the board of managers of the state fair. It was given to George J. Grant of St. Paul on his bid of $198,507, with $3,000 additional for steel casings for windows. Butler Bros. of St. Paul bid $200,000; H. N. Leighton & Co. of Minneapolis, $204,785, and Haglin & Star of Minneapolis, $220,000. The grandstand is to be completed by Aug. 15.

Revised plans of the architects adopted by the managers last night call for a grandstand of steel and concrete, 378 feet long, 171 feet deep, 10 feet high at the racetrack side and 70 feet in height at the rear. It will seat 11,000 people. The capacity of the old wooden stand and bleachers, no worn down, was 8,500.

A steel roof is to cover the upper half of the grandstand, and the plans are so drawn as to permit of extending a movable section of this roof out over the lower half of the building, when time and money are available.

The new building is to be erected with seven "bays," each 54 feet wide, and in each bay will be an immense window 35 feet high and 25 feet wide, placed in steel frames. The average distance from the front line of boxes to the racetrack will be forty feet, although the stand will be so built that it will come closer to the track line as the finish wire is approached, and patrons will therefore have the advantage of partially facing up the stretch.

There will be more floor space beneath the grandstand available for exhibition purposes than in the present main building, agriculture building and machinery hall combined. The ground and first floors will be 100 by 378 feet, while the second and third floors, to be finished off eventually, will be 70 feet wide and 378 feet long, giving a total of 98,280 feet.

PREACHER SHY ON ALIMONY

And Must Answer an Attachment Filed By His Wife.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 6.—Rev. Charles T. Russell, head of the Watch Tower Tract society of Brooklyn, formerly of Allegheny, must answer an attachment in the common pleas court which was asked for by Maria F. Russell, his wife, to whom the court had ordered him to pay $40 per month alimony.

Pastor Russell is alleged to have transferred his interest in the tract society to other persons to avoid paying his wife, who in her suit, claimed that she had aided her husband to make the money.

Judge McFarlane in issuing the attachment, said: "To refuse an attachment would allow any respondent to put his property in the hands of a friend, who is amenable to his will, and then defy the power of the court."

USED A GUN.

More Evidence in the Case of Julius Klevin.

It is now claimed that prior to the arrest of Julius Klevin, charged with impersonating an officer, a revolver was brought into play by Mrs. Martha Todd, who caused the arrest of Klevin because, she charges, he was disorderly in her house, at 605 West First street.

Mrs. Todd testified in municipal court yesterday afternoon that after Klevin and a woman companion had raised a disturbance, she had tried to make them behave, and when her remonstrances failed, she produced a revolver, loaded with blank cartridges, and fired it at the floor. The case was adjourned yesterday, to allow the securing of more witnesses.

INDIANA FARMER

Dies of Fright When His Team Runs Away.

Columbus, Ind., May 6.—Jacob Camp, aged 59 years, a farmer, died of fright here when driving to his home. His team ran away, and when he was standing in an effort to control the horses he was seen to fall. When the team was stopped he was dead, but with no marks of injury on him.

WEST END NEWS

DROWNED IN THE CREEK

Schoolboy Loses His Life While Crossing the Stream.

Body Swept Over Falls and Carried Four Blocks.

While crossing a little improvised bridge across Miller's creek, Ignace Wegryn, the 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Wegryn of 2507 West Thirteenth street, was drowned yesterday afternoon.

The lad was crossing the stream at Thirteenth street, on a plank, which had been laid across the rocks. He had one companion, a schoolboy, a year or two older than himself. The other boy had crossed the plank, and the little Wegryn boy attempted to follow him. The stream was a torrent from the melting snow, and the plank was wet and slippery. The lad lost his balance and fell into the stream. He was swept over a fall of about twelve feet and his body was carried down nearly four blocks to Ninth street, before it was washed up on some rocks.

His little companion, horrified by the sight was unable to rescue the lad. The stream was such a torrent that even a grown man would have been unable to reach the boy after he fell. The lad gave the alarm and the body was soon recovered. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

There is a bridge crossing the stream but a short distance from the spot the lad was drowned, but the schoolboys in that district preferred the dangerous trip across the plank and the rocks in the creek and many of them used it in going to and from school.

FOUR FUNERALS ARE HELD IN ONE DAY.

Four funerals were held in the West end today.

The last rites over the remains of Mrs. Anna Johnson of Cotton, Minn., who died Monday at St. Luke's hospital were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Forward undertaking establishment, 2030 West Superior street with burial at Lutheran cemetery.

At 8 o'clock this morning, the funeral of the 2-year-old daughter, Ruth, of Mr. and Mrs. Erick Johnson, who died Tuesday morning, was held from the family residence, 213 Twenty-sixth avenue west.

This morning the two Chase children, Hazel and Florence, who died during the night of diphtheria at the home of their mother, Mrs. Eldora Chase of 110 South Eighteenth avenue west, were buried at Forest Hill cemetery.

A DOUBLE FUNERAL

Diphtheria Carries Off Two Sisters Within a Few Hours.

Four Deaths in One Family in Two Years.

Diphtheria has struck a hard blow at the home of Mrs. Eldora Chase of 110 South Eighteenth avenue west within the past twenty-four hours.

Late yesterday afternoon Hazel Mildred, aged 8 years, succumbed, and early this morning another daughter, Florence May, aged 5 years, died, a victim of the dread disease.

Mrs. Chase lost her husband about two years ago, and another of her children last spring. The widowed mother today is grief-stricken. This morning a private double funeral was conducted from the residence, and the little bodies were laid at rest side by side at Forest Hill cemetery.

New Uniforms Here.

The new baseball suits of the Adams Athletic association have arrived, and will be worn by the Adams aggregation for the first time next Sunday. The outfit for each player is a pair of blue trousers with a white shirt. The stockings are blue, with white stripes.

A game is to be pulled off Sunday with the Larson Sluggers, who are classy in their line. Jack Olsen will probably twirl for the Adams team and Bruce McKinnon will do the work for the Sluggers. A fast game is expected. It will be played on the Thirty-second avenue west grounds.

Wrestling Match.

The Monarch Athletic club, recently organized with headquarters at Twenty-seventh avenue west and First street, will pull off a handicap wrestling match tomorrow evening at the club rooms.

"Chuck" Smith will be given thirty minutes in which to throw Cal Johnson twice. As a curtain raiser an exhibition will be put on by Walter McCoy and Eric Olund.

Cal Johnson is manager of the club, and the others who are at the head of the organization are: Walter McCoy, match promoter, and Bert Smith treasurer.

To Entertain Ministers.

The cabinet of the Epworth League of Grace M. E. church will meet tonight at the church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street to complete arrangements for tendering a reception to visiting delegates to the annual conference of Methodist churches, which will convene next week at the Grace M. E. church.

There are sixty churches to be represented at the meeting and it is thought that there will be nearly 100 visiting delegates in Duluth from the district. The congregation of the Grace M. E. church will do a large share of the entertaining and the Epworth league is in charge of the arrangements.

West End Shortrails.

Walter Nelson left last evening for Proctor, where he has accepted a position for the summer.

Oscar Lindquist expects to leave soon for Montana, where he will be employed.

J. M. Kelley of Brooklyn was a West end visitor yesterday.

Charles B. Ellinger of Toledo, Ohio, was registered yesterday at the Esmond.

Arrangements are now being made to hold the annual banquet of the Bema Debating society next Tuesday evening at the Spalding. Covers will be laid for about twenty.

Mrs. Grimerud and son, Fred, are back from a trip to Canada, where they have been visiting friends.

Miss Gladys Clark of 1811 West First street was hostess to a number of her friends yesterday afternoon at luncheon.

There will be choir practice tonight at St. Luke's Episcopal church. Prof. Reyner will direct.

Alfred Hauman is back from Lake Nebagamon, Wis., where he has been visiting his family.

Thomas Harney of St. Paul is visiting today at the West end.

The May festival of the Young Ladies' Aid Society of the First Swedish Baptist church will take place this evening.

The Adams Athletic association will give a dancing party this evening at Lincoln park pavilion.

Dr. Adolph Olson of the Sloan-Irwin block will leave next week for Minneapolis. After a short visit there he will sail for Europe, where he will spend the summer.

Mrs. J. O. Milne is at Crookston, Minn., attending a state Sunday school convention as a delegate from the Central Baptist church Sunday school.

Mayor R. D. Haven today received a vote of thanks from the North Star lodge of Good Templars, a West end order, for his action in vetoing the Meier saloon license.

The men of the Swedish M. E church will give a festival tonight at the church.

Bertha Otterson, 26 years of age, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. Otterson of 2201 West Eighth street, died at 2 o'clock this morning at the home of her parents. Death was due to a complication of diseases. She was ill about a week. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, from the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church with interment at Forest Hill cemetery.

TO MEET AT GRAFTON.

Tri-County Educational Association Gathers Friday.

Grafton, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual convention of the Tri-County Educational association will open here tomorrow morning. The sessions will continue all day Friday and Saturday, and there will be several hundred teachers present from Grand Forks, Walsh and Pembina counties, which are the counties included in the organization.

Friday morning the various committees will be named and there will also be an enrollment of delegates. In the afternoon, two important addresses will be delivered, one by President Louis Linn of Drayton, and the other by Prof. E. T. Fitch of Pembina. Friday evening, F. L. McVey of Minneapolis, the newly-elected president of the North Dakota university, will deliver an address. The election of officers and the transaction of such other business as may come up takes place on Saturday.

ONLY FAIR PLAY IS ASKED.

Much labor, much travail and much anxiety has been wasted if the people of Northern Minnesota have not convinced the people of the rest of the state that they ask only fair play and justice.

If that conviction is not yet accomplished, the work must be taken up again and continued until there is no question that it is successful.

Northern Minnesota asks no special privileges or exemptions in taxation, legislative representation, appropriations or anything else.

In taxation, it asks only to be taxed as the rest of the state taxes itself. It asks to be granted the same proportion from the taxes raised upon its property that other parts of the state receive from the taxes levied upon their property. It needs more, because its task of developing this part of the state, which but yesterday was a wilderness, is greater than any other part of the state has ever encountered; but it asks no more, and it will be content with the same share that other sections get.

St. Louis county, for instance, gets back from the state in various distributions of road and school taxes 16 per cent of what it pays to the state in direct taxes. No other county gets back less than 35 per cent of what it pays, and fifty-nine counties out of the eighty-five get back more than they pay—some of them twice as much. The other counties of Northern Minnesota are in a similar condition, but none of them asks that this be changed. Yet all of them ask that the burden be not increased in a greater proportion than the burdens on other sections are increased.

The people of Northern Minnesota ask nothing but equality in taxation. They haven't equality now, but they are willing to let matters stand as they are, providing the inequality is not increased.

In legislative representation Northern Minnesota does not ask even so much as Southern Minnesota now enjoys, but it does ask representation according to its population, and that right the Constitution and all considerations of decency and justice concede it.

Northern Minnesota wants to be taxed just as other sections are taxed, and it wants to be represented in the law-making body just as much as it is entitled to, and no more.

Northern Minnesota is proud of the state, and wants to be a part of it. It wants to be considered as a part of the state household. It does not ask to sit at the head of the table, but it does ask that it be not treated as a poor relation, and ignominously placed with the vassals in the kitchen.

It asks those who have harbored plans unfriendly to this section to make an effort to throw down the bars of sectionalism, to look at state problems with state-wide vision, and to see from its viewpoint, for a moment at least, those questions that have become sectional, but that ought to be considered in the light of a common interest.

This isn't asking much. It is a request humble enough to receive consideration from the most unfeeling landlord; surely it ought to be considered by those who are our fellow citizens.

THE COURT AND THE COAL TRUST.

The delightful humor of the supreme court's decision in the case involving the ownership of coal mines by coal-carrying roads grows upon one with contemplation.

The court says congress acted within its powers when it passed a law prohibiting railroads from owning, "directly or indirectly," the commodities they transport. But the court also says that while railroads can't own the coal, they can own the companies that do own the coal. In other words, congress can pass laws to that effect, but they mustn't be construed so as to prevent the coal trust railroads from controlling the coal trust mines—and thereby controlling all mines.

This leaves congress and the law in the position of the young person who wanted to go swimming, as described in the ancient verse:

"Mother, may I go out to swim?"
"Yes, my darling daughter.
Hang your clothes in a hickory limb,
And don't go near the water."

FLAG DAY COMING.

Monday, June 14, will be "flag day," the 132d anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes as the flag of the United States, and steps are being taken to see that it is properly observed all over the country.

The schools afford the best place for such observances, and it is unfortunate that the decision to adopt the Stars and Stripes was not made a little earlier in the year, so that the anniversary would come before most of the school terms have ended. The summer vacation will have begun in Duluth before Flag day comes, so there will be no opportunity to impress upon the minds of the pupils the glory of the anniversary and the associations of the beautiful banner whose birthday it is.

However, it is very fitting that the day should be observed as generally as possible, and at the very least every flag owned in Duluth should fly on that day. The flag is good to look upon any time, but it should be exhibited on its birthday, if at no other season of the year.

The American Flag association, an association of individuals and flag committees from patriotic societies formed in 1897 to promote reverence for and prevent the desecration of the flag, has issued its usual circular addressed to all state governors, all mayors, the press, the officers and members of all American patriotic societies, and to all loyal citizens everywhere. The circular comments upon the increasing observance of the day, and points out that the governors of many states now make it a practice to call public attention to the occasion by proclamations and to order the flag to be displayed on all state buildings. Most of the mayors have ordered flags to be displayed in their respective cities, and have by formal proclamation invited their fellow citizens to do the same upon private buildings. School officers and teachers, where schools are in session, have generally observed the occasion in a proper manner. In short, the observance of the day is growing yearly, and it is good that this is so.

On June 14, 1777, congress enacted "that the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." The number of the stripes having been increased by the admission of new states, the possibilities of the nation's future development dawned upon the fathers, and the original thirteen stripes were unchangeably restored by act of congress on April 4, 1818, when it was enacted: "That from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States shall be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be twenty stars, white in a blue field, and that on the admission of a new state into the Union, one star be added to the union of the flag; and such addition shall take effect on the fourth day of July next succeeding such admission." Since then, twenty-six stars have been added to the union, and now there are forty-six in all.

Every citizen should give the flag a thought on its birthday, and every flag in Duluth should fly on that day.

FROM ONE WHO KNOWS.

The advice to young men which Peter Van Vlissingen issued the other day, and which The Herald reported last night, is not different from advice which many other people have freely offered, but its source gives it peculiar value. For Van Vlissingen knows what he is talking about. He is the man who is serving a sentence for robbing his trustful clients of a great deal of money through an intricate system of forgeries running over twenty years.

"Be honest in small things," says this man who knows; "all criminals begin by practising small dishonesties." Unquestionably that was the way he began, and his habit grew upon him so that he lived many years in the shadow of impending disgrace, and it was a real relief to him when the whole thing came out and he went to prison.

"Be economical," he continues, "and never risk other people's money in a venture, no matter how certain success may seem." It is a curious fatality that when you risk other people's money in a "sure thing," intending to take the profit yourself and replace the stolen capital, the "sure thing" usually turns out badly, and then you have to steal more and make new ventures in the hope of "squaring things up."

"Once you commit a wrong," he concludes, "make restitution immediately, for delay means ruin, maybe death." Van Vlissingen's personal history tells all this, so the drawing of a moral isn't needed.

Once this man was known as "Honest Pete." People had confidence in him, and trusted their money to him. Then he stole $2,500, and first thing he knew he was entrapped in a dreadful coil of dishonesty, trying to "get square" again and make restitution. It all ended in the penitentiary, from whence Van Vlissingen issues moral instructions to young men. His story is instruction enough. Young men who have thoughtlessly taken that first step should think it over and turn back—if they can. It isn't easy to turn back, so young men who haven't taken it will do well to think over the fate of "Honest Pete," and be sure they never do take it.

LIFTING UP AND KICKING DOWN.

The New York legislature recently considered, without acting upon it, a bill which proposed a radical change in the treatment of "drunks." Instead of treating them as criminals, as the practice now is in almost all communities, the bill proposed to treat them as sick persons, and to attempt a cure.

Of course they are sick people. Inebriety is a disease, just as much as dyspepsia is a disease. Eliminating cases of heredity, it is true that the inebriate made himself sick by indulging too long in alcoholic "pleasures," but it is also true that the dyspeptic made himself ill by neglect of his stomach.

If the drunkard hadn't started with an occasional drink, hadn't fallen into the habit of taking his drinks steadily, hadn't allowed the practice to grow until it possessed him body and soul and became the greatest factor in his life, crowding out all good and all hope, he wouldn't be a victim of the disease of alcoholism.

But if the dyspeptic hadn't indulged himself too freely in the pleasures of the table, if he hadn't fallen into the habit of "bolting" his food, if he hadn't abused his long-suffering stomach for many years, he wouldn't be a victim of hydra-headed indigestion.

So the drunkard is entitled to pretty nearly as much sympathy as the dyspeptic, and he is quite as needful of a helpful hand.

No advance whatever in the cure of alcoholism, as a public vice or as an individual ailment, has been made by the time-dishonored practice of arresting drunkards and sending them to jail. In fact, it is certain that more drunkards have been confirmed in their drunkenness by this method of treating the evil than have been turned back into paths of sobriety and usefulness. Once a man on the downward path has served a jail sentence, the sting of it is gone, and pride has gone as well. If instead of that first jail sentence, the public turned the victim over to a hospital and built up his physical system while saving his pride from defeat by averting the ignominy of the jail, society would be saving a man and making a useful citizen. Under the present system of treating the drunkard as a criminal, the public makes him one and finally turns him into a worthless and degraded sot, whose end will be in the horrors of delirium tremens if he does not make away with himself if a drunken frenzy.

The New York bill is a good one, and deserved more careful consideration than it got. Some day it will be generally adopted, and in the meantime the judges before whom such unfortunates come can do much by a probation system. The New York plan was to provide a public hospital for inebriates, where habitual drunkards could be detained until they were cured. Instead of sentencing a drunkard to jail and to final defeat, the New York plan would sentence him to a hospital, to recovery, and to recovered manhood and citizenship. Surely this is better than the old way.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

President G. H. Summers of the Steel Car company of Pittsburg was at the Spalding hotel yesterday. Mr. Summers is at the head of the company that has been manufacturing the new patent steel cars that have been placed in use upon the Duluth & Iron Range railway.

Mr. Summers believes that Duluth has one of the brightest futures of any city in the Northwest.

He figures that it will be more economical for the lake boats to have a cargo of coal upon the up trip, than to take the products of the earth direct from the mines to the plants at the other end of the lakes and then bring the manufactured steel back again for the Western markets.

In the course of his business here, Mr. Summers has had occasion to visit different parts of the iron country. With that great industry to draw from he, like other people, who have visited this city, cannot understand why Duluth at the present time is not a larger city.

Mr. Summers stated that the people in Pittsburg take a great interest in the commercial development of Duluth, for the reason that they are well aware that Duluth is one of the great iron centers of this country.

Mr. Summers stated that the general business atmosphere in Pittsburg had greatly improved, which is taken to mean that the iron industry is upon a more prosperous basis, for the prosperity of the iron business is a barometer of the business welfare of Pittsburg.

He also stated that while this improvement in all lines of business would be consistent and not too hurried, there was already manifest a decided improvement in the affairs of the country. Mr. Summers is inclined to believe that there is a trifle too much money in the banks of the country. By this he meant that there was not enough being placed in legitimate and safe business investments.

He stated the recent troubles of this country and the present recovery in this manner:

"If I start out to run any distance I can get along very nicely, should I confine myself to a well regulated pace. However, should I start and attempt to run the distance at top speed, straining every nerve and muscle, I will find that I will be compelled to pull up, exhausted and unable to continue at even a respectable pace until I recover my wind and strength.

"That is an illustration of the financial condition of the United States. We are at the present time recovering our wind and strength, but in the future we should not attempt so fast a pace that our strength and wind will be exhausted."

G. C. Roney, who has been appointed chief clerk of the passenger department of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway, is a Southern railroad man. Mr. Roney is from Atlanta, and at the Spalding yesterday stated that railroad conditions all through the South were improving and that the antiquated methods of the past were being supplanted by modern and up-to-date methods of railroading.

While believing that perhaps the general railroad efficiency of the South is not upon a par with that of the railroads in this part of the country, Mr. Roney says that there is a constant improvement being made in the Southern railroads.

Not only are the big systems spending money in making improvements, but the smaller lines are being improved and the service of all lines changed for the better.

The secret of Thomas Sullivan's success in vocalization and orchestration is explained by James W. Sargent. Mr. Sargent is an authority upon music and things musical. He has delved deeply into musical lore and has discovered that the Sullivans of auld Ireland were of a distinctly musical turn of mind.

Going further in his investigation of the Sullivan subject, Mr. Sargent finds that Mr. Tom Sullivan is a distant relative of the Sullivan of Gilbert and Sullivan fame.

Under these illuminating disclosures, of course, it is easy to see from whence Mr. Sullivan derives his ability in the tinkle-tinkle line.

THE WEATHER.

CLOUDY

Boo-r-rh! The cool breezes certainly did instill a chill in the air last night and this morning. About the time the sun began sinking behind the weather bureau yesterday afternoon a chilly wind sprang up from the lake, and overcoats, which had been discarded early in the day, were hastily replaced on Duluth shoulders. Outer coats were by no means out of place today. The breeze is still on and the lake in the vicinity of Park Point has been whipped to a nice froth.

The cloudiness and the breeziness is expected to continue today and tonight, giving way to warmer weather tomorrow.

Sunrise time this morning was 4:43 and the sun is scheduled to set at 7:25. The weather a year ago today was clear and cool.

Mr. Richardson says of weather conditions:

"The storm continues general over Minnesota and Wisconsin. During the past twenty-four hours this disturbance caused abnormally high temperature in Central Valley states, high winds in the Red river and Missouri valleys and on Western Lake Superior, and rain or snow in Southern Montana and Wyoming, and rain in the Dakotas, Manitoba, Southern Wisconsin, the southeastern lake region, upper New England, Southern Florida and Eastern Texas. An area of high pressure over the Far West is causing colder weather in Rocky mountain districts, Eastern slopes and the Red river valley. Falling pressures in British Columbia are attended by rising temperatures. Freezing and frosty weather occurred this morning in Montana, Wyoming and Colorado.

Dress Reform Needed.

Judge: Mrs. J. Gardiner Merritt, the sculptor, is very fond of illustrating the need of dress reform for women by the following experience:

"I heard a young man, a rather lazy young man, tell a pretty girl the other day that he envied woman her idleness, that he would like to have been born a woman.

"The girl, tossing her head and snorting, answered:

"'You'd like to be a woman! Oh, yes! Just try it for a day! Fasten a blanket and mainpane 'round your legs; buckle a strap 'round your waist so tight you can't draw a full breath or eat a hearty meal; have your hair all loose and fluffy, so that it keeps tickling your ears and getting into your eyes; wear high-heeled shoes and gloves a size too small for you; cover your face with a veil full of spots, that make you squint; fix a huge hat on with pins, so that every time the wind blows it pulls your hair out by the roots, and then, without any pockets, and with a three-inch square of lace to blow your nose with, go for a walk and enjoy yourself. You would like it!'"

Trouble Averted.

Harper's Magazine: A Washington man, much given to long foot tours through Virginia, once came upon an unkempt and melancholy-looking person stretched under a tree, who, upon the approach of the pedestrian, immediately executed a "hurry touch" for a dime.

Now the Washington man had, a short distance back, been talking to a prosperous farmer, who had complained of the difficulty of obtaining labor; accordingly he said to the hobo as he handed him the coin:

"About half a mile down, my friend, there's a farmer looking for men to help him in his fields."

The melancholy-looking person bowed as politely as possible, considering his sitting posture, and replied: "Thanks, I might er strolled down that way accidental-like."

Debate.

Life: Debate is an ancient form of considering matters of public policy Through it, many men, such as Patrick Henry, Daniel Webster, etc., became famous. It has now become one of the most sacred Cannons of our government that no debate shall be held unless the subject is one in which nobody is interested.

This revelation is due in part to the fear that democracy will survive; in part to the fear that the people will find out what their representatives are doing; in part to the rapid growth of congressional and senatorial courtesy which makes it bad form for one legislator to disagree with another, unless one of them is a Democrat, and Democrats don't count, being only for show; and in part to the fact that the people, knowing very little about public affairs, care less.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A woman can guess straighter than a man can reason.

There's nothing a girl can be so artful about as making you think it's artlessness.

Ideals are like the small coins in loose change—you never know where they disappear.

Most of the nonsensical things we do come from how smart we think our way of doing them is.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

La Porte News: 'Tis said that it was ex-Attorney General Young, who drafted the tonnage tax bill. Let's see, wasn't it the same young who drew up a "bill" to prohibit the United States district courts from doing business in Minnesota(?)

Hibbing Tribune: Governor Johnson has gone on a vacation, but the newspapers of the state refuse to take a vacation from saying nice things about his veto of the tonnage tax bill.

New Ulm News: Governor Johnson has vetoed the bill fixing a tonnage tax in addition to the usual tax on iron mines of the northern section of the state. The governor argues that the tonnage tax bill is sectional and double taxation, and states that the assessment of the iron mines was increased in future years, from 1905 to 1908, from $42,000,000 to $180,000,000, bringing into the state treasury an increase in four years from $114,000 to $600,000. His veto may not be popular now, but a broad sense of justice will change public opinion. A tonnage tax on the iron mines, in addition to the ordinary taxation, is largely sectional, and is popular in the southern half of the state because it is aimed at corporations, which always wins votes from cowardly legislators who are looking for further political advancement. Many laws are passed on this basis alone.

Albany, Stearns county, Tribune: Some of the wise ones thought that Governor Johnson could not possibly dispose of the tonnage tax measure without signing his own political death warrant. But his disposition of the measure has simply put another feather to his cap. His reasons for vetoing the bill were so patent and so fair, that even his opponents will be ashamed to accuse him of being the tool of the steel trust.

Walker Pilot: The Democratic leaders are beginning to yawn every time the name of Bryan is sprung. But mention Johnson to them and they are wide awake.

Hutchinson Leader: The Northfield News in a long and labored editorial maintains that Governor Johnson stultified himself and played politics in vetoing the tonnage tax bill. The governor during the campaign expressly stated that he was opposed to any law that would cripple the revenues of the towns on the ranges, which this bill promised to do. Then why was he not consistent when he vetoed the bill? As to playing politics, whatever his action there would have been some who would have laid the charge at his door. But among fair-minded men who were strongly in favor of the bill we judge from interviews in the state press there is almost universal agreement that the governor gave ample reasons for his veto and he is commended for it by leading members of all political parties. The governor has for a good many years been doing what he thought was right without regard to consequences and that kind of "playing politics" seems to suit the people of Minnesota very well.

Virginia Enterprise: "A mint," says the wise man, "can make money without advertising, but nobody else can."

Albert Lea Tribune: Everyone who would not have to pay an income tax wants it. Those who would have to pay are against it. The yeas seem to have it.

He Got the Direction.

Cleveland Leader: But recently arrived, a shade bustled up to St. Peter. "My good man," said he, "will you tell me where I must go to get souvenir postcards?"

And St. Peter, eyeing him sourly, told him where he could go to.

MEANT TO BE FUNNY.

Washington Star: Business—"Why don't you write something that will live?" asked the critical friend.

"Don't display your ignorance," replied the self-satisfied author. "Don't you know that most of the works that lived were originally accounted among the worst sellers?"

Judge: Howell—I eat only one meal a day.

Powell—Is that so?

Howell—Yes; I have the other two at home.

Chicago News: Barber (rather slow)—Beg pardon, sir, but your hair is turning a bit gray.

Victim—Shouldn't wonder. Look at the time I've been here.

Tit-Bits: Maude—I'm a little uneasy in my mind. Ned asked me to marry him and I told him I might some day. Now, would you call that a promise?

Marie—No; I should call it a threat.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: "Give my consent for you to marry my daughter? Never, sir!

"All right," said the young man, "then we'll get married without it."

"Good boy! I figure that'll be cheaper."

Chicago News: Professor—What was Nero's great crime?

Bright Pupil—He played the fiddle.

Judge: Knicker—Did you look into the sea of upturned faces?

Orator—Er—yes, but the tide was evidently out.

Boston Transcript: She—Bell says she can read her husband like a book.

He—Ah, yes. He is her third volume, isn't he?

Lippincott's Magazine: Hubby—What! You paid $50 for that Easter hat? It's monstrous—it's a sin.

Wife (sweetly)—No matter; the sin will be on my own head!

Cleveland Leader: "She has always married well."

"Yes, but she divorces better."

"Huh?"

"She has retired on her allmony."

London Graphic: "How fast was he going?" asked Magistrate Krotel.

"So fast that the bulldog on the seat beside him looked like a dachshund," replied the copper. And the accused was held for sessions.

Gave Her Fair Warning.

Woman's Journal: A deaf, but pious English lady visiting a small country town in Scotland, went to church armed with an ear-trumpet. The elders had never seen one, and viewed it with suspicion and uneasiness. After a short consultation, one of them went up to the lady, just before the opening of the services, and wagging his finger at her warningly, whispered, "One toot, and ye're oot!"

ON THE IRON RANGES

TOWER TO HAVE A LARGE HOTEL

Pittsburg and Superior Men Are Interested in Undertaking.

Tower, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new Tower hotel is assured and there is general rejoicing in town over the glad news. Ferdinand E. Kobb of Pittsburg and Robert Hudepohl of Superior arrived Tuesday bearing the plans and specifications for the building and a public meeting was held Tuesday evening in the city hall, where the plans and specifications were displayed for inspection.

The hotel is to be a three-story building, with forty bedrooms and modern in every way. And the citizens of Tower turned out at the meeting. The hall was so packed that there was scarcely a show room.

Mr. Kobb explained in detail the manner of construction in the various departments of the hotel, and he stated that the parties in the East interested in the building of the new hotel required that the citizens of Tower become interested in the enterprise by taking $4,000 worth of stock. This sum was guaranteed at the meeting. Twenty-three hundred and fifty dollars' worth of stock in the hotel was taken at the meeting. A committee was appointed to go around town and get the balance which would be easily raised in a day or two.

Mr. Kobb stated that the reason the Eastern capitalists wanted the $4,000 to be raised in Tower was not altogether for the sake of getting this money but to test the good faith of local people in the enterprise. All agree that is nothing but right and are glad to have this opportunity of once more having an up-to-date modern hotel. This with the summer resort already established on Lake Vermilion, will in time make Tower and the beautiful lake Vermilion one of the most popular resorts. This section has the natural scenery. The boating and bathing in lake Vermilion cannot be surpassed anywhere.

SCHOOL BOARD SEEKS RULING

Desires Further Light Before Deciding Upon High School Site.

Virginia, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of education yesterday did not decide on the question of a site for the proposed new high school. The baseball park is still intact and may remain so for some time. The members of the board don't know what they should do and they are going to submit the entire question to Attorney General George T. Simpson, for an opinion as to whether they must submit the questions of site and the raising of the money to the voters. They want to know just what their legal status is and until they do know they are going to do nothing.

The board yesterday afternoon inspected possible sites for grade schools. For the proposed grade school in the northern part of the city, which was authorized by a number of voters a few weeks ago they have two possible sites in sight. The Oliver Iron Mining company has offered to turn either of the sites over to the district, and a selection will probably soon be made. In the southern end of the city the board settled on a block in Anderson's addition as a site for another grade school. It would be built immediately, but that section of the city is growing up fast and the board wants to secure a site for a school now, when it probably can be purchased at a reasonable figure. The board has taken no definite action on the matter.

The board has established maximum salaries for teachers in the grades as follows: Kindergarten and seventh and eighth grades $85 a month; third, fourth fifth and sixth grades, $80 a month; first and second grades $80 a month.

Frank L. Young, W. T. Bray, E. G. Radcliffe and Clyde W. Kelly, Duluth architects, were in Virginia to attend the board meeting. There were also two or three Minneapolis architects all anxious to secure the preparing of plans for the proposed new high school.

NEW BUILDINGS BEING ERECTED

Considerable Work Going On and More Planned in Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the announcement of the change in the management at the Bijou theater comes the intelligence that the theater will be remodeled during the summer months. The upper floor will be taken out to make room for a balcony and the stage will be changed.

P. F. Bowling has commenced work on his combined theater and Elk lodge room. The building will face on Jones street and will extend in back of the present Eveleth Star printing office. It will be 125 feet deep.

The building now occupied by M. Feldman will be moved during the last of the month to a vacant lot near the Mers hospital. In its place a two-story department store will be put up by Mr. Feldman to be used by M. B. Greenblat now of Hibbing. The building will cost about $15,000. Max Shapiro will move one of his residences to the lot next to where the Feldman building will be moved to.

A number of residences are now in process of erection, but many people are finding it very hard to secure suitable houses.

MINE VICTIM BURIED.

Funeral of Victor Soula Held at Gilbert Today.

Eveleth, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Victor Soula, the Finnish miner who was killed yesterday morning at the Pettit mine near Gilbert by a rock falling from the drift in which he was working, was held today. The deceased's sister in Sparta has taken charge of the funeral arrangements. Interment was made in Virginia.

The condition of Mary Lenosi, the 5-year-old girl who was badly burned Tuesday evening while trying to make a fire is unchanged. The child's face is a mass of blisters, while her body is also badly burned. Her chances of recovery are good.

Owners of Machines on Range Perfect an Organization.

Virginia, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Iron Range Automobile club was organized at a meeting here last night, about a dozen automobile owners from the different range towns attending.

The following officers were elected: President, A. L. Myers, Virginia; vice president, G. D. Thompson, Hibbing; secretary, M. S. Kingston, Eveleth; treasurer, Norman McDonald, Virginia.

The club will affiliate with the American Automobile association and the Minnesota Automobile association. There are about fifty automobile owners on the range, and it is expected that all will join the club before the next meeting, which will be held Sunday, May 9, in Virginia. In the meantime the secretary will notify all automobile owners of the organization and will request them to send their application for membership.

AN UNDERGROUND FIGHT.

Three Virginians Alleged to Have Battled Below Surface.

Virginia, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—A fight underground in the Franklin mine brought George Vucivich, Paul Leianenich and Matt Bavich before Judge Carey in municipal court yesterday, charged with assaulting Frank Zelinski. They are claimed to have used a shovel and a candlestick in the assault and Zelinski was rather the worse for wear when he made the complaint. The men pleaded not guilty and were released on $25 bonds each to await trial today.

WILL CONSIDER PAVING.

One of Important Matters Coming Before Eveleth Club.

Eveleth, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Business Men's association will meet tonight when the question of paving Grant avenue will be considered. The questions of annexation of adjoining locations to Eveleth will also be discussed.

LA RUE MINE TO SHIP.

Butler Bros. Complete Spur to the Ore Pit.

Nashwauk, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Butler Bros. contractors have completed a spur leading to the ore pit. Tracks are being laid and one shovel will be put in operation. They will start shipping ore Monday.

Crockett Brown was a Duluth visitor the first of the week.

Miss Hattie F. Booth, superintendent of schools of Itasca county, spent Wednesday here.

Erik Johnson was a visitor here Sunday.

The Ladies' Aid society met with Mrs. J. C. Giles Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Nick Border and daughter Dorothy, are spending the week with relatives in Duluth.

AURORA APPOINTMENTS.

F. C. Witte Reappointed Village Marshal By the Council.

Aurora, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the village council meeting last night the following appointments were made: Marshal, F. C. Witte; night watchman, Dan K. Lang; pumpmen, E. D. Donaldson and Adolph Olson; scavanger, Charles Carlson; health officer, Dr. Edward Darrow; members of board of health Trustees Nicholas and Hill; village engineer, Emil Walgreen; street commissioner, Steve Patrick; official newspaper, the Aurora News.

The village engineer was instructed to give an estimate of the cost of laying pipe to the St. James creek and installing a pump for added fire protection and report at the next meeting. A new boiler will probably be purchased for the powerhouse after the report is in.

A drayman's license was granted to Isaac Williams, the fee being $10.

EXERCISED THEIR RIGHTS.

Members of Hibbing Council Defend Attitude on Appointments.

Hibbing, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The absorbing topic here is the resignation of President Welrick the election of his successor, Alderman Ansley, and the possibility of Peter McHardy resigning because he took umbrage to the council electing Ansley to succeed Welrick. As it has been gossip that Dr. Welrick resigned because the council took from him the power to fill offices, Messrs. Ansley, Butchart and Gandsey, three of the members upon whom such action reflected, claim they were acting within the rights of the majority to make the appointments deemed fit. They deny there has been any secrecy about the matter.

Max Rogalsky, David Graham, M. E. Pearce and Frank Dear are prominently mentioned for the vacancy caused by the elevation of Alderman Ansley to the mayorship. The fire chief has asked the council to appoint two more men on the department, one to be an electrician.

The appointment of George Nisch as driver of the hose wagon has been approved.

The report of Village Accountant Stewart for the month of April show receipts from water and light collections of $5,856.11. The April estimate on the city hall was allowed at $712.50. The pay roll for the month amounting to $5,325.08, was allowed.

The village attorney reported that a new petition for the annexation of Brooklyn would be necessary.

PLANNING MUCH WORK.

Canadian Northern Official Says Duluth Line Will Be Improved.

Fort Frances, Ont., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—M. A. Murphy the new divisional superintendent of the Canadian Northern railroad for this district was in town all Tuesday forenoon in company with Thomas Graham, superintendent of bridges and buildings, looking over the ground and getting acquainted with his duties. Mr. Murphy said that they were making preparations for a vigorous season's work on the main line and the Duluth branch so that the roadbed would be put into excellent shape.

The numerous bridges between Fort Frances and Fort Arthur will be greatly strengthened and the roadbed ballasted. In several places where there were bad curves the line would be shortened and the distance reduced.

TOURNAMENT IN AUGUST.

Mesaba Range Association to Sport at Aurora Aug. 25 and 26.

Aurora, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a firemen's meeting Tuesday night the dates for the tournament of the Mesaba Range Firemen's association were set for Aug. 25 and 26. Walter Kurkeet and A. C. Miller were admitted as members of the department.

UNIVERSITY STUDENTS VISIT EVELETH MINES.

Eveleth, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Some students from the University of Wisconsin were here yesterday looking over the mines. The party was headed by Prof. C. K. Keith, Dr. A. N. Winchell and Dr. Mansfield of Madison and Evanston. On Tuesday, six of the party were under the leadership of Prof. Bolden of the same university. Of the students in the party three are from the Northwestern university, two from Chicago and two are members of the Canadian Geological survey. They left yesterday noon for Duluth.

EVELETH CIVIC LEAGUE WILL ELECT MONDAY.

Eveleth, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Civic league will hold a meeting next Monday evening, when the officers for the ensuing year will be nominated and plans perfected for a banquet to celebrate the first anniversary of the organization of the league. Representatives from the Civic leagues of Duluth and Hibbing will be present, while several members of the other prominent Civic leagues are expected.

NASHWAUK CHILD HURT.

Nashwauk, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lapalla received a serious injury Tuesday afternoon. She was standing on the edge of a cement basement, which was nearly filled with water, on Second street. She lost her balance, falling ten feet. She was badly bruised, but not seriously injured.

Two Eveleth Entertainments.

Eveleth, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomorrow night, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Robb, the Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal church will have an old-fashioned spelling contest. Some other entertainment will also be given. A male quartette will sing. The Epworth league has reorganized during the months ago and has been steadily prospering.

The Crescent Literary society will give an entertainment tomorrow evening at the Fayal hall.

Looking Over State Lands.

Virginia, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Auditor Iverson and Attorney General George T. Simpson were in Virginia last night. They are looking over state lands, not with any definite matters in mind, but merely to familiarize themselves with the holdings of the state, Mr. Simpson says.

children. They amount to about 25,000 souls, and are today without homes, shops, tools, clothing or food.

Desperate In Defense.

"We do not know the exact origin of the struggle. I say struggle because this has not been a massacre in the sense that Armenians died without resisting. They fought desperately in self-defense, and the fury of the Turks increased in proportion as the Armenians succeeded in slaying Mohammedans. For two days preceding the outbreak there had been a bitter feud between Moslems and Christians. In one vineyard shooting was begun and hatred was aroused on April 12. An Armenian, who had been beaten, shot one of his opponents dead and wounded two others. This man escaped to Mersina and took passage on a vessel.

"The Turks in Adana then assumed a menacing attitude, which greatly alarmed the Armenians. The body of the Moslem killed in the vineyard was purposely dragged to an open square and left there exposed by the Turks as a fanatical challenge. A rumor spread among the Armenians April 14, that massacring by the Turks already had been begun and as a demonstration of self-defense a volley of shots was fired from the roofs of Christian houses. This in turn was interpreted in the Moslem quarters as an attack and the word spread like wildfire that the Armenians were in revolt and must be crushed.

Government Acquiesced.

"Subsequent events have shown clearly that the Adana government acquiesced. If it did not actually participate, in the cruel and indiscriminate attacks made with fire and rifle and sword upon the entire Armenian colony, including our protestant congregation, which, as a body, has been wholly loyal to the government. Two Christian prisoners, who escaped from government headquarters, declared that horsemen came in at intervals from outlying towns and villages and reported to the military authorities: 'Hamidieh is finished,' or 'Osminyeh is finished,' meaning, of course, that the Armenian populations of these places had been put to the sword. The military officers received this information as a matter of course.

"The further occupation of Mohammedan minarets by regular soldiers began shortly after noon of April 14, at the very outset of the struggle. These soldiers kept up a cruel fusillade into all parts of the Christian quarters. They were shielded by the parapets of the minarets. There were no patrols of soldiers or police all day Wednesday, the 14th, none on Thursday and none even on Friday at the real crisis, when a Moslem mob filled the streets from here to the river, surging against the walls of the girls' school. The government furnished us no protection whatever."

Reached the Governor.

Continuing, Mr. Trowbridge related how he had reached the governor of Adana by a dash across the city, carrying a Turkish flag and accompanied by two Turks.

"The governor was running about in dismay," Trowbridge said, "and he could scarcely give a coherent answer to my questions and demands. I told him of the murder of Henry Maurer and D. M. Rogers, American missionaries. He turned pale at my statement, although he must already have heard of the killings. His answers were: 'I cannot be responsible.' To this I replied: 'You must be responsible; we have no other force to rely on except the government. You have completely abandoned us in this crisis.'

"The governor was so alarmed and confused that it was clear he had no mastery of the situation. Prisoners and soldiers, common Turks, were running in and out of the governor's audience chamber. The governor finally conferred with his commandant, who ordered 150 troops, under Osman Bey, to be dispatched to the American school."

Shops All Looted.

On his way back to the mission house, Trowbridge observed that all the shops on the central square of Adana, both of Christian and Moslem, had been looted. He related various examples of the government's indifference to the safety of the Armenians or its participation in their killing.

Armenians begging refuge at government headquarters were killed in the Market place. Villagers who brought prisoners to the government headquarters were asked: "Why did you not finish the Ghours in the villages; why have you brought them here?"

Fifty Armenians were thrown into the river above Adana and drowned. Throughout the fighting, railroad, postal and telegraph communication was cut off.

It is Mr. Trowbridge's conviction that a plot existed to destroy the 50,000 Armenians in Adana province, and that of this total number 23,000 were slain.

WILLIE WHITLA POINTS TO BOYLE AND DRAMATICALLY ASSERTS "THAT IS THE MAN"

the question as to where boys go who do not tell the truth, by saying:

"They go to hell."

In his boyish way he told the story of the man who said his name was Mr. Jones calling for him with a buggy at the school, and telling him he had been sent to take him away on account of smallpox; that he was to take others also, and that "Billy" would meet his friends on the train.

Billy said "Mr. Jones" gave him a letter and asked him to write his mother's name and address on it, that he did so with a pencil and the man mailed it in Sharon. When asked to describe the difference in the man's appearance then and now "Billy" said that when he first saw the man "he had his whiskers here," pointing to his upper lip.

He said the man took the whiskers off after a while. When Abner Hancock, a barber of Niles, Ohio, was asked to stand up "Billy" identified him as the man who had shaved Boyle.

He told of the drive to Warren, the subsequent trip to Niles and Ashtabula, of visiting a park at Ashtabula and standing beside a cannon. Then he said he was taken to Cleveland, where he was told he was in a hospital. It contained, he said, two rooms and a bath. He told of hiding in the bottom of the buggy and in the box under the wash stand in the "hospital" lest the doctors should see him and put him in a post house. He said Mr. and Mrs. Jones directed him to do so.

The prosecution has secured the following statement:

"Holy Family Church, 417 West Twelfth street, Chicago, Ill.

"I, on the 4th day of February, 1906, I united in the bonds of matrimony Edward Schaeffer and Anna McDermott of this city, in the presence of John Butler and Mary Middleman, dispensation of differing religions having been obtained.

"G. A. GONZER, S. J.

"I certify that the above abstract is correct.

"W. J. PETERS, S. J."

Father Gonzer is stationed in Toledo, and T. C. Cochran, for the prosecution, made an effort to have him come here to try to identify Mrs. Boyle as the woman he had noted in marriage, but the priest declined to come.

Believing they could show that Mrs. Boyle is not legally married to James H. Boyle, the prosecution had her summoned as a witness for the state against Boyle, but the refusal of the priest to attempt the woman's identification has put a stop to efforts in this line.

blackmail than ever come to light, according to one of the men arrested, who says that in the majority of cases the victims of blackmailing schemes among the lower class of Italians are so afraid of the society that they do not report the outrages to the police.

The an Organizer.

Inspector Dean and the government officials "higher up," feel especially well pleased with the capture of Francesco Tino, who is not only a member of the society, but is an organizer, it is charged, who came to Northern Minnesota from the East for the purpose of getting new members for the society in this part of the country, and also for the purpose of following up certain cases spotted for tribute by his brothers in the East.

It is claimed that this man can be directly connected with several schemes for the extortion of money from unwilling and unfortunate victims, and it is also charged that he is wanted on a charge of murder in Port Arthur, Can., where he is said to have struck down a man in cold blood. He is suspected of having been connected with the deaths of others of his countrymen, and the same suspicion is lodged against his three friends who are now in custody. Blackmail can be proven against all of them, according to the expectation of officers working on the case.

Inspector Dean secured from the men a bunch of letters and papers. They are written in Italian, and have not as yet been translated, but it is believed they will throw additional light upon the operations of the society in this section of the United States, as well as elsewhere. Some of the communications are from Italy and others from different points in the United States. It required a lot of clever detective work on the part of Inspector Dean to round up the alleged criminals and Black Hand men. He has been working on the case constantly for several days past, having traced the Italians from Duluth to several of the range towns, finally finding them in Grand Rapids.

Betrayed By Squaw.

The fact that a Black Hand organizer was in this part of the country, and that he and a few companions were carrying on an organized system of extortion among the range miners, was first brought to Inspector Dean's attention, it is understood by an official communication notifying him that through the arrest of a half-breed squaw near Fort Frances, Ont., in company with a male companion, an alleged member of the Black Hand, it was learned that one of the members of this society, wanted on numerous and varied charges of crimes committed, either had been or were at that time in Duluth. Inspector Dean was instructed to begin working on the case at once. It was really the confession of Aggie Gordon, the half-breed squaw, which resulted in the ultimate rounding up of the principal members of the gang.

Inspector Dean had no very conclusive evidence to work on, but, starting in with the slender clues given him in the government letter he began a searching investigation in Duluth.

He learned that three of the men wanted had left Duluth a few days before, and gone to one of the range towns. There are so many foreigners of almost all nationalities, and so many Italians of the laboring classes, that the chance of locating this particular trio seemed slender, for even when one of the foreigners can tell of the whereabouts of a man wanted by the authorities, he often refuses to give any information, either through fear of the Black Hand or hatred of the police.

Traced to Hibbing.

Inspector Dean traced his men to Hibbing, and thought he was going to round them up there, but learned that they had left town, after having been implicated in a bold robbery, it is alleged. The next trace of them was found in Virginia, but the government inspector was again doomed to disappointment there. They had remained in the range town only two or three days, and then had disappeared. It was suspected there that they had been mixed up in a series of holdups. Inspector Dean learned from one Italian, who was more talkative than the others, that it was believed the men wanted might have gone to Bovey, Minn., and accordingly the government official hit the high spots for the mining center of the Western Mesaba range.

About all he had to work on, all this time, was a photograph showing Aggie Gordon, Tino and Cappoletta, the three standing hand in hand, in the graceful pose. At Bovey Inspector Dean again met with disappointment, but by this time the trail was getting warm, and he was able to ascertain that the much-desired trio had been there only a day ahead of him.

Inspector Dean's next stop was at Grand Rapids, Minn., and here he struck a really "hot scent." Feeling that he was on the vergeof rounding up the quarry, he asked the assistance of the local police authorities. One look at the photograph was enough for them.

"Guess we have the men you want, all right," said the chief. "They were pinched last night for being mixed up in about as raw a piece of highway robbery as has been brought to our notice in a long time. We now have them in jail."

It didn't take Inspector Dean long to learn that the three under arrest were the ones that he had been following. The evidence he had against them, in fact, was so conclusive that they admitted their identity.

Swears Vengeance.

"When I get out I'll kill the man who told on me, and drink his blood," Tino said to Inspector Dean, in dime novel style.

The men are wanted by the authorities of at least two Minnesota counties, St. Louis and Itasca, the government wants them, and the Canadian officials would like to lay their hands on the trio. Probably the United States government will get first choice. Meantime the men will be held at Grand Rapids, and before they have served out the jail sentence that will be given them, the government will be ready to act.

A concerted effort is being made by government sleuths all over the country to put the American branch of the Black Hand out of business, and it is liable to go hard with these particular men if the charges against them can be proven. The fourth, whose name is not yet known, is also wanted, it is understood to be just as seriously involved as the others. He is where he cannot get away before the government decides what to do with him.

The trio now under arrest in Grand Rapids is said to have worked extensively in the range towns, at Port Arthur and in Fort Frances, the Canadian town located just across the Rainy river from International Falls.

SHE QUIT,

But It Was a Hard Pull.

It is hard to believe that coffee will put a person in such a condition as it did an Ohio woman. She tells her own story:

"I did not believe coffee caused my trouble, and frequently said I liked it so well I would not, nor could not quit drinking it, even if it took my life, but I was a miserable sufferer from heart trouble and nervous prostration for four years.

"I was scarcely able to be around at all. Had no energy and did not care for anything. Was emaciated and had a constant pain around my heart until I thought I could not endure it. For months I never went to bed expecting to get up in the morning. I felt as though I was liable to die any time during the night.

"Frequently I had nervous chills and the least excitement would drive sleep away, and any little noise would upset me terribly. I was gradually getting worse until finally one time it came over me, and I asked myself what is the use of being sick all the time and buying medicine so that I could indulge myself in coffee?

"So I thought I would see if I could quit drinking coffee and got some Postum to help me quit. I made it strictly according to directions and I want to tell you that change was the greatest step in my life. It was easy to quit coffee because I had the Postum which I like better than I like the old coffee.

"One by one the old troubles left, and now I am in splendid health, nerves steady, heart all right and the pain all gone. Never have any more nervous chills, don't take any medicine, can do all my housework and have done a great deal beside.

"My sister-in-law, who visited me this summer, had been an invalid for some time, much as I was. I got her to quit coffee and drink Postum. She gained five pounds in three weeks, and I never saw such a change in any one's health."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

STATE-WIDE PROHIBITION NEAR MISSOURI DEFEAT

Jefferson City, Mo., May 6.—The Missouri senate has passed a resolution submitting to the people a state-wide prohibition constitutional amendment. The amendment, which came to the senate from the house, was amended with a tax rider which provides for doubling of the rate of taxation. The final vote was 23 to 8, with two senators not voting. The senate also took out of the amendment the provision making the amendment effective in 1913, if adopted by the people, and now, if the house concurs, it will become effective immediately if it carries at the next general election.

The debate was at times acrimonious between the wets and the drys of the senate.

The Women's Christian Temperance union representatives gave each senator a white carnation just before the prohibition measure was taken up.

It is predicted that because of the short time before the legislature adjourns, the house will not agree to the amendment calling for extra taxes and that no further action can be taken at this session. The prohibition advocates are much discouraged at the prospective defeat of the measure.

The house took a recess while the senate was discussing the prohibition resolution and attended the senate session in a body.

ALFALFA FOOD MILL BURNS; LOSS $125,000.

GERMAN AMBASSADOR GUEST OF MILWAUKEE.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 6.—The German Americans of this city are entertaining Count Johann von Bernstoff, German ambassador to the United States, today. The count will be the guest of the Citizens' league at a banquet tonight and tomorrow will be entertained by the Deutscher club.

TO ENTERTAIN BRYAN.

Gov. Burke and Other Prominent Ones to Honor Commoner.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Jennings Bryan, the Commoner, will receive a splendid reception at the hands of the people of Grand Forks when he comes here tomorrow to lecture. Mr. Bryan will arrive here in the evening from Cando, N. D., accompanied by Governor John Burke and several other prominent Democrats of the state. After the lecture he will be entertained in the Elk Club rooms, where a public reception will be tendered him. The arrangements are in the hands of the members of the order.

rot, of course, in public doubt, but in private conversation, that there are but few people comparatively who were interested in a reduction of duties. I know that the voices of those who are clamoring for an increase of custom public taxation are more distinctly heard in the corridors and committee rooms. There will come a time presently when the clamor of the millions who want relief will sound like the roar of a thousand Niagaras from one ocean to the other.

The people, he said, have seen the forces of competition gradually weakened in the larger fields of industry through concentration, combinations, agreements and "all other modern mechanism which an ingenious age has discovered." Continuing, he said:

"They have seen competition shut out of some of these fields by the intervention of excessive import duties. They have felt the injustice of the discriminations which the state power of our transportation systems can inflict. They know that these things were wrong; and after bearing the burden until it became intolerable, they began to move with irresistible strength along the pathway of reform. They have made some progress toward the regulation of transportation and the repression of corporate evils. The last administration will be remembered, so long as the history of our country is preserved, for its victories in the struggle for rate regulation and for corporate fair dealing.

Work Just Begun.

"The work has just begun, and I sincerely hope that the present administration will be no less distinguished than the last one for its energy in dealing with the perplexing problems. If we fall now to substantially reduce the duties upon the import schedules, we but postpone the justice due to the people, a justice which, thanks to the genius of our institutions, they have the power to enforce, and which in the fullness of time they will enforce."

Passing to a consideration of the lumber schedule, it said it made little difference whether there was a duty or not, so far as the preservation of the forests was concerned. With respect to the cost of production in the greater part of the United States at least, he said, the American had the advantage of the Canadian, and a duty was only necessary to equalize a disparity in rates of transportation. Of "We have one corporation whose output is substantially one-half of the whole.

"I trust that I will be looked upon as conservative when I say that if the government interferes with foreign competition so as to permit such an enterprise as this to earn 6 per cent per annum it will have performed its full duty under the policy of protection. If it can make more, well and good; but it cannot ask the government to keep away a competitor so that it will make more. With this understanding I have it in mind to inquire into the capital of the United States Steel corporation."

Referring to various consolidations of plants by the United States Steel corporation, Mr. Cummins said if that corporation had been honestly capitalized the capital to be rewarded with a return from the profits of the business would have been less than $700,000,000.

"If the United States Steel corporation needs no protection," he said, "the independent companies cannot need the duties imposed by this bill. I shall, when these paragraphs are reached, propose amendments reducing the duties below those shown in the report of the finance committee substantially 33 1-3 per cent."

Health and Beauty Hints

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

J. M. S.: No; I do not know of any means to increase the height. "How to grow tall" is beyond my knowledge. I advise you to quit worrying and be content to remain as you are. I am glad you like my shampoo recipe and I am sorry you had trouble in getting canthrox. I never mention an ingredient for any recipe that you can not obtain in any first-class drug store without difficulty. If your druggist happens to be out of any article named he can easily obtain it from his wholesaler.

Anxious Inquirer: Large pores and blackheads are frequently caused by use of face powders. Almozoin cream jelly (you can make it yourself) is the best remedy I know for clearing the skin of blackheads, large pores, certain types of pimples, etc. Put an ounce of almozoin in a fruit jar and add ½ pint of cold water and two teaspoonfuls of glycerine, stir briskly for a few minutes and let stand until it becomes a thick cream jelly. For massaging, apply with the fingers and let remain for a minute on the face, and then rub well with the hands. The dirt will at once roll off and the pores will be thoroughly cleansed. In cases of tan, freckles, chapped face, etc., apply and let remain for a few hours. It contains no fats or oils that will cause hair to grow, so you can use it as freely as you wish.

X. Y. Z.: Face lotions or washes are to be preferred to ordinary face powders, but the manufactured brands are pretty expensive for every-day use. Your sallow, dark and oily skin can be made white and more youthful if you will use this recipe: To a half pint of hot water and two teaspoonfuls of glycerine add 4 ounces of spurmax; let stand until cold. Apply to the hands and face with the palm of the hand and continue rubbing the skin where applied until dry. This is a complexion beautifier that whitens the skin. It is also good for cold-sores.

Ellen R.: To keep your eyes bright and clear, use an eye tonic made by dissolving an ounce of crystos in a pint of water. This makes an eye tonic that is good for tired, weak or inflamed eyes. It will not smart or burn. It strengthens the sight, tends to make the eyes beautiful and lustrous, and is an aid to those who wear glasses. Apply by dropping one or two drops in each eye.

Grace J.: Your blood is out of order and the blotches on your face are probably caused by torpid liver. Get from your druggist one ounce of kardene and half pint of alcohol; these add half tea cup of sugar and put into 1½ pints of boiling water. This will make a splendid blood tonic and liver invigorator and it is a good remedy for pimples, yellow blotches, sallow complexion, scrofula and all eruptions of the skin. Take 1 tablespoonful 5 minutes before each meal and before retiring. Keep outdoors as much as possible.

Robt. W.: You can make a fine quinine hair tonic as follows: To one ounce of quinola add ½ pint of alcohol and ½ pint of cold water; let stand until the quinola is dissolved. Rub in well until absorbed. This will remove dandruff, and stop falling hair, relieve itching scalp, keep the scalp in healthy condition, and promote the growth of hair, if used once or twice a week. Shampoo the hair twice a month. See answer to B. B.

B. B.: The best and cheapest shampoo I know of is made from pure, plain canthrox. Simply dissolve a teaspoonful of canthrox in a tea cup of hot water and stir well until all is dissolved; then proceed to shampoo by pouring it on the hair and rubbing well. This makes a fine lather and cleans the scalp, relieves irritation and makes the hair soft and fluffy—and such a shampoo costs less than one cent. See answer to Robt. W. for making a good hair tonic.

M. W.: It is true that exercising and dieting have brought about satisfactory results to many who considered themselves too fat, but if you are so situated that you can not take exercise and find that dieting weakens you, I would advise you to try a simple mixture of parnotis and warm water. Put 4 ounces of parnotis in a pint of warm water and shake well until dissolved. When cold it is ready for use. Take a tablespoonful 3 times a day and just before meals. This is a harmless flesh reducer.

Mrs. L. L.: Yes, eczema is frequently caused by housework. Exposing the hands to hot water, the heat of the oven, or other changes of temperature brings about this affliction. A good remedy for eczema, tetter and other skin diseases is made by mixing 4 ounces of luxor with ½ pint of water and 4 tablespoonfuls of alcohol. After shaking the bottle, pour a small quantity upon the rough and itching surface and allow it to dry, repeating the treatment several times each day until the irritation disappears and the skin is restored to a healthy condition.

J. G. M.: For unbroken chilblains rubbing with common table salt is one of the best remedies known. Add just enough water to make the salt damp.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

If you have anything from a discarded Merry Widow hat to a copy of "The Journal of a Neglected Wife," for which you have no longer any use, you may communicate with Mrs. A. C. Hubbell, 1105 East First street, and a dray will call at your home to relieve you of the hat or the "Journal," or any other item you may mention.

The second annual rummage sale for the benefit of the Children's home will be held Wednesday and Thursday of next week at the store room at 107 West Superior street. Last year more than $300 was realized for the home as a result of this sale, and as more time and preparation have been expended on the sale this year, it is expected that a much larger sum will be realized. The city has been carefully divided into sections and the members of the board, insofar as it is possible, have endeavored to reach the housekeepers and explain to them the object of the sale and their desire to receive any contribution which it is possible to give.

The sale acts as a common benefit—for the housekeepers to keep the home clear of the many articles which have outlived their usefulness in the present place and for those who may be in need of just those articles.

If any one has been overlooked in soliciting contributions they are urged to notify Mrs. Hubbell, or any member of the board. Drays will be sent out Monday morning at 9 o'clock to all parts of the city to collect the contributions to the sale.

Among the Duluth firms that have contributed new clothing and articles of furniture and groceries to the sale are: Lundmark & Franson, Silberstein & Bondy, L. Treimuth, Panton & White, French & Bassett. Miss Meinling and a contribution from A. D. Goodman.

The sale will resemble a regular department store. There are to be fourteen departments, and the millinery has been prepared with especial taste and care, and this section promises to be worthy of particular attention. A woman of the board is in charge of each department, and the sale promises to be the event of next week which will receive most attention.

MRS. VAN LOO RETURNS

Was a Passenger on Ill-Fated "Republic."

Mrs. Katherine Van Loo has returned from the East, where she has been visiting for several months. Mrs. Van Loo left Duluth in the early winter for the East, and sailed from New York on the steamer Republic, which met with the accident the morning following the sailing from New York. On the boat for the same trip were Mrs. A. M. Miller and Mr. and Mrs. J. T. McCarthy of Duluth and Mr. and Mrs. Brisbine of Minneapolis, who formerly lived here. After the disaster Mrs. Van Loo visited in the East, at Rochester, Boston, New York and Columbus, Ohio. She did not again plan to go to Europe, for the clothes and all the effects of the lost passengers were lost and too much time would have been spent in preparation for the second start across the water. Mrs. Van Loo has completely recovered from the shock of the accident and is forgetting as rapidly as possible the unfortunate beginning of her European trip. One of the passengers, a young woman from Brooklyn, has not recovered from the nervous strain induced by the collision of the ships, and has been seriously ill ever since, although the widely discussed event took place three months ago.

WED AT ANN ARBOR.

Miss Manwaring Becomes Bride of L. F. Bowman.

The wedding of Miss Gladys Eliza Manwaring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Manwaring of Ann Arbor, and Lawrence Frederick Bowman of this city, took place Monday at the home of the bride's parents at Ann Arbor. Mr. Bowman and his bride will return to Duluth and after May 15 will be at home at 119 Sixth avenue west. Mrs. Bowman is well known in Duluth, having formerly lived at Superior and has often visited here.

Afternoon Reception.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Patrick have as their guest Mr. Patrick's sister, Mrs. Newell Dwight Hillis of Brooklyn, N. Y. Mrs. Patrick has issued invitations for a reception Saturday afternoon of this week, in compliment to Mrs. Hillis. About eighty guests will be entertained.

Card Party.

Mrs. H. W. Hanson entertained at cards yesterday afternoon at her home, 211 Twenty-ninth avenue west. Cinch was played and the favors were won by Mrs. Buchanan and Mrs. Christopherson. The guests were:

Mesdames—	Buchanan,
Wilson,	S. Barncard,
Osterberg,	Carroll,
W. Barncard,	Milligan,
Christopherson.	Ryan.

Palestine Assembly.

The members of the Palestine Assembly will entertain at the fifth dancing party in the series Thursday evening of next week, at the ballroom of the Masonic temple. La Brosse's orchestra will play the program of dancing music, and card tables will be provided for the guests who do not care to dance. The committees in charge of the affairs are: Executive, Andrew C. Volk, Hugh J. McClearn, J. W. Kreltter, A. J. Aherns and C. R. Pattinson; reception, H. L. Dresser, William Clifford, J. E. Cooley, F. Le Duc and B. P. Neff; floor committee, J. E. MacGregor, Wade Clark, P. N. Dennis, C. F. How, Jr., and W. H. Hoyt.

Luncheon.

Mrs. William M. Hubbard will entertain at luncheon Saturday at her home, 1430 East First street, in honor of Mrs. A. E. Shores of Tacoma, who is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. A. E. Walker.

Church Meeting.

The Women's Auxiliary of St. Paul's church will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. Walbank of 428 East Second street. The text for the afternoon will be "Mercy," with Mrs. R. H. Doran as leader.

Circle to Sew.

The East End Circle of Pilgrim Congregational church will meet tomorrow afternoon at the Children's Home to do the weekly patching and darning. The members will meet at the home at 2 o'clock and sew until 5.

Sing at Minneapolis.

Miss Laurette Rietz of this city will sing a song recital at the Minneapolis Commercial club rooms Saturday afternoon of this week. The program to be presented will be as follows:

"Ave Maria"	Cavalleria
Rusticana"	Mascagni
"The Robin Song"	Neidlinger
"Love Me Just Because," from "Stubborn Cinderella"
"Who Is Sylvia" (In English)	Schubert
"When Song Is Sweet"	Sans Souci

Miss Rietz was the soloist last Sunday morning at the Tuttle Universalist church at Minneapolis.

Personal Mention.

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Clark and Dr. and Mrs. Wade Clark are at home at 1432 East First street.

* * *

Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Taylor have moved and are now at home at the Kensington flats, 1422 East Third street.

* * *

Mrs. S. L. Frazer has returned from a several weeks' visit at Columbus, Ohio.

* * *

Mrs. C. H. Bagley will return Saturday from a visit in the East.

* * *

Mrs. Hebbert of Calumet is a guest at the home of her son-in-law, E. S. Collins of 514 East First street. Mrs. Collins is ill at the hospital with diphtheria.

* * *

Miss Mary Gardner and her mother of 919 East First street have gone East to spend the summer.

PARTED HAIR

Is the Only Style Fashion Permits.

The girl with the retrousse nose has gone to her boudoir to weep. The people who order the arrangement of hair have formed a final cabal against her and the edict from the haute monde is that she shall abandon her pompadour positive and shall dress her hair a la the plaster cast of Venus or Psyche which stands on her writing desk, says an exchange. Every one knows the coiffure of the plaster cast—how it ripples decorously back from a short, square brow, a straight, undented nose and a face of soft and tranquil contours, and how it terminates in the back in a shapely knot which owes its proportions neither to puff nor to curl.

Even if the girl with the retrousse nose has a quantity of hair and eyes if it ripples, there can be no doubt that the face which looked so piquant under the present arrogant pompadour will come out rather oddly from the new coiffure. Yet the order seems an irrevocable one. The high pompadour has been fashionable for some time, and every fashion magazine represents the models with the Grecian knot and the softly rippling unpompadoured front.

Women's Activities.

Women of British birth residing in this country have recently organized a society to be known as the Daughters of the Empire.

The society is a branch of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, which was started in Canada by Mrs. Clark Murray of Montreal at the outbreak of the Boer war.

The American branch is known as the King Edward VII chapter, and the members are careful to state that its purpose is social, intellectual and philanthropic only.

Mrs. Bryce, wife of the British ambassador, is the honorary president; Lady Purdon Clarke, the honorary vice president; Mrs. J. Elliot Langstaff, the president, and Mrs. K. B. Lapham, Mrs. William P. Hamilton and Mrs. Carl von Pustau, the vice presidents.

Mrs. Elinor Wescott received the highest number of votes for township tax collector at a recent Republican caucus in Tioga county, Pennsylvania. A question of her eligibility being raised, the attorney general of the state declared that a woman could not serve even if elected.

Mrs. Florence Maybrick, now on the lyceum theater platform, is going to marry her manager, Charles L. Wagner, secretary of the bureau managing her tour.

Every state in the Union now has a state federation of women's clubs, for Nevada, the one state without a federation, has just organized one.

Mlle. Blanche Azoulay is the first woman to be admitted to the practice of law in Algiers.

Styles in Pajamas.

Woman has now become thoroughly identified with pajamas, and particularly in summer does she affect this garment in which Robert Chamber's fole and her sisters were wont to haunt the environs of the "House Beautiful."

Indeed, for traveling and for wear at the seashore and mountain, the masculine sleeping garb possesses great advantages over the other garment.

It is but natural that the adoption of pajamas by women would result in the introduction of more esthetic and colorful models, and consequently the latest pajamas for women are so sumptuous that the Princess Scheherazade herself would look quite at home in them.

For they are now exploited in delicately colored silks in odd shades, such as water blue, ashes or roses and pale almond green.

Furthermore, they are embroidered in Oriental tone in wash silk.

To reduce the cost of the delicate garments many girls buy the plain silk pajamas and then embroider them at home.

Greens in Spring.

It is the season of spring "greens." The winter vegetables are going and the summer crop has not yet come, so the greens form a welcome interlude.

A good way to cook it is to drop it into a hot kettle with no water except that remaining on the leaves after washing. Cover tightly and steam for twenty minutes.

In this way all the flavor is kept.

Many of the best greens are wild plants.

Dandelion, lettuce and wild mustard, cress, sorrel plantain and narrow dock are all good.

Young cabbage, kale and collard are very good for one, and dandelion greens are considered particularly healthful in the spring.

25 Years

Kayser silk gloves have become what they are through 25 years of experience.

We alone have the infinite skill which is required to perfect them.

It was Kayser who invented the patent tip—the tip that outwears the glove.

It was the Kayser fabric, the Kayser fit, that made silk gloves the summer gloves of the millions.

They are today, as always, the only silk gloves desired by women who know.

Burlingame, Winona, Minn.

P. B. Haber is secretary and treasurer of the association, and W. J. Power is attorney.

If you desire a clear complexion take Foley's Orino Laxative for constipation and liver trouble as it will stimulate these organs and thoroughly cleanse your system, which is what everyone needs in the spring in order to feel well. Sold by all druggists.

SAYS MAN IS REAL GOSSIP.

Female Lecturer Declares That Woman Is Afraid to Criticize.

Chicago, May 6.—Man is the original gossip.

Where two men are gathered together you will find gossip—fresh, spicy gossip.

A woman invariably bursts into encomiums at the mention of another woman's name. Women are afraid to gossip, afraid to criticise and afraid to tell the truth about other women, lest some man cry "cat," though nobody ever has shrieked "dog" at any male defamer of his fellowmen.

The above is an epitome of an address delivered by Miss Florence Edith Austin of Woodstock at the May breakfast and reciprocity day of the Social Economics' club.

CHARLES A. MARSHALL,
President of the Northwestern Theater Managers' Association.

MAY STATION SQUADRON AT FALKLAND ISLANDS.

Victoria, B. C., May 6.—That there is likelihood of the British South American squadron, composed of four first-class cruisers, being stationed in the Southern Pacific, with its base at Falkland islands, is the news brought by H. M. S. Algerine, which has reached port after five months' cruising off the South American coast. British capitalists who finance nearly all South American ventures, have made a strong plea to the admiralty for the maintainance of a squadron at Falkland islands, and it is said that their request has been granted.

THE EVENING STORY

THE FANGS OF THE SUMMER

By Charles N. Sinnett.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

"This dry summer is like a venomous snake, and he has struck his fangs deep into all things which keep the fisherman alive."

Old Skipper Gracey has said that often since the last of May. He muttered it still more hoarsely today. He did not realize how the stress of things which he named was eating into his own sturdy, hopeful spirit.

"But the fangs have gone the deepest into the water," said the skipper. "The big lobsters all began to crawl off shore in June. Rock cod have never been so scarce since I can remember. The mackerel have raced away towards the Banks. The herring are likely to be as fidgety as the year when the Matilda Jane drove on the Cedar Ledges. I only got five barrels that fall. And here we are off by Trunday's Reef fishing as hard as we can—and only two cod in the dory. And the cunners keep nibblin' the bait like sin!"

The skipper suddenly dropped his cod line. He listed his battered spyglass to scan a white object on the shore of the island where he had lived so long.

"Yes, there she is lolling!" He turned and snarled to his son Hi. It was as if the young man had been guilty of all the mischief which had been wrought on land and sea that summer, and he had caught him in a strong trap at last.

"Yes," the skipper stormed on, "Dora Johnson is the only girl on this coast who would lay on the shore and dream when we've got to face the blackest winter we firshermen have ever known."

"Dora likes to write. One cannot do that work well without looking things through and through. The lady from New York who boards at Uncle Ben's has spoken well of her verses."

Hi Gracey looked his father squarely in the face. But there was no defiance in his eyes or heart as he spoke of the girl he loved as his life. His tones had no ding of apology. He stated the case of Dora Johnson fairly as he and others saw it. The proof from the New York authoress was not added as something which had made a revelation to Hi. But since such things had been spoken with such honest admiration, it was well enough to remind his father of it.

"She got you all tangled up in her net the very first piece you heard her read at spelling school—and you only a shaver of 11," the skipper snarled. "I thought at first you'd dive like a seal and get out of the mashes. But if ever I gazed on any hulk of a fish rolled in twenty-five yards of mackerel net I'm looking at one now. I've talked and talked to you that it's in her breed to dream and loll. But you seem to think more of Dora Johnson every year. Her grandfather before her used to be tinkering at a flying machine. Her father has started many a fool scheme for making money. There is one of them piled up on the shore at the bottom of the bank where she is lolling."

The skipper's laugh rang out so loudly that some gulls fluttered up from the water.

Hi knew well all about the heap of net which lay on the beach towards which his father shook his fist. Dora's father had thought that it might be of great use some day. He spoke of it with a dreamy look as if he saw far away into the future. And Dora had set to work to knit it for him the first winter when he had mentioned it. In more than one snowy day Hi had deftly filled the wooden needles with twine for the girl. More than one yard of the net he had helped her knit. And now for many a week, the result of that strong work mutual love had lain idly on the gray beach. Long ago it had been named. "Bijah's Folly." Many a man had kicked it scornfully with his thick fishing boots as he passed by it.

"She had written some good verses about the net," said Hi in the same even tones in which he had spoken before.

"Guess they won't help much at pulling out the fangs of a summer like this."

The skipper spoke with deep irony, and swore at the nibbling of the cunners.

Hi looked shoreward with unshaken faith in the girl. Without the help of the battered spy glass he could see that she had risen to her feet and was moving about now. Her white dress fluttered like a sea gull's wings. What she was doing he did not know. Her dreaming or work could never wear the faintest tinge of folly before his blue eyes. He loved her, and would not cease to do so if "Bijah's Folly" lay on the beach for ten years more.

The breeze died away that afternoon. The sun glared fiercely on the water. Skipper Gracey and Hi had a hard row to the island. The darkness lay thick on sea and land before they came near home.

As the skipper leaned on his oars and wiped the sweat from his forehead, he said: "What in allspice is that carousing on shore there?"

Hi could give him no light on the subject.

The skipper stood up in the dory to listen. No sound was on the sea save the water dripping from the quieted oars.

Then there was a sound of quick rowing towards the skipper's place of watching.

He hailed furiously: "What's up over to the Sea Bank?"

"Well, some are up and some are down," was the laughing answer as the boat drew near. "No fun like it on the island in forty years. If you want to see how black bass can trip up a fellow row in shore as soon as you can."

"Bass!" cried the skipper. The news of the capture of the sea serpent would not have surprised him half so much.

"Yes. The men will get over 100 of them—maybe higher than that. And some of them will weigh eighty pounds. We're going after a steam launch and ice so that we can have them up to the Portland market in good shape before sun up tomorrow morning. I tell you the Johnsons will make some money. And they seem to be willing to share with the rest of us."

"What in allspice do you mean?" thundered Skipper Gracey.

"Can't stop to tell you much more. You row in. You'll see fun alive. Men hooking big bass and tumbling over like nine-pins. But they'll get 'em all long before the tide starts coming in again. Dora Johnson saw them coming in where some little streams of fresh water trickle down the beach. She and two of her brothers launched the dory so easy that not a bass guessed she was after 'em. She took her father's net out in a half-circle round the critters. Then she loaded it at the bottom with big rocks. She must have plumped every one in the spot when it was needed. When the tide went down there was the whole school trapped. They'll have every one of 'em. Row in and give three cheers for Dora Johnson. Her name will be in all the big city papers."

And away the men rowed for the steam launch.

Skipper Gracey stood straight up as if a lightning bolt had struck him and with its glittering shafts had fastened his feet to the bottom of the dory.

"A hundred bass," he muttered. "In 'Bijah's net—why in thunder don't you say something or other, Hi?"

"Been thinking right along," was the quiet answer. "Guess sometimes you've thought I had too much to say about her, dad."

"Dora has pulled all the fangs by the roots out of this dry summer. 'Bijah will help us all. I must say he was always kind of free-hearted."

"And you'll come to the wedding bright and early, dad. We'll try and stand up straight and not loll while the parson is hitching us together."

"Hi," said the skipper, solemnly, "you know I hate awfully to tack about after I've blowed at you and Dora the way I have. But I'm going to do it."

WILLARD MAY BE APPOINTED

Judge May Be Brought From the Philippines to Minnesota.

Washington, May 6.—President Taft may again illustrate his policy of appointing men of high legal attainment to the bench. He proposes to name Charles A. Willard of Minneapolis as district judge in Minnesota, providing Senator Knute Nelson has no objection. The vacancy in the office has just been caused by the resignation of Milton D. Purdy, formerly assistant attorney general.

Mr. Willard at present is an associate justice of the supreme court in the Philippine Islands.

Mr. Taft has a high opinion of his qualifications, and at his instance Willard was named some years ago as a judge in the Philippines.

Senator Nelson's first choice for the position is W. E. Hale of Minneapolis, and Justices Calvin L. Brown and C. B. Elliott of the state supreme court have also been suggested as desirable and available men for the vacancy.

Mr. Willard was proposed for the judgeship last winter when Mr. Purdy was named for the place. Senator Nelson refused to indorse him.

STUDENTS VISIT RANGES.

Mining Class From University of Wisconsin Is on Tour.

Twenty or more students from the mining engineering department of the University of Wisconsin were in Duluth last evening, having returned from an inspection of the mines on the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges.

The class was in charge of C. K. Leith, professor of geology, and Prof. Holden of the college of mines of the university.

The party spent several days on the Minnesota ranges, and will visit the Upper Michigan mining country before returning to Madison.

BETTER TRAIN SERVICE.

Fargo Commercial Club Secures Concessions From Railroads.

Fargo, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Better local train and mail service is an aim of the Fargo Commercial club, and some headway has been made recently. From the Great Northern a concession was secured for a passenger coach on the local freight between here and Crookston, and more recently a mail service was established on the Great Northern local between here and Grand Forks. The train leaves at 3:30 in the afternoon and returns at 10:10 in the morning. The train carries mail for all intermediate points, and also makes better connection at Fargo from the West.

The Northern Pacific has agreed to hold the Fargo-Marion line trains till 10 a. m., instead of sending them out at 2:28 a. m. This will give shoppers from that line an opportunity to trade in Fargo in the early forenoons.

Efforts are being made to secure a double passenger service on the Fargo Southwestern between here and Edgeley, so a train will leave both Fargo and Edgeley in the forenoons and afternoons.

AITKIN TEACHERS HIRED.

Those Selected for Next Year in Neighboring County Seat.

Aitkin, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following comprise the corps of teachers engaged by Supt. G. E. Butler for the ensuing year: Principal of high school, Jennie McMullin, Minneapolis; first assistant, Marie Oberg, Litchfield; second assistant, Margaret Campbell, New Auburn; manual training, Edward Dales, Ellendale, N. BOND ISSUE AUTHORIZED.

Beltrami County Commissioners Will Sell Securities May 25.

Bemidji, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a meeting of the Bemidji boat club, the club adopted for its pennant a dark navy blue background with a monogram "B. B. C." in white, which will be carried by all launches belonging to members of the club. The pennant is about four feet long and is very pretty, as well as serviceable.

Steps were taken to assist the city authorities in cleaning up the lakeshore and preparations discussed for deepening the channel of the Mississippi river between Lakes Bemidji and Irvin and also below the outlet across Lake Bemidji from the city.

The club is also planning on several regatias to be held during the summer. The club is popular among the local launch owners and the membership is growing steadily.

SIGNAL CORPS RESUMES AERONAUTICAL TESTS.

Washington, May 6.—The aeronautical division of the signal corps resumed the aeronautical tests and experiments at Fort Myer today, and is contemplating a number of experiments in connection with the dirigible and aeroplane flights that are to take place daily until autumn. Gen. James Allen, chief signal corps officer, although he places more confidence in the motor type, intends to have the officers detailed to aeronautical work make an exhaustive test of aerial motors for aeroplanes, provided these can be obtained without much cost to the division.

"The Pianola Piano"

Means one of the world's famous makes of pianos, with the equally famous "Pianola," inside of it. We have just received a complete new line of these Pianola Pianos, 88-note and 65-note. The Pianola is the instrument which was selected after long and careful deliberation by Steinway & Sons for the world-famed Steinway piano. To the active support of the musical profession is partly due the enormous prestige of the "Pianola." When practically every eminent pianist, composer, singer and teacher declares a preference in the strongest terms—as in the case of the Pianola—then there can be no doubt as to its supremacy. There are other so-called player pianos, but the Pianola Piano stands in a class by itself, and, like the Steinway piano, has become a household word among the royalty of Europe and the wealthy and cultured classes of America. We have the largest stock of players and player pianos ever in Duluth. Prices ranging from

HE WANTED CUP OF TEA

President Taft Created Slight Commotion at Carlin's Home.

Has Been on the Water Wagon for Eighteen Months.

Washington, May 6.—Here is a tip to the folks who may have an opportunity next summer and fail to be hosts to President Taft: Have tea and hot water in the house whenever he is expected.

Credit for this thoughtful suggestion really is due to Representative Charles C. Carlin of Virginia, who was the president's host during his visit to Alexandria recently.

When Mr. Taft reached the Carlin home, after his automobile trip over the dusty roads, in company with Vice President Sherman and Speaker Cannon, the genial representative thought he would need some refreshments, and in anticipation of this very natural want, he had a fine line of beverages on hand. The list included champagne, whisky, beer, punch, buttermilk, ginger ale, sarsaparilla, lemonade, and so on.

After greeting those who were gathered about, the president was invited into the dining room, where this magnificent bacchanalian menu was displayed.

With hospitality written in capital letters across his beaming countenance, Carlin led the president up to it all, and said:

"Mr. President, I know you must feel very thirsty after breathing in all this Virginia dust. What will you have to drink?"

Mr. Taft's eye traveled slowly over the crowded sideboard, and, when he had read the label on every bottle, said, with a smile, "I think I will take a cup of tea."

That was the only drink Carlin had overlooked, but he never would have got to congress were he a man without resources, and he hurried into the parlor, where Mrs Carlin was receiving her guests, and told her the situation in an excited whisper.

"But we have no hot water!" cried his wife, in dismay, "and you know tea cannot be made without it."

"Can't help that," replied her husband. "The president has asked for tea, and he must have it."

After a short conference, at which ways and means were discussed, a small gas lamp, used in heating curling irons, was secured, and in about five minutes the water was boiling. When the tea was served the president said, with a relish:

"That is one of the best cups of tea I ever drank. May I have another?"

Again the little lamp was put to work, and the second cup was handed to Mr. Taft, and he enjoyed it as much as the first.

"I always thought I was a good provider," commented Representative Carlin, after the president had taken his fifth puncture, "but I was never so dabbergasted in all my life when the president called for tea. The next time I have the honor of entertaining the chief magistrate I am going to see to it that the cook remains on duty and there is plenty of hot water on hand. To think that Mr. Taft refused even a Fairbanks cocktail!"

Mr. Taft did not refuse a real drink because he was suspicious of the wet goods on the Carlin sideboard—they all bore the government pure food guarantee; it was because he has been sitting steadily on the water wagon for a year and a half and does not expect to fall off.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: MAY 9. Acts 13: 13-52: Paul's Missionary Journey—Antioch in Pisidia.

By Rev. J. S. Kirtley, D. D.

THE CONNECTION.

The work of Paul and Barnabas on the Island of Cyprus was soon ended, and it was successful. Their mission was not to finish, but to start work; to scatter, rather than follow up and feed the fire. They cast eager eyes toward the populous cities over on the continent, but lying up on the table lands.

THE LESSON.

I.

In Asia Minor, 13-16.

"Now Paul and his company set sail from Paphos, and came to Perga in Pamphylia: and John departed from them and returned to Jerusalem. But they, passing through from Perga, came to Antioch of Pisidia; and they went into the synagogues on the Sabbath day, and sat down. And after the reading of the law and the prophets the rulers of the synagogue sent unto them, saying, brethren, if you have any word of exhortation for the people, say on. And Paul stood up, and beckoning with the hand said, Men of Israel, and ye that fear God, hearken:"

1. Another Antioch.

Across to the mainland of Asia and up the Ostrus river seven miles to the town of Perga, where John Mark leaves them; then up through mountain gorges to the table lands above, exposed to the pirates whom Pompey had driven from the seas, who still had strongholds in the mountains, and exposed to the flood that so suddenly swelled the mountain streams—"in perils of rivers and in perils of waters"—to another Antioch, built by the same Seleucus who named several cities in honor of his father, Antiochus—this was the course of the missionaries. At the latter place they were 4,000 feet above the sea; were in an influential Roman colony; were in the midst of many Jews and proselytes. The plan they adopted here was adopted almost everywhere for years. Paul got a place to work at tentmaking during the week; went to the synagogue on the Sabbath and listened to the reading of the law, and accepted the invitation of the "ruler" or leader to deliver any message he might have—and they would always be known as having a religious message of some kind to deliver, as their faces would show. The speech reviewed the Jewish history, showed how the Messiah had been promised and was expected, then showed that Jesus was that same Messiah, and closed with an appeal and a warning. This is the first recorded sermon of Paul's

2. Paul to the Front.

It was "Barnabas and Saul" when they left Antioch; it is "Paul and Barnabas" now. By nature and providence Paul is a leader, and Barnabas ungrudgingly yields the place to him. When the invitation is given Paul rises to his feet and commands attention with a gesture that is like the outstretched sceptre of a king.

II.

Offering Forgiveness to Jews, 38-43.

"Be it known unto you therefore, brethren, that through this man is proclaimed unto you remission of sins, and by him every one that believeth is justified from all things, from which ye could not be justified by the law of Moses. Beware therefore, lest that come upon you which is spoken in the prophets:

Behold, ye despisers, and wonder, and perish;
For I work a work in your days,
A work which ye shall in no wise believe, if one declare it unto you.

And as they went out, they besought that these words might be spoken to them the next sabbath. Now when the synagogue broke up, many of the Jews and of the devout proselytes followed Paul and Barnabas; who, speaking to them, urged them to continue in the grace of God."

1. Paul's Climax.

You can see how Paul had been leading up to this. Not satisfied with an argument to prove that Jesus was the Savior he proclaims Him as their Savior and lifts Him up into striking contrast with Moses and his laws in the two particulars that in Jesus one may have now a real, in contrast with a former pictorial remission of sins, and that they can be justified in Jesus from all things. This last was exclusively the work of Jesus. It is not implied that the law of Moses could justify one from anything, even partially. Paul has reached the point he aimed at. He has made his appeal. This is not a treatment of the doctrine of justification, but we find in these words the germ idea which is full grown in his two great letters to the Galatians and the Romans written some years later.

2. The Warning.

Here is one of the red lights which are so often hung out by the preachers and writers of the gospel. There was a distressing possibility that those Jews, listening to Paul, would approve the deeds of their brethren at Jerusalem in putting Jesus to death and therefore make that deed their own. They were in imminent peril of doing so and of winning for themselves the retribution that comes to those who sin against light—they despise the gospel and then perish, though it works its great work of regeneration in their very midst, and though it is expounded to them in the most fascinating and convincing manner. It was not cruel but kind in him to tell them the doom of the mocker.

3. An Aroused Conscience.

It touched the right spot. Their hope of a Messiah and their curiosity to know all about what had actually taken place at Jerusalem were profoundly stirred. More than that, a personal interest in Christ was awakened, a conviction that between Him and them there was some vital connection. This interest showed itself in many eager requests that the apostles should go on with the story the next Sabbath day. These requests were made as the apostles retired from the building, probably weary and unable to wait for private conversation. The interest showed itself in their clinging to the apostles seeking further light. There must have been genuine conversions, for the preachers exhorted them "to continue in the grace of God." We would say that it was a glorious meeting. So it was, for there were genuine converts and not a few.

III.

Showing Special Interest in Gentiles, 44-49.

"And the next Sabbath almost the whole city was gathered together to hear the Word of God. But when the Jews saw the multitudes, they were filled with jealousy, and contradicted the things which were spoken by Paul, and blasphemed. And Paul and Barnabas spake out boldly, and said, it was necessary that the Word of God should first be spoken to you. Seeing ye thrust it from you, and judge yourself unworthy of eternal life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles. For so hath the Lord commanded us, saying:

I have set thee for a light of the Gentiles,
That thou shouldest be for salvation unto the uttermost part of the earth.

And as the Gentiles heard this, they were glad, and glorified the Word of God: and as many as were ordained to eternal life believed. And the Word of the Lord was spread abroad throughout all the region."

1. The Occasion of This Interest.

We must distinguish between the cause and the occasion. The cause of it was their love for Christ and it was operative all the time, producing a love for men as such, whether Jew or Gentile, and a desire for their salvation. But the occasion for the expression of the interest was the treatment they received from the Jews, not from all of them, but from their leaders. It was an indiscriminate mass of people, of all races, that gathered at the synagogue the next Sabbath, the Jews crowding in and the Gentiles pushing in among them and filling the space around till, most likely, the apostles came out and addressed them from the steps. Many Jews were receptive to the truth and that infuriated the mass of their countrymen. The presence of the Gentiles stirred them still more, till they began to raise a disturbance and so completely lost control of themselves as to blaspheme the name of Jesus.

2. The New Era Among the Gentiles.

They really had an equal part in the gospel and the apostles were to take it to them, according to Christ's direction, for the Jews existed as a nation for the sake of the Gentiles. The apostles were proceeding in the right way, first to the Jews. They hoped the Jews would stretch out welcoming hands to the Gentiles, but were ready for the radical step they were now taking. The pleasure of the Gentile in receiving the gospel may have been mingled but they had a genuine Christian joy, in finding their Savior. The persecution that followed was almost inevitable.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

Their first care was to get a lodging and then they had to seek for employment; for they worked at their trade wherever they went. Nothing could be more commonplace. Who could dream that this travel-stained man going from one tentmaker's door to another seeking for work, was carrying the future of the world beneath his robe! When the Sabbath came around they would cease from toil like the other Jews in the place and repair to the synagogue. They joined in the psalms and prayers with the other worshipers and listened to the reading of the Scriptures. After this the presiding elder might ask if any one present had a word of exhortation to deliver. This was Paul's opportunity. He would rise and with outstretched hand, begin to speak. At once the audience recognized the accents of the cultivated rabbi, and the strange voice won their attention. Taking up the passage which had been read, he would soon be moving forward on the stream of Jewish history, till he led up to the astoning announcement that the Messiah hoped for by their fathers and promised by their prophets had come, and He had been sent among them as His apostle. Then would follow the story of Jesus.—Stalker.

Man can forgive offenses, he cannot forgive the sin which they represent; herein the old inquiry is forever pertinent. Who can forgive sins but God only? But it is not enough to destroy the validity of the objection; we must, if possible, get at the positive truth, and I believe you will find it in the direction of the suggestion itself, that there is no forgiveness between man and man except in Christ or for Christ's sake; overlooking there may be, and palliation and acceptance of apologies, but it can only be in Christ that deep, true, cordial, everlasting forgiveness can transpire between man and man.—Parker.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1. How far may tact be used till it ceases to be truth?
2. Does God ever let a man go entirely?
3. Is there anything in the Bible that does not, directly or indirectly, point to Christ?
4. Is it possible to know the Scriptures without knowing the Savior?
5. Is it zeal for Christ or for the system that makes men persecute?

Object to Strong Medicines.

Many people object to taking the strong medicines usually prescribed by physicians for rheumatism. There is no need of internal treatment in any case of muscular or chronic rheumatism, and more than one out of every ten cases of the disease are of one or the other of these varieties. When there is no fever and little (if any) swelling, you may know that it is only necessary to apply Chamberlain's Liniment freely to get quick relief. Try it. For sale by all druggists.

PLAN TO KIDNAP GOVERNOR'S SON

Ransom Was to Have Been Pardon of a Convict.

Oakland, Cal., May 6.—A plot to kidnap the 8-year-old son of Governor Gillett was unearthed at San Quentin prison, when it was found that J. B. Clifton, one of the most notorious criminals in the state, who is serving time for attempting to take the life of Detective Hodgins in Oakland, had completed arrangements with a confederate on the outside to steal the boy and hold him for ransom.

The price of the lad's return to his father was to have been Clifton's pardon.

BOSTON DEAF MUTE

Endeavors to Walk to Chicago, Earning Living En Route.

Boston, Mass., May 6.—Melvin Lien has started to walk from 71 L street, South Boston, to Chicago city hall.

Lien is a deaf mute, aged 21 years. He started without a cent in his pocket and is not to take a cent of charity on his trip.

If he cannot earn his meal and bed he will sleep supperless, by the roadside or in a barn, and no breakfast will be his until some one needs his help enough to pay for it.

ONE GALLON A WEEK.

Big Amount of Whisky Consumed By Bildstein, Aged 100.

St. Louis, Mo., May 6.—The happiest man in St. Louis, because he never worries and always gets what he wants, is Simon Bildstein, who celebrated his one hundredth birthday Sunday. Herr Bildstein has a philosophy of life and conduct calculated to shock the Prohibitionist and the anti-tobacconist into shivering fits. Bildstein denies himself nothing, and unto him nothing is denied. He drinks, he smokes, he chews.

Long, long ago Herr Bildstein's capacity for red liquor became so great that all the whisky he cares to drink now has no intoxicating effect.

Bildstein's regular consumption of whisky, according to his statement and that of the family with whom he lives, is one gallon a week.

Herr Bildstein just eats anything he wants. No dietary discipline controls his appetite. He eats meat and vegetables—any sort, all sorts, and thrives.

BEAUTIFUL WIFE

Of Eugene H. Schlange Granted a Divorce at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., May 6.—Mrs. Eugene H. Schlange, who was Miss Lily Schubert, winner of a newspaper beauty contest, and daughter of Otto G. Schubert, wealthy, has been granted a divorce and custody of her year-old daughter, by default, on desertion grounds. She testified that her husband refused to tell her where he had been when she stayed out late at night. Her father testified he couldn't do anything with Schlange, although he supported and offered to back him in business.

Danderine

Grows Hair and we can PROVE IT!

DANDERINE is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

A lady from St. Paul writes in substance as follows:

"When I began using Danderine my hair would not come to my shoulders and now it is away below my hips."

Another from Newark, N. J.

"I have been using Danderine regularly. When I first started to use it I had very little hair, now I have the most beautiful long and thick hair anyone would want to have."

"STOP UNNECESSARY WAR EXPENDITURES"---TAWNEY AT PEACE CONFERENCE

Chicago, May 6.—Declaring that the extensive preparation for war by the various nations through the increase of their military and naval strengths is a serious menace to the peace of the world, although alleged to be for the purpose of preventing war, Representative Tawney of Minnesota, chairman of the appropriations committee of the house of representatives, addressing the national congress, said the American people should demand a decrease in the unnecessary war expenditures of the United States, and should aid in the creation of a public sentiment that would favor the organization of an international federation for the peaceful settlement of controversies between nations. Although, he said, he was not one of those enthusiasts who believed that the world would soon witness a disarmament of the nations, Mr. Tawney made a strong plea for a dissolution of what he termed the "armed peace" policy.

Tawney, who gave a number of figures regarding the expenditures of the powers for increased armies and navies, compared the policy of mediaeval political leaders which, he said, was that any nation to become great must conquer the wealth and enslave the people of other nations with the modern theory which, according to Mr. Tawney, is that the greatness of a nation rests upon its natural resources and upon the industry, intelligence and patriotism of the individual citizen. There must be as many nations coexistent as geographical, racial and historic conditions make necessary, he said, and that the character of a nation is judged today by the same standards as the character of the individual man.

Mr. Tawney said that the advocates of an armed peace declare that because of the inherent selfishness and mutual distrust of nations, the creation of an international state through the federation of the civilized nations of the world is impossible, and that international peace can be attained only through the instrumentality of powerful armies and navies. "If this be so," continued Tawney, "then international peace means an armed peace, and that kind of peace cannot endure between nations relatively longer than between individuals. It will inevitably hasten the event for which the nations are now preparing."

Asserting that national ambition, rather than the fear of war or the desire of peace, is the prime motive for the expenditures by the principal nations of the world for martial preparations, Tawney quoted from a speech by Mr. Asquith, premier of England, in which he expressed a similar opinion.

According to Mr. Tawney, the total expenditure of the United States, England, Germany and France during 1908, on account of their armies and navies, approximated a billion dollars, or a sum greater than the annual expenditures of any one of these nations during any foreign war in which it has ever engaged. Mr. Tawney said the United States has already spent 41 per cent of the revenues so far collected during the present fiscal year on account of preparation for war.

Game Wardens After the Fishermen Who Use Nets.

Violations of the Law Numerous Up the St. Louis River.

A speedy gasoline launch has been provided local deputy game wardens for their use in pursuing law breakers. The little boat was put in the water only two days ago, but it has already demonstrated its feasibility.

Deputy Warden John Mattson was up the river for a trial spin in it yesterday. As he was coming down the river after nightfall he let the drag overboard. The drag is a sort of a hook arrangement, designed to catch in fishnets, and drag them from their position in the river.

In the trip down the hooks caught in one net that had been set alongside the channel, and the net was dragged into the boat and confiscated. Nothing was seen of the owner, and he doubtless wondered what had happened to his property when he showed up in the morning to take in his catch. The meshes contained a number of fine pike.

Pike are now running up the St. Louis and Pokegama rivers in large numbers, and if it were not for the vigilance of the wardens they would be taken in large quantities by market fishermen, as has been the custom in former years. Up to the last year or two there have been so many of these market fishermen setting their nets in the two streams named that they have spoiled the sport for fish and line enthusiasts about entirely. Last spring pretty close watch was kept, and so productive was the work of the wardens that there was fairly good fishing during the remainder of the season.

The new launch will be brought into active use this spring and summer, and it will go hard with any of the law violators who are caught. The wardens are determined to stop fishing with nets, and with that object in view will make frequent trips up the river by night. They will be assisted in this by the Wisconsin wardens, and the enforcers of the law from both states, working in conjunction, will, it is expected, be able to keep the Pokegama and St. Louis rivers practically free from nets, thus giving the fish and line enthusiasts a show. It is believed, from present indications, and from the fact that the laws will be strictly enforced, that fishing will be better up the river this year than it has been for many seasons past.

"We intend to strictly enforce both the fish and game laws," said Mr. Mattson today, "and would-be violators had better be on their guard. No mercy will be shown those who are caught. They will be prosecuted and wherever evidence is conclusive enough they will be fined or else thrown into jail. In all cases all nets and the like that are found by us will be confiscated and destroyed. There will be no more law violations in this district in future if constant watchfulness on the part of the game wardens will prevent them."

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 6.—Brooklyn pulled Philadelphia out of first place yesterday by slugging out a victory, 8 to 3. Bell had the erstwhile league leaders puzzled at critical periods, striking out eight of them, and also figured largely in the scoring. The home team landed hard on Moore in the fourth, five runners trooping in. Brown finished the game and stopped the slaughter. In every home game up to date, six in number, the Brooklyns have compelled visiting clubs to change pitchers. Score: R. H. E.

(By Bruce.)

If there was ever any doubt of the fact that Duluth is some seven leagues ahead of the village of Superior as a sporting center, that doubt was removed by the attendence at the Whitehead-Gunther embroglie, Tuesday evening.

Some of the good citizens of Superior came in when standing room was sold for one plunk a stand, but the $5 and $3 seats were warmed by the fight patrons upon this side of the bay.

And the aftermath of the fight may not be inapropos.

Yesterday Whitehead appeared upon the streets of Duluth with his right salary wing hung limply in a bright colored sling. The big fighter says he broke his hand in the sixth round. There is no means by which his statement may be disproved, yet everyone who sat by the ringside will almost swear that it was near the close of the milling in the last round that Whitehead broke his mallet.

If Whitehead broke his hand in the sixth session of the battle, how does he explain the fact that he swung more he explain the fact that he swung more with that hand in the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth rounds than in any previous rounds of the battle?

That broken hand will not enter into the argument of the fight. It was a to the argument of the fight. It was a good, square hustling fight, and everybody got his money's worth—somebody that cannot be said of some other fights that have been staged in this vicinity. Both men are there like an onion-scented breath; they both fought a good hard battle, and with a shade in favor of the man who beat Larry Temple, Tony Ross and a few other good ones. Let us let the matter rest.

• • •

Can you beat that? That is what they will be calling our rejuvenated friend, Sandy Ferguson when he hits the shores of La Belle France. He is journeying thither upon a regular steamer, with the avowed purpose of fighting black Joe Jeannette.

With that broad red face of his, those fiercely bristling eyebrows, and that pigeon-toed walk, Sandy will indeed make a novel sight upon the boulevards of the gay capital.

But the Alphonses have fallen for the unique ugliness of that comic valentine figure, Sam McVey, so that may fall upon the neck of the huge Sandy and proclaim him one of the elect. It will be a great day in the Scotch colony in Paris, should Sandy boy hang one over on the reigning hero of the Paris fistic circles, one Joseph Jeannette.

It is said that McCarey, the Los Angeles fight promoter, was suspicious that Willis Britt, the boy manager, was about to frame a love meeting between Stanley Ketchel and Sammy Langford, so that their pending Los Angeles engagement would be tempered by friendship fostered in a past understanding. It may have been the watchful tracking of some black-mustached sleuth of the McCarey hiring that caused Willis to hiss through his clenched teeth, "I'll fool you, villians, 'tis not too late," and take those poison drops.

• • •

The Philadelphia papers say Philadelphia Jawn O'Brien wasn't in proper shape for the debate with Stanley Ketchel for the reason that he gave too much attention to West Locust street society. Heavens, Geraldine, ain't he elegant! Piffle and all that sort of stuff, old chap! It was merely a case of the "cowboy and the Lady," and the cowboy won.

Wintergreen won the classic Kentucky derby at Churchill Downs, Louisville. No dearie, there was no Mint Julep in the race.

• • •

Those Englishmen are sure sticklers for a point of honor. The committee of the National Sporting club, a club, by the by, where all the members attend in open-faced shirt fronts, by jove, signed Jack Johnson to meet Sam Langford before the club for derby week. That was before the Johnsing person rudely walloped Cousin Burns. When Johnson—Lil' Arthah, you black rascal—became champion he promptly refused to keep his debsarte date with the members of the club.

Johnson stated that his castoff manager, Sam Fitzpatrick, had signed the contract without his permission or knowledge, and that the price offered was a mere bagatelle.

To prove that the Johnson party is a liar, and by the nature of his nationality a black liar, the manager of the club, A. F. Bettinson, has sent to the New York World a photographic facsimile of the contract between the members of the club committee and Johnson. Behold, there at the bottom of the engagement card looms large the signature of the champion. It will require a brain larger than Lil' Arthah's to untangle that mistake upon somebody's part. Kid McCoy or Philadelphia Jawn O'Brien might wave aside the signature but in Lil' Arthah's case it does look bad.

Trophy on Exhibition.

New York, May 6.—The Tom Morris Memorial trophy, presented to the Western Golf Association of America by Peter Dawson of Glasgow, in tribute to the memory of old Tom Morris, was placed on view today in the Waldorf-Astoria. It will be sent to Chicago in a few days.

The trophy is about five feet high, of silver and copper, and represents Tom Morris in the act of driving. A panel back of the figure represents the St. Andrew's golf links. It is to be awarded to the team of eight players returning the best score against "par" of its own course. The plan of playing simultaneous team matches all over the country on a fixed date is so new that an actual test of several years, golfers say, will be needed to demonstrate its advantages.

JOHNNY EVERS IS SUSPENDED

Chicago National Second Baseman Will Pay for His Tardiness.

Chicago, May 6.—John Evers, the star second baseman of the Chicago Nationals, was suspended by the national commission for his failure to report to his team at the opening of the season. Evers had planned to take a rest and had permission from President Murphy to delay his reporting to the club. He had signed no contract before reporting and it was thought he would not come under the bans of the national commission for his tardiness.

Evers joined the world's champions several days ago and played his first game Tuesday. Just before yesterday's game with Cincinnati he had notice of his suspension and Zimmerman covered second base.

It is thought Evers will be reinstated in a day or two upon payment of a nominal fine.

Pitcher Ed Walsh of the local American league club is also under suspension for failure to report on time.

New York, May 6.—Entries for the stakes for the West Chester Racing association's spring meeting at Belmont park, which opens a week from today, were announced last night. For the juvenile stakes, 42 entries; Laureate, 42; Bouquet, 47; Fashion, 24; National stallion race, 55; the Pocantico, 29; Withers, 26; Belmont, 28; Ladies, 22; Metropolitan handicap, 29; Spring Serial handicap, one entry to qualify for three races, the Groton, Claremont and Van Cortlandt handicaps, 40 entries; Toboggan handicap, 34; Harlem selling, 39; Norwood selling 36; Amateur cup 9.

Little Interest in Rowing.

New York, May 6.—Coach Van Vliet of the New York university announced that he would resign unless the rowing crew took more interest in its work. Four members of the crew and the coxswain were absent from practice yesterday. He said that the entire future of the sport at the university depended on the result of the Decoration day race.

Off for Annapolis.

New York, May 6.—The Columbia university eight will leave for Annapolis this afternoon for the annual race with the middies over a two-mile course on the Severn Saturday. The crew had its last home practice yesterday, and since the recent shake-up it has been rowing better than before this year With Gatch at stroke the shell moves along with a great deal of snap.

BOAT CLUB ELECTIONS

Annual Meeting Will Be Held at Main House May 11.

Many Improvements in Houses and Equipment Are Being Made.

The annual meeting of the Duluth Boat club will be held at the main clubhouse on Tuesday evening, May 11. Officers to serve during the ensuing year will be elected and other business will be transacted.

Officials of the club are not waiting until after the annual meeting before going ahead with preparations for the club's season, however. More improvements are being made than ever before in the history of the club, not even excepting last year.

Members who have not already been down there will not recognize the Oatka branch of the club when they see it. Two of the yacht club buildings have been moved there, giving accommodations at that branch which are scarcely equaled by the main house itself. The old Oatka building is still a part of the equipment there.

A little later the "quick lunch" at the Oatka branch will open. The "lunch" at the main house will begin operations Monday. With these quick lunches, members will be able to get light refreshments and lunches as cheaply as they can uptown.

Work on the new launch-house is progressing satisfactorily, and it is merely a matter of waiting until the ground dries a little more before starting work on the concrete tennis courts. The concrete courts are conceded to be much more of a success than the sand courts, and they will probably be in readiness for the players within a month.

Two new lapstreaks have just been added to the complement of boats and a new eight-oar shell and two new four-oar shells are on the way. For the benefit of the uninitiated, it will be explained that lapstreaks are four-oared barges.

The addition of this equipment will give the club three first-class eight-oared shells, four first-class four-oared shells and four first-class four-oared barges, besides various other crafts of different styles.

Work is being rushed on the new lockers for the club members who sail.

The inauguration of a fast gasoline-engine suburban train to Fond du Lac by the Northern Pacific is calculated to increase the popularity of the Spirit Lake branch of the club. Improved facilities for reaching the branch will induce many more members to go there. It is understood that the gasoline train equipment is on the way and will arrive some time next week.

JIU JITSU IS UNIQUE SPORT

Knowledge of Human Anatomy Is Necessary To Master It.

Interest in the jiu jitsu match of a week from tonight, is being aroused by the unique rules of the national game of Japan. Inquiries are being made as to whether jiu jitsu is a wrestling match or a struggle in which nothing in particular is barred.

In answer to these inquiries, it may be said that jiu jitsu is a scientific combination of the most effective holds of the wrestling game, combined with a knowledge of the nerve centers as a means through which an opponent can be overpowered.

In giving demonstrations of his power in this direction, Capt. Leopold McLaglen visited the training quarters of Walter Whitehead. The big pugilist was asked if he was willing to be shown. He gave his consent and the jiu jitsu expert by simply exerting pressure upon the cords at the base of the neck, made the fighter howl with pain.

Jiu jitsu is a sport where the intelligence of the struggler often decides the contest, Capt. McLaglen is a man who has studied medicine, and has gained great knowledge of the human anatomy.

In fact, jiu jitsu is a scientific study of the anatomy. One of the first lessons jiu jitsu beginners are given is a chart of the human body. They are compelled to master a knowledge of the body and its nerve centers, before they can become experts in their profession.

Out on the Pacific coast, where Capt. McLaglen has wrestled all of the Japanese that they could get to go against him, they take a great interest in jiu jitsu. The number of Japanese on the coast has given the sport an impetus in that part of the country that it has not received in other states.

However, in the East there is a great interest being taken in the sport at the present time. It is a sport that interests professional men as well as the regular fans. In a jiu jitsu contest the contestants move around the ring like lightning. They feint, strike, kick and are ever wary lest an opponent should secure a hold that will decide the contest.

In a practical demonstration given one evening in a prominent Superior street cafe, Capt. McLaglen showed how simple it was for a jiu jitsu expert to render helpless two stalwart six-footers. Both of these men are athletes, capable of handling themselves in pretty rough going; yet by the pressure of some nerve at the side of the neck the captain was able to stretch these men to their length upon the floor.

The strange thing about the demonstration, was that neither man experienced any pain.

In Yamagata, Capt. McLaglen, who holds the world's championship, will meet a man who has received the seventh degree from the Kodokan school of Tokio. This is the national jiu jitsu school of Japan. The ninth degree is the highest honor conferred by the school.

Yale Wins Championship.

New York, May 6.—By defeating Princeton in the play-off of a tie in the New York Athletic club pool yesterday, Yale won the intercollegiate water polo championship. Yale outplayed Princeton, but Princeton kept the score down to 1 to 0.

Two Records Broken.

Philadelphia, May 6.—Paull, the sophomore distance runner of the University of Pennsylvania, yesterday on Franklin field broke the collegiate and intercollegiate record for the two-mile run, his time being 9 minutes 28 seconds. The record made by Rowe of the University of Michigan in 1907 was 9 minutes 34-5 seconds. Paull's time by quarters was 1:05, 2:15, 3:27, 4:42, 5:49, 7:05, 8:17 and 9:28.

MEETING OF THE NEW CITY LEAGUE.

A meeting of the Amateur Baseball league will be held tomorrow evening in the Northern Hardware company's store for the purpose of framing a schedule and adopting by-laws. There are eight teams in the new league, as follows: Adams, Hummers, Crescents, Cutlers, Duluth Heights, Cascades, Postoffice, and Unions.

Contest Nears End.

Boston, Mass., May 6.—With the end of the contest for the four principal trophies in sight, the competitors for honors in the Woman's Whist league's twelfth annual congress began play today in the final rounds of the Washington, Philadelphia, Cavendish and Boston trophies.

Interest centered during the early stages of the game today in the Washington contest, representing the national championship for clubs' fours, and the New Amsterdam club of New York began the day as the leader in the struggle, with the Cavendish club of Boston second.

MEET WAS A SUCCESS

Sunday School Convention Winding Up Business at Crookston.

Rev. A. H. Wurtele of Duluth Is Among Vice Presidents.

Crookston, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—With a registration over the 500 mark, the fifty-first annual convention of the State Sunday School association will come to a close late this afternoon, ending one of the most successful gatherings in its history. The exceptionally large attendance from the larger cities and from the southern part of the state was specially gratifying. The veteran workers state that the convention was one of the most enthusiastic ever held, and the program was exceptionally meritorious, including masterful and practical addresses by the leading workers of the entire country.

The officers elected late yesterday afternoon were as follows: President, J. H. Martin, Minneapolis; vice presidents, Rev. A. H. Wurtele, Duluth; W. H. Gold, Redwood Falls; K. O. Onstad, Ada; E. J. Krafft, Minneapolis; H. V. Kingsbury, Winona; recording secretary, C. E. Woodward, Minneapolis; treasurer, A. C. Hermann, St. Paul; directors, three-year term, C. J. Hunt, St. Paul; J. E. Bell, Minneapolis; J. H. Irish, Detroit; H. B. Avery, Minneapolis.

Among the features of the convention which has caused surprise and favorable comment on the part of the visiting delegates have been the great choruses provided, the one for the meeting in the Baptist church, headed by Rev. T. T. Ove, with the Viking chorus as a nucleus, and the other by Prof. J. H. Powers, with the Crookston Oratorio society as the nucleus.

Two great sessions were held last evening, Rev. Stanley B. Roberts of Minneapolis, presiding, at the M. E. church, where the principal address was made by T. J. Youngdahl, assistant superintendent of the Minnesota Anti-Saloon league, who reviewed the work of the league and the plans for the future, and referred to the power of strength the Sunday schools could be made in furthering the educational work planned by the league.

Duluthian Presided.

The other meeting was held in the Baptist church, where Dr. R. W. Bowden of Duluth presided. After the song service Rev. W. C. Pearce of Chicago delivered a wonderfully inspiring address on "The Adult Bible Class; Social and Moral Reform."

The last day of the convention opened this morning with devotional exercises led by Mrs. Sulzer of Albert Lea and an address on "The Sunday School Graded," by Secretary A. M. Locke, followed by a round table. Mrs. S. P. Johnson of Rugby gave a very interesting address on "Child Nature," while "Practical Missionary Study in the Sunday School," by Mrs. H. G. Harrison of Minneapolis, contained many practical suggestions.

"The Sunday School Superintendent" was the subject taken by Dr. H. C. Beise of Windom, the closing address being by Rev. George B. Merrill of Minneapolis, on "An Hour With the Book." The greater portion of the afternoon will be taken up by the teachers' training conference.

LARGE FAMILY IS FOUND STARVING

Hubbard County Physician Makes Horrible Discovery.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. Christianson, county physician in Hubbard county, just returned from a trip to Laporte and reports that while making his trip to Laporte he passed a homestead which was owned by a man named Maloon. Through some fortunate incident the doctor stopped at the place and entered the cabin, wherein lived the homesteader, his wife and thirteen children. Upon entering a horrible sight met his gaze. The entire family were confined to their beds and hardly able to move. The father told a pitiful story. He said that for six days the whole family had not had a bite to eat. Times had grown very dull and the few pennies he had were spent on the family for food. When his money was all gone his nearest neighbors, who lived several miles away, gave what they could afford. But they, too, were very poor. The homesteader's family gradually began to weaken until they were in an almost helpless condition. He faced it as long as possible, but his constitution finally gave out also.

The doctor hurriedly returned to Cass Lake, which is about twenty-five miles from the homestead. A large amount of provisions have been gathered together and are being hurriedly taken to the destitute family.

MAYOR'S POWER WILL BE TESTED

City Executive's to Remove Appointed Official to be Determined.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fight that has been on here since April 22, centering on the office of street commissioner, will culminate in a friendly suit to determine the authority of the mayor of a North Dakota city to remove appointive officials. A proposition looking to this end was submitted by Mayor J. D. Taylor to the attorney representing M. E. Durick, the deposed commissioner, and the action will probably be commenced within a few days.

"The question is one that involves a principle with me," said Mayor Taylor. "I believe that under the law I have the authority as mayor to remove an appointed officer when I deem it to be to the best interests of the city that a change should be made. If the courts decide that a mayor has no right to remove an official when he finds that a change is necessary, then I shall resign from the office, as I do not care to be a mere figurehead."

M. E. Durick, who was removed by Mayor Taylor, insists that he is still entitled to hold and has been working crews of men on the streets since April 22, the day he was deposed. These men have been allowed their time up to the day Mr. Durick was notified that his services were no longer required. The crews working under Jack Dunlop, the newly appointed commissioner, have not been allowed their pay by the city council as yet.

TELLER IN CELL NO. 13.

Accused Minneapolis Bank Employe Breaking Down Under Strain.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ellis W. Niles, former receiving teller of the First National bank, now occupies cell No. 13, in the Hennepin county jail. He was given his choice between cells 13 and 23 after having been held to the grand jury on the charge of having embezzled $20,000 of the bank's funds.

Jailer Nels Clausen told Niles, when the bank clerk was turned over to his charge, that but two cells were vacant, 13 and 23, and that he might have his choice.

"You're joking," said Niles. "Don't put me in a cell with either of those numbers."

The former bank clerk is showing the strain which has been upon him. His face is sunken and a heavy growth of black whiskers covers his face. He frets because he cannot shave himself. The jail officers will not let him have a razor. In view of the nervous condition in which Niles is it is feared he might make an attempt on his own life.

IN FAVOR OF CANAL.

Stillwater Enthusiastic Over Lake Superior-Mississippi Scheme.

Stillwater, Minn., May 6.—The citizens of Stillwater are enthusiastic over the possibilities of the Lake Superior-Mississippi river canal, a survey for which will be made this season under direction of Lieut. Col. Fitch of the United States corps of engineers.

At a meeting of the city council Tuesday evening resolutions were adopted warmly commending the enterprise. The council also made an appropriation of $300 to assist the citizens' committee in securing necessary data requested by the department. This committee has engaged the services of an expert, W. E. Cowles of St. Paul, editor of the Northwest Magazine, to compile statistics showing the commercial value of such a waterway. H. H. Harrison of Stillwater, one of the best-known civil engineers of the Northwest, has volunteered his services in preparing data relative to the feasibility and practicability of the proposed canal and its natural advantages to the adjacent territory.

The chairman of the citizens' committee is G. G. Armson of Stillwater, who is lustily engaged in securing the co-operation of other cities along the line in the promotion of the canal project.

GET BIG HORSE CONTRACT.

Western North Dakota Parties to Fill Government Order.

Dickinson, N. D., May 6.—Western North Dakota parties have again been awarded the government contract for furnishing horses to the Indians on the Standing Rock reservation for this year the same contract which five Dickinson and Mandan men received last year. The contract was let at Washington, but just the mere details of the deal have been received here as yet. There are only three in the bunch this year, including W. S. Parkin and two Dickinson ranchers. The contract is similar to last year and involves $150,000 or more.

Last year this contract was successfully handled by A. H. Arnets, W. L. Richards, G. M. Frye, W. S. Parkin and W. C. Badger. It was one of the biggest deals of this kind ever pulled off in this part of the state as the contract had usually been let to Eastern parties, and it was considered a big thing for Western North Dakota that that part of the country should furnish the horses to the government. The contract called for 1,252 head, and the amount received was over $200,000.

CANADIAN OFFICER FACES TRIAL AT FERGUS FALLS.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 6.—Herbert Wright, a Canadian government customs officer, is in the city to answer to a charge of having assisted persons to cross the boundary who are not entitled to enter the United States. He is under indictment.

The spring term of the United States court opened here Tuesday. Judge Morris presiding.

BEMIDJI BOAT CLUB HAS ADOPTED PENNANT.

Bemidji, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of county commissioners has passed a resolution authorizing the issuance of $195,000 bonds for the purpose of refunding the floating indebtedness of Beltrami county. The bonds are to bear 4½ per cent interest and be paid at the rate of $13,000 per year.

In the resolution which was passed it is stated that the floating indebtedness of Beltrami county is $204,157.19. Bids for the sale of these bonds will be opened at a session of the county board to be held May 25, at 10 o'clock a. m.

Before the resolution was passed County Auditor Wittmann submitted to the board a statement showing that the assessed valuation of Beltrami county was $7,040,887, and the estimated true valuation is twice that amount. He also stated that the bonded indebtedness of the county was $110,000 and to partially offset this there was in the sinking fund the sum of $43,734.51.

SETTLE WITH WIDOW.

Fraternal Insurance Organization Pays for Husband's Death.

Jamestown, N. D., May 6.—The case of Victoria Soules of La Moure against the Brotherhood of American Yeomen has been settled, the payment of $3,375.-90 being made this week. Her husband carried $2,000 insurance in this fraternal organization and his death was claimed by the company to have been by suicide. The widow took the matter before the courts, carried it to the supreme court and finally secured a judgment for the full amount and costs. It was fought for two years, and has been followed with much interest by all interested in insurance matters.

BORROWS GUN; KILLS SELF.

Stearns County Pioneer Takes His Life at Two Inlets.

Park Rapids, Minn., May 6.—Despondent over financial and family troubles Edward Hoffman, a former resident of Albany, and one of the pioneers of Stearns county, committed suicide at Two Inlets, a small town two miles west of here, Monday morning. Hoffman lived alone on a claim Monday morning he went to a neighbor and borrowed a shotgun, saying that he wanted to do some hunting. He went home and placed the muzzle of the gun at his head. He pulled the trigger with a string. The top of the man's head was blown off and death was instantaneous. The body was found by one of the neighbors shortly after noon.

Hoffman was born in Germany in the year 1849, and was 59 years of age. He came to this country with his parents in the early seventies and for twenty-five years lived on a farm near Albany. In the year 1898 he moved to Two Inlets, where he took up a claim. His family refused to accompany him and they have been separated ever since.

Wisconsin Professor Dead.

Madison, Wis., May 6.—Prof. Thomas H. Brand, aged 72, is dead as a result of an accident sustained over a year ago while getting off a train on the Northwestern road near his home.

SOMETHING WORTH KNOWING

And Knowing is Believing

You Can't Have Dyspepsia and Take Kodol, Because it Digests All the Food You Eat.

Chronic dyspepsia is very hard to cure. Kodol will effectually assist in curing, and it is far more satisfactory to prevent this disease. Kodol prevents dyspepsia, by making the digestion good, and keeping it good. It is worth something to know this, if you have indigestion, and likely to have dyspepsia. Kodol prevents dyspepsia, and makes the digestion good, by digesting all the food you eat. A tablespoonful of Kodol will digest 2½ pounds of food. That is, a tablespoonful of Kodol will digest that quantity of any kind of food you may eat. Not only a single class of food—but all kinds of food, in any combination. You can't have dyspepsia, if you take Kodol now and then—because it is not possible for you to have hyspepsia, as long as your food digests properly—and Kodol digests the food you eat. Our guarantee—Get a dollar bottle of Kodol. If you are not benefitted—the druggist will at once return your money. Don't hesitate; any druggist will sell you Kodol on these terms. The dollar bottle contains 2½ times as much as the 50c bottle. Kodol is prepared in the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

New York City's Great Parks

Totaling Nearly 6,000 Acres, All Within Easy Riding Distances.

FROM THE ST. REGIS HOTEL

The five boroughs of Greater New York contain upwards of seventy public parks—both large and small—having a total area of approximately six thousand acres. Six of these parks are notable for their size and extent, and take rank with the largest parks in the world. Their beauty is remarkable and diversified. Each possesses some attribute, some charm of location or some specially developed feature denied to the others, and this variety adds greatly to the enjoyment of visitors. All of New York's parks are within easy carriage or automobile riding distances of the center of Manhattan — the middle borough — and particularly of the St. Regis, at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, the hotel most popular with metropolitan visitors of discrimination and refinement. To those as yet unaware of its exceptional advantages it may be said that the St. Regis, built to be America's finest hotel, has more than accomplished the hopes of the projectors. Home comforts and home refinements of the highest degree are assured to all; its service is of a character that leaves nothing to be desired; its cuisine—modeled upon those of the most famous foreign restaurants—is perfect. Note well, also, that its restaurant charges are no higher than those of other first class hotels, and that its room rates are extremely reasonable; $3 and $4 a day for a commodious, handsomely furnished single bedroom; the same with private bath for $5 a day (or $6 for two people); or $12 a day and up for an exquisite suite of parlor, bedroom and private bath.

SPRING OPENING IS A SUCCESS

Bayha & Company Entertains Visitors With Display and Music.

Unpleasant weather conditions proved no damper on the annual spring opening which occurred at Bayha & Co.'s big housefurnishing establishment this afternoon. The store, which had been specially dressed for the occasion, was thronged with visitors who admired the splendid display of new goods and enjoyed the entertainment.

The decorations were very tasty and spring-like in effect and set off to advantage the handsome and substantial handcraft furniture and the hundreds of other home decorations and necessities. The ladies were especially pleased with the pretty souvenir dishes provided by the management.

The musical part of the entertainment, which was one of the delightful features of the entertainment, consisted of a fine program by Deslaurier's orchestra, rendered between 2 and 5 o'clock.

The opening will continue this evening and the orchestra will render an entire change of program, between the hours of 8 and 10. Everybody is welcome to attend.

Bayha & Co. have made unusually large purchases for the firm's spring and summer trade along all lines of housefurnishing goods, and are this season introducing many new novelties.

ULTIMATUM IS ISSUED

Dog Owners Must Secure Licenses or Be Arrested.

Delinquent dog owners at West Duluth, who refuse or neglect to come across with the necessary coin to license their canines, will be arrested, according to Capt. J. W. Mann, poundmaster of the West Duluth district.

Mr. Mann today stated that prosecutions would begin next week, and those who are now trying to evade the law, as far as paying a tax on their dog is concerned, will be promptly arrested. Quite a number of West Duluthians who own dogs have already paid their yearly tax.

MELDAHL ELECTED.

Made President of the Asbury Church Epworth League.

Albert Meldahl was elected last evening as president of the Epworth League of the Asbury M. E. church, at the annual business meeting and election of officers, held at the church.

The other officers chosen are: Miss Eva McLyman, first vice president; Miss Louise Renfry, second vice president; Miss Daisy McLyman, third vice president; Miss Eliza Remfryn, fourth vice president; Clarence Gilbert secretary; Miss Bessie Greeley, treasurer, and Hazel Crosby, organist.

After the election of officers, plans for the coming year were outlined. The postponed literary meeting of the league, which was to have been held last Friday evening, will be held tomorrow evening at the residence of Mrs. G. W. Smith, 621 North Central avenue. "The Living Library" is the topic for discussion.

EVERYONE BUSY AT WEST DULUTH

With the opening of shipping on the ore docks and the reopening of the blast furnace at West Duluth it is estimated that more men have steady employment at this time, than ever before in the industrial history of that section of the city.

The lumber business will keep hundreds of men busy night and day at the Red Cliff, Alger-Smith and Rainy Lake mills all summer. These mills are employing day and night shifts of about 300 men each.

The blast furnace which started yesterday, will be running with a full crew all summer, and the ore docks, the National Iron works, the carbolite and match factories and many smaller establishments are working full time.

ALUMNI BANQUET.

The fourteenth annual banquet of the Fairmont Alumni association will be held at Gilley's hall, West Duluth, on June 5. This was decided at a recent meeting of the executive board.

The Fairmont grads enjoy the distinction of being the oldest organization of the kind in the city. Twenty-one new members will be taken in on the coming of the banquet. Covers will be laid for about 175.

President Meldahl of the alumni has named the following committees to take charge of the event: Refreshments, Lilly Dunne, Adelaide Horman, Eva Seymore, Rebecca Brown, Luretta Bifold; program, Andrew Dunne, Oscar Amundson, Anna Bergum; decorations, Mrs Avey, Andrew Uvand, Allie Onsgard, Mary Dunne, Roy Schoonaver; reception, Kathryn King, Oscar Mundson, Edwin Kenney, Andrew Ulvand.

The Fairmont Alumni association is the only one in the city which restricts attendance at meetings to members only. The organization is in a flourishing condition, and considerable effort will be put forth to make the coming banquet eclipse all previous attempts.

THE FIRST CLASS.

Sixteen Students Will Graduate From Irving Industrial School.

A class of sixteen members comprise the first senior class to graduate from the Irving Industrial school at West Duluth. Graduation exercises are now in course of preparation. A class play will be given and arrangements are under way for a class day program. The latter will consist of a class prophecy, class will, class poem, class history, etc.

ON WAY HOME.

Mrs. Hannah Thorpe and three children are expected to return to their home, on South Sixty-eighth avenue west, Sunday. They have been gone about seven months on a trip to Norway. Most of the time abroad was spend at Frederickstad, Norway.

When Mrs. Thorpe returns, it is expected that a number of her friends will accompany her. They have been told about the advantages of Duluth and the Northland country and are desirous of making their homes in this section.

WIFE WINS OUT.

Peter A. Anderson, 5719 Cody street, will be obliged to contribute $40 a month to the support of his wife and three children or spend thirty days in jail. He was given the option in Justice Flack's court last evening.

Anderson, who was arrested Tuesday afternoon, was charged with non-support by his wife. The trial was held last evening before Justice Flack, and Anderson was put under bonds to spend $40 a month on his family for three months. He is a longshoreman and makes good wages while he is working.

Annual Banquet.

Arrangements for the annual banquet of the Longfellow Alumni association will be made at a special meeting of the organization scheduled for tomorrow evening at the Longfellow school. Other important business matters will also be taken up at that time.

Notice.

The West Duluth Lodge, No. 85, Degree of Honor, A. O. U. W., will hold a special meeting Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at Gilley's hall.

The grand chief of honor, Anna L. Duffy, of Shakopee, will be present and explain the new rates.

All members are requested to be present.

CONGRESSMAN MILLER HOME FROM WASHINGTON

Not Ashamed of Vote for Cannon on Floor of House.

"Only Thing a Republican Could Do," He Says.

CONGRESSMAN MILLER.

Clarence B. Miller, congressman from the Eighth congressional district, returned this morning from Washington, and to The Herald today gave out a statement in regard to his vote for Joseph G. Cannon for speaker of the house of representatives.

"I voted for Cannon for speaker of the house, not because I am in favor of his rule or principles. I voted for him simply because it was the only thing possible for a Republican to do. If I had voted against Cannon I would have been voting outside my party and for a Democratic organization of the house, something that, as a Republican, I refused to do. I am not in the least ashamed of the stand I took in this matter."

That is the reason given by Mr. Miller for not opposing outside of the caucus the election of the man he denounced in his campaign for congress.

"I went into the Republican caucus opposed with all my power to the election of Mr. Cannon as speaker of the house," said Mr. Miller. "There was no one to lead the fight of the insurgents. If Theodore Burton of Ohio had remained in the house there would have been a chance to defeat Cannon. I believe that Burton would have been able to muster sufficient votes to have deposed the present speaker. Towsend of Michigan and Fowler of New Jersey were considered by those who desired the defeat of Mr. Cannon, but neither of these men could gather enough votes to win. It was when the Republicans in the caucus found that they could find no man in the Republican party to defeat Cannon that those who stood for a Republican organization in the house came from the caucus and voted for Cannon, who stood against Champ Clark, the Democratic minority leader.

Only Course Open.

"To vote for Cannon after the Republican caucus had indorsed him, was the only possible course as a Republican, that I could have pursued. If I hadn't voted for Cannon the only course left open to me would have been to vote for Champ Clark and a Democratic rule in the committees of the lower congress. This I refused to do. I refused to sacrifice my standing as a Republican by pursuing such a course."

The original insurgent movement was composed of over fifty members, according to Mr. Miller. This was started along in the first part of last February. When Congressman Miller reached Washington, he says that the movement against Speaker Cannon was not as strong as it originally was, simply because the movement lacked a leader.

"When the insurgents found they could not elect a Republican speaker in opposition to Cannon, they carried the fight against the rules into the caucus of the party. They won in their fight for a modification of the rules, which those opposed to Cannon's rule and the house organization, fought so strenuously for.

"It was proposed that a nominating committee, composed of fifteen members, name the committee appointments instead of the speaker. Many of the insurgents were in favor of this plan," said Mr. Miller, "until it was found that this method would hopelessly entangle the business of the house. The immediate revision of tariff was before congress, and at the request of President Taft, this plan was abandoned."

Mr. Miller states that Champ Clark named a nominating committee of fifteen, the balance of whose power would lie in Democratic hands, and that to have voted against Cannon outside of the caucus of the Republican party would have been voting for a Democratic organization of the house, through committee appointments made by a nominating committee largely Democratic.

"I have opposed Cannon and I do oppose him at the present time," said Mr. Miller. "The explanation of my voting for him is simple. I stood by my party for a Republican organization. I did so at the earnest request of President Taft. There was no other course that I could pursue."

Position On Lumber.

In regard to his stand upon free duty upon lumber, Mr. Miller puts his position in a few words.

"I am for a condition that will give the small home builder and the workingmen of the Eighth congressional district some consideration in fixing the price upon lumber. The free lumber will not come in competition with the lumber interests of this district. The people of this district are largely for free lumber.

"The Pacific coast lumber interests will feel the removal of the duty. It will cause a competition of foreign shipments. They are bitterly opposed to the removal of the duty for this reason. In this district the competition will be slight."

Congressman Miller says that the iron schedules have been fixed so as not to injure the interests of Northern Minnesota. As a matter of fact, Mr. Miller stated that Carnegie and Charles Schwab are in favor of free iron ore, for the simple reason that these men own vast deposits of iron ore in Cuba. These iron holdings are said to be, according to Mr. Miller's information, equal to the deposits upon the Minnesota ranges. Mr. Miller believes that this is the ulterior motive for the advocation of the removal of the duty upon iron ore by certain men representing outside holdings.

Land Open For Entry.

The congressman says he has had put back for entry 163,000 acres of the Superior forest reserve. Most of the land reopened for settlement lies in Cook and Lake counties. Mr. Miller states that this will prove a great boon to the settlers in this part of the state.

"I am at the present time opposing Speaker Cannon and I shall continue to oppose him," says Mr. Miller. I went to Washington opposed to the principles of Speaker Cannon and I continue of that opinion. I think that it was a mistake of the Republican party to re-elect Mr. Cannon. The people have lost confidence in him, and he shouldn't have been elected. However, the party ruled that he should continue his rule in the house, in support of the Republican organization, and I stood by the action of the Republican party in this resolve."

HAT SALE!

The hat business is a big affair in our institution. Every novelty which appears in New York comes here immediately. Our hat stock is at all times kept so large and extensive as to enable us to fit every man's head, features, shape, notions and his pocketbook. What's more natural than that odds and ends accumulate. To dispose of them at a cut price we have to remove the labels of some famous makers, who insist on a stipulated retail price, and, of course, cannot advertise the brands. But the chance is yours to get high hat quality this week at these low prices.

98c for one lot, consisting mainly of hats which originally sold at two dollars and two-fifty.

$1.98 for another lot, consisting of hats —Stetsons and others—of the usual three to five dollar kinds.

KILLS SELF BECAUSE FATHER IS INDIGENT.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edmund Peltier, 1358 Crystal Lake aveneu, a contractor in a found dead yesterday afternoon in a rooming house at 320 Fourth street southeast. Coroner Gilbert Seashore was summoned and the police were notified. It is believed the man committed suicide. A half-emptied bottle of carbolic acid was found by his bedside.

According to the coroner, a note was found. Motive for the act is apparent, as he says he could not bear to live longer since his father was taken recently to a charitable institution.

MARINE NEWS

FOUGHT GALE WITH FEAR MADDENED CREW

Officers of Hutchinson Had to Lock Up Sailors.

Decks Were Awash and the Hatches Were Sprung.

The steamer Hutchinson, an American vessel, owned in Cleveland, has arrived at Fort William, Ont., after a voyage which for unique adventures has seldom been equaled on the Great Lakes. The Hutchinson left the Soo last Thursday and encountered the terrible storm in Whitefish bay that disabled and sank the Aurania. She was within a few miles of the latter vessel at the time she went down.

The Hutchinson carried a crew of seven—five Italians and two Galicians. She was heavily loaded with coal. Leaving Whitefish the vessel headed for the open lake in the face of a terrific gale and blinding snow storm. The storm increased in violence as she advanced.

During the worst of the storm, while the decks were awash and the vessel rocking violently, the crew became panic-stricken. They refused to work, and threats and promises on the part of Capt. Logan were alike unavailing. The Italians, under the orders and force of the officers, were compelled to take their places, but nothing could prevail on them to give any assistance. They stood by, shaking with fear and counting their beads.

Finding the foreign crew utterly worthless, Capt. Logan trained the Hutchinson straight into the storm. A series of great waves sunk the deck nearly two inches, causing the hatches to spring out, and great quantities of water were washed into the hold, sinking her still lower.

In imminent danger of foundering at any time, the Hutchinson fought her way almost by inches against the wind and high seas. She was on the lake during the whole of the two days' storm.

During the latter part of the voyage the two Galicians became violent and it was necessary to lock them in the galley for their own protection.

When the Hutchinson reached Fort William the officers and engine room force were completely worn out. The crew having been worse than useless, the officers were compelled to divide up their work. Despite the fury of the storm the Hutchinson was practically undamaged when she reached port.

RUNS AGROUND IN THE HARBOR

Steamer Cornell Finds Shoal Near Northern Pacific Bridge.

The steamer Cornell, coal laden for the Duluth, Missabe & Northern docks, ran aground early this morning near the Minnesota end of the Northern Pacific bridge.

The vessel was heading direct for the docks without tug assistance, and evidently missed her bearings at a turn in the channel. The tug Inman was called and released her.

The Cornell proceeded to her berth and so far as known was not damaged. The boat is one of the Pittsburg Steamship company's ore fleet.

SHOTS GREET BOLD STRIKERS

Buffalo, N. Y., May 6.—Strikers, who rushed on board the steamer Charles W. Kotcher, at the export elevator dock here last night to take off the crew, were met with a volley of shots by the special men on board. The strikers stuck to the boat until the police reserves arrived. They then scattered and ran. No arrests were made and so far as known no one was hit by the revolver shots.

A number of members of the crew of the Badger State were badly beaten on the dock at Tonawanda just before the steamer sailed last night.

Union seamen and cooks left the steamers J. W. Morrow and Frederick B. Wells here last night. The Steamers America and William Castle Rhodes sailed with non-union crews. The America has been held up several days for lack of men. A crowd of strikers showered her with stones as she passed out of the harbor. The package freighters Averill, Rome, Ogdensburg and Wilkesbarre, left with union crews.

LIGHTER'S CREW WAS RESCUED

Sharpless Reaches Gary With an Account of Their Escape.

Chicago, May 6.—The mystery of the lighter, Batavia, of the Lehigh Valley Transportation company, abandoned in a terrific storm which swept the Great Lakes last week, was cleared yesterday when the steam barge, Sharpless, of the St. Lawrence route put into Gary, Ind., and her captain, Thomas J. Carlisle, related the story of the rescue of the Batavia's crew.

The Batavia was being towed to Buffalo by the steamer, Wilkesbarre. Caught in the gale last Thursday off Little Traverse bay, the Wilkesbarre cut the Batavia loose, the latter intending to make port. So great was the storm that the lighter could not proceed, and after a stubborn fight drifted into midlake.

Capt. Arthur W. Apsey of the Batavia and a crew of five men were about abandoning hope of saving their lives, with their slight craft nearing destruction on Fox island shores, when the barge, Sharpless, sighted them. Capt. Carlisle of the Sharpless came to the rescue. He steamed as close to the lighter as possible and the members of the crew leaped from the lighter to the barge to safety. The Batavia was abandoned.

The vessel was picked up by the Pere Marquette ferry No. 1 several days ago and towed into Frankfort, Mich., whither Capt. Apsey and the original crew had gone to take it on its way to Buffalo.

WANT CARGOES MORE THAN MEN

Livingstone Says Many Boats Are in Commission Despite Strike.

Detroit, Mich., May 6.—President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association, speaking yesterday of the lake marine strike, said that 138 vessels belonging to the association were now in commission and that the most serious problem was to obtain cargoes.

Mr. Livingstone said that in the last three days more than 100 men had been given employment on the boats at Buffalo.

OLD LAKE ERIE IS "ACTING UP"

Water Rises and Falls in Most Mysterious Manner.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 6.—Lake Erie has been exhibiting a weird behavior since midnight and has risen and fallen several times in a manner that old marines along the water front say has never before been duplicated within their memory.

Between 2 and 3 o'clock this morning, the lookouts at the lifesaving station noticed that the water was rising rapidly. At 4 o'clock it had risen from four to five feet, according to their estimates, a condition that has never been known to exist unless a gale was blowing.

Between 4 and 4:30 this morning the water began going out of the harbor with a rush. It went down so rapidly that the boats in the Blackwell canal and along the river tugged at their moorings and were banged hard against their docks.

The steamer Iron Queen, lying at the old salt docks on the Blackwell, pulled up the piles to which she was moored, and was carried down with the rushing water to the outer harbor.

FIRE TUG IS DUE SATURDAY

The McGonagle Will Protect Ore Docks in Duluth.

The new fire tug McGonagle, built for water front fire protection at the Missabe docks, is expected to reach Duluth Saturday morning. She arrived at the Soo last night and will proceed on her maiden trip from that place this afternoon.

The McGonagle is as fine a specimen of an up-to-date fire tug as can be found on the lakes. She was built to special order at Collingwood, Ont., and her entire equipment is of the latest and most approved pattern.

The tug is named in honor of William A. McGonagle, president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway.

DYNAMITE TO CLEAR CHANNEL

Ice Still Blockades the Boats in Portage Lake.

Dynamite is being used to free the ice bound vessels in Portage lake, an unusual occurrence at this time of the year. The steamers William A. Paine and John A. McGean became fast last Saturday. The ice yesterday was nearly a mile and a half in length and about a foot thick.

Several attempts were made to force a passage through the ice, but without avail. Rather than wait for the ice to melt, it was decided to blast a channel with the aid of dynamite. Several charges were exploded yesterday and the vessels were advanced about half a mile. Another attempt to free the boats will be made today.

The steamer Mahoning of the Anchor line, which was delayed for several days at Lily Pond, got into the free channel yesterday morning. She arrived late yesterday afternoon and is today discharging her big cargo of merchandise.

CAPTAIN'S OWN STORY

Master of Aurania Tells of Sinking of His Vessel.

Three Hours to Travel Three Miles Across Ice.

Worn and haggard from his terrible experiences in Whitefish bay last Thursday, when, with his crew of twenty men, he had a thrilling and narrow escape from death, Capt. Robert C. Pringle of the ill-fated steamer Aurania has reached his home in Cleveland.

The Aurania foundered in the waters of Whitefish bay almost without warning, and captain and crew were saved only after a perilous trip of several miles across treacherous ice floes to the hospitable deck of the steamer Bartow.

Relating his experiences, Capt. Pringle said:

"It was like a great, sad sermon; like the end of the world. When the ice crushed in on us we were trying to thread our way through a channel between the great floes. The Aurania was a good ship and had stood the work of many seasons, but this she could not stand.

"As though some invisible power dragged at her keel, she suddenly began to settle at the bow, and in a moment we knew that something serious had gone wrong. As she settled she listed and we could barely stand on deck. There was nothing to do but to take to the ice. We got three boats over, and by climbing and pulling over the broken floes managed to get far enough away so that broken ice started by the sinking would not be likely to hit us.

"Then I turned to watch the ship. It was terrible. As I watched I found myself, that in hand, as by an open grave. The great steel hull had turned between the floes, forced over by the pressure of millions of tons of ice on the opposite sides, until her masts touched the surface and her keel was clear of the highest pinnacles.

"Slowly the stern dropped in the water, and almost with a groan as the steel slipped through the broken ice she slid downward, gradually righting herself until again she stood squarely. Then there was a great gasp as she slipped beneath the surface and the water and ice rushed over her.

"We were a mile from the open water on one side, and there we could see three steamers, one a little Canadian boat and two big steamers of the Peavey line. We signalled them with a whistle when we discovered our trouble, and on the ice we raised the flag with Union Jack down, the signal of distress that every schoolboy knows. All three vessels, however, turned and steamed away from us and disappeared.

"It wasn't a pleasant situation to stand, with twenty men on a floating field of rotting, breaking ice and watch those boats disappear. But on the other side, three miles away, we could see another steamer, evidently caught in the ice as we had been. It was our only chance and we took it.

"I broke the crew into three parties and started the trip. Each party had a boat. Two of them were heavy yawls and the other was a little light wooden boat which belonged to me.

"The ice was just a mass of broken bergs and cakes which had been driven together and piled up by the wind, making a great floe. Here and there the water showed between the cakes, and again we would have to climb over masses of jagged ice, dragging the boats behind us. Once in a while a man would fall. Then two or three would drop together through a crack or through the thin ice, but they always managed to crawl back to safety.

"Finally, after we had fought and slipped and scrambled for an hour, I decided we had better change the tactics, and I told the crew to leave their boat and go on ahead, promising to follow and take them over any big breaks if they reached open water. It was slow pulling, but without the boat they soon outdistanced us and seemed to be making headway.

"I was afraid the ice would break up or the wind would change and break up the crush and leave us floating on half a dozen little slabs out in the lake, so I hated to leave the boats, but at length I decided to leave the other yawl and follow with the light boat to cross any open water or help any of the men who got in serious trouble. Then the second crew pulled away from us. Every little while a man would slip through the ice and I thought the finish had come, but we made it.

"It took us three hours to make the three miles, but when we reached the Bartow it was worth it. Capt. White and the whole crew had been out watching us with glasses and when we made the boat we were given a welcome that would call a man back from the dead. That was what they thought we would be after we left the Aurania."

HUGE OIL LAKE IN CANADA.

Subterranean Flow Is Discovered in the Alberta Fields.

Winnipeg, Man., May 6.—The oil fields of Alberta are attracting much attention this spring and several dozen companies are in the field preparing to start boring operations. According to expert opinions a vast underground lake of oil exists along the eastern slope of the Rocky mountains, northwards from the international boundary into the unknown wilds. In support of this opinion "seepages" have been discovered all over the country in question and to the southwest of Pincher Creek the farmers have been using the crude oil for various purposes for ten or twelve years.

EXPERTS ON STAND.

Dr. Patton of Duluth Among Witnesses in Bemidji Damage Case.

Bemidji, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. Patton of Duluth and Dr. Brown of the University of Minnesota were among the experts called to the stand by counsel for the plaintiff today in the damage suit of Mrs. Mary Johnson of Blackduck against Dr. Koch of the same place to recover $5,000 for the death by diphtheria of her son, being called to testify as to whether the defendant had been prompt in the using of anti-toxin.

It is one of the claims of the plaintiff that the defendant was not prompt in using anti-toxin because of an alleged wrong diagnosis. Dr. Howard Lancaster of St. Paul is also here to testify for the defense.

T. F. Cole in Negaunee.

Negaunee, Mich., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thomas F. Cole of Duluth spent Tuesday in Negaunee, visiting relatives and friends. On Monday he attended a meeting of the directors of the Calumet & Arizona Mining company, in Calumet.

PROPOSALS FOR STATE PRINTING

Proposals are hereby solicited for doing the following described printing and binding of the State of Minnesota, for the period of one year, commencing the first day of August, 1909, and ending the thirty-first day of July, 1910. Such proposals will be received at the office of the Secretary of State in the Capitol in the City of St. Paul, Minnesota, until the hour of 12 o'clock, noon, on Friday, the fourth day of June, 1909, and will be thereat, immediately thereafter opened in public by the Printing Commission of the State of Minnesota. Said printing and binding consists of that required by the third and fifth classes of the classification of state printing, and is as follows.

Class 3. All other reports and documents ordered printed in pamphlet or book form by either branch of the Legislature, or authorized or required by law to be so printed, except the Legislative Manual.

Class 5. All blanks, circulars and stationery required by the executive or other departments and all other necessary state printing not included in the foregoing class nor otherwise provided for by law.

Such proposals for printing must state the fixed rate of composition, press work, ruling and binding, respectively. Such rates must not exceed the maximum rates established by said Printing Commission, and must include the furnishing of paper stock, and all material required to complete the work. Each bid must be in writing, sealed and addressed to the Secretary of State of Minnesota, may be for one or both of the foregoing classes as hereinbefore set forth, and must be accompanied by a bond in the penal sum of at least ten thousand dollars ($10,000) for each class included in such bid, approved as to form and execution by the Attorney General, executed by the bidder, with sufficient sureties to be approved by said Printing Commission, conditioned, among other things, that the bidder will, within ten days after the acceptance of his bid by said commission, enter into a written contract with the State of Minnesota in accordance therewith, and thereafter perform such contract according to its terms and in accordance with the specifications hereafter mentioned. Bids unaccompanied by bonds will not be considered. The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved. Upon the rejection of any bid the bond accompanying the same will be returned. Blank bonds, proposals and copies of said specifications are now on file in the office of the State Expert Printer at the Capitol, in the City of St. Paul and may be had upon request.

WHEAT HAS AN ADVANCE

Hot Weather in Kansas Cause of the Bullish Feeling.

Nearby Flax Options Have Weaker Tone at the Close.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 6.—Hot weather, unfavorable for the growing crops, in Kansas and other wheat states, caused a stronger feeling in the wheat market today, and the nearby months advanced, closing more than a point higher than yesterday.

The opening was firm and with a good demand the market remained very firm throughout the session. Most of the trading is now in the July option and that option went as high as $1.27⅜ in Duluth.

Some Manitoba wheat was worked for export here during the session.

Liverpool closed 2d to 1⅜d higher. Berlin ⅝c higher, Budapest ⅛c lower and Buenos Ayres unchanged to ⅛c higher.

The May option closed 1¼c higher in Duluth, New York and St. Louis, ⅝c higher in Chicago and Winnipeg and ⅜c higher in Minneapolis and Kansas City. July option closed 1¼c higher in Duluth and Winnipeg, 1⅜ higher in Chicago, 1⅛@1⅛c higher in Minneapolis, 1c higher in New York, ¾@⅞c higher in St. Louis and 1⅜@1½c higher in Kansas City.

May corn closed 1⅜c higher in Chicago and oats ⅞c higher.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "The market was slightly under pressure at the opening, owing to the late decline in American markets yesterday, and the easiness in Berlin, and values were ¼d to ⅜d lower. Following the opening and during the remainder of the morning, the market was strongly supported and very excited, with May shorts covering and offerings extremely light due to the light tenders on contract and the fact that large quantities of contract wheat was held off the market. May, as a result, advanced 2½d from the opening spot markets were strong, country markets firm, with small supplies light and cargoes were sparingly offered and bids were advanced 1½d to 3d. The distant months were 1⅜d higher at mid-day in sympathy with the advance in May, unfavorable reports from Germany and the dry weather in Russia. At mid-day the market was very excited with frequent declines from the top and rapid recoveries and at 1:30 p. m. prices were ⅞d to 1⅞d higher than yesterday. December wheat was quoted at 8⅛d at the opening and later advanced 5½d.

"Corn was quiet and ½d lower. The undertone was heavier, owing to the forecast of large Argentine shipments."

Car receipts at Duluth were 6 against 30 last year, and at Minneapolis 139 against 94 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 145 against 124 last year. Chicago received 2 against 20 last year, Winnipeg received 65 against 32 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 239,000 bu. last year, 262,000 bu. Shipments 657,000 bu. last year 672,000 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour were 217,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 285,000 bu. last year 280,000 bu. Shipments 441,000 bu. last year 278,000 bu. Clearances of corn were 1,000 bu.

Wheat was fairly active in the Duluth market. May wheat opened into at $1.26⅜, did advanced to $1.27⅜ and closed at $1.27, a gain of 1¼c over yesterday. July wheat opened ⅜c higher at $1.24¾, advanced to $1.27, declined to $1.25⅜, finally rallied to $1.27⅜, declined to $1.25⅝ and closed at $1.26⅜, a gain of 1¼c over yesterday. September wheat opened ⅛c higher at $1.09 advanced to $1.09⅝ and closed at $1.08⅝, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ½c higher. Cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2½c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was dull and the nearby months were easier. May flax opened ⅛c lower at $1.66½, declined to $1.66¼ and closed there, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. July flax opened unchanged at $1.67 and closed at $1.66⅜, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. September flax opened unchanged at $1.48 and closed there, unchanged from yesterday. October flax opened unchanged at $1.39½ and closed ⅛c lower at $1.39¼.

Oats closed ⅝c higher and other coarse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

No Rain in Kansas Is Slogan of the Bulls.

Chicago, May 6.—"No rain in Kansas" was the slogan used by the bulls in the wheat pit to force prices sharply higher at the opening of the market today. Initial quotations showed gains of ¾@1⅛c compared with yesterday's final figures. Shorts who had sold freely on the slump late in the previous day were eager bidders at the start and yet a fair offerings were inadequate to the demand. An advance of ⅜@1⅞d at Liverpool was an additional incentive to buyers. Toward the end of the first hour offerings were more liberal and prices receded considerably from the top.

The market was strong all day, houses with Southwestern connections being liberal purchasers throughout the entire session. The close was strong with July at 1⅛c at $1.17⅝. May was ⅞c higher at $1.23⅝.

The opening on July was at $1.16⅝@1.17⅜ and on May $1.23⅛@1.23⅝. Early in the day July advanced to $1.17⅞ and May to $1.23½, declining later to $1.16⅝ and $1.23 respectively.

Sentiment was extremely bullish all day and prices advanced to new high record marks for the season. The top for July was reached at 76. The close was strong with July up ⅞@⅞c at 49⅝c.

Light receipts prompted active buying of corn at the start, resulting in a strong opening. Initial quotations being up ⅝@⅞c to ⅞@⅞c. Commission houses led in the buying although shorts also bought freely. There was some selling of the September delivery, owing to predictions of better weather for farm work, but prices held firm early in the day. July opened at 69⅞@69½c and sold at 69⅝@69¾c.

Liberal purchases of the May delivery by a leading cash interest caused strength in the oats market at the start. Shorts also were good buyers of the nearby options. July opened ⅝@⅞c to ⅞@⅞c higher at 50⅝c to 50⅝c, and sold at 50⅜c. Trade in provisions was dull and the market was about steady. Prices at the start were unchanged to 2½c to 5c higher.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Stronger Cables and Unfavorable Weather Combine to Make Strength

Minneapolis, Minn., May 6.—Stronger cables and unfavorable weather reports from the Southwest made the opening strong. Both May and July wheat advanced to a new high point. Local stocks decreased 650,000 bushels for five days. Profit taking made the market close at about the opening price after a nervous and choppy session. Minneapolis today received 139 cars; Duluth 6; against 30 Winnipeg 67 against 32. May opened $1.28; high, $1.29¾; low, $1.27⅜; close, $1.28⅝. July opened $1.26⅜@1.27; high, $1.28; low, $1.26⅛; close, $1.27@1.27⅛. Cash wheat was in strong demand again today. The light offerings were eagerly sought by the local and country millers. No. 1 northern sold for 3½c over the July option and No. 2 northern at 1½c over. No. 1 northern spot, and to arrive, $1.30¾; No. 2 northern, $1.27¾@1.28⅝; spot, to arrive, $1.28¾; No. 3 wheat, $1.27¾@1.28⅜; No. 3 yellow corn, 71⅜@72¾c; No. 3 oats, 50@50⅜. No. 2 rye, $4⅜@87¾c.

Flax—Receipts 1 car today, against 22. Shipments 30. Lack of offerings made the market inactive. Demand naturally was strong and prices were 1c over the Duluth July option. Close, $1.67¼.

Barley—Receipts, 4 cars today, against 5. Shipments, 7. Due to a strong demand both locally and outside, and light offerings the market was stronger. Prices on all grades advanced 2c. Maltine barley received the strongest demand. Closing range 64@65½c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,528 tons. Demand continued active and far in excess of the supply. Bran in moderate and prices held firm. Bran in bulk, $23.50@24.00.

Flour was in fair demand. The high prices make nearly all outside orders for small quantities. Foreign inquiry was practically lacking. Shipments increased and prices were unchanged. Shipments, 44,235 barrels. First patents, $6.10@6.30; second patents, $6.00@6.20; first clears, $4.90@5.05; second clears, $3.45@3.55.

SUPERIOR NEWS

Suicide Identified.

The identity of the man who committed suicide late yesterday afternoon by hanging himself in a boxcar at Connor's Point has been established. He was Nels J. Borstead of Wrenshall Minn., and until recently had been employed as a section hand at Wingate, Minn.

No motive is known for the man committing suicide, although the theory is advanced that he was morbid on religious matters and had been brooding over something for a long time past. A notebook on his person had several scriptural writings in it and a testament was found among his personal effects.

Wins Silver Medal.

Miss Mabel Crosby won a silver medal last evening in a declamatory contest given under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. at the First Presbyterian church. Miss Evelyn Morrissette captured second honors in the event and to Amos Bjork was awarded third place. There were several contestants.

Turned Down All Bids.

Indications are that the board of public works will not award a contract this year for the resurfacing of Hughitt avenue between Third and Belknap streets. Bids were opened for the third time yesterday, but none of them seemed to prove satisfactory and all were rejected.

East End Scandal Up.

The East end scandal is being tried this afternoon in superior court. A number of young men in that section of Superior are implicated and are on the stand this afternoon. The plaintiff in the case is an East end girl, who was at first thought to have been insane and but who was later adjudged to be in her right mind.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Strength Shown at the Opening, But Realizing Broke Prices.

Close Was Very Dull With Some Losses From Wednesday.

New York, May 6.—Prices moved upwards to a moderate extent in the opening dealings in stocks today. The metal industries were prominent, Amalgamated Copper rising 1⅜, Anaconda and American Locomotive 1 and American Smelting and American Cotton Oil large fractions. Southern Railway preferred declined ¾.

Increasing strength was shown in the stock market, but the industrials largely monopolized the dealings with showed the most strength. The feature of the trading was a spirited buying of the copper stocks and United States Steel. Anaconda was lifted 2⅜, American Smelting, Amalgamated Copper and Utah Copper 2, Western Maryland 1⅝ and Minneapolis & St. Louis, the United States Steel stocks, the American Cotton Oil stocks, National Lead, American Tobacco preferred and Western Union 1 to 1⅜.

There were sudden advances in several specialties, but the general list turned downward under the weight of realizing sales. Western Maryland rose 3 points; Kansas City Southern, 1⅝; Wabash preferred, 1¼; American Linseed preferred, 2½, and American Car stocks, American Agricultural Chemical, the Virginia-Carolina Chemical stocks, Railway Steel Spring preferred, American Locomotive and Federal Mining preferred, 1 to 2 points. Bonds were strong.

The demand was largely confined to many specialties, while the market for railroad stocks was sluggish, but firm. St. Paul, Denver & Rio Grande and Chicago & Alton rose 1; Western Maryland jumped up 5 points; American Cotton Oil, 3⅝; United States Rubber, 2⅜, and the first and second preferred Pullman Railway Steel preferred, International Paper preferred, the Corn Products stocks, International Pump preferred and American Hide & Leather preferred, 1 to 2. A reaction of 2 points in Western Maryland stopped the rise and trading became very dull.

The market closed very dull. Union Pacific and Reading was carried slightly lower than last night in the reaction, and the local traction stocks were distinctly heavy. Pacific Mail lost 1. International Harvester preferred, Distillers' Securities and Central Railroad of New Jersey gained 1@1¾.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., May 6.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: An unusually active trade was a feature of today's delivery horses. There is considerable interest shown for good saddle horses and ponies for children. A number of horses and ponies are being received from lumbering interests who do summer logging. This is the season when the logging season opens in the Western states and British Columbia. Several bunches of good mules changed owners during the day.

SEEKS TO IMPEACH

Murphy Keeps Right After Judges Phillips and McPherson.

Rucker Says Phillips Should Have Been Impeached Long Ago.

Washington, May 6.—At the conclusion of a long statement in the house today regarding his resolution of inquiry into the official conduct of Federal Judges McPherson and Phillips of the western district of Missouri, Representative Murphy of that state announced that he would present formal charges of impeachment.

Murphy brought the matter up as a question of privilege. The resolution involved the conduct of the judges in relation to the 2-cent passenger fare litigation and the maximum freight law of Missouri.

Murphy had read some newspaper dispatches to the effect that Frank Hagerman, attorney for eighteen railroads, had telegraphed the attorney general of the United States that the Murphy resolution was an "outrageous tissue of misrepresentation by one who has no knowledge of the facts." He said that he had confirmed the fact that such a telegram had been received by Attorney General Wickersham.

Mr. Clayton of Alabama, a member of the judiciary committee, objected, saying that the argument was not one of personal privilege.

Sides With Murphy.

Speaker Cannon ruled that Mr. Murphy was within his rights and could continue, but he had not proceeded far when Mr. Henry of Texas, another member of the judiciary committee, stopped him with an inquiry as to whether he did not intend to formally bring in charges of impeachment.

The Missouri member, however, did not give a direct answer, but continued his recital of the charges contained in his resolution. He called on Mr. Rucker, his colleague, to substantiate what he was saying.

Mr. Rucker did so, and declared that Judge Phillips should have been impeached twenty years ago.

Mr. Murphy denied that the state of Missouri had been accorded every courtesy in the rate cases, as was stated in Mr. Hagerman's telegram. The state, he declared, had no knowledge or notice whatever of the first injunction in these cases.

Along Orderly Lines.

"I am asking the congress of the United States," he said, "to give back to us that government, which you handed to us when you admitted us as a state into the union, by requiring the federal judiciary in the Western district of Missouri to proceed along orderly and decent lines, in the execution of the law."

The house then adjourned and immediately thereafter Mr. Murphy notified members of the judiciary committee that he would at once formulate formal charges of impeachment against the two judges.

Judges Are Mute.

Kansas City, Mo., May 6.—"I have nothing to say at this time, and will make no statement until Representative Murphy formally presents his charges of impeachment," said Judge Phillips today.

Judge McPherson also declined to make a statement.

Three More Divorces.

The following divorces were granted late this afternoon in the district court: Laura Charette from Samuel Charette, Anna Schulendorf from John Schulendorf, Edith Benneson from Joseph Bennesen and Jennie Murray from James Murray.

Our own wires to the Copper country. Also connections to Eastern Markets.

We are having one of the fastest copper share markets that this town has ever seen. Copper is being bought in big lots up to 13c. Such mines as the Butte-Alex Scott can begin shipping on a big scale and make money, and if copper advances a little more they can then mine big quantities of milling ore at a profit. It is now opening up good sized deposits of copper glance, some of it running to 75 per cent copper.

If the Rainbow lead shows up strong on Butte & Superior we can then again throw our hats in the air, for the Butte-Alex Scott company owns about 1,500 feet of the big Rainbow lead, which passed through the Little Annie claim, which belong to the company. Scott is one of the safest stocks on the board in all kinds of weather. Big market, plenty of money, and copper enough to last for twenty or thirty years. Part paid closed at 7¾ bid and full paid at 10¾ bid. They should soon begin to advance again.

Calumet & Montana was stronger today and closed at 41c bid.

Ballaklava closed at $11.00 bid.

Zenith Lead & Zinc closed at 2½ bid. Watch this one, for it should sell higher soon.

Copper Queen is strong at 1¾ bid.

WILL CALL ON GOVERNOR

June 14 has been selected as the day on which the Y. M. C. A. boys will start from Duluth on a walk to St. Paul. The boys are looking forward to the event with the greatest pleasure. That a large crowd will make the trip is now assured. The entire distance to the capital city will be made on foot, and the boys will call on Governor Johnson on their arrival.

The boys' department of the St. Paul Y. M. C. A. is preparing to welcome the northerners as soon as they arrive and give them a good time as long as they care to remain.

DULUTH BOARD OF TRADE WINNER IN SUIT BROUGHT AGAINST IT BY THE STATE

Decision of Supreme Court Is In Board's Favor.

Young's Attempt to Dissolve Its Charter Is Fruitless.

Attack Cost the Members $15,000 in Legal Expenses.

PRESIDENT S. H. JONES
Of the Duluth Board of Trade.

St. Paul - Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Duluth board of trade wins the suit brought against it by the state of Minnesota through E. T. Young, former attorney general to dissolve its charter and dispose of its property, on the ground that it is an illegal combination in restraint of trade.

The state supreme court decided the case today against the state.

The suit was brought by the attorney general, after hearing evidence submitted to him by the Minnesota Farmers' exchange which claimed it was denied membership by the Duluth board, on the ground that it violated the law against "split commissions," fixing a scale of absolute rates.

This was an action brought by the state of Minnesota against the Duluth board of trade, and it contained two distinct charges of violation of the anti-trust law of the state. E. T. Young was attorney general at the time the action was begun and prosecuted the case.

Two Allegations Made.

The first allegation was that a conspiracy existed in the Duluth board of trade to prevent the Minnesota Farm-

PEPPER REPORTS ON BRITISH IRON

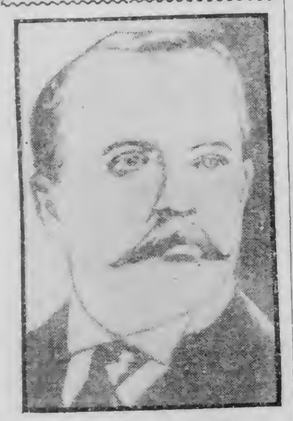
Special Agent Tells of Pools Among the Bar Makers.

Washington, May 7.—Pools among barmakers, rail pools and other combinations, a third of a century's steadiness in the quantity of the native iron ore mined, and the variation in values of such products are among the matters threshed out in a report on the conditions of the British iron and steel industry, submitted by Charles M. Pepper, special agent of the bureau of manufactures. The values of the ore are on a gradually lowering scale. The report quotes figures of the cost of production of pig iron in the leading manufacturing districts ranging from $9.92 on the East coast to $13.45 per ton for the Bessemer or hematite of the West coast. The ultimate cost per ton of British steel in Bessemer works having auxiliary blast furnaces, he states to be $28.54 for steel ingots and $18.13 for steel rails.

Mr. Pepper places the cost of the pig iron in this manufacture at $13.50. Wages are given as follows: Per ton of pig iron, $1.06; per ton of ingots, 69 cents; per ton of rails, $1.66.

A difference of opinion exists among British iron and steel manufacturers as to the future of the industry, but they are not worried over the possibility of the industry disappearing through the exhaustion of the natural sources of supply.

NINE WITNESSES ARE HEARD IN GRAFT CASE



PATRICK CALHOUN.

San Francisco, Cal., May 7.—In the trial of Patrick Calhoun, president of the United Railroads, nine witnesses for the state have been examined. The evidence dealt with money alleged to have been paid to Abraham Ruef by Tirey L. Ford, general counsel for the railroad company, acting as agent of Mr. Calhoun. From the testimony of William M. Abbott, general attorney for the company, who went with Ford to the mint in 1906 and helped carry to Ford $50,000 in small currency, drawn by telegraphic order of Mr. Calhoun, to that of L. A. Rea, former supervisor, the prosecution worked its way step by step.

Rea told of receiving $3,500 from Ruef's sister, in connection with a business deal entirely outside the graft cases. This payment was made June 2, 1906, and Assistant District Attorney Heney declares he will prove that the bills given Rea were a part of the $50,000 drawn from the mint by Ford.

MRS. BOYLE IS GUARDED

Driven in Closed Carriage to Trial in Mercer.

Billy Whitla Again Relates His Experiences While Kidnaped.

Mercer, Pa., May 7.—The courtroom was packed this morning when the trial of Mrs. James Boyle, indicted as "Mary Roe," as an accessory to the kidnaping of Billy Whitla, was resumed. To avoid any repetition of last evening's demonstration of hostility towards the woman, when women of Mercer applied opprobrious epithets to her, the prisoner was driven to the courthouse in a closed carriage.

An issue raised before the adjournment of court yesterday regarding the testimony of Miss Ella Boyle, apparently intended to connect Mrs. James Boyle with the formation of the kidnaping plot while visiting in Sharon, was quickly dispensed with today by the prosecution withdrawing the witness.

Billy Whitla was the first witness, and repeated substantially his testimony of yesterday, given in the case against James H. Boyle. In referring to Boyle the boy called him "Jonesey," having been told at the time of the abduction the man's name was Jones. He testified that when he arrived at the house in Cleveland with "Jonesey" they met a woman. He said:

"Jonesey told me she was another Jones, Mrs. Jones said she had eaten supper but told me to eat. Jonesey told me the woman was a cousin of his."

The boy witness identified Mrs. Boyle as the woman who had cared for him in Cleveland and whom he has known as Mrs. Jones. He identified a nurses'

DESTROYED BY MOSLEMS

All the American Property at Kessab Is Ruined.

Fugitives Return Only to Find Their Homes Looted.

Beirut, Asiatic Turkey, May 7.—An investigator who has just returned here from a trip to Kessab reports that all the American property at that place has been destroyed by the Moslem raiders. The property consists of a girls' high school under the direction of Miss Effie N. Chambers, a missionary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. Three-fourths of the native houses also have been destroyed, but the Armenian church and the new Protestant school building are standing.

Almost all the people who fled from Kessab have returned to find their houses looted. They are today destitute. Some food and clothing are being distributed, but there is no system in the work, and the supplies are inadequate.

One hundred Turkish reserves have returned to the town, but as they took part in the rioting and killing there, the people cannot trust them. The protection they afford is in no sense sufficient.

The situation at Deurtyul, on the coast north of Kessab, is still critical.

A recent report from Miss Chambers, the missionary mentioned in the above

McIntyre, Chief Counsel for Defense; No. 5, Eugene N. Young, of Counsel for the Defense; No. 6, Special Prosecutor Gregg; No. 7, Sheriff Girard.

MRS. ANNIS, WIDOW OF VICTIM OF CAPT. HAINS, READY TO TESTIFY

Flushing, N. Y., May 7.—Anticipations of possible further developments regarding the feeling in army circles over the case of Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., stimulated interest in today's proceedings at the trial of Hains for the killing of William E. Annis.

When court opened the state had fifteen witnesses on its list to call in rebuttal. Mrs. Annis is among them.

District Attorney De Witt today procured a writ of habeas corpus for the appearance as a witness of John Sheridan, who is serving a sentence at Sing Sing for shooting a man at Far Rockaway. Sheridan was with Capt. Hains in the Queens county jail, and observed him for some time subsequent to the shooting.

Dr. Horace G. Houghton, the last witness called by the prosecution yesterday, was cross-examined by Mr. McIntyre when proceedings were resumed today. The witness attended Annis on the yacht club float directly after the shooting, and testified yesterday that the captain's speech and conduct at that time were rational.

"Were you more interested in the dying man or in observing Capt. Hains?" asked Mr. McIntyre.

The witness said Capt. Hains was walking up and down the float near him and he had a good opportunity to observe his conduct.

GERMAN AMBASSADOR FETED IN MILWAUKEE.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 7.—Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador to the United States, started his second day as Milwaukee's guest with a visit to the Allis-Chalmers plant at West Allis. A visit to the National Soldiers' Home, luncheon at the Deutscher club, a call at Marquette university and a large reception by German-American societies this evening, are on today's program.

ENGINEERING ERROR WILL CAUSE DELAY.

Portland, Ore., May 7.—Considerable delay and large additional expenditures will be involved in the construction of the Union Pacific tunnel into Tacoma, as the result of an engineering error which causes two shafts at the curve near the middle of the tunnel to miss meeting by eight feet. The tunnel is now in over 2,000 feet.

WILL RESUME WORK ON NORTHERN SHIP CANAL.

Seattle, Wash., May 7.—Construction work on the most northerly ship canal in the world will be resumed by the United States government next month. A crew of engineers, under W. S. Wheeler, will leave Seattle on one of the first boats for St. Michaels to direct the work, which will be completed this year. This canal, seventeen miles long, will open up a deep channel between St. Michaels island and the mouth of the Yukon river. Work on the waterway was begun last year.

NORTHERN MINNESOTA SEEKS ADMISSION TO THE STATE.

Northern Minnesota is proud of the state, and wants to be a part of it. It wants to be considered as a part of the state household. It does not ask to sit at the head of the table, but it does ask that it be not treated as a poor relation, and ignominiously placed with the vassals in the kitchen.

It asks those who have harbored plans unfriendly to this section to make an effort to throw down the bars of sectionalism, to look at state problems with statewide vision, and to see from its viewpoint, for a moment at least, those questions that have become sectional, but that ought to be considered in the light of a common interest.

This isn't asking too much. It is a request humble enough to receive consideration from the most unfeeling landlord; surely it ought to be considered by those who are our fellow citizens.

BUCKETSHOP MEN GUILTY

Six Are Convicted of Using the Mails to Defraud.

Cincinnati Jury Leaves Sealed Verdict at 1 o'Clock a. m.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 7.—The jury in the case of Louis W. Foster and five others, who were charged with using the mails to defraud in the running of a bucketshop returned a verdict of guilty in the United States district court today.

The men found guilty are Louis W. Foster, John Gorman, W. J. Campbell, A. C. Baldwin, John M. Scott and Edwin F. Heil.

The penalty is a fine of from $1,000 to $5,000, eighteen months in the penitentiary or both. The defense gave notice of a motion for a new trial. Meantime the defendants are at liberty under bond.

The jury took the case at 3:30 p. m. yesterday and left a sealed verdict at 1 o'clock this morning.

William J. O'Dell, who died here several years ago, left an estate estimated at $2,000,000. He amassed the fortune by running a bucketshop on a larger scale than ever before known in this country. At his death the defendants found guilty today, convicted the O'Dell Brokerage company.

Defendants Gorman, Baldwin, Scott and Heil were formerly telegraph operators in the employ of O'Dell. William Dudey, telegraph operator, and Attorney Thomas Shay, both of whom are dead, were interested as partners at one time. All the men are credited with cleaning up $1,000,000, most of which, however, Gorman and Dudley and Shay returned. The verdict today is a clean victory for the government, which contended that the defendants did not even play the bucketshop game hon-

BIG BATTLESHIP AT NEW ORLEANS

Lies at Anchor in the Mississippi; Visited By Many.

New Orleans, La., May 7.—Lying at anchor in the great stream, whose name it bears, the United States battleship Mississippi was boarded and inspected by a throng of visitors today. Among those who went on the big ship were 100 or more Louisiana editors. Numerous tenders of hospitality have been extended to the officers and crew of the Mississippi during its stay in this port. The principal feature of entertainment will be a banquet to the officers next Tuesday night.

Prominent officials of several southern states and of the Lakes to Gulf Deep Waterway association, are expected to be present.

At the several places where the Mississippi will stop on its journey up the river, elaborate preparations have been made for the reception of the officers and men.

PROCESS SERVER IS ON HER TRAIL

Milwaukee Woman, Here for "Tag Day," in Financial Trouble.

Garnishment Proceedings Brought Against Her in Home Town.

Alice Burnham Fellows, who plans to conduct a tag day in Duluth tomorrow, for the benefit of her school for defective vision in Milwaukee, is being sought by process servers, as the result of garnishment proceedings brought against her in the Wisconsin metropolis.

According to reports from her home town, she is not in what might be called good financial standing there. There is a long list of garnishment proceedings standing against her in

ROAD OFFICIALS NEAR TO DEATH

Car Bearing Wood and Turner Catches Fire—Turner Injured.

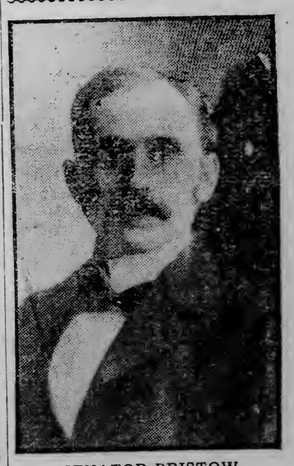
Fart Wayne, Ind., May 7.—First Vice President Joseph Wood and Third Vice President J. J. Turner of the Pennsylvania road had a narrow escape from death today.

Their private car caught fire and was burning fiercely while the occupants were asleep.

The car was cut off at Davis station and allowed to burn.

Mr. Turner was injured.

ANOTHER PROGRESSIVE BOUND TO BE HEARD



SENATOR BRISTOW.

Washington, May 7.—During consideration of the tariff bill in the senate, Senator Bristow made an attack upon the lead schedule. He began by asking for information as to why the duty on white lead was higher than that on pig lead. Mr. Aldrich replied that this difference was due to the fact that, while pig lead costs 2½ cents, white lead costs 6½ cents a pound, the white lead being a product of pig lead requiring much labor and an elaborate process.

"For the third time a vote has been called for on this paragraph, while I have been attempting to get the recognition of the chair." Then, speaking in an impassioned manner, he continued:

"I am a new member here, and perhaps it is considered that I have no right to be heard; but I am here just as are others who have been members of the senate for thirty years, and I have the same constitutional right to be heard that they have."

It's a strong statment to make, but it's a fact:

Oak Hall Men's Suits at $18, $20 and $25

And Oak Hall Young Men's Suits at $12, $15, $18 and $20

—are without doubt the best suits, the most worthful suits and the most distinctively fashionable suits produced by any clothier in the land at their respective prices.

If you're a judge of clothing—of fabric worth—of finish—of fashion-correctness, you'll notice the superiority of ours at a glance.

You'll notice the exclusiveness of the patterns, the individuality of the styles—the perfection of fit.

Only the made-to-measure clothes of this city's foremost tailors equal these garments—and you know you're asked twice as much for theirs.

"Correct" Fashions in Men's Headgear Footwear and Haberdashery.

Whatever fashion has decreed proper you'll find here, gentlemen, in a variety which the most fastidious dresser will find ample. And whatever you choose you may rest assured is thoroughly in accord with the latest pronouncements of style and the best value obtainable at its price.

NEW DEMOCRATIC MAGAZINE MAKES FIRST APPEARANCE

NORMAN E. MACK.

MRS. W. J. BRYAN.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 7.—Chairman Norman E. Mack of the Democratic national committee issued the first number of his new magazine, the National Monthly, yesterday. In the publisher's notes Mack says the first copies from the press were mailed, with his compliments, to Mrs. Grover Cleveland of Princeton, Mrs. William J. Bryan of Lincoln, Neb., and Mrs. Alton B. Parker of Esopus. In discussing party affairs, Mr. Mack says:

"While I have very pronounced views on questions of party policy and propose, from time to time, to give expressions to them, I do not propose to enter upon a campaign of disagreement. What the party wants now is more issues on which we can agree, and fewer on which we disagree. Because we have met with many reverses in the past forty years we must not accept the impression that the Democracy is inherently weak."

Among contributors to the first number are Representative Champ Clark, Governor Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, Former Senator T. M. Patterson of Colorado, Alton B. Parker of New York, Representative James T. Lloyd, Judson Harmon, Governor of Ohio; Senator-elect John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, Senator George F. Chamberlain of Oregon and Governor Hoke Smith of Georgia.

outfit as the clothing Mrs. Jones had worn, and said she had red spots on her face, which she said were the results of having recently had smallpox. He said the woman told him to tell his parents she was 11 years of age and very large.

The prosecution offered in evidence the note written for "Billy" to carry on the street car on his way to the Hollenden house, when he was returned to his father. The defense objected, claiming it did not concern Mrs. Boyle. "Billy" stated, however, that it was given to him in Mrs. Boyle's presence, and it was admitted.

On cross-examination, "Billy" was asked but one question, as to whether Jones alone went with him to the street car when he was sent back to his father. His reply was that Jones alone had gone with him. Several other witnesses gave practically the same testimony they gave yesterday in regard to the kidnaping.

the city of foam. She conducted a tag day there recently, and immediately following it, garnishment suits were instituted in an effort to collect various accounts against here and her school.

One of these, says a Milwaukee dispatch, in which Dearsley Bros., plumbers, were plaintiffs, was called in Justice John J. Hoye's court about a week ago, but it was dismissed in order to open new proceedings, in which Miss Fellows would be obliged to appear, having up to that time evaded a constable who had been searching for her. Among the garnishments is one for about $500 for rent of the Garrick theater, Chicago, more than a year ago.

It is said that Miss Fellows may give up the Milwaukee field and take her school elsewhere, having been obliged to vacate quarters at 403 Newberry boulevard, upon expiration of the lease.

Located In Duluth.

Constables, who have been trying to locate Miss Fellows, received their first intimation that she was not in the city, when a letter was received from Duluth, announcing that she was here, in an effort to raise money for her home for blind children. Her return to Milwaukee is being eagerly awaited, and if she goes back there legal papers will be served upon her at once.

All has not been plain sailing with Miss Fellows since her arrival in Duluth. She came here armed with a letter of introduction and recommendation from Mayor Rose of Milwaukee, and also a similar letter from Milwaukee's city attorney. These she presented Mayor Haven. The communications spoke very highly of her and her work, and on the strength of them Mayor Haven wrote a letter of introduction for her to present to people interested in local charities, feeling that he was justified in doing so on the strength of the two letters from the Wisconsin city.

Refused Recognition at Home.

Local charities have within the last year been quite a heavy drain upon those charitably inclined, and before lending her institution for the blind any financial assistance, it was deemed advisable by heads of local charities to find her standing at Milwaukee. Accordingly, a letter was dispatched to the Milwaukee Associated Charities, and the reply was to the effect that the woman had been refused a card, allowing her to solicit contributions by the Milwaukee Manufacturers' association, which maintains a bureau for the purpose of protecting members from the solicitation of fakers.

Miss Fellows claims she was refused the card because she refused to pay for it. She claimed aid from Duluth on the ground that a blind boy from here was now in her institution. Her system is to accept patients from any part of the country, and then to try and raise funds for the care of the child in the community whence it comes. She believed the best method of raising a fund here would be to conduct a tag day, similar to the one which was held for the benefit of St. Luke's hospital last year.

The Duluth boy who is in the institution could be cared for at Faribault.

DULUTH BOARD OF TRADE WINNER

ers' exchange from getting a membership in the Board and from having its business handled by members of the board.

The second claim was that the rule under which members of the board are obliged to charge a uniform rate of commission was unlawful.

It was generally understood at the time the case was brought that it was the conspiracy charge which prompted the beginning of the action, and it was upon this that Mr. Young began his fight in the lower court. The testimony that he offered, failed to substantiate his charge of a conspiracy and so signally did it fail, that in open court he abandoned the charge and acknowledged that he had not been able to prove it by testimony.

Mr. Young then fell back upon what had been up to that time the secondary feature of the complaint, the claim that the commission rule violates the anti-trust law of Minnesota. The commission rule maintained by the Duluth Board of Trade fixes practically the same charges for handling grain that are in force in every market in this country and Canada. Every grain exchange and every stock exchange has a rule which requires members to charge uniform rates.

The anti-trust law of Minnesota provides that:

"No person or association of persons shall enter into any pool, trust agreement, combination or understanding whatsoever with any other person or association, corporate or otherwise, in restraint of trade, within this state, or between the people of this or any other state or country, or which tends in any way or degree to limit, fix, control, maintain or regulate the price of any article of trade, manufacture, or use bought or sold within the state, or which limits or tends to limit the production of any such article, or which prevents or limits competition in the purchase and sale thereof, or which tends or is designed so to do." The law makes the commission of any such act a felony.

No Restraint of Trade.

The contention of the board was that to fix a rate to be charged as commission for handling a commodity was not, in any way, an attempt to fix or maintain the price of that commodity, or to restrain trade in it, or to limit or control its production; that, in fact, the facilities established by the board of trade and the rules enforced by it, were a benefit to trade rather than a restraint, by making it easy to handle grain products and greatly reducing the expense of doing so.

Attorney General Young never at any time made any claim that the rates of commission charged were excessive or unreasonable, but attacked the right of the board to maintain any rate. The board of trade justified the commission rule as necessary to prevent cut-throat competition that would result in failures and losses to country shippers and general demoralization of the business.

The case was heard by Judge Dibell and his decision was a complete vindication of the board of trade, and upheld its right to enforce the commission rule. Attorney General Young then appealed the case to the supreme court. Several postponements of the time within which the appeal would have to be taken were agreed upon between the attorneys, so that it was more than two years after the action was begun before it came before the supreme court. The case was argued on Nov. 5 last, so that two days more than six months have elapsed before the handing down of the judgment of the court.

Decision Important.

The decision is one of vast interest not merely to the Duluth board of trade, but to every association in Minnesota that fixes a uniform rate of commission for handling any commodity. The Minneapolis chamber of commerce was as directly affected as was the Duluth board of trade, and the interest of the live stock exchange at South St. Paul was no less direct. Not only that, but in every state which has an anti-trust law similar to that of Minnesota the decision will be of great interest. The number of decisions in the United States bearing on the particular point involved in this case are so very few—in fact, almost none—that the Minnesota court was practically entering upon new ground in making its ruling.

E. T. YOUNG,
Who Brought the Suit Against the Board.

Board of trade members are naturally much pleased at the favorable outcome of the case, but their enthusiasm is tempered somewhat by the reflection that it cost their organization about $15,000 to prove that Attorney General Young was wrong.

The Syllabus.

The syllabus follows:

State of Minnesota, appellant, vs. Duluth Board of Trade, respondent.

No. 1—A combination, contract or understanding, the effect and necessary effect of which is to stifle or restrict competition in trade or business, violates the anti-trust statute (chapter 289 G. S. 1894, Revised Laws 1905, 5168), whatever may have been the intention of the parties.

No. 2—A combination, the main purposes and effects of which are to foster the trade and increase the business of those who make and operate it, and which only indirectly and remotely restricts competition in trade, or business, is not a combination and conspiracy in restraint of trade, within the meaning of the statute.

No. 3—An agreement or combination for the purpose of fixing and determining the value of wages or other charges for personal services is not within the prohibitions of the statute.

No. 4—A combination formed by dealers in articles of a similar nature in a particular locality, for the purpose of fairly regulating the methods of conducting business and providing rules for fair dealing among members, but which exercises no improper control over the non-members and does not control prices or production, is not in contravention of the statute.

5—Rule 26 of the Duluth board of trade, which provides that all members of the board shall charge a uniform and determined rate of commission for selling grain for non-members and provides penalties for the violation of such rule, is not in violation to the Minnesota anti-trust statute.

6—The Duluth board of trade, as constituted under its charter and rules, is not a conspiracy or combination in restraint of trade, or which restrains, limits or interferes with free competition in the production of grain in the purchase and sale of grain at Duluth.

7—Rule 26 of the Duluth board of trade does not violate the Minnesota anti-trust statute, as its direct and necessary tendency is neither to restrain trade by preventing competition in the business of buying and selling grain, nor to limit, fix, control, maintain or regulate the price of production of any article of trade, manufacture or use bought and sold within the state, nor to prevent or limit competition in the purchase and sale thereof.

8. The rules of the Duluth board of trade do not create or tend to create a monopoly. Trade and commerce is monopolized when, as a result of efforts to that end, previously competing businesses are so concentrated in the hands of a single person or corporation or a few persons or corporations acting together that they have power to practically control the prices of a commodity, and to thus practically suppress competition.

9. In a proceeding by the state against a corporation and its officers charging them with the violation of the anti-trust statute, the state may appeal from judgment in favor of the defendants.

GOVERNMENT CROP REPORT

Washington, May 7.—An average condition of 82.5 per cent for winter wheat and 88.1 for rye on May 1, against a ten-year average on that date of 86 and 89.1, respectively, was announced in today's crop report of the department of agriculture.

The area of winter wheat to be harvested was about 2,478,000 acres, or 8.1 per cent less than the area harvested in 1908 and 2,163,000 acres, or 7.2 per cent lass than the area sown last fall.

The average condition of winter wheat a month ago was 82.2, and a year ago 88 per cent.

Rye averaged 87.2 a month ago and 90.3 on May 1, 1908.

SCHOBER IS A FREE MAN

No True Bill Returned Against Him By Grand Jury.

Charles Schober is a free man.

No true bill was returned against him this afternoon by the grand jury. Mr. Schober was arrested on the charge of arson and held to the grand jury from the municipal court. He is claimed to have set fire to his bakery at 207 West Superior street, but he stoutly maintained his innocence, and claimed that if the building was set fire to, it was without his knowledge, or any act on his part.

The grand jury found there was not sufficient evidence to hold him, and he was released.

The jurors completed their labors this afternoon and were discharged. Two more indictments were returned, but as the men are not yet in custody, they were not made public.

OTHERS ARE IMPLICATED

More Arrests May Follow in Black Hand Cases.

There were no new developments today in connection with the arrest of three Italians, alleged members of the Black Hand society, at Grand Rapids, Minn.

There still are some members of the society for whom the government, state and county authorities are looking, and there are likely to be other arrests before very long. It is believed that the capture of Mike Massinlino, Francisco Tino and Dominick Cappoletta will do much to rid Minnesota of members of the gang.

It is understood that confessions have already been made implicating other Italians, and with the information now in hand, the authorities expect to be able to keep pretty close tab on the movements of individuals suspected of being connected with the society.

The fact that city, county, state and government authorities in Northern Minnesota are now known to be actively engaged in the work of exterminating the gang, will naturally have the effect of keeping undesirables of this class away from the state.

The catching of Tino is of double importance, in view of the fact that he is believed to be an organizer for the society. The arrest of the trio at Grand Rapids is nipping the project of a Minnesota branch in the bud, and probably will effectually check, for the time being, at least, all further efforts in this direction.

It is believed that evidence at hand is conclusive enough to connect the three with a series of crime in this section of the state, any one of which would be sufficient, if proven, to land the offender in the state penitentiary. Port Arthur, Ont., authorities are looking for Tino, claiming that he murdered a countryman in the Canadian town. The other two are also suspected of having been implicated in murders.

Mr. Walker, the American representative of the celebrated Mintons English china, will be with Bagley & Co., jewelers, tomorrow only, to take import orders. He will be very glad to have anyone who appreciates fine china to look the line over, whether they wish to buy or not.

DAYTON MAN TO GET JOB

Prof. George Buck May Become High School Principal.

Prof. George Buck of Dayton, Ohio, will in all probability be chosen as principal of the Duluth Central high school at the board of education meeting tonight, according to inside information given out this morning. The position has been vacant since the death of Charles A. Smith, last winter.

Besides the election of a principal, the high school teaching corps will also be chosen for the ensuing year, and a number of new teachers will be elected to fill different vacancies in the grades for next fall.

SUPERIOR NEWS

Westman Slated for Job.

It is understood that Fred Westman will be appointed to succeed himself as state inspector of oils for the Superior district upon the expiration of his term in June. The appointment comes through the office of Governor Davidson.

Old Resident Dies.

Fred W. Beglinger, twenty years a resident of Superior, died last evening at his home, 1103 Maple avenue. Death was caused by heart trouble. Mr. Beglinger was formerly county treasurer of Douglas county. The funeral will be held tomorrow.

Many Men Employed.

Three hundred and forty men were furnished employment last month through the agency of the Superior branch of the Wisconsin state employment bureau, according to the report filed by Supt. G. W. Penn. Superior is only second to Milwaukee in this respect.

Married Abroad.

News was received in Superior yesterday of the marriage of Gus Huber of the Huber & Bunker jewelry firm at Berlin, Germany, on April 28. Mr. Huber is touring Europe this summer and married a former classmate.

Have Secured Ball Park.

The Superior Baseball club has definitely decided upon the Winter street site for its down-town ball park. A lease has been secured on the property from the Northern Pacific road. It is expected that the grounds will be ready for games by May 30.

Arbor Day Is Observed.

Arbor day exercises are being held today in the public schools of Superior. Special attention is being paid to the study of birds and animals.

AN ORPHEUM THEATER

Duluth to Have New Show House, Says Martin Beck.

Duluth is to have one of the finest vaudeville houses in the Northwest, to be built this summer in the downtown district. So says Martin Beck, the general manager of the Orpheum circuit and one of the most important figures in the vaudeville world.

Mr. Beck was due to arrive in Duluth at 2 o'clock this afternoon, but did not come. He will be here tonight, and during the next two days will close a deal that will give Duluth a new opera house and the lovers of high-grade vaudeville a place to get the best, according to Minneapolis dispatches.

Mr. Beck has not stated where he has secured the site, further than that it is in the center of the city and accessible to the entire business district.

The Orpheum people have had an eye on Duluth for some time. Its position and growth, and the well-known tendency of its citizens to patronize refined attractions, have made the city a desirable one in which to locate a theater.

Mr. Walker, the American representative of the celebrated Mintons English china, will be with Bagley & Co., jewelers, tomorrow only, to take import orders. He will be very glad to have anyone who appreciates fine china to look the line over, whether they wish to buy or not.

BALCONY SNAPS SIXTY INJURED

Seattle, Wash., May 7.—None of sixty persons injured in an accident last night, during an athletic meet in the new National Guard armory has died, but the conditions of Capt. Maurice W. Thompson, assistant adjutant general of the state of Washington and his wife, are critical.

The armory, a huge building, had just been completed, but had not been formally accepted by the state and was being used for the first time, the occasion being an indoor track meet in which the most prominent amateur athletes of the Northwest were entered. The audience was very large and the balcony was crowded.

There was keen interest when the ten-mile Marathon runners came out, and when this contest was drawing to its finish, with F. L. Jackson of Seattle and Ed Crabbe of Portland running strong in the stretch, Jackson just a yard ahead, the spectators in the balcony, wildly excited, crowded against a flimsy iron pipe that served as the only guard around thebalcony. The whole east balcony railing swayed outward and snapped. The center gave way first, but soon the entire section, fifty yards long, went down and scores of the people fell on the heads of the crowd below.

BERRIES IN QUARTS NOW

Local Receipts of Strawberries Are Increasing Here Every Day.

Cold Weather Curtails Consumption of Green Vegetables and Fruit.

Strawberries are among the most plentiful things offered in the local produce market at the present time.

They are coming in on every train—that is, on nearly every freight train from the South which carries refrigerator cars.

Arkansas is shipping berries now. Last week, only the Mississippi and Louisiana berries were in the market, but during the last few days, consignments from Arkansas began to come in.

Berries are selling here by cases of quarts instead of pints.

The present quotation on them is $2.75 to $3 per case of twenty-four quarts.

* * *

The weather in Duluth during the past week has been ideal for the shipment of green stuff, but it has not filled citizens with any great desire to eat loads of tomatoes, radishes, onions and the like. Commission men say that on a chilly day the demand for this sort of stuff falls off very perceptibly, while on a warm day there is a corresponding increase.

Even if the weather here has been cold, all green stuff and fresh fruits are coming under ice. They have to pass through some warm localities to reach the cool shores of Lake Superior.

* * *

There has scarcely been a change in quotations in the produce market all week.

Fresh eggs are 22 cents a dozen, unchanged from a week ago, and prices for creamery butter show no fluctuation during the last few days. Creamery prints are 30 cents a pound.

* * *

Cheese is steady and unchanged. Full cream twins are 17 to 18 cents a pound, and other grades and varieties have not varied during the last two weeks.

* * *

Receipts of bananas continue good and prices are unchanged.

Oranges, lemons, grape fruit and apples are still plentiful in the fruit market, and quotations on them have not been affected during the past few days.

* * *

Nice Florida pineapples are arriving. They are selling at $2.50 to $2.75 a crate.

* * *

Cranberries have been out of the market for more than a week.

* * *

New potatoes are arriving more freely and old stocks are a little cheaper than they were a week ago. Old potatoes have been offered along commission row at $1.15 a bushel, which is 10 cents lower than last week's quotations on them.

"Speculators have been holding stocks back, and now they are throwing a great many of their old potatoes on the market," said a well-known commission man today.

"There is speculation in potatoes as well as in every other commodity. Lots of people with storehouse facilities have been holding back their potatoes, helping the bullish market as much as they could. Now they are letting go some of their holdings, which they held for the rise, and a break in the market is a result."

* * *

Receipts of poultry are light, and prices for spring chickens have gone up a point. Springs, dressed, are selling in Michigan street at 19 to 20 cents today.

* * *

Hens and other kinds of poultry show firmness, but no change in prices.

* * *

Fresh lake trout are arriving in much larger quantities now, and the market has eased off from 11 to 12 cents to 10 to 11 cents a pound.

* * *

The meat market is firm. Mutton has gone up a cent during the last two days. It is quoted at 12 cents. Pork loins are a trifle easier for the cheaper grades.

Beef is unchanged.

CONCRETE SHAFT TO BE ERECTED

Rogers-Brown Co. Will Build Up-to-Date Affair at Deerwood.

Deerwood, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The work of drilling on the Rogers-Brown company's location, on section 30-46-28, is progressing satisfactorily, the drilling being done to outline the ore body preparatory to the location of a new shaft, the one started about a year ago being abandoned.

The shaft to be put down will be of concrete construction, and it is said will be one of the most up-to-date shafts among the iron mines of the country.

The Rogers-Brown Ore company will at once commence the construction of three more cottages at Cuyuna, for the use of the miners employed at the Rabbit Lake mine.

It is rumored that Cuyler Adams will plat an addition to Deerwood, located east of the original plat. It is also rumored that there is to be a change in the road from Bay Lake; that it will cross the Northern Pacific tracks a short distance east of the city by an overhead crossing, and that it will come down the north side of the track from there, the road on the south being abandoned.

The section house, according to reports, is to be moved from its present location to a point west of the depot and near the present tool house.

ACQUIT HOTEL KEEPER.

Oakes, N. D., Boniface Not Guilty of Not Providing Fire Escapes.

Oakes, N. D., May 7.—The trial at Ellendale recently of C. M. Stevens, proprietor of the Home hotel here, on charges preferred by A. M. Anderson, state hotel inspector, of not complying with the law regarding fire protection, resulted in the acquittal of the accused.

It appears the hotel proprietor had not only conformed with the letter of the law, but had provided a better condition than the law required. Mr. Stevens says that he and Mr. Anderson had some words, and he believes that the action was brought merely as a matter of revenge, as he says his fire escapes and protection against fire are the best of any in the south part of the state.

TO SUCCEED VASALY.

Little Falls, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Morrison county board has appointed Frank Bastien, county register of deeds, to fill out the unexpired term of Charles E. Vasaly, who was recently appointed a member of the state board of control by Governor Johnson.

Captures Bride and Lot.

Bison, S. D., May 7.—Boyd Hall, son of Shock Hall of Bixby, obtained a wife and a town lot in Bison, the new county seat of Perkins county. George Carr of this place offered a valuable lot to the first bridegroom, and Hall, a prosperous farmer in this vicinity, hurried his marriage to his betrothed, Miss Nettie Kirkpatrick of Ada, and secured the real estate prize.

DIVORCE MILL IS STILL GRINDING

The Grist, It Is Expected, Will Soon Be Finished.

In all, nineteen divorces have been granted by the judges of the district court who are hearing the tales of those who have failed to make a go of marriage life.

There are thirty-three divorce cases this term, the heaviest grist in some years. The divorce factory on the hill is grinding them out and today is expected to be the last.

Mrs. Carrie Hollands was granted a divorce from Alfred J. Hollands on the grounds of cruelty and desertion.

Mrs. Gertrude Williams was granted a separation from her husband, Ira Julian Williams.

Mrs. Elva Moe charged her husband with being corrupt and shiftless, and on these grounds was granted a divorce.

Mrs. James Martin claimed her husband, Frank James Martin, was an habitual drunkard, and received a decree on these grounds.

Mrs. Anna Schulendorf was given a divorce, on the ground of desertion, from her husband, John Schulendorf. She claims he left her three years ago and now resides in Minneapolis.

George E. Springer beat his wife, according to her testimony in court, and she was granted a divorce on the grounds of cruelty and inhuman treatment.

Mrs. Margaret G. Spencer was granted a decree from William R. Spencer by Judge Dibell, on the ground of desertion.

INFANT IS DROWNED.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The 1½-year-old child of Mrs. Amelia Ehnert, a widow living at Barlow, about six miles north of here, fell into a pond near its home yesterday and was drowned. The little one was walking on a plank extending into the pond, when it fell off. The child's mother came here recently from New York Mills.

CITIZENS STAFF ELECTS OFFICERS

Plan to Aid in the Memorial Day Exercises.

Elections of the citizens' staff of Duluth were held at the home of the Commercial club last evening. The citizens' staff is composed of business men of the city, who will work in harmony with the members of the Duluth G. A. R., in holding a fitting service on Memorial day.

Dr. R. W. Bowden was elected president; B. P. Neff, vice president; F. F. Williamson, secretary; T. F. Upham, treasurer; executive committee, Rev. A. H. Wurtele and H. L. Dresser.

Princeton Superintendent Retained.

Princeton, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supt. J. C. Marshall has been re-engaged by the school board for another year at a salary of $1,500—an advance of $50.

GETS IRON MINE THROUGH WILL

Sister-in-Law Leaves Patrick Doran a Valuable Property.

Through the terms of a will of his brother, Patrick Doran of Duluth, a member of the firm of Campbell & Doran, has come into possession of a valuable mining property at Crystal Falls, Iron county, Mich. The revenue from this mine in royalties is understood to amount to $12,000 a year.

Mr. Doran's brother died several years ago, and all his worldly possessions were left to his wife. She died recently and left all her wealth to her husband's brother. The mine in question is operated by the Corrigan-McKinney people of Cleveland.

NEW MOOSE LAKE SCHOOL.

Consolidation of Districts Will Mean New Structure.

Moose Lake, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—That School Districts Nos. 2 and 12 will be consolidated with a new $25,000 school building at Moose Lake is now practically assured. Two meetings were held this week, one in the Ekman school in District No. 12 and one in the pavilion in Moose Lake, and there is apparently no opposition. Petitions are being circulated for signatures, and an election will be called in a short time to vote on the question.

COAL DOCK FIRE.

Marquette, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Spontaneous combustion was the cause of a fire that started in a large pile of coal at the Pickands & Co. dock Wednesday afternoon. The Anderson fish tug Columbia was called into service as a fire tug, and after pumping water onto the burning pile for a few hours succeeded in extinguishing the smoldering fire.

Sheet Music Sale—19c

Special Saturday, Per Copy, at

Was published less than two months ago, and the whole country is talking about it. It is without doubt the greatest song that we have had in years. The writers, E. R. Ball, Dave Reed, Jr., and George Graff, Jr., wrote "Love Me and the World Is Mine," and "As Long as the World Rolls on," two famous successes, but the new song is positively their best number. We offer it once more for tomorrow's selling at 19c.

Included In This Sale Will Also Be the Following Big Hits at 19c

And Dozens of Unadvertised Bargains.

Our Sale of Ribbons Constitutes a Feature of Absorbing Interest to Women!

And well it may! When you consider the high character of the merchandise on sale and the extreme depths to which prices have fallen.

This is not a sale of old junk nor of undesirable patterns. Most of the items were of this spring's purchase, fresh, clean, desirable stock, but there has been a change in our buying force. The new buyer desires to discontinue handling certain lines, and it is against these that the cleanup movement is directed. Thursday and Friday's crowd of eager shoppers thinned down the stock somewhat, but there are countless yards of clean, new, desirable patterns left.

Come Tomorrow and get Yours!

FLIES AND MORTALITY

House Fly an Agent in Distribution of Typhoid Fever.

"Harmless Insect" Does More Harm Than Any Other.

Washington, May 7.—The true connection of the so-called typhoid fly with typhoid fever and the true scientific evidence regarding its role as a carrier of that disease have only recently been worked out. A species of mosquito has been demonstrated to be the cause of the spread of malaria. Another kind of mosquito is the cause of yellow fever, and now the house fly is considered an agency in the distribution of typhoid fever, summer complaint, cholera infantum, etc.

The number of bacteria on a single fly may range all the way from 550 to 6,000,000. Early in the fly season the number of bacteria is comparatively small, while later it is comparatively large. The place where flies live determine the numbers they carry. It mildly seems possible for so small a bit of life to carry so large a number of organisms.

How Numbers Were Determined.

The method which has been used to determine the number of bacteria on a fly was to catch the fly from several sources by means of a sterile fly net, introduce it into a sterile bottle and pour into the bottle a known quantity of sterilized water. Then the bottle is shaken to wash the bacteria from the fly's body and legs to take up the organisms that would come in contact with a pan of milk if a fly should fall into it.

If flies would stay in the pig pen or its vicinity there would be less objection to them and the various kinds of organisms they carry, but flies are migratory insects and visit everything "under the sun." It is almost impossible to keep them out of kitchens, dining rooms, cow stables and milk rooms.

The only remedy for this common condition of things is to remove the pig pen as far as possible from the dairy and dwelling house. Extreme care should be taken in keeping flies out of the cow stables, milkhouse and dwelling house. Flies walking over food are the cause of the worst contaminations that can occur from the standpoint of cleanliness and the danger of disturbing disease germs.

Some Figures on the Fly.

The danger of the typhoid or house fly in the carrying of disease germs has been abundantly demonstrated. Flies and mosquitoes necessitate an annual outlay for window and door screens in the United States of not less than $10,000,000.

The estimated decrease in the vital assets of the country through typhoid fever in a single year is more than $350,000,000 dollars. The house fly, as an important agent in the spread of this disease, is responsible for a very considerable portion of this decrease in vital assets. As an agency in the spread of other intestinal diseases this sum must be greatly increased, and yet it is allowed to breed unrestricted all over the United States; it is allowed to enter freely the houses of the great majority of the people; it is allowed to spend hardly a fraction of life to carry so large a number of organisms.

All Investigation Is Recent.

Strange as it may appear, an exhaustive study of the conditions which produce house flies in numbers has never been made. The life history of the insect in general was, down to 1873, mentioned in only three European works and few exact facts were given. In 1873 a Salem, Mass., physician studied the transformations of the insect and gave descriptions of all stages, showing that the growth of a generation from the egg state to the adult occupies from ten to fourteen days.

In 1895 another writer traced the life history in question, indicating that 120 eggs are laid by a single female and that in Washington, in midsummer, a generation is produced every ten days. Although numerous substances were experimented with, he was able to breed the fly only in manure from horse stables. Later investigations indicated that the fly will breed in other fermenting vegetable and animal matter, but that the vast majority of flies that infest dwelling houses, both in cities and on farms, come from manure.

Ordinary Precaution Enough.

All this means that if filth is allowed to accumulate there will be house flies in abundance, but if it is not allowed to accumulate there will be decidedly fewer flies. With careful collection of all garbage in cans and the removal of contents at more frequent intervals than ten days, and the proper regulation of stables in which horses are kept, the typhoid fly will become more rare. It will not be necessary to treat manure with chloride of lime or kerosene or a solution of Paris green or arsenate of lead, if stable men are required to place the manure daily in a properly covered receptacle and have it carried away once a week.

As a matter of fact, large sums of money are spent annually in the protection of property in the United States. Large sums of money are spent also in health matters; but the expenditure for protection from flies is very small and misdirected.

STOCK WATERING BY THE FARMERS

Meat Packer Says It Has Been Reduced to Science.

Topeka, Kan., May 7.—"The farmers of Kansas have had considerable to say about 'watered stock,'" said a big meat packer yesterday. "That is about watered stock of railroads and other corporations. The fact is the farmers sell more 'watered stock' in a year than all the corporations combined. I know because I have to buy some of it of them.

"Do you know," said he, "that the farmers, especially stock men, have got this 'stock watering' down to a science? Every time they sell a packer a steer they receive from 5 to 6 cents a pound for about fifty-five pounds of water, which the farmer has thrown into that steer for no other purpose than to beat the packer. And here is the way they work it: The day before they are ready to ship they take their cattle off of water and grain. They feed both night and morning with a lot of dry hay. The next morning they also stuff the cattle with hay. That night just before they load they give the cattle all the grain and salt they can eat. The cattle are kept from water during the two days. By the time they reach the market the cattle are famished for water, and they proceed to drink on an average of fifty-five pounds of water each. Then the buyers or the packers come along and pay from 5 to 6 cents a pound for that water. Of course the farmer gets from $3 to $4 for the water in his stock, and he feels that it is all right because it comes off the packer. But, of course, the packer isn't handling 'watered stock' for the fun of the thing. He adds enough on to the price of the beef to make up for the 'water' which the farmer has given on stock. So the consumer ultimately has to foot the bills of the 'watered stock' scheme of the farmer.

"But here is a funny thing—the farmers never keep water away from grass fed cattle. If they should the cattle would dry out and the farmers would lose money. They only water the stock on full feed stuff."

GLASS BLOWER

Of Wonderful Ability and Artistic Taste Died in Chicago.

Kent, Ohio, May 7.—William Myers, 41, of Kent, is dead in Chicago. Myers was considered the best Bohemian glass blower in the world. He was with the Libby company at the Chicago and St. Louis falls, as well as having worked in Cincinnati and every large city in the United States.

His work in forming birds, animals, ships and landscape scenes marked him as an artist. He could form the finest glass fabrics of delicate design within glass globes. He made thousands of glass neckties. One of his triumphs was a complete glass engine with a moving mechanism, a wonder in the glass blowers' world.

BARBER TO THE KAISER

Offers Hair From Heads of Royalty to Carnegie Institute.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 7.—Director William J. Holland of Carnegie Institute here, who is now known all over the country as the man who carries the Carnegie purse, so far as the Pittsburg institution is concerned, has just received some rather unusual propositions from abroad, and he has made public several of the most interesting communications.

He has received, among other communications, a letter from one claiming to be the official barber to his majesty Emperor William of Germany, in which the tonsorial artist makes the proposition that Mr. Carnegie's institute purchase from him a complete set of hair clipped from the head of each member of the royal family of Germany.

The barber promises that he will "do up" the bundles of hair neatly and attractively, each lot neatly labelled, and all for $75,000.

Dr. Holland also received an offer from London of a collection of stuffed gorillas, "eleven in number, very large, lifelike," etc., and all for the trifling sum of £11,500, or nearly $57,000.

"WORKED" THE NEWSPAPERS

And the Pastor-Press Agent Glories in His Success.

St. Louis, Mo., May 7.—Press-agent methods of church advertising are not to be generally adopted in St. Louis churches, although Rev. Columbus Polk Goodson, former pastor of the King's Highway Presbyterian church, says he started his church on the road to prosperity by "putting over" a "press-agent stunt" on the St. Louis papers. Clergymen interviewed do not approve of the method.

Rev. Dr. Goodson, now pastor of the fashionable Highland Park Presbyterian church in Chicago, was one of the guests of honor at the King's Highway church "home-coming." He gave a humorous account of how he worked his ingenuity overtime to build up his St. Louis charge.

When Dr. Goodson came to St. Louis his congregation at the little King's Highway church did not number more than seventy-five persons on an average, and he was young and unknown to fame. His talk was of how he climbed himself and made his church grow by diligent use of the newspapers.

He told how 9-year-old Donald Stewart, son of A. T. Stewart, fell off a pier at Creve Coeur Lake on Nov. 15, 1904, of how he rushed into the water, which was hardly up to his waist, and dragged the boy out, and then how he permitted newspapers to "write it up" as a thrilling rescue.

"John Wannamaker of Philadelphia, was to speak at my church the next day," he said. "I had to do something to attract a crowd there that would be worthy of him."

Dr. Goodson added that he had reformed now in regard to his use of the newspapers.

GOVERNOR LOST POWER OF VETO

After Legislature That Passed the Act Had Adjourned.

Charleston, W. Va., May 7.—In an opinion rendered in the case of May against Topping, from Kanawha county, the supreme court of appeals declared that in no event has the governor power to disapprove a bill making appropriations of public money or to disapprove any item therein, without communicating his disapproval thereof, with his reasons therefor, to the house in which the bill originated before the adjournment of the legislative session.

Since the admission of the state the governors of West Virginia have exceeded their authority in pruning from the appropriation bills, after the session of the legislature had expired, many thousands of dollars, and the decision of the court today shows the use of the executive weapon to have been invalid.

The power of the governor to veto certain items in the bill was tested for the first time in the history of the state by Mrs. Maude May, widow of the late Attorney Clarke W. May, when the court awarded her a writ of mandamus to compel Clerk Topping, keeper of the rolls, to print in the acts of the legislature an item of $2,080, appropriated for her by the legislature as the balance of salary of her late husband for the year in which he died.

Judge Ira Robinson, who wrote the opinion, which was concurred in by all of the judges, argues that the framers of the Constitution contemplated that the legislature should have ultimate power in the general expenditure of public revenue, and that the executive veto, to be exercised during the legislative session, is a check upon legislatures. He says:

"The people have reserved unto themselves by their many representatives, embodying the combined and versatile intelligence of the masses, the last word as to the policy and propriety of public expenditures. Such idea is most consistent with the republican form of government. But the people never intended, and it is not so expressed, that the intelligence or will of any one man in a matter so vital and varied as the expenditures of the public revenue, the very life blood of the state, should prevail, except by argument, over the combined intelligence and will of their representatives in legislative assembly."

Special Agent Charles M. Pepper, bureau of manufactures, reports that the yearly output of British pottery is of the value of $60,000,000, employing 135,618 persons. Twelve million dollars' worth of the product is exported annually. The report is full and valuable. Address Bureau of Manufactures, Washington, D. C., for reports Nos. 3394 and 3395.

FOR THE PUBLIC WELFARE

(Note—Suggestions from citizens of needed reforms will be welcomed.)

THE BETHEL'S NEEDS

In the current issue of the Bethel Record is an editorial plea for the beginning in Duluth of a fund for the erection of a building adequate for the the needs of the Bethel work.

The Record says:

"It is extremely pathetic to see hundreds of homeless men, lumberjacks, sailors, miners, railroad men and workingmen in general, turned away from the gospel meetings at the Bethel because the room is too small to accommodate them. It is all the more pathetic because the Bethel is the only home that hundreds of these men know so when they are shut out, there is no other place for them to go. They are poorly clad and unaccustomed to elegant surroundings and elegant dress such as they would find in the average church or the Y. M. C. A., so they will not attend such places. They would feel so much out of place that they could not enjoy any kind of a service under such conditions. It is also pathetic to see many hundreds of them turned away who come to the Bethel to get rooms. The few rooms in the institution are always rented, and so these men who consider the Bethel their home are turned away and forced to accept cheap lodgings in connection with a saloon, which always results in disaster.

"It is also pathetic to see the Bethel reading room packed to suffocation with those who are fortunate enough to get in, and hundreds of others during the day coming, only to look in and turn away, to be welcomed into some barroom where they are tempted to drink and dissipate.

"It is pathetic to see twenty-two girls crowded into the Rescue home, which can only accommodate sixteen.

"It is pathetic to see twenty-five babies crowded into the nursery at the Bethel home, which is only large enough to accommodate ten.

"Certainly the time has come to build. This thing has been before the public in a general way several times. Plans were all laid when the panic came. Plans were recently nearing completion when the devil sprang the tariff revision and the tonnage tax. But the fact remains that the poor are being forced into dissipation and crime because of the lack of proper facilities for their protection and salvation. This question is a thousand times more important than any political issue. We are our brothers' keeper and we must not deny this. The wealth God has given into the hands of the stewards in Duluth and the surrounding country was given to be used for God's glory. It certainly is not being used to His glory when such conditions exist as are referred to in this article, in a city which has more than a score of millionaires, besides its great number of people of wealth and ease. So, despite the tariff, tonnage tax and money market, conditions have forced the Bethel building proposition to an issue so it will go to the public in a very short time and certainly the responses should be generous to this appeal for money with which to erect a Bethel for the homeless men and a Bethel home for fallen girls. These buildings will be the greatest monuments to the generosity of Duluth citizens that could be erected. But to turn this appeal down would be the eternal shame of our fair city. Who will start the ball rolling with a generous proposition? Who will help raise the money?"

THE WEST END "GYM"

The work in the Twentieth Century club rooms at the West end is being rapidly extended and the rooms, which are in the basement of St. Luke's church are already taxed to their capacity. Almost every evening during the week some sort of work to interest and help the young people of the locality is being carried on. In one corner of the room shoved into as small space as possible, is a vaulting horse and parallel bars and a gymnasium mat. And with this small amount of apparatus the classes in physical culture work are conducted. There are two boys' clubs with directors and leaders and splendid work is being done.

In a book case is the lending library which is a part of the public library. At the last evening when the rooms were open for book circulation, more than 100 volumes were loaned. Current magazines and some not so recent have been sent to the rooms by friends and each evening the rooms are open from a dozen to more than fifty visitors are present.

Saturday is devoted to the girls. In the morning the little tots receive instruction in sewing under the direction of Miss Alice Scott. At 2 o'clock the glee club of older girls is trained by Mrs. G. W. C. Ross and at 3 o'clock the sewing school for the older girls is held. The work is broadening out in a splendid way and it is expected that with the next year or two that a large number of the young people will be reached for their better instruction and help.

NORTH DAKOTA POSTAL RECEIPTS SHOW INCREASE.

Fargo, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The postal business of the state for the first four months of the year shows an increase of about 30 per cent over that of the same period of last year. This is regarded as a fair barometer of the business condition of the state. Fargo has shown a larger increase this year for every month over the same period last season and this in face of the fact that last year had broken all records.

CUMMINS IS ASKED IF THE DEMOCRATS WILL LEND AID TO THE REPUBLICANS

Washington, May 7.—An amusing incident occurred at the close of Senator Cummins' speech yesterday on the tariff in the senate, when that Republican progressive was asked by Senator Newlands whether the faction striving for a revision of the tariff downward had formulated a plan with which the Democrats could unite in order to accomplish their purpose. The question gave evident satisfaction to Senator Aldrich, but apparently Senator Culberson, the minority leader, was not so well pleased.

It was pointed out by Mr. Newlands that if the twenty progressive Republicans united with the thirty-one Democratic senators they would have a majority of the senate. Mr. Cummins remarked that the senator from Nevada had found more progressive Republicans than he had. Responding to Mr. Newlands' question, however, Mr. Cummins asked:

"Is the senator from Nevada authorized to speak for the thirty-one Democrats, when he propounds such an inquiry?"

"No," said Mr. Newlands, "because the thirty-one Democrats are powerless to accomplish anything here by taking the lead. The only way they could succeed in benefiting the country would be by following the lead of the progressive Republicans. I think if that Republican faction would get together on a program for a revision of the tariff downward, the Democrats would respond favorably to the proposal."

"Are you making an official statement from the Democratic party or merely a suggestion?" asked Aldrich.

Newlands replied that he spoke only for himself, whereupon Cummins declared that the speeches favoring the highest duties had come from the Democratic side so that he saw but little hope of help from that quarter.

"What have we progressives to hope for from that side of the chamber?" Cummins said.

"The despair of the senator from Iowa, at not being able to gain support from the Democrats in the senate, is not warranted by the attitude of the minority upon progressive legislation placed upon the statute books in the last two years," said Mr. Newlands. "Continuing, he declared that the Democrats had stood with the president and in line with the position of the senator from Iowa for progressive action on public questions, such as the railroad rate law, and that they would be with him for a downward revision of the tariff, and he again expressed a hope for the co-operation of the progressives of the two parties.

"Upon what platform does the senator propose to carry out this union?" inquired Mr. Aldrich.

"Upon the platform of faithful service to the people," replied Mr. Newlands.

With the expression by Mr. Aldrich that such a union of forces would be "a combination in restraint of trade," the incident closed.

WILL START BUILDING OF COKE OVENS AT GARY.

Gary, Ind., May 7.—Construction of coke ovens for the local plant will begin immediately. The first lot of ovens to be built will number 560, and will use between 6,000 and 7,000 tons of coal a day.

This battery of ovens will furnish coke for the operation of ten blast furnaces, it is estimated, and also will furnish fuel for residents of the city.

The building of the coke ovens at this point follows the announcement made some months ago at Pittsburg that the United States Steel corporation has abandoned the project of locating several thousand ovens at various Pennsylvania points, which were to have been built at a cost of $3,000,000, and would instead build a huge by-product coke oven plant at Gary.

The Model's Secret

A STORY FOR FAT FOLKS.

The Cloak Models' association has raised their calling to the status of a fine art. The development and retention of a perfect figure is made the study of their lives. As a result they receive high salaries and, of course, live correspondingly well.

But good living and a perfect figure are seldom contemporaneous in the same lady. They are so only when that lady is willing to pay for her good times by most strenuous and persistent physical effort to keep her fat down. So the premier models, some of whom are middle aged, have had to fight a good fight hitherto.

Hitherto is used advisedly, for now the struggle is less keen. Instead of dieting and exercise being their reliance, the following mixture is asked to do the work of keeping these ladies professionally fit: One-half ounce Marmola, ½ ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 3½ ounces of Peppermint Water.

This is taken a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, and reports indicate it does not violate the trust put in it.

Those with a tendency to fatten up keep their figures stationary by its means, while many finding themselves overfat have lost as much as a pound a day by its use.

EPIDEMIC OF LONDON CRIME

Judges Hear Remarkable Stories of Robbery and Violence.

London, May 7.—Police court magistrates in and around London heard last week some of the most remarkable stories of robbery and violence which have been related for some time. London, in fact, appears to have been experiencing an epidemic of crime of a kind almost unparalleled since the days of the highwayman. One of the most remarkable was a raid by two burglars on Barnes rectory, culminating in a pitched battle between them and the rector, the Rev. P. A. de Waal. The rector, who is 60 years old, was awakened in his bedroom at the rectory at 2 a. m., and confronted by a desperate young burglar armed with a heavy crowbar. Though the rector had no weapon but his bare hands, and was at the further disadvantage of being barefooted and clad only in his pajamas, he grappled with his assailant and succeeded in throwing him downstairs.

By his courage he also averted the almost certain loss of $25,000 worth of valuable securities, the family plate and a string of athletic cups. He likewise succeeded in effecting the capture in his dining room of a man who gave his name at the police court as Henry Markham, who was released from Dartmoor prison only a few days ago. The rector's assailant escaped, just eluding a blow from Mr. de Waal, who awaited him at the door with a shovel.

An equally amazing story, this time of a daylight robbery, was told at Westminster police court, when William Ryan, alias Gilbey, pleaded guilty to robbing Mrs. Caroline Randall, an elderly widow, of her purse on top of an omnibus. Ryan sat next to Mrs. Randall, and suddenly, when the conductor had gone below, seized her wrist and made her drop her handbag. She resisted, but he dragged her down, ran down the stairs and jumped off the omnibus. Only when he was brought to bay after a chase did he drop the purse.

It was stated at the Marylebone police court the other day that during the last month no fewer than eighteen cabs had been stolen in London. All of them were found afterwards with the types ripped off and the rubber mats and tools missing. Unemployment is undoubtedly the cause of many crimes.

OLD BIBLE IN MUSEUM

Reveals to Delaware Man That He Is Heir to Fortune.

Wilmington, Del., May 7.—It was announced yesterday that James A. Brackin, a milk dealer of Wilmington, is an heir to $1,500,000 as the result of the accidental finding of an old family Bible in a Philadelphia museum.

The heirs had been searching for the Bible for thirty years. In the book, moldy with age, were discovered the history of the Brackin family and proofs of the immense fortune in Wales.

The Wilmington man's connection is through his great-grandmother. The heirs will meet in Philadelphia shortly to take steps to secure the fortune.

The $1,500,000 comes from the Ivins family, a name celebrated in Wales since the time of the ancient Celtic tribes.

Church Robber Held.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 7.—Claude Dewey was bound over to the district court here on the charge of burglarizing the Synodical Lutheran church. It is alleged that he broke into the church and stole valuable silverware. The articles were found in his possession.

KNOX'S ELIGIBILITY IS AGAIN MADE AN ISSUE.

Washington, May 7.—To require Secretary of State Knox to show cause why he should not be removed from office on constitutional grounds is the object of a petition in quo warranto received here by Clerk John R. Young of the District of Columbia supreme court from C. W. Caldwell, a Columbus, Ind., attorney.

The petition, designed to raise anew the former controversy as to Mr. Knox's eligibility to a cabinet office, set forth the action of congress in reference to the removal of the constitutional bar raised against Mr. Knox when he was nominated. The issue first arose over Mr. Knox as senator, having voted to increase the salary of cabinet officers.

The petition was not in proper form and Clerk Young returned the papers to the Indiana attorney, calling attention to the code governing here as to quo warranto proceedings.

POLICE AUTO IN THE CITY

New "Black Maria" Arrives After Many Annoying Delays.

"Drunks" and "Vags" Will Hereafter Ride in Style.

After a series of long and annoying delays, Duluth's automobile patrol wagon has arrived from Mankato, Minn., where it was built, and is now on a car in the Omaha railroad yards. It will be unloaded and put into active service as soon as possible.

The machine was ordered early in the year, after authority had been granted by the city council. It will take the place of the present wagon patrol, and the teams pulling it. A man from the factory is in town to see about putting the auto in commission, and to teach members of the police department how to operate it.

Thecar is purchased under a guarantee, which binds the manufacturers to make good any deficiences which become evident in a year's time. It will be operated free of charge to the city for thirty days, and at the end of that time, if everything is satisfactory, it will be turned over to the municipality, and a police officer will be placed in charge of it.

Many advantages are claimed for the automobile patrol over the old team patrol. For one thing, it can make better time, and it is said that, in the long run, it will prove less expensive to operate, by doing away with all teams in the police department. It will make the construction of a new branch police station in the West end unnecessary for a time. The maximum speed of the machine is twenty miles an hour, and it is claimed that it will easily be able to climb any of the Duluth hills.

TAFT'S EYE SORE DUE TO INSECT

Compels Him to Abandon Attendance Upon Statue Unveiling.

Washington, May 7.—President Taft was compelled today to abandon the idea of attending the unveiling of the Longfellow statue in this city today, owing to a badly inflamed eye, over which he is wearing a light bandage. A gnat or some other insect flew into Mr. Taft's eye while he was horseback riding Wednesday afternoon. The president gave little attention to the matter at the time, but yesterday his eye was much irritated. His physician thought that the glare of the bright sunlight today would be bad for the eye, and advised him not to venture out. It is thought that the inflammation will have subsided by tomorrow. The president attended to business as usual today, sitting two hours with his cabinet and receiving a large number of visitors.

Mr. Walker, the American representative of the celebrated Mintons English china, will be with Bagley & Co., jewelers, tomorrow only, to take import orders. He will be very glad to have anyone who appreciates fine china to look the line over, whether they wish to buy or not.

WARM WELCOME FOR COMMONER

Friends of W. J. Bryan Plan to Give Him Reception.

William Jennings Bryan will deliver his lecture on "The Price of a Soul" at the First Methodist church next Monday evening before an audience which, from present indications, will tax the capacity of the church to its utmost.

Admirers of the great commoner in Duluth are planning to give a reception in his honor while he is in the city. Mr. Bryan has many personal friends in the city apart from political ones, and these are aiming to make his stay in Duluth as pleasant as possible. No political significance attaches to the reception.

Mr. Bryan is to deliver the last in the Star course of lectures.

Jewelry Stock at Auction.

This stock, including furniture and fixtures, will be promptly sold without reserve to the highest bidders.

HAD LONG KNIFE FOR DETECTIVE

But the Officer Grappled With Man and Arrested Him.

Detective Norman Terry braved dangers of a long knife in the hands of an infuriated man at 214 Lake avenue south last night and arrested Otto Loine after wresting the weapon from him. In municipal court this morning the prisoner was found guilty on a disorderly conduct charge and was sentenced to sixty days in jail, with a $55 fine as an alternative.

No. 214 Lake avenue is a store. Loine made a purchase there, and then claimed that the man in charge did not give him the proper change. An argument followed, the storekeeper refusing to come forward with any more cash. Detective Terry happened to come in the door just as Loine drew a long knife and made a lunge at the other man. The detective immediately got busy, grappled with Loine and took the weapon from him, and then took him to the police station.

Funeral of W. A. Eden.

The funeral of William A. Eden, who died Monday night, was held this afternoon. Private services limited to the members of the family and a few intimate friends, were held at the home on East Second street at 2 o'clock, followed by public services at the Masonic temple, under the auspices of the Ionic lodge. The pallbearers were selected from the Knights Templar, all being warm personal friends of the deceased. The Masonic services were observed at the grave, a long line of carriages following the hearse to the cemetery. Many members of the Elks and others orders to which the deceased belonged were in attendance at the funeral. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. Out of respect to the memory of the deceased Superior street cigar stores were closed from 2 to 4 p. m.

The Rhine was frozen over and loaded wagons crossed it on the ice in 1292. Travelers also crossed from Norway to Jutland on the ice the same year.

TAX REFORM IN MINNESOTA.

The so-called "wide open" tax amendment to the Minnesota Constitution was proposed in order that the legislature might have an opportunity to reform the tax system of this state.

There have been two sessions of the legislature which have felt free, under that amendment, to do all the tax reforming they were disposed to do. What is the result? Nothing except the mortgage registry tax, which throws the burden of mortgage taxation upon the borrower, a thing that never should be done even if it is necessary to exempt mortgages from taxation to prevent it, and a "bushel tax" on wheat.

The legislature of 1907 created a tax commission, and that commission recommended several proposed tax measures to the legislature of 1909. Not one of these measures became a law, yet tax reform is impossible in this state without them.

The tax commission proposed the county assessor system in place of the present system of local assessors. Every argument is in favor of the county assessor plan, and not one valid argument has been made for the retention of the local assessor system. When there is an assessor, working at his own sweet will, in every subdivision of the state, there are about as many kinds of assessment as there are assessors. Farms in two adjoining townships, worth exactly the same, may be and unquestionably are assessed differently, because the two assessors have different ideas. Practically none of the local assessors are experts. Their assessment work is a sideline, taking up a few days of each year. They are selected because they are good fellows, or because they ar crafty politicians in a small way—almost never because they are fitted for the work.

Yet the legislature rejected the county assessor system, for no better reason than that the local assessors have political power which the members of the legislature feared.

Also, the tax commission proposed a uniform basis of assessment throughout the state, and the legislature murdered that plan, too, with as little reason. The law now says that all assessments must be at the full value in money of the property assessed. That law has been violated systematically for half a century. Property in one community is assessed at 15 or 25 per cent, and property in another is assessed at 50 per cent or more. One kind of property is assessed at 10 per cent, another at 30 per cent, another at 50 per cent, and another still higher. The tax commission saw that a rigid enforcement of the full valuation law would disturb conditions where salaries, bond issues, etc., are based on assessed valuations, so it proposed a uniform basis of 50 per cent. The legislature refused to provide for it.

The real trouble with taxation in Minnesota is this amazing lack of uniformity in assessment. It makes no difference whether property is assessed at 100 per cent or 1 per cent of its actual value; if it is all assessed on the same basis throughout the state taxation is equally divided. Uniformity can be secured by a more centralized assessing system, and by putting all classes of property and all sections upon the same basis of assessment; but this obvious step toward tax reform was too simple and too effective for the Minnesota legislature to understand.

Yet there will never be real tax reform in this state until these changes are brought about.

CHARITY ON BUSINESS LINES.

A call has been issued, as announced in The Herald last evening, for a public meeting at the Commercial club rooms Friday, May 14, for the purpose of forming an Associated Charities in Duluth.

This is something Duluth has needed for a long time. The Herald has frequently called attention to this need, beginning several years ago. No fault can be found with the generosity of the people of Duluth. In time of stress and need it is lavish and spontaneous; but owing to the lack of a central organization to oversee its distribution much of this noble bounty is wasted.

The object of an Associated Charities organization is to prevent overlapping of charitable effort, to guard against fraud and the fostering of pauperism, and to see that those who need and deserve shall get while those who do not need and do not deserve are prevented from preying upon the sympathies of the generous.

In short, its object and effect is to bring about a maximum of well-directed charitable effort at a minimum of expense. Without direction, much well-meant charity is wasteful and even harmful. Duluth is big enough to have an Associated Charities, and unfortunately it has at all times poor people enough to make it necessary. It is good that it is coming, and it ought to have the widest and wisest and strongest support possible.

RAILROAD MERGERS AND THE PEOPLE.

Two years ago the Pennsylvania railroad sold a part of its holdings of Norfolk & Western stock, and later it disposed of its holdings of Baltimore & Ohio and Chesapeake & Ohio stock.

It was officially stated that these transfers were made "in deference to the present state of public opinion upon such matters," although it was insisted that the company was "entirely within its legal rights in purchasing and holding these shares."

But within a few weeks the Pennsylvania has bought back nearly all of the Norfolk & Western shares it sold two years ago, so that it now controls 37 per cent of the Norfolk & Western, or as dominating an interest as it had before it deferred to public sentiment.

It is stated by the New York Journal of Commerce, which is pretty close to large business interests, that the reason for the new movement toward the absorption of smaller railroads by bigger ones is that the Roosevelt administration strictly forbade the absorption of competing lines, while since President Taft came into office the bars have been let down, "for during the last few months various deals have been made involving the passing of control from weak to strong interests." "It may be added," says the Journal of Commerce, "that other similar transactions are understood to be pending. The Canadian Pacific, the Hill system, the Harriman system and the Hawley system has each been in the market for new roads with more or less success, so that the Pennsylvania's action merely emphasizes the trend of events under the Taft administration."

If there are reasons for believing that the Taft administration is going to be more lenient in this matter than the Roosevelt administration, they have not been made public. There is nothing in the public utterances of the president to warrant it, and it is doubtful if there is anything in public sentiment to support this change in public policy.

There has been quite enough of consolidation for exploitation, and if the people are stirred up regarding it, it will be found that they are just as sternly against such practices as they ever were.

Consolidation for economic reasons,—though the dividing line between the two is invisible,—is another thing. When a strong road takes over a weak road, and the service is improved thereby, there is a public gain, providing the railroad magnates deal fairly with the public in the distribution of the benefits of consolidation. As a matter of fact, with proper public regulation, the railroad service of the country would be better and cheaper if there were but one railroad company in charge of all the railroad lines.

But public regulation has hardly advanced far enough as yet to make further consolidation safe. The opportunity to exploit the people by diluted stock issues is still too great. When regulation is perfected in the interests of the people, railroad consolidation can do no harm. Until it is perfected, consolidation is still a fruitful source of corruption and plunder.

THE CONGRESSIONAL TARIFF FARCE.

The public attitude toward the tariff activities of congress is one of hopeless pessimism, coupled with a wish that it may be ended as soon as may be, so that business may be resumed. There is no present promise of any real relief for the consumer. The chains are to be fastened a little tighter about his neck, and the grasp of the trusts upon his pocketbook is to be made a little firmer. That's about all there is to tariff revision, as congress is working it today.

Those who have been arguing that the tariff ought to be handled by a permanent tariff commission of experts, removed from the influence of politics and special privilege, need waste no further breath. Congress is furnishing fresh evidence every day that they are right, and that congress is absolutely incompetent to frame a reasonable tariff law, because of the all-powerful influences of sectionalism, special privilege, partisanship and corruption.

Absolutely no attempt is being made to curb the power of the trusts by a tariff revision that would let down the bars far enough to admit a reasonable competition from abroad, just enough to keep prices honest while still protecting American labor from undue competition. That sort of revision it was the duty of congress to provide; but that is just the kind of tariff revision that stands no chance whatever in congress. Therefore the sooner the farce is over the better it will be for all concerned. If the tariff can be settled rightly by any congress at all, it certainly can't be settled rightly by the congress now on the job. Either another congress, molded to the people's will, or a tariff commission, will be necessary before right shall prevail and greed shall be disconfitted.

THE HOUSE FLY AT THE BAR.

The person who "wouldn't hurt a fly" in these days of enlightenment deserves none of the consideration he has had all the years that have passed since the saying first had vogue. The fly is a monstrous and dangerous enemy of mankind, and the person really to be admired is the one who can get up a practical scheme to put the fly out of business.

The Merchants Association of New York has issued an elaborate pamphlet giving the evidence in the case of the people against the house fly. Fifty large pages are crowded with the most damning proof, and the house fly is shown to be a carrier of disease and filth and a menace to public health—in short, a public enemy against which battle must be given with all the energy that society can muster.

The fly breeds in filth, and lives in it happily when he is not carrying his tainted feet into the homes of the people to trail disease over the people's food. The innocent little insect that buzzes merrily in the glad summer time over your waiting dinner has no doubt just arrived from the nearest place of filth, bringing a cargo of germs and foulness which he deposits upon the food that you are about to eat.

This is the burden of the testimony in the case of the people against the house fly. Health officers and scientists give evidence like this:

"They are carriers of disease, flying from polluted places in which they breed to the faces, mouths and noses of sleeping infants, and thence to men, women and children."

"We have records of several instances where typhoid fever was unquestionably transmitted by flies."

"We have observed that typhoid fever continued till cold weather killed the flies."

"In a typhoid-stricken family flies swarmed upon the table at mealtime, coming from near-by cesspools containing discharges from typhoid patients."

"About a dozen cases of typhoid broke out in the immediate vicinity of a polluted cesspool, open to flies. The epidemic stopped as soon as the frost killed the flies."

These are but a few out of a great many similar opinions from health officers and scientists all over the country. It is not a pleasant subject; in fact there are features of it that cannot be printed. Yet the most sluggish imagination can easily picture the result when flies go from the filth in which they and disease germs breed in common, and rest upon the food of human beings. It is not typhoid alone that comes from flies. A tuberculous patient scatters the germs of tuberculosis wherever he expectorates. Wherever he expectorates, too, flies flock in great numbers. These flies pass on to the faces of human beings, and thus the disease is carried afar.

The house fly must go.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Said a Steel company official at the Spalding yesterday:

"There is every prospect that there will be a heavy shipment of ore from the ranges. We have not known what a panic is in that part of the country. There has been talk of a reduction in the wages of the men, but I don't think that you will find that there will be any cut in the wages of the employes.

"There is unusual activity upon the ranges at the present time. The indications are that more ore will be shipped during the present season than last. The new mill at Coleraine is being built at a very rapid rate. It is expected that the mill will be completed some time during the present year.

"At Hibbing and Virginia the mining has already begun upon a heavy scale. The development work of the Steel corporation will probably be very extensive this year. Taken altogether, there is every indication at hand that the present year will be a prosperous one in the affairs of the iron ranges."

J. H. McFadzean, until recently the agent of the Chicago & Duluth Transportation company at Houghton, but more recently appointed agent of the company at Duluth, and who was formerly city passenger and ticket agent of the Northern Pacific railway in this city, was at the St. Louis last evening.

Mr. McFadzean said that he was glad to return to Duluth, where he has many friends.

The Chicago & Duluth steamers have experienced little trouble with striking seamen, according to the statement of Mr. McFadzean. The Chilli, one of the big freighters of the company, reached Duluth today. This is the first trip of the Chilli to Duluth this season, and Mr. McFadzean says that the officials of the company had no trouble in getting sufficient men in Chicago to operate the vessel.

The Chicago & Duluth boats are in the Lake Carriers' association, yet, so far, Mr. McFadzean says that the officials of the company have not experienced the slightest difficulty in getting men to operate them.

Mr. McFadzean will have his office in the Duluth Board of Trade building.

C. W. McDonald of Virginia, at the St. Louis yesterday, says ore shipments from Virginia the present season will, according to the belief of mining men of that town, exceed the shipments of last season by at least 10 per cent. According to Mr. McDonald, 10 per cent is a conservative estimate of the increase of the 1909 shipments from the ranges.

Mining men in Virginia, according to Mr. McDonald, believe that the reduction of steel prices and the greater industrial activity of the country, in addition to the fact that there is less ore at the docks of the lower lakes than there was a year ago, cannot but result in a greater demand for ore.

J. E. Miguel of Detroit, Mich., stated at the Lenox last evening that nineteen out of twenty-seven counties of the lower part of Michigan were dry as a result of the recent election, and that it was the boast of the anti-wets that at the next election even greater progress would be made in the restriction of the counties in the Wolverine state where the stuff that cheers could be imbibed with the strict pale of the law.

"Those favoring prohibition are jubilant over the results achieved in Michigan, and they are already planning for the next election," said Mr. Miguel. "They hope, actually believe, that they will carry a majority of the counties of the state. They have become so encouraged by the showing at the last election that their fighting spirit has been aroused, and they are going right after the liquor evil.

"Over in Michigan the liquor question is one that sometimes splits families. This is especially true in the lower counties of the state. The 'drys' and 'wets' are positive in their convictions. They hit straight from the shoulder, and the fight over in Michigan between the brewery interests and those opposed to the saloon in any form whatever promises to be very bitter. Just at the present time it is the ter. Just at the present time it is the big issue over in our state, and one that can be taken as an example of the progress that the prohibition wave is making, despite the opposition it is receiving from all the powerful liquor interests of the country.

"It is estimated that the brewery interests of Ohio, which are the ones that receive the most benefit from the Michigan territory, spent a vast amount of money during the recent election in the various counties of Michigan. Yet, despite this fact, the elections in the majority of the counties were in favor of the abolition of the saloon.

"This simply shows that prohibition is not the feeble movement it was some years ago, and that the brewery interests of the country have come to a full realization of the fact that they must fight to retain even a restricted territory for their business."

T. W. Wishard of New York, whose name appears upon the register of the Spalding, looked grieved and downcast yesterday when Clerk Shattuck questioned him tactfully regarding the cellar position that is occupied by the New York baseball team at the present time.

Had those two victories over the Boston Doves been known to Mr. Wishard the smile that feebly sent its light over his countenance might have possessed more candle power. He did not know that New York had not only actually won a game of baseball, but two in the same day.

"The members of our team are simply creatures of misfortune," the New Yorker sadly informed the clerk. "They have thus far proved a great disappointment to the New York public, but if you have followed the game you will find that hard luck has had much to do with the showing made by the Giants.

"The New York fans have faith in John J. McGraw, and there is no doubt but that he has a great team. I am of the opinion that before the season is much older New York will be occupying a position near the top of the procession. Yes, we are sad and downcast in New York, but we are of the opinion that there will be a lift in the fog and that the sun will shine in the near future."

THE WEATHER.

CLOUDY

It was good just to be alive this morning and live in Duluth, and any man whose grouch survived the bright, spring sunshine ought to see a stomach specialist.

The weather man looks for partly cloudy weather tonight.

A year ago today it was warm and fair. The sun rose this morning at 4:42 and will set this afternoon at 7:26, making fourteen hours and forty-four minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the past twenty-four hours light to copious rains fell throughout the lake region, New England, Southern Illinois, Western Tennessee and Eastern Texas, and light rain or snow in Western Montana, Oregon, Washington and British Columbia, largely due to the influence of slight barometric depressions centered over Western Ontario, Pennsylvania and Southern Ontario, Pennsylvania and South-Southwest has caused warmer weather throughout the Rocky mountains and Eastern slopes, while an area of high pressure that has advanced to Iowa has caused cooler temperatures over most of the Mississippi valley, the southern and eastern lake region, and New England states. Generally fair weather is indicated for the Head of the Lakes tonight and Saturday."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures:

The Traction.

Ellis O. Jones in Life: "I have great difficulty in understanding your traction system," said the Man from Mars.

"It is a little complex. What seems to bother you the most?" replied the Upright Citizen.

"Well, for instance, in whose interest is it conducted?"

"In the interest of the people, of course," answered the Upright Citizen.

"Then why are the people not treated with greater courtesy and supplied with more comforts?"

"Because it is not to the interest of those who conduct it to do so."

"But, I thought you said it was conducted in the interest of the people?"

"In a way it is. That is to say, the people, in their own interest, entrust the traction business to selected members of the community, to whose interest it is to conduct it in the interest of the people. Understand?"

"Perhaps I am a numskull," vouchsafed the Man from Mars, "but I do not understand yet. Now, to whose interest is it to have good service?"

"To the interest of the people, of course, but then you could not expect the traction officials to give good service when it is not to their interest, could you?"

"I do not expect anything," explained the Man from Mars. "I am trying to understand it. As near as I can determine there are two conflicting interests. Now, in such a conflict, which gives way?"

"The people, of course. You could not expect individuals to give service which was not to their interest. Have you ever studied the question of vested rights?"

"No; but I suppose vested rights are those which authorize the few to make the many uncomfortable?"

"You talk like a dangerous man," rejoined the Upright Citizen.

A Directoire Frock.

Long languid lines unbroken by a frill,
Superfluous festoons reduced to nil,
A figure like a seal reared up on end,
And poking forward with a studied bend;

A shortish neck imprisoned in a ruff,
Skin-tilting sleeves that show a stint of stuff,
A waist promoted half-way up the back,
And not a shred that's comfortably slack;

A multitude of buttons, row on row,
Not there for business—merely made for show,
A skirt whose meagre gores necessitate
The waddle of a Chinese lady's gait;

A "busby" toque extinguishing the hair
As if a giant hand had crushed it there—
Behold the latest mode! and write beneath,
"A winter blossom bursting from its sheath."

Puck: No tax duty shall be laid on articles exported from any state.—The Constitution of the United States.

Short-sighted fathers of the republic! Duncan McLeod, lately with Bell's band, has opened a real estate office in the Fargusson block.

A subscription paper will be circulated this month to secure funds for holding a regatta in Duluth harbor in June.

The board of education last night re-elected Superintendent Denfeld for two years. The list of teachers for the ensuing year was adopted. Mr. Plumb, principal of the high school, is to be succeeded by W. G. Benedict.

The resignation of Rev. F. W. Damrow has been accepted by the German Lutheran church, and a call has been extended to Rev. O. W. Fischer of Castleton, Dak., but he has not yet decided to accept the position.

That part of the Duluth, Red Wing & Southern railway between Red Wing and Zumbrota was formally opened for business today. About a dozen people were present.

F. J. Leonard, day clerk of the Tower hotel at West Superior for several months, left today for Chicago to take a like position in the Windsor.

Mrs. A. G. Rand, lately arrived from St. Cloud, will open a restaurant in the McCahill building at West Duluth.

At the election of officers of the new Marine Bank of Duluth, Joseph Billings was elected president; W. M. Osborne of Boston, Mass., vice president, and Wilmot Saeger, cashier. The bank will open its doors for business on May 9.

Charles W. Seville, late of Duluth, and Miss Katherine L. Kistler of Boscobel, Wis., were married on May 2 at the latter city. They have arrived in Duluth and will receive friends at the home of the groom's father, ex-Alderman James Seville.

A muskellonge, the largest ever caught at the Head of the Lakes, was taken from Pike lake this morning by Jay W. Anderson and Frank McWhorter. The fish weighed 32½ pounds, and was 3 feet 3 inches long.

Miss Amy Scovell has returned to Duluth, having taught for the past year in one of the suburban towns.

Since early this morning a heavy wind, bordering on a tornado, has been blowing over the country to the west and south of Northern Pacific Junction. Not only telegraph poles, with their network of wires, were razed to the ground, but trees have been uprooted, and in some instances the branches lie across the St. Paul & Duluth tracks.

Bert J. Sawyer, formerly of this city, is seriously ill with pneumonia at Minneapolis, and his life is despaired of by his physicians.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Winona Independent: The governor is accused of doing the expedient thing in vetoing the tonnage tax bill, and indeed he did. Abraham Lincoln was not another in theory and in practice, and our generation looks upon Abraham Lincoln as the greatest man America has produced. God give us more such men who are not afraid to brave the taunts of fire-eating demagogues; who would rather see justice wait than that the innocent should suffer with the guilty.

If Governor Johnson had listened to the voice of the tempter, it would have been much easier for him to have given a slap at his arch enemy, the steel trust, than to have done as he did. Each of the many indignities he suffered at the hands of the emissaries of the steel magnates doubtless cried out for vengeance, but he put them aside and acted the part of the statesman rather than that of the petty politician. All honor to such a man, and shame be upon those who would make the plea that he sought his own advancement.

Brainerd Dispatch: The Twin City dealers have advanced the price of coal 25 cents a ton, but they can't scare us that way, for with good luck we shall not need more than three tons to finish out the winter.

Aitkin Age: And now we know the veto of the tonnage tax was right. Heatwole's Northfield News has condemned it. Has the bellhike over it, in fact.

Albert Lea Times-Enterprise: The state tax commission calls the attention of the assessors to the fact that the legislature adjourned without any legislation regarding the valuation to be fixed in assessment, and says the old law is in effect yet and should be observed. And why should not the property of the state be assessed at its full value? Why is not that way the most fair to all? Let the tax commission enforce the law.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Here is a political prediction that comes up from the lower part of the state: Governor Johnson's courageous act of vetoing the tonnage tax bill will carry him to the United States senate to succeed Senator Moses E. Clapp, and Bob Dunn will again be the Republican candidate for governor, with a better chance of winning than ever.

Litchfield Independent: The legislature has adjourned and the solons have come home loaded with stationery and waste baskets, books, bills and legislative reports. The session was leaderless and aimless, and was one of the worst ever held in Minnesota. It was a session of combinations and grabs. It was rotten.

Hinckley Enterprise: About the best thing that can be said of the late but it did demented legislature is that it did nothing very harmful except make Democratic campaign material.

Walker Pilot: Well, the legislature has adjourned and Governor Johnson ought to be satisfied with things, even if the people ain't.

A Really Good Man.

Harper's Magazine: When a certain dusky citizen of Richmond took steps to obtain admission to a secret society in that city he found, to his dismay, that many obstacles were being interposed by those hostile to his initiation into the said organization.

He sought and gained from the proper officers an opportunity to refute certain statements regarding the character of himself and members of his family. In a fine burst of indignation the applicant said, among other things:

"Gents I am a good man. All my people is good people. Why, my brother-in-law is sich a good man that he got outer the penitentiary eight months befo' his time was up."

Unanswerable.

New York Times: Mrs. Newthought, who is one of the sect that finds no evil and no ills in life, has a maid who sleeps at her own home. One morning she failed to materialize, and, upon being questioned as to the cause of her absence, gave as an excuse that her father was very sick with rheumatism of the heart.

"But, Mary," exclaimed her mistress, "there is no such thing as rheumatism. Your father only thinks he is ill."

"Yes, mum," agreed Mary.

Several days later Mary again failed to put in an appearance. The following morning she took up her duties as usual, but gave no excuse. As an opening to a reprimand, her mistress said:

"I suppose it was your father again, Mary. Does he still think he is ill?"

"No, no mum," said Mary, wearily, "he thinks now he's dead—we're goin' to bury him tomorrer."

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE HERALD'S PROSPERITY EDITION.

Showing Is Encouraging.

Stillwater Gazette: The Duluth Herald has just issued a prosperity edition of ninety-six pages. Judging by the facts set forth by that excellent newspaper, it is well named. The showing made by The Herald is very encouraging, not only to the people in that immediate vicinity, but it can be extended so as to take in the entire Northwest. We are living in a section of the country where there is less suffering and more happiness and prosperity than any other in the United States.

Was a Hummer.

Pine City Pine Poker: The ninety-six-page "prosperity edition" of The Duluth Evening Herald was a hummer.

Very Well Prepared.

Superior Telegram: The Duluth Herald has just issued a "prosperity edition" of ninety-six pages, including a Superior section. It is a very well prepared and comprehensive edition, similar to the ninety-six page special edition issued by the Telegram last August. It is a big advertising venture and has evidently required a great amount of careful work. The work, both editorially and in a business way, was under the direction and management of John A. Monger of Superior, who is widely known as being very successful in work of this kind. He has amply "made good" on this special edition of The Herald, and has evidently taken care that Superior should have a proper showing.

Splendidly Gotten Up.

Winona Republican Herald: The Duluth Herald, rejoicing over the defeat of the tonnage tax bill, and generally elated with the outlook before the iron country, issued last Thursday a prosperity edition of ninety-six pages that showed prosperity and enterprise on every page. It was splendidly gotten up, and as an advertisement for Duluth and the country of which it is the metropolis, it will prove invaluable. Publicity is what builds cities and The Herald is doing its share to make Duluth one of the big cities of Minnesota and the Northwest.

The Finest Specimen Yet.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The Duluth Evening Herald, on Thursday put out a paper containing ninety-six pages and it was about the finest specimen of an up-to-date daily newspaper that has ever been issued in Minnesota. The edition was devoted exclusively to the achievements and possibilities of St. Louis county and it will not fall short of doing a powerful lot of good. The Herald is a newspaper that the people of St. Louis county can always bank on.

Takes First Rank.

St. Cloud Times: The Duluth Herald, which is the peer of any of the "three cities" dailies, issued a "Prosperity Edition," on April 30, consisting of ninety-six pages, which takes first rank among all the "specials" ever sent out of a Minnesota newspaper office. To describe it would require a column of space. Suffice to say, it covered every interest, railroad, lake, river, mining, commercial and manufacturing in which Duluth and the lake region is interested. We congratulate Manager Welles on his achievement. It is one of which he, as well as the coming First City of Minnesota may well be proud.

Certainly a Hummer.

Floodwood Broadaxe: The prosperity edition of the Duluth Evening Herald, issued last Thursday in magazine form and containing ninety-six pages was certainly a hummer. Such truthful and painstaking effort on the part of The Herald to set forth the many advantages possessed by Duluth and Northeastern Minnesota, should prove a great ad for this part of the state and our people are to be congratulated upon having a paper like The Herald to so ably set forth what a great city Duluth really is, and how well she is surrounded by mineral and agricultural wealth.

Most Comprehensive Ever.

Cass Lake Times: The Duluth Evening Herald of the 30th ult. is probably the largest and most comprehensive newspaper edition ever published in the state. It covers the ground of a large portion of Northwestern Wisconsin and the whole of Northern Minnesota in a manner that has never before been attempted by any of our state papers. The matter is well assorted and carefully selected and every section under consideration has been fully and tactfully described. The business men of the two Head of the Lakes cities have subscribed liberally in giving publicity to their undertakings, and some of the finest scenery of the world has been truthfully depicted. The Times congratulates The Herald on its enterprise and its careful delineations of the region of the Northwest, which is now rapidly coming to the front to occupy the proud position it the world's greatest entrepot.

Always Attractive.

Moorhead News: The Duluth Herald, always an attractive publication, comes to hand this morning as a 96-page issue.

"Herald Has No Superior."

Rochester Post and Record: There have been many special editions printed by newspapers in this state, but none has exceeded the Prosperity edition of The Duluth Evening Herald, issued Friday morning. It consists of ninety-six pages of well selected matter and advertisements, and the city of Duluth is exhibited in brilliant, but not overdone colors. It is an edition of which the city and publishers may be justifiably proud. The every-day Duluth Herald is one of the brightest newsiest and most ably edited papers printed in the West. It certainly has no superior.

"Is Going Some."

Litchfield Independent: The Duluth Herald last Thursday got out a "prosperity edition" of ninety-six pages. That is going some for a paper in a town of the size of Duluth to print a paper of 672 columns of matter. The Herald is fully up to any of the Twin City papers for contents and size.

Splendid Example of Enterprise.

Albert Lea Times-Enterprise: The Duluth Evening Herald of April 29 is a splendid example of modern newspaper enterprise, and reflects great credit upon the metropolis of the North. It contained ninety-six pages of delightfully told tales of the achievements of her people, painted glowing pictures of the future, and carried conviction to our soul that of all places on earth, Duluth is strictly It.

"Big, Bright, Breezy Bundle."

Aitkin Age: The prosperity edition of The Duluth Herald last Thursday was a big, bright, breezy bundle of ninety-six pages filled with the achievements of Duluth, Superior and the tributary northland. It was a hummer, with plenty of evidence of the prosperity it heralded, and we are pleased to note that the outlying counties were given a great deal of consideration.

Duluth's Prosperity Is Mine.

Cambridge Independent Press: When The Duluth Evening Herald gets again and sets out to present its readers with a summary of the actualities and possibilities of its home city it does not economize on pulp paper. Its prosperity edition of last Thursday is of ninety-six pages, every one of which is redolent of the prosperity it so successfully seeks to make plain to all the world outside its home city. The people of Duluth themselves need, of course, no evidence outside of what they know and feel by personal contact with the vigorous activities within their own walls. We dwellers of a hundred miles away, with no special inducement to blow our own horn, are more than willing to join with the Duluthians in extolling the greatness of the big town at the Head of the Lakes. We are connected with it by one of the best railways in the state, and are closely tied to it in many ways. The growth of Duluth helps our growth, and we are grateful to The Herald for telling us all about it in the most approved newspaper style.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—"Girls."

"Girls."

Clyde Fitch, whose fiftieth play, a comedy called "Girls," will be the attraction at the Lyceum tonight and Saturday matinee and night, has had an interesting time of it since he began writing for the stage. He was Richard Mansfield's secretary when he wrote "Beau Brummel," his first attempt at play-writing, and his success was the more remarkable as he was then a slim young man in his early twenties.

Following this play, in which Mr Mansfield was so successful, he wrote his "Cruz de Grammont," and "Frederick Lomantre," both of which made successes. But for some unknown and unaccountable reason the managers, who had so warmly greeted the young playwright, suddenly became wary, and for eight years he besieged their offices in vain. Finally he prevailed upon a manager to produce "The Moth and the Flame," and from that time on Mr. Fitch has steadily gained in popularity, until now he has furnished the Shuberts with "Girls," which has enjoyed a longer New York run than any comedy attraction ever offered the playgoers of the metropolis.

Mr. Fitch provided Ethel Barrymore with a congenial vehicle when he wrote "Captain Jinks" and "Lovers' Lane," and "The Girl and the Judge" are listed among his favorite efforts. "The Girl With the Green Eyes" and "The Truth" were both received warmly, and Clara Bloodgood gained much of her standing as an actress in these two pieces.

Some of Mr. Fitch's flat failures are of recent times. His "Toddles" and "The House of Mirth," both failed to reach the goal of success. "Wolfville" was another unfortunate affair. "Cousin Billy," "Granny," "Glad of It," and several other comedies, lived short lives.

WAS CLOTHED IN GAUZY TUNIC

New York, May 6.—Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden's pink stockinged feet twinkled in a burst of speed that carried her completely around the stage and fluttered the gauzy folds of her claret colored tunic, as with a final gasp she sank at the base of the altar of Bacchus.

She lay there with one hand pressed against her forehead, her eyelids drooping, her leafy chaplet bobbing, and nothing that the audience could do could make her abandon that last picture. For many curtain calls she held it, unmindful of the clamor across the footlights.

It was the end of Mrs. Burden's Bacchante dance and the last number of the Greek pageant of Bacchanalia, which had been arranged to draw the crowds, and the right sort of crowds, to the bazar of the Manhattan Trade School for Girls at 209 East Twenty-third street.

It was all quiet and unexciting at first. Her arms swaying with a willowy downward sweep, her feet timing to the murmurings of the orchestra. Thrown across one shoulder was a leopard skin and the draperies beneath it left her arms and shoulders bare. Above her knees the flowing skirts were caught up with a cord of the same color, the folds below being free to follow the movements of the dance.

Gradually the music increased in volume, and with it the dance became more lively.

SIX HUNDRED WOMEN DEAD.

Drowned or Were Burned in Fire on Chinese Houseboats.

Canton, May 7.—Terrible scenes were witnessed here on the occasion of the recent disastrous fire on the native pleasure boats. A large number of these craft, which are of the native houseboat variety, were moored together, and at the time of the disaster several hundred persons were on board. An overturned lamp seems to have been responsible for the outbreak.

With great rapidity the flames spread from one craft to another, and soon after the alarm was raised one of the planks connecting the boats with the river bank became displaced in the rush, thus cutting off the means of escape of hundreds of people. The majority of these jumped into the water, but comparatively few appear to have been rescued.

No fewer than 600 women are reported to have been drowned or burned to death. Among the dead were several prominent Cantonese, including three Taotais and the manager of the Great China bank. A large quantity of valuable jewelry is said to have been taken from the bodies of victims by fishermen.

ENORMOUS IVORY TUSK

Of a Mastodon Is Found on Banks of Allegheny River.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 7.—The pure ivory tusk of a mastoden has been found on the banks of the Allegheny river, a few miles from Pittsburg, and it is said to be the largest in existence. It is 9 feet 4 inches in length, 26 inches in circumference at its thickest part and weighs 295 pounds. The Carnegie museum will take the tusk.

FROM A LORD'S SON

The "Pearl of Sheepshead Bay" Has Secured a Divorce.

New York, May 7.—After a year's marriage Supreme Court Justice Gerard has signed the final decree of divorce for Roberta Hill from Capt. Arthur A. Hill, a son of Lord Arthur Hill of England. The decree states that Mrs. Hill may marry again, but Capt. Hill is forbidden to marry within the lifetime of his wife. She was known as the "Pearl of Sheepshead Bay." She was the divorced wife of Halsey Corwin, a young Brooklyn millionaire. Witnesses testified that the captain had registered in two hotels with different women.

PRINCESS LOUISE'S TRUNKS AND CLOTHING SEIZED.

Paris, May 7.—In default of an arrangement for the payment of a hotel bill, the trunks and clothing of Princess Louise of Belgium, which have been seized, will be sold in accordance with a court order. The princess offered to make a certain payment monthly, and claims that she was overcharged.

PER CAPITA COST OF CITY GOVERNMENT IN DULUTH

Comparative tables of figures showing the cost of running the city during 1908, prepared by City Comptroller McCormick and published in a little book gotten out under his direction, contain some interesting items.

A table showing the per capita cost of the city government last year itemizes the different department expenses and gives the amount each person is supposed to contribute to the support of these different departments. The figures are based on a population of 85,000.

Each person in the city, for example, on this basis, contributes $.0371 to the salary of the mayor, $.0756 to the salary of the comptroller, $.0519 to the salary of the city treasurer, $.1277 to the legal department and $.1294 to the board of public works.

The per capita tax for the maintenance of the aerial ferry amounts to $.1444, and elections for a whole year cost each person in the city $.1176, or would cost each person that amount if the cost were assessed directly against them.

The police department costs $.8965 for each person; the health department, $.1121; the municipal court, $.1702; public library, $.2103; fire department, $1.4635; bridges, docks and viaducts, $.4473; lighting of streets, $.4061; maintenance of streets, $.5253; maintenance of sewers, $.1352.

The per capita cost of the entire city government for the year was $8.56.

ROOSEVELT WOULD HAVE JAPS MAKE FIRST MOVE TO CURB IMMIGRATION

New York, May 7.—Former President Roosevelt declares in an article in this week's Outlook that it is the duty of America to wait and see whether Japan succeeds in preventing the immigration to this country of any appreciable number of Japanese laboring and small trading classes. If Japan fails, he writes, this government must protect itself by treaty or legislation, but he adds:

"It would be doubly incumbent upon us to take the action in the way that would provoke the least possible friction and cause the least possible hard feeling."

Although he asserts the Americans have the right to say what immigrants shall come to their shores, they are powerless to enforce that right against any nation that chooses to disregard their wishes unless "we continue to build up and maintain a first-class fighting navy."

At Mercy of Nations.

The professional peace advocate, he continues, who opposed the upbuilding of the navy would place the United States where it would be at the mercy of any nation which wished to disregard its desires to control immigration, protect the Panama canal, or take a stand for international honor or righteousness.

Mr. Roosevelt adds that "those well meaning but fatuous advocates of peace, who would try to prevent the upbuilding of our navy utterly misread the temper of their countrymen." America would fight, he says, whether prepared or not, and "all the peace advocates could do would be to prevent this country from being successful in war."

Mr. Roosevelt is not unsparing in his praise of the Japanese. He characterizes them as "a highly civilized people of extraordinary military, artistic and industrial developments; they are proud, warlike and sensitive," he adds, and continued:

Admiration for Japs.

"I believe that our people have, what I, personally, certainly have, a profound and hearty admiration for them; an admiration for their great deeds and great qualities, and ungrudging respect for the national character. But this admiration and respect is accompanied by the firm conviction that it is not for the advantage of either people that emigrants from either country should settle in Massachusetts in the other country. The understanding between the two countries on this point should be on the basis of entire mutuality, and therefore on a basis which will preserve unimpaired the self-respect of each country, and permit each to feel with kindly good will toward the other."

Col. Roosevelt, in his article, says that only the national government can carry out such a policy effectively, adding: "The surest way to do harm is for state, municipal or other local governments to pass laws which would be ineffective to obtain the real object and yet would produce intense irritation. The best of all possible ways in which to achieve the object is that which the governments of the two countries have now by common agreement adopted; for the Japanese government has, on its own initiative and of its own accord, undertaken to prevent the coming hither in any appreciable numbers of Japanese of the classes to which I have referred. This agreement during the last year or thereabouts has worked so well that actually more Japanese have left the country than have come into it, and it has therefore been a diminution of their numbers. If this continues all difficulties will cease without the need of further action, whether by treaty or by legislation."

EXCURSION TO NAVAL BASE.

German Navy League Is Encouraging Naval Education.

Berlin, May 7.—One of the chief objects of the active and aggressive German Navy league is to educate the inhabitants of inland towns in naval matters and encourage them to travel coastwards for a look at the Fatherland's naval power in the shape of ships, harbors and coast defenses. With this end in view, the league announces two great excursions at popular prices during the coming summer. One, to last from June 16 to 20, will start from Berlin and take in Hamburg, Bremen, Heligoland and Wilhelmshaven.

Inclusive of railway and hotel accommodations, meals, lodging and so on, a third-class rate of $17.50 and a second-class of $19.50 have been arranged. A second trip, lasting seven days, will be made later in June, the route lying over Friedrichsruhe, Hamburg, Kiel, Korser, Copenhagen, Malmo, Trelleborg and Sassnitz. This excursion, for which the third and second-class rates are $28.75 and $31.25 respectively, will enable the participants to attend the great "Kiel week," when the annual yachting regatta and review of the German war fleet by the kaiser take place.

BACK TO SCHOOL DAYS

Dates the Romance of Ohio Woman Pastor in Lynn.

Boston, Mass., May 7.—Rev. Mary A. Miars of Wilmington, Ohio, is not only to sever her connection with the Sigsbee Quaker church at Lynn, Mass., of which she has been the pastor for ten years, but will in June become a bride.

Miss Miars will leave for her home town next month, where the groom is understood to be a prosperous business man.

The romance is said to be of many years' duration, dating back to school days in Wilmington.

TURNS OVER MANSION

To Salvation Army for Use of Sick Babies During Summer.

McKeesport, Pa., May 7.—W. C. Cronmeyer, the tin-plate king, has made an official tender to the Salvation Army of his twelve-room mansion, in Highland Grove, a suburb, for the use of sick babies during the coming summer. Some time since the army published a notice that it desired to have a home for sick babies all the summer, and that any rich man having a house to offer, rent free, would be welcomed.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

LINN HITS LAWMAKERS

President of Tri-County Educational Association Speaks Out.

North Dakotan Says Senate Obstructionists Hurt Rural Schools.

Grafton, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual meeting of the Tri-County Educational association opened here this morning with a large attendance. The morning session was devoted chiefly to the enrollment of delegates, while they were also assigned to their places of abode during their residence in Grafton for the convention.

The afternoon session opened with music, which was followed by an address of welcome on behalf of the citizens of Grafton and given by Mayor W. W. Reylock. He extended to the educators the entire freedom of the city, and wished them every success in their meeting.

This address was followed by President Louis B. Linn of the association, and in his annual address he took up a number of very important propositions.

In speaking of the rural schools, he took occasion to give the North Dakota legislature a hard rub on its treatment of the bills which provided for appropriations for the aid of the schools. This bill called for $50,000 for the rural schools of the state, and Mr. Linn claims that its death was brought about by the obstructionists in the senate.

He also took occasion to laud the action of the legislature in providing for the model high school department at the university, which will probably be one of the most popular departments of the institution.

The address to be given by President F. L. McVey of the state university this evening promises to attract a great deal of attention. A public reception will be given for him.

INDIANS GIVEN MONEY.

Government Disburses Large Sum at Red Lake Agency.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A government payment has just been made at Red Lake agency to some eighty Indians on account of the sale of eleven townships near here, formerly included in the reservation, and which is an annuity of $26.50 pending the completion of the sale of the lands and final settlement. The payment was made to every Indian 18 years old and over, similar amounts for every soul paid each and after his or her eighteenth birthday. It was fairly quiet except that business was brisk for several days at the stores—four at Red Lake, four at Redby and one at Ponemah.

A council of chiefs and other prominent graves was held recently to take action to secure the immediate payment and distribution of the money for the 2,500,000 feet of logs cut last winter on the reservation a mile east of Redby by E. O. Moore & Co. of Bemidji for the Thief River Lumber company.

TAFT ASKED TO STOP MASSACRES

State Sunday School Association Urges President to Act.

Crookston, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fifty-first annual convention of the State Sunday School association came to a close with the twin meetings last evening in the M. E. and Baptist churches.

The convention, despite the fact that it was held in one corner of the state, was one of the most largely attended and enthusiastic gatherings ever held by the association in the state. Yesterday afternoon was devoted to conferences of teachers and superintendents, with round table discussions following addresses by many prominent men.

The usual resolutions thanking the public and press, churches, etc., were passed, together with a special resolution asking President Taft to use his good offices to prevent any future recurrence of the massacres of Armenians.

THREE DRILLS TO BEGIN WORK

T. F. Cole Exploration Company Starts Operations in Crow Wing.

Brainerd, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Drills have now been started on the recently discovered line of iron attraction west of the Mississippi river.

Three drills were recently shipped here by the T. F. Cole Exploration company. Of these one will be placed on section 23-134-28, near the station at Leak. One will be operated on section 1-135-29, about three miles straight west of Brainerd. The third will be used for further explorations upon section 32-45-30, the section upon which the Iver Benson, Toger Peterson and Cameron farms are situated.

LAGGARD LOVER MADE DEFENDANT

Rich East Grand Forks Man Said to Have Broken Promise.

Crookston, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Papers have been filed in a $25,000 suit, in which Miss Nellie Rogers of East Grand Forks claims that amount in damages for the failure of Charles Hanson to keep an alleged promise to marry her.

She alleges that they have been "keeping company" for the past nine years, and that he set the wedding date for June, 1905, but postponed it from time to time, and finally refused to marry her at all. It was not till three years after they had been engaged that she discovered that he was a married man. Hanson is wealthy, and is agent for the Val Blatz Brewing company at East Grand Forks. He left Tuesday for a trip to Norway, but the papers were served on him as he crossed into Minnesota from Fargo. The case promises to be sensational.

NEARLY DROWNED IN MISSISSIPPI

Bemidji Power House Man Breaks Through Ice Crossing Stream.

Bemidji, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Hickerson, a night watchman at the power house of the Beltrami Electric Light & Power company on the Mississippi river, five miles east of Bemidji, had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday.

Hickerson was walking up the river, about a mile from the dam, when he started to cross on the ice to the other side. The ice is in a very unsafe condition and when he reached the middle of the river it gave way beneath him and it was only by clinging to the ice with a stick, which he had been carrying, that he was able to keep from being swept down the river.

Hickerson shouted again and again and as the wind happened to be blowing towards her farmhouse a half mile away, Mrs. Albert Brewer ran to the dam, half a mile away and notified men who hastened to the river just in time to save Hickerson, who had been in the water for three hours.

Hickerson was almost frozen and unable to speak. He was taken to the power house and wrapped in blankets. He will recover.

AN INHUMAN MOTHER.

Gave Baby Beer and Cigarettes and Judge Granted Divorce.

St. Paul, Minn., May 7.—The story of a mother, who every morning "rushed the can" for beer, and when her baby cried for needed attention, rolled a cigarette and gave it to the little one to keep it quiet, or sometimes gave a glass of beer to the baby for the same purpose, was told to Judge Oscar Hallam in the district court.

Mrs. Bessie McVey told the court she had seen these things. She was testifying in the action for divorce brought by Timothy G. Leahy against Hattie Leahy, and credited the wife with having done the things described above. Mrs. McVey was corroborated by a number of other women, who were neighbors of the Leahys.

Judge Hallam promptly granted a divorce for drunkenness.

SHERIFF SEEKS RAISE.

Morrison County Officer Will Appeal to the Court.

Little Falls, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sheriff Frank Armstrong has appealed to Judge Taylor at St. Cloud from the action of the Morrison county board, in refusing his petition for an increase in salary. He asked for an increase to $1,700 per annum.

The salary which is now given the sheriff is $1,100 a year. In addition to this he is allowed all expenses and has free rent, occupying the living rooms in the county jail. His deputy is also paid by the county. The board, after considering the request, rejected it, believing that the officer now draws sufficient compensation.

One of the commissioners figured that from the expenses allowed the sheriff, and with the free rent, that officer now clears $1,450 a year.

Mr. Armstrong served notice on the board that he will appeal the case and take it to district court, before Judge Taylor. The case will be heard by the judge May 12, at St. Cloud.

IN WINONA IN JUNE.

Annual Meet of Underwriters of Dakotas and Minnesota.

Winona, Minn., May 7.—The annual meeting of the board of Underwriters of Minnesota and the Dakotas will be held in Winona at the end of July, probably opening on Tuesday, July 20. This was determined at a meeting of the executive committee of the organization held at Minneapolis this week. At this meeting a committee was appointed to make the necessary arrangements for the convention and this committee will meet in Winona at the end of this month.

It is made up of the following members: James L. King, Minneapolis, adjuster of the Pennsylvania Fire Insurance company; W. A. Baumann, Winona, general agent of the Boston Insurance company; George C. Mott, St. Paul, Northwestern adjuster for the New York Underwriters; W. J. Tipperary, state agent for North Dakota of the Aetna company; F. C. Mannen, Minneapolis, adjuster of the Firemen's Fund Insurance company; John C. Stafford, Minneapolis, state agent of the London & Lancashire company.

The convention will bring to Winona from 100 to 125 of the biggest men now in the insurance field.

BIG ESCANABA PLANT.

Woodenware Concern There Said to Be Largest in Woorld.

Escanaba, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The woodenware plant of the Escanaba Manufacturing company here is said to be the largest industrial plant of its kind in the world. Its daily output is 1,500,000 butter dishes and 750,000 clothespins. The plant gives employment directly to 500 people and indirectly to several hundred more.

Twenty-seven thousand feet of hardwood logs are required each day, and the process by which this amount of timber is converted into the finished products is an exceedingly interesting one. As far as possible, machinery is employed. The president of the operating concern is M. B. Wallace of St. Louis, Mo. An veneer manufactory is to be established at Escanaba by the same interests and will go into commission by Dec. 1. The plant will be a big one, and will give work to a large force of employes.

ONE DEER PER HUNTER.

Proposed Law That Will Protect Game in Upper Michigan.

Marquette, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Should legislation now pending at Lansing be enacted, as is very likely, the annual slaughter of deer in Michigan will be much curtailed.

It is proposed to limit the killing to one deer to each hunter. A bill to that effect has been reported out by the house game committee, of which Representative Charles McCabe of this city is a member, and, in the opinion of Mr. McCabe, who is here for a few days, the measure will go through. The bill also provides for a $1 gun license, to be paid by all persons who shoot protected birds.

TOO MANY SALOONS.

Retiring Ishpeming Liquorman Says City Needs Less.

Marquette, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Retiring from the liquor business, a saloon keeper at Ishpeming delivers himself of the opinion that there are more than twice as many saloons in that city as there ought to be, if the men in the business are going to get any reward for the work they put into it otherwise than a rather indifferent living. Fifteen saloons, he says, would be an amply sufficient number for the city, and a number that would permit the proprietors to make a reasonable amount of money. There are now some forty or fifty.

STOMACH PUMP SAVES WOULD-BE SUICIDE.

Brainerd, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thomas Benda attempted to kill himself Tuesday afternoon by taking carbolic acid. He had, according to reports, been drinking and upon reaching home had had trouble with his wife, after which he went to the barn and took carbolic acid. He was found soon after and Doctors Nicholson and Magnusson were summoned, who administered emetics and used a stomach pump, with such good effect that he was soon considered out of danger.

ANDY JONES LOCATED?

Federal Authorities Reported to Know Where Ex-Banker Is.

Rugby, N. D., May 7.—It is currently reported that the government officials have located Andy Jones, former president of the Rugby National bank, which closed its doors recently.

Mr. Jones disappeared from Rugby before the bank crash came, and it has been generally supposed that the officials were unsuccessful in locating him. It is claimed now, however, that the federal officials know where Andy is, and that they are merely waiting for the proper time to act.

Jones is not in the United States, but he is in a place where he can be reached very easily. It is said that the officials expect no trouble in getting him when the proper time comes.

ADMITS SELLING LIQUOR.

North Dakotan Throws Himself Open By Pleading Guilty.

Fargo, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Admitting that he sold liquor without a government license, Reuben Norton of Wahpeton was sentenced by Judge Amidon of the United States court to serve thirty days in jail and to pay a fine of $100.

Andy Ryan of Wyndmere had a license, but had not posted it according to the regulations. He escaped with a small fine.

BANK TELLER INDICTED.

Employe of Minneapolis Bank Facing a Charge of Grand Larceny.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 7.—Ellis W. Niles, the accused receiving teller of the First National Bank of Minneapolis, was indicted yesterday afternoon by the Hennepin county grand jury on a charge of grand larceny in the first degree.

Niles is accused of having embezzled nearly $28,000 from the bank. Of this amount about $9,000 has been returned.

Today and Yesterday.

Changes in What We Wear and What We Eat.

The steamship replaced the sailing vessel, the electric light succeeded the oil lamps, and we have no need, nor desire to "trade back." Our health is just as good and we can crowd that much more work and play into the day of twenty-four hours.

Foods have changed, too. Corn bread and wheat flour share honors with dainty yet substantial "prepared foods."

People now realize the necessity of stomach care. They eat more fruit and green stuffs and cereals and the health is better for it.

The old fashioned breakfast of "beefsteak, potatoes and bread" or "bacon and eggs and muffins" are replaced by E-C Corn Flakes or Egg-O-See Wheat Flakes and fruit, and our health is better for it. All the nourishment of the grain is retained in the crisp flakes, and it's no task for the stomach.

Children grow fat on it. Invalids gain strength on it and man can do a better day's work on it than to load his stomach with meats and heavy foods. Remember always it's the "Egg-O-See" brands that are "made right." Watch for the E-C Mark on the package.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

LINN HITS LAWMAKERS

President of Tri-County Educational Association Speaks Out.

North Dakotan Says Senate Obstructionists Hurt Rural Schools.

Grafton, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual meeting of the Tri-County Educational association opened here this morning with a large attendance. The morning session was devoted chiefly to the enrollment of delegates, while they were also assigned to their places of abode during their residence in Grafton for the convention.

The afternoon session opened with music, which was followed by an address of welcome on behalf of the citizens of Grafton and given by Mayor W. W. Reyleck. He extended to the educators the entire freedom of the city, and wished them every success in their meeting.

This address was followed by President Louis P. Linn of the association, and in his annual address he took up a number of very important propositions.

In speaking of the rural schools, he took occasion to give the North Dakota legislature a hard rub on its treatment of the bills which provided for appropriations for the aid of the schools. This bill called for $50,000 for the rural schools of the state, and Mr. Linn claims that its death was brought about by the obstructionists in the senate.

He also took occasion to laud the action of the legislature in providing for the model high school department at the university, which will probably be one of the most popular departments of the institution.

The address to be given by President F. L. McVey of the state university this evening promises to attract a great deal of attention. A public reception will be given for him.

INDIANS GIVEN MONEY.

Government Disburses Large Sum at Red Lake Agency.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A government payment has just been made at Red Lake agency to some eighty Indians on account of the sale of eleven townships near here, formerly included in the reservation, and which is an annuity of $26.50 pending the completion of the sale of the lands and final settlement. The payment was made to every Indian 18 years old and over, similar amounts for every soul paid each and after his or her eighteenth birthday. It was fairly quiet except that business was brisk for several days at the stores—four at Red Lake, four at Redby and one at Ponemah.

A council of chiefs and other prominent graves was held recently to take action to secure the immediate payment and distribution of the money for the 2,500,000 feet of logs cut last winter on the reservation a mile east of Redby by E. O. Moore & Co. of Bemidji for the Thief River Lumber company.

TAFT ASKED TO STOP MASSACRES

State Sunday School Association Urges President to Act.

Crookston, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fifty-first annual convention of the State Sunday School association came to a close with the twin meetings last evening in the M. E. and Baptist churches.

The convention, despite the fact that it was held in one corner of the state, was one of the most largely attended and enthusiastic gatherings ever held by the association in the state. Yesterday afternoon was devoted to conferences of teachers and superintendents, with round table discussions following addresses by many prominent men.

The usual resolutions thanking the public and press, churches, etc., were passed, together with a special resolution asking President Taft to use his good offices to prevent any future recurrence of the massacres of Armenians.

THREE DRILLS TO BEGIN WORK

T. F. Cole Exploration Company Starts Operations in Crow Wing.

Brainerd, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Drills have now been started on the recently discovered line of iron attraction west of the Mississippi river.

Three drills were recently shipped here by the T. F. Cole Exploration company. Of these one will be placed on section 23-134-28, near the station at Leak. One will be operated on section 1-133-29, about three miles straight west of Brainerd. The third will be used for further explorations upon section 32-45-30, the section upon which the Iver Benson, Toger Peterson and Cameron farms are situated.

LAGGARD LOVER MADE DEFENDANT

Rich East Grand Forks Man Said to Have Broken Promise.

Crookston, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Papers have been filed in a $25,000 suit, in which Miss Nellie Rogers of East Grand Forks claims that amount in damages for the failure of Charles Hanson to keep an alleged promise to marry her.

She alleges that they have been "keeping company" for the past nine years, and that he set the wedding date for June, 1905, but postponed it from time to time, and finally refused to marry her at all. It was not till three years after they had been engaged that she discovered that he was a married man. Hanson is wealthy, and is agent for the Val Blatz Brewing company at East Grand Forks. He left Tuesday for a trip to Norway, but the papers were served on him as he crossed into Minnesota from Fargo. The case promises to be sensational.

NEARLY DROWNED IN MISSISSIPPI

Bemidji Power House Man Breaks Through Ice Crossing Stream.

Bemidji, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Hickerson, a night watchman at the power house of the Beltrami Electric Light & Power company on the Mississippi river, five miles east of Bemidji, had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday.

Hickerson was walking up the river, about a mile from the dam, when he started to cross on the ice to the other side. The ice is in a very unsafe condition and when he reached the middle of the river it gave way beneath him and it was only by clinging to the ice with a stick, which he had been carrying, that he was able to keep from being swept down the river.

Hickerson shouted again and again and as the wind happened to be blowing towards her farmhouse a half mile away, Mrs. Albert Brewer ran to the dam, half a mile away and notified two who hastened to the river just in time to save Hickerson, who had been in the water for three hours.

Hickerson was almost frozen and unable to speak. He was taken to the power house and wrapped in blankets. He will recover.

AN INHUMAN MOTHER.

Gave Baby Beer and Cigarettes and Judge Granted Divorce.

St. Paul, Minn., May 7.—The story of a mother, who every morning "rushed the can" for beer, and when her baby cried for needed attention, rolled a cigarette and gave it to the little one to keep it quiet, or sometimes gave a glass of beer to the baby for the same purpose, was told to Judge Oscar Hallam in the district court.

Mrs. Bessie McVey told the court she had seen these things. She was testifying in the action for divorce brought by Timothy G. Leahy against Hattie Leahy, and credited the wife with having done the things described above. Mrs. McVey was corroborated by a number of other women, who were neighbors of the Leahys.

Judge Hallam promptly granted a divorce for drunkenness.

SHERIFF SEEKS RAISE.

Morrison County Officer Will Appeal to the Court.

Little Falls, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sheriff Frank Armstrong has appealed to Judge Taylor at St. Cloud from the action of the Morrison county board, in refusing his petition for an increase in salary. He asked for an increase to $1,700 per annum.

The salary which is now given the sheriff is $1,100 a year. In addition to this he is allowed all expenses and has free rent, occupying the living rooms in the county jail. His deputy is also paid by the county. The board, after considering the request, rejected it, believing that the officer now draws sufficient compensation.

One of the commissioners figured that from the expenses allowed the sheriff, and with the free rent, that officer now clears $1,280 a year.

Mr. Armstrong served notice on the board that he will appeal the case and take it to district court, before Judge Taylor. The case will be heard by the Judge May 12, at St. Cloud.

IN WINONA IN JUNE.

Annual Meet of Underwriters of Dakotas and Minnesota.

Winona, Minn., May 7.—The annual meeting of the board of Underwriters of Minnesota and the Dakotas will be held in Winona at the end of July, probably opening on Tuesday, July 20. This was determined at a meeting of the executive committee of the organization held at Minneapolis this week. At this meeting a committee was appointed to make the necessary arrangements for the convention and this committee will meet in Winona at the end of this month.

It is made up of the following members: James L. King, Minneapolis, adjuster of the Pennsylvania Fire Insurance company; W. A. Baumann, Winona, general agent of the Boston Insurance company; George C. Mott, St. Paul, Northwestern adjuster for the New York Underwriters; W. J. Tipperary, state agent for North Dakota of the Aetna company; F. C. Mannern, Minneapolis, adjuster of the Firemen's Fund Insurance company; John C. Stafford, Minneapolis, state agent of the London & Lancashire company.

The convention will bring to Winona from 100 to 125 of the biggest men now in the insurance field.

BIG ESCANABA PLANT.

Neche, N. D.—J. Crusey committed suicide by throwing himself into the Pembina river near Neche. Crusey was despondent over his affairs.

Hudson, S. D.—A large number of members of the society and others gathered here to attend the twenty-fourth annual convention of th First district Women's Christian Temperance union of South Dakota, which convened Tuesday and which continued in session until Thursday.

Today and Yesterday.

Changes in What We Wear and What We Eat.

The steamship replaced the sailing vessel, the electric light succeeded the oil lamps, and we have no need, nor desire to "trade back." Our health is just as good and we can crowd that much more work and play into the day of twenty-four hours.

Foods have changed, too. Corn bread and wheat flour share honors with dainty yet substantial "prepared foods."

People now realize the necessity of stomach care. They eat more fruit and green stuffs and cereals and the health is better for it.

The old fashioned breakfast of "beefsteak, potatoes and bread" or "bacon and eggs and muffins" are replaced by E-C Corn Flakes or Egg-O-See Wheat Flakes and fruit, and our health is better for it. All the nourishment of the grain is retained in the crisp flakes, and it's no task for the stomach.

Children grow fat on it. Invalids gain strength on it and man can do a better day's work on it than to load his stomach with meats and heavy foods. Remember always it's the "Egg-O-See' brands that are "made right." Watch for the E-C Mark on the package.

"THE HOME OF GOOD CLOTHES."

NO SQUASH, SAYS KING

To Attend Drexel Housewarming, But Protests Against Crowd.

Mrs. Adair's Four Tons of Excess Luggage Cost $1,500.

London, May 7.—Society is discussing with considerable interest the possibilities of the season. For several years the great stylish hostesses have been curiously lax in doing their duty, leaving the greater part of the burden of entertaining to American women. The prevailing idea is that we shall again have to look to the ubiquitous lady from the other side to make things festive for us during the next three months. She is truly our grand standby.

Metaphorically speaking, all eyes are centered just now on the Drexel mansion in Grosvenor square, where, if half what is said comes true, will take place the most brilliant ball of the season—the much talked of housewarming. The date fixed for it is in June and several royalties, including the king, have promised to put in an appearance. It was to have come off sooner, but was postponed to facilitate matters for the royalties, so many of whom have been out of England during the spring. The Drexels are given to having squashes; nevertheless, they are very aristocratic squashes. Only the immediate royal set will be invited to meet the king at the great event in June, his majesty objecting greatly to a crowd when he chooses to go to his friends' parties. Every house in Grosvenor square is a palace on a small scale, but the Drexels' new residence is universally pronounced the most superb in the quarter. It is one of the few private residences, which has a ballroom floor suspended on chains. There is a gallery for the musicians—a private band of picked players from the finest orchestras in London. Mr. Drexel employs the performers for his own exclusive use the whole year round.

Mrs. Drexel is also to be among the great concert-givers. These functions will take place in her wonderful music room, which contains a specimen of almost every modern and antique instrument of any interest. The concerts are to be after the manner of those given by Mr. Astor and Mrs. Mackay in Carlton House terrace, with the names of half a dozen stars of the Melba and Caruso order on the program.

Cora, Lady Stafford, will give yet another ball during the later season for her daughter and niece. The one she organized a couple of months ago was one of the most successful events of the before-Easter season and was a godsend to the young people for whom so little is ever done at that period.

People seem to have at last given up hope that the duchess of Roxburghe will do anything. She grows more and more exclusive and reserved and may now be said to recognize only the royal set. She is more aristocratic in her notions than the Roxburghes themselves, which is saying a great deal. For Americans who are not on the royal visiting list she has no use whatever. Altogether she is an American after the heart of the princess of Wales, whose great friend she is. The duchess of Roxburghe always gives a series of the most chic and aristocratic little dinners each season, either at a swagger hotel or some great mansion which she rents.

• • •

Mr. Selfridge is often the first man in the great Oxford street shop in the morning, and frequently the last person on the premises at night. His appearance has proved somewhat embarrassing to some of his personal friends who do not know whether he wishes to be recognized by them or not. A little woman who met him at a dinner party a week ago told me she went to the shop the other morning to buy a cheap little hat, never dreaming for a moment that she would come in contact with the millionaire. Lo and behold, there he was and she thought she had better wish him the time of day. He came right up to her and asked what she wanted. She is anything but well off and she promptly said, "I want a cheap hat." Thinking her "cheap" meant a hat for two or three guineas, he said, "You are in luck, for we have only just opened a consignment of Paris models this morning."

"My dear man," she answered, "I can't afford a Paris model; a guinea is my price." "All right," he said laughingly; "come and find me and you shall have your guinea's worth." "But, you mustn't waste your time for me," she said. He rejoined that she need not worry about his time. He waited while she was being served; told her what he thought suited her and what did not. She ended by taking what he suggested.

"I did not know from Adam what it was really like or how I looked in it," she said, "but when it did come home, I found it suited me A. 1."

Mrs. Adair and her popular niece, Nellie Post, received an ovation from their friends on their return home from their long trip. Within forty-eight hours of their arrival the queen and her sister, the empress dowager of Russia, and every other friend of theirs had called at Adair place.

Mrs. Adair had to pay nearly $1,500 for excess luggage. It weighed quite four tons. She is only receiving it now, as the custom officials could not get it examined sooner, because of the holidays, during which they were exceptionally busy. It includes some exquisite bric-a-brac, quantities of Japanese and Chinese furniture, curios, wonderful lyories and goodness knows what else. The kimonos which she and Nellie Post were presented with by Oriental potentates are said to be ravishingly beautiful. Wondrous embroideries of matchless coloring and amazing workmanship decorate them. Every woman who has seen them, has broken the tenth commandment again and again. One which Miss Post values especially is of a primrose silk en fabrie, hand-painted by a great Japanese artist with butterflies, while spots of golden thread throw up the general effect. The whole scheme is worked out in tones of gold and orange and it is here you see how extraordinary gifted the Japs are in the art of getting results with one color and its shadings.

GOES ON A BAY RUM JAG.

Barber Drinks Nearly a Quart of It and Survives.

Vancouver, Wash., May 7.—C. C. Fuller, a tramp barber, after drinking nearly a quart of pure bay rum in one afternoon, suffered no more inconvenience than a series of fits and convulsions, and a night of disturbed slumber in the city jail. That he did not die forthwith is a mystery to the doctors of the city.

Fuller came to this city and went to work in a local shop. Business for a time was dull. Fuller discovered a quart bottle of bay rum, which had never been opened. He broke the seal. One drink got lonesome and called for another. In a short time Fuller was seized with convulsions. He ran out of the shop to the street and fell on the pavement. He recovered in jail.

WOULD BE ADOPTED

Young Frenchman Asks Popular Pianist to Be His Father.

Colony of Over 150 Lilliputians Has Arrived in Paris.

Paris May 7.—Most popular pianists are fed up with admiration and are tired of proposals of marriage. But M. Paul Pugno has had an offer which must be new even to him and to other virtuosi beloved of the public. A son is proposed to him in pressing terms. In fact, the would-be son, who is just 21, proposes himself. The dream of his life is that M. Pugno should become his father. He heard M. Pugno play the pianoforte, and then and there made up his mind that he would be no other man's son.

"My father," he wrote, "died eight years ago. I ask you to be so very good as to adopt me. I love you, and should be delighted to have you for a father. I am 21. If you agree to become my father I will in return act as your servant without wages. Please have me fetched as soon as possible. You will never regret it. I repeat that if you adopt me I will be your servant without wages, and I add that I know how to cook."

The offer of a son, already 21, and of an unpaid man servant who knows how to cook, rolled into one, was tempting, perhaps but embarrassing, and M. Pugno, who seems to have owed it entirely to his pianoforte playing, is understood to have regretfully declined it.

Lilliputians in Paris.

A Lilliputian colony has arrived in Paris and has taken up its abode at the Jardin d'Acclimation in the Bois de Boulogne, one of the two zoological gardens in Paris. It comprises over 150 men and women, none over twenty inches high. The novelty of the show will be that it is not a show of "freaks" in the ordinary sense. The dwarfs are not only perfectly well constituted men and women but they are, many of them, "people in society," persons of culture and quality.

"We are a trifle mixed, it is true," said the leading member of the Lilliputian company, "and there is even one negro among us."

But a number of the dwarfs are persons of good family and in good circumstances, who have never consented to exhibit themselves before, and whom only a substantial consideration has induced to figure now for the first time in a Lilliputian colony.

The leading members of the company are two brothers, Count Primo Magri and Baron Magri, both Italians. Though both about a foot high, they are full of dignity, and explain that they do not mix indiscriminately with the remainder of the colony, which includes persons of all sorts and conditions.

"The manager merely chose the smallest people he could find, you see, in all sorts of classes all over Europe," they say, "and the company therefore is mixed. Besides aristocrats like ourselves, there are peasants and menials."

The two Magris, who are aged 50 and 52 years, respectively, were a long time making up their minds to join the Lilliputian colony, and it was only a substantial offer that induced them to overcome their natural repugnance and take part in the show.

Cook Soldiers All Right.

This year's great novelty at the Paris culinary exhibit is the competition of ninety cooks with the best chefs of Paris. These regimental culinary artists have been selected from different military kitchens in Paris and the provinces by M. Cheron, the under secretary for war, who has done so much for the improvement of the conditions among soldiers.

The minister of agriculture, M. Ruau, visited the exhibit, which is held in the gardens of the Tuileries, and was received by the chairman of the committee, M. Marguery, the well-known restaurateur. The soldier cooks scored by answering questions which, by their simplicity, may have staggered many a chef.

"How many liters of water are required, and how much salt, to make a good soup for a hundred men?" they were asked; or again, "How many onions and how much spicing are required to supply 120 mess tins?"

These questions were promptly and well answered by the soldiers.

A curious scene took place in a Paris court the other day, where counsel for the defense of a certain pate, or preserved meat pie which, it was complained, had been adulterated with too much liquid offered some of it to be tasted by the judges. For this purpose he produced a plate with napkin and brand-new knife and fork, and offered some of the pate to the public prosecutor and magistrates. They smilingly declined, and an expert tasted it instead.

He reported that the pate had an indifferent taste to him, but that it did not seem to be prejudicial to health. The young barristers in the court also took their turn in tasting it, and manifested no repugnance, which seemed to justify the court in dismissing the case, with the remark that as long as it was not prejudicial to health the public might please itself and buy the pate or not.

Play Reaches Hats.

The "Chanticleer" craze has got into the hats. An elegant "coiffure" was seen this week in which a tiny cock strutted in front of the hair; behind was a brave array of cock's feathers. One wonders whether this play of Rostand's, of which all the world continues to speak, is to be a gigantic success or the other thing. Poetical mamas of the sort must either triumph or be a miserable failure—there can be no half-way house.

It is not as if the plot relied in any way upon its humor. There is humor, of course, but of the broad sort, not of the sort to attract the crowd and carry the play along almost in spite of itself. It might so easily become ludicrous. A single absurd contretemps on the stage would be sufficient to mar the effects of the most superb lines. Notwithstanding the statements that have been made, the play is far from being completed.

There still remains much to be done. It has been described by one who knows as particularly charming and beautiful.

RUINS OF BARN

Disclosed Bodies of Couple, Seen Fifteen Minutes Before Fire.

Middlebury, Ind., May 7.—Within fifteen minutes of the time Samuel Hoover, a prosperous farmer, and his wife greeted their son, who drove the cattle to pasture, their bodies were found in the smoking ruins of the barn.

Neighbors, attracted by the flames, found the house door open, but no sign of the man and woman, until they found the charred bodies in the ruins.

Coroner Stauffer, who examined the bodies, believes that the aged couple met death while attempting to extinguish the flames.

Neighbors declare that a sum of money is missing from the house, and hold that they were slain and the barn set afire to cover traces of the crime. The son has no theory to advance.

The experiment on the elevated railway lines in Chicago to eliminate noise by the use of gravel roadbed on the structure has recently been abandoned, as the gravel not only failed to reduce the noise, but held water, with injurious effects to the structure.

TO REGULATE THE HAT STYLES

Freak Bill Is Introduced in the Texas Legislature.

Austin, Tex., May 7.—An amendment to the Bill which provides for the annual appropriation for the State Industrial College for Girls, where millinery and dressmaking are taught, was offered in the house of representatives by E. C. Gaines and is still pending, providing as follows:

It is herein ordered that no part of the foregoing appropriation for the State Industrial Schools for Girls shall be available for the purposes stated if the authorities of said college shall permit any of the students in said college to be taught how to make any hat that shall cost more than $20, or any dress that shall cost more than $50, or any hat that shall cost more than 15 cents, or to make any hat that shall be more than eight inches in diameter through the crown at the base thereof, or whose said diameter shall be greater at the top or apex thereof than at the base of same, or which shall have a diameter greater than twelve inches in the clear; that is to say, from tip to tip of the brim; or has a brim which turns downward, or any hat which shall be shaped in the form of an ellipse, or in the form of a peach basket, or in the form of a bread tray, or in the form of a washbowl, or in the form of any other than a true circle, or which shall have a crown less than three inches or more than six inches in depth, or any hat which shall have upon it any bird or part of bird nor any snake or bug or parts of the same, or artificial flower which has been made by the paper sweatshop labor of Florence, Milan or Naples, nor shall any part of this appropriation be used for the purpose of teaching said students how to make sheath gowns and no persons who shall be entitled to receive instructions at said college or teach therein while attending such college, shall wear any hat, rat or dress which is interdicted by the spans herein contained.

CHOIR SINGER STOLE HEART

Of Insurance Man and His Wife Sues for Divorce.

Omaha, Neb., May 7.—Mrs. Raphael Van Wie of Omaha, who with her husband formerly lived in Linden, Ohio, has filed in the district court here a cross petition for divorce, wherein she charged infidelity, and named Mrs. Fred Heerman, a well-known club and society woman of Indianapolis, as co-respondent.

Mrs. Heerman is said to have been solist in the choir of the Irvington Presbyterian church of Indianapolis when Van Wie became enamored of her. According to Mrs. Van Wie's petition Mrs. Heerman's sweet contralto voice was one of the things that won the heart of the Omaha man.

Besides being well known as a singer, Mrs. Heerman is a prominent member of the Woman's club and a leader in the slum work of Indianapolis.

Mrs. Van Wie says her husband went to Indianapolis and first met Mrs. Heerman at the church in which she was singing. The acquaintance ripened into intimacy, she alleges, and in June, 1908, the two lived at the Morton hotel under one name.

Upon another occasion, Mrs. Van Wie says, her husband became acquainted with a Mrs. C. W. Rose of Indianapolis, whom he told he was an unmarried man. This woman discovered that he had a wife, Mrs. Van Wie continues, and informed the wife of the life her husband was leading.

The petition alleges that Van Wie knew Mrs. George Keller at Mooresville, Iowa, and took long automobile rides with her.

Van Wie originally brought suit on the ground that his wife would not prepare his meals for him when he wanted them. They were married in 1890 at Linden, Ohio.

He is traveling accountant for the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

FREE BAND CONCERTS

In London Parks Draw Huge and Attentive Audiences.

Irish Home Rule Sentiment Affected By Old-Age Pensions.

London, May 7.—Throughout the coming summer the London county council will have bands playing in the evening in more than fifty of the parks, open spaces and recreation grounds under its control. For this purpose a sum of £12,500 has just been voted, an increase of £500 over last summer; and by the middle of May a free open-aid concert will be given on two or three evenings a week in each of the selected districts.

It would be impossible to exaggerate the popularity of these county council bands. On every concert night the parks and gardens are crowded with huge and attentive audiences. It matters not whether you go to the Island Gardens set in the midst of the dreary slums of Poplar, or to the Green Park within hail of Piccadilly, you will notice the same outstanding features—the great size of the audience, its good behavior and its keen appreciation of the music.

Of course, the music is carefully arranged to suit the taste of the people of the neighborhood. The band that plays in the Embankment Gardens or the Green Park would not play the same music as that which is given to the people of Poplar. Put from the outset the county council has never lost sight of the educative side of these concerts. In its contracts with the various bands engaged it is always stipulated that a draft program of the music to be performed must be sent to Dr. Armbruster, the council's musical adviser, who has power to alter or revise it, as seems good to him. And year by year he finds it possible to lift the character of the program a little higher in every district, and to do it without in any way decreasing the popularity of the entertainment or driving away those people for whom it was originally intended.

As a general rule, no two pieces by the same composer are allowed on any program and dance music not be included in any program to be played on Sunday. In certain specified places of the superior residential class, such as Battersea Park and Clapham Common, one half of the concert programs must be entirely free from "larn dances, cakewalks, ha-hacky-ed national fantasies and similar pieces," and only one such piece will be allowed in any one program at other places.

This year the county council has started an index expurgatorius. Some pieces are banned entirely. No longer may any band engaged by the council play the "Suwanee River," "Happy Days in Dixie" and "Way Down in Tennessee" will never again earn county council money. The other pieces put on the black list are: "Crown of Honor," Richards; "Golden Crown," Hermann; "A Georgia Camp Meeting," Gilberry; Bleger; "Cross of Jerusalem, Bieger; "Life on a Troopship," "Life on the Ocean," "A Soldier's Life," "A Hunting Scene," Ricardo; "Water-melon Pat," Tell; "Darkies' Cakewalk," "The Golden Hive," Brepsant; "The Bandom," Hermann; "Coon Band Contest," "In Ole Kentucky," "A Coon's Holiday," "Darkies' Revels," "Dusky Dinah," "Plantation Revelry."

A Liberal member of parliament who spent the Easter recess in Ireland came back with a piece of intelligence which has been confided to the London correspondent of the Manchester Guardian. It is this member's certain conviction that the old-age pension act will kill home rule.

This scheme, he says, has touched the interests and the heart of the Irish peasantry as no other measure ever passed by the British government has done, and they will do nothing to imperil the boon of which they have taken advantage freely. To the suggestion that the Irish government, if established, would be able to continue the payment of the pensions, the member said:

"No, and that is the other reason why the act has killed home rule. I am satisfied that no Irish government set up on the lines of either of Mr. Gladstone's bills would be able to provide the money for the pensions.

"This is quite well known in Ireland, and it explains the growing indifference of the people to the appeals of the Irish leaders for subscriptions. They know that with home rule, old-age pensions would go. As a peasant said to me, 'The old-age pensions is about all the home rule we shall ever see.'"

An interesting story is told of the late Lord Rosebery, father of the present earl. Sixty years ago the earl was in debt and in paying a call one day he learned so rudely by the butler that he complained to his friend with the result the butler was immediately dismissed.

The butler was also a former non-commissioned officer in the French army, and in that capacity he challenged Lord Roseberry to a duel. The earl accepted the challenge and two shots were exchanged without result.

As might have been expected, the earl speedily repented of his condescension. The horrible idea suggested itself that his late antagonist might very probably lay aside his military rank and once more become a butler. The earl would then be exposed to the reproach of having fought with a servant.

To avoid such a calamity Lord Rosebery settled an annuity of £250 on the man for life on the condition that he did not return to domestic service. The condition was faithfully observed on both sides till the death of the butler about twenty years ago.

An Australian university professor has sent to a Melbourne newspaper an account of his interview at Rex Hill with George Meredith. Asked whether he had ever thought of visiting Australia the novelist said that when he was young enough to travel he could not afford it. Nobody, he added, would read his books at that time, and he doubted whether his "dear countrymen" would ever have been persuaded to look at them if the Americans had not led the way.

Meredith then went on to say that he had never joined in the cry against American publishing pirates, although he said, "and paid me royalties when we have required them to pay me anything at all."

Talking of the England of today, Mr. Meredith was somewhat pessimistic and lamented the "abundant apathy, previous lack of foresight and utter indifference to everything not material or concrete."

To Clean Your Kitchen Floors

You don't have to scour and scrape and polish—add a heaping tablespoonful of Gold Dust to a pail of hot water. It will make your floors milky white, and save your strength.

Gold Dust cuts grease and dirt, and asks so little aid from you that it's really a pleasure to keep your home dirtless and dainty.

It searches out dirt, germs and impurities in every crack and cranny, cleanses and purifies wherever and whatever it touches—and injures nothing.

An ounce of Gold Dust is worth a pound of elbow grease.

SEARCHING FOR GIRLS

New York Police Seeking Clues to Many Missing Ones.

Historic Brooklyn Bridge Must Soon Be Closed for Repairs.

New York, May 7.—Spurred on by scores of parents whose daughters have within the week disappeared in the same city labyrinths from which Adele Boas has just been led, the police powers are today undertaking a desperate campaign to thread and trace the by-ways of this metropolis, where any wanderer may now bury himself beyond hope of discovery. Special squads of detectives are being set to work on the slight clues which the stricken fathers and mothers can give of the many girls who have been suddenly missed from home and swallowed up completely in the oblivion of the rush of the town. Hospitals, hotels and every place of possible resort are to be strictly canvassed and compelled to report to the authorities each case that might possibly mean a straggler from the home circle. Beyond taking a firm grip on all the shelter agencies that lie in wait for wandering daughters throughout this city, the police chiefs believe they should put themselves in a position to lay hands on the lost with much less blind groping than they went through for the Boas girl.

Bridge Burdens.

Watching four slender cables strain and sag in holding thousands of tons of steel over East river, where the great Manhattan bridge is being swung, 1,000,000 daily pilgrims from Brooklyn borough are today becoming deeply worried over the future of the promised outlet for their rush hour crushes. From the span of the veteran Brooklyn bridge which is wearing away from its constant overload of interborough traffic, the crowds have eagerly scanned each stroke that has flung the neighboring bridge monster high across the river. Soon the historic Brooklyn bridge must be closed and equipped with fresh sinews to play Atlas to all the world of Brooklyn. Now the great sister skeleton that must take up the burden is visibly sinking inch by inch, while its supporting strands of cable look to be hard drawn and sadly straightened. Engineers declare that only a temporary problem of balance is making things look out of kilter on the new river broadway; but no one here will breathe freely till the immense structure is put firmly on its feet.

Battle for Birds.

While fruit rather than feathers for the most part adorns the inverted bucket style of headgear which the ladies are now sporting under the spring sun, a crafty band of Broadway dealers have today succeeded in having bird butchery for millinery purposes legalized for another year in the closing whirl of the legislature of this state. Opposed at every step by the National Association of Audubon Societies and the 82,000 farmers of the state grange, who have battled for the birds that check crop pests, these feather sellers have finally succeeded in killing all attempts at a law for real bird protection. To leave the feathered crop guards a prey to the demand for women's hat trimmings for even one year more will sadly deplete the already waning bird resources of the Empire state, the authorities declare. From the headquarters of the Audubon workers in this city there has come the assurance today, however, that the fight for the birds will not be dropped, but pushed by every farmer, orchardist and ranchman of the country until the agricultural interests of the land are recognized by the lawmakers instead of the lobbying of a few selfish dealers in bird scalps.

Mourn the Metropole.

With the placing of a padlock on the dismantled front of the old Hotel Metropole, Gotham is seeing the last of what has been the favorite resort of its choicest circle of sporting gentry for many chapters of white light history. To every frequenter of upper Broadway after dark the Metropole has meant the hub about which all the night life of the metropolis revolved. In the recesses of its cheerful cafe every sporting event of recent years has been planned and every move of the leaders of the gambling underworld plotted. Horsemen, pugilists, baseball players, jockeys, actors, bookmakers, promoters and gamblers met and made merry within the walls of this old-fashioned establishment in the vortex of Broadway's night attractions. Now that the Metropole is no more, its convives will be scattered through a dozen more modern and less picturesque hosteries, no one of which can ever take its place, in the minds of its old-time frequenters.

Spring Stunts.

Clothes lines are at a premium, feathers scarce and pompons selling feverishly about as fast as they can be sewed on. Whoops are on the trail over back yards in joyous imitation of the only Buffalo Bill, who has just encamped up at Madison Square Garden. There are other shows and shows in Gotham, but none of them ever infects the boys, both big and small, with this particular form of dementia Americana. For these three weeks in spring, while the Hon. William F. Cody hunts braves and buffalo to the delight of an arena full of youngsters, stray cats hereabouts run for their lives as the reflex action strikes all lividom.

DIED WITH HORSE HE LOVED.

Man Used Last Vestige of Strength to Crawl to Its Stall.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 7.—Edward Somers, a well-known local character, formerly a prespcrous horseman, used his last remaining strength to crawl into a downtown stable and to the side of a horse which he drove before his downfall. He was found dead beside his former favorite. The man came here from Philadelphia several years ago, but his relatives have not been located.

FOXY BUD

Remarries Former Wife After She Gets the Two Million.

Kaw City, Okla., May 7.—Bud Turley of Kaw City, was married at Udall, Kan., on Tuesday to his former wife, who in accordance with her father's wishes, obtained a divorce several years ago from Turley. They had married over his objections and he refused to recognize her as his heir so long as she remained Turley's wife. Her father died last week, leaving her a $2,000,000 estate.

TONE UP THE STOMACH

Get Rid of the Gas, Headaches and Dizziness.

The symptoms of stomach trouble vary. Some victims have a ravenous appetite, some loathe the sight of food. Often there is a feeling as of weight on the chest, a full feeling in the throat. Sometimes the gas presses on the heart and leads the sufferer to think he has heart disease. Sick headache is a frequent and distressing symptom.

A very delicate stomach requires easily digested food but nature never intended that the food should be digested before it is eaten. The stomach must be strengthened to perform its own work and what it needs is not food already digested but a tonic. The processes of digestion are controlled by the blood and nerves, and medical science has produced no better digestive tonic than

CATHOLICS TO CONVERT JEWS

Is Scheme of Priest, Who Has His Superior's Sanction.

Columbus, Ohio, May 7.—To proselyte the Jews and bring them over to the Roman Catholic church is the gigantic undertaking of Father John B. Eis of this city, one of the best known Catholic prelates in America. Father Eis has for more than a quarter of a century been pastor of the Sacred Heart parish in this city. He came originally from France, and is known as a remarkable linguist, being educated in eight different tongues.

Father Eis makes his plan known in a publication of which he is editor—the Watchman in the House of Israel. He will begin his work among the younger generation. He has already purchased, at Worthington, in this county, the old seminary property and will turn it into a school for boys. It will be conducted on the industrial plan. The school will be for Jews, and the head master will be A. S. Kayser of Pittsburg, a former rabbi, who has become a Catholic.

It is not the purpose of compelling these boys to join the Catholic faith, but their surroundings and teachings will be such as to bring them closer to the mother Christian church. All branches of education will be taught, but the industrial departments will receive closer attention.

Father Eis has the support and sanction of Bishop Regis Canevin of Pittsburg, who is especially interested in the scheme.

FORMER SONG BIRD.

Now Aged and Infirm, Demands $250,000 From Her Stepson.

New York, May 7.—Milton Hart and George Edwin Joseph have begun proceedings in the supreme court in behalf of a 70-year-old woman, who was famous all over the land forty years ago as Johanna Reter, an opera singer, to reclaim more than $250,000, which, it is alleged, belonged to her, and, by the will of her husband and manager, Richard G. L. Dieffenbach, was left to his only son, her stepson. Justice Gildersleeve was asked for the appointment of a commission to take the testimony of Mrs. Dieffenbach at her bedside in Nyack, the lawyers saying that the once famous opera singer may die at any moment and her testimony is necessary to the prosecution of his action.

ST. LOUIS BROKER

Doesn't Believe in Law's Penalties and Court Scores Him.

St. Louis, Mo., May 7.—August Mueller, head of the Mueller Grain Commission company, was rejected as a juror in John F. Kelleher's trial for the killing of John Tuohy, when he said:

"If I do not believe in any sort of penalty that deprives a man of his life or restrains him from his liberty."

"Then you are unfit to bear the name of citizen," retorted Judge Daniel Fisher, presiding.

SCANDAL OVER MISUSE

Of Market Quotations in Western Union Office at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 7.—Alleged tapping of wires by employes of the Western Union Telegraph company at Pittsburg for the benefit of bucket shops, and the holding back of quotations until the bucket shops could manipulate the deal to suit, is part of the sensation uncovered here. Three prominent employees of the Western Union here have been relieved from duty, and others are said to be slated for removal. The local office has practically been taken in charge by the office at New York, which has sent its own men here to complete the investigation and clean out the employes found lacking. Supt. E. B. Saylor of the local office is in New York, where it is alleged he has been called in connection with the scandal.

Some time ago, during the trial of a bucketshop-keeper for beating a client out of a large sum of money, it appeared that the Chicago quotations might have been held up at times by some one connected with the Western Union office here. The Chicago board of trade sent its detectives here, and the result was the removal of certain employes from the local office.

FOUR DIE IN FIRE

Mother and Three Children Perish in Flames at Chicago.

Chicago, May 7.—Mrs. Mary Kaminski and her three children were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home at 1:30 this morning. Mrs. Kaminski's husband was away from home at the time.

DREAM SOLVED CRIME MYSTERY

And Guilty Youth Confessed to Murder When Confronted.

New York, May 7.—Murder mysteries are solved while she dreams by Mrs. Susan Dellinger of York, Pa., whose apparently clairvoyant detective abilities are set forth in the forthcoming Journal of Psychical Research, of which Prof. James H. Hyslop is the editor. He has had the case under investigation for a year or so, and the account is attested by prominent citizens of the Keystone state.

William E. Hoover and Curvin Hoover were found dead near a little churchyard. Three youths of the same age, which was from 18 to 20 years, were arrested, charged with the murder. All of the prisoners carried revolvers, and the father of William Hoover testified that the boy had had a weapon of the same caliber as the others, but it could not be found.

Mrs. Dellinger, so the story goes, dreamed two nights after the crime that she had seen one of the alleged slayers, Henry Snyder, pick up a revolver and throw it over the cemetery fence, where it fell by the side of a grave on which she read the epitaph of Curtis Sipe. Mrs. Dellinger dreamed that she went to get the revolver, but was chased away from the spot by a man whom she had never seen before. Several times in her vision she saw the revolver gleaming in the grass near the Sipe headstone.

Her son found the revolver in the place designated. It had four loaded chambers and one empty cartridge, which indicated that the young man had made an effort to defend himself before he was shot down.

Snyder subsequently confessed to the chief of police that he had shot both the Hoovers following a dispute about a bottle of whisky. The first bullet struck Curvin. When William saw his brother lying in the road, he stooped over him, and the slayer, fearing that William would tell what had happened, shot the elder brother also. He took William Hoover's revolver from his pocket, and running down the road, threw it over the fence in the manner described in the dream of Mrs. Dellinger.

Various testimony is added, conflicting in some respects, but all showing that the vision of Mrs. Dellinger had proved to be in the main correct, as was evidenced by the confession of Snyder.

PROOF LACKING

That Miss Hill Was Granddaughter of Noted Lawyer.

St. Louis, Mo., May 7.—The claim of Miss Alice Hill, aged 18 years, of Denver, that she is a granddaughter of Briton A. Hill, before his death one of St. Louis' most able lawyers, has met with no proof here.

She says she was stolen by gypsies when a baby. Dr. William Preston Hill disclaims knowledge of the girl's connection.

Shephard Barclay, former judge of the Missouri supreme court, who adopted his stepfather's name after his mother divorced Hill, says W. P. Hill and himself are Briton A. Hill's only children.

STOMACH CENTER OF HUMAN LIFE--ALL ELSE SECONDARY

The success which has followed L. T. Cooper during the past year with his new preparation Cooper's New Discovery, is unparalleled. Cooper has a novel theory. He believes that the human stomach is directly responsible for most disease. To quote his own words from an interview upon his arrival in an Eastern city: "The average man or woman can not be sick if the stomach is working properly. To be sure, there are diseases of a virulent nature, such as cancer, tuberculosis, diabetes, etc., which are organic, and are not traceable to the stomach, but even fevers can, in nine cases out of ten, be traced to something taken into the stomach. All of this half-sick, nervous exhaustion that is now so common, is caused by stomachic conditions, and it is because my remedy will and does regulate the stomach that I am meeting with such success.

"To sum the matter up—a sound digestive apparatus that is doing its full duty, getting every particle of vitality out of all food by transferring it to the bowels in a perfectly digested state—this above all else brings health."

The following unsolicited endorsement comes from J. L. Turk, living at 915 Locust street, Vincennes, Ind. Mr. Turk is well known throughout the Ohio and Mississippi valleys. He is now 68 years of age, and claims his general health is better than for some time past.

"For several years," says Mr Turk, "I have suffered from stomach trouble. I was in a badly weakened and run-down condition. After eating I would bloat, and be in pain and distress for several hours. An all-gone feeling would come over me, and I had no energy nor ambition whatever. This condition continued for a long time, although I took treatment from several good physicians, and tried a number of patent remedies, without relief.

"On reading of Mr. Cooper's theory I became convinced that he was right, and procured several bottles of his New Discovery preparation, in order to test his claims. It afforded prompt relief, and when I had taken three bottles, my trouble had disappeared and I was feeling like a different man. To make my restoration sure I took two more bottles of the New Discovery. It has now been several months since I stopped taking the Cooper medicine, and I have experienced no pain or distress in that time, although I eat anything I wish.

"The medicine also relieved me of chronic constipation and piles, the latter having bothered me for many years. Cooper's New Discovery is a wonderful preparation and I recommend it to any one suffering from stomach trouble."

Cooper's New Discovery is sold by all druggists everywhere. A sample bottle sent free upon request by addressing The Cooper Medicine company, Dayton, Ohio.

WHEN BOWLEGS QUIT FLORIDA

Death of Tallahassee Recalls Early History of Seminoles.

Fort Gibson, Okla., May 7. — The death of old Chief Tallahassee of the Florida Seminole Indians, recalls to mind the early history of the remnants of the tribe now living in Oklahoma.

Years ago, when the United States government negotiated with the Indians, who were all then in Florida, to come to Oklahoma and take up their home in that section of the eastern part of the state designated as the Seminole nation, Tallahassee and a number of his followers refused to come, but hid out in the mountains and glades of Florida. That portion of the tribe that came to Oklahoma afterward selected Billy Bowlegs as their chief. He declared his allegiance to the United States and, with his people who came to the new homes in the Indian Territory, were well treated by the government.

Later the whites and Indians became engaged in a battle at Wahoo swamp. Gen. Dade was killed and the government soldiers came near being annihilated. This resulted in the overwhelming defeat of the Seminoles by Gen. Jessup and the death of one of the prominent chiefs of the Seminoles, Osceola. Billy Bowlegs, seeing that further resistance would be of no use, surrendered and came to the Indian Territory with his people. He died a few years later and his bones now rest in the national cemetery at Fort Gibson. He was one of the best known Indian chiefs of his time.

Common Sense

Leads the most intelligent people to use only medicines of known composition. Therefore it is that Dr. Pierce's medicines, the makers of which print every ingredient entering into them upon the bottle-wrappers and attest its correctness under oath, are daily growing in favor. No SECRETS. No DECEPTION.

The composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open to everybody, Dr. Pierce being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formulæ, being confident that the better the composition of these medicines is known the more will their great curative merits be recognized.

Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the curative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit-forming drugs.

Examine the formula on their bottle-wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great blood-purifier, stomach tonic and bowel regulator—the medicine which, while not recommended to cure consumption in its advanced stages (no medicine will do that) yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hang-on-coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated lead up to and finally terminate in consumption.

Take the "Golden Medical Discovery" in time and it is not likely to disappoint you if only you give it a thorough and fair trial. Don't expect miracles. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and persevere in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unqualified endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials although the latter are received by thousands.

Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS. They must know of many cures made by it during past 40 years, right in your own neighborhood.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The Women's Council of Duluth is determined that the city shall have an effective smoke ordinance that will make it possible for Duluth to be made and kept a smokeless city. This was decided upon at this morning's meeting of the council, which was held at the cafeteria of the library. Thus far the spasmodic efforts that have been made to secure effective legislation have been futile, and the city council decided the last time the matter was before it for discussion, that Duluth had no smoke nuisance. To bring the members of that body to a realizing sense of the very material nuisance that the smoke is in Duluth, will be the object of the future efforts of the Women's council. Thereby it is hoped to secure legislation that will be effective and in as short a time as possible to clear Duluth of this menace to health and cleanliness. A committee will be appointed by the president of the council, Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge, to make an active campaign.

The members of the council expressed themselves as greatly pleased at the action of the school board in making provision for manual training and domestic science schools at the Irving and Bryant schools during the summer. This work has been carried on by the council for several years, but will this year be under the direction of the school board, as an experiment in the value of vacation schools. A committee from the Women's Council will continue its interest in the success of the schools, and will give all possible help in continuing the work. Owing to lack of funds, no arrangement has been made by the board for continuing the work of the manual training school at the high school building during the summer months, and the council will request the permission of the board to assume the responsibility for a class at that building. Last year a class of eighty boys received daily instruction at the high school, and the members, who realize the eagerness with which the boys came for this instruction last summer, are loath to have this class discontinued.

Miss Jean Poirier reported that a mass meeting will be held Friday evening of next week, at the Commercial club rooms, for the organization of a charities association, and asked the interest and attendance of the members and their friends.

Mrs. Lee, the visiting nurse of the Anti-tuberculosis society, spoke briefly of her work, and asked for the personal help of Duluth women.

The report of the committee for medical inspection of schools was presented. The committee consisted of Dr. J. M. Robinson, Dr. E. L. Tweoby, Dr. W. B. Patton, A. L. Rakowsky and Mrs John MacLeod. The request of this committee to the school board for provision for the medical inspection of schools and school children was referred, two months ago, to a committee and no further action taken. It was the plan of the committee to provide the free inspection of the schools for at least a portion of the city, but the near approach of the close of the school year will make this impracticable this year. Regret was expressed that this work was not started this year, but the matter will continue to receive attention and it is hoped that by the fall opening of school some arrangement will be made.

Mrs. M. R. Baldwin, a member of the council and an assistant health inspector, asked the co-operation of the women in a cleaner city and asked them to use all possible influence among neighbors and friends in extending the best help to this department of the city. Carelessness in throwing ashes on the ground, against which there is a city ordinance, was especially spoken of by Mrs. Baldwin.

ON SUFFRAGE.

Dr. McCoy Speaks Before West Duluth W. C. T. U.

Dr. Mary McCoy, president of the Political Equality club of Duluth, who is doing yeoman service in presenting the cause of equal suffrage before Duluth women, was the speaker at yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance union, which was held at the home of Mrs. Beemer of 128 North Fifty-fourth avenue west, West Duluth. Since the organization of the local club, early in the spring, Dr. McCoy has appeared before many of the women's organizations of the city that have previously given little consideration to the matter of suffrage. The question in its many phases is explained, and the amount of educational work being accomplished by the executive officer of the club is great.

At yesterday's meeting, Dr. McCoy presented in detail fifteen cogent reasons why the ballot should be extended to women.

PROF. SANFORD RESIGNS

Quits the University After Twenty-eight Years.

Of interest to many Duluthians is the announcement of the resignation of Prof. Marla L. D. Sanford which was offered the university regents at a recent meeting. Prof. Sanford quits the faculty after twenty-eight years of constant service as head of the department of rhetoric. She will be succeeded by Prof. Joseph M. Thomas, who was four or five years old when Prof. Sanford began teaching at the university.

Miss Sanford is well known in Duluth. She lectured twice before the Twentieth Century club here, and she is also widely known to the club women of the state as well as the hundreds of Minnesota citizens who studied under her during their college years.

Informal Evening.

Miss Lillian Monaghan entertained at a delightful party last evening at her home, 218 Twelfth avenue east. The guests were:

Honor Old Soldier.

Albert N. Hopkins was the guest of honor at a birthday party last evening at which Mrs. Hunkins and their daughter, Mrs. R. D. Haven, entertained at the Hopkins home, 2821 West Second street. The affair was in honor of Mr. Hopkins' seventy-third birthday, and the guests were the members of the J. B. Culver post of the G. A. R. Throughout the rooms decorations of red and white carnations and American flags were used. There were speeches by M. W. Bates, Capt. Smallwood, George Lavaque and other members of the post. The guest of honor was presented with a cane. During the evening Mrs. C. B. Gilbert sang and there were readings by Miss Shesgren.

Birthday Party.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Wannebo entertained last evening at their new home, 622 East Sixth street, in honor of Mrs. Wannebo's birthday. An interesting program was given during the evening. The members of the Bethesda Quartet gave some vocal and instrumental solos. Master Arnold Tomling played two violin solos, and humorous recitations by Misses Helen and Edith Wannebo were enjoyed.

Rev. Austad extended congratulations on behalf of the many friends present. G. Torgeson spoke on the progress made by the Scandinavians in this country, and H. H. Borgen compared the opportunities offered an industrious and enterprising man in this country with those of the old country, and spoke especially of the enduring and strenuous life of fishing in Lofoten, the birthplace of Mr. and Mrs. Wannebo.

May Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Catherine Irene McCoy and George N. Gilman will take place Tuesday morning, May 18, at St. Clement's Catholic church. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast will be served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James McCoy of 27 Twenty-ninth avenue west.

Entertain Directors.

Mrs. C. H. Merritt will be hostess tomorrow afternoon at her home, 519 Woodland avenue. The guests will be the members of the board of directors of the Y. W. C. A. and Miss Gift, travelers' aid worker, and Mrs. E. Hardin, matron of the new building, will be the guests of honor.

EXPECT BREWERS TO BE SQUARE

Government Officials Will Watch the Indian Sections, However.

Washington, May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred Zollman of St. Paul, representative of the Minnesota brewers, left for home today, taking the assurance with him that in the enforcement of the laws prohibiting the sale of liquors to the Indians the government authorities have no intention of co-operating with those who are trying to make Minnesota a "dry" commonwealth.

Zollman conferred with Mr. Valentine, acting commissioner of Indian affairs and other officials of the interior department. He was told, first, that the government is interested solely in keeping strong drink away from the red man, and that so far as the Indian office is concerned it will not concern itself with the drink habit among the whites; second, that if the liquor interests co-operate with the government to the end that fire water shall not be delivered to the Indian, that the term "Indian country" will not be given such a broad construction to take in communities where Indians do not actually live.

The Indian officials believe it is the purpose of the brewing interests to act in good faith in the matter. At the same time a careful inquiry will be made from time to time to see to it that the tacit agreement entered into between the government and the brewing interests, as represented by Zollman, is not violated.

Zollman will visit Cass Lake, Walker, Bemidji, Manomen and other towns bordering on the Indian reservations. He will convey the tidings that if the sale of strong drink is confined to the white population, the drys will be disappointed in their movement to make the better part of the state dry through the agency of the law prohibiting the sale of intoxicants to Indians.

YOUNG SON A WITNESS

Both Parents Try to Use Him in Fight for Divorce.

Is Made to Repeat Vile Names at Attorney's Request.

Mrs. Annie Benson is fighting for a divorce from her husband, Alfred Benson, with the aid of her 10-year-old son Edgar, as a witness.

Seemingly unconscious of the gravity of the situation, little Edgar occupied the stand the greater part of the morning. He seemed to want to give his parents both a square deal, and as he looked from one to the other, he at times got badly muddled.

Mrs. Benson accuses her husband of various forms of ill treatment, of calling her vile names and of striking her. Edgar testified this morning that his father had kicked his mother, and that one time last winter he kept both the wife and the son out in the cold some fifteen minutes after driving them out of the house. He also testified that his father had called the mother names, and repeated them at the request of the attorney.

There are other witnesses, but the young son seems to be the principal one.

He said on the stand that his father had tried to bribe him to be on his side, by offering him a tent and a dog, which he had often expressed a wish to own. He admitted after much hesitation that his mother had coached him as to what to say on the stand.

Mr. Benson took the stand in his own defenase. He showed that he had provided for his family, showed that they were never in want, said that he never struck his wife, never swore at her or called her names, but said that she had an uncontrollable temper and that on one occasion, after she had given vent to her temper on the person of her son, he threw her rather forcibly on the bed.

He said that he had made out a deed for their home in the wife's name, that he paid all the bills, and never drank. He said the majority of the charges were false.

They both want the custody of the child.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

FIRST GAME OF SEASON

Duluth Team Will Meet Regina of Canadian League.

Marion Will Probably Work in the First Contest.

The management of the Duluth baseball team this morning announced that the grounds at Athletic park were in suitable condition for playing, and that the first local game with the Regina bunch of ball tossers would be pulled off this afternoon, according to the schedule.

The Regina aggregation, to the number of fifteen, arrived in the city this morning from La Crosse, Wis., where they have been playing Wisconsin leaguers. The visitors will play here three days—Friday, Saturday and Sunday—and will then start for home, where they will open the season in the Western Canada league next Wednesday, May 12.

The Canadians have been showing good form for so early in the season, and Duluth is in first-class trim since the players arrived home, so it is naturally expected that an exceptionally interesting article in the way of ball playing will be the result of the series of games.

The Duluth team has been working out in the Armory during the bad weather, and will continue this practice while in the city, unless the weather is suitable for outdoor playing.

Don Marion, who pitched two no-hit games while on the training trip, will probably work today, with Cooper behind the bat. One or two others may be tried out in the pitcher's box.

The Duluth team will leave here after the Sunday game and play in Chippewa Falls, Wis., Monday and Tuesday, and in Eau Claire Wednesday.

New York Takes Two.

Boston, Mass., May 7.—New York won tw ohard fought games from Boston yesterday, the first 2 to 1 and the second 1 to 0, in twelve innings.

In the first game Wiltse was effective after the first inning. New York won in the fifth inning by bunching hits with a wild pitch and a base on balls. Raymond and McCarthy had a pitchers' battle in the second game. Sweeney's wild throw to the plate let in the winning run in the twelfth. Scores:

First game—	R.	H.	E.
New York	2	6	6
Boston	1	4	0

Batteries: Wiltse and Meyers; Ferguson and Smith. Umpires—Johnston and Cusack.

Second game—	R.	H.	E.
New York	1	12	4
Boston	0	7	2

Batteries—Raymond and Schiel; McCarthy and Graham. Umpires—Cusack and Johnstone.

Covaleskie Gets Bumped.

Brooklyn, May 7.—McIntyre had Philadelphia shut out up to the ninth inning yesterday then then cased up, two passes, a hit and a sacrifice fly saving them from a whitewash. A sensational double play on a bad line drive by Lennox shut off further trouble. Brooklyn batted Covaleskie out of the box in the fourth, when they scored five runs on three hits, a pass and four errors. Richie was more effective. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Philadelphia	1	4	4
Brooklyn	7	7	2

Batteries—Covaleskie, Richie and Dooin; McIntyre and Bergen. Umpires—Rigler and Truby.

Chicago, 4; Cincinnati, 2.

Chicago, May 7.—The locals obtained a lead of four runs in the first inning on two amateurish errors, two singles and a double. The visitors made a strong bid for a tie in the seventh, with three singles and a two-bagger, but a fast double play stopped them with two scores. Pitcher Pat Regan, formerly Omaha's star, has been awarded to Chicago by Acting President Heydler.

Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Chicago	4	7	0
Cincinnati	2	10	2

Batteries—Kroh and Moran; Karger, Campbell and Rowan and McLean. Umpires—Emslie and O'Day.

Pittsburg, 6; St. Louis, 5.

Pittsburg Pa., May 7.—It took the local team eleven innings to defeat St. Louis yesterday, the final score being 6 to 5. Pittsburg secured five runs early in the contest, but the visitors in the fifth inning got two tallies without a hit, errors being responsible for both runs. Leifield pitched a splendid game until the ninth inning, when he lost control. St. Louis getting three runs and tieing the score without having a man put out. He was relieved by Cammitz, who allowed but two hits. St. Louis used three pitchers. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Pittsburg	6	14	1
St. Louis	5	7	2

Batteries—Leifield, Cammitz and Gibson; Beebe, Moore, Sallee and Bresnahan. Umpires—Klem and Kane.

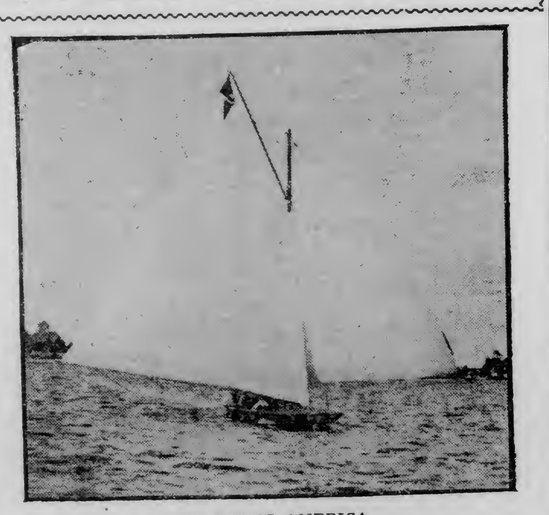
YACHTSMEN ARE READY TO OPEN THEIR SEASON



THE YOUNG AMERICA.
Type of the Boat That Will Be Featured This Year.

Sailing is going to be one of the big features at the Boat club this summer.

The club is extending the piling around the tennis courts several hundred feet to the southward, and this will provide a splendid anchorage for the sailing vessels. A new locker room is being constructed for the sailors, and they will have every convenience. Sailing races will be featured at the weekly regattas this summer, and the sport promises to be more popular than ever in Duluth. The owners of boats are putting their craft in shape for the season, and if the weather stays fine a number of them will be out tomorrow afternoon.

GLEAMS in the SPORTING FOG.

(By Bruce.)

If the members of the junior eight of the Duluth Boat club—and this can go for the man who operates the launch between the clubhouse and Fifth avenue, too—do not take any more interest in the success of the crew than was displayed last night, it is time that some understanding was arrived at.

It is not fair to those who really have the success of the crew at heart that the eight should be prevented from getting out upon the water, simply because two candidates of the crew fail to appear for practice. These candidates should at least have the courtesy to give notice of their inability to appear.

It is also obviously unfair that candidates for both crews should be kept waiting in the neighborhood of half an hour because the man who operates the launch that carries the men to the clubhouse should feel that it is not important to be punctual.

Duluth is supposed to make the effort of her life this year to lower the colors of the St. Paul crews.

St. Paul had been on the water for at least two weeks previous to the belated start of the members of the Duluth junior crews. It is squarely up to the members of the crew to attempt to overcome this handicap. If enough members of the junior crew do not show up at the clubhouse to permit of the taking of the eight out, it is time that some action was taken; either in instilling more spirit and patriotism into the crew or else abandoning the attempt to put a winning crew upon the water.

The officers of the club have showed the utmost loyalty to the club and to the athletic interests of this city. That a good crew advertises a city, there can be no doubt. For example look at the fame that was brought to the city of St. Paul by the splendid records her crews made at the Eastern regatta. It is only fair to the officers of the club that the members of the crew at least make the best efforts possible to repay the interest taken.

It costs the members of the club at large, no small amount to equip and send crews to the annual regatta. There has been no complaint in the past when the Duluth crews failed to win.

So far this year, the only real fighting spirit has been shown by the members of the senior eight. They have been out in all kinds of bad weather, and they have not missed a night's practice because some members of the crew have failed to put in appearance at the training quarters.

It is the lack of spirit that loses boat races as well as any other kind of contests. No athletic team ever won any kind of an event, unless the members of that team were imbued with the spirit of success. It is this spirit that the members of the junior crew should try to cultivate.

It is the ambition of the officials of the consolidated club to place a winning crew upon the water. In the past the Duluth crews have been known in the circles of the Western Rowing association as a game lot. There is no finer reputation to have among athletic men. Yet a little more pep and enthusiasm might help the crew in winning races.

There is bound to be a stain upon the fair name of organized baseball unless John T. Brush, the figurehead president of the New York National Baseball club is made to come out in the open and tell what he knows of the attempted bribery of the umpires who officiated in the deciding game between the Giants and the Cubs last fall.

Brush was mixed in the scandal at Louisville many years back, and now when the patrons of baseball are demanding to know the truth concerning the bribery charges, he sits back in haughty disdain and refuses to speak.

It is now generally believed that Dr. Creamer, the physician, who attended the members of the New York team, was not the man who attempted to bribe the umpires—or at least, that at the best he was simply a go-between for parties higher up.

There is also a gathering suspicion that John T. Brush knows more about the corrupting of the officials of the play than he cares to come out and tell.

The national commission should not mince matters in delving to the bottom of this attempted bribery. If they gloss matters over they will lose the respect of hundreds of thousands of fans throughout the length and breadth of the country.

Baseball receives the patronage of millions of people because it has also been considered one of the branches of sport that is above reproach. That a man of the John T. Brush stripe can pass judgment upon the ethics of the game is placing a slur upon the intelligence of the best class of the citizens of New York, as well as other citizens over the country.

The issue is right up to the members of the national commission. They are facing a very delicate, if not critical, point in the national game. That a doctor can be made the scapegoat of gamblers and cheap sports who want to bet upon a sure thing proposition is petty and small and an insult to every fan in the country.

It is high time that thieves and crooks were driven out of baseball. Baseball typifies the best in American sports. It stands for fair play and clean athletic spirit.

EXPERT CRICKETERS HAVE ARRIVED FROM ENGLAND.

Calumet, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—James Pascoe, Samuel Davey and William Williams, three expert cricketers, have arrived from England to join the Kearsarge cricket team. Pascoe is said to be the best bowler that ever landed in Michigan.

Wins Southern Handicap.

Nashville, Tenn., May 7.—S. L. Dodds of Hickman, Ky., won the Southern handicap trophy at the interstate association shoot at Cumberland park yesterday, breaking ninety-four targets.

FAST FREDDIE WELSH TO MIX WITH FRAYNE.

New York, May 7.—Fresh from many successes in Western prize rings, Freddie Welsh, the fast fighting lightweight of England, makes his bow to a New York public tonight in a ten-round bout with Johnny Frayne, a lightweight of California. Frayne has shown much promise and has never been decisively beaten in any of his fights. Welsh is hot on the trail of Battling Nelson for a mill for the lightweight championship.

NEW YORK CLUB WINS WHIST CUP

New Amsterdam Women's Club Wins Championship Fours.

Boston, Mass., May 7.—The New Amsterdam club of New York yesterday won the Washington trophy and the championship for club fours, when the three days' play for the trophy at the annual congress of the Womens' Whist league came to an end. The Cavendish club of Boston won second place.

The Cavendish trophy and the junior championship for club fours went to the Cavendish club of New York, with the Bay State club of Boston, second.

Final matches for the Boston trophy, carrying with it the championship for open fours, resulted in a victory for the Brooklyn Women's club. A team made up from the Bay State and Howell clubs of Boston was second.

The Omaha Whist club won the Philadelphia cup and the championship for club pairs, the Philadelphia Women's club finishing second.

Friday and Saturday, the last days of the tournament, will be devoted to play for the Brooklyn, New Amsterdam and Quaker City trophies and to special matches.

Efficiency Test.

New York, May 7.—Thirty automobiles, representing the principal makers in this country and Europe, will start in one-gallon mileage efficiency test from the Automobile Club of America today. The contest was postponed from the carnival of last Friday because it rained.

The contest differs from other efficiency tests held in this country heretofore in that it is on a flat basis of ten miles a gallon following the latest accepted practice abroad. The course is through Long Island.

Sheppard to Race Hillman.

New York, May 7.—The question, which has agitated amateur athletes throughout the country since the London lymple games as to the relative abilities of Melvin W. Sheppard and Harry Hillman, will be definitely settled Sunday afternoon at Celtic park when the two will run a match race of 600 yards, started by James J. Jeffries.

Not in several years has there been so much interest in an amateur athletic event.

No Longer an Amateur.

New York, May 7.—Tom Morrissey of Newark, famous as a contender in amateur long distance races, in which he has won many laurels, turned professional last night and was accepted as a paddock starter in the international Marathon, which is to be run tomorrow afternoon at the Polo grounds. Morrissey's friends say that the offer of $10,000 in prize money lured him to desert the amateur ranks.

Gotch Wins From Beell.

Denver, Colo., May 7.—Frank Gotch defeated Fred Beell in straight falls in a wrestling match here last night. The match was drawn out in the first fall, Gotch permitting Beell to take any hold he chose, which the big fellow broke at his pleasure. The first fall went 24 minutes 36 seconds. In the second fall Gotch lifted Beell clear off the mat and placed him on his shoulders after 30 seconds.

Attell Gets Decision.

Oakland, Cal., May 7.—Monte Attell was given a decision over Jockey Bennet last night at the end of a ten-round bout, in which both men did good work. The decision was not popular, most of those present declaring that Bennet had earned a draw.

Jiu Jitsu Match

Temple Roller Rink, Thursday May 13.

Capt. Leopold McLaglen will meet T. Yamagata of Tokio. Tickets, 50 cents and $1, will be on sale at the following of the several down-town cigar stores tonight.

DRUNKS HEAD LIST AS USUAL

Monthly Report of the Duluth Police Department.

The total number of arrests in Duluth last month, according to the report of Chief Troyer's secretary, was 329. Fifteen of these were women, and the remainder were men. As usual, drunks led the list, with 181. Twenty-three vagrants were hauled into court, and fourteen men were arrested on grand larceny charges.

Thirteen were arrested for assault; twelve for gambling; twelve for disorderly conduct, seven for fighting on the street; nine for trespass; six for begging on the street; five for selling liquor without a license, and five on suspicion. Five of the persons arrested were bound over to the grand jury; 123 confined in jail; sixty-four paid fines of $760.22. Twenty persons forfeited bail, and seven were sent out of the city under penalty of a jail sentence if they returned.

The patrol wagon responded to 242 calls and traveled 256 miles in so doing. One hundred and twenty-five miscellaneous complaints were received and investigated. The percentage of lost and stolen goods recovered by the police last month was 38.

FOLLOWING WESTON

Kansas City, Mo., May 7.—With the intention of spending tonight in Topeka, sixty-seven miles west of this city, Edward Payson Weston, the aged pedestrian, started out from Kansas City at 5 this morning. He will follow the tracks of the Union Pacific road to Denver.

NEGLECT BY OFFICIALS

Story of Italian Incompetence Told By American Official.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A former official of the government, who has just returned from a trip through the Mediterranean, tells a remarkable story of incompetence and neglect by Italian officers at Messina during the days following the earthquake.

"We left Naples on an Italian steamer for Egypt on Tuesday evening following the shock on Monday," said this gentleman. "Our vessel was 'commandeered' by the Italian government just as we were about to sail. About 1,000 soldiers with their officers were put on board and in the hold were stowed perhaps 10,000 picks and shovels and about $500,000 rations. We dropped anchor off Messina on Wednesday morning within a hawser's length of the king's ship. That vessel was being used as a hospital for the survivors of the disaster as well as for a temporary morgue for the dead. During the entire day of Wednesday we were not permitted to go ashore, but we could see scores of boat loads of wounded and dead brought off to the king's ship. The boats, which carried these gruesome loads were manned by the jackies of the two British men-of-war which were anchored nearby. The work of recovery of the dead and injured was being done by British seamen from the same ships. The Italian military officers on our vessel smoked cigarettes and gazed over the rail, and not a single effort was made to land the Italian troops with their implements and rations during that entire day. The weather was inclement. A fine drizzling rain was falling and we remained inactive. During the night the men who wore the British uniform worked on, without a complaint.

"On Thursday morning our official passengers still smoked and waited. Finally some of us American passengers went to the commandant and asked why. With 10,000 men, women and children buried under the ruins on shore, he did not debark his troops with their shovels and picks and set to work at rescuing those who might still be alive.

"The rain was still falling in a fine drizzle. The commandant replied to our inquiries with a shrug of the shoulders, 'But don't you see it is raining.' And may I be exiled with Castro if that commanding officer of a regiment of the troops of the king of Italy would consent to go ashore until the rain ceased.

"I never was so proud before of the fact that I have English blood in my veins as I was when I watched these Anglo-Saxon lackies working like beavers to save the countrymen of those Italia nsoldiers. But Great Scott! you cannot imagine the disgust which we Americans felt as we noted the calm indifference of the Italian officers who refused to aid their own people because they were afraid of getting their uniforms wet and their epaulettes tarnished."

Visitors to Washington who take a run out to Cabin John Bridge near the Maryland line on the Potomac, will no longer have occasion to notice the blank line in the inscription stone of the structure. Jefferson Davis was secretary of war when that stone was set in the great arch, and the fact was recorded on the stone. But Jefferson Davis was president of the Confederacy when the bridge was finished and feeling against him was so bitter that, under orders of his successor, Secretary Stanton, his name was cut from the stone.

Forty years later a young man, Charles C. Carlin, was elected to congress from the Alexandria district of Virginia. One of the first public bills he introduced was designed for the purpose of closing the historical gap and directing the recutting of the name of Davis on that stone.

The bill never passed, because other measures crowded it aside. But it came to the attention of President Roosevelt, who saw the folly of permitting the black space to remain unfilled. He ordered the name of Jefferson Davis to be again placed where it was nearly fifty years ago, and the work is being done by a native of Mississippi, who came to Washington for the purpose. There was not a murmur of protest from any one so far as known, and there probably never will be.

This is the only indication of the dying out of the feeling of animosity between the North and the South. There is another indication this week.

Alexandria, Va., the home of Congressman Carlin, has been celebrating the one hundred and tenth anniversary of the inauguration of President Washington. There was a big celebration with music, flowers, parades, and all those indications of joy and good feeling which accompany such functions. Among other things was the dedication of a new park. In this park is the first fort erected by the Union troops on Southern soil. It was built immediately after the murder of Col. Elsworth, of a New York Zouave regiment, in Alexandria in 1861, and it was named after that gallant officer of the first "Zouave" regiment.

When the committee of Alexandrian citizens discovered that the ruins of this old fort were within the limits of the new park, they decided to restore the works, and the strange spectacle was witnessed of a party of loyal Southern men in the act of rededicating a battle Union fort on the sacred soil of Old Virginia, and they did the work up royally.

The Civil war has certainly come to a close.

Ten years ago there was on the statute books an act which provided for the taxation of all oleomargarine, butterine and other substitutes for butter at the rate of 2 cents per pound, whether colored or not. Nine years ago that act was amended by providing for a tax of 10 cents per pound on colored "oleo" while permitting the manufacture of the uncolored product under a tax of one-half of 1 cent per pound.

Ostensibly this charge was made for the purpose of raising revenue.

The actual result has been a total loss of some $10,000,000 of revenue with an enormous increase in the production and use of butter substitutes. These facts have been brought to the attention of the finance committee of the senate through the reports of the commissioners of internal revenue. Inasmuch as the committee is endeavoring strenuously, to find some ways of increasing the treasury receipts without increasing taxation, a proposition is on foot to restore the old rate of 2 cents per pound on all "oleo" and to fix a severe penalty for its sale in any other than the original package. In other words to treat oleomargarine and butterine exactly as tobacco is treated. Force the dealers to sell it for just what it is, and to so pack and brand the substance as to afford complete protection to the consumer. It is practically certain that with a tax of 2 cents per pound upon all varieties of butter substitutes at least $1,000,000 a year more than is now secured will find its way into the treasury and with each package properly labelled and with government supervision of its manufacture and sale no one need buy the compound unless he prefers to purchase oleomargarine instead of butter.

Naval circles are greatly stirred over the report from Italy of the explosion on board an Italian sub-marine caused by a leaky gasoline tank. The Standard sub-marines of the American navy now use kerosene instead of gasoline as fuel. But the navy department has recently contracted for one new submarine of the Italian gasoline burning type. In view of the fact that the more volatile product of petroleum has caused about every accident that has ever been recorded in connection with the navigation of under-water vessels the navy people, who will have to take the risk don't like the project.

S.S.S. NATURE'S PERFECT TONIC

Something more than an ordinary tonic is required to restore health to a weakened, run-down system; the medicine must possess blood-purifying properties as well, because the weakness and impurity of the circulation is responsible for the poor physical condition. The blood does not contain the necessary quantity of rich, red corpuscles, and is therefore a weak, watery stream which cannot afford sufficient nourishment to sustain the system in ordinary health. A poorly nourished body cannot resist disease, and this explains why so many persons are attacked by a spell of sickness when the use of a good tonic would have prevented the trouble. In S. S. S. will be found both blood-cleansing and tonic qualities combined. It builds up weak constitutions by removing all impurities and germs from the blood, thus supplying a certain means for restoring strength and invigorating the system. The healthful, vegetable ingredients of which S. S. S. is composed make it splendidly fitted to the needs of those systems which are delicate from any cause. It is Nature's Perfect Tonic, free from all harmful minerals, a safe and pleasant acting medicine for persons of every age. S. S. S. rids the body of that tired, worn-out feeling so common at this season, improves the appetite and digestion, tones up the stomach, acts with pleasing effects on the nervous system, and reinvigorates every portion of the body. WHISKEY FOR RHEUMATISM

The increased use of whiskey for rheumatism is causing considerable discussion among the medical fraternity. It is an almost infallible cure when mixed with certain other ingredients and taken properly. The following is the formula:

"To one half pint of good whiskey add one ounce of Toris compound and one ounce of syrup sarsaparilla compound. Take in tablespoonful doses before each meal and before retiring. This is said to produce almost immediate results.

R. R. Forward & Co.

WE TRUST THE PEOPLE

Second Avenue East and Superior St.

Announcement

WE ARE now located in our large and commodious building, corner Second avenue east and Superior street, where we shall be pleased to welcome a host of old and new friends.

Much as we would wish, we cannot at this time say that the New Forward Store is dressed up at its best. A dozen carloads of the new stock are now en route and will be opened and placed with all possible dispatch. Rome was not built in a day. The Forward Store will require a little time to get in perfect order, but when it is, you will see a home furnishing establishment that will rank among the best in the Northwest!

Everything will be done to make you feel at home at Forward's. Liberal policies of dealing will be pursued, and easy terms of payment will be a convenient and pleasant feature.

But in price is where the Forward concern will shine! Not a piece or two underpriced here and there and advertised for bait, but prices on each and every article lower than any other house in Duluth—that's going to be the Forward system!

What we want to say, though, is that we are ready for business! Doing business with "temporary fixtures," so to speak! And to offset inconveniences occasioned by elevators not yet running, and so forth, we shall make prices that will more than make up. Glad to see you!

PLAN HELP FOR FATHERLAND

Duluth members of the Sons of Norway gathered at an open meeting last evening in Kalamazoo hall, to discuss the disposition of the money that is to be collected for Norway at the celebration of the hundredth anniversary of her Independence, in 1914.

The Norwegians in America expect to raise $1,000,000 to send to the fatherland at the time of this observance.

No particular plan was indorsed, but several were suggested, two of them receiving much support. One was to give the money to the Norwegian government, to be in turn loaned to poor men with which to buy farms and promote the agricultural welfare of the land.

The other popular plan was to provide the poor people in the lake regions and seaports with fishing outfits, that they may earn their living as fishermen.

Another meeting will be held May 27, when the subject will be discussed again.

AUG. 12 FOR MINNESOTA DAY

At Alaska-Yukon Exposition and Governor to Speak.

Seattle, Wash., May 7.—Aug 12 will be featured at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition as Minnesota and Twin City day. A special train bearing a large party will come to Seattle from Minneapolis and St. Paul. Governor Johnson will be here and the largest delegation of Middle Western people to visit the coast this summer is expected to be in town during the days when special attractions will be offered.

Minnesota's governor wanted to be in Seattle for the celebration of Swedish day, and it may be that the date for the Swedish celebration will be changed. It is now fixed for July 31, with Aug. 12 as Norwegian day.

If Swedish day is not changed, Governor Johnson will be one of the speakers on Norwegian day, and will be the principal orator for Minnesota day.

Mayor C. J. Haynes of Minneapolis has formally accepted on behalf of his city the exposition date for the Minnesota and Twin City celebration. The mayor expects to be here, and believes that not only will Minneapolis and St. Paul be well represented, but that the entire state of Minnesota will send delegations.

BIG PLANS FOR FETING OF JAPS

Twelve Naval Officers to Visit Portland Next Month.

Portland, Or., May 7.—The feting of twelve Japanese officers of the cruiser fleet visiting Pacific coast ports in Portland June 7 and 8, is expected to furnish the best possible evidence that a genuine "entente cordiale" exists between the United States and Nippon.

Headed by Admiral Ijichi, the officers will arrive in Portland the morning of June 7, the first day of the rose festival. Everything possible that can be displayed in Portland in a scenic way will be shown to the visitors.

The feature of the visit will be a banquet to be given by representative citizens at the Portland hotel. Three hundred guests are expected to attend the banquet.

Following the banquet a reception will be held by Consul Nuamo of Portland in honor of his countrymen, to which the consul said 5,000 invitations would be issued.

WOMEN WHISTERS PLAY FOR BROOKLYN TROPHY.

Boston, Mass., May 7.—The more important trophies and championships being disposed of, the women "whisters" in the twelfth annual congress of the National Whist league competed today for the minor prizes, the Brooklyn and Quaker City trophies. The contest for the Brooklyn trophy was open to pairs of women who had won scores in the open progressive top games during the first three days' play, while the pairs who had made top scores in any morning trophy event were allowed to compete in the Quaker City trophies.

GAVE LIFE FOR A JOB

In Scramble for Tickets He Fell Into the Hold.

His life for a job, was the fate of Andrew Hanson, the unfortunate man who fell to his death in the hold of the steamer Northern Light at the Northern Pacific docks on Monday, as told in The Herald. The story of Hanson's death was that of the "Struggle for Work" so touchingly portrayed in marble by the famous statue of Sculptor Gelert, exhibited at the World's fair in Chicago, showing three men, an old man and two just about of age, in a struggle for possession of a ticket thrown from a factory window entitling the holder to admission and work.

Hanson lost his life while struggling for possession of a piece of cardboard that would entitle him to help load the steamer. The morning of the tragedy it had been announced some men were wanted to help load the boat. Only forty were needed, but at least 200 applied. Tickets were to be issued to the fortunate forty and there was a lively scramble about the deck of the steamer for the coveted pasteboards. As the men anxious for work pushed about the man giving out the tickets, Hanson was crowded over the open hatchway and fell below to his death.

Iron Rake Teeth kept From Digging a Lawn.

A wood rake is used to pick up the grass after cutting a lawn. If a wood rake is not at hand and you have an iron garden rake the teeth may be kept from digging into the ground by attaching a brass ball to each of the outer teeth. The brass balls are fastened to the teeth with set screws. After cutting and raking your lawn a glass of golden grain belt beer will rid you of that tired feeling which work of this kind often brings on. See that you have a case on hand. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

YOUNG WOMEN GIVE FESTIVAL

Swedish Methodist Church Society Gives Its Annual May Program.

The Young Ladies' Society of the First Swedish Baptist church presented its annual May festival last evening at the church, Nineteenth avenue west and First street. The attendance was large.

Rev. Bennett Erickson, pastor of the Bethel Baptist church delivered an address, in which he touched upon the work that is being accomplished by the young women of the church.

Miss Attilia Johnson opened the program with Scripture reading and invocation. A pleasing recitation was given by Miss Hannah Nelson. Her subject was "I will." Songs were given by the choir, the male chorus, and the ladies' quartet.

A vocal duet was given by Mrs. N. E. Erickson and Mrs. C. Hagberg. Mrs. E. Erickson and Miss Olga Hagberg gave a piano duet.

ALUMNI WILL BANQUET.

Former Pupils of Lincoln School to Have Spread.

The first annual banquet of the newly organized Lincoln Alumni association will be held this evening at the school building. The spread does not include the members of the graduating class, which will have a feast of its own at the end of the term.

John Spaldberg will act as toastmaster and an appropriate program of toasts has been arranged. There will also be a number of musical numbers.

OFFICERS INSTALLED.

North Star Lodge of Good Templars Has Meeting.

North Star lodge, I. O. G. T., held its installation of officers in Sloan's hall last evening. Beside the installation ceremonies, a delightful musical program was given. J. P. Bergstrom of West Duluth and Rev. K. Akerman of Hibbing delivered short addresses.

The officers installed are: Theodore Peterson, C. T.; John Johanson, W. T.; Gust Bjerke, P. C. T.; E. Johanson, L. C. T., Peter Strombeck, secretary; Carl Carlson, trustee; Albin Strom, financial secretary; Carl Carlson, marshal; Ida Hermanson, chaplain; Aron Benson, assistant marshal; Gust Landin, sentinel; William Granlof, guard; Otto Pearson assistant sentinel.

"SHINGLE" FEST PLANNED.

Young People of Zion Lutheran Church to Entertain.

A literary and musical program, followed by a "shingle" fest, will be given this evening at the Zion Norwegian Lutheran church by the Young People's society.

Rose Skogstrom, the blind singer, will sing, and numbers will also be given by Signe Fasling and Sidney Mortorud. Theodore Possum will play the piano. The address of welcome will be given by Henry Stephness. Other members of the society will speak.

At the close of the program all will repair to the church basement, where the postponed "shingle" fest will be enjoyed.

PREPARING FOR BANQUET.

Attendance Expected to Be Large at Adams Affair.

The Adams Alumni association will give a banquet to its members and to the graduating class of the Adams school this year on Friday evening, May 21.

Indications are that there will be about 200 in attendance. The serving of the supper will be in the hands of the women of the Second Presbyterian church.

A committee has been appointed to round up the members for the yearly feast. The graduates of the school, about thirty in number, are to be guests of honor at the banquet.

Roy Hood will act as toastmaster, and a number of prominent alumni, both of the city and out of town, will be called upon to respond to toasts. The next meeting of the committee on arrangements will be held Tuesday evening.

TEMPLE ROLLER RINK.

PRICE AVERAGED $1,000 A FOOT

The Lenox Hotel Site Is Appraised at $100,000.

Although the appraisers who yesterday afternoon finished their work of appraising the Lenox hotel frontage, refuse to give out the exact figure of the appraisement, it is understood that the appraisement was on the scale of $1,050 for the outside fifty feet and $950 for the inside fifty feet.

This brings the total appraisement to $100,000, which is considered a fair amount.

Owners of property with frontage on Superior street have been much interested in the appraisement of the Lenox hotel property as it would, in a way, influence the value of their property.

The appraisers were W. A. Holgate, R. B. Knox and William Getty.

STATE WILL SELL ITS LAND

Nearly 23,000 Acres in St. Louis County to Be Sold.

State Auditor Iverson has sent out notices of the sales of state school lands to be held in thirty-five counties of Minnesota during May, June and July. In St. Louis county there are 23,000 acres which will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder.

Previous to sale there is an appraisement which fixes a price below which the land cannot be sold. The appraised price cannot be less than $5 per acre.

The terms on which the purchaser may secure the land are the same as heretofore. Fifteen per cent of the price must be paid on date of sale and the balance in annual payments for a period of forty years, if desired, with small interest.

There are to be disposed of this year 5,000 acres in Lake county, 14,000 acres in Carlton county and 3,800 acres in Cook county. About 20,000 acres of state land in Itasca county will also be placed on the market.

ORDERS ARE GIVEN TO RUSH BALLASTING WORK.

Portland, Or., May 7.—Orders have been issued by officials of the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound railroad to rush ballasting work on the line between the Dakotas and the coast, and hundreds of freight cars are to be taken from the main line now in service and moved westward in preparation for handling the wheat crop this fall.

UNDER NEW ORDINANCE

Saloon Keeper Arrested for Selling Liquor to Minors.

May Prosecute Boys for Loitering in the Saloon.

Charged with selling intoxicating liquors to a minor, Edward Madden, a West Duluth saloon keeper, was arraigned in municipal court this morning. He pleaded not guilty, and his hearing was set for next Wednesday, May 12.

It is claimed that Madden sold a pint of whisky and blackberry wine, mixed, to Carl Johnson, who is said to be only 19 years of age. Johnson, it is alleged, shared the contents of the bottle with four younger boys, and one of them became drunk and was still intoxicated when he got home. His mother complained to the police, and Madden's arrest followed.

This is the first prosecution to be brought under the new liquor ordinance governing the sale of liquor to minors, which contains a provision making it a misdemeanor for a minor to enter a saloon, as well as making it a misdemeanor for the bartender who allows him to loiter there, or who sells him a drink. It is not known as yet whether both the boy and the bartender will be prosecuted.

In any event, the first case will be against Mr. Madden. Even if the city should take no action in the matter, the fact remains that Mr. Madden himself may decide to prosecute Johnson, under the terms of the new ordinance. Saloon Keepers are awaiting with interest the outcome of the case.

SPRING FISHING.

Many Good Catches Being Made in St. Louis River.

West Duluth fishermen are taking long hikes of late to nearby streams, and many are returning with good catches. According to reports, fishing is very good up the river and many are attracted to them.

Ducks may be seen by the hundreds in the St. Louis river. They seem to be more in evidence this spring than for a number of years past. The duck season does not open until late in the fall.

REPAIRS TO DOCK.

Owner of Zenith Passenger Boat Preparing for Summer Business.

Repairs have just been completed on the Zenith West Duluth dock, at Sixty-third avenue west, and J. A. Curo, captain of the passenger boat, is making preparations for a busy season this summer.

The Zenith is the craft which takes passengers for hire between West Duluth and the boat club up the St. Louis river. The big launch has been remodeled, enlarged and has a new 40-horse power engine to propel it.

ARE AFTER NEW SCHOOL

Smithville Residents Will Present Their Case to Board.

Building Old and Overcrowded and in Dangerous Location.

A petition, signed by thirty-five citizens and taxpayers of Smithville will be presented to the school board this evening at its regular meeting, asked for a new school building at Smithville and for a desirable location.

The present structure is a one-story frame building and has been in use for the past twenty-five years. According to the opinion voiced in the petition, the edifice is entirely lacking in those features which every up-to-date school building should possess.

The structure is totally devoid of ventilation, except by direct drafts through open doors and windows. Neither is it equipped with a heating plant by which a uniform temperature can be obtained in all parts of the building.

Another argument in favor of abolishing the old landmark is that the school rooms are now crowded, and more capacity will soon be needed. It is said that by next year, there will not be enough room for all of the Smithville school children, should the old structure again be pressed into service.

The dangerous location of the site is also pointed out in the petition. The building is on the main thoroughfare at Smithville and located only a fraction of a block from railroad tracks. It is so situated that it is on the opposite side of the tracks from where the majority of school children reside. All families except four in Smithville, reside on the opposite side of the tracks from the school.

Not only do the Smithville people ask for a new building, but they are also petitioning the board of education to buy a new site on the south side of the tracks where it will be easy of access to the greatest number of children without compelling them to cross the tracks.

It is expected that a large delegation of Smithville citizens will attend the meeting of the board of education tonight and will speak to the directors in regard to the matter.

MILLER WILL BE GUEST OF HONOR

Hon. Clarence B. Miller, congressman from the Eighth district, will be the guest of honor this evening at the regular session of the West Duluth Commercial club. He will speak before the club on matters relative to the rebuilding of the Grassy Point bridge between West Duluth and Superior.

Mr. Miller says he is using what influence he has in Washington to have the war department hold up the plans for reconstructing the bridge as submitted by the Northern Pacific railroad. The West Duluth and Superior Commercial clubs are working for a revision of the plans so as to include accommodations for pedestrians, team traffic, and street car services.

Under the charter of 1891 the railroad company will build the bridge, there is a provision that the plans shall be amended to accommodate the people living at either end of the bridge, if the war department says the word. If provision should be made for street cars, toll might be collected, as in the case of the interstate bridge. In the case of foot passengers and team traffic, there would be no toll, however.

Mr. Miller says that if the proposition hangs fire until next session he will introduce a bill requiring that the plans specify the accommodations asked for by West Duluthians and Superior people. The whole matter will be discussed tonight at the meeting of the club.

EXPENSIVE JOB.

City Will Spend $10,000 on the Fond du Lac Road.

Grading has begun on the road between Fond du Lac and the bridge at the end of the Grand avenue car line. The big gulley beyond the Ironton steel plant will be leveled off and the concrete walls parallel to the ravine, which were constructed last fall, will also be filled in with earth.

About $10,000 will be spent by the city in making a uniform driveway to Fond du Lac. Citizens in West Duluth have been after a road of this kind for some time past, and in a short time their hopes will be realized. Gulbrandson Bros. are in charge of the work.

Irving Alumni Banquet.

Final arrangements for the annual banquet of the Irving Alumni association were made last evening at a meeting of the members at the Irving school. It was decided to confine the attendance this year to members of the association and to members of the graduating class only. The feast will be held at the school building some time during the first week in June. The exact date has not yet been announced.

Chickens Cause Trouble.

Complaints are being brought into the West Duluth police station that troublesome chickens in certain neighborhoods are doing damage to the next door neighbor's flower garden, or front lawn. The complaints are turned over to Poundmaster J. W. Mann, who is busy looking up the cases.

With Boiler Works.

Frank Kreidler, who returned a short time ago from Pittsburg, Pa., where he was taking an engineering course, has taken a position with the Northwestern Steam Boiler works, and assumed his duties yesterday. He expects to work there during the summer for the purpose of getting practical knowledge in connection with the technical education received while at school.

West Duluth Briefs.

Julius Field of Minneapolis is in West Duluth, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bedard of Sixty-fifth avenue west for a few days.

A number of West Duluthians will leave tomorrow evening for Cloquet to take in the ball game Sunday between the Oak Halls and the Cloquet nine.

Frank Otto returned today from Sault Ste. Marie, where he has been working for the past month.

J. A. Scott left last evening for a two weeks' business trip in the East.

Frank Kreidler expects to receive his new Buick motor car next week.

A runaway yesterday was caught at the corner of Central avenue and Ramsey by an officer. The animals were frightened by a street car on Ramsey street and the driver lost control of his team. No damage resulted.

The exterior of Spencer's pharmacy is being painted today. Work on the interior decorations has practically been completed.

Invitations are out for a dancing party to be given Tuesday evening at Wade's hall under the auspices of the Fairmount Athletic club. Biewitt's orchestra will play.

Old Hickory camp, M. W. A., will hold a card party at its hall on Wednesday evening. Prizes are to be awarded.

Mr. and Mrs. John Peterson, Payne, Minn., will make their future home in West Duluth. They are to locate on Forty-ninth avenue west.

A special meeting of West Duluth lodge, No. 85, Degree of Honor, A. O. U. W., was held this afternoon at Gilley's hall.

The Longfellow Alumni will meet this evening and make arrangements for the annual banquet of the association, to be held in the near future. The meeting will be held at the school.

Mrs. Andrew Lind of West Duluth is reported to be very low at St. Luke's hospital.

The old Crescent team of West Duluth will hereafter play as the Union Match company team. The company has furnished the players with new suits, and the team will be known under a new name.

The Hematite club will meet this evening at the home of William Riches, Bayview Heights. C. I. Towner will read a paper on "The History of the Arbor Day Movement."

Selma, the 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Root, West Duluth, underwent an operation for appendicitis yesterday. The case is a serious one, and the child is in a very critical condition today.

Watch repairing, Hurst, W. Duluth.

HE SEES IT ROSY-HUED

General Passenger Agent Cleland Optimistic as to Business.

A. M. Cleland, general passenger agent of the Northern Pacific railway, was at the Head of the Lakes today, inspecting the Lake Superior division of the road.

In the opinion of Mr. Cleland, the present summer and fall will be a very good one for the passenger business of the Northern Pacific, not only because of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition at Seattle, but because of the fact that today the great country of the West is attracting thousands of homeseekers and people who are going West simply for the sake of looking at the possibilities of a new country.

Mr. Cleland believes that the advice of Horace Greely is being taken to heart by many people, who will go West, not so much to see the exposition, as to look over the opportunities for farming and fruit raising.

Mr. Cleland says that the railroad is working hand in hand with the government, in the irrigation projects of Montana and the Yakima Valley of Washington, and also that the railroad is co-operating with the experiment station and government information bureau in the matter of the agricultural development of North Dakota.

The farmers and settlers in that state are being supplied with all of the information possible upon the varied subjects of agriculture, and every encouragement is being given to the settler.

The irrigation projects of Montana and the dry farming methods, both of which were assisted by the Northern Pacific railway, have attracted many settlers to the West, according to Mr. Cleland.

As to the benefit to the West of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, Mr. Cleland expressed the opinion that they will equal those of the Lewis and Clark exposition held at Portland in 1905. Many of the people who went out to Oregon then have since returned and taken up fruit farming and agricultural pursuits. The Portland exposition gave an impetus to the development of the West, and Mr. Cleland is of the opinion that even better results will be obtained by the exposition that opens in Seattle in June.

The Lake Superior division of the Northern Pacific will be equipped with some new Atlantic type engines, of a heavier construction than the present engines in use upon the short line run to St. Paul. These engines, while they will not decrease the running time between Duluth and St. Paul, will enable a better handling of the trains and will result in fewer delays.

Mr. Cleland was through North Dakota only last week and states that the crop outlook is very good. The farmers are confident that the present season's crop will be a good one.

Mr. Cleland left tonight for St. Paul.

LITTLE BABY HORRIBLY BURNED

By Boiling Grease—Skin All Came off One Side of Face and Head—Tried an Ointment which Made It All Fester—Wee Sufferer Seemed Disfigured for Life.

CURED WITHOUT A MARK BY CUTICURA

"About a year and eight months ago my baby, aged ten months, was sitting on the mat beside the fender and we were preparing the breakfast when the frying-pan full of boiling grease was upset and it went all over one side of the baby's face and head. One of the family ran and wiped the scald with a towel and you may think what a mess she made, pulling the entire skin off. We took her to a chemist who told us to get a doctor, which w did. He tended her a week and gave me some stuff like lard to put on. But it all festered and I thought the baby was disfigured for life. A woman close beside me told me to try Cuticura Ointment. I used about three boxes and it was wonderful how it healed. In about five weeks it was better and there wasn't a mark to tell where the scald had been. People used to ask me if that was the baby that was scalded and they would hardly believe me when I told them she was and what cured her face. Her skin is just like velvet and I have never been without Cuticura since. Cuticura cured three other children of ringworm besides, so I have good cause to thank it for what it has done. Mrs. Hare, 1, Henry St., South Shields, Durham, England, March 22, 1905."

CUTICURA

World's Favourite Emollient.

A single anointing with Cuticura Ointment, preceded by a hot bath with Cuticura Soap and followed in the severer cases by a dose of Cuticura Pills, is often sufficient to afford immediate relief in the most distressing forms of torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning and scaly humours, eczemas, rashes and irritations, permit rest and sleep and point to a speedy cure in the majority of cases, when all else fails.

ELY COUNCIL IN A BUSY SESSION

Many Important Matters Disposed of By City Lawmakers.

Ely, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new city council held one of the most important sessions of the year this week.

The following officials presented their bonds, and the same were accepted by the city: Lewis J. White, city clerk; Nels Nylnus, constable; John Lamuth, chief of police; John Cosgrove, city treasurer; Joseph Seraphine, police officer; John Lamuth, constable, and L. J. White, clerk of the municipal court.

Applications for doing the scavenger work were as follows: John Skantz, John Bedford, John Louchin, Anton Kotchevar, Martin Petek and Sylvester Kautio. The applications were laid on the table and the council voted to authorize the board of health to employ labor to remove the garbage and to have full authority to act in the matter in the way of employing help and paying the necessary expenses thereof.

The following bids were read and accepted and contracts awarded: John Redford, hauling coal to light and water plant, 25 cents per load; Pittsburgh Coal company, soft coal, $5.75 per ton; Peter Schaefer, city printing at legal rates, and John Bedford, city sprinkling contract, 50 cents per hour.

The report from the clerk of court, showing amount of fines and fees collected in municipal court and deposited with the city treasurer for the month and placed on file.

The finance committee reported that they had examined the pay rolls for the month of April and bills against the city, had found them correct and recommended that they should be allowed and paid.

The finance committee recommended that the First National Bank of Ely be named as the city depository. The report was accepted.

The special committee appointed to act on the petition from the fire department for increased compensation for services, etc., submitted a report recommending that firemen be paid $2 for the first hour at fires and $1 per hour for each additional hour; that practices be paid for at the rate of $2 per man for each practice, for a total of not to exceed twelve practices during each year; that fire alarms be installed in the homes of the chief and first and second assistant chiefs of the fire department, and also in each livery barn in the city; that for the present no team be purchased by the city for use at fires, and that compensation of teams at night be the same as for day service.

It was voted that the mayor appoint a committee of three members of the council to act together with the mayor and confer with the secretary of the charter board, and draw up any desired amendments to the city charter, and report to the council at its next meeting.

A resolution was passed that the city engage the services of W. A. McCurdy to make a survey of the streets of the city for the purpose of establishing a grade for the city, and that he make a survey for the proposed main sewer to the lake, and submit a recommendation to the council at its next meeting as to the most feasible route to be followed, and to furnish an estimate of the cost of said work.

Alderman Ayres offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved, That there to and hereby is levied against each male inhabitant of the city of Ely, between the ages of 21 and 50 years, not exempt by law, one-half day's labor upon the public streets of the city, which may be commuted by the payment of $1 to the chief of police of the city of Ely."

SETTLERS BUILD BRIDGE.

Put Span Across St. Louis River, Independent of County Aid.

Eveleth, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A delegation was present of the settlers around Eveleth, asking help in getting the roads, at last night's business men's meeting. The road they need is in section 36, and would benefit a number of the settlers, as it would end at Morrison road, which leads into Eveleth, and would also connect with the old Vermilion road. The farmers wanting this road have already built a bridge over the St. Louis river that would cost about $1,200. County Commissioner Neil McInnis, who was present, said he was over the district in which the road was proposed and thought such a road would be built soon, as it was needed. With the building of the bridge by the settlers he was assured that the people were in earnest.

Solomon Sax was appointed to see the city council about having the Fayal road near the Iron Range depot fixed, and P. E. Dowling will see the Fayal people about having the earth dumped there surfaced.

A communication was received from Judge Vivian Prince, asking the association to do something about a Fourth of July celebration. As such a thing is held here every year and the people are interested, it was decided to put the matter off until the next monthly meeting.

Assistant Secretary Boyle was instructed to write to Senators Nelson and Clapp, asking them to use their influence to secure free hides on the tariff bill now in congress.

DEATH CLAIMS SOME VICTIMS

Several Deaths in Two Harbors Locality This Week.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—John C. Donahue of Highland died there suddenly Tuesday morning of heart failure. Deceased was 64 years of age. He was a Civil war veteran, and had resided at Highland for the past twelve years, being employed as timber cruiser and locator. His remains were brought here for interment.

Word has been received here of the death at Forest Lake, Wis., of A. L. Flatley, who formerly worked as operator at various points on the Duluth & Iron Range.

The funeral of Mrs. Ellen Anderson, who died Monday of typhoid fever, was held Thursday afternoon from the Swedish M. E. church and was largely attended. Rev. E. A. Wahlquist conducted the services, and the remains were laid to rest in Lakeview cemetery.

Charles Seaberg, aged 41 years, died Tuesday. Deceased had resided here a number of years, being the past few years employed as sexton at Lakeview cemetery. The cause of death was kidney trouble. He was unmarried and leaves four sisters and two brothers to mourn his loss. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon from the First M. E. church.

FAREWELL TO FATHER HOGAN

Popular Virginia Priest's Parishioners Bid Him Godspeed.

Virginia, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—With a show of real affection and regret, the people of Our Lady of Lourdes' church last night bid farewell to Father James Hogan, who will leave tomorrow for East Grand Forks, Minn., to take up the work in his new pastorate.

The farewell was held in North Pole hall, and was attended by a large number of the parishioners. After a banquet, served by the ladies of the church, Father Floyd of Eveleth, as spokesman for the people of Father Hogan's parish, presented the departing priest with a gold watch and chain. The choir and altar boys made special presentations.

In a short speech, Father Hogan thanked his parishioners for their kindness to him during his pastorate and at the time of his departure. He was deeply moved by the show of affection and regard.

The successor to Father Hogan has not yet been announced. The services Sunday will probably be conducted by a temporary appointee, and a permanent appointment will be made later by Bishop McGolrick.

HIBBING SCHOOL EVENT.

Class Ball to Be Given in Close's Hall Friday Evening.

Hibbing, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tonight at close's hall will occur the big event in the local school season in the form of the fourth annual junior-senior ball. The hall has been very tastefully decorated, the school colors of blue and white predominating. The La Bresse orchestra of Duluth will furnish the music.

The new hotel is practically completed as far as the building itself is concerned and all that now remains to be done is the interior and its decorations. The building is a three-story compressed brick structure and adds greatly to the appearance of Third avenue as one enters the depot.

LAKE COUNTY BOARD.

Some Matters Disposed of at This Week's Meeting.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the county commissioners' meeting this week it was decided to extend the time for receiving bids on the five miles of state road until June 1.

The auditing committee reported $30,959.74 in the treasury April 30.

A request from the Duluth & Northern Minnesota railway that certain lands be taken from the tax roll on account of being used as gravel pit was denied.

The county auditor was authorized to purchase suitable lands at tax sale to be held July 1, for establishing a county poor farm.

The auditor was authorized to call for bids for grading about four miles of state road. Also for making a new set of tract index for Lake county.

HIBBING MINES BUSY.

Condition Much Improved Over Those of May Last Year.

Hibbing, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Croxton and the Latonia mines at Carson lake are expected to open up next week. At the present time nearly every mine in the Hibbing district is being worked. The Utica at present is only loading about five cars a day and the Agnew fifty. The Great Northern is shipping agout 400 cars a day, while the Missabe road is shipping about fifteen train loads of ore daily. The Sellers, Burt and Morris pits are using one shovel each in ore on both the day and night shift, while the Hull is using two. This is a great improvement over last year at this time, when the latter mine had not commenced work at all.

A SMALL RED SPOT.

Novel Experiment By Which It May Be Made to Disappear.

A peculiar feature about poslam, the new skin discovery is that no one is asked to buy it without first sending to the Emergency Laboratories No. 32 West Twenty-first street, New York city, for an experimental sample and applying same to an affected part of the skin, about the size of a silver dollar. It will clear the spot so treated in twenty-four hours—a remarkable visual demonstration of its powers.

While poslam has been mentioned principally in connection with the cure of eczema, the most stubborn of skin diseases, it must be remembered that when used for itch, hives, pimples, blotches, acne, itching feet, scaly scalp, chafing of infants and similar minor skin troubles its action is all the more pronounced, results being seen after an overnight application. As only a small quantity of poslam is necessary to cure such cases, a special fifty-cent package, usually sufficient, has been placed on sale at the Lyceum Pharmacy and W. A. Abbett's in Duluth, and other leading drug stores throughout the country.

TWO HARBORS BOY HURT.

Explodes a Dynamite Cap With the Usual Result

Two Harbors, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Finding a dynamite cap as he was returning from school and exploding it with a rock, Harry Nylund, the 9-year-old son of Mrs. Eeri Nylund, was badly injured by the resulting explosion. Besides a deep wound in his right breast, where three pieces of torpedo were removed, he sustained a scalp wound, the ends of both thumbs were blown off and his wrists were cut. The boy was brought to the Budd hospital, where the wounds were dressed and there is a very good chance of his recovery.

AURORA BALL NINE.

Range Town May Be Able to Have Team This Year.

Aurora, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Aurora this summer bids fair to have a strong baseball team. Capt. Beecroft of last year's nine has a line out for a good twirler and two infielders, and if employment can be secured for them they will probably come here.

Of last year's nine, four of the star players will not live in Aurora. Emmerson, left fielder, is playing with Bloomer, Wis.; Carlson, right fielder, is playing with Bovey; Koch, shortstop, and Spalding, pitcher, are both playing with Eastern teams. A tryout of the new material will be had Sunday afternoon, if the weather permits. Owing to the St. James mine not operating this year, the stockpile grounds will be used again for a baseball park and will be fixed up considerable. A new grandstand will be erected and bleachers built.

CHILD'S BURNS FATAL.

Eveleth Tot Dead—From Burns Received Playing With Matches.

Eveleth, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Minnie Lenosi, aged 5, who was very severely burned Tuesday afternoon, died yesterday afternoon, after much suffering. The child was playing with her little sister in the house, while the mother was downtown shopping. She got hold of some matches and began lighting them. One of them caught on her dress and as she ran screaming into the street the flames increased in height and burned her face. The neighbors put the flames out, but not before the child's face was a mass of blisters. Her hands and shoulders were also burned severely. She has been lying partly conscious since the accident. Her parents are Italians. The father is a mason. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the home. Interment will be in Virginia.

SOME STRIKERS LEAVE.

No Delay in Handling the Boats at Two Harbors.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A few of the striking union men left some of the ore boats here this week. No delay was caused. A force of watchmen are employed at all the docks.

About twenty trains of ore, or about 700 carloads, per day are now being received at the ore docks here.

TWO HARBORS EPWORTH LEAGUE ELECTS OFFICERS.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Epworth league has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Helen Coleman; first vice president, Dudley V. Blood; second vice president, William Footman; third vice president, Sue Woodfill; fourth vice president, Edna Bonham; secretary, Gust Carlson; treasurer, Leroy Pegelow; organist, Mabel Trevena. Installation will be held on the 16th inst.

GILBERT BOOMING.

Gilbert, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the price of lots here has gone up considerably during the past year is noted from the fact that one lot sold for $400 last year, brought $1,000 recently, and the same price has been offered for other lots. Buildings are springing up all along Broadway and as the street is quite long it is evident that there will be no dearth of stores.

OFFICE ROOF DROPS.

Aurora, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The roof of the vault in the office of the St. James mine fell in Wednesday night. Considerable damage was done. It is thought that owing to no fire having been in the building for several months, the brick work had become damp and loosened.

Will Thank State Officers.

Hibbing, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial club has appointed D. T. Collins and Scott L. Holtzander a committee to draft resolutions to be forwarded to St. Paul, thanking Governor Johnson, Lieutenant Governor Eberhardt and Speaker Rockne for the fair treatment which they accorded Northeastern Minnesota during the recent session of the legislature.

Chief Ranger Spoke.

Eveleth, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large number of Foresters went to Gilbert last night, where they heard an address by Supreme Ranger of the United States R. C. Sherrard.

The blue section of the M. E. church ladies, who are trying to raise the church debt, will have a home cooking sale tomorrow afternoon at the Eveleth Cash grocery.

Duluth Minister To Lecture.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.—Dr. J. S. Kirtley of Duluth will lecture at the opera house Tuesday evening, May 18, on "In the Barefoot Kingdom," under the auspices of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. There will be no admission charge.

SULLIVAN HELD TO GRAND JURY

Recently Released From Jail, Alleged to Have Tried Robbery.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Sullivan, charged with assault with intent to commit robbery, was given a preliminary hearing before Justice Kearney. He was held to the next grand jury in $2,000 bonds, which sum he was unable to furnish. He was not able to have a lawyer to defend him. Sullivan protested on the size of the bond, saying if it were a resonable oen he would be able to furnish it.

Sullivan is alleged to have assaulted Mrs. E. J. Whaling, one evening about 8 o'clock, when she was on her way home from town. Mr. and Mrs. Whaling live on the South side, and the walk leading to their home is through a pine grove, where the assault occurred. Mrs. Whaling was carrying her purse, and it is believed he intended to secure it. He struck her a vicious blow on the side of the head. Her screams were immediately heard by two men in a house near by. Their appearance frightened the assailant, and he ran toward town. Roy Wheaton and Hubbard Stearns also heard Mrs. Whailing's cries for help. They gave chase to the fleeing man, who tried to hide under the Mississippi river bridge. Deputy Sheriff McKeown was found, and soon he had the fellow in jail. Sullivan had only been discharged from the county jail a couple of days before the occurrence.

Thomas Wilkinson of Regina, Sask., Can., was an arrival from Chicago Tuesday, where he had been on a business mission. He will remain here a few days to look after the affairs of Mrs. W. B. Holman.

Mrs. W. B. Holman arrived in Grand Rapids last week from Niagara, N. Y., where she spent the winter with her daughter. She will remain in Grand Rapids during the summer months.

Mrs. George F. Kramer entertained the ladies of the Monday Whist club and their husbands recently. Six o'clock dinner was served, after which cards weer enjoyed until 11 o'clock.

LIGHTS FOR NASHWAUK.

Electric Lighting Scheme Being Considered By Council.

Nashwauk, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work is being pushed rapidly on the new road to the Pearson mine, northeast of town. Four teams and a large crew of men are at work.

The site for the new Methodist church is being cleared, and work on it will begin soon.

The village council has a new electric light plan in view. Lights are badly needed, as many new buildings are being built and the plant now in use will not supply the needs of the town.

The Commercial club met Wednesday evening at the city hall to discuss matters concerning improvements in the village.

GRAND RAPIDS WILL HEAR W. J. BRYAN.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Great interest is being shown here in the lecture to be delivered at the high school auditorium Saturday night by Hon. William J. Bryan of Nebraska. Mr. Bryan will deliver his famous lecture on "The Price of a Soul," which will also be given by the composer at the First M. E. church in Duluth next Monday evening. The advance sale of seats indicates the noted man will have a large audience.

FISH DYNAMITER IS CONFINED IN JAIL.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The marshal of Taconite arrested John Hakkenen for dynamiting fish in Lawrence lake, near that place. The accused was taken before Justice O'Connell of Taconite and upon pleading guilty was fined $50 and costs or thirty days in jail. Sheriff Riley brought him over to serve out the thirty days in default of the fine imposed.

TWENTY SHOTS EXCHANGED IN CAPTURE OF STABBER.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 7.—Three persons were injured today in a fight between Tony Trappoli, a street cleaner, and a squad of policemen who were trying to arrest him on a charge of stabbing W. H. Vaught. It was not till a score of shots had been exchanged that Trapolli was overpowered.

TWO HARBORS ORE DOCKS VERY BUSY.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are now a total of about 200 men employed at the ore docks. At the coal and lumber docks many additional men are now working.

dispatch, said that her school had had a good year. It had been attended by fifty students, of whom fifteen had been graduated and gone out to teach in the lower schools of the region or continue their studies at Aintab seminary. This school is the highest and best in the Kessab district.

Miss Chambers maintained also a kindergarten with forty-five pupils.

There was at Kessab a congregation of 1,800 Protestants, and in addition to its schools the missionary station maintained a church library and various young people's societies.

Brigandage Is Rife.

Constantinople, May 7.—There is considerable disorder in the country surrounding Constantinople and brigandage is being carried on in the very suburbs of the capital. This condition of affairs is a result of the rapid changes in government and undoubtedly can be laid to the doors of deserters from the former Constantinople garrison and political fugitives who have undertaken to live on the country.

Count Dene, secretary of the Austrian embassy, who is at present engaged in organizing the first fox hunt in Constantinople, rode out to Sweet Waters, in the western suburbs, yesterday, to examine the country. While there, a man stepped out of a clump of bushes in the highway, pointed a revolver at the count and demanded money. The count turned quickly and galloped away. The man fired two shots, but neither found its target.

A party of American tourists driving yesterday afternoon outside of Pera were warned by a native that it was unsafe to go further, as beyond them was a group of bandits.

Cruiser Leaves Gibraltar.

Gibraltar, May 7.—The American cruiser North Carolina left today for Alexandretta. The Montana is still coaling, but she will follow the North Carolina probably this afternoon. These vessels are on their way to Turkish waters for the protection of American interests.

Guarding American Schools.

Adana, Asiatic Turkey, May 7.—Macedonia soldiers sent here by the authorities are today faithfully guarding the American schools and missionary residences, but otherwise the city is demoralized.

The grain on the Adana plain is ripe for the harvest, but no Armenian refugees dare go back to their farms, as the surrounding country is still dangerous for any man not a Turk.

The relief work is being carried on systematically in Adana. Relief camps have been re-established for persons suffering from contagious diseases. It is costing about $1,250 a day to run these places.

Constipation

"For over nine years I suffered with chronic constipation and during this time I had to take an injection of warm water once every 24 hours before I could have an action on my bowels. Happily I tried Cascarets, and today I am a well man. During the nine years before I used Cascarets I suffered untold misery with internal piles. Thanks to you, I am free from all that this morning. PHONE EMPLOYES IN LABOR UNION

Transform Organization in France, Giving Challenge to Government.

Paris, May 7.—Public sympathy and the law seem today to be clearly against the Posts, Telegraphs and Telephones Employes' association, which yesterday gave a challenge to the government by transforming itself into a syndicate, or union, under the laws of 1884. This action placed the association on the same footing as the Workmen's union and was calculated to give it the right to strike against its employer, the state. The newspapers this morning, with the exception of the extreme Socialist organs, are unsparing in their denunciations of the stand taken by the association as an act of rebellion, and they urge the government to proceed with energy to crush the insurrection before the movement engulfs the other state employes.

Evidence accumulates today that the action of this union yesterday was only the first step in a far-reaching plan of the General Federation of Labor to place the entire machinery of the government at its mercy.

The law of 1884 limits unions to professions and trades engaged in "competitive industry," and the attorney general of the republic is expected to decide summarily that the syndicate is illegal and order its dissolution.

As soon as this is done the organizers of the movement will be subject to heavy fines and imprisonment if they persist in meeting.

The congress of railroad men, in a secret session held today, decided to submit the question of a general strike to a referendum, and appointed a permanent strike committee. Dispatches received here from Havre, Lyons and other cities say that the Posts, Telegraphs & Telephones employes association has voted in principle for a general strike.

PRETTY MODEL BECOMES WIFE

Girl Whom Christy Drew Marries Artist B. Cory Kilbert.

New York, May 7.—B. Cory Kilbert, the well known artist and Miss Elsie de Ora Bernardo, known among New York studios as one of the prettiest professional models, were married last night at Larchmont. The wedding was secret, the only one knowing about it until the ceremony was performed, being Penrhyn Stanlaws, the illustrator and portrait painter, who accompanied the couple to Larchmont.

After Mr. Kilbert and his bride had started on their honeymoon trip, Mr. Stanlaws announced the news and added that it was not until two months ago, when Mr. Kilbert first called the young lady as a model to his studio, that he had met her.

Miss Bernardo had been one of the most sought-after models in New York, having posed for such artists as Howard Chandler Christy, Henry Mosler, William H. Hyde, Harrison Fisher, A. B. Wenzel, Frederick Fraser and others. She is the younger daughter of Carlos T. Bernardo of Clifton Park, Weehawken, N. J., while Mr. Kilbert is a Canadian of Ontario.

WANT RED WING MAN DECLARED A BANKRUPT.

St. Paul, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—That Herman E. Ulm, "trading as H. E. Ulm & Co.," who sell cigars, tobacco, candy and sporting goods at wholesale and retail in Red Wing, Minn., has been selling his stock at less than cost price so that he might convert the proceeds to his own use is asserted by G. Pfaum & Sons of Minneapolis; George McConway, incorporated, of Cedar Falls, Iowa; Franklin MacVeagh & Co., of Chicago, and the Quincy Showcase works of Quincy, Ill., in a petition filed in the United States district court yesterday. The petitioners want Mr. Ulm declared a bankrupt.

MARINE NEWS

LONGSHOREMEN WILL MEET TO TAKE ACTION ON STRIKE

May Vote to Act In Sympathy With Lake Seamen.

Seamen Issue Warnings to Keep Away From Lakes.

A meeting of the Duluth branch of the International Longshoremen's union will be held within the next few days, probably Tuesday, and the most important matter to be brought up will be the general strike situation, as it affects the longshoremen.

In a majority of the larger Great Lake ports, similar meetings will be held at the same time, in line with instructions issued by T. V. O'Connor, president of the union. President O'Connor has also called a meeting of the national presidents of the five organizations under the jurisdiction of the longshoremen's union for tomorrow at Buffalo.

At these meetings a general plan of action will be formulated, and a conference with the leaders in the marine strike will follow. The attitude which the longshoremen will assume is of the greatest importance, as their union is one of the strongest in existence, with an influence in the labor world that would throw heavy odds to the side of the strikers if they should take part.

Union leaders are urging the officials to order union longshoremen to refuse to handle the cargoes of vessels manned by non-union crews. If this should be done, it would result in a complete tie-up of traffic on the Great Lakes.

Officials Mum.

It has not been possible to obtain a statement from any of the Duluth and Superior officials of the longshoremen's union. They admit having received instructions from the headquarters of the International union in the East, but decline to say of what nature. It is thought that one of the results of the meetings called by President O'Connor will be the giving out of a public statement in which the future course of the longshoremen will be outlined.

The national headquarters of the lake seamen have ordered thousands of handbills printed for general distribution on docks and wharves. A few of these have been passed about in Duluth. The posters characterize the continuous discharge book system of the Lake Carriers as rank blacklisting and an effort to establish serfdom in America. The bills warn sailors, wheelmen, watchmen, cooks, oilers, deck hands and firemen to keep away from ports of the Great Lakes on account of the strike and lockout.

Nothing of importance has arisen as affecting the marine engineers. They feel that they are gaining ground as the season advances and that they will soon be sent out without regard to contracts. It was stated today that the chief engineer and assistant of the Lambert, obtained shore leave yesterday. After talking with union men ashore they decided to leave the vessel. Going back for their clothes, they were permitted on board, but did not return to shore.

Vesselmen say they are very well pleased with the progress that has been made in handling boats this year and that no change will be made in the plans adopted by the Lake Carriers' association for the operation of their boats.

READ HIS OWN DEATH NOTICES

Capt. Donald Gillies, the popular master of the Western Transit steamer Superior, is receiving the congratulations of his many friends in Duluth on his being alive. Soo dispatches of last week had it that Capt. Gillies had died on a ferry boat, whereas it was the mate, Donald McLeod, who had succumbed. Capt. Gillies enjoyed imminsely reading his own obituary notices, and says it pays to die once in a while, just to find out what the world thinks about you.

The Superior was one of the vessels delayed at the Soo. After having met with an accident in the ice of Whitefish bay Capt. Gillies was compelled to put back to the Soo for repairs. She brought in a big consignment of package freight.

ENGINEER FELL ASLEEP ON RAIL

Not Missed By Crew Until the Call for Dinner.

Harbor Beach, Mich., May 7.—The steamer A. L. Hopkins of Cleveland came into the harbor here yesterday afternoon to report the loss of Joseph Walder of Cleveland, who was second engineer on the Hopkins. The last seen of Walder was when the boat was about four miles north of Port Huron. He was then sitting on the rail and smoking. It is thought that he must have gone to sleep and fallen overboard. He was off watch, and was not missed until the crew was called to dinner.

FEW BOATS AT FORT WILLIAM

Strikers Claim They Have Tied Up Canadian Port.

Fort William, Ont., May 7.—There is a great dearth of vessels this season at the Canadian Head of the Lakes. Officials of the Lake Carriers' association say it is because it is impossible to obtain cargoes. Officials of the unions say it is because American lines affiliated with the Lake Carriers' association cannot man their vessels with competent men on account of the strike. There are cargoes at Port Arthur and Fort William and Canadian boats are getting them. The steamer Butler, one of a few American boats at Fort William, is having all kinds of trouble with its crew, despite the fact that a professional strike-breaker is on board. The members of the crew have called on a Fort William magistrate in an effort to force the captain to pay them wages for the up trip. They say they do not want to work on an alleged "unfair" craft and they will have to quit right now. Most of the men were booked at the Soo, and they will have to return there before they can force payment of their wages. The men seem to fear there will be trouble when the boat gets back to the strike zone.

SOO CANAL TONNAGE FOR APRIL 221,611.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The April tonnage through the Soo canal was 221,611 tons. This is larger than last year. The great bulk of the freight downbound was wheat, 1,000,000 bushels passing through. One hundred and ninety-two vessels were locked through during the eleven days of navigation in April. The Weitzel lock is now in commission.

BOAT LAKE CHAMPLAIN DAMAGED BY HEAVY ICE.

St. John's, Nfld., May 7.—The steamer Lake Champlain, bound from Liverpool to Montreal, put in here today, leaking from a hole stoved in her bow by heavy ice off Cape Race yesterday. There are about a thousand passengers on board.

The vessel made water so rapidly that it was considered unsafe to proceed to her destination, and it was decided to dock her for temporary repairs.

The Lake Champlain left Liverpool on April 28 for Montreal, in command of Capt. Webster. She is a steamer of 4,685 tons net, and is owned by the Canadian Pacific Railway company. She was built in Glasgow in 1900.

GASHES FOUND IN THE THROAT

Girl's Body Exhumed; Diphtheria Supposed Cause of Death.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 7.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Marinette, Wis., says:

Huge gashes in the throat and left side of the body of Miss Minnie Sacowski of Pound, this county, were revealed to relatives when the girl's corpse was exhumed today.

Death was supposed to have resulted from black diphtheria in a hospital in Menominee, Mich., the girl having been taken there from Niagara, where she was employed.

Suspicious circumstances surrounding the girl's demise caused relatives to start an investigation, which is now in progress.

LARGE FARGO CLASS GRADUATES THIS YEAR.

Fargo, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thirty girls and eighteen boys will graduate this year at the Fargo high school. It is one of the largest classes in recent years, and is exceptionally high in its class work. The new board of education organized by electing D. B. Holt president.

LIVES LOST IN PRAIRIE FIRES

Further Reports Received of Fatalities in Southern Saskatchewan.

Winnipeg, Man., May 7.—Further reports of lives being lost in prairie fires in Southern Saskatchewan are at hand. A farmer named Klein was burned out forty miles north of Swift Current, one child was burned to death and four other members of that family are dying.

South of Swift Current, twenty-five miles, a whole township was burned over and only 8,000 acres of pasture left. The fire started from a German village, Johannes Hadick, a Hollander, aged 64, was out fighting the flames and perished. The mounted police are so busy prosecuting fire cases that they cannot attend to all complaining. All of the fires were started by careless new settlers, who allowed small fires to get beyond their control.

CONCERT PROGRAM.

Informal Entertainment to Be Given at the Masonic Temple.

The program for the free informal organ recital to be given at the Masonic temple, Sunday, May 9, at 3:30 p. m., follows:

Selection—"Friend Fritz" ....Mascagni
Suite — "From Foreign Parts," Deutschland ..... Moszkowski
Fantasie—"The Oolah" .....Lacoq
Romanze—"Celeste Aida" .....Verdi
Fantasie dramatique—"Le Desert" ..... David
Selection—"Die Lustige Witwe"..Lehar
Potpourri—"Le Domino Noir"...Auber
Overture—"Tricoche and Cacolet" ..... Suppe

In this program Nos. 3 and 6 are of a popular character, but those selections will not detract from the excellence of the standard of the rest and will serve as an intermission or a tonic. "Friend Fritz" by Mascagni; "Le Desert," by David and Suppe's "Tricoche and Cacolet," are not generally well known in this country, but possess merit and are worth listening to as samples of the styles of the different composers.

The other numbers are comparatively well known and are always welcome additions to any program.

The recital will be held in the auditorium of the Masonic temple, and any person is welcome and cordially invited.

JOHN SAARI TO SPEAK.

Minnesotan Selected to Deliver Calumet Finnish Celebration Address.

Calumet, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Calumet business men's Fourth of July committee has arranged with John Saari of Sparta, Minn., ex-member of the Minnesota legislature, to speak at the big Finnish celebration June 24. Mr. Saari will talk on some national question. Many Finns are expected here from the Minnesota iron ranges, Duluth and the Michigan districts. The Finns will contribute to the business men's general fund, and will share in the decorations that will be put up for the several conventions.

The local Finnish lodge, Knights of Kaleva, is already making arrangements for the celebration on June 24. A meeting of the local society will be held the evening of May 15, when final arrangements for the local celebration will be made. To assist in the celebration invitations are being extended to other lodges in the upper peninsula, Palmesdale, South Range, Mass City, Rockland, Ishpeming, Crystal Falls, Mohawk, Ironwood and others will attend. It is also proposed to have the ladies' branches of the Knights of Kaleva also observe the day here.

McNAUGHTON IN CHARGE.

General Manager of Calumet & Hecla to Run Bigelow Group.

Calumet, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Norman W. Haire has severed his connection as general manager of the Bigelow group of mines, mills and smelters, his resignations from the management of each of the several main or subsidiary companies having been tendered during the past few weeks, all taking effect Wednesday. James McNaughton, general manager of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company, which corporation has taken over all of the Bigelow holdings in the Lake Superior district, succeeds Mr. Haire as general manager of this group of properties.

Judge Haire came to copperdom in 1905, assuming the position of general manager of the Bigelow mines on Sept. 1 of that year. At that time he held the position of circuit judge for the Gogebic-Ontonagon county circuit making his headquarters in Ironwood. He resigned his judgeship to accept his position with the Bigelow people, and during his four years' residence in copperdom he has won legions of friends.

LAND OWNERS PLEASED.

Glad Proposed Cut-Off Canal Project Is Not Dead.

Aitkin, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The landowners along the route of the proposed cut-off canal are much pleased over the news that Congressman Miller and State Engineer Ralph have succeeded in getting a rehearing for the project before the war department.

The plan was disapproved a few days ago, owing to improper controlling gates at the head of the canal where it taps the Mississippi river. The objections will be removed, and it is now thought there will be no further serious obstacles to going ahead with the proceedings under the state law.

GAMBLING AT MADISON RIGHT NEAR STATE HOUSE.

Madison, Wis., May 7.—An editorial in a local paper threatens trouble for a half dozen gambling joints in Madison. The editorial made the statement that an employe of the legislature had lost $100 in one of the joints within a week and that it was understood several games were flourishing.

It is said that at least five gambling houses are operated within sight of the state's capital.

INDICTED FOR ROBBING MINNESOTA POSTOFFICE.

Fargo, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Despite the fact that he claimed to have been in Fargo during the holidays, at the time the postoffice at Strathcona, Minn., was robbed, Andrew Hendel, who was held here last week on the charge of robbing the place, has been taken to Fergus Falls, where he was indicted by a United States grand jury.

Aitkin Court Begins May 18.

Aitkin, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The date for the opening of the May term of the district court has been changed from the 11th to the 18th in readjusting the terms to meet new conditions in the district.

WHEAT HAS GOOD RALLY

After the Government Report Is Issued, Wheat Goes Up.

Flax Is Easier at the End of a Quiet Session.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 7.—Wheat was very irregular during the session in the American markets, the trade excitedly awaiting the issuance of the government report, which came out about noon.

The report was bullish and sent wheat up, right after a slump it had taken on a drive by the bears a short time before. The report placed the average condition of winter wheat at 83.5 per cent, which is lower than last year and a deterioration from last month.

The American markets closed fractionally higher.

Liverpool closed ⅝d to 1⅜d lower, Berlin 1⅞ higher, Antwerp, 1⅞c higher and Budapest 1¼c higher.

The May option closed ⅝c higher in Duluth, ¾c higher in Chicago, and ½c higher in Minneapolis and New York. The July option closed ½c higher in Duluth and Minneapolis, ¼c higher in Chicago and ⅜c higher in New York.

May corn closed ¼c lower in Chicago and oats ⅛c lower.

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 11 against 6 last year, and at Minneapolis 173 against 169 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 184 cars against 176 last year. Chicago received 5, against 48 last year. Winnipeg received 67, against 42 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 2,881,000 bu; last year, 452,000 bu. Shipments, 421,000 bu; last year, 236,000 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour were 49,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 247,000 bu, last year, 259,000 bu. Shipments, 307,000 bu; last year, 202,000 bu. Clearances of corn were 25,000 bu.

Wheat was quite active in the Duluth market. July wheat opened ⅜c lower at $1.26⅜, advanced to $1.27, eased off to $1.25¼, rallied to $1.26⅝, declined to $1.26⅜, rallied to $1.27½ and closed at $1.27¾, a gain of 1c over yesterday. May wheat was inactive and closed ⅜c higher at $1.27⅜ bid. September wheat opened unchanged at $1.08⅜, went as low as 88 day. The light offerings were eagerly sought by the local and country millers. No. 1 northern sold for 3½c over the July option and No. 2 northern at 1½c over. No. 1 northern spot, and to arrive, $1.30¼; No. 2 northern, $1.27⅜@1.28¾; spot to arrive, $1.28¼; No. 3 wheat, $1.25⅜@1.26⅜; No. 3 yellow corn, 71⅝@72¼c; No. 3 oats, 55@56½; No. 2 rye, 84¾@87½c.

Flax—Receipts, 1 car today, against 23. Shipments, 4. Lack of offerings made the market inactive. Demand naturally was strong and prices were 1c over the Duluth July option. Close, $1.67¼.

Barley—Receipts, 4 cars today, against 8. Shipments 7. Due to a strong demand, both locally and outside, and light offerings, the market was stronger. Prices on all grades advanced 1@c. Malting barley received the strongest demand. Closing range, 1@2 65½c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,528 tons. Demand continued active and far in excess of the supply. Shipments were nominal and prices held firm. Bran in bulk, $22.50@24.00.

Flour was in fair demand. The high prices make nearly all outside orders for small quantities. Foreign inquiry was practically lacking. Shipments increased and prices were unchanged. Shipments, 44,235 barrels. First patents, $6.10@6.30; second patents, $6.00@6.20; first clears, $4.90@5.05; second clears, $3.45@3.55.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

No Rain in Kansas Is Slogan of the Bulls.

Chicago, May 6.—"No rain in Kansas," was the slogan used by the bulls in the wheat pit to force prices sharply higher at the opening of the market today. Initial quotations showed gains of ½c to 1⅜@1⅝c compared with yesterday's final figures. Shorts who had sold freely on the slump late in the previous day were eager bidders at the start, and for a time offerings were inadequate to the demand. An advance of ⅜@1⅝d at Liverpool was an additional incentive to buyers. Toward the end of the first hour offerings were more liberal and prices reacted considerably from the top.

The market was strong all day, houses with Southwestern connections being the principal purchasers throughout the entire session. The close was strong, with July up 1⅝c at $1.17@1.17⅜. May was ⅜c higher at $1.23⅜@1.17½, and on May $1.28½@1.29. Early in the day July advanced to $1.17⅞ and May to $1.29½, declining later to $1.16⅞ and $1.29 respectively.

Sentiment was extremely bullish all day, and prices advanced to new high record marks for the season. The top for July was reached at 70c. The close was strong, with July up 3¼@3⅝c at 69⅞c.

Light receipts prompted active buying of corn at the start, resulting in a strong opening. Initial quotations being up ⅜@⅝c to ⅜@½c. Commission houses led in the buying, although shorts also bought freely. There was some selling of the September delivery, owing to predictions of better weather for farm work, but prices held firm early in the day. July opened at 69¼@69⅜c and sold at 69⅝@69⅝c.

Liberal purchases of the May delivery by a leading cash interest, caused strength in the oats market at the start. Shorts also were good buyers of the new options. July opened ⅜@⅝c to ½@¾c higher at 50¼c to 50⅝c, and sold at 50⅜c. Trade in provisions was dull and the market was about steady. Prices at the start were unchanged to 2½c to 5c higher.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Stronger Cables and Unfavorable Weather Combine to Make Strength

Minneapolis, Minn., May 6.—Stronger cables and unfavorable weather reports from the Southwest made the opening strong. Both May and July wheat advanced to a new high point. Local stocks decreased 650,000 bushels for five days. Profit taking made the market close at about the opening price after a nervous and choppy session. Minneapolis today received 139 cars; Duluth 6 against 200; Winnipeg 57 against 32. May opened $1.28⅜ high, $1.29¼; low, $1.27⅞; close, $1.28⅜. July opened $1.26¾@1.27; high, $1.28; low, $1.26½; close, $1.27@1.27¼. Cash wheat was in strong demand again today. The light offerings were eagerly sought by the local and country millers. No. 1 northern sold for 3½c over the July option and No. 2 northern at 1½c over. No. 1 northern spot, and to arrive, $1.30¼; No. 2 northern, $1.27⅜@1.28¾; spot to arrive, $1.28¼; No. 3 wheat, $1.25⅜@1.26⅜; No. 3 yellow corn, 71⅝@72¼c; No. 3 oats, 55@56½; No. 2 rye, 84¾@87½c.

Flax—Receipts, 1 car today, against 23. Shipments, 4. Lack of offerings made the market inactive. Demand naturally was strong and prices were 1c over the Duluth July option. Close, $1.67¼.

Barley—Receipts, 4 cars today, against 8. Shipments 7. Due to a strong demand, both locally and outside, and light offerings, the market was stronger. Prices on all grades advanced 1@c. Malting barley received the strongest demand. Closing range, 1@2 65½c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,528 tons. Demand continued active and far in excess of the supply. Shipments were nominal and prices held firm. Bran in bulk, $22.50@24.00.

Flour was in fair demand. The high prices make nearly all outside orders for small quantities. Foreign inquiry was practically lacking. Shipments increased and prices were unchanged. Shipments, 44,235 barrels. First patents, $6.10@6.30; second patents, $6.00@6.20; first clears, $4.90@5.05; second clears, $3.45@3.55.

SUPERIOR NEWS

East End Scandal Up.

The East end scandal is being tried this afternoon in superior court. A number of young men in that section of Superior are implicated and are on the stand this afternoon. The plaintiff in the case is an East end girl, who was at first thought to have been insane and but who was later adjudged to be in her right mind.

Turned Down All Bids.

Indications are that the board of public works will not award a contract this year for the resurfacing of Hughitt avenue between Third and Belknap streets. Bids were opened for the third time yesterday, but none of them seemed to prove satisfactory and all were rejected.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Strength Shown at the Opening, But Realizing Broke Prices.

Close Was Very Dull With Some Losses From Wednesday.

New York, May 6.—Prices moved upwards to a moderate extent in the opening dealings in stocks today. The metal industries were prominent, Amalgamated Copper rising 1⅜. Anaconda and American Locomotive 1 and American Smelting and American Cotton Oil large fractions. Southern Railway preferred declined ¾.

Increasing strength was shown in the stock market, but the industrials largely monopolized the dealings with showed the most strength. The feature of the trading was a spirited buying of the copper stocks and United States Steel. Anaconda was lifted 2⅜, American Smelting, Amalgamated Copper and Utah Copper 2, Western Maryland 1¾ and Minneapolis & St. Louis, the United States Steel stocks, the American Cotton Oil stocks, National Lead, American Tobacco preferred and Western Union 1 to 1⅛.

There were sudden advances in several specialties, but the general list turned downward under the weight of realizing sales. Western Maryland rose 3 points; Kansas City Southern, 1⅝; Wabash preferred, 1¾; American Linseed preferred, 2¼, and American Car stocks, American Agricultural Chemical, the Virginia-Carolina Chemical stocks, Railway Steel Spring preferred, American Locomotive and Federal Mining preferred, 1 to 2 points. Bonds were strong.

The demand was largely confined to many specialties, while the market for railroad stocks was sluggish, but firm. St. Paul, Denver & Rio Grande and Chicago & Alton rose 1; Western Maryland jumped up 5 points; American Cotton Oil, 3½; United States Rubber, 2⅜, and the first and second preferred, Pullman Railway Steel preferred, International Paper preferred, the Corn Products stocks, International Pump preferred and American Hide & Leather preferred, 1 to 2. A reaction of 2 points in Western Maryland stopped the rise and trading became very dull.

The market closed very dull. Union Pacific and Reading was carried slightly lower than last night in the reaction, and the local traction stocks were distinctly heavy. Pacific Mail lost 1. International Harvester preferred. Distillers' Securities and Central Railroad of New Jersey gained 1@1¾.
